Excuse me?

Paul: Yes of course, hello.

I'm looking for my mummy. Have you seen her?

Paul: I haven't seen her, but I think we can probably help you. When did you lose her? Where were you?

In the park.

Paul: In the park, I see, and what's it like now, is it dark or light, what do you see in front of you?

It's nearly dark.

Paul: And are you feeling okay?

No, I'm looking for my mummy!

Paul: Yes, well, we're here to help, so it's good that you've come to the right place; so if you look ahead of you, you should start to see a bit of light. It may not be very bright at first, you may need to have a look around, but there may be a light starting to build and we might sense people coming towards you. I'm not exactly sure whether it'll be your mummy or do you have any grandparents, or maybe they've passed on already?

They're not here. I want my mummy! I can't find my mummy. (Almost tearful)

Paul: Well, let's look for her then. As I say, do you see any light building up? A lovely bright light? (Yes) Well, there should be someone. I think it'll be someone you recognise, I'm not sure if it'll be your mummy to start with, but I know it'll be a beautiful lady with a lovely smiley face, coming to help you.

My mummy told me not to speak to people I don't know.

Paul: Ah yes, well that's very, very good advice, but this will be a very kindly lady, like a nurse or a doctor or something like that.

Mummy's got a bad knee.

Paul: Right, so maybe she'll be here to help your mummy, but she'll help you as well. As I say, she's a very kindly one, she's a very good one, a good loving one. Can you see her now? You should feel a nice warmth.

Can I hold your hand?

Paul: Yes of course.

Because I'm scared.

Paul: Yeah, how's that?

(Now holding hands—Di mentions there may be a dog or a cat around))

Paul: Someone is saying there may be a nice animal, a dog or a cat around. Do you have a ...

Timmy? He's not with me.

Paul: Maybe it's a different one, or maybe the lady's brought one along? A lovely cat or dog—a very friendly one...

He's noisy—meow!

Paul: Right, one of those noisy ones, yeah, but they're lovely, aren't they? And I think this lady's brought one along as well. Can you see her now?

I can see a shadow.

Paul: Ah right, she's just coming then, if you can see her shadow. Just keep looking ahead and she'll get brighter and you'll be able to see a lovely lady. And as I say, keep a look out, I think she may have brought a cat or something with her.

I see her now, I see a lady. Will she take me to my mummy?

Paul: She'll look after you and yes, when the time is right, she'll take you to your mum and she'll look after you until she can take you to your mum.

And I'll tell mummy you were a very nice man.

Paul: Thank you—we're here just to help. There's always help available. Lots of good people in the world.

The lady's very bright.

Paul: Very bright, almost like an angel, is she?

Yes, very, very bright.

Paul: Yes, full of love.

She wants me to go with her.

Paul: Yes, you're in very safe hands. She'll probably have lots of things to tell you, maybe a lovely story. Are you happy to go with the lady then?

Yes—thank you very much.

Paul: It's a pleasure, enjoy your time with this lovely lady.

Yeah, I will, thank you.

Paul: Okay, bye bye for now and one day maybe you can come back and tell me all about it. I don't know your name.

Paul: Oh, I'm Paul.

Paul.

Paul: And what was your name?

Greta.

Paul: Greta, that's a lovely name.

The lady's calling me.

Paul: Okay, you run along with the lady then and maybe we'll speak another time. Bye, bye Greta.
