Two Exoplanets Extremely Similar to Earth Found in Goldilocks Zone

We just keep finding them, more and more planets with similarities to Earth – two more, to be exact. Kepler 438b and Kepler 442b – both these planets rest snugly in the so-called Goldilocks zone of their own star systems. So, what is the Goldilocks zone? The Goldilocks zone This name is ... Lilian: Good evening Salumet—welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As I join with you all this time, we give a welcome to that one (Martin, sitting in with us)—yes. I am happy my dear friends to join with you again, in order that we unite spiritually and with love and peace and with contentment. There is so much that is happening in your world at this time—our world is indeed quite busy, as you would fully understand, with so much destruction among human beings. But I will tell you again: do not despair—do not become embroiled in all that is sadness within your world, but rather to allow that light to travel further and further, until it reaches the very boundaries of your Earth planet. Let that love take hold, and let each and every one of you on this planet have the realization that love is the answer to all and the conqueror of all. There is no need for me my dear friends, to tell you that it is necessary for you to think about these things, but never to dwell upon them.

George: Yes Salumet, I feel we can't help but feel sadness for those who suffer.

Yes, but you must allow the sadness to pass—you must as I have always told you, move forward. That is not to say you must ignore what is happening, but to recognize and then to let go, as you must in your only human. To cling to something is a little foolish I would say, but understandable because you are only human.

George: Yes, I know a number of us are rather puzzled by attitudes within the politics.

Yes, but as I have told you in previous times, that we are doing all that we can, to impress the leaders of your world to say the right words to help their peoples.

George: Yes, and we are most grateful.

It is not something that will happen in a blink of the eye, but I can assure you that there is still much more good in your world, than there is unrest.

Sara: I think sometimes people fear that if they don't discuss world affairs and the problems of the world they are perhaps ignoring them, but I tend to think it's better to be aware of them, and am I right in thinking, think of them in prayer/send healing thoughts—is that more powerful than discussing events with some sadness?

Yes, you have used the correct words when you say: 'become aware'—you cannot hide from actions that have happened. You must be aware.

Sara: Aware, and then use prayer would you say?

Let go in your prayers—that is the stronger help that you can give. So yes, you are correct. That is not being blindfolded to all that is occurring in your world. But if only you could see the power of prayer you would understand more fully what I tell you.

Graham: I find that when you become aware of something and then you feel sadness about it, sometimes even you feel briefly annoyed about something; I find that when you actually ask a prayer about it later on, that's a great way of releasing any sad feelings that you have, and it makes it so much more positive.

Yes, cannot stress enough to you, my dear friends, on releasing whatever it may be, so that the Spirit can soar freely, and in that way can help much more (yes). Yes, but it is human nature and we also know this, that because you are human, it is not so easy for you to do, but with practice it becomes a very strong force from within you—and in that way help is there for those who need it. Do you have any questions about this?

George: Actually, one of our readers sent in a question. Last time, we mentioned about people being misguided. The question he raised is: Who exactly is doing the misguiding? Are we misguiding ourselves or are there ones in spirit who are aiding in the misguiding as well as the good guiding?

Yes, I understand your question. It is an interesting question—because of course, you can misguide yourselves. Let us look to the word 'mis-guide'. It indicates that there has to be guidance of some kind.

Spirit from the higher realms can never misguide anyone, it can only be from truth and love. So if there is any misguidance in words said from spiritual high, then that misguidance comes from that individual—in the way that it is accepted or in the way that, as human beings, they react to any information. So I would suggest that for your reader, most of the misguidance comes from within.

George: Comes from within the individual?

Yes (yes). I hope that will help them.

George: Yes, thank you. I'm sure he'll be grateful for that.

I know what you mean by saying: from spirit there can be misguidedness. I would not call that being misguided I would call that 'false information', which of course does happen when there are mischievous spirits around. But that is up to each individual to become aware and to recognize what is truth and what is not. You understand?

George: Yes, so the recognition by the individual—

Is necessary, yes.

George: And the individual's free-will may play a big part.

Yes—yes.

George: Thank you, I'm sure that will be appreciated.

Have we more questions?

Paul: I was just thinking of the people that go on marches and come together to protest about something. So presumably then it's okay to come together and have a march for say 'peace' or something (Yes). But even better then to bring those people together and use their power-of-thought for prayer. Once you've assembled a group of people together, to then—

You can never say it is wrong to come against injustice—of course you have to recognize that injustice in your world exists, but what I am saying to you is that you do not continually hold onto these things. You must either do something physically if that is what you must. But I say to you: the best way to deal with injustice is to give yourself to Spirit and prayer, and in that way we have a stronger issue of inspiring others for the better. You understand?

Paul: Yes, so it is better perhaps to step back from it—use the power of your thought to influence the situation.

Yes, that is the most powerful way to help. If you cannot physically help another, which many people do, and to their credit, then of course you must resort to what you know to be best. And I say only that prayer can conquer all.

Paul: Yes, so we'd be better off organizing ourselves into regular prayer meetings.

I would say daily prayer.

Sara: Instead of activism, or political or even just dialogue.

Yes. But of course these things play a part in your lives—your world. So that will not disappear in an instant, but what will happen is that the influence from Spirit will become stronger. And it is happening now with your leaders, where we are inspiring them in the right direction.

George: Yes, I think some of us are concerned because there is a forthcoming election for a new government, and I know there's considerable disenchantment with the main political parties, who are seen to be not loving and peaceful parties. But unfortunately the Green party which is much more peaceful in its outlook, has a minor following, and I imagine this could be helped by our prayer and thinking. I don't know if it's appropriate for you to say anything on this part of our living Salumet?

I would say only that although for you in your country, it is rather a big issue, when you place it within the range of world politics it is very small (yes). If you can keep the perspective of all government—I am speaking about your world as a whole. If where your own country's government lies in its views, you of course are concerned and worried that the right decisions are being made, if I say to you, my dear friend, if every peace-loving person within your country was to offer prayers for peace, do you not feel that it could have a wonderful benefit for all?

(Agreed)

George: Oh I do.

And then you have to magnify this in all of your political agendas throughout your world. It is no simple task, but each and every person can help, help in a way where they do not even have to voice an opinion. You understand?

(Affirmed)

George: Yes, this is something for us to think on.

Jan: In exactly the same way as your first opening statement was to us: to take note, to absorb and then to let it go—in exactly the same way.

Yes—you cannot ignore life. You cannot as human beings ignore what is within your world. But you can help as individuals; you can, you can and you must.

Jan: Because our power of thought even impresses those leaders—they don't need to be impressed from Spirit, we are Spirit.

You are Spirit—of course you are, and that is something that you must never forget. It is almost sometimes as if people see themselves as separate, as human and Spirit, but you are not; you are both—you are Spirit first and foremost. I have told you this so often.

Jan: There lies the responsibility for us all (Yes). We can't leave it to those, like we like to call 'above'.

You cannot. We can help, and we can help as much as we can, in as much as we can help, if we are asked to help. You understand?

Jan: Yes.

Thank you. Would our guest this evening like to ask anything?

Slight pause

Martin: I find it hard to think of where to start. Maybe the best question is: what should I ask?

(Chuckles)

I see—if you want me to read your mind, well, that can be done, but not appropriate at this time. But we will leave you to think of a question.

Mark: Could I ask a question? When Martin Luther King inspired the black people in America to—they all walked to work for about I think 10-11 months, in order to get rid of segregation, and they managed to achieve it, because they brought down the bus company—went bankrupt. And I was wondering if Martin Luther King's prayer, and the connected prayers of all those black people—whether that was what achieved the success of that movement?

Might I pass the question back to you? (sure) What do you think?

Mark: I think it probably was—that Martin Luther King managed to unite everyone—

This gentleman you speak of came to this world with a purpose. That purpose is what you have just mentioned—that he inspired so many people to do and work towards the right thing. And of course prayer is the most powerful thing. But segregation was on its last legs when this gentleman came and inspired all of those people. He was the 'pin' that was needed for this all to take place.

Mark: I see. The conditions were right, yeah.

The timing and the conditions were meant to be. So the answer to your question is: of course prayer was a very strong force. I hope that has helped you (thank you).

Now, my dear friends—yes, there are some depleted energies within this room, and as I take my leave of you, we will try to uplift you—try to comfort and heal you also. We give thanks once more for the unity that we have found this time. And may that Great Creative Force stay with you at all times. And so my friends, I take my leave of you this time.

George: Thank you so much Salumet for your visit, which is very, very much appreciated by us all—thank you.

(General thanks)

Pause while Eileen returns; then a period of clairvoyance from Eileen beginning with Dawn and Lilian receiving floral gifts from Spirit of snowdrops and a periwinkle to remind that loved ones are near. A light-hearted one through Jan (Buddy) helped to identify the periwinkle and joined the conversation. They also assisted Jan to release some pain. Eileen 'saw' Jan's grandma with a white apron watching lovingly over Jan.

Finally a rescue via Eileen conducted by Lilian, with a little help from Jan and Sara—audio link:

<http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/rescue2ndfeb2015.mp3>

Very misty isn't it?

Lilian: You can see mist. Are you outside?

Yes—very misty.

Lilian: Can you see your way at all?

I can see a house.

Lilian: What else can you see?

Street light.

Lilian: Is it where you live nearby?

I rather think I'm lost. I'm looking for Michael, my husband. He should've been back by now.

Lilian: You went out to look for him?

Yes, I'm still looking for him. Oh he makes me so cross sometimes.

Lilian: They can do, can't they? I'm going to have to explain where you are—it may be a bit of a shock—I apologise for that. But I think you've passed into Spirit, and that's why you don't know where you are.

No, no, no of course I haven't—I'm looking for my love.

Lilian: I think you'll find Michael—you'll find him.

He'd better hurry up, because I intend to go home.

Lilian: Well, first of all, I'd like you to think about what I've said.

(Jan with clairvoyance, then interjected that Michael was waiting for her in the house.)

Lilian: Did you hear that? He's waiting for you

Well, I shall give him what for—keeping me waiting and worrying.

Lilian: You'll see bright lights all around him—very bright lights.

(Jan added that she should open the door.)

Who are you?

Jan: I'm just somebody here hoping to help you, because you were lost.

Do you usually help people?

Jan: If I can—I dare say you do too.

I'm getting really irritated by the second.

(Jan reiterated that she should go to the door and open it.)

Sara: Will you do that, open the door?

Who said that? You didn't.

Lilian: Somebody else is trying to help as well.

Jan: It's a big brown door.

Sara: Can you see the door?

I can see the house.

Sara: Go towards the house.

There's too many people telling me what to do!

Lilian: Okay, okay. Just open the door into the house.

Do you want me to trespass?!

Jan: Yes.

Do you really think that I should open someone's door?

Lilian: If you look at the door now—it's nice and bright (yes). Well, that's a strange door. And that's the door you must open.

Why, what's he doing in there?

Lilian: Well, open the door—then you'll see Michael in a bright light. Remember I told you that you'd passed into Spirit—and you both are in Spirit. You can find Michael and go together.

In great surprise—Well I never! He is there isn't he! Very handsome! Well I never! I must be dreaming surely!

Lilian: No, you're not dreaming. It's where we all go when we die, only you hadn't thought about it.

He's very young and I'm very young—I'm not old enough to die!

Lilian: Well I'm telling you that you're dead, but in a way we can't die—we just pass into Spirit and start a new life.

—Full of sparkling light.

Lilian: Yeah, it's a beautiful place.

I can see it's beautiful. I'm just not convinced.

Lilian: You probably thought of it as Heaven—well, that's a very good word for it.

Oh look! How beautiful is that!

Lilian: So you're quite happy to go and find out more about it and see more beauty?

I do want to go, but I'm still going to tell him off. (Chuckles)

Jan: He's smiling and he's saying he wouldn't expect anything else from you.

It's that voice again!

(Chuckles)

Where's it coming from?

Lilian: It's just another one trying to help.

I like you—you're very kind. How can I let you know if I really am dead?

(Chuckles)

Lilian: It's just something I know—it happens to us all, as you know.

Well I know now—

Lilian: I just helped —I'll say I helped you through the door, into Spirit.

Yes, I am going now and yes, he is smiling at me. How can I be cross?

Lilian: Well he can explain much more than I did.

Can I know your name?

Lilian: Lilian.

Thank you Lilian, I'm beginning to believe you.

Lilian: You're welcome. Glad to have helped.

George's Notes:

Martin Luther King (1929-1968): Baptist minister and activist in the African-American Civil Rights movement, and recognized as one of the greatest orators in American history. He led the Montgomery Bus Boycott in 1955, received the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964, spoke out against the Vietnam War and was assassinated in Memphis on 4th April 1968.

~9th February 2015~

Our evening began with one who spoke via Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_02_09+Emma.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

Good evening.

(General welcome)

How lovely to be with you!

Lilian: Have you been before?

I have indeed.

Paul: Is it Emma?

It is.

Paul: Ah well, welcome back Emma!

(Emma Hardinge-Britten (1823-1899) has of course visited on several occasions, and Eileen's chair would always creak slightly and reveal her very straight-back sitting position—aiding our quick identification of the dear lady. But since her last visit the chair has been changed!)

Thank you. I felt it necessary just to update you on my work.

George: Excellent! Thank you.

Of course I'm still helping women as you know, (yes) but I am being used in a much wider capacity, and I am helping women from all over your world at this time.

Paul: So perhaps not just in the Middle Eastern countries?

All over—it is time that women recognise their own worth—to free themselves from those—may I call them 'tyrants'? Because that's what the feeling the women on your Earth have, that they are being treated as how you might say: second class (yes) and this cannot be allowed to continue.

George: Yes, quite right.

Yes, so therefore I am being shown all of these women that need help. Might I ask please that you remember them in your prayers?

(Affirmed by all)

George: Of course. We had another one through—a gentleman who is engaged in that same type of work, who's name—we understand his name as 'Cho' and I think he said: yes, he is aware of your work too.

Oh indeed! I cannot reciprocate, but I will endeavour to find out when I return. But of course, as always, this is a very short visit. I just wanted you, with your love and your kindness to remember these women and to help all that you can.

Paul: So not to focus on any one place, but women all over the world.

All areas of your world, yes, they all need help.

Lilian: Funnily enough on our news today, a very well known young man—one of his things was to help downtrodden women, which he's just started.

So we are making an impression on others!

Lilian: Yes—a well known character. (David Beckham—ex-footballer)

That can only be good, can't it?

Serena: And there's an international women's day on the 7th March, to celebrate women's strengths.

Yes, and I shall be around on that day, just to see how things go. Thank you. Now, I will leave you in peace—take myself from your company and—(Ah!) Ah? You are sad that I am leaving?

George: I was about to say: we are delighted that you have been with us. I do think of you from time to time, because your work is clearly very, very important and we are aware of the sad status of some women about the world.

Yes, well it is only when you have had difficulty that you appreciate and understand it. That is why it is quite close to me. I do not feel I can move forward whilst these poor women are being mistreated.

George: Here in England we've had our Suffragette movement, so we know our historical connection.

Yes you do, yes and you must appreciate the work that you do here too. Do not forget how much you do to help others. We in spirit appreciate it greatly.

Paul: We certainly need our reminding though, to focus on different parts.

Yes, if I might say: it is one of your little downfalls that the memory isn't always intact. But anyway, I do have to go and allow whatever is going to happen, to happen.

Lilian: Well, we'll look forward to the next visit.

George: And I know we all very much appreciate the work that you do, and we wish all those ladies about the world: very well.

Paul: And we'll remember them when we say our prayers next time.

Yes, thank you. I know you will remember, yes. I will say: good night and bless all of you.

There followed a period of clairvoyance with messages via Eileen. Firstly, the name 'Samuel' and a future career move and travel, needing a positive move, which was meaningful to Jan. Then advice for Jan's sister and the assurance that help is to hand.

Next George's father with Eileen, who picked up that he could have done more in his life, though he did have a full and happy life. George voiced that his father was a man of several parts—engineer, brief WWI naval career and farmer, with some travel in the Mediterranean. He declared Paul to be of similar mind and his message was: 'if you really want to do something, you can do it'. (Paul had expressed an interest in bringing together various aspects of spirituality) Then Eileen was saying to me: Did he call you 'my boy?'—absolutely right! And he was saying: when it's time for us to meet up again, we'll have a really good chat. Another next spoke via Eileen who initially gave her name as Mary Magdalene (a nickname we think) and going on to describe herself as a lady of the night: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_02_09+Mary+Mag.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Cor blimey, I thought you'd never talk to me.

(Chuckles)

Lilian: That's a shame—sorry about that.

Yeah.

Lilian: Nice of you to come and have a chat.

That's all right dearie, don't worry about it.

Jan: You've been with us before haven't you?

Have I? Cor blimey dearie, I've been all over the place!

Lilian: You enjoy going round to groups like ours do you?

I bet I haven't given you the name I've got today. You'll never believe it, what they called me—not now mind you—Mary Magdalene!

Jan: Why did they call you that?

I'm not her dearie!

(Chuckles).

Jan: I know. Why did they call you that?

I used to be a lady of the night. They thought it was funny, didn't they?—thought it was funny. You my dears can call me Mary.

Jan: Well, nice to meet you.

Yeah—purest of the pure.

(Big chuckles)

George: So you were a lady of the night and you are Mary—is that correct?

That's my name—yes. That's the name YOU know me by.

George: Well, I bet you've got a few stories to tell—

Never tell tales sir—you never tell. That would never do, would it? Anyways, I just popped in because I heard somebody talking about ABUSED WOMEN.

(General understanding to that!)

Yeah.

Jan: That's something that interests you as well does it?

It interested me when I heard her talk about it.

Jan: Yes, she does some really good work.

Does she? Yeah. I suppose I was one of those women, weren't I?

Jan: You were, yes.

Abused—yeah. Only trouble is I made some profit from it.

Jan: Well it's still abuse, isn't it, at the end of the day.

Yeah it is.

Jan: You had to make a living somehow, didn't you?

That's right, I did my dear—I did.

Lilian: So where did you live, in London?

Yes. Yeah I think I did live in London.

Jan: You've got a good cockney accent there.

'Ave I my dear? (Yes.) Ah well that's where I came from then.

Jan: The sound of Bow bells—do you remember that?

Vaguely—yeah I vaguely remember that.

Lilian: So it was some time ago?

George: Do you remember when it was? Do you remember who was king or queen at the time?

I think it was that woman.

Jan: Victoria?

Yeah I think it was.

(Jan's clairvoyance was kicking in)

Jan: Did you have red hair Mary?

Yeah I did my dear—very proud of my hair.

Jan: You had lovely hair.

I did have lovely hair my dear.

Jan: I can see you, if you don't mind me saying, very buxom!

I was, yeah.

Jan: Very proud of that, yes.

I was, yeah.

Jan: And you've got a red bodice on, and a black shawl!

Oh dear! That's bringing back some memories sir.

Jan: Well I can see you with that red hair and all those ringlets round your face.

Very proud of my hair.

Jan: And green eyes.

Paul: Lovely.

Yeah—quite unusual. Who said that?

Paul: Me! (Giggles) Yeah, well green eyes are always lovely I think.

Yeah.

Jan: That's because your dad was Irish.

Aw, don't talk to me about him.

Jan: But that's where you got the red hair from, wasn't it?

Yeah, I know—they keep telling me that.

Jan: The Emerald Isle. Did he have a temper?

Never sober, never sober and when he was, he used to chase us down the street.

Jan: And beat your mum.

Yeah—not good times.

Jan: No. Hard times—poverty made people do things—and it still does.

Surely nobody puts up with that now?

Jan: You'd be surprised—that's why Emma's doing the work she is doing.

I'm gonna go and see that lady.

Jan: She'll be very interested to hear from you.

Yeah, I'd like to help.

Jan: I'm sure you could.

Lilian: Especially as you understand as well.

Jan: You're a nice lady.

Well, you had to have a FRONT, if you were gonna survive.

Jan: You had one of them!

(Giggles)

You got a sense of humour—I like you.

Paul: Jan's got a bit of a 'front' as well.

Jan: (Giggling) I've got a bit of a 'front'!

Has she got a bit of a front?

Jan: Yeah, we'd have been partners in crime!

Oh my word—and what would your name have been?

Jan: What would it have been then? (Yes) I think I would have chosen something like 'Sally'.

Sally?

Jan: Yeah and we'd have been down the same alley.

Sally—yes! Didn't somebody sing a song about that?—not when I was around.

Jan: Was it Gracie Fields with 'Sally'?

It was agreed that would have been some time after Mary's time in London

Yeah, not much singing—only in those ale houses. Yeah—drunken swines!

Jan: Yeah, horses, drunken swines, mess in the streets—all that to contend with. Do you remember 'Jack the Ripper' then? Were you living then?

Yeah—yeah, two women he killed—two women.

Jan: You must have been scared.

George: Jack the Ripper, yes—so it wasn't that long ago that you were on the Earth.

Long enough to forget—don't want to remember really. Just come back because that's how I was—not like it now.

Jan: No, you're not that person at all are you now? Have you ever wanted to come back again? Have you reincarnated back?

No. May do if I find something of interest, but I'm staying a bit longer. I know you can, but I've never looked to it.

Jan: So what do you do then Mary, in spirit?

I'm just going around trying to help people, learning about life, (yes) popping in now and again to people like you. I'm still learning a lot.

Jan: What do you think of our way of life on Earth now?

You don't know you're living (really). You've got so much. Nobody's out on the streets much—well they are but not like in MY time.

Jan: No, I know what you mean.

It was a hard life—yeah. Don't want that any more dearie.

George: Life's very different now.

You've all got clothes and food and so much.

Jan: Do you know we've got a lot to be grateful for to your generation, because without your living through that and the lessons that we've learned from every generation, then we wouldn't be where we are, would we? It's evolution.

Well, yes, I've heard that word before. People evolving and making progress—still some naughty people about though.

Jan: Oh of course, there probably always will be, until we're all perfect and then when we're all perfect we won't need to be here, will we?

I'm trying to help young women at the moment, not to indulge in what I did, cos nobody respects you.

Jan: Well that's a brilliant job to do. We do have a huge problem, all over the world with women trafficking—modern day slavery (yes). Made to do what you did and very young women—it's appalling. And they don't have a choice.

Well I'm going to see that lady—yes. What was her name again?

Jan: Emma—Emma Hardinge-Britten.

Yes, I know where I'll find her, thank you. Thanks for listening to me dearies—you've been wonderful.

Jan: Thank you Mary! It's been great to chat to you.

Yes, anyway I'd best be off.

George: Could I just ask: did you have a good house?

A house? No, it was a hovel—a hovel.

Jan: One room?

Yeah, full of rats and stench and dirty water! I can hardly bear to think of it now.

Jan: No, we don't want you to get upset about that. That's gone, isn't it? You're okay now, aren't you?

I'm fine—it's just when you come back you take on the memories—yeah.

Jan: Well thank you for taking on those memories for us tonight.

You're a lovely lot of people.

Jan: We try.

George: We thank you for coming to see us, and do feel free to come again if you feel like a chat.

Well d'you know sir, I was just thinking, if I'd been alive today, it would have cost you a fortune to talk to me.

(Laughs)

Jan: We've got you for free!

(Chuckles)

Jan: You haven't lost your sense of humour either!

No. I'm going to say goodbye.

General farewells and thanks

Cheerio.

We chatted afterwards about her being a beautiful woman inside and out—her red curly hair, pale green eyes, porcelain skin and buxom figure. Eileen commented that she would have made a stunning lady. There seems to be a theme at the moment of connecting with women who are striving to help those poor women who are being down-trodden/abused. So perhaps it's a good moment to mention again International woman's day 7th March—and of course as Salumet might well say, send our prayers/thoughts:

<http://www.internationalwomensday.com/>

George's Notes:

Jack the Ripper: In the mid-19th century there had been an influx of Irish into UK major cities; also E. European Jews. The London area of Whitechapel was very poor with many living in slums. Many were driven to prostitution with police estimates of 1,200 prostitutes and 62 brothels. One who became known as Jack the Ripper began his murders in 1888; cutting throats of victims and inflicting other macabre injuries. Eleven such murders occurred between 1888 and 1891, possibly attributable to the one criminal who was never identified.

Farming in the 1930s: As stated, farming was very different from today. The small (100 acres) Hampshire mixed farm had chickens, dairy herd—producing milk, butter and cream and free range eggs. Crops were potatoes, wheat, oats, barley, sugar beet, clover, hay and fodder, with occasional linseed and carrots—all much more towards 'organic' than today's mostly chemical-ridden system. Trade was largely local.

Meadows had seasonal mushrooms with a wonderful range of flowers and wildlife. If any would like more on this topic, I wrote a short factual story a few years ago: 'A Memory of Farming in the Forties':

<http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/A+MEMORY+OF+FARMING+IN+THE+FORTIES.doc>

(And in the 30s I might add: it was well water, candles and oil lamps, a garden privy, no energy bills and no mains water bills. Those times were certainly very different!)

~16th February 2015~ SALUMET

(Lilian could not be with us this evening—we numbered 8)

George: Good evening Salumet—welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As I join with you this time I see within your hearts the compassion for others, and this I hope my dear friends, will always continue—not only in this life but in any others that may come to you. Your concern and love for others shows how much you have grown spiritually, and although there may be times of doubt and confusion, it is always replaced by love and the light of spirit. Each time we come together I see the beauty of your lights, I see the dedication of your love of Spirit, and I see your love for mankind. We could not ask more of you. This time my dear friends, my visit to you will be quite short, because I would wish to work quietly with this instrument. So, if there is anything you wish to know, please speak with me now.

George: Yes—this might be an opportunity to say a little more on the subject of 'fear'. I have heard from one who has sent in questions before—questions about Mary. I have continued to correspond with him. I think his main—he has I feel become a little more rational, but his main problem would appear to be fear. So this might be a good opportunity to say a little more on that subject, which opposes love, as you have taught us. Perhaps I could read a little of what this one has said—he says: I want to be a light-worker, and I am in some ways already succeeding—He has a certain knowingness where computers are concerned—an intuition about them and can communicate with people about that. But he says: I want to overflow with light. My plan after I die is to do rescue work in the most horrible hells there are. But I can't do it when scared like this. I have tried to answer his questions, but I don't think he accepts my answers, and he would much prefer I put his questions to you Salumet. And he says: How is the amount, severity and length of suffering in the realms determined? Is it always a 1:1 ratio with the evil a person has done?—or can someone suffer kalpas or eons, as the Buddhists say, for things which truly do not merit this? Who or what is it that regulates this and makes sure everyone gets exactly what they deserve, no more and no less? Well, that's his phrasing—that is the way he puts it, Salumet. But you might agree that it's an opportunity to elaborate a little on the subject of fear, if that is possible?

Yes, I understand. 'Fear' is something created by the physical brain—not the mind, but the physical. What this one is overlooking is that he is trying to find answers for things that should be seen to when he comes home to spirit. He does not and will not be able to overcome fear so easily if he is constantly questioning fear. As I have said to you all, you must deal with whatever is troubling and then to let it go. This one is not able to do so. Let me go to the question about who has full control of how long or how much a soul will suffer for any wrong-doing. My answer to that is: that individual soul is their own judge and jury. No one will point a finger, no one will say what must be suffered—only that being themselves. There is no judgement like there is on Earth, where you have others who decide what you must suffer and how you must suffer. He has to be rid of these ideas. He will not know the full extent and may never do, for as he says himself—eons of time. It is not something easily understood. So for that I ask him to—and why would he wish to work with those people who have, in our own words: created their own hell? There followed some discussion from sitters that perhaps previous words/transcripts needed greater consideration. And we know from past teaching that Salumet does not like use of the word 'hell'—a physical description that is much overused by the religions. In reply to our observations, Salumet continued:

No. He is looking for answers that are not there.

Jan: He is creating a problem in his mind that doesn't need to be there.

Yes, he is not quite ready. To want to help others is admirable—that I would not dispute, but why when he exists on this Earthly plane is he thinking about the situations of being in hell and suffering? When he comes to our world his thinking will be much clearer. But that is all I would say to him. I feel he is not quite ready for the truth. He will not find answers whilst still here on the Earth plane.

George: Yes, I have tried to say on the matter of self-judgement, but—

He has not accept it, because—

George: He now has that answer direct from yourself.

Yes, he is creating problems—problems that cannot be answered fully until he has come to our world.

George: Yes, thank you Salumet.

But do try again—you are patient with him, and perhaps some word or two will find a place in his heart.

George: Thank you for your advice—yes, wonderful.

I hope it will help. You see, when human beings form thoughts whilst on Earth, it is very difficult sometimes to change their thinking, because thinking comes from deep within the mind and the mind belongs to Spirit. And I feel you must know this already, because I have said on many occasions that we try to influence. We cannot change directly your own free-wills, but we can influence.

George: So mind would benefit from stronger contact with Spirit.

Yes, you would know the difference between the thinking of the mind and the thinking of the brain.

People even now cannot accept that there is this separation.

George: Yes, I am aware there has been much thinking with the brain.

Yes, too much—too much.

Paul: The brain is kind of—things that have got in your head through your being influenced by the people around you, I would think.

Yes, the mind needs the brain to function; whilst you are in the bodies, you need that unity. But ultimately, when the brain is dead the mind is fully alert, and that is where the knowledge lies—the understanding and the eternal love—it is the mind. I hope that helps just a little.

George: Yes, thank you so much.

Yes, and if I may leave the time with the dear gentleman here, and I will continue this time to work deeply with this instrument.

Sarah: Thank you very much for coming to us this time.

Following a pause of several minutes one then seemed to be with Sarah:

George: Hello—good evening to you.

I have been told that there is one here (in spirit) who would be able to join me in bringing together information from all of you that is resting un-used. You are almost aware of those who are around you, and you know what to expect at times. But deep within you there is knowledge that could be useful to you if you brought it to the fore. So my purpose this time is for you to exercise this unused part of your mind. We will try to help you, and the one who is helping me will stay close to me and I will not be speaking too much anymore, but the lady to my left (Jan), if she will try to coax some information from each one of you in turn, I will stay with this one as a power source.

George: This sounds most interesting and we do appreciate what you are attempting—thank you.

If you feel you do not want to speak out what you are getting, just inform the lady you have the knowledge, and you do not have to say if you do not wish. But if you want to speak, it may help the others as well. So I will remain quiet whilst the lady to my left—perhaps she could stretch her arms out towards each one in turn and we will see what we can achieve.

Pause of several minutes

Jan: Do you wish to say anything Mark—I'm coming to you first.

Mark: I haven't got anything to say yet.

Jan: Does a place come to mind?

(Mark couldn't think of a place and so continued to sit quietly)

Jan: I'm coming to Serena next. Have you anything at all Serena?

Serena: I wouldn't actually call it knowledge, but I have since I've been sitting here, seen more brighter, vivid colours.

Jan: Yeah I have colours in mind for you, it's funny you should have said that. That's good.

Jan: I come to you Paul.

Paul: This sort of figure came into my head—a sovereign queen or something—quite an elegant lady (ginger curly hair).

Jan: That's fine—that's what you saw.

Paul: At first like a stone cross—like a Celtic thing.

Jan: George—anything at all?

George: Well I've just been thinking I'd like to spread more love and peace in the world, and on a personal level, complete the book I'm writing. These are the things on my mind.

Jan: Ah! That's nice, yes—appropriate.

Jan: Right, now it's your turn Dawn.

Dawn: The only thing I've had come to mind—a book—I can't tell you what book, or why a book. I'm not sure if it's just popped into my head, or not—and healing.

Jan: That's nice. Well, while I've been sat here I just felt a complete blending of us—we weren't individuals at all. We were just one entity. (Addressing the one with Sarah) Has our mission been accomplished?

You have achieved two goals. You have in your endeavours created an energy that will now enable you to work further on this project. You have had the beginning of something which will become much greater if you can return to it, especially in your meditation times. There is much more that you are capable of doing, but you needed to unlatch that door. So I will return, and thank you for your efforts.

George: Thank you so much for being with us and for attempting this work. We are grateful.

Thank you.

A pause followed during which we at first briefly exchanged comments, then a period of silence. Then one appeared to be with Eileen:

George: Good evening—welcome to you.

The one now with Eileen gave arm movements, but different from those of Salumet when he first arrives, then following a pause of several minutes, a deep voice:

I bring blessings to you.

Sarah: Thank you very much.

George: Wonderful! Thank you!

(There was some coughing, probably on account of the deepness of the voice)

No words necessary. Little body difficult—little voice—mine big voice. You can hear me?

Sarah: Yes, very clearly.

Blessings all of you—that's what I bring.

Sarah: Thank you—that's very nice—thank you.

George: Thank you so much. Your blessings are much appreciated.

Good friend—good friend, I leave you now.

Eileen had the impression that he was a big man and probably Indian. And when Salumet had completed his work with Eileen, she as usual as she returns on these occasions experienced the sensation of travelling backwards.

George's Notes:

Salumet really spells out on this occasion the difference between physical thought with the brain and the spiritual 'knowing' of mind. In today's scientific endeavours there is much physical thought—brainstorming is a word sometimes used. This of course has its place, but there have also been occasions when 'intuition' from 'going within' has produced a remarkable result. Examples?—Well, Rudolph Steiner's biodynamic agriculture, James Clerk Maxwell's electromagnetic theory, Albert Einstein's General Relativity and the organic chemist August Kekulé who became aware of the 6-member ring structure of benzene in a daydream, must be front runners.

Lilian: Good evening Salumet—welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, we thank you my dear friends, for all the love and help that you ask for others. I would like just to say to also remember those who are left behind on your Earth plane. They truly are the ones who suffer. Those who come to our world quickly recognise what a beautiful and wonderful situation they have found themselves in—they have returned to knowledge and to all of those who love them so. But they are also drawn back to this Earth plane, to those who are suffering at their loss—no matter how many times you tell them that their loved ones are safe and well, still so many mourn and mourn for much too long. So therefore it is imperative that you, my dear friends, remember to ask for them also in your prayers. If only you could hear the cries of those left behind, you would understand how much and how much more that they are the ones to suffer; and yet it is a mourning which is unnecessary, because I can reassure you, each one of you, that when you return home, there is so much light, so much love, so much happiness.

George: Yes—Jim who sat with us, his wife has recently rejoined spirit and I guess they are happily reunited. And I must say that I've been in touch with their two daughters, and they are much heartened by the many messages of love that they have received from their friends and relatives. And this I feel can be a nice factor relating to the Earth's feelings.

Yes, of course it is important for support and extra love at these times. But you see, my dear friends, I say sad times only exist on this Earth, not in our world. It is a rejoicing that keeps us in our world—rejoicing that another soul has departed the body and returned to the place that is much more real for them. But of course, any help that can be given to any human being, not only at a time of loss, but at all stages of Earthly life—that can only be good—yes. Does anyone wish to ask a question about this?

George: I'll just comment that it's very nice to receive that reassurance which I feel is not generally felt on the Earth plane.

No. I am speaking to people who have knowledge and understanding. But I say to you, the thoughts are needed for those who do not have that knowledge—that understanding. They are the ones who suffer, even although the suffering is brought upon themselves.

Sara: We can try to increase their awareness perhaps.

You may try to do this. It may not always be accepted, but—yes, to speak easily about death and passing can only bring more knowledge to your world.

Sara: I will try to do that.

We know that you all do this in different ways—a touch, a smile, a word—it takes very little to uplift the soul—yes.

George: Perhaps the people who are difficult to find upliftment—perhaps they are the ones who have benefitted from and have needed the church. We know the church has had many faults, but I guess, for some—

It is their comfort—if they find that is the place for love and comfort, then so be it, yes. But for many, they will never be convinced that there is life after death, and all you can do is to say a few words of support, and allow them to make their own minds up. That is all that can be done. Are there any more questions?

Lilian: I was just thinking, I bet in most cases where people are grieving on the Earth, there are strange coincidences which should give an inkling that the parents are okay or the children are okay—just a book I read—strange coincidences come along and make you wonder.

Yes, there will always be an opportunity given to those who are left behind (yes) in order that they may begin to think why (yes). But then, of course as you know, it is entirely up to them, whether they accept or deny. You cannot do more than to offer your love and your sympathy. But if you imagine how many have passed to spirit on this one day alone, then you will have some idea of those who are in a state of grief.

George: Yes, perhaps those who've passed to spirit in the difficult circumstances of war and politics—these are the ones who are felt for particularly.

Yes—you cannot make any difference between a person in grief. Grief is grief, no matter where or what the situation—yes. But I will say thank you once more, my dear friends, for all the love and thoughts that you send for others. Let me tell you they are well noted. Now are there any more questions this time?

Serena: Yes, I've got a question (yes). For the last three years, around about our Christmas time and New Year, my computer re-sets itself back to factory settings and I wonder if there's some different or extra electricity in the air. And also recently for the past several months—maybe longer, I get electric shocks off of different things and not just getting out of cars. So it does seem to me that the air's more charged—and I just wondered if you could help me out there?

Well, as regards to the time of your year, I believe you mentioned Christmas—there is an over-powering amount of love and good will at that time of year, especially here in your own country. But generally over your world there is goodness and more light, which in turn will increase the energy of love. This increase in energy can create many situations, and you have named one. That would explain your machinery. People often find that perhaps their phones—is that the word?—the phones? (Yes) will ring with no one on the end of it, that door knockers rap. It is all to do with increased energy, and with that energy, comes the opportunity for spirit to use it (yes). As for the electric shock—not only is the atmosphere charged and becomes more charged at times, but so too can the human body, and when the air is—I will say, 'supercharged' to suit the understanding of the words—that certain human beings feel it in many ways also. But of course you feel it as an electric shock, others will feel more inspired, others will feel confused and do not understand what is happening to them. But you are right in thinking that it is the energy, rather like your electricity that can come in surges. Is that helpful to you?

Serena: Very! Thank you.

Graham: Could this affect irregular heartbeats? I know a number of people at the moment, suffering from irregular heartbeats, and I wonder whether that is the same thing again?

It can be the cause—I would not say always (yes), but it can affect certain people. Yes, I have no doubt that if each and every one of you were to think of something that has happened at certain times, which is a little unexplainable to your senses, you could do so. It may be as simple as 'heightened awareness', it may be that you begin to understand the feelings of another—there is a wide range of happenings—yes.

George: Yes—we have spoken on the energy of the aether (yes). There is a scientist—Professor Reginald Cahill—who uses the term 'quantum foam', which I feel is an attempt to describe the nature, or part of the nature of the aether, and in order to get their papers accepted by journals these days, there is an avoidance of the term 'aether' and scientists tend to call it by quite a large number of different names—Yes, whatever suits the mind of even one person, if it makes sense then that is fine by them. And I will speak from spirit when I say that there is much work going on in trying to understand your world and your universes (yes), but I have to say, my dear friends, that it all has to become much more simple (yes). Scientists are making things too complicated, because of their own logical minds.

George: Their intellectual way of thinking (yes), yes I fully agree.

But it really matters not to us in spirit, what they call something, as long as they eventually reach the spiritual aspect.

George: Quite simply, I think you have told us the aether plays one role in up-keeping all matter in its various forms?

Everything is connected (yes). That is the simplicity—everything is connected in some way or another.

George: And there seems to be evidence for the aether being drawn into bodies in the universe—or perhaps ‘being drawn into’ is the wrong expression.

Yes, I would not like to use it in that way, but I understand what you are saying and of course, all beings have to use the energies which are part of them, which is used for existence, no matter whether it is a human existence a worldly existence or universal existence (yes). That energy is common to all things—you understand?

George: Yes, and we talk about the connection to planets and suns---and to galaxies, one might say—No—you must say, not might say. You cannot exclude— (Chuckles)

George: Yes, one must say, yes. And one can easily visualise a connection in the case of a spiral galaxy, and the form of that connection I would guess has to initiate the spiral form?

I see what you are saying, but again, you are trying to dictate that there has to be form at all times. When you come to spirit, you will lose these ideas of form. You understand where I am taking you?

George: I think so, and not all galaxies are spiral form.

No, but I do not like to dissuade people to not think, because by thinking, even if you are mistaken, eventually you can come to the right outcome.

George: I feel there’s been an awful lot of that in our scientific journey!

And much more to come of course, but all of these things are less important when you travel home. You will eventually understand more, and wonder why all of these situations seemed so complicated.

George: Yes—because we made them complicated, no doubt.

Because your own thinking has complicated them—yes. I hope that has helped you just a little.

George: Yes indeed—yes, thank you. It’s a great help to stand back—it’s like seeing things from a greater distance (yes), if I could put it like that.

‘Clarity’ is a word to use for all things—clear seeing, clear sensing, and then the picture begins to clear also. And we will leave it there just for this time. But, as with all knowledge, a little at a time is more beneficial, and that is what you are trying to achieve—to know and understand the form of existence. And I have to say my dear friend, it is not the kind of knowledge you will succeed in finding whilst upon Earth.

George: Yes I can accept that.

But we always thank you greatly for your efforts and to the knowledge that you have brought to others.

George: Well, I think we’re in the process of realising the Big Bang thinking was totally wrong.

Yes—but interesting.

(Laughs)

George: And we are changing to a ‘steady state’ theory (yes) which I think we’re all agreed is a more satisfactory way of seeing existence.

Yes, but there are always many who will dispute any information given from spirit, because they cannot justify it in their own minds.

George: But the gentleman I mentioned earlier, Reginald Cahill—I think I am correct in saying that he does align to the ‘steady state’ way of thinking, concerning the universe (yes); and I’m not sure how correct his reasoning for this has been, but I think that’s the way he is heading.

Yes, well we will only encourage those who seek to seek the truth, as you all are seeking truth. And now my friends—

George: I thank you for that Salumet.

Thank you—I will take my leave. Perhaps the lady would take you on a little journey and I will quietly return from this one. As always, I leave you knowing that my love for you all is strong, is protective; and we give thanks to all creation for all that there is.

George: I'm sure we all take pleasure in reciprocating that love.

(Thanks and farewells)

Following a pause, we were all then taken on a journey via Sara. Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/23_02_2015+sara+journey+8mins.mp3

We are going on a journey of love. We are going to try to feel the quality of love, and I want you to start in a sensory way by diving into a pool of pink water. It's so warm and you are just getting into the water and you just notice the beautiful pink colour—very gentle, quite a light pink actually; and you just gently start to swim around in this beautiful gentle pink water. And you feel so safe and so protected, and you realise that you are free to be yourself. And you splash around a little bit and you just feel this tremendously sweet, happy safe feeling of being loved and at the same time the quality of love itself. And so you keep swimming along and just being aware of this wonderful feeling, and you are thinking that, really, if you stay in this feeling for long enough and somehow carry that with you, you are going to start erupting into joy eventually, because really that's the next stage. Once you can feel that love within yourself and feel that—try to maintain that around you and give that feeling to other people and protect yourself enough and feel protected enough, that others can't take it from you—it's going to move into a different sort of state. You are going to feel more joyful generally and you are going to bubble up and be happy and transmit that happiness to other people. So it might be useful as a trigger to think of that beautiful sweet, pink protective feeling of the water—warm water around you, as you go through different experiences in your days—knowing that that's the feeling that you have to keep hold of. If you feel that—maintain that feeling of safety for long enough you will naturally start to feel and transmit that joy and happiness to others. So just paddle around in that pink water for a little bit longer and enjoy the feeling of love and warmth and peace, and imagine that others will want to drink from that and share that feeling with you.

(Pause)

There is a lightness to it—there's no heaviness or strident feeling/forcefulness—it's a light feeling. When you're in a state of love, it's something quite light and very gentle. You don't need to shout, scream or protect or defend—it's a feeling of lightness and love, but you have to also feel that way towards your own self, in order to maintain it. You have to somehow protect and defend and look after your own self a little in order to maintain that good feeling.

(Pause)

And it's sweet as well, without the strident forcefulness—that sweetness is retained.

George's Notes:

1: Sara's Journeys: On these journeys, Sara has no prior knowledge of what is to be said. She declared that there was a feeling of pressure about the head during the session.

2: Prof Reginald Cahill and PROCESS PHYSICS:

GRAVITY AS QUANTUM FOAM IN-FLOW

Reginald T. Cahill, School of Chemistry, Physics and Earth Sciences, Flinders University, South Australia (2003).

Abstract:

The new information-theoretic Process Physics provides an explanation of space as a quantum foam system in which gravity is an inhomogeneous flow of the quantum foam into matter. The older Newtonian and General Relativity theories for gravity are analysed. It is shown that Newtonian gravity may be written in the form of an in-flow. General Relativity is also analysed as an in-flow, for those cases where it has been tested. An analysis of various experimental data demonstrates that absolute motion relative to space has been observed by Michelson and Morley, Miller, Illingworth, Jaseja et al, Torr and Kolen, and by DeWitte. The Dayton Miller and Roland DeWitte data also reveal the in-flow of space into matter which manifests as gravity. The experimental data suggests that the in-flow is turbulent, which amounts to the observation of a gravitational wave phenomena. A new in-flow theory of gravity is proposed which passes all the tests that General Relativity was claimed to have passed, but as well the new theory suggests that the so-called spiral galaxy rotation-velocity anomaly may be explained without the need of 'dark matter'. Various other gravitational anomalies also appear to be explainable. Newtonian gravity appears to be strictly valid only outside of spherically symmetric matter systems.

Process Physics: This is a new paradigm for the modelling of reality—a dynamic model in which space and matter are seen to arise from a fundamentally random but self-organising system.

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

Good evening madam. You look just like my granny!

Lilian: With a chuckle—Do I? What's your name?

Sarah.

Lilian: Hello Sarah—mine's Lilian (Lilian). On the other side of you is George.

George.

(But George was trying to adjust his hearing aids!)

You're all very well behaved.

Lilian: Nice and quiet are we?

Nice and quiet.

Lilian: Yeah, we're few in number tonight (7)—in our little group. So why have you come to talk to us?

Just because you look like my granny.

Lilian: Oh my word! Has she changed? I'm sure she would have.

No, she went before I did.

Lilian: Yes, but she would've changed.

But you remind me of her! Not in the way you're dressed of course.

Lilian: No. What sort of clothes did she wear?—long clothes?

Yes—apron—cap—nice smile like you—used to grow her own herbs, but she couldn't save me—couldn't save me.

Lilian: So how old were you when you passed?

Oh I must have been nineteen.

Lilian: Oh, very young.

Yes—I had the consumption. So, my granny tried really hard, but it didn't work.

Lilian: Yeah, she must have been disappointed.

She was, but—

Lilian: —Different now. So what do you do in spirit—apart from visiting groups like ours?

I'm interested in the flowers and the herbs (yes) like my granny was. And I like to study them, and I try to influence people who use them (that's lovely). They're still good to use.

Lilian: Yeah, it's a shame we don't more.

Not always pure, like they were in granny's day, but nevertheless they're still good.

George: Did you make a study of the flowers?

I am at the moment—I'm studying.

Sarah: 'Cos Lilian likes flowers as well, don't you Lilian? (Yes) And she reminds you of your granny and Lilian likes flowers as well.

Lilian: I like the wild ones, (Yes!) probably more than the others.

My Granny loved all things that grew, but especially the herbs, because they helped people.

Lilian: Yes, they still use them—

I know.

—in medicines we have today.

Yes—any medicine's good isn't it, if it helps.

Lilian: That's true.

George: I was going to say, the herbs are used as much in cooking as for healing.

Yes, granny did that too—always adding little things, always looking out for people.

George: In studying flowers, are you also interested in the insects that visit the flowers and do the pollinating?

Well of course you have to take it all into account, but no I wouldn't say I was—

George: Yes, I've been very interested myself in the way the flowers rely on the insects for pollination (yes), and the bees in so doing collect the nectar for making honey.

Yes. It's all part of God's plan isn't it? (Indeed) Everything intertwines. Everything works with everything else. But my granny was a very wise woman, I know that now. I didn't at the time. I just—to be very truthful, I thought she was a little bit strange.

(Chuckles)

Paul: Could I ask a question about—I was thinking, do you think sometimes when people get ill, that some of the herbs or flowers can sometimes turn up in their gardens—the ones that are needed for the healing—do you think that can happen?

It can happen and it does happen. And it's all down to the nature spirits (ah!). You mustn't forget they have a big say in gardens and woodland and all kinds of growth.

Paul: Sometimes, certain herbs—I remember 'fennel'—when we've lived in places—sometimes fennel seems to grow very, very well—almost like a forest of it, even though we weren't particularly trying to grow it. I wondered if that was a sign that we should have been eating a lot of fennel?

Perhaps I can just say that wherever you live, if there is a glut of anything—it means that it should be used (ah). So to answer your question sir: yes, you're quite correct. It's the same with anything that is grown locally to you—it's there for a good reason. So I would suggest maybe that you think a little bit more about things like that.

Paul: Yes, it makes sense because if a plant's growing very well and strong in the area (yes!) Maybe to eat that strong plant helps us be strong.

Yes, yes because you're also in that area for a good reason also. Don't forget that everything intertwines—everything is part of everything else.

Lilian: Did your granny ever use dandelions?

Yes, she used lots of things; I couldn't tell you all of their names, but I remember as a very small child her trying to teach me. But of course, I was never quite as interested as I should have been.

Sarah: But she sowed the seed.

She sowed the seed! Yes.

(Chuckles)

Sarah: One thing just came to mind talking about nature spirits and plants (yes), if you take a cutting from a plant to make another plant (yes), does it take part of that nature spirit that's in that plant into the new plant or does it get a new spirit?

But the nature spirit is not exactly in the plant. The nature spirits take care of the plant.

Sarah: But hasn't each plant got its own spirit?

If you cut a plant it can suffer for a little while. It's never as clear cut as human beings seem to assume. There is feeling within all living things—but what it takes from the mother plant, shall we call it, is all the energy that it has sustained throughout its own growth. Therefore the younger plant is able to then grow strong and healthy, because it has been taken from another strong plant.

Sarah: Yes. But they do have their own spirits don't they?—plants, apart from the nature spirits around? They all have energy—they all have individual energies, in the same way as you all have different energies. Every one of you in this room has different energies, but it is all the same energy (yes). I'm sounding rather clever aren't I?

(Agreement and laughs)

George: I imagine our farming methods sometimes make it difficult for the elementals.

Yes. You will find where there's discord in any farmland the nature spirits—there's not as many of them, because they would withdraw a little way—not go away, but just hold back a little.

George: Yes—when I was young, clover was a very widely grown crop (yes) in the 'mixed farming' days (yes), but it's scarcely seen today.

—which as far as I am concerned is a pity, because it has a very strong energy.

George: Yes, it improves the soil—

Yes it does.

—It provides wonderful flowers for the bees—

Yes, you are quite correct sir.

—And it makes a superior type of hay for feeding animals.

Perhaps you can be a supporter for clover (mm).

Paul: We could grow our own clover in pots.

I think everyone knows what is right for themselves. I'm coming to the conclusion, the more I study here, that as individuals, you should have much more knowledge than you use. You know? It's innate within you and yet it is not used.

Sarah: We've been told this before that we have what we need—to get it out.

Yes, that is what I do—that is what I am interested in, and it is all down to my granny.

Sarah: Well done your granny!

Yes, and she is still working with herbs and things, even now.

George: Yes, the knowledge is innate (yes). But we do have unfortunate influences. Our politicians and our media like to, shall I say—shout their own views—

Yes, well if you don't mind me saying sir: I think you all have to return to simplicity (affirmations). I know you have critics who would say: how can you—that is impossible. Nothing is impossible, especially when you have the help from spirit.

Paul: Yes that's right we've got a powerful ally.

Yes and you have to use it.

Paul: We have to get on and re...

Lilian: Sow a few seeds.

Paul: Exactly—sow a few seeds, and re-establish our link with nature.

Yes. But of course, you have to remember, a lot of your modern medicine comes from the natural plants (yes). So, in a way there has been good come from it (yes) but you are moving away from what is truly the best for you, in the sense of health.

Sarah: Salumet tells us there is a balance, and this is where we've tipped the balance too much in the modern way and left the old behind, so we need to get the balance.

Yes, a lot of our teachers in spirit, always teach us that, that humankind has really grown much too quickly.

Lilian: Yes, it's been rapid.

Yes, but not always for the best.

Sarah: And of course we've got computers now, and robots that can work out things for us. So maybe that's not too good on the one side, but on the other side the computer is very useful and also spreads the word that Salumet's taught us.

That is as your free-will I believe. That is what our teachers tell us also, because we don't lose our free-will, we still have free-will here, and we know how powerful it can be.

Lilian: It wouldn't make sense if we didn't have free-will, would it?

You would have to ask the Creator that, 'cos I really can't tell you. But I think personally it is very important (yes).

George: Yes, we have innate knowledge, we have spirit, we have elementals (yes), we have free-will—it's quite a combination!

It is a powerful combination sir—it is indeed, yes. Anyway I feel I am beginning to ramble on a little.

Sarah: That's alright, we're very happy to listen to you.

Paul: It's interesting stuff, I was trying to think about—if you have a little garden, it's tricky knowing what to plant, because as you say, the nature spirits will be wanting to bring their own seeds I'm sure, and maybe we should step back from it a bit and let nature—

Why don't you just FEEL—step back and FEEL what the plants and the trees and the shrubs are saying to you. And with that good energy, then the nature spirits can help.

Paul: Ah yes! That's very good advice—

George: I think I see you as a teacher—you have come to us with quite a powerful message.

Well, thank you sir, but I certainly would not class myself as a teacher. But every bit of information that you collate, has to be used in some way. I see it all the time on your planet, where people are given opportunities and they don't take it. And when it comes to plants, think of them as spiritual energy, feeling everything the same as you do, only in a slightly different way.

Sarah: So if you like a plant or you dislike a plant—

That plant will love you back and it will blossom.

Sarah: There are certain plants that I prefer over others. So that's probably because our energies aren't the same.

Yes, you are very much connected by the sound of it. Yes, if you love a plant, if you cherish it, feed and water it correctly, that plant will then return all of that love to you—the love and the beauty.

George: Yes, well Spring is coming along and it's a good time of year for us, and the weather is getting just a little bit warmer. I've been working in my greenhouse today (have you?). Yes, and it's important to give the plants sufficient water. I also play them a little music sometimes.

That is really wonderful sir!

George: Some will think I'm a crackpot for doing that!

Sir, when it is your time to come to this world you will be in your element, because Spring as you say—over here is so much more beautiful and you will not need to feed and water your plants, because they already sing, they already bloom and it is all just so beautiful. I cannot explain to you how beautiful, because there is nothing in comparison on your planet. But I still love your planet, I do. If you have been to any other planets, which I know you haven't, but if you could, you would realise how beautiful this one you live on is. The colours are beautiful.

George: We have had the privilege of speaking with people from other planets (ah right, okay).

Paul: I'm sure you're right—the nature, the animals, and the insects and the birds are absolutely stunningly beautiful.

Yes, the Creator has been kind to this planet Earth, as on other planets too. But I am not so much interested in other planets. I know they exist, but I cannot give you information. I just know that this planet Earth is a beautiful one.

Sarah: Do you think you've been influenced by the fact that you were once here and you like it because it's familiar?

Yes, and I can remember the love and the beauty that my grandmother brought, with her flowers and herbs and how much joy and help it gave to others. That's what is important, it's not whether they get healed or not, but the joy they feel within themselves—the touch on their spirit.

Lilian: Yes, she sounds a lovely lady.

Paul: We understand that our visitors from other planets like to build pyramids—and they have done all over the Earth, on this Earth plane—built pyramids in different countries. And that seems to have an effect on the plants (yes). We're only just learning about it, but it seems that some plants grow better near these pyramids.

That is what I'm trying to say—this planet is a beautiful one. It has had visitations from others on other planets. This I do know and this I can confirm for you. I don't know too much, because that is not what I am studying and I have eons of time to find out details. But I do know that, yes, on your planet, pyramids that you have mentioned, and your seas and your air are all contributors to beauty.

George: Yes, with visitors to our planet, one of the first things they've done is build a pyramid to produce the extra energy that they need. And yes, we are aware that this energy also has its influence on the plants that grow nearby.

Of course.

Sarah: Have any of these visitors brought plants to us?

I believe that has happened, yes. I believe they have introduced other strains that weren't originally on this planet, but I do believe that is not known about too much.

Mark: Ah, because I did hear that some plants have been sprouting up near pyramids, which were supposed to have been extinct for thousands of years. I don't know if they would have been brought maybe?

I cannot confirm that for you, but it would not surprise me in the least. Yes, I'm sorry I can't confirm.

Mark: That's alright, you've brought us lots of interesting information.

(Affirmed)

It's rather nice being here speaking to like-minded people. Some people are very sceptical, even when we bring information from spirit, they cannot always accept it and I often wonder why not, when indeed you are spirit—you know—it confuses me sometimes.

Sarah: Well I think we've been very lucky with our teacher that we've had, and I think he's put us all on the right track, so that's helped a lot as well.

Yes, there have been many teachers come to Earth to bring knowledge I think.

Paul: ...So we are becoming more knowledgeable, gradually. I think also we don't always have gardens, but I think most of us are quite—we like animals and plants—

I think when the soul is touched, your love for all things grows. For some people it may be stronger in one direction—like animals, or children, or woodlands or whatever. But again that is your free-will, but definitely a love exists for you all.

Paul: Mm for this thing called 'nature'.

Nature—it's a rather nice word, do you not think?

(Agreed)

Nature—I like it! Anyway, I'm being told I have talked too much and I really have to leave.

Lilian: We've thoroughly enjoyed your visit.

Thank you. And I'm so pleased to see a replica of my granny.

(Laughs)

Sarah: And especially one who likes plants!

Lilian: I'll send love to your grandmother.

Perhaps she has influenced you at some time, who knows? I perhaps will try to find out.

Paul: And maybe you can pop in again some time, it's been a very nice chat.

(General agreement)

Sarah: Could I just ask how long you've been in spirit?

I don't know exactly—I think it's about 125 years or something. You must remember time is so different.

Sarah: Yes we appreciate that.

Once you come to spirit all of those mundane things seem to disappear. And I know sceptics always say: but how can you forget when you were here? It's because it's not important.

Sarah: Yes, that's right. I just wondered if Lilian was a reincarnation of your grandmother.

Lilian: Her grandmother's still there...

My grandmother's not reincarnated yet. (Oh right). No she is—I still see my grandmother as she was.

Sarah: That's right, I remember you saying, yes.

George: I think we understand that scepticism will decline and a factor in this is computers and the internet, which is providing an all-round view of things, which our traditional media—well it's one-sided, but I think more people these days are going to the internet with their computers and getting a better balance of knowledge.

Yes, your machinery, your computers do offer knowledge, but they do not and cannot and never will provide you will spiritual senses. You can read and you can gain knowledge, but to grow you must use the senses you have been given, within the physical body. You must use your mind.

George: Yes, it's just unfortunate that there are so many Earthly material influences.

Yes, but to have knowledge, even if you are materially-minded, can only be for the good. Do you not agree sir?

George: Oh yes, it is for the good if people have more knowledge—

And after all, that is why the computer came to you.

—and develop their minds accordingly.

Yes, provided it is used correctly, it is a means for knowledge.

Sarah: Yes, but of course like everything else, it gets abused.

Well, that is what you must be careful of. But I'm sorry to say I'm being called again and I can't ignore it this time.

(Thanks and farewells)

There was then a period of clairvoyance through Eileen, including a message about a bill, which needed to be paid. This seemed to trigger a merry one through Sarah. Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_03_02+bill+to+pay.mp3

She declared that she never paid a bill in her life. After some light banter, she talked about her work in spirit, trying to help children who came over and act a bit 'impish' to begin with, playing pranks that go a bit too far and need to be kept in check a bit.

George's Notes:

Clover (Trifolium): Red and white varieties of clover are in fact grown today, often in admixture with rye grass and largely as forage crops; also for making silage. Clover has advantages over grass as cattle feed, providing significantly beneficial protein. In making protein, it takes in nitrogen from the air so that nitrogenous factors are not depleted in the soil.

Salumet's corroborative message: Eleven years earlier (19th April 2004 – Transcript library of www.salumetandfriends.org), our teacher and guide had this to say:

...We have spoken recently about many things but in particular about the state of your food crops. You remember? I would like to bring to you this time another thought for your consumption shall I say!! We have spoken much of the civilizations of long ago. Perhaps my dear friend you are not aware that those ancients called upon angelic realms for the nurturing of food crops. Might I say to you, that perhaps with knowledge growing as it is today, and the wave of thought of growing more natural foodstuffs should I say, that perhaps man might take a leaf out of the book of the ancients. There remains even to this present day a part of what was. After all even in your churches this day, do they not bless the food and ask for heavenly help; it is a remnant of ancient times.

George: Yes, I think you refer to what we know as 'harvest festival' in the churches.

But it is similar also to those people who love to be with the Earth and the growing of all foodstuff. They have a love that attracts to them the elementals of the Earth but they are slightly different from the angelic realms who are waiting for the whole of your planet to ask for help in this way.

Sarah: I think there are still some tribes today who ask for help from what they would term 'gods'.

Yes there are people still upon your planet but they become fewer and fewer. I hope my friends that you will think upon this matter and perhaps we may be able to discuss next time what you feel or perhaps even you could create your little experiments and use your thoughts to those in the angelic realms. Yes?

Sarah: It has come at just the right time for me too because I have just made a vegetable garden. I shall certainly call upon them!

Yes, try my friends. I am sure you would be amazed at how healthy these plants would be.

Paul: I should imagine you could also use them to control what we term 'pests' – I know that that is a bad word really – the parts of nature that damage the food that we grow.

With help from the angelic realms there would be no disease; the plants would be naturally healthy.

George: I think there is a certain amount of relearning from ourselves in working with nature instead of against.

You must not allow any negative thinking such as our dear friend has broached about 'pests'. You must believe in that power and I can assure you that all of your plants will be most healthy. Help my dear friends is always available if you would but ask.

So our visitor this evening is perfectly in line with that earlier teaching, and I think there is a growing awareness that the older ways of food production, whether it be garden or agriculture are superior. 'Organic' growing without use of chemicals that are toxic towards nature is thankfully increasing. And we should commune with spirit and elementals. This has been a powerful reiterated message.

~9th March 2015~

Firstly, a spirit helper spoke of one known to Sarah who has difficulties. This was a case for the group to send thoughts of love to improve that situation. There then followed one through Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_03_09+dev+exercises.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Do you know there's lots of people here?

Lilian: They've come with you?

Yes—and they all want to talk to you.

Sarah: We're very happy to listen.

There's somebody with all of you, so you've all got to listen and say what's going on.

Lilian: I see, so we listen to see what we can pick up?

Yes. Oh yes, and your teacher will be here next time.

Lilian: Okay thank you. Can you tell us your name?

You don't always listen do you—all of you?

Lilian: Probably not.

You don't listen.

Sarah: What have we missed?

What have you missed?—I've no idea.

Lilian: Do you mean while we're in the group or in our daily lives?

—In your daily lives.

(Acknowledged)

It's not always words. It can be little actions, it can be something unusual and you seem to dismiss it—as nothing.

Lilian: Perhaps a feeling?

Yes.

Sarah: So, are these spirits telling us these things, or other human beings?

Your own connections yes. For whatever reason, they speak to you on a daily basis. Did you know that?

Lilian: No, well I'm sorry if we don't hear or sense it.

Paul: I mean, we have been told we've got guides and helpers around us all of the time, but we—

But because you know, you should listen more carefully.

Paul: Yes, yep—open up a bit more then, to their influences.

Yes. They are going to try tonight with all of you. So don't be afraid to speak out will you?—even if it seems very silly. You've had this before, haven't you?

Lilian: Yes, similar. Are you going to wait and see?

I would like to if that's acceptable.

(Agreed)

George: I have felt a tremendous urge to work in the garden this last week. I don't know if that's anything to do with helpers?

Well, if it was a strong urge, then perhaps you were being influenced by your own helpers.

George: Yes, I rather felt that might be so.

Yes, if it's a very strong feeling you should follow it, and then they can give you more and more and more. Yes, so I'll just be quiet and you can all see what you can get and don't be afraid to speak out please.

(Slight pause)

I think your teacher wants you to develop more than you have done.

(Agreed)

We sat quietly to see what we were being given:

Sarah: I'm getting a ruin and I've a feeling of something about the last war—maybe burning or something like that.

So why don't you ask a question about it?

Sarah: Okay, thank you.

George: It's on my mind that I've had some quite remarkable dreams this week during sleep state. I think dreams are generally prompted from feelings rather than actual words. There might have been feelings there originating from spirit.

Yes, never dismiss that's spirit entirely. Of course, some dreams are just everyday thoughts that become jumbled. But sometimes it is inspiration from us when we are trying to help you.

George: Yes, I had the experience of a dream being mentioned in a dream, rather like a realisation of a dream within a dream (yes). It seemed very unusual, but I'd been thinking about the universe and the creation recently and Salumet has been quite adamant that we cannot possibly understand the creation while we're still living here on Earth. But I felt the dream within a dream might have been something to do with that (that is good)—a dimension within a dimension came to mind as a result! So it's just possible that's something to stimulate my thinking.

Sarah: I was told that I was in that bombing in the Second World War and I was killed by fire. I could see flames—I didn't feel any pain but I could see the flames. And I was told that I was in that bombing and I asked why I'd been shown that. And they said this is why I have a good connection with the Germans—why I like Germans and their country.

Lilian: You mean that's where you lived?

Sarah: I suppose I was a German (yes).

Paul: I'm not getting anything very clear, except the colour yellow.

Yellow is a colour we inspire for friendship.

Paul: It's a nice shade of yellow I must say—this one.

If it comes from our world it is a little different from the colour you would see here. There is an extra beauty about it—or there should be.

Paul: It's like a buttercup sort of yellow.

Yes, you need to expand and ask some questions. Without the questions you will not be given. Try to enlarge on why you were given that colour?

Sarah: I think I've also seen a nun. I think I was a nun—a German nun.

Yes, good. Ask for a name or something? Keep it going.

Lilian: I don't know why, but I've been thinking about my pumpkin (a pumpkin, yes). Something I've never grown.

Yes, you must ask why or what it means—some question.

Sarah: I think I'm getting the name: Hildegard.

Yes, that is a German name. How about the gentleman?

Paul: The one who got the yellow?

—The other gentleman.

Mark: I haven't at the moment.

There is just a little fear with this gentleman, although he's not aware of it. He is just a little afraid of completely letting himself go—so it will be more difficult for him. But you must keep trying. How about the lady?

Dawn: Of all the odd things, I keep thinking of an orange, I don't know why.

Have you asked the question why?

Dawn: Yes—haven't come up with anything yet. Oh, now it could be an orange on a tree.

Yes—it could be an indication of your own development—that when the orange is ripened it can be picked and used (right). I think that is what it means, but you must find your own answers (thank you). Is there any more?

Lilian: I felt the pumpkin suddenly got very huge (yes). I've no idea why.

Paul: I just feel I want to bathe in this yellow. I did try to ask and I felt it was the colour that—

Just surrounds you—

—surrounds me at the moment. It's needed as part of the development

That is good. So you see, it's possible for all of you, when you are in the correct state, to pick up what we in spirit try to give to you, and of course it is entirely up to every individual whether they accept it or not. But this just goes to show you what is possible.

Paul: Yeah well I want to thank you for it, because it's been a lovely feeling bathing in a colour (yes), that's just right at the time, so it's silly not to take advantage of it.

Of course.

Paul: Mm—Thank you for persevering with us.

It is quite uplifting for those of us here when we see and recognise that thoughts and inspiration have been recognised by you on Earth. It is something we can always build upon. But we cannot do it without your help and your acceptance.

Paul: And as you say, we've really got to incorporate it more in our daily lives.

Yes, it should be natural part of your daily life. After all, a thought takes very little effort.

Paul: Yeah and as you say, when we get these little inspirations, probably most of the time we don't listen to it—so we do need to reflect and ponder and ask questions about it, to develop it.

That is what I am being told—that so much is given to you, but you do not hear or you do not use it.

Paul: Well it's very good to have the reminder.

Now I will leave you now that we have SEEN what can be done.

(Thanks and farewells)

Sarah: You're welcome back any time.

Thank you.

Following this one's departure there was some discussion. Sarah seemed to have the name 'Hildegard' and thoughts of the WWII bombing of Dresden

After a pause of a few minutes George made the comment: Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_03_09+Gardener.mp3

George: It seems that working in the garden is in three ways beneficial; it provides the exercise, that I was in need of, it's satisfying to grow organic vegetables—it's also good to do the menial task—not brainstorming all the time, but periods of doing the menial task seems to be necessary.

Lilian: And yet it's a very important task—without it we wouldn't survive! With the other tasks, we would—a lot of the other things we do doesn't help us at all. So I suppose if you think about it logically, it's a very important task.

But now another was with Sarah who joined the conversation.

The lady is right. Working in the garden is not a menial task!

Lilian: Sorry George, I've started something. (Chuckles)

George: Ah! For me, it's much easier and more straightforward than brainstorming in a scientific way.

Lilian: It's a pressure, isn't it?

George: But I take your point.

It is different, but not menial.

George: Yes, I take your point on that.

Lilian: Thank you for coming.

I could not allow that one to degrade the work that I used to do. It was, as you lady say, a most important job (yes).

Lilian: Was it agriculture or garden?

What I was going to say was, without those who work on the land none of us would be able to survive. So I was working on a large estate, and unusually for that time, the rich people who lived in the big house were most kind to all (that's good) and those who worked there were well rewarded, as were their families (that's nice). And in turn, those workers would work harder than perhaps was necessary, because they wanted to please.

George: What country was that?

That was in this country.

George: And are you able to say when that was or if you remember who was king or queen at the time?

I can tell you it was George.

George: It was one of the Georges—

And I can remember the big windows—the ones that went up and down with a rope at the side.

George: Yes, a sash-cord.

—Because, one day I was talking to someone in the house and I put my head through the window and it came down on my back! (Ooh!)

Yes, so I remember it well. But it was a good time—a rewarding time, and necessary work for all the community.

Lilian: Yes, one without the other just doesn't work, does it?

It does not, you are right. You are a wise lady—and the gentleman is wise also, but in a different way.

George: Did you have horses on the estate?

There was everything on that estate—yes—everything that was available was there. They were indeed very rich people, but they were very kind.

George: And it was a mixed-farming system at that time I expect?—growing crops, keeping cattle and hens?

I think this was the other part. I was involved only in the garden, with the vegetables and the flowers, and just generally keeping everything immaculate around the house. I believe there was the farm, but it was not right on top of the house. So it was not something that I got involved in.

Lilian: Would you have grown pumpkins or would they have come from other countries?

I don't remember pumpkins in the garden.

Lilian: No, I just wondered how they would be used.

I cannot actually remember too well all the things in the garden, but I do remember raspberries. They were good and there was also a mulberry tree, and this was not a joy to pick this fruit, because it was very prickly.

Paul: So what do you do now?

Now, I am trying to keep all produce in a natural way of growing—not with too many of your chemicals (ah). It is difficult to influence the majority of people, but I would say that more and more people are becoming aware of how important it is to have natural foods that nourish the body well. So that is my job now. You could say that now I am the overseer—I have changed places—yes.

Paul: So you're trying to influence people to eat more natural foods, or grow more natural foods—

Yes to grow, because if they are not grown, people cannot eat them. Eating them becomes easier to buy the produce if there is more of it—yes. It is not easy, because in our world we do understand that there are many people to feed, but nonetheless, to remain healthy, it is much better to have foods without chemicals.

George: Yes, as you say, there's a greater awareness of this need. How did you cut the grass when you were on the estate in the garden?

This was done with—I believe there was a new machine that had just come in. It was quite a heavy machine I seem to remember

Lilian: Did you use a horse to help?

I do not believe there was a horse on the lawn. It was cut firstly, when I remember, with what you say—a scythe, but I have a feeling, by the end, there was a machine.

George: —And that was taking over from the scythe—

I believe so, yes. I was not in charge of the lawns. I was in charge of the growing, so mostly the vegetables, but I did do some of the flowers and the hedges as well. But I do seem to remember this machine. It was—I am seeing a sort of blade—yes. Yes it was heavy and I believe two people had to pull or push—I cannot remember.

George: I expect it had rotating blades that did the cutting—

I cannot quite remember, because it was not what I was using. But I do know that the scythe was also used in the beginning.

George: Thank you for that.

Mark: Going back to the 'organic' issue of growing more healthy food, I notice that some country's governments are encouraging more organically grown food—one being Denmark—the Danish government are planning to double the amount of organic produce over the next two years. I guess it's very helpful if governments take a bit of a lead in encouraging this.

Oh yes, if the governments become involved, this can swing the pendulum in any direction depending on how they become involved. And if it is 'pro' what you say, 'organic', then this is good. I am not quite aware of these Danish people, but I am sure you are correct—yes. I tend to stay within the country I knew. I suppose I have a good feeling for this country. I was very happy and I would like those who live in this country to all be as happy as I was.

Mark: They are doing quite a lot to try and keep the GMOs out of this country; more so than America I think.

Could you explain?

Mark: Where the scientists play around with the genetic make-up of plants.

Yes, this is not the way I would want to go, but having said that, there is the odd occasion when a little help actually can be of benefit, but not the complete alteration of the plant.

Lilian: Thank you, that's helpful.

I will leave the gentleman to continue with his menial task!

(Laughter)

And I will return—thank you for your time.

George: Thank you! It's always nice for us to hear some commentary on past life and how it connects with today, and we've much enjoyed and appreciate listening to you—thank you.

Paul: It sounds like you're doing an excellent job trying to get this country more organic.

We try.

Lilian: Yes, well do come again if you can.

Thank you.

Finally another followed through Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_03_09+Arfer+Goodfellow.mp3

Lilian: Can I help you?

Oh God—blimey, all this talk of food!

Lilian: I could see you waiting.

I nearly feel angry.

Lilian: But not quite.

Aw, I thought he was never gonna stop!

(Laughs)

Lilian: He sounded a happy man, anyway.

Oh yeah, I'm not talkin' about the man.

Lilian: A lot of questions—

Ah—I didn't intend to come, but all that food—I couldn't avoid it. Cor blimey!

Sarah: Have you not had anything to eat today then?

I don't eat today (don't you?)—or yesterday.

Sarah: Or the day before—

—Or the day before.

(Laughs)

Sarah: You don't need to, do you?

No, but the memories are there.

Sarah: Were you hungry when you were on this planet? Did you get enough to eat?

I'm afraid I was a street urchin, so anything was better than nothing.

Sarah: Yes I'm sure. That was a hard life then?

Oh I've got this stupid hand with me. I must try and get rid of it. I'll be with you in a minute. That's better.

Lilian: I was going to say, do you need any help?

It happens every time I come back.

Sarah: You were paralysed—did you have a problem with it?

Yeah I did, and my legs.

Sarah: Was it sort of cerebral palsy perhaps?

No—I was slung in that prison (oh dear)—stealing.

Sarah: Stealing because you needed something to eat?

Yes.

Sarah: That was awful (that's right). We were not good in those days.

Yep—proper old street urchin. ‘Arfer’—that’s me name—Arfer Goodfellow.

(Chuckles)

Sarah: —And ‘alf a bad fellow!

(More chuckles)

That’s it—that’s it, me lad! Never did remember my name, so I thought ‘Arfer’ is good—Goodfellow sounds good. But I didn’t fool anybody.

Sarah: Did you have lots of friends on the streets?

Sometimes—sometimes I was on my own, Sometimes had to be when we got chased. I had a kind woman took me in when I was a tiny tot. My mother was thrown in jail and I was abandoned (oh dear!). Oh don’t be sorry—that’s all gone and past.

Sarah: Why was your mother put into jail?

She was trying to steal. Not good times.

Sarah: No, they were bad times.

So you see why I was attracted by the talk of the food?

Sarah: Yes, I’m sure you were, yes.

So you like my name then, Arfer?

George: Yes, we know a few Arthurs.

I know a Mr Goodfellow, and I tried to pretend I was a relative but they wouldn’t have any of it.

Sarah: And was he a good fellow?

I dunno, I doubt it, but I liked the name.

George: I suppose there was no one looking out for or helping people who were on the streets?—no organisation at that time to help?

No.

Sarah: And there were so many of you weren’t there? That was the trouble.

Yes, unfortunately there was—not many survived.

Sarah: I was going to say: it’s amazing you did survive.

I did last ‘til I was eighteen, before I was thrown in the jail.

Sarah: And then what happened?

And then I just withered away. I wasn’t strong enough to cope with those conditions. It was a hard life.

George: You lived to eighteen?

—Eighteen yeah—which was quite a good age for us youngsters then.

Sarah: Still, it’s no age at all really is it?—just starting out on life.

That’s right. Some people were quite kind, throw you a crumb or two—ah it was a hard life—and the chill gets in yer bones—I can feel it now.

(Expressions of sympathy)

George: Was that in London?

Yeah I think so—I think that’s what we called it. I’ve tried to forget all of it, but I can’t. I’m still pulled back now and again (yes).

Lilian: Does it help to talk about it?

Well it doesn’t bother me now—it’s only when you come back and then all the memories flood back. I’m alright now. I’m not worried now. It’s just things like this silly hand keeps going when I come back. Look, it’s curled up again. But it’s all right.

(Eileen’s hand curled up as if suffering from some ailment)

George: But you know it’s going to be perfectly alright again when you get back.

Yeah, of course it is.

Sarah: Have you met any of the people who were so unkind to you?

No, don't want to.

Sarah: You don't want to?

Don't want to.

(It was suggested that he would fare a lot better if he came back to Earth life now)

I've been thinking about coming back actually, but that's a big decision.

Sarah: Another life here (yes).

I've needed a rest time.

George: I suppose you would need a reason for coming back, or desire of some kind—

There's plenty of reasons to come back. It's just it takes a while—

George: But you need a reason that suits yourself.

Yes.

Sarah: Maybe you could come back with a twin, and then you could support each other. Two of you come together.

What good would that be?

Sarah: Well I just thought if you were concerned about coming back, then that would be—

Depends what I came back as (that's true). It's hard enough to look after one, isn't it?

Sarah: But I think if there were two of you then you could support each other (yeah). I don't think we have street urchins any more.

Mark: Well we've got plenty of people living out on the streets.

Sarah: Yes, but there is some support for them if they want it—not much but—

Yeah, it's a doddle today, compared to my time.

(There was some further discussion about the problem still existing in some countries.)

Paul: I suppose it's your guide would advise you on that, whether to come back?

There will be suggestions, but ultimately it will be my decision. And as I say, it will happen probably but not just yet.

Lilian: So what do you do in spirit now?

I come back like this to different groups, and I do visit those poor people that are homeless.

Mark: They are older these days, aren't they?

Yeah. In spirit, I have to say I haven't really done an awful lot yet. I've just absorbed everything.

Sarah: And healed!

And healed, yeah—and that can take a long time sometimes. It makes me smile sometimes when they say: ooh they passed over they'll be fine! Sometimes for some of us it's not so easy.

Sarah: Why do you think that is?

—Just because I never believed in anything.

Sarah: You stayed quite close to the Earth?

I'm not close to the Earth now, I've moved on.

Sarah: So it's easier now?

It's easier now.

Lilian: And you've had quite a bit to cope with—to sort out your mind I'm sure.

You are quite correct, yes.

Sarah: Have you met up with your mother again?

I did—dear soul she is. She's moved on now. She's coped much better than I did.

Sarah: Did she—yes. Was she pleased to see you?

Yeah—I don't think she liked the name Arfer though!

(Chuckles)

But that's my name and that's what I'll stick with. Anyway I'm off now as well.

Sarah: Well it's been lovely to have you.

Lilian: Thanks for coming.

George: And if you are visiting the homeless—yes we still have a few homeless people—

—More than a few—too many.

George: They will really appreciate a bit of help I am sure.

I quite like going to those places where they've got big bowls of hot soup—

(Knowing laughs)

—And that tempts me back sometimes, 'cos the memory's so strong, and I think: lucky little buggers! I do—I think that!

(Laughter)

Sarah: What you would have done for a nice hot bowl of soup!

Now I've been told off for using that kind of language.

Sarah: Well we understand that very well.

I don't swear much these days but I used to when I was a youngster.

Sarah: Well I can understand that.

Mark: They're making feeding the homeless illegal in some states in America—I think 33 states—I don't really understand that.

That's not right. I might have to look into that one.

Lilian: Yeah, because it's good for people to help others.

You should all help each other. Anyway, I'm off.

George: Well thank you Arthur—nice to hear what you have to say.

Oh I can tell you're a gentleman. Arthur, Arthur—me name's 'Arfer'.

George: 'Arfer'—Arfer with an 'F'.

—and Arfer with whatever—I'm off now this time.

Sarah: Yes, well you keep up the good work—you are doing well there, so that's great.

George's Notes:

Lawn Mower: The first lawn mower was granted a British patent in 1830—invented by Edwin Budding of Thrupp, near Stroud. It was designed primarily for sports grounds and extensive gardens. The early machines threw the cut grass forward into a box. It was a push-mower but it was soon realised that an extra handle was needed in front to help pull the machine along. So using it would indeed have been a two-man job! And George IV would have been king until 1830.

Hildegard of Bingen: Hildegard was a 12th century (1098-1179) sainted visionary who wrote much and founded two monasteries. Nuns of the current Hildegard Abbey in Rhüdesheim had had the foresight to copy the original manuscript of 'Know the Ways' complete with its coloured illuminations. This copy is now much treasured because the original was lost in the horrendous bombing of Dresden towards the end of WW II. With so many treasures and exceptional buildings, Dresden had been seen by many as a safe area. Any buildings left standing after the bombing were gutted by fire and the number of deaths remains unknown on account of the presence of many undocumented refugees—there is reason for supposing 35,000-135,000. The Dresden bombing was a highly controversial war episode and of course a huge loss to the world.

Following our prayers there were some fine thoughts of more peaceful prospects and Eileen had clairvoyance of planet Earth—holding the whole Earth in our minds—a nice feeling, like it's shining and just needs some love. There was some discussion: thanks given to Mother Earth and all who are helping—nature spirits and life support; then a short period of silence.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_03_16+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

My love and lightness, may it touch all of you.

(Thanks)

And as you have given thanks for creation, so too shall we say 'thank you' to the force of all life, for the happiness and knowledge that is given to us at all times. I have been listening to you, and already it has been spoken about new discoveries in your oceans (yes). This of course is confirmation of my words, and still I say to you, my dear friends, that it is only the very tip of knowledge. You will also find in the near future the existence of new planets. This will become much more noticeable after your next eclipse.

Sarah: That's interesting. Are these inhabited planets Salumet?

Not all of course—no, no. But it does not matter whether they are or not, it is the recognition that they have existence, and of course it is important for you, my dear friends, as human beings that you can have at least some small confirmation of all that is given to you.

Sarah: Thank you. Well, I must say I think we all agree that anything you tell us Salumet, we have absolutely no doubt it will come about, if you say it's going to—yes, but it's always nice to have the confirmation (yes).

George: I imagine our planetary discoveries follow the telescope that is orbiting the Earth (yes) and sending back pictures?

Yes, your scientists and your astronomers are making great progress at this time of growth, because my dear friends, it is a time of great growth, whether you are aware of it or not—I can assure you that there is much upon this beautiful planet that you will find that has as yet been undiscovered. All you need is to know that the source of all life wants this planet to exist in a state of love and growth.

George: That's a very nice thought to hold.

Yes, it is a thought that can be utilised greatly. You can take that thought and magnify it thousands of times, and still it could not be great enough. Do you understand what I am saying to you? You are capable of so much more than you are able to do at this moment in time.

George: We can expand on the thought of 'love' (yes) and the quantity of love.

Yes, the expanse within your universe, it can create much more. The action from one universe to another, of course is great, and this is something my dear friends, for you to consider.

George: Yes, it would be a very nice feeling, for that love extension to extend to extraterrestrial beings who would contemplate visiting this planet. I believe there have been unfortunate problems with approaches in the past, but I feel that all that is changing—the attitude is changing (yes) for the better.

The time has not always been right for these happenings, but any love that can be extended, of course creates a different atmosphere of love. When the time is right there will be more communication. Those from other worlds are well aware of Earth and its problems, and as in all things, are trying to help in any way that they can. So my dear friends, I say to you: be patient, but become much more aware of the beauty of thought.

George: Yes, it became clear to us that our friend and visitor 'Bonniol' seemed to know things about our planet and our ways that were not too well known to ourselves! And I imagine there are others apart from those on his planet who have, shall I say, been around and know of the happenings and the problems on our planet?

Of course, yes. Your visitor was sent to you to prove mind-control—mind and thought transference. Of course, there are many other beings from universes outside of your own with extended knowledge. I cannot explain to you enough of how far in the many universes that love exists—that knowledge exists, and knowledge of your planet is well known.

George: Yes—well known in other universes as well as this one (yes). That's a profound thought!

It is, and it is something not easily understandable to you at this time. But what I think for you is to become much more aware of the thought, the expansion of that thought and the expansion of the love thought.

George: Yes—where those other universes are concerned, I think of them as universes-on-different-wavelengths. That may not be quite the right way to visualise, but I can think of different wavelengths having their connections.

Yes, if that is the way you find it easier to understand, then by all means, that is right for you.

George: If you could suggest a better way—

Yes, I understand your words, but for each individual, their own thought patterns will bring them the knowledge that they need. So, for you, that is very good for now (thank you). But it is not quite thought patterns; that is human thinking.

Paul: I was just thinking, perhaps one reason we have a reservation, is thinking about the size and scale (yes) so our love might not reach out to all those other universes—this universe is so vast, but maybe size is a bit irrelevant with love energy expansion—I don't know—

You cannot make a size of thought. How would you explain thought to someone who did not understand? What would be your words of explanation?

Paul: Yeah, I had been thinking of it like physical energy, but of course it's not (no), it's a non-physical energy, so—

So it is the human thought—I use that reservedly—the human thought interferes with what thought really is.

Paul: So size doesn't come into it (or distance)—or distance, of course—

In the same way you cannot compare your Earthly time to that of spiritual time. If you think along those lines, then you should, I would say—'feel' the thought. It is not a unit that can be transmitted in the way you think of thought; that is not what true thought is. Thought is instantaneous, thought is everywhere, but your own thoughts can be expanded at any time. It is just that you do not fully understand as yet.

Paul: How to expand—(spiritual thought)—spiritual thought.

Sarah: I suppose that's infinite isn't it—spiritual thought?

—Instantaneous, yes. Your thought from here to other universes would be instantaneous.

Sarah: I was thinking more of—when you say expanded—I suppose I'm thinking in the physical term, but there wouldn't be any edges to it if it's thought, its spirit—I can't explain it—

I understand what you are saying, and you are making it more complicated than it truly is.

Sarah: Yes, as we humans do.

As you humans do. But that is why it is difficult to come to conclusions, because always the human brain interferes, instead of just feeling.

Jan: Would a better analogy be that we all have a beating heart—and with every beat of that heart there is love energy?

You are not aware of the beating heart in your everyday lives, until you focus upon it. Think of thought slightly in the same way that it is always there to be recognised and used. But ‘expansion’ is just a physical word for you to try to understand. All energy is expanding.

George: Yes, expansion implies involvement with time (yes), but perhaps it is the generation of thought which involves time—and that’s something that is more human.

Yes, that is correct—it is more human. But it is something for you all to consider. It is something for you all to work upon. And there will be time when we will have more communication from others—from what you call ‘space-time’.

George: Wonderful! We shall really be accepting and appreciative of that!

Yes, it is already happening, but it is not fully documented for all to know. As in all things, think carefully—know what is right within your hearts, accept what you have been given, but only accept what is right for you. You understand? (Yes) Do you have any questions about this?

Sarah: You said earlier that you want to get the planet—the whole idea is to make all human beings full of love. And when that happens, the Earth will no longer need to be here because we will have reached our goal. However, once something has been created, it never disappears—so the Earth will still be, but in a different—

—In a different energy form. It will go back to the energy from whence it came (right). But you are correct in saying it will never fully disappear.

Sarah: But those who have reached their goal on this planet and made the planet so that it doesn’t need to exist anymore—will anybody ever have any contact with that Earth planet that has then gone back to where it belongs, or is that the end of that association?

You have to remember the evolution of the planets. There will come a time when the physical planet will no longer exist. That is what I am speaking about; so of course, there is nothing to return to, because the energy will be absorbed by that—what I shall call ‘greater energy’.

Sarah: Yes, but I was thinking, we will all then be—

You will be, by that time, spiritual beings, first and foremost.

Sarah: Yes, so even if we could make contact still, with that planet, we wouldn’t need to anyway.

Yes, it is irrelevant, once that point has been reached, yes.

Paul: Going back to expanded thought—when we said our prayers earlier for the Earth, did that involve expanding our thought?

Your thoughts are taken by those in spirit who then deal with those thoughts in a spiritual way. Are you speaking of direct thought—you feel that your thought is direct?

Paul: Well, when we—

It is always noted, if it is sent with love. But your thought is a physical thought at the moment—that is the difference. But you can cultivate your spiritual thinking.

Paul: So would the spiritual thought, be more towards our own spirit—connecting with the spirit?

There would be no intermediary from spirit. It would be instantaneous—your expanded spiritual thought. Does that make sense to you?

Paul: So does that mean it wouldn’t be directed at a physical thing, like the physical Earth, but it would perhaps be spirit to the spirit of the Earth? (Yes) Um—

Yes, you sound confused.

Paul: I think I'm beginning to see it.

—beginning to understand.

Paul: —beginning to see that you're perhaps not getting involved in any of the physical things and it's for me a very much more direct connection.

Yes I feel that the human being sees thought as a solid thing, to be sent almost as you would send a letter to someone, and expect that letter to reach a specific point. But what is happening with you is that your pure thoughts of healing and love are being collected by those in spirit who then deal with those thoughts. At the moment, until you can develop your spiritual thinking and make it a little stronger—do you understand? I know it is a difficult topic.

Paul: Yeah—almost a crystal-clear thought will——Take its place.

Paul: And it won't need any delivery mechanism—any help in its delivery.

Yes, you have to rid yourself of the idea that it is like something to be delivered. You have to free yourself from that idea.

Paul: That's it. I'm beginning to—sort of no space, no time (yes).

Jan: Living outside your head and your body.

Yes, you have to reach that state of understanding, where the thought as the lady says: until you focus on the beat of the heart, you are not even aware that it exists, but it is always there to be used.

George: Is there any difference between expansion of thought and strength of thought?

There has to be a slight difference—yes. I know what you are saying. Let us use the word 'powerful' because that is a human word. The more powerful your thought being sent, the more it will be used. If it is a thought—and remember your thoughts are based on human thinking—the more powerful your thought, the more it is captured and heard. You understand?

George: Ur yes—I just felt it might be easier for us to imagine the power of thought than expansion of thought.

Whatever makes it easier for you, that is what I will recommend to you. Each of you are individuals, each of you know what feels right for you. But I do want you to know and to understand that any thought, whether physical or spiritual—and it is both in actual fact, but the physical thought you need to understand is always 'collected' if you like, when it is sent with true love and healing.

George: Yes, something for us to think on.

Yes, it is something for you all to consider. Now, before I take my leave, do you have any questions for me?

George: Well we have had a question sent in Salumet, which I would very much like to put to you (yes). It concerns two people producing a baby with what is considered medically to be a high risk of disease being involved. And there is the idea of introducing genes from a third person to reduce the risk of a disease occurring in the child. This is referred to as a 'designer baby', and the one who sent the question in, wonders if you have any comment on this.

I believe that we spoke about these designer babies at some point. What I would say to you, my dear friend, is that when mankind begins to interfere too much with what is in the natural world, there will always be the results of that interference. My own feelings on this is that anything that can help mankind in a medical way—if it is good, if the thoughts are good, if it is for the best of any individual, then so be it. But there is in your body of science too much interference and I feel that this is never the correct pathway to take (yes). So my answer to you, my dear friend, is that I have reservations about this thing. They are already using genes for helping others and there is an element of good when it is helping others. But when it comes to self-satisfaction, I begin to feel a little uncomfortable.

George: Yes, I think you said something similar where transplants are concerned.

Yes, and yet it happens, but that does not always mean that it is correct. Much in your world has been misused, and as I have said, there will always be some result from using and doing these things.

Sarah: I suppose the thing is some of these designer babies, if there's an hereditary disease, they can now—

But they are playing God.

Sarah: Yes, well I was going to say: they might stop the disease, but maybe that child was meant to have that disease.

Yes—yes it is a subject that we will explore at a later date, but there is much unease in our world about what is happening in yours. And if someone is trying to help, that is a good thing, but it is not always the correct way. The intention is good and that is what will always be taken into consideration.

Jan: If it's for selfish gain, that's not—

Yes, self-satisfaction sometimes is the aim.

Lilian: I was just thinking that the spirit of the baby before it comes into the human form—

There are always those spirits who will be willing to come quickly into any body. Although we have great care and great advice from those in spirit, you still have free-will when it comes to returning to Earth (I see). So remember that it is not always the case that the spirit has chosen wisely.

Lilian: I was just thinking that in some cases it's quite brave of that spirit to agree to come back into that body.

There is no one answer to this, but you will always have spirit who is ready to jump into the human body. So does that help just a little?

Lilian: Yes. Thank you.

Paul: Have you got time for one more?

I will take one more quick question—thank you.

Paul: I don't know—I'm not sure that mine's that quick. It could be fairly quick.

I will take it.

Paul: I think there's some misguided information or confusion concerning a group known as 'The Illuminati'. It seems to pop up on the Internet a lot, and there seem to be some people describing them as a group who have had control of the Earth—a lot of the materialistic (yes) things going on—for a long time. And they even sometimes say they've got a reptilian connection, so they're not even human. I find this—I don't really believe it and I don't want to give it any credence either, but—

You are wise to not give it credence, because these people are misguided. I will not say 'troublesome' but misguided. And my feeling is that you would be wise to ignore what is written by them.

Paul: Yes, so we can rule out that—

If I may use one of your Earthly words, it would be 'fantasists'.

Paul: Fantasists, yes, I don't think we need to look to anything other than our own human weakness to explain what is going on.

Yes—all of you within this room have reached a point where you can make good judgements, and there are a lot of people on Earth who are looking for some kind of glory to make some kind of name, and you have to be aware of this. But yes, do not give them time of day.

Paul: Mm, thank you.

Is that helpful to you?

Paul: That's very helpful and I'm very happy that we can pass that out. Thank you.

Sarah: This isn't a question Salumet, but I just wanted to say that when you came through this time, I couldn't stop smiling, so I think you must have brought some very happy energy with you this evening.

Well I am always grateful for your kind words my dear friends. Always I am pleased to join with you, even if it is not quite as often as it used to be There has to be a time when the information given to you has to slow down, because however much I could say will not and cannot be understood whilst you are in physical garb. But I always bring to you my love and my light. And I would wish you to know that you are always near to me, even when I am not here with you. So in times of trouble or worry or fear, you can always call upon me.

(Thanks)

Jan: And when we have in the past, you hear us, or you sense us—

I know what is happening within all of your lives of course, but my intention is that it is better that you do not call upon me, if you can, because then you become a much stronger human being—a more informed spiritual being and a more loving being.

Sarah: You say that once the connection's been made it can never be broken; so when we return to spirit, will we still have contact with you?

If you so desire, I will be able to come to you. You will not be able to come to me, but I will be able to unite with any one of you.

Sarah: Yes, that's lovely, because I always think of you as just being an old friend now—which is lovely—you never like to lose friends.

No, there always will be the spiritual connection.

George: And needless to say Salumet, we are always most delighted to receive you. Thank you for bringing so much.

Paul: Long may it continue.

Thank you—thank you my dear friends. Now let us just say thank you before I leave you, for all that is brought to us—for the love and the joy that we feel together—for all the love and energy you send to others. And you know that as each day passes you are as one with that great force—that great force of love, and for this we will be eternally grateful.

Eileen's return was followed by a period of clairvoyant messages that helped to explain several quirks relating to our family histories.

George's Notes:

1: Illuminati: Much has been said on the Internet of the Illuminati by David Icke and others. Salumet spoke on this gentleman in response to a question placed on 10th October 1994. His words then included:

Mainly it is all right, but he has rather diverged a little. What he must not do, is be adamant in his teachings. By all means, he can speak of what he feels; there is nothing wrong with that. You all have been endowed with free thinking, you are all entitled to think and feel as you will. But you cannot force your views onto another person. I would say of this one, he basically is a good person, but rather confused— or shall I say, being influenced along the wrong path sometimes. But he is good at heart and that is what matters. I would say to you all again, listen; listen to what your hearts and your inner voices tell you, and you will not go wrong.

2: Help from Others: The key phrase here is:

"Those from other worlds are well aware of Earth and its problems, and as in all things, are trying to help in any way that they can."

It is becoming clearer by the minute, thanks to communications with our dear friend 'Bonniol' and other ET-beings, thanks to the crop circle messages, thanks to Salumet's teaching and thanks to the Internet; that others endeavour to help us. It is so good that we have so many real friends out there. They are truly advanced sentient beings and it is appropriate that their interest in our planet should be valued by the people of Earth.

~23rd March 2015~

Following our usual healing prayers there was some talk amongst those present, mainly by parents about the needs of their children. Then one spoke through Eileen:

George: Hello, good evening to you—welcome.

What interesting conversation!

(Chuckles)

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

How wonderful to hear parents talk of children, when so many today are abandoned, abused and not under a shining light.

George: I think there's much love within the families represented here.

Yes—I would like to just say, and I believe I do have some experience in our world, because I do help young children when they come to us; I would just like to say that children—spirit does not choose the person because they are supportive, spirit chooses families, for the experience that they can achieve from that family. So yes of course, you have to give full rein to those youngsters in order that they too grow spiritually. Nothing is set in stone, you all know about your free-will and you must allow your children at least to express which direction they wish to take. I do not say this is easy, because it is not. I would just say that children on the whole, do listen to parents, even if at times they seem not to. So, yes I was most interested to hear your conversations. So I say only: do not prejudge what they may become, because you do not know. You may think you do, as all parents do—they think because they are older in age that they have more knowledge—not so—not so. So always be gentle, be kind with your words, be firm if you have to, but extend to them all the love that you can. That is my message to you.

George: Do you care for children who come to you as young children, to spirit?

Yes, I with many others help these children to grow, to understand and to help them on their way.

George: I think there's a great sadness in the war zones that we have at the moment with them; sadly, some children's lives being terminated. Does this become a problem to you?

Well, there are many in our world who help in those cases. I do not myself work in that way. I work with the children who have already come back home to spirit, but I understand the devastation that is caused to children in these areas of your world (yes). Yes, there are many who are there to help, there are many who are there to comfort and there are many there who try to teach. That may sound a little alien—try to teach; but I mean that they try to teach those spirits who have forgotten and are a little in the dark to, shall we say, see the light of spirit. We work closely with them all.

George: Well, we have our view from here on the Earth, but it's very interesting for us to hear your view as you see it from spirit.

Yes—yes, if you could but see all children as spirit first, it would at least ease some of your pain, because no one wishes to see Earth children suffer—no one! So you see, just be aware—be aware of them as spirit, and it will help you to cope with the devastation that is taking place at the moment in your world. This is nothing new—it has always happened, there has always been conflict. So remember that your prayers, your wishes, your thoughts—are thoughts for good. Thank you for listening to me.

Sara: Thank you for coming.

George: Thank you for your words.

I just felt that I needed to come a little closer because I was most interested in your conversation.

Sara: Well thank you for your words, because they're good wise words for us to remember.

Thank you. Yes, wisdom I am afraid is not available to all in your world, but we never give up hope.

Paul: Slowly, slowly.

Slowly, slowly yes, thank you for listening.

(General thanks)

A pause at this stage while Eileen returned followed by clairvoyance via Jan and Eileen, which seemed to make much sense re family connections, with messages to be passed on. And then another was with Eileen:

George: Hello. Good evening to you—welcome.

A very frightened voice replied:

You've got to help me.

Sara: How can we help?

George: Please take your time.

You've got to help me.

Sara: What happened?

Where am I? You've got to help me. Please help me.

George: Where are you?

I don't know.

Sara: We can help you. Can you see anything around you?

George: We can help you. We are all friends here.

Sara: Can you remember what you were last doing? Can you remember where you were a little while ago?—what you were doing?

(So this was a 'rescue' and Jan now received clairvoyance of a hospital light.)

Sara: I think what's happened is, you were in hospital and you died—and your spirit lives on and we can help you to go to the next place. So can you see a light in front of you?

It's dark.

Sara: It's dark at the moment—ah.

And I don't like it.

Sara: No, of course—

George: I think you'll find it will get lighter.

Sara: Don't be afraid.

George: Keep looking ahead of you

Sara: If it helps, hold my hand and you're not alone here. We are all with you and we are not going to leave you until you are ready. Alright?—so just relax.

I wanted to die.

George: I'll take your other hand.

Sara: Did you say you wanted to—were you poorly?

I cannot cope.

Sara: You couldn't cope any more—oh I understand—yes, it all got a bit too much for you did it?

(There was more confusion at this point as to whether possibly this was a suicide, but Jan's clairvoyance came to the rescue and she explained that she was in a lot of pain, and was alone when she died, and was rather confused, but she did not take her own life.)

George: Keep looking ahead and you will see a beautiful light.

I'm scared.

George: You are with friends, so there's no need to be scared.

Sara: Probably if you just take a few breaths and relax, you will see a light.

(Jan then asked Sara to ask her for her favourite memory.)

Sara: What's your favourite memory—can you think of something really happy that you can remember doing?—something you enjoyed doing?

Jan then added to say WHO made her happy, to which she replied:

—My little dog.

Sara: So perhaps if you think about your little dog, that'll make you feel better. What sort of dog was he?

Jack Russell—he made me smile.

Sara: And what was the name?

(Jan had clairvoyance of the name 'Bertie'.)

Sara: Bertie? What was the dog's name?

Bertie.

Sara: It was Bertie—Ah!

It's not so dark anymore.

(Jan then added that she needed to step forward, which Sara encouraged her to do.)

I can see then—sun.

George: You can see a light ahead of you—good!

Sara: Yes, and if you look into that light you should see—

And it feels warm.

(Further clairvoyance from Jan suggested a blue outline would be becoming apparent to the lady.)

George: Can you see people waiting to greet you in that light?

I can hear your voices but I can't see you.

Sara: Can you see somebody coming in that light? Keep looking.

—Shadows.

George: Shadows—yes!

Sara: If you keep looking, you'll see somebody looking out for you.

Will you come with me?

(She was ready to go but still wanted Sara to go with her. We agreed to hold her hands as she goes forward, explaining it's not yet our time to go)

George: —But you will be met by loving people.

Sara: Yes, they'll be just as nice and kind and you will feel very comfortable with them. So you don't let go of my hand until it is the right moment—okay? You are in control.

I'm moving—I'm moving.

(With further assurances, and instructions via Jan's clairvoyance, this one then eventually moved on declaring that she was happy, and we wished her a happy continuing life.)

Following a further pause, another was then with Eileen:

George: Hello—good evening to you and welcome.

There followed a lengthy pause during which there was some continued chat about toast with reference to Graham; then a loud voice via Eileen declared:

It's my name!

Sara: Ah, Graham—really?

I'm angry.

Sara: Oh dear!

I'm feeling angry—I don't want to be here. It's not fair!

Sara: Oh dear.

I said it was too early.

Jan: Is your name Graham?

Yes. Please let me stay here with you for a while.

George: Yes, you are very welcome to stay.

Jan: Did you like marmite then Graham?

I did.

Sara: And eggy toast?

And eggy toast, but that's all trivial.

Jan: Yeah I know.

It's not fair. It's just not fair I had to come so soon (ah). Please let me come back—they said I can (ah)—not yet.

Sara: But later maybe—

Jan: Would it help if you talk to us about it Graham? What happened to you?

I was run over—left my family behind—

Jan: That's what you're worried about isn't it—your family.

Why did it happen? They keep saying it was for the best. I don't believe it, and my wife's struggling with the two little baby—

Jan: Very difficult—

Well I'm so angry about it—I'm sorry—I'm so sorry—

Jan: It's understandable—

Angry, angry, angry.

Sara: Well it was a shock wasn't it?

And the poor driver's suffering as well.

(Sympathy expressed)

I know I shouldn't be angry but I am. I can't get rid of the feeling.

Sara: It will go though.

I've been told.

Jan: That's why you've been sent back to us.

Sara: But you mustn't blame yourself you know.

But I do.

Sara: No, no, no, you mustn't though, because these things do happen. And when you think about it—the number of things that we've all done, and we haven't known why we did them. But we did, because it's all part of being human. And we don't know why we did things sometimes. You didn't know either.

Jan: You were just in the wrong place at the wrong time.

But I'm not suffering am I?

Sara: No, not at all—and you must just let the feelings—just let them go—it's normal to feel those feelings, when you're in shock.

I just find it so hard.

Jan: Does your wife have a good support group around her? Can you see?

Yes—her other family. I see her crying all the time.

Sara: It's hard for you to see that, but she will come to terms eventually, and she will accept.

George: Perhaps you can help. Perhaps you can be an influence.

That's what I have been told.

Sara: Yes, you can probably help to calm her actually. It's just her fears probably. You can probably help her—the grief and fear.

Jan: When she's asleep, that's when you can be with her.

I can still visit her—

Jan: Just before she wakes in the morning—that's when you can be with her and make her feel happy, and to feel your presence. That will help immensely, because at the moment you are drawing back because of your grief yourself. But you can both grieve together.

She was talking about marmite this morning—that's what's drawn me here. And I know I shouldn't be here.

Jan: Well you've been sent back here for a purpose. You wouldn't be here talking to us if you weren't meant to be.

Sara: And it helps us to understand as well—what happens in these situations.

George: By being here perhaps you are being given a little help, and we all need a little help at times.

Sara: And you are helping us to understand.

George: And I'm sure you can be a good influence and send your love.

I do feel calmer.

Sara: There's actually a lot you can do in fact to help. It's difficult to know why these things happen, but I think further on you'll see a bit more good that will come from it.

There's good people here, I know that.

Jan: Have you tried whispering to her Graham?

Yes, but she can't hear me.

Jan: No, but she will, don't give up on her—keep trying. But you must be happy because then she'll feel that you're okay—don't be sad, you must start to feel happy. I know it sounds silly but you've got a lot to look forward to now you're in spirit—you've gone home.

I know, it's just as difficult to leave people behind—

Sara: Yes, you get drawn back again—I think it helps to actually know that you can do some good to help her along—you'll feel a bit happier then.

Yeah—I don't know why they gave me this body to come back with—

It was explained with some chuckles that he was using Eileen just so he could talk with us.

Should have had a man—

(Chuckles)

Jan: Did you often wonder what would happen to you?

I believed in another life—I'm shocked myself that I feel this strongly—it was just so sudden.

Jan: Did they explain to you before you came through the instrument that it would be a cathartic exercise to come back again and speak to people?

It was suggested and I wanted the opportunity.

Jan: And how has it now made you feel?

Different—I feel calmer and I think you've explained how I can help.

Jan: Obviously you know more than we do, because we haven't been to spirit like you have. But you are able to influence her—

George: All things are possible.

Jan: When you're calm and not upset, then she'll hear you.

Mark: Are you able to see the other spiritual help that your family's now getting?

Other spiritual help—yes, she's surrounded—but she doesn't feel it.

Sara: This is where you'll be able to help her I think, in time.

Someone's saying: come on—time to come back.

George: There's bound to be an influence, given a little time.

Well I want to thank all of you—thank you for helping me.

George: You are most welcome—we love helping people.

Thank you—thank you.

Jan: God bless then.

Firstly one spoke through Eileen, suggesting an exercise for individual development, where we voiced our feelings and impressions. Lilian had thoughts of her maternal grandmother, with image of her watching the young lads playing football—which she enjoyed doing. She also felt a hand on her head. Paul was impressed with the image of what he described as the driver of a steam train who had a very round face. Eileen was then with us with clairvoyant messages. She described a lady connected to the letter 'B', but at first none of us were able to make a connection with the information. She was aware of heavy breathing as if one had passed to spirit with a breathing problem. Then she addressed George regarding a Bill or William who had passed to spirit during World War II. A number of people, both regular and part-time had worked on my father's farm—even servicemen on leave; and some had lost relatives; but I could not place one of that name. Eileen added that he was known as Bill—not actually a relative but close to my family. Then I remembered 'Bill Allen'. He had passed over at that time but not as a war casualty. The more I thought about this bill the more certain I became that it was he.

Bill Allen: He was truly a stalwart—round-faced and rugged countryman. I believe he had a breathing problem because his work was very dusty at times. Bill owned and drove a big steam engine—a Puffing Billy—that towed a threshing machine and elevator. He visited farms in the North Hampshire area to thresh the grain harvest that had been gathered in sheaves and stored in stacks. That was the system of the 1940s and earlier—predating combine harvester and grain-drying silos. It was a job of great responsibility and Bill was very hard working. He liaised with farmers, towed his machinery to location. The farmer was obliged to get in a half-ton of steam coal to feed the Puffing Billy. The dusty part of the job was cutting strings as sheaves were loaded into the thresher. The thresher separated straw, chaff and filled 2 ¼ cwt (252 lbs = 114.3 Kilos) sacks with the grain. A sack trolley was used to convey filled sacks to the big barn. But sacks were stored in two layers, so there was a sack hoist to lift to appropriate height. To speed the operation sacks would be hoisted, then carried piggyback-style to the barn and placed in the second layer—and there was a degree of pride in being able to do this! When Bill passed on, his younger brother Cyril continued the business.

Why are we reminded of this? Well, it is good to reflect on our past sometimes and know how really hard-working some have been in getting us where we are. It is all still clear in my memory. And it just so happens that that very morning I had mentioned in conversation that the threshing equipment had once used a particular route, since reclassified as a bridleway. This was probably the trigger—and Paul's clairvoyance fits Bill's travelling Puffing Billy entrainment quite well.

Next, Eileen declared that she had become very cold:

(Pause)

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

I come only to say: hello.

Lilian: That's nice of you.

My name is Nahashi Wa.

Lilian: You are very welcome.

Paul: I think you've been before.

I am this one's protector.

Paul: Yes—yes.

I just wanted to say: hello.

Paul: Well, good to hear you again—yes, I remember the name.

Lilian: Yes, how do you say it again?

(More clearly)—Nahashi Wa.

Paul: Nahashiwa yeah—so you protect Eileen?

I help to protect and this time I protect all of you.

Lilian: Oh that's nice. How exactly can you do that?

Protect you? (Mm) Try and keep you on the right pathway.

George: I'm sure that's not difficult!

Lilian: It might be!

(Chuckles)

I not fall into that trap.

(Laughs)

George: Anyway, it's very nice of you to come through, and are you happy to have a little chat with us?

I not allowed too long—you supposed to be working.

Paul: Ah yes.

I just wanted to say: hello.

Lilian: I think our evening's coming to a close actually.

Yes it is.

Lilian: It's lovely of you to come and say hello.

I not be responsible for you not to work. Perhaps another time I speak longer with you.

Lilian: Yes, that would be nice.

George: Yes, and are you an aspect of this one?

Yes, you are correct (yes). That why I not come often.

George: Well it's very nice and it's very interesting that you've come through. So you would have been on Earth as a North American Indian I believe—

Yes.

Paul: Do you remember which tribe it was?

I not know now.

Paul: Yeah, that's not important.

—Too long.

Lilian: Could we have—I'm sorry if this is keeping you—could we have quite a few aspects?

Yes—you not know this—you not know about this?

Lilian: Well yes, our teacher that comes has talked about it, but I wondered—we've probably got quite a few—each person I mean, say sitting in this room.

Yes, you all have lived before—yes. Not all lives are extended, but some are. I choose to help this time with this one.

George: And you have memory of the days when you were on the Earth?

—A little memory—not much now.

George: I think you recognized at that time the lights in the sky were visitors to us, which we don't all recognize today. In this group we all do, but many on the Earth do not seem to recognize the visitors to it.

Man has become little foolish—needs to remember (Mm), but that not up to me to remind him—that for others to do.

George: Yes—yes.

Now, I go. I say more than hello.

(General thanks)

George: Nahashi Wa—it's very nice to hear from you—we appreciate your visit.

Paul: Yes, hope you can pop in again some time.

George's Notes:

1. Nahashi Wa: This one first spoke with us 26th February 1996. She brought blessings from 'White Horse' and gave the message: Be good to your Earth and you will be blessed many times. Nahashi Wa and others from the tribal community were also with us on 10th January 2005.

2. Threshing Process: Sheaves were tossed from the stack to one on the thresher who cut (and saved) strings and fed into the machine. The machine was belt-driven from the steam engine.

A Puffing Billy driving a threshing machine, with heavy grain sacks and trolley in foreground.

3. Ann's Visit – 23rd March: Last week, my dear wife Ann had briefly spoken via Jan, just to say a little glycerine (glycerol) would be good for my ears. They had in fact become dry and flaky. After a week of this treatment I can now report that condition is improved and aids fit better.

~13th April 2015~ SALUMET

A small group this evening—six of us.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/13_04_2015+salumet.mp

George: Good evening to you Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

The feeling of joining with you is as always of great love and upliftment. I try to bring to you, my dear friends, all the hope that you have within your hearts for your lifetimes here. I wish to say to you this time that this coming year will be one that I feel you will remember, because many changes are taking place, not only upon your Earth, but in all of the universe.

George: Oh!—several of us have indeed mentioned between ourselves that we feel this will be a very good year.

Yes, indeed it will, and upon your Earth it will almost be like balancing against all those areas of trouble which are in your world at this time (yes). Many discoveries will take place—people will become more aware. It will include not only Earthly skies, your deep oceans, but in the change within each and every person. Whether it is noticeable in all, we cannot say as yet, because, as you know, free-will plays a very big part in all of your lives. I know that these words are repeated often, but I feel it is important to say them. Not only will there be changes in medicine, but the greatest change will be in the human being. So there is much my friends for you to look forward to in this coming year.

George: Wonderful!

Paul: Yes—very good news.

Yes, I feel that there will be a settling of many of the disputes in your world, (ah!) because of these changes. So be aware, my dear friends, of these words which I have given to you.

Paul: That's like a breath of fresh air, because we have over the last, I don't know how many years, seem to be causing more problems than solutions, so finally to have some progress—

Yes, unfortunately mankind has always pretended to himself that all is well. He can no longer do this when this great surge of energy will happen in your world.

Graham: When you say there is going to be a change in humans, do you mean that our vibration will increase?

Yes—it may not always be obvious to you, but it will be subtle changes, but nevertheless it is something to be aware of. And people such as yourselves, will be much more open to it.

George: Yes, some of us have felt that the Internet is playing a part in this and knowledge is progressing as a result—and I imagine this all contributes to a better understanding of how we should be.

Yes, it is giving people food for thought, as you might say. It is allowing them to open up spiritually—to recognize that that is the important part of the human being, because too many still are unaware of this. There are too many who are listening to the voices of others, when indeed they should be listening to that inner voice of their own.

George: Yes, sometimes we have felt there's a lack of government understanding, coupled with heading in wrong directions, while there is a great improvement in general people-awareness.

Yes, that has been a problem, but you will find in time to come that those in power—and unfortunately it is power that attracts them to the role of serving others—not because of the love of the people (yes). But these things, as I have said, will alter slightly, only to increase the love and the light which should surround you all.

George: Yes, we've felt there's been a love of power, as you say; also a love of money, and I've actually heard the expression voiced at times: money is viewed as the god.

Yes, unfortunately power and money can go hand-in-hand—not always of course, but I would say generally—yes. It is something to become aware of, but I know I need not say this to you, because you are already spiritually aware and having innate knowledge of what is right and what is not quite so right. But I wished you to know this, my dear friends.

George: That is much appreciated.

Yes, it is hope for your future, so I feel it is good that you know these things.

Paul: Presumably, with more awareness, we will begin to take more care of the planet and maybe take a few more steps to stop polluting?

Yes, as I have said, Earth has always been a problem as far as mankind is concerned, but if you look back in your time, which I do not generally advocate, but sometimes if you look back, you can see how much you have moved forward and in doing so, you become more fully aware of what is happening in your own world. So my dear friends, I say: look inwards to your own thinking—look to your own hearts and you will be guided in the right direction (thank you).

George: Yesterday, three of us attended a lecture on pyramids, with special reference to the Bosnian pyramids, which are still not a subject recognized by our mainstream media, but it was rather nice to observe, I think about eighty people attending the lecture. And several of our readers came forward and made themselves known. This was most heartening to us.

Yes, you do very good work in allowing others to hear what is meant to be heard, so as always my dear friend, we are grateful for your time and for your efforts, because without it these others would not be so knowledgeable.

George: Well Salumet, it is a joy for us to have the awareness that so many others are hearing and reading your words—thank you!

Yes, it is indeed humbling—yes. Now, for this time, that is all I wish to say to you—to be positive in your outlook and your thinking and to see the results and the rewards of your efforts. So let us just sit quietly and then see what comes to you for the rest of your time here. We will endeavour to bring some people to you, but you must be open to them.

George: Yes, and thank you so much for drawing our attention to expectations for the coming year. I am sure many will appreciate this.

Thank you. Now I will take my leave and allow you to continue with your evening.

General thanks followed by a lengthy pause, then another via Eileen—a light chat with a lady of the theatre/stage:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_04_13+Rosamund+stage+actress+1905-London+Palace.mp3

Is there anybody there?

Paul: Um—yes, yes.

Oh blimey, it's one of them séance things!

Paul: Oh well it is a bit, yes!

I thought: nobody's ever going to talk to you girl.

Paul: Oh well, we're here now, so welcome!

Thank you very much.

Paul: What brings you here then?

Believe it or not, I like to make people laugh. And I come here and you're all like dead as dodos!

(Chuckles) (In fact, I think we were all 'away' for a time and scarcely with it)

Graham: Well we're laughing now.

Paul: We're always glad of a laugh, yeah. Is that something you used to do while you were here?

I was on the stage m'dear. Rosamund's my name.

Paul: Rosamund (yes), so you liked the theatre?

I liked the theatre—yes. I was known as 'quite a buxom lass—'

Paul: Ah right—yeah.

—Attracted many a young gentleman, did I. I liked the laughter—I liked the life of the theatre.

George: The life of the theatre—

Yes, I did. Yes—very good.

Paul: Was that a long time ago, or—?

I think and I believe it was 1902.

Paul: Oh right!

If my memory is right, but you know, your memory goes—no need to remember those things.

George: So would that be the time of Vaudeville? Or were you into serious theatre, or entertainment?

I entertained, I sang—not much dance, because I was a bit of a heavy lass—but that didn't stop the gentlemen! Yes, I was rather a proud woman. I can see the error of my ways now, but I did like to make people laugh.

George: Yes, why do you think of that as an error of your ways?

Paul: Well, the pride.

George: Laughter is good.

Paul: The laughter was good—yes.

George: Laughter is uplifting for many.

And I did tell some jokes, which didn't go down too well at that time for me (oh), so it was a bit risky.

Paul: But that sounds good. You were maybe ahead of your time, as far as women go—being a bit more forthright—

That's a good word, I like that one—forthright—yes, that's much better than what I was called.

Paul: Ah well, we have a lady who comes through sometimes called Emma. She talks about women needing to be more forthright in certain countries—not so much here, but it's coming along.

George: Gender equality is something we have talked about much, and yes, in some countries womenfolk are unfairly 'put down' by their—

Yes, I wasn't so easily put down. I must have been quite a stubborn woman (right), but it served me well.

George: So perhaps you were an advocate of gender equality, and applied your stubbornness—

Yes, but there was no feeling greater than being on the stage—I adored it.

Paul: I think you must have had a—what they call a 'stage-presence'—some people feel at home on the stage.

Yes I did—it was my life, yes. I never wanted a husband and children. And I suppose that was my downfall, for being so selfish.

George: Aw. Did you enjoy dressing up?

I did, yes—that was part of it.

George: There's an expectation by audience for those on stage to present themselves well and it sounds like you did that.

I did, I did.

Graham: Did you work in London?

I worked in a theatre there, yes.

Graham: —That would have been the West End—I think we call that area—I don't know what it was then.

I just—we called it 'The Palace'. But I had a good life, although many women at that time did not. But I can't say too much, because I was not involved. But I just loved the laughter and the thrill of being on the stage.

Graham: Do you still do things like that now?

Yes, I do tend to come and try to help people with laughter, because laughter is very good for you and too many people do not laugh, do they?

Paul: Yes, do you have like a stage in spirit—I guess you can have everything...

You can have whatever you wish, yes—and sometimes I do it for the children. And sometimes I realise what I missed not having children, and then another time I think: no, that was the life you were meant to lead, and I was a fortunate woman—many gifts, and as I said, many people were unkind, but nevertheless it was a good life.

George: So it's good that you can look back on it in that way.

Yes, I tend not to tell people—that's not the purpose of it—but to come back to make people laugh.

George: So what do you do now—are you planning to be ongoing in spirit and be an influence with others? I intend to stay where I am for quite some time, to return to help others who are in need. I'm being told something now—the gentleman has a daughter and the lady has a daughter, and they are saying to me to say: 'If at first you do not succeed, try, try again.' Both these girls should be told that—I do not know what it means—I am just giving it to you.

(Dawn and Graham express thanks)

Paul: Possible stage connections?

I do not know—it's just come—

George: I think we're all aware of competition in our world—

Yes I wouldn't like to be alive today.

George: And one has to try and try again.

Alive! Is that not funny?

(Chuckles)

Of course I'm alive—well, well, well.

Paul: That's a good joke—there you go.

Yes, well what I mean is I wouldn't like a lifetime at this particular time in history—although times were hard back then—

George: I guess life is very different on the planet today.

Yes, although you know, for one life that is happy and contented, there's another that isn't. So, it's always, always balanced somehow I feel, although I do not know too much.

George: So do you endeavour to influence those on the stage at all today?

Oh no, no I have left that all behind.

George: You've had enough of that—

I've had enough of that yes—I think they probably had enough of ME.

(Chuckles)

But it was a life of experience, shall we say. But it was the forerunner for what I do now. So, in that sense, it was a VERY good life. It was a very good TEACHING in that lifetime.

George: Yes, interesting perhaps that today we have a gentleman named Russell Brand, and he began as a comedian on stage (yes?). But he's become much more politically motivated more recently, and he has a very active mind. I think he receives assistance from spirit, and he's getting over some very good messages which I think are being a good influence on our way forward.

Yes, I can't say that I know this gentleman, but if you're happy, I say to anyone who is alive in your world today: listen—listen to all people before you make judgement, and if good words are said, then digest them—it can only be good for your own soul.

(Agreed)

Yes, and there is a saying in your world that I like, that if you cannot say anything good, then please do not say anything!

(Laughs and agreement)

I feel that is a wonderful saying.

Paul: Mm—I was thinking of that one recently, funnily enough.

Were you—yes, it's a very good saying (mm). Mm, as you can gather, I'm very much into sayings at the moment.

Paul: They help remind us because we've got such bad memories down here, that we forget things too easily—so to have a saying helps to remember.

Well don't worry too much, because when you come to my world your memory will be quite good if you want it to be, but sometimes it's not a bad thing to forget. Don't you agree?

Paul: Yeah—oh, to forget a lot of the...

Yes, prime examples are very small children, aren't they, where their memory is very selective. For their own sakes, I bless them all—yes. (Said with chuckles)

George: Small children with selective memory—

Yes—deliberately!

George: I've recently been writing an article, and it concerns 'reincarnation', and I became rather interested in the small child prodigies (yes) and how some of them seem particularly brilliant at certain things at a very early age; and one reasons that they must have learnt what they know in a previous lifetime.

Yes, not even just one lifetime. These people have knowledge from many times, many lifetimes (yes).

Yes, you all have learnt something from past lives, but these particular people you speak of are probably quite old in their time.

George: Yes, one who comes to mind is Mozart, who composed symphonies at the age of four!

Yes. We have children in spirit who are doing that also. You do not always realize.

George: Children in spirit?—Yes!

Yes. If that is what they wish to do then that is the way that they are guided. And very often then, they wish to return to show what they have learnt. Yes, it's wonderful isn't it?

George: Yes, as an entertainer on stage, you must have developed your mind and vocabulary and turn of phrase nicely—which you have now.

Well I wouldn't quite put it that way. I did have a turn of phrase, but it was not perhaps proper!

(Chuckles)

I was very good at taking off my gloves (Ah right). Are you aware of this kind of thing?

Paul: It sounds like you—at that time it would have been like the old razzle-dazzle. Did you throw your glove?

—To effect—yes, I did dispose of my gloves into the audience, yes.

Paul: Right—and that got the young men excited probably.

Well, I cannot speak for them, but yes I would say so. Yes—it still makes me smile.

George: But you are well-spoken. So did you develop your speaking style in that life on Earth, or has that come since?

No, I actually spoke like this, but to be on the stage, it pays you to be a little—oh dear—common? Yes, a little brusque, you know. So I developed that way of speaking, but my own voice was—yes, quite proper. I actually shamed my family by going onto the stage.

George: Really?!

Yes, that's almost a confession isn't it?

George: So you were from an upper crust family and they felt that going on stage was beneath them—

Most shocking, most shocking—yes. I was not spoken of well within my own family, so I had to find my own way, which was hard at times, but nevertheless I still say it was a good life.

George: Yes, good! Well, we each have our free-will as individuals (yes) and that is one of the rules of spirit.

That is God's way, yes so we were all given free-will, and that is as it should be (yes). Anyway, as I must leave on stage, I must leave you all now, because I have spoken to you long enough.

Paul: The curtain's about to close, is it?

(Laughs)

You are one of a kind—thank you dear sir.

George: Well thank you for coming to our stage. So this is a curtain call?

Yes, and I am happy to have been here, but I'm also happy to go.

Paul: Well thanks for the show, and drop in again.

George: Yes, do feel free.

Yes, and if I might leave you with one of my gloves?

Paul: I was going to say actually: throw us one of your gloves for old time's sake, yeah.

I've heard that many a time—yes.

(Having been 'away' at the start, George asked for a name. Our guest elaborated that 'Rosamund' was her stage-name and that's what we're getting!)

George: Well, thank you Rosamund, and we've enjoyed having a chat.

Yes, thank you for listening.

Paul: Any time you want to pop back—it's a pleasure.

And please do not forget to tell those girls: If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

General farewells

George's Notes:

The Palace Theatre: The theatre, built in 1891, is a striking architectural feature of London's West End. Following a period as an opera house, the building became a grand music hall and was renamed 'Palace Theatre of Varieties', and later referred to as simply 'The Palace. In 1897 it began screening films as part of its entertainment programme. Herman Finck was its musical director (1900-1920) and during that period the theatre combined variety entertainment, including dancing girls, with the screening of films.

~20th April 2015~

Firstly this evening, one spoke via Eileen, explaining that 'Cho' would be speaking with us soon. They continued to chat for some time before another followed through Eileen:

Lilian: Good evening.

A quietly spoken: Evening mam.

Lilian: Sorry, can you repeat that?

(Paul repeated the greeting so Lilian could hear)

I haven't done this before.

Lilian: Well I can hear you very clearly. So this is a practice...

Yes—feels a little bit odd.

Lilian: Yes—being in a physical body?

Yes.

Lilian: Feels heavy?

Yes. Sounds different too—doesn't sound like me.

Lilian: Are you a man?

I certainly am.

Lilian: Yes, well you're using a lady—so you would wouldn't you...

Well that explains things, wouldn't it...

Lilian: Yes it would. (Chuckle)

I didn't really believe you could do this you know—didn't believe it at all.

Lilian: Didn't you? Something you'd never thought about, while you were on the planet?

No—I thought, what's the point of coming back? What's the point of it all?

Lilian: Maybe it was just to prove to you that it could be done.

Yes—it is proof to me. First of all I thought it was a trick. I had parents who thought things were funny, and first of all I thought: they're tricking me. But this isn't any trick is it? This is no trick?

Lilian: No—no, we can hear you. The fact that you are using a lady proves it's no trick.

Amazing isn't it?

Lilian: Yes, you'd never heard of it while you were here and I see no reason why you'd think any different—for a while anyway (yes). Maybe somebody said something to you in spirit and you got curious?

Oh I was curious all right—very curious, but still didn't believe it could happen—and now it has!

Lilian: How long have you been in spirit? (How long?) Can you remember?

(Pause)

Lilian: Can you remember who was on the throne—a man or a woman? King—queen?

A king I think.

Paul: Maybe King George?

That sounds more like it. Your memory goes you know (yes). It's peculiar—some people remember everything and some of us just forget.

Lilian: It's not worth remembering really, once you're there, is it?

No. What's the point?

Lilian: From our point of view it gives us a clue—we're just being nosey really.

I can understand that too—yes.

George: So you're a spirit and you're borrowing another physical body (yes) and you're finding that your voice sounds a little different. That's because you are using a different throat—a different larynx. And you are finding that you're able to move your hands.

Yes I can—it's peculiar.

Lilian: Pretty marvellous though, isn't it, really?

It's wonderful! To think you can come to places like this and talk again—and you can hear me.

Lilian: What do you do in spirit?

At the moment—I was lost for a little while I think—only because I didn't believe (yes). But I'm exploring everything now—meeting people, seeing children, animals—just seeing the beauty of the whole thing.

And forgiving my parents for the joke they played on me.

George: Well, forgiveness is a great thing.

Nothing terrible—it was all in my head. I thought they were being cruel—they weren't. They just liked a little joke—not cruel at all. Do you know why?

Lilian: Can you tell us?

They gave me a name—they thought was a good name, and I didn't when I was young—because it's a name that's in the history books, and I didn't think it was amusing. Do you know the name they gave me? I still remember that—Thomas á Becket.

(Various exclamations)

Thomas A Becket—that's my name; of course I'm not the famous one, as you might have gathered. But I thought it was cruel of them, but they didn't do it out of...

George: Did they like the name: Thomas á Becket?

It was Thomas A Becket—yes.

George: So that's the name they gave to you?

Yes—I became a bit of a joke when I was young.

Lilian: So you changed it, did you?

No—what's the point? And I know now it wasn't done with any malice. But I would say to people, to think before they name their children.

Lilian: We've been told that we choose our names before we come.

You can, but it can be altered by the parents.

Lilian: Of course, yes—we've been told that too.

Yes—most people are happy with their names, because they have chosen, but there is always an element of stronger energies which can transmute and change (yes). Anyway, that is all something to be forgotten about.

George: Yes, we can understand that. Did you have a different name that you would have liked?

I wondered if I could have been 'Peter'.

George: Ah yes, mm.

I could still be called Peter if I wanted, but what use is it now? We do not need our names.

Lilian: Are you enjoying your visit?

I am amazed by it.

(Chuckles)

—And I feel almost like I've become alive again. Does that sound strange to you?

Lilian: It's difficult for us to say, because we're still used to this body.

Yes, you would not be able to comprehend I suppose. But I am satisfied now that it can happen, and it can take place.

George: You feel as if you have come alive again? (Yes)—so that's with the memory of life as it was when you were on the planet?

Yes, although I cannot remember too many details, I know that human existence is so much different from that of spirit.

George: Yes, we understand the memory of details going with time.

Yes, because they are not important—it is the spirit that is important; and as you said previously about past lives, I believe you said: what does it matter? What does it matter?

Lilian: I think you feel that more in spirit than we do (yes). We're just curious to know a little more. But in a way, even while we're here we forget things that happened when we were young.

Yes, because of your memories—because, as you age and get older, so memory fades. In your world it fades, as I am beginning to fade now. And I must return—so I want to say thank you, for allowing me this time to experience this for myself.

George: Well, it's interesting for us—we've enjoyed chatting with you (thank you), Thomas, or should I say: Peter.

I will leave that to you, I really do not mind. But I have to go. I can feel the pull.

George: Fare you well and thank you for coming.

There followed a period of clairvoyant messages via Eileen. Then finally, she experienced a most powerful unspoken presence. Hands were raised in firm gesture as if in salutation to all. She described a being wearing a golden pointed hat, sitting in a golden temple

~27th April 2015~

Firstly one spoke via Eileen, mainly giving personal messages relating to Sara and Graham's family.

Towards the end of the communication, she added a little message from Ann, George's wife now in spirit:

One thing to say before I leave, and I really must leave: she thinks and loves each and every one of you—that is the extended family also—not only you in this room.

George: Ah, that's wonderful!

But she has a most lovely smile (yes!). Now I see her—she has come just a little closer.

General appreciation

But she would never have pushed herself forward.

George: And yes, you're absolutely right—it's a wonderful smile.

Yes—beautiful smile. Even more so probably than you remember—she is saying something about a blue dress.

Sara: I've got a blue skirt that was hers, given me recently.

She is smiling still, so—

Sara: I've been wearing it.

Yes, she's happy about that.

Sara: And her pink cardigan today—tell her.

Okay. Now I have to leave. I wish it was longer but I have to go.

George: Thank you so much. It's been so good to hear all that you've said.

There followed a period of quite strong clairvoyance via Eileen. One was with Eileen and it fairly quickly became clear from exchanges with Sara that this was 'Connie', her grandmother (also grandmother to Mark and Paul, and George's mother-in-law). This was a most dear and well-loved lady who was exceptionally kindly towards her grandchildren.. Then, following a lengthy pause, another was with Eileen, adding a complete contrast to the happy family situation:

George: Good evening—welcome to you.

I was waiting for you (ah). Good evening.

All: Good evening.

George: Have you dropped in for a chat?

You could call it a chat if you want. I'm not one who's going to come and say: ooh, I miss him and her—and that and this, because I don't. I'm glad I'm here where I am. Life brought me nothing but—ooh—can't even bear to talk about it. I wouldn't want to come back.

George: You wouldn't want to come back?

Wouldn't want to—no.

Sara: It's good you haven't got to.

Well, you never know. I've heard tell that some do. I don't want to.

George: Yes. Would that be because you had an unhappy life? Or—

Yes, I did (oh). Don't want to depress you or anything, but that's how it was.

Sara: So you did well to get through it then, probably.

Glad when it was all over (yes). Didn't know what I was coming to mind you, but nevertheless I was pleased to leave.

Graham: Was there anybody who loved you?

—Don't know—probably the cat—lost all my family.

Sara: When you were young?

—When I was young.

Sara: Oh dear—that was difficult.

Hard life—I don't want you to think I'm unhappy now, because I'm not.

George: Ah, you found happiness in spirit.

Yes.

Sara: That's good.

George: You have good friends in spirit?

I've made some friends now. Some—I didn't want to know. And you don't HAVE to know them.

George: So have you been in spirit long, or do you recall when it was you were on the Earth?

How long have I been here?—it feels like forever. I don't know—got to be honest sir, I don't know. I was a bit confused to begin with.

George: I was just wondering if your difficult time on Earth related to a past time that had rather poor conditions—

I don't know about that, because you see I'm still learning (yes). I am still learning sir, I am—there's lots of forgiveness to be done, and I'm trying and I'm working hard.

George: I think we're all learning in our various ways.

Yeah—but I've just come tonight to show the difference between coming through and talking about loving families—not everybody has a loving family.

Sara: No—that's right, we have to remember that (yes).

Graham: I think sometimes perhaps we take for granted.

Yes, that's what I was going to say to you sir. Not everybody's as happy as some. Some people have a miserable existence.

Sara: They do—it takes a bit of understanding really.

Yes, and even when you come here, you rebel (yes). I suppose that's hard to understand, but it's true (yes), because you're still angry (that's right).

George: Do you recall if you lived in a big town?

Yeah I did sir—where there was lots of people—I do remember that. And do you know, you can feel lonely in a big town.

Agreed

George: Yes, we are aware there was a time when there were street urchins—I think that was the name, and they had a tough time.

I wasn't an urchin sir—I just didn't have any family who cared about me. I don't know why and I still don't know why.

Graham: Did you have childhood friends?

I had one lad I quite liked, but he left with his family, so I was left all alone.

Graham: It must have been heartbreaking (yes).

George: Did you go to school?

No sir, I didn't (oh)—I should've done but I didn't. Anyway, I haven't come here to depress you.—I've come here to tell you that not everybody is sweetness and light (yes). Some of us come over and as much as there's plenty of love, it's still hard to rid yourself of all of these things.

Paul: Are you gradually ridding yourself of that life?

I'm aware that I've got to work hard—I was in a bit of darkness for quite some time, only because I was confused—I didn't know what to believe.

Paul: Yes, but there's plenty of help at hand, isn't there...

Yes, there is—yeah—lovely.

Sara: It's a good thing to remind ourselves that not everybody has a happy life. It helps us to be more tolerant.

Yeah—be more kind to those who are without—that's my message to you.

George: It sounds as if you are making real progress, and that's good to hear—good for us to know.

Yes, they wouldn't have let me come if I hadn't made progress—yeah. As much as I wanted to come, I wouldn't have been allowed if I'd dragged you all down.

Sara: You haven't done that.

George: We're interested to learn, whatever the circumstances.

Can I just suggest to you all that you all keep talking, because it's a wonderful gift—to be able to have conversation.

Paul: Yes, that's true. It's another thing that we're lucky in this group—we are all able to chip in and talk — we don't quarrel, we just talk.

That's good isn't it? But you need to have friends to quarrel, don't you?—people to quarrel with.

Paul: Yeah—sometimes a bit of a quarrel is alright, isn't it—you can always make up afterwards.

Well, I don't know much about those quarrels, but there you go.

Paul: Well—you probably can't find anyone to have a quarrel with, where you are.

Well we don't quarrel here—there's no need because your understanding's much better. But it still takes time. As I say, if you've been in some kind of fog or mist or darkness—but I can't tell you how wonderful it is when you come out—when you see the light. Yes, that is the most wonderful thing of all.

Paul: I think there has to be a great learning in that experience. Maybe it will gradually unfold, what that learning is. It could be partly in having that really lonely life, it must give you the ability to see the joy of having friendship and this is what you can now look forward to.

Yes—it's not even learning—it's complete knowledge of everything here. I can't explain it to you.

Perhaps somebody can one day, but I'm not able to.

George: It's more like an inner knowing rather than learning.

That's right sir.

Paul: An inner knowing of the incredible gift of people—

You just feel part of everything. That's all I can say.

Sara: Yes, and you probably have a heightened appreciation of it really. That's the beauty of lack isn't it—that it gives you that amazing appreciation when you have access to it again.

It sounds like you all know more than I do.

George: We've got a wonderful teacher who visits from spirit and we are fortunate in that way.

Yes, I don't know about that—I don't know about that sir. Anyway—I'll get off before I depress all of you.

Laughter and general denials

George: You're not depressing us! Can I ask you about music? Were you aware of music while you were on the planet, or now that you're in spirit?

Of course I heard music—yes. Did I know any music do you mean sir?

George: It can raise your spirits sometimes—if I could use that expression?

Sometimes it can, it depends how deep you've gone. Yes, I agree. Music's wonderful over here. Have you ever heard the trees sing sir?

George: We are aware sometimes of the breeze rustling through the leaves.

Singing in the air—yes, I've heard that said too.

Sara: I think you hear things differently in spirit—in your world.

It's not even hearing—it's just being. If I could say one word to anybody still—where you are, it would be just 'BEING'. It says it all I think (yes). And I'm still happy to be learning about being. But it's been great to find some new friends.

(General appreciation)

George: You are welcome to come again if you feel like a chat (yes). Ur, can we have a name for you?

You can sir if you want. My name's Dennis (right).

Sara: Well, you can come any time, so you've got some more friends here.

I'm very grateful for that—thank you.

George: It sounds like you've made very real progress while you've been in spirit, Dennis (oh yes). That's good—good for us to hear.

Yes, I am making progress, yeah—and that's not said with any vanity.

(Agreed)

So I'm gonna say: cheerio, and hopefully one day I'll be back (yes). And I'll tell you what else I've discovered.

(General affectionate farewells)

Paul: Carry on being.

Mark: It's nice to hear about 'being' because down here it's nearly all 'doing' and 'making' and making money...and it's not 'being' at all really.

Are you not being? Why don't you make that your next project then—'being'.

Mark: Yes—thank you...

George: We've got an election coming up, and I think some of our politicians should take note of that!—be less controlling, less dictatorial—much more into 'being'.

If I wasn't learning I'd say: shoot the lot of 'em!

(Much laughter)

George: If you were back on the planet, I think you might get our vote!

(More chuckles)

Yes, right—I'm being called—I must go.

George: Thank you for joining with us.

(Warm farewells)

~11th May 2015~ SALUMET

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/11_05_2015+salumet1.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

We bring to you peace. We also bring to you much love (thank you) and understanding for all that happens in your world. We give thanks, my dear friends, for all the loving, healing thoughts that you send out for those who have passed. Times such as these make spirit busy, but I would wish to gently remind you that these events—these happenings—they are part of your planet's evolution, and therefore we in spirit are very busy at these times of what you call 'disasters'. I would like to say to you that so often we hear: if you know in advance what is happening on this Earth, why cannot you stop it? I am sure you know the answer to that question (yes), because of course it would be interference. We can try to help, we can try to uplift, but we cannot interfere with that evolutionary path which is part of your planet Earth. So my dear friends, just a gentle reminder for you all to consider—to consider what is happening within your world. And after all, every event, every happening is your happening—is owned by each of you. But it is always difficult we know for you to understand why these events happen.

Would anyone wish to speak?

George: Yes—the natural disasters that occur as part of our planetary evolution, does that link in some way to the free-will of humanity?

Those disasters which you call ‘natural’ would happen, no matter the thoughts of many. But I understand what you are saying. Mankind can alter many things with his thought—this you know (yes), but ultimately he cannot change what is meant to be. Do you understand?

George: Yes, and I just wonder if, through free-will and good thinking, he would have the ability to know in advance about these things.

Many of these things are already known of in advance. You will find if you look into these matters that this is so. But nevertheless they are what you call ‘natural disasters’ and are part, as I have said, of the evolution of the planet (yes). Of course, mankind, as you know, has the power to alter many things—many, many things; especially himself. This he does not do well, but slowly, slowly you are learning. Do you understand?

George: Yes—I was partly wondering if by improving his own awareness, he could be more aware of these things coming.

Yes of course—that is the answer. But mankind has to learn that awareness—that spiritual awareness is what would help. But he will never be able to eradicate what is meant to be. He of course would wish to do so, but as I have said, that would be classed as interference.

George: Yes, but he might through upgrading his awareness, shall I say, become more understanding?

Yes of course. Yes, I entirely agree with you. Yes—mankind’s awareness is not great, but it is something for each of you to work upon. You can work upon the awareness to help others in many different ways. It need not be a giant leap, but some small knowing that can help your fellow man. And as I have told you in times past: if you but help one human being, my dear friends, you are doing well—yes.

Paul: Maybe for mankind, these so-called natural disasters provide possibly some humbling for the kind of people who become a little bit ‘power-minded’—to know that they actually cannot control something.

They will never control the elements—never control the elements, but what they can control, I repeat again, is themselves. They can become aware of their own humility, their compassion, their knowing what happens when these events occur—that they can help those who are left in need, and they can become custodians, if you like, of many things.

Paul: Mm, because they’re absolutely trying to control the elements (yes), the scientists, but—yes, it’s so outward-looking instead of trying to control themselves (yes), they’re trying to control nature.

Yes, if only they could begin to understand the workings of your world—the workings of the mind. That would be much more beneficial—much more beneficial, because then they would have the capabilities of helping individuals—helping people who are starving, helping people who are without homes—all of these things.

Paul: Yes, I think some of us get sad that these scientists are spending all their time trying to control the weather and things, but we don’t know how to reach them and...

They will always have some element of success—I do not say they will never achieve anything by trying. They will to a degree, but what I am saying to you is it is unlikely that they will ever rule the elements of your planet Earth.

Paul: Yes, I think that's good to know, because I'm not sure they'd rule it very wisely—at the moment, anyway.

That is why they need to become aware of the mind—of the spiritual aspect of living. All of you have a duty—are duty-bound to find within yourselves that love for peace—that love for humanity, which still does not exist today.

George: Yes, I think this might be an apt time to say that it is the 70th anniversary of the ending of our World War II, and there have been commemorations, memories and services all over the world, notably in Russia, parts of Europe and the United Kingdom. I was wondering how you regard these occasions—these commemorative occasions, when people remember the end of a major war, and clearly they are aware of the value of peace, particularly at the end of a warring period (yes). Have you any comment?

Yes—I would say only: if people have the awareness that what they have been through—the evil of killing another human being—if they could learn from those things, that would be something quite great I think. But throughout history, how many times have you seen war? (Affirmations) Have they not learned about the reactions, the downfalls—the hatred that is created by all of these unjust things?

Mark: Yes, there seemed to be a good period following the 2nd World War, in this country; when a very socialist-style government was voted in, and there was a long period of very good productivity, producing things for the many—not for the few. But it seems that thinking got lost over the years.

But you are speaking of one small island in a planet. I am speaking of the whole of your Earth, where constantly men fight against their brothers, and still it is not acceptable. And what we are working towards is 'love', 'understanding', 'peace'—that each and every one of you in this room, on this planet, are images of each other.

George: I think you imply that 'remembrance Days' are of no value, unless——Unless, yes—

George: —People learn from them and become aware (yes) and love, and begin to value 'peace'.

Yes—sometimes I feel that these events are encouraging others to be fearful—and as you all well know, my dear friends, fear is one thing that you should never want to possess. Again I say my favourite words to you: there is only 'love' and there is 'fear'. And under the umbrella of fear lies many of the problems of your world—you understand?

(General agreement)

So it is a case I feel, of once more, looking at the wider picture—looking with those spiritual eyes, and trying to help others in understanding, with patience and with love.

George: Yes, this is better understood and developed on a personal level than on a political level. While there have been remarkably good politicians, they seem far too few to achieve a love activation (yes) on a political level.

You would be amazed, I feel my dear friend, if you could see how many in our world are working with those in power, to try to bring to them that feeling of unity and love with their fellow man (yes). We are working very hard to try to encourage these people, but it is not a quick task; you have been so long with people who only want to be greedy, either for profit or being of some kind. It is like trying to work through what you would call a wall of steel.

George: It's heartening for us to know that those in spirit are working away.

And that is why it is important for each and every one of you to work in sending thoughts to these people—that they may indeed find their own light. That way will change your world for the better.

Paul: Yes, instead of being critical, we must be charitable towards them.

Yes, if you cannot find or give charity from within, how do you expect others to?

George: Yes, I'm sure we all agree that that works on an individual level.

Yes, these are words I have given to you before (yes), but I feel as always, it is good that you hear those words repeated, just to remind you.

(Agreed)

George: Yes, and going a little beyond the individual level, there is the Internet; and views and influences are being attempted through places like 'Facebook'—people offer views and ideas in that way—

Yes it is a form of media which is being used for the betterment, when it is used in that way.

Jan: It also creates a lot of fear (yes).

George: It's rather a mixture!

That is what I was about to say: as with all things, there is good and there is bad. You must ensure that any comments made or looked upon are those of some purity.

George: And we must use our discretion (yes) as to which of those comments we take on board.

Jan: From what you've told us over the last 20-years, is how to actually filter those comments that are totally irrelevant. I do find myself skirting over the bits that are of no importance whatsoever (yes), for betterment of myself or my fellow man (yes), and that alleviates a lot of the fear in your own daily life.

—Because you are taking control of your life; that is what is happening. You have decided that those comments, those remarks which are full of fear are not what you want to see or hear.

Jan: No, they are no benefit at all (yes). I read an interesting article on Facebook this morning on fear, and the author, in her opinion—which I thought was a very valid one, was that have not evolved to deal with our fear very well. When we were put on this planet and were chased by bears etc and the fight or flight—chemicals in our brains would step in. She believes that that's still there, but rather than a bear chasing us, it's now our own fear which causes the anxiety, and we've not yet learned to switch that off. And it resonated with me very well, that's that occurs in everybody's life. It is a chemical in the brain—our every choices are made out of love or fear (yes), and if you take that fearful choice it's very, very difficult to overcome that obstacle, and that fear follows you around and absorbs your very being I feel.

Yes, of course, that is what fear will do—that is what I have said to you. That is why it is important that you know yourself as a spiritual being, not a physical being. I repeat this to you so often, my dear friends, but it is so true. The spirit can overcome many obstacles.

Jan: I felt when reading it, it is our—as humans it is our biggest obstacle (yes) because without that fear, things would just completely change.

Yes, and it has served its purpose in times gone by in the evolution of mankind.

Jan: Yes—such as being chased by a bear—

Yes and at those times the fear was used, may I say, in a positive way; because of course, even fear has a positive and a negative side to it.

Jan: Yes, the positive was you ran quickly to escape the bear, and then the chemicals in your body would settle again until the next time that you needed that (yes). But we are bombarded with fear every day and every moment of our life, whether you choose to absorb that and take that fear on board—

That is where your free-will comes into play. Yes, you are quite correct. But it is something, my dear friends, for you all to think upon this time. It is such a vast subject, as you would say, for you to all absorb, but nevertheless it is something you should think about carefully and again come to know that spiritual being which rules over everything else in your lives.

Jan: I have another feeling on the subject. The authentic self, if you base yourself on your authentic self, then other people around you who are not in the same way of thinking—it can have a negative effect when you feel more centred than the people around you, and you're drawn back into that fear. And that's where free-will comes into it again, but I think it's very difficult for us humans to actually stay centred — Yes, if you allow yourself to be immersed within a pool of fear then of course you will be dragged down by it. It is a powerful—we shall call it 'emotion' because that is the word you would understand. But because you have free-will you should be strong enough to reject any situation that creates that fear.

Jan: And dis-ease comes from the fear, as you've told us before (yes), but our aches and pains, I've learned, are more from the anger side—contributed to fear anyway—comes from the core of the fear itself (yes) and stops you from moving forward—you literally—your spirit might be calling you to move forward, but you are stuck.

You are ignoring the spiritual voice.

Jan: Yes—my illness has come from fear (yes)—all of it?

All illness has a negative background, as I have told you often. And again I would say to you, that it is practice to allow your spiritual being to guide you, to help you and to keep you free from fear. After all, what within your lives is there to fear?

Jan: No, we're not going to be eaten by a bear any more, are we?

And if you are?

Jan: —so be it?

So be it.

Sarah: You say all illnesses come from fear-disease (yes). Even things like worn-out hip, has that worn out because of fear?

Jan: The balance of the body is not quite right, so you walk on one side or the other. It has the same effect—it doesn't matter which part of the body it is—it has the same physiological effect.

In the evolution of man, your life should be one which moves smoothly, until such time as it is ready for you to go home. That is the perfect life, but we know that the Earth planet creates, as the lady has said, many fears, and that is where it stems from; and as she has already explained, there is always dis-ease—dis-ease within the body, which is unbalancing. That is the problem—nothing is balanced, so fear and dis-ease take over the body. Some may never experience this problem—many cannot understand this problem, but all I can say to you: it is a basic truth of humankind.

George: In my youth, I did conscripted military service in the army and as part of that, I did a course in parachuting. There seems to be a natural fear of leaping out into space from a great height; and it was most interesting to see how different people overcame that fear. Some seemed to have a strength of mind which seemed to get them through it; some seemed to just freeze out mind, become quite rigid and do their first jump; for others it was a matter of ground-training and with much repetition, being tapped on the shoulder and an instructor shouts 'go!'. So when you're in the aircraft and you're tapped on the shoulder and the instructor shouts 'go!', you go; because this has been your training. But it was interesting for me to see how different people responded in overcoming their fear.

One other thing I would say is: remember although you are spirit you are cloaked with a physical body. You have come from two parents who already have genetic faults, so you have to make allowances. That is why some people are braver than others—some people have strength of mind which others do not have—many reasons. So you are a combination in this world of spiritual and physical—

George: —endowed with genetic thoughts, as you have said. That is interesting (yes).

Jan: Also, and I believe I'm right, we come into this world with only one fear, and that's the fear of falling—That is part of the passage of birth—

Jan: —of birth—yes, that’s right. So some people probably carry that on and never actually deal with that and others, as a baby and an infant, learn to deal with that and find it’s not so bad after all—

And there is also the fear of being born into a physical body (yes). You must remember all of these things. Nothing is as simple as it may seem.

George: So if there were no fear of being born into a physical body, then there would be much more reincarnation (yes).

Sarah: But what happens if you have a caesarean section? Perhaps they wouldn’t have that fear, (of falling) would they?

They probably would be more afraid of—because most babies would be born in a natural way; those who are taken from the body in the way that you describe, would have different fears—fear of the sudden bright lights, fear of the many faces which greet them; there are many, many reasons. Yes, but yes, you are correct in your assumption that there is fear from the very moment of birth.

Sarah: Going back to the natural disasters (yes)—when there are earthquakes, afterwards, some people have miraculous survival—they’re taken out of the rubble after many days and they survive. Is this because they are not ready to go, or because they’ve asked for help or is it just luck?

It could be a combination of all of those things. I would say that it is not their time—that would be the main reason. So if it is not their time, it is only right that they would be found or they have asked for help and those Angelic beings, who are so good at these times, are there to help them.

Sarah: So really, all the others who don’t survive, it is their time to go?

Anyone who goes, it is their time, (yes) yes.

Jan: How much of that survival instinct is the free-will?

That would come into play because it is part of the physical make-up. Yes, of course, your free-will (to fight—survive), yes.

Sarah: Even if it was a baby—
—Even a baby.

Jan: I can imagine their will to survive is even greater than somebody much older.

Sometimes it is more difficult, because the child would be closer to spirit—and happier to return (yes), yes.

George: One gentleman, who studied drowning at sea, was convinced that a main cause of death was panic.

It does not help. Yes of course, if you panic it is fear—yes.

George: I imagine in an earthquake situation, someone who becomes buried could panic, while another might go into a period of meditation or close to that.

Yes, there is no one answer to all of these questions. I cannot give you one specific answer that will satisfy all of you. But all I say is: remember that first and foremost you are spiritual beings, and try to place those fearful conditions to one side. I am not saying it is simple, it is not. But in the striving for it, you will find you will become stronger and better people for it and better able to help others—which after all, should be one of your goals of life. Now, my dear friends, I have enjoyed our company this evening, as always.

George: We have much enjoyed your good teaching Salumet. Thank you so much for that.

Thank you, and as I take my leave from you, know that always I am close—always I am a voice, in order that you may convey whatever you are feeling. And with those words, I leave my love with you all.

(Fond farewells + thanks)

Following a pause, one was then with Sarah:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/11_05_2015+egyptian+eye+med.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

I am just bringing you a little information that is not of huge significance today, but I have been part of a life of the ancient Egyptians, and I just thought you would like to know that the eye that they paint on these replicas and drawings and images, is indeed an eye that you CAN look into. And if you look deep enough into an eye, you will see another eye, and once that eye has been looked into, there will be yet another eye, and this is what the Egyptians knew—that when you CAN focus on an eye, you will see repeated eyes. That eye will never go away, and you will then find that you have arrived at a point where you are able to have knowledge that is there for you; but you have at the time before looking into the eye, been unaware of. So I just wanted to let you know that these eyes do in fact have great significance, and were not just something that were painted on for a perhaps decorative feature. They were indeed able, these ancient Egyptians, to use these eyes for much knowledge and understanding. So that is just my message—I just thought you might be interested to know that.

George: That is indeed very interesting. Might I ask about the state-of-being on looking into the eye? Would it be a meditative state?

You can arrive at achieving an eye to look into at any time. You only have to focus your mind on an eye, and you will find you will see one, and then you can work down through the eyes that come one after the other (ah). As soon as you have looked into the eye and you are focussing onto the centre you will find the next one, and so this pattern is repeated until you will find yourself in that state where you can obtain knowledge that you do indeed have, but you are not aware of.

George: So it's a matter of focussing mind (yes), and shall I say, being away from worldly thoughts—Well, I think you will find that once you start to look into these eyes, you will indeed get into a different, how can we say?—

George: A different mental state?

Yes—but you do not need to start in that state.

Mark: Would this be a similar process that people do using a crystal ball?

I think it is slightly different, because the crystal ball is just for focussing, but the eye does indeed produce something a little more than the ball—could I say: the ball is perhaps one plane, whereas the eye has much more depth.

George: —and just purely for clarification: are we talking about looking into an actual eye or a drawing of an eye?

No—I am talking about—it will be an eye—but you do not look into someone's eye. You close your eyes and you focus on an eye and it will appear.

George: Yes, that clarifies—thank you (yes).

Jan: It's your mind's eye—your spiritual eye that you're—

It is an eye that is given to you when you wish to focus on these repeated eyes.

Jan: I wonder if that's where our saying 'our third eye' comes from—

I beg your pardon—

Jan: There's a saying here on Earth that your third eye can see further than the pairs of eyes that you're given (yes). So I would imagine that that's the third eye—it's the spiritual eye, it's the window to the soul.

Yes, I believe this has a connection—yes.

Jan: Good—that makes sense, and the Egyptians had learned, hadn't they—

They knew, yes indeed they did, and that is the reason—

Jan: —for the drawings.

—For the drawings, yes.

(Jan then mentioned one of the bank notes having an eye on it—the US dollar and a little discussion re possible SF film connections.)

Paul: I think we'll all be trying it now.

That's good, because you will all gain from that.

Mark: Yeah, we certainly need all the help we can get, focussing. Thank you.

So now I will leave you and thank you for the time.

(General thanks)

George: Thank you for your explanations, and I think we understand that the Egyptian drawings are representations—or attempted representations, of this eye within consciousness.

Thank you.

(The power then seemed to fade as the communicator withdrew)

George's Notes:

THE EYE: The Egyptian eye teaching seems to connect very well with that phrase used by Salumet earlier: That is why they need to become aware of the mind—of the spiritual aspect of living. So perhaps this is an interesting exercise that we should practice. And what has been said makes perfect sense of that other phrase: the all-seeing eye of Horus. Images of the all-seeing eye, not only adorn the Giza pyramids, but have spread into other places:

The all-seeing eye of Horus—interestingly René Descartes described it as 'the seat of the soul.'

The sons of Horus and the all-seeing eye.

The eye with its pyramid association, as it appears on American banknotes.

~18th May 2015~

He first speaker was via Eileen—one named Cho, who was to be our new Gatekeeper:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_05_18-+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Hello.

(General greetings)

My name is 'Cho'.

Paul: Ah, welcome back Cho!

I will not stay long, I learning to use voice.

Paul: Ah yes. Is there anything we can help with, to help you with that?

Only good energy.

Paul: Ah yes.

I want become your gatekeeper.

Paul: Oh! Become our gatekeeper! That would be very good—yes, that's a very good job.

Lilian: Have you done that job before?

No.

Lilian: So you're learning and we're learning from you.

Yes—I wanted you to know.

Lilian: That's interesting.

Paul: So you're going to make time for that as well as your other work—with helping the down-trodden women of the world?

I want to do lots of help.

Paul: Ah yes, that's very good if you can juggle lots of things and help in lots of different ways (yes).

Jan: So what does the gatekeeper do? Do they bring the people to speak to us, or they filter?

Yes, they make sure only right ones come.

Jan: That's good.

George: It's a job of very considerable responsibility.

Yes—I ready except for speech.

Jan: Well you're doing very well.

Sometimes easier than others.

Lilian: Yes, I remember, quite some time back now—quite a few years—there used to be one; his name was Mickey, a gatekeeper—

You peoples have many over time (I see). That all I have to say.

Lilian: Yes, well Mickey and you are the only ones who've given us a name and explained your job.

I work hard for you.

(Appreciative comments)

Jan: So you'll have some interesting people for us will you, in the future?

That part is not up to me. I'm not—

Jan: You are not organizing them (no), just stop anybody who shouldn't be with us (yes).

Lilian: Do you find there are many that would come when perhaps they shouldn't?

No, only how you call them—opportunists.

(Some faltering with word but agreed and understood)

Only them—not bad people, just anxious sometimes (yes).

George: Does this mean that you will be with us for all our meetings?

Not to speak (no)—may come sometime—tell you a little more.

Lilian: That'll be nice.

—But not every time.

Lilian: Is this the only group that you'll help?

To begin—yes (I see). Now, my speech needs help, so—

Sarah: Are you having difficulty with your speech because English was never your mother-tongue, or is it just because you are coming from spirit?

I had speech defect plus I always wanted to speak my own language.

Sarah: Which was what?

Jan: Mongolian (Yes).

(Jan explained that she had been shown clairvoyantly that Cho had had a cleft palate and lip)

Sarah: Ah right—yes. Anyway, you are doing very well—we can understand you clearly, so that's good.

Jan: Am I correct Cho that that's what your impediment was?

Yes.

Jan: You're very good at sending me clairvoyance when you're around.

That's good, how you say—good?

(Affirmed)

Always problem for me.

Jan: But you don't have that now, do you?

No.

Jan: So it's just learning to speak. It's doubly difficult isn't it?—your learning to speak again—and using somebody else at the same time!

Yes. I told not too long now.

Jan: No, we won't tire you.

Lilian: Thank you for coming and having a quick chat.

Paul: We look forward to you popping in a little—now and then.

Lilian: We'll think of you in the background.

Sarah: And we'll ask for some help for you, to make it a little easier for you to speak to us.

I got go now.

Jan: Our love goes with you.

Paul: It's good to have you around in the background. Thank you for the work you'll be doing.

Yes, I will always give my name when coming to you.

Paul: Thank you. Yes, it's quite an easy name for us—yes, we understand—thank you.

(We know that, as a baby, Cho was abandoned by his parents and cared for by travelling missionaries. Eileen was able to give a description of him—quite a long head with black hair and short in stature.) Soon, another was with Eileen who declared that she was looking around and assessing everyone:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_05_18+-+those+around+us+be+more+aware.mp3

You know there's many people around you?—many people in this room, but not many are aware of them. Why is this?

Paul: I don't know—we've been told that before—that the room has so many in it. I wish we could be aware more fully (yes).

George: Yes, there are just eight of us material beings, and I would imagine there are rather more present from spirit—

Yes, and they are calling out names. It's disconcerting I think.

Mark: We are not consciously ignoring them, we'd like to acknowledge them.

No—I know. They like the feeling of being with you—I'm being told this by two people—Silvia and Alison.
(It was explained that they just like to be helpers sometimes and we might possibly feel their presence. Some sitters could feel their presence though were unable to 'see' them.)

If you feel the energy, that can only be good.

Jan: Well, can you give us some hints or tips on how to pick these people up?

Hints or tips?—no, that is down to each one of you.

Sarah: Are there some children as well?

There are all kinds of people.

Sarah: Because I can see some very small hands.

Yes, well that's wonderful. You need to elaborate on that. You have to ask questions; after all, if someone knocked upon your door, would you not have a conversation (yes, true). You have to let us know that you are aware of us before we can have the contact. Does that make sense to you? (yes) I am going to go around this room, and perhaps each one of you can give me something that you feel or see. A little exercise for your spirits.

Sarah: I'm actually seeing—I think it's a rose bush, but it's more of an umbrella shape, and there are lots of pale pink flowers on it.

That is beautiful is it not? But can you connect it to anything that may apply to you?

Sarah: Well I do like flowers.

Yes, and we are in the month when the roses are blooming.

Sarah: I feel actually, that's what came to mind—the spring but it's a little bit early for roses. They are really summer flowers.

Yes, but they can appear outside the normal times.

Sarah: Perhaps it's something that's going to happen. Perhaps I'm a little bit ahead of myself. Perhaps they are trying to tell me of something that's going to happen in the summer.

Yes, well you must ask the question and whoever is closest to you will try to oblige. Yes, that is what you must do. You must question us—you must be aware of us.

Sarah: Yes, the first thing that came to mind actually was a house because I'm wanting to buy a new house, and I think something might be going to happen in the summer.

Yes! Well, perhaps the roses for you will be significant.

George: I recall that 21-years ago, we were told that Salumet would be with us when the roses were in bloom, and the roses were certainly blooming most beautifully in Leslie's garden when Salumet made his first visit.

Yes, Salumet—you mean your teacher?

George: Our teacher.

Yes, well you know roses as well as all flowers, are beautiful, but not as beautiful as ours here. Yes, I wish you could see them; I really do wish you could see them.

Lilian: And some of them have a beautiful scent (yes).

Jan: I must say it, because I think the moment will pass, I think my dad's here with me in his pink jumper.

That's wonderful isn't it? Yes, and who better to be aware of than a loved one. Yes, you must listen and try to feel him and see what he wishes to say to you. Yes, that is good—anyone else?

Lilian: What came into my mind was, not many hours ago I was talking to someone, and how this blackbird comes in the door for grapes and things, to the point where I have to shut the door.

Yes—nature's wonderful.

Sarah: You were talking about Leslie—of course, he had a blackbird, that would sit on a handrail and tap on the door.

Yes, are you beginning to see the connections with all of these things? You will find there will always be continuity—yes, anyone else?

Paul: I have the image of a man—like someone who works simply with nature. I seem to have an image of big outdoor hands and tree-bark which seems to have a face on it, like the tree was becoming alive—almost nature waking up—seems to be relating to this man having a simple outlook—working simply—good honest work.

And can you get some more detail of this gentleman? Can you ask for more details?

Paul: I'll ask—yeah.

Yes. If you have a question, you should have an answer.

Lilian: Going back to the blackbird theme, I know my mother had one coming in as well. There's a lot to do with birds and wildlife.

Jan: I've just realised—I've got his jumper on (you have?). I am wearing his pink jumper.

Well, that is very good.

(Pause)

Now each one of you should become aware of a loved one in spirit—

George: When Paul mentioned about the hands, I had the thought that my father was a farmer—Paul's grandfather, and he had a working farmer's hands (yes)—that thought came.

These thoughts are not random in these situations. You have created amongst yourselves an opportunity for those in spirit to come close to you. That is why I say you must endeavour to question. If you just say: I see this or feel this, and just let it go, you will never expand your knowledge; and that is what we would like you to do.

(Sarah explained that Paul's man made her think of those who made rustic items from woodland materials)

Well, I'm being recalled, so I'll leave you and allow you to think about the words I've used; and try—every day just try to connect with those in spirit, because they are all so willing to come and help and support you in your everyday lives. They truly are there ready to help.

Sarah: I know they are—if you've got two seconds: my son and daughter-in-law—she had to go to the doctor with her two babies, and it was teeming down with rain—a mini-cyclone. And I just said to the spirit friends: could you help these a little bit? And, do you know, the rain almost stopped—we got to the doctor's and back again. And I was going to take the dogs for a walk, but before I managed to get across the road, it started raining again. So I know the spirit friends definitely helped that day.

Yes—and we cannot truly help unless you ask. You know we can help sometimes without your asking, but it is preferable that you ask us, because then we know you truly, truly know that we are around.

George: Yes, I'm very much aware that my dear wife, who passed to spirit 3-years ago, is around and indeed she has been through to this group and has actually spoken as you do now (yes). So I'm very fortunate in having that confirmation (yes) of her presence.

Yes, and really there is no reason why you should not have one-to-one contact without the use of another. You are all capable of doing that (yes)—yes, all capable.

George: Yes, I have a daily—shall I say: a one-way conversation—before I go to bed.

Yes, that is a very good time to have contact—a relaxing time for most people.

George: —And I have feelings associated with that.

Yes, that is good. Now I really must go.

George: Well, thank you for being with us.

Sarah: —and for staying for just a tad longer.

Paul: —and we'll try and connect more with all these lovely people around us.

Another next spoke via Eileen:

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

We wish to try an exercise with all of you. We wish that an individual focuses on another individual within the room, and pick out some small detail that they are given. And it will help with your—

George: Is this focussing on one who is in spirit?

No, another in the room, just to see what connection you can pick up. We are happy that you choose your own subject.

So this was a development exercise for us. One at a time, another was named and focussed upon and question-and-answer exchange followed. We were advised not to dismiss anything that comes to mind, even if it seems silly. Some themes seemed to develop logically—others did not. The one from spirit withdrew and left us to it. The exercise concluded the evening.

~8th June 2015~

This meeting was to be brief because Eileen had a cough which was troublesome, but one did in fact come through who picked up on our prior conversation. This concerned the need for peace moves in the world and the apparent dearth of politicians with any genuine interest in peace moves.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_08-helpingworld+leaders.mp3

Lilian: Good evening. Have you been listening?

I have—I have been listening—interested to listen to all of you—interested to see how the world has changed so much. And interested to see how each individual in your world has changed also.

George: This is—changed since you were on the Earth?

Yes—yes.

Lilian: I know our teacher who comes says we are changing for the better—meaning spiritually.

I could not argue with that, because I really do not know.

Lilian: Oh I see—yes.

All I can say is that I know people are more independent with their minds (yes)—that most individuals think for themselves. But yes, I would agree that your world governments are a force that need to be listened to and also my friends helped. It is easy to condemn—

(General agreement)

Jan: But we do with our thoughts and prayers always ask for guidance of those leaders—we mention that in this group very often.

Yes, I listened to them tonight, and I am pleased that a group such as you are able to do so; because still there is the unknown factor of the true facts sometimes.

(Agreed)

So always be careful that what you speak about is in fact the truth.

George: Yes, and I believe there is a fairly new peace initiative from a scientist named 'M T Keshe', and he is launching a peace initiative which, as he states, is quite independent of politics and independent of religions—and I rather liked the sound of that; because it is not going against, he is deliberately not going against religions or politicians—but launching an independent initiative.

Yes, I think I would agree with you about that. Yes, perhaps that is something to be nurtured. But I know as time continues and you see the much bigger picture, you will all agree that although it seems almost impossible at this time, you are indeed moving forward.

Lilian: Yes, you've only got to read the history books—maybe that's not all true what they write—but yes, I'm sure we've improved a lot.

Yes—continue with your healing thoughts—that is my advice. Continue to view things individually and as groups of people who seek only love and truth. You can only win in the end. And really that is all that I come to say, because I was most interested in your conversation.

George: Well thank you for coming through and it's nice to have your thoughts on this.

Yes—yes, if only everyone could see a little bigger picture, I'm sure you would be encouraged; because I know all seems not well in your world, but I can assure you from what I know, that things are moving in the right direction.

George: Yes, and if more people are beginning to think for themselves (yes) and I'm sure that is part of that 'right direction'.

Yes, you are correct. Thank you for listening to me and I am grateful that you have allowed me to sit here with you, listen to you and join in with what you have had to say.

Lilian: We are very grateful.

George: Thank you for being with us.

Thank you.

George's Notes:

Keshe Foundation: It is understood that this is the brainchild of Iranian-born Mehran Tavakoli Keshe and is based in Belgium. M T Keshe is a nuclear engineer and son of an x-ray engineer. It is claimed that he has expertise in plasma energy application to anti-gravity application. His work and claims are highly controversial, but his motives—promotion of green planetary systems, no kill policies and peace in the world—are attractive.

Yes, M T Keshe's work and claims are highly controversial, but then they would be in a world conditioned towards violence, warring, towards pollution of the planet, slaughter-house meat for food and to brushing major political issues under the carpet. And I continue to be astounded by the way the UK's major issues of £1.56 trillion debt (with continued £100million annual increase) and attendant nuclear weapons expenditure, got brushed under the carpet in our recent election discussions—this in favour of 'health facilities'!

The Keshe Foundation may or may not succeed—time will tell; but its motives have merit.

~15th June 2015~

Firstly, one came through to say that Salumet would be with us next time and gave a few personal messages for sitters. A period of clairvoyance followed via Eileen with messages for Paul and Sarah. Then a child rescue via Eileen counselled by Lilian:

Audio link: <http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/15th+June+2015-rescue-workhouse.mp3>

Lilian: Good evening. Can I help you?

I'm not going in there, I'm not going in there. I'm not!

Lilian: Not a very nice place?

Lilian: Don't worry about it, you're not going in wherever you don't want to go.

I don't want to go in there.

Lilian: If you don't want to go, you won't go.

It's horrible—horrible place.

Lilian: Yes. Can you tell me a little bit about what you think it's like?—this place you don't want to go. Is there a name for it?

I can't read—It's got a—somebody said 'W'.

Lilian: Workhouse—or something like that?

Yeah. Papa died—Papa died—mother's taking me there.

Lilian: I see yeah, I was just wondering if it was the workhouse. How old are you?

Six

Lilian: Six—well try not to worry. You're not going in that workhouse.

It's horrible!

Lilian: Yes, of course it is. Try and forget that. You're feeling okay—you are not feeling ill or anything? You're just frightened?

I'm not very well (yes okay). My head hurts.

Lilian: Yes, I expect it does really.

It hurts.

Lilian: Well okay, you're not going into the workhouse, that's for sure. And I'm here just to help you, and anyone else that needs helping.

I don't like it—my head hurts.

Lilian: Yeah okay—if you think about it, that head should be soon getting better.

(Lilian reached across to Eileen's arm)

I'm touching you with my hand, and all the aches and pains will go away.

Are you a doctor—I haven't got any money—Mummy hasn't got any money.

Lilian: I don't want any money—I'm just helping you. Don't worry about what I am. Soon you'll be able to feel nice and warm and cosy. (Pause) Am I right?

Yes.

Lilian: Now you'll see a lovely lady waiting for you, and maybe your mummy as well—the two of them, maybe they're waiting—a very kind lady; you know that she's okay—this kind lady.

I don't feel frightened any more (good). My head still hurts.

Lilian: She'll make it better. Can you just see the one lady? (Yes). That's okay.

It's not my mother. Where is she?

Lilian: You'll see her soon. That lady will take you to her. What I would like you to do is to go with the lady—take hold of her hand. She'll take you to the loveliest place you've ever seen.

Why can't you take me?

Lilian: Well I'm a little bit busy at the moment (Oh). I was just to tell you to go with this lady. What's your name?

Thelma.

Lilian: Hello Thelma—are you happy to go? Has she got something for you—this lady?

Yes.

Lilian: Can you tell me what it is?—something you'd like?

A little cat.

Lilian: Oh lovely. Well that's your cat now.

Is it? What's your name please?

Lilian: My name's Lilian. Call me Lily for short.

I'm going to call my cat Lily.

Lilian: That's nice yes, you call your cat Lily—I shall remember that. So you're happy to go and take your little cat?—and go with the lady?

Will you come and see me sometimes?

Lilian: I won't be long—yes.

I'm not frightened now.

Lilian: Good—you're going to the loveliest place (mm), so I'm going to say: bye-bye.

Thank you.

Lilian: You're welcome.

—Lilian—Thank you very much.

Lilian: Bye-bye.

(The workhouse conditions must have been terrible around 100-years ago.)

~22nd June 2015~ SALUMET

Several were unable to be with us this evening but Annette joined us making a total of eight present:

Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_22+1salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, I am happy to join with you all this time. We would wish to extend a welcome to the dear lady who joins with you this time. She is one of our workers, but I would wish to say to you, dear lady, that even now, sometimes you doubt yourself.

Annette: You're absolutely correct.

Yes—do not fear, because many work with you who will give you that upliftment and encouragement to overcome this doubt.

Annette: Thank you very much—that's good to have that confirmation.

You have much work to do—this you already know, and I am told by your own guides that you are a dedicated and loving person. All too often we see with workers that the ego comes into play. This is not so in your case.

Annette: That's correct and that's why I believe I've been given this wonderful gift.

Yes—we look for helpers who are dedicated to the work of spirit. Now, I know you have been concerned about your family (yes). And it is natural for you, because you are of course only human. My dear friends who sit within this room with you have heeded my words over many times, and they know that sometimes it is best to just let go and to give love to those in need. This is what you must also do—give of your love and allow the fear to dissipate (thank you). Now my dear friends, for this time, I will tell you that there is much movement in your Earthly skies at this time. Be vigilant and be aware of new sightings within the sky of your planet.

George: Mm that sounds interesting, Salumet.

Yes—I will say no more but it will come in the not too far distance, that there will be sights of other planets and other happenings. Remember my words, my dear friends.

Lilian: Well just recently, on the news, there was a couple of young lads and they'd found a planet that was sort of hidden behind two others, but they found it, which was rather thrilling for them. So that's one thing that I've heard just recently.

Yes—there is much more to come (right). Yes, but that is just a little something for you to focus upon.

George: Thank you. I'm not sure if there's any connection, but I understand that one person in particular has been doing photographic studies of spiritual orbs—energy orbs. And there seems to be detail of colour and form showing up within the orbs. There is the suggestion that they are projections from a different reality or a different dimension, and even claims that faces of beings are seen within them. I just wondered if you have any comment on that recent research by Merlina Marcan, Salumet?

Yes, I will comment only to say that yes within these orbs, which are indeed spiritual energy, as you well know, there is no reason why that energy cannot be transmuted to show the faces of others. I would rather say these beings are not from different worlds, but are the faces of loved ones gone from this planet.

George: Thank you! That's most helpful and reassuring that this research has elements of truth.

Yes, there is no doubt that the element of truth exists. I hope that is helpful to you.

George: It is indeed.

Are there more questions this time?

Serena: Yes, I often wonder when what I believe are chemtrails and the weather modification, when the sky is completely whitened out, but there's lots of activity behind whatever is in the sky—can you say anything about what that might be (yes), because there are rumours that it might be blocking out sighting of UFOs?

I would say: you know that all things have the protection of spirit. There is indeed behind all of these actions, those in our world who are trying to help. That is more likely, that that is what is happening. Do you understand?

Sarah: So are these beings getting behind the chemtrails because the chemtrails are wrong?

Yes—yes; you understand what I say?

Paul: The UFOs are trying to fix our mistakes—trying to help?

Not the UFOs—those of spirit, from our world—those who look after nature.

Lilian: Nature spirits...

Well, nature spirits are known as 'smaller beings', but nature spirits of your air are huge beings of energy, who are there to help whenever needed. You understand?

(Affirmed + thanks)

Lilian: Talking of nature spirits—I've thought about this a little bit. When we have things like the terrible earthquake that's just happened where human beings are harmed—would this affect the elementals at all?

The elementals will not be harmed. They are already in spirit. They are not human beings.

Paul: Non-physical.

Yes. You can only be harmed if you are of human existence. The elementals belong to the spirit world.

Lilian: Right, I probably should have reread what you'd said about them.

Yes, we have spoken of them in past times (yes). Do you have more questions this time?

George: Yes, there's an organisation called the 'Kesse Foundation' and it's a scientific group with a PEACE initiative. It's controversial—those who believe this is for good and those who do not. The gentleman who is organising this is M T Kesse and he is Iranian-born and maybe some political manoeuvres come into this.

But I was impressed by the peaceful motivation and intent of the Kesse Foundation. So I'm wondering if you can make any comment on this?

Only in as much as anything or anyone who is involved in peaceful happenings can only be congratulated. Always there is fear of all things new.

George: —Fear of change.

Fear of change, yes. We have spoken considerably of fear and it exists in your world in great measure. So I would say: anything that encourages peaceful events can only be for the good of mankind and to be encouraged.

George: Yes, thank you. Thank you for that—that is helpful.

(Pause)

George: One of our readers sent in a question about the name 'Yahweh', and I think I'm correct in saying this was a name given to Moses for the 'Creative Principle', which is a term that was not used at that time. Any comment on the origin and name 'Yahweh, Salumet'?

Yes—we could spend an eternity dissecting names and their meanings and we have spoken much more deeply than what has happened in your Christian religion—your Bibles. The Creator is far larger—more expansive than any questions given to us about Christianity or any other Earthly religion. All I will say is: it is immaterial—it is of no matter of these things past—what they meant. What is important is what you know and understand at this time (yes). So I am not being dismissive—only encouraging you to look forward rather than to go back.

George: So past names given are immaterial.

Yes, I would say so.

George: Yes, well thank you for that. That really does clarify.

Yes, I know and we expect you as human beings to be interested in all things past, but really, my dear friends, it is more important that you go forward and find that Great Creative Force which stands before you.

George: Yes (yes), yes, understood—thank you. Could I ask another?

I will take one more question this time.

George: Would anyone else like to ask a question? Annette?

Annette: No I'm fine—I'm enjoying listening to this.

I am always amazed that so many questions are within her mind until you enter this room.

George: I have the feeling Salumet, that suicide bombers—they are led to believe that if they blow themselves up together with other people, they will receive rich reward when they cross over to spirit. When they do cross over and see so much more clearly, it must be a huge change for their consciousness (yes). If you could comment on this it would be very good.

I have to say, my dear friends, that all of these people are misguided—misdirected in their thoughts—believing that what they do, brings them to their own kind of paradise. It is—I believe you would say in your world—heartbreaking to see such devastation, when suddenly they realise what has happened; not only to themselves, but to all those other people who have been involved in their ways of thinking. They are never alone and yet they are alone, because they do not suddenly change their way of thinking. This we have spoken of many times. You do not suddenly become changed—you do not suddenly become aware of everything which has taken place. So I would say only this to you, my dear friends: that they must be included in all of your prayers—not only those innocents, but these people themselves who believe that they will meet their own god. It is indeed—I think you would feel—shocking, when the realisation comes, but they are surrounded by love, nevertheless.

George: So the realisation will come to them but it does take time.

Yes, for most it takes time because their mindset is that. You know that when you pass to spirit you see what you expect to see, and so it is with them.

Sarah: You did say to us once Salumet, that when somebody does something—I know we shouldn't judge, but you might perceive to be wrong, but killing—you said that nobody should kill—but if they're doing it, believing that it's right, that isn't quite as bad as when you're doing it knowing it's wrong—

Well, what is wrong is wrong, there can be no change of that, but of course, the reason behind the action has always got to be considered as well. Do not forget that we are speaking of spirit and not the human being.

Sarah: Yes, but there again, they might kill the human being, but of course they haven't killed the spirit. No, the spirit can never die, but nevertheless their time upon this Earth has been used in 'misguidance' I like to call it, because after all, as I have told you my dear friend, everyone has love in some proportion—no one is completely 'bad', to use one of your words—and all must be helped whenever they are willing. I hope that has helped you in understanding.

Serena: So what about the people that help with 'assisted suicide—euthanasia, and perhaps people who have maybe destructive habits, like drug addiction—because that's a slow suicide, isn't it? Yes—they have to face responsibility. No one can leave that responsibility behind. That is why it is so wrong for Earthly religions to tell people that they can be forgiven by the use of a few words, and others if they do such deeds can also be forgiven and will sit by the side of what they call 'God'. So know everyone is responsible for their own actions. Assisted suicides, as you call them—people normally do it from love, but I am here to tell you that it is not right. However painful it is to watch loved ones deteriorate you cannot be the Creator—you do not have the right to say who should go to spirit or when.

Serena: That opens a can of worms, because I feel in some hospitals and hospices, people are just really left to die almost (yes), given just liquid and nothing else as and when—so really that's a form of assisted suicide.

But if the body can exist without all of the drugs and everything else that is administered, then surely it is their time to go? You must also remember that in making your judgements—you understand? (Yes)

Paul: And it goes without saying that this extends to animals as well (yes). But I guess it doesn't quite extend to the plant kingdom, or should it extend to the plant kingdom?

As human beings you are limited in pure love. If we are speaking of pure love, no plant, no insect—nothing would be damaged; but that is unrealistic in the world that you live.

Sarah: —because what would we eat?

Yes, so you have to keep a balance, my dear friend—yes.

Paul: I understand that—yes.

Sarah: I was thinking about child suicide bombers, where they've been indoctrinated, and they're probably too young to make up their own minds or perhaps they don't have a chance, they're forced into doing these things. So that is slightly different is it not?

Yes, that is what I would call: using the purity of spirit in a way not meant to be used; so whoever has indoctrinated has to take responsibility (yes) for that action.

(Pause)

Now my dear friends, I hope your questions have been answered for you.

(Affirmed + thanks)

George: Thank you so much Salumet, for answering all our questions.

Yes—as always, I leave you cloaked in my love and light. And I know that when we come together once more that you will all be imbued with spiritual love and energy. And now we will allow any others who wish to come to enter this room.

George: Thank you for that—and we shall watch our skies.

(General thanks)

A very detailed period of clairvoyant messages then followed from both Eileen and Annette for those present.

George's Notes:

Merlina Marcan and Orb Photography: Merlina Marcan is author of 'Our Destiny Lies Within Orb Truth', published 2012, published by Gordon NSW, Australia Minipublishing, 122-pages.

Merlina Marcan is the originator of what is termed 'MFT Orb and Spirit Photography Method', which is described as 'holographic energy field projection'. And here we have a small sample of her amazing photographs in which faces appear to be revealed:

I have corresponded with Merlina and she is very happy to share her photos, adding: 'I believe my research discovery will be far too important to just sweep under the carpet. Once tried & tested by scientists, this will open up "unexplored" doorways in science.' I would add: science and spirit must of course eventually recognise each other, and it is good that there are those of us on both sides of the current divide working towards this; and this will then open a doorway to what we might term 'spiritual science'. And knowledge of 'spiritual science' is what has already led extraterrestrial sentient beings to their space-travel and to their (proven) construction of energy-producing pyramids here on Earth in ancient times—a fact that is currently being swept under the carpet!

~29th June 2015~ SALUMET

Firstly there was a very brief visit from Salumet giving a personal message of guidance for one of the group's family members, indicating how Salumet caringly watches over, and not just those who attend the meetings.

George: Good evening—welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

My stay this time will be brief—there are others to come. What I wish to say is directed to the lady who sits alone in the chair. I would like just to say about your daughter (yes), and I would like to say also to you that life feels like a heavy burden. But for the young one, she is at the point in her life where she feels there is not too much to celebrate (yes). Yes—partly the reason for the medical condition at this time (I accept). Yes—I would just like to say: continue to try to be patient with this one (I will). She has a good heart (she has a lovely heart). Yes—try to focus upon the good things. Within the next three of your Earthly years you will see a great change come for this one. So, my dear friend, just be a little more patient—continue to be positive each time you speak with her (yes) and it will begin to shine through—gradually, but it will happen (thank you). I just felt that at this time, you are in need of a little upliftment (thank you for that). Now, my dear friends, I will leave you to continue this time with others to come.

George: Thank you Salumet for that—I know that it is much appreciated.

As this was a personal message, names have been omitted—there followed another through Eileen, with the message that there was one trying to speak through Sarah, but we needed. She went on to talk about her work in spirit:

What I normally do is look after cats. I've always loved cats—big or little makes no difference to me.

Paul: So you looked after them also when you were on the Earth?

No, I just loved them.

George: Are these cats in spirit?

Yes, they're cats who belonged to people, or they THOUGHT they belonged to people—of course they don't belong to people, but there's a connection with them and that helps them to stay as animals, whereas I don't know if you—

George: Yes, so the connection is between cats-in-spirit and people-in-spirit?

Paul: Yes, the love connection (Yes).

Paul: So that means they don't go back to the animal pool.

Oh you DO know.

Paul: Yes, we've been told this before.

I just feel very blessed that I'm allowed to give love and, you know, take them around with me.

Paul: Yeah, well they must be lovely in spirit as well—I mean they're lovely here in Earth as well.

Yes, they're special little creatures—they're full of God's love (yeah)—I think they are. So that's what I do mainly, and sometimes I come to groups such as this—and try to stir things up!

(Chuckles)

George: Wake them up when they're a little quiet perhaps...

Wake you up—yes!

Sara: Have you got a cat with you at the moment?

I have—can you see?

Sara: Is it black with white stripes? I just thought I saw—

Yes! Isn't she beautiful!

Sara: Very beautiful—very unusual (yes)—lovely colour.

Yes, she likes to come with me on these occasions.

George: And is there a bond between the cats in spirit—one cat with another?

There can be, but it is not usual (not usual)—not usual but it can happen.

Sara: What's her name or his name?

Meme—it's a she.

Sara: Yes that's what I first thought.

She's purring—Isn't that lovely! (Yes) So I'm very blessed with what I do.

So, does someone wish to speak to the lady?

Sara: Good evening?

(Pause)

No one there yet? Well I shall say goodbye.

Sara: Thank you for coming Alison.

George: Well thank you Alison for coming through and jollying us up a little.

There were fond farewells. There followed a loud clear voice via Sarah:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_29+one+thru+Sarah.mp3

I am sorry that you were not aware of my presence earlier.

George: But we nevertheless welcome you. Thank you for coming through.

(General welcome)

My friend is always at hand when there are times like this—my friend and her cat (ah yes). We in our world join together on many occasions, to try to help those who are misguided, and on this occasion I have come because of the impending fear that there is in this country after the shootings recently. There are many who are so fearful of the problems that could arise that they are encouraging those people to come to them. It is essential that this fear is abated, because the more fear there is, the greater the risk of trouble.

Paul: Yes, it gets attracted to them—yes.

So our work at this time is to spread much love to all those in fear and to bring together all those who are not on the best terms with each other, but who need to draw together at this particular time in your living. We are with you and we know that the gentleman will forward this message out to many.

George: Yes indeed.

—And this is my purpose this time—to try to avert any misguided beings from being able to destroy their own lives.

George: Yes—I think you refer to suicide bombers and the recent killings in Tunisia.

Paul: The terrorists...

Yes, that is correct. So we will continue to work with those Earthly beings who are in fear and we wish to thank you for your small part in making this planet into the way of thinking that benefits all.

George: Well, this is a very wonderful message that you bring, and exactly what is needed at this time. And we do consider ourselves so fortunate in having your influence in this matter—this particular problem of our times.

And we in turn thank you for your understanding.

Paul: We'll do our best to get it out on the Internet—to get people thinking in the right way.

George: Are you concerned with the religious groups who put out incorrect teachings to these potential suicide bombers?

We cannot judge these people, but my message that 'fear attracts negative'—I think you can understand that what these people are doing is not benefitting themselves or the planet. So my message is simple: Please give your love to them, and if you can pass on my message about 'fear' and trying to overcome that, will help more than anything.

George: Yes indeed—we are familiar with the relationship between love and fear and how they can oppose each other, and how fear can attract.

Paul: Yes, so in dispelling the fear we don't attract it to us, but we also help perhaps, those that could start hurting other people by sending out more love and not succumbing to fear. We literally can help the other people as well.

Yes, that is all you need to do—yes. But remember not to judge, but only to give out love. Try not to be fearful (yes).

Sara: I think it's very difficult for human beings when they watch tragic events on the news, because from what I see hysteria and panic arises in most people when they see these things, and I think that's what causes them to judge; so we just have to try to in very simple terms, explain the mental process and what we attract—so that people can understand.

It is not easy to pass on this type of message, but unless you do it, you will not achieve anything. So I will leave you with that message and we will continue to do our best to help all we can in making your planet the peaceful loving place that it should be.

(General thanks)

George: Thank you so much for your loud and clear message. We will certainly pass that on.

Paul: Could we ask for a name?

I do not have a name—I am sorry.

Paul: That's alright, I just wondered—the message is the important thing—names are not important.

Yes—thank you.

Following a pause, Sara then took us on a journey:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_29+sara+journey.mp3

For this journey I only want you to look at your own fears if you can. Try to, as you go through your days, try to observe your own thoughts when you can—because when you become more aware of your own fear about anything, it can come into your thinking at any time, you will see how it restricts and blocks your thinking—your opportunities—your decision to act or not act sometimes. So try to observe whenever you have fear within yourself, because when you are aware of your own fear and your own vulnerability at times, you will instantly understand and recognise it in other people. And you can more easily be strong for them or give them your strength and positivity. And behind every act of hatred or vengeance, there is always a fear. So, once we start to see this, it becomes possible not to judge—not to instantly see everything as black or white, good or bad, right or wrong; but we can understand better the thinking that has led to the darker action. And it's quite liberating for yourself when you start to observe the ways in which we restrict and limit our own selves—when we see the effect of fear on our thinking. Everyday fears usually turn into worries and anxieties. But if we catch ourselves doing that, we can stop it—we can cancel the thought and begin again with a more open mind, and this should help. So just for now, reflect a little on common fears that you may experience. It may be to do with your own self, your own wellbeing, your own health, your future. It could be your children or people that you know. Reflect on your own fears for a few moments now, and see if you can have any inspiration about that. Okay, thank you.

(General thanks)

Finally, one spoke via Eileen:

Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_29+sister.mp3

Hello.

George: Good evening—welcome to you.

Good evening. I have just been listening—so much talk of fears and distress and people hurting others and I just felt so sad, I had to come and just say that even although I belong to a different world than yours, it still distresses me to know of what is happening, and really all I wished to say was that your whole planet are in my prayers, and I know that some of you say: but why do you still pray when you live in a beautiful world? But that does not mean we cannot show concern for those on other planets.

Sarah: That's very kind of you.

Sara: Thank you for that. It's comforting to know that you're thinking about our planet.

Paul: It is sad to still see humans attacking other humans.

Sarah: It's the minority really who are causing the trouble. The majority of people are good people—it's just these few.

Yes, I know.

George: We certainly have our problems on this planet at the moment. Are you from spirit realm of this planet or are you from another planet?

I am from Earth spirit planet—if you wish to call it a planet—but of course it is not a planet. Spirit is everywhere—intermingled with all of the planets.

Sarah: So when you were on this Earth planet, were you a nun?

I was—I belonged to a closed order—I remember that. I remember sometimes, chastising myself for the thoughts that I had, because I have always been sympathetic to all people. I do not know if that made me a good or a bad nun—I'm not sure.

George: But if you had sympathy, then you had love.

Yes, and that is what I carry with me now. I just wanted you to know—

Sara: But I think that's a good quality—that you can feel for any person.

Yes, thank you.

Sarah: But you give out a nice feeling so I'm sure you did well here. It's what you needed to learn whilst you were here.

Yes, I am still not certain that to close yourself away, such as we did—it is the wisest of things. Because you have to belong to the human family, to understand their emotions and it is not always easy.

Sarah: But at the time that was right for you I'm sure.

It was right, yes.

Sarah: So if you were to come back to this planet again, you wouldn't do that again, because you've learnt, but at the time it was right.

Sara: You probably needed to have a quiet life at the time—more peaceful maybe.

You're very kind—you're probably right, I don't know.

Paul mentioned that some of us had shared a past life as monks in a monastic order

But we were not allowed to mix with males.

George: I guess your closed order was closed physically, but it was not closed spiritually—

No. Spiritually—it was hard, to begin with.

Sara: I'm sure you had beautiful meditation times—reflections.

George: Meditation—

George: Do you recall which country you were in, in that closed order?

Sarah: Ireland—ah right!

George: And was your closed order influenced by a religion or did you tend to go your own way?

George: I'm sorry, um—

George: Yes—were you influenced by a religion such as Roman Catholic?

Sarah: Yes, but it could be in a previous life you had a taste of religion, and this time when you were a nun you had something that was drawing you closer to God...

Sara: And the reasons for your Earthly life become clear too I guess, yes. So you understand why you had to do everything that you did?

Sara: Yes, I'm sure, because I believe that a lot of the strange things that happen out of the blue—I'm sure they are connected to other lives and perhaps sometimes we're reaping good rewards and sometimes we are having to amend for something.

Our dear visitor was then saying that she really does have to depart:

And we all said our fond farewells. We declared it to have been our pleasure, and finally we were reminded to remember those on Earth in our prayers.

~6th July 2015~ SALUMET

(The evening began with a rescue counselled by Lilian. Salumet spoke later on.)

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_07rescue\$2BCho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

(No response)

Lilian: Have you been listening to our conversations?

(Still no response)

Lilian: Is there something you would like to talk to us about?

(Still no response)

Lilian: Would you like to just sit there quietly? You could nod your head if that would help. I'm going to put my hand on your shoulder. Hopefully that will help if you want to say something or ask a question. Does that help at all?—any difference? Have you any idea where you are? Just nod your head if you know where you are—because you're quite safe.

I'm waiting—I'm waiting.

Lilian: Yes, you're waiting. Are you being helped by the gatekeeper? (Nod) Good. We're pleased to have you anyway.

I'm confused—confused.

Lilian: You're confused. What are you confused about? Where you are? You don't recognise my voice?

Yes.

Lilian: But you feel safe?

Yes.

Lilian: That's good—that's the main thing. Do you know what's happened to you? Something's caused you to die. Do you know that?

It's dark.

Lilian: It's dark where you are, yes. Did you feel unwell? Where do you think you are? If it's dark, are you in a room? Are you outside in the woods maybe?

—In a room.

Lilian: In a room.

—My room (yes)—bedroom—cold.

Lilian: Did you feel unwell? (Yes)—In pain?

No pain.

Lilian: No pain—that's handy. But did you know that something has caused you to die?

No—I'm not dead.

Lilian: Sorry to be rather blunt but that's why you're confused, and I'm here to help you. There's lots of friends here that will help you. If you look forward you should see a light. That light will get bigger and brighter.

I can't see one—I can't see one.

Lilian: It doesn't matter—you will. You'll begin to feel nice and warm and cosy. I'm just trying to help you go to the next life—your spirit life. You've left the physical body but you still live on in what we call the spirit world—heaven if you like. Can you see a light?

(Occasional coughs)

—Very small.

Lilian: That will get bigger and bigger, then slowly someone will be waiting for you, maybe you know them? (Eileen was coughing a little)

Why am I coughing?

Lilian: I think it's just that your throat's dry.

It doesn't feel like me. 'I' don't feel like me.

Lilian: You're using someone to talk to me—you're using someone's body, because you are now pure spirit. That's what you can do—I know it sounds complicated if you haven't thought about it, but it's the best way I can put it. But the main thing is, let's get you into heaven, I'll say. You see that light?

Yes—it's bigger.

Lilian: Good, and then slowly you'll see someone waiting and that will make you feel happy—very happy.

Yes—yes I can see someone. I CAN see someone.

Lilian: Yeah, you'll recognise them in a moment.

My word! It's Tommy!

Lilian: Tommy is your—

Husband!

Lilian: There you are—I bet he's pleased to see you!

Well, well!

Lilian: Something you hadn't thought about maybe—that you'd see him again?

He's been gone twenty five years! Oh!

Lilian: So life goes on—just rather differently.

He's holding out his hand.

Lilian: Good and you're happy to go? He can explain a lot better than me.

It's like something I never imagined.

Lilian: But you're very pleased, I'll bet?

Yeah, I am very pleased—very, very pleased.

Lilian: So you go with Tommy and be happy.

I will (good)—I will—I will.

This rescue had been clearly slow at the outset but Lilian persevered and the lady was reunited with her husband. Another then followed via Eileen:

Hello—it's Cho—it's Cho.

Lilian: Hello Cho—it's nice to have you with us.

Paul: Our gatekeeper.

Just say: thank you—thank you for lady.

Paul: Pleased to help.

Lilian: She's okay now and on her way.

Yes—easy one.

Lilian: Well, we don't want any hard ones please.

(Chuckles)

Yes—how you say?—I get big head?—big head?

(More chuckles)

—Not me.

Lilian: I wondered if you were the gatekeeper behind it.

Yes—I try hard—very hard.

Lilian: Yes, so from your angle you somehow point them to what they must do (yes). It's not easy for us to understand.

—No—bring them good lady like you.

Lilian: Thank you! There is a satisfaction that goes with it though, I must say.

Ah, ego 'pride'.

Lilian: Is that what it is?

Yes—don't want that (no). No.

Lilian: Just makes you feel good that you've finished the job.

Yes. Well, I'm gone.

Paul: Ah! Nice to chat again with you.

Salumet then spoke:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_06_01sal1.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet—welcome—unexpected, but welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I, as always, am pleased to join with you all this time. We felt it necessary to bring the dear lady to you in order for her to move forward and also to allow your gatekeeper to help. I was of course aware of what was happening within this group. I wish to say to you all my dear friends, that there is a peacefulness and a joy within this room this time. I would like you all to absorb that peace and quietness and to allow it into your heart areas, that it may in the days, weeks and the months to come, uphold and sustain you, because the more you recognise it from within, the more help you can receive. All too often, my dear friends, you feel that happiness, peacefulness and joy coming from out and not within. This can be of course a mixture of both, but true love and peacefulness comes from the spirit, and I wish you all to develop that inner knowing for whenever it is needed. And I know that you all try so hard in your meditations and in your thoughtfulness for others; but I do not wish you to become too complacent and allow it to slip from your grasp. Do you understand my words?

(General agreement)

Paul: We need to be mindful and continue with the meditations—

Yes it is not a practice—it should be a way of life for you, by now. It should come to you naturally. That spirit, which many say is within, is not within—it is your very being. It is YOU and it is who you are. So please my dear friends, recognise this and you will be helped throughout your lives. Do we have any questions this time?

Lilian: I was thinking: if we can reach that point, would it in turn help other people that we may meet each day?

Yes indeed, because of course you then become an emissary of spirit and the light which is your spirit, shines forth to others that they will pick up naturally, because they recognise what is theirs to own. You understand? (Yes) Yes.

We wish again to extend a welcome to the dear lady who has joined us previously, and we give you peace and love.

Jo: Thank you, and the same to you.

Thank you—any more questions this time?

George: Yes, I have a question Salumet, about spirit realms. Initially I was thinking in terms of each planet in the universe being associated with a spirit realm, but conflicting with that thought, spirit is really all one (yes). There are no distinct boundaries, and yet in some ways, people entering spirit realm from Earth will stay close to Earth. So could you say something about that?—and the absence or presence of boundaries within the spirit zone?

Yes, you must completely forget any boundaries. When you speak of Earth and spirit you are speaking of two separate, shall we call them, ‘places’. But of course they are not—you my dear friend are physical, but you are spiritual. All is intermingled—every planet, every universe is as ONE. You do not suddenly depart to another place. This is what most people cannot understand. There are many of your universes, as you well know (yes), and we have discussed on occasions. But when you speak of passing to spirit, if you were to pass to spirit it would happen here and now—you do not travel to another place. Do you understand?

George: Yes I do, and I felt that the notion of oneness—

You cannot have separateness. How can you? All is spirit. The Great Creator created spirit, but although you live on a physical planet, when you speak of ‘spiritual places’, it is the intermingling of the physical and the spiritual together.

George: Yes, and although we sometimes talk of ‘your world’ and ‘our world’ (yes), it’s really all intermingled—

Yes, it becomes confused, but of course we need to use human words, which is confusing. So for the sake of understanding we use your Earthly words.

George: Yes indeed—that clarifies. Thank you very much.

Yes—yes. Perhaps if you thought of when you go into sleep state, you are in spirit basically and yet you are still in the physical bed—there is an analogy there.

Are there more questions this time?

George: Yes, there’s one that you may well be able to confirm for us Salumet. I was reading in a chemical journal this week about some investigational work regarding cloud formation—the high clouds in our weather system. And scientists have been flying into the clouds and collecting samples for analysis, and are declaring that clouds are formed largely as the result of what they call ‘condensation nuclei’. And those would be of two types: mineral dust, which can arise from agriculture, and especially the way we do agriculture today. And the other type of condensation nucleus is metal particles, which they declare would come from industry. But I feel that cloud formation is much enhanced these days as the result of our ‘chemtrails’, which we have talked about—and these put metal particles into the atmosphere, and I suspect they’re playing quite a big role in the condensation that forms clouds. Are you able to comment on that?

Yes—of course as time continues, the atmospheres of your planet alter, as you rightly say, by how mankind is treating the Earth—of course, it has to have results. But what I would wish to say to you, my dear friend is this: that for all time your Earthly planet has been a mixture of many things, and like the genes of your body, it holds onto many particles. I am not speaking scientifically at this point, but what I am doing is saying to you that you cannot use the time and space that you exist in to say these things have been caused. All of these happenings have already existed. Does that make sense to you?

George: All of these happenings have already happened in effect.

Yes—let me find a simplistic way of saying this to you: if you have a—and I know all of you here enjoy your cup of tea—

(Acknowledged with chuckles)

At the bottom of every cup of tea there are particles that you would call ‘tea leaves’ (yes)—yes—not today because I know you use paper—

(Chuckles)

But if you were, after one week, to stir your tea, all of these particles would rise and show themselves—a little like the state of your world. Although you think that a lot is caused by how you live today, a lot of the time it is stuff already within the atmosphere anyway (yes). Do you understand? (Yes) Of course it can be exaggerated at times, but nevertheless it is wiser for you to retain that your Earth has never been so different at any of its human time (yes). It can be made a little worse, but that is caused by the stirring of the humans within. You understand?

George: Yes, it is something that has built up—

No it has not built up—it has always existed, and only comes to the fore when it has been aggravated by some such condition—perhaps one of the conditions that you have mentioned.

George: Yes, changes in agriculture.

Yes—it is a complicated subject that you have chosen there—and not easy within your world to find the correct words for them.

George: But perhaps it is good that scientists are studying this at this time—

That is the purpose of your scientists is it not?—that they are always curious—that they will always seek something new. After all, if you go back to the beginning of my teachings, did I not say that all has been?

They are important words to remember.

George: Yes, I was thinking that the cloud cover seemed to be increasing, but perhaps we should see it more as a natural fluctuation—

Natural—yes—yes; I think you would be wiser to do so and to think more along those lines. But nevertheless, your scientists are here to find out as much as they can—we hope in order to help others, but not always unfortunately.

George: Yes, what comes from our scientific investigations is rather a mixed bag of items.

Yes, but nevertheless of interest to humankind, and I have to say, they have at times brought good to man. They have looked at many things and provided much; so we will try not to judge them too harshly.

George: Yes, we will try not to judge and try not to be fearful.

Yes, always do not be fearful.

George: And that was a very good message that we received last time. Thank you.

Yes—yes. Now my dear friends, I will take my leave this time and allow others to come. So, as I leave you, I cloak you once more in my love and light (thank you). Until next time, I leave you.

(General thanks).

George: We are so fortunate. Thank you so much Salumet.

(There followed two clairvoyant messages via Eileen, both for Graham. These concerned the location of a mislaid book and Graham's painting commissions—and that concluded our evening.)

~3rd August 2015~

Eileen returned from holiday, but it was a small gathering this time:

Lilian: Good evening—and welcome.

Good evening.

George: Welcome to you.

There's more than one!

Lilian: Yes, there're six of us this evening. Quite often there's a few more than that.

I'm here to relate to you that one is coming to you next time.

Lilian: Yes, thank you.

I'm being told you know who that may be* (yes).

George: Yes, that would be Salumet, our guide and teacher.

Yes, well he wanted you to know he'll be with you next time.

George: Thank you, that's nice to know.

Lilian: Are you someone that brings these sort of messages?

Yes—I like to prepare people in advance—a little like a gatekeeper but not quite.

Lilian: No, I see.

But sometimes I feel people do not always believe what they feel, so therefore it is necessary to bring the words.

Lilian: It's very handy to have someone tell us.

Yes. There's a very special feel here (good)—so quiet, so peaceful.

Lilian: We're not always quite so quiet (you're not?). No—we have a laugh sometimes.

You have a laugh. I like that. I like to know that people are happy. I like to know that people love life, because you know, so many people don't.

Lilian: Yes, for some it's quite a struggle isn't it?

Yes, very much so—very much so. I would wish that everyone could be happy, but in your world, that is not possible (no).

George: No, there's rather too much stress; and I think we all here have a nice appreciation of nature—appreciation of the natural world, and I feel that counts for quite a lot.

Yes, I'm sure it does and that is why it feels peaceful—because I can feel that from you. You are at heart, genuine kind people. Kindness is lacking in the world—it is and it saddens me, and many others, to find such injustice sometimes. But nevertheless you mustn't allow it to pull you down. You must allow your soul to soar in all events.

Paul: Yes—yes, I think we've been told to try to focus always on the good things—put our energy into the good things.

Someone has already told you?

Paul: Yes, the teacher (ah) who will be coming next week I think has mentioned. There's a word he mentioned—not to give credence to the bad things.

I understand—I too have had that teaching. Yes, that may seem rather unusual to you, but it is not—it is not, because—just because you pass to spirit doesn't mean we become all wise. It takes a long time to reach the situation of BEING peace.

George: Yes, you progress in spirit just as we endeavour to progress here on the planet.

Yes, I know this is not news to you, but as I am here I may as well use my words.

George: We're delighted to hear them. We had a popular song a few years back. It went: 'You gotta accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative, and don't mess with Mr In-between...' (Yes). I rather liked that!

I like the sound of that too.

George: I think it agrees with what you've just been saying.

Do you wish to sing it?

(Laughter)

George: I don't think you'd enjoy my voice singing it.

Are you saying you are not an Angelic being?

(More laughs)

I fully understand, but the words indeed quite true—it's wonderful.

George: Well it's partly that I'm getting on in years. I'm 84, and the voice isn't quite as it once was.

Well I am not aware of the Earth year, but your light shines brightly (thank you), yes, as does all of yours—yes, beautiful.

Lilian: When you were here on the planet (yes), were you aware that contact could be made?

No, I knew nothing—I knew absolutely nothing; only that I believed in something (yes), and of course, I have done much learning 'here', as you call it—yes. But no, I was not aware of any of those things:

George: But you had an inner feeling, of which you were conscious.

I knew there was something—that's all I can say; I really did not know what to expect, so therefore, when the time came I found it very beautiful—yes. But I know, and I'm being told that you spread the word to others about passing.

Lilian: We try.

Yes, and that is very good because so many people still are not fully aware of what happens when it comes to their time of passing.

George: Yes, we have a website—I don't know if you're familiar with computers and the Internet that we have these days?

I am aware that you have these machines—yes.

George: Yes, so we have a website that Paul here has built (yes) and people can visit that, and we send out regular reports on these meetings and those reports go around the world.

Yes, you are doing a very good job, I know, and that also explains the aura of these meetings. And I know from others, they too have felt the love presence within this room at times.

George: Oh good, well we do our best to get the word out to others.

Yes—yes, believe me when I say: if only a few take in the information, you have done the job very well—we cannot ask more of you.

Lilian: Some people are just not ready to accept it, are they?

No of course not. You are all individuals after all—you were all given free-will—you were all born to different people. Therefore you are unique—remember that also. Your uniqueness has much to say (yes).

George: We are concerned about the warring zones about the world. We're not depressed by it—this would not be right, but—

And it would not be quite right I feel if you were not concerned. Concern is a form of love (yes). Yes—but yes, you are right, you must not focus on it in a negative way at all. That applies to any situation in your life. It may not be wars—people against people—it may be an inner war—one that you have to fight within yourself throughout your lives—that also is a war. So, you know, there is much for you all to learn.

George: Yes, I'm a little—I'm disappointed also in the number of people involved in manufacturing arms—guns, and in exporting them to these war zones (yes). I feel that is very wrong.

Yes, you all each have individual feelings and thoughts about what is right and what is wrong. I am not here to tell you what you should feel or think or consider, but I am about to say to you: if all of these thoughts are given in love to help your fellow man, then please continue, but don't allow it to become the be all and the end all of your lives, because let me tell you, each and every one of you: the lives that you have on this planet are truly beautiful. I do not speak of disappointments or heartaches or anything else which you would find upsetting, but I want you to look at your world as the Creator gave it to you—as a beautiful specimen of existence, and if you can keep those thoughts in your minds you will do well. Now, we would like to try something here tonight, because we know the numbers are less than normal.

George: Yes that's true.

Yes, but it doesn't matter does it?—because spirit will always be with you—as one individual or as many. We are always waiting for the invitation to come to you, to speak with you—to converse on subjects perhaps you like to discuss.

George: Mm, well this is always very nice (yes).

Lilian: You are always welcome to come again.

Thank you. I will hold onto that invitation. But we are going to try with each of you, to give a little clairvoyance. So do not be afraid to open up to us, after all, we are not here to harm you or criticise you in any way. So allow your hearts and your minds to open and see what comes and I will bid you all: a good night.

(Thanks + farewells)

There then followed clairvoyant messages via Eileen and Jan. Jan felt the presence of Ann (George's wife now in spirit. She mentioned a celebration and also a magazine article that George would find useful. (He had been sorted through piles of them that day.) Jan also got an impression of Ann's spirit garden:

Ann was fond of water—streams. Lots of big rocks—boulders, in Ann's garden—hidey-holes—secret gardens where the fairies can play...

George's Notes:

1: 'You Gotta Accentuate the Positive...': Well, would you believe?—that was a song by Johnny Mercer and the Pied Pipers, from 1945! How time flies!

~10th August 2015~ SALUMET

Included in our healing prayers this time, we had requested healing for a dear friend in Japan who has on occasions sat with us; also healing for her mother who has dementia. We in fact had received a letter from her that arrived on the Hiroshima anniversary day:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/10_08_2015+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As I come to you this time I clothe you with protection and with much love (thanks). I wish at this time to take a minute to speak about one who has asked for healing, and to comment about the word you use—that word being ‘guilt’. I would like you, if you would, to communicate with this one.

George: We shall be very pleased to do that.

Yes—because when you human beings speak about ‘guilt’, you are in fact punishing yourselves. You are allowing spirit to become negative and we do not wish that to happen to any one of you. The lady in question should not feel guilt. She needs not to feel sorry for what the deed has done, but she needs to give of herself more love, more forgiveness—that is the help that she needs. She needs to love herself more. Can you please convey those words if you can.

Paul: Yes, we can send her those very words in the transcript—yes.

George: We’ll send her the transcript (yes). We shall be delighted to pass your words on to her, and I know that she will be most grateful to receive them—thank you Salumet.

She feels so trapped at times. Her spirit needs to soar a little more and I will endeavour to help as much as I can.

George: I know her mother has dementia which is becoming worse; that must be part of it.

Yes—yes she, I will use the word again, because it is the word known to you—‘guilt’. She feels guilt sometimes at the things that she thinks, but she has no need. She must allow herself to become free.

Paul: Guilt seems to not have any usefulness, in a way, as a feeling.

It is punishing the self—guilt is punishing the self. So that is my words for her (thanks).

Paul: I’m sure it will apply to others who feel guilty, too.

Yes—guilt takes many forms. It is very often used in punishing one’s self, when in fact all you need to do is allow the love to come from deep within; that love that is as yet not quite understood in your world. There are many levels of what you call ‘love’. It is a widely used word, and sometimes, to the people who use it, it has little meaning. I speak of that deep innate love which is there, whether you are aware of it or not. That deep love is the very essence of your whole being. Do you understand?

George: Yes, and as to feelings of guilt, this last week there have been the anniversaries of World War II—use of atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and I know there are many in the Western world and throughout the world who have some kind of a feeling of guilt—or perhaps not exactly guilt, because they did not make the decisions. But I’m sure many in the world feel for those occasions and those people who suffered.

Of course—any action which destroys or hurts other people cannot be looked upon with great love, but at the same time, as we have just said, guilt is a negative word, and yes, there are many who are punishing themselves because of these particular events—not only the one that you mention, but many that have occurred in your world. What they should try to do is to make amends in some way—bring love to another who is in need—help others who are in need, and in some way, it helps to atone—I do not like the word but I use it—atone for any ah—

George: It’s a word we understand.

Yes—as always, it is difficult to find the correct word with the correct meaning. So I have to speak to you in your own dialects, in order for your understanding. But yes, I agree, there is still much guilt, as you call it—yes. Mankind—humankind, is a great supporter of guilt. Do you have any questions about this?

Paul: Just going back, you said before George mentioned Hiroshima and Nagasaki, about this deeper level of love (yes) that we become aware of—so because it's a feeling that love energy—

The love I speak of is not a human emotion. It belongs to the spirit—therefore it is innate within the spirit, yes.

Paul: That deeper level of love—I'm just trying to put it all together—

You will have difficulty, because as I have said, it is not an emotion that you are aware of—yes, it is a true love that belongs to spirit, that belongs to the soul.

George: Perhaps I could mention one who had quite an amazing perception in the first half of the last century—Viktor Schauberger. And he made the observation that man's devised processes have the character that they begin within and expand outwards, with a huge output of wastage of energy and heat, whereas—Hiroshima being an extreme example of this; whereas nature has the reverse processes. The weather vortex begins without and produces all the energy within, likewise the whirlpool in water begins without and the process goes within. So he made the observation that nature's processes are quite different from the man-made processes and opposite. And we with our methods are spoiling the planet, and perhaps I could quote from him and his words were: In view of the fact that we're heading for extreme planetary spoilage—he said about sixty years ago—when the time is right and the need is great, perhaps some higher intelligence with a concern for human evolution will intervene and help us. Well, I think that has happened, and a big 'thank you' to you Salumet, and your colleagues for helping us!

Yes, we in spirit, endeavour to try to help in any way that we can. I partly agree with the words you have spoken, but not fully. All must come from within to begin with. What exists on your planet is starting from without to go within, but when you speak of a creative force, all must start from within. You are all the ideals of the creative force, are you not? You are given this planet to live upon, and yes mankind has at times neglected his love and his duty of tending to this beautiful planet. But that is happening in the event of what you call 'progress' and sometimes progress is not as it should (be), but what is progressing is the thinking of mankind, and that thinking begins from within, because that is the spirit speaking. Do you understand?

George: Yes—so I feel that Viktor Schauberger made a great observation, but it's not absolutely wholly true.

Not quite correct, but I know where he was coming from in his thinking. And the other point I would like to make is that he tends to think of the creative force as some great human who has the right to interfere. That is not quite correct. As you know, the creative force is in all things, and mankind was placed upon the planet with his free will in order that he might return home without interference from that creative force. That part of existence does not include those like me, who come from spirit to help. We are not the creative force. Do you understand? (Yes) Are you sure?

George: I was just thinking: there is the matter of influencing—

Yes, but the influence comes from us in spirit. Many who have already lived upon your Earth—many of us who do not or have not. So you see, in a sense, we still retain some of the human elements.

George: Yes—I was thinking back to when you first came in 1994 (yes) and we had been heading towards nuclear oblivion (yes) and that changed course.

Again, the time was right because there was so much fear. There is fear today amongst many, but I would wish to dispel that fear, because fear, like all energy, transmutes and grows and that is not what we would desire to happen. I hope that helps just a little.

George: Yes indeed—that's wonderful; thank you Salumet.

Do we have more questions this time?

Paul: Did you say just now that the creative force is in everything; so it's within you of course—

You are part of the creative force—yes.

Paul: We're all part of it—

—A tiny, tiny speck, but still part of the great creative force.

Paul: So would the Angelic beings have a larger speck, or is that irrelevant?—the size of the speck—I suppose it's irrelevant—

Compared—yes, to human beings on this planet—yes, the Angelic beings have, for your understanding, a larger amount of creative force—to simplify it for you, yes; because they have never trodden your pathway, they are exactly what we call them—Angelic beings.

Paul: And you've described yourself as more like the Angelic beings in that you also haven't had physical incarnations (yes). But you're also a conglomerate of beings.

A conglomerate of beings—that is how I came—the name was given to you, if you remember, for the purpose of recognition.

Paul: Yes, but it's better to think of you as many—so it's almost—

It is not one tongue, as you would say. It is indeed a conglomerate, which means the thinking of many.

Paul: So when we say: good evening, we are saying good evening to a gathering of beings—

—Of thought—a gathering of thought, yes. Yes, sometimes I feel, using the word 'being', is rather confusing, because it humanises, and that is not what we are.

Paul: —Because though you're a conglomerate—in a way, you behave like one—as one. Could you say as one being?

I speak as one being—yes. I am the part that uses the voice to speak to you, but the thoughts are the conglomerate beings.

Paul: And are the other Angels also conglomerates?

No—no. They all have their own work to do upon this Earth, as on many planets, but we are more—it is difficult to describe, because we come from that little way further.

George: Would it be right to say that the shared thoughts are all Akasha or Akasha-linked?

Yes.

George: Yes, thank you.

Does that clarify it for you?

Paul: Yes, it helps build up a picture. I know some readers like to try to grasp exactly what you are. You're not exactly—

They will never be able to fully understand. That is why it is better if there is a name to recognise, only in as much as it can become confusing.

Paul: Yes, I think as far as our understanding goes, we probably have to accept that we can't fully understand at this stage (no), but it still makes me so happy to—

Yes, I feel your puzzlement, but the more you think upon it, the clearer it can become. When first I came to you I also said: if you feel there is something you cannot accept, then you do not accept it; and that still stands now.

Lilian: Well we can accept, except that we cannot understand.

Yes, and you will always find those people who will refuse to try to understand if it does not make sense to them, and that is up to each individual. That is why you have your free will. But each time our words are accepted—each time, the mind grows a little more—and more questions come to you. You must surely have found over these many years that each time a question has been answered, that another comes into your mind.

(Agreed)

It is a continuous progress. Now, for this time, I feel you have enough to think about, and that is always my desire—that you have something new to consider or to disregard—the choice is absolutely yours and, my dear friends, I am always happy with whatever outcome you choose.

George: Salumet, I think I have a short one. Have you time for that? (Yes) Regarding 'spirit'—non-material, and it has this oneness which we're I think beginning to understand (yes). Regarding the aether—that also is non-material (yes). Does that have a similar oneness?

Of course, there can be no separateness. All belong together. All is intermingled, so you cannot separate. I know where you are going with that, but I have to say: you have to look at ALL as one.

George: Yes, that includes the material as well.

Yes, it is still part of the whole.

Lilian: So when my mother saw what you explained was an aspect of me, through the window, did she need to see that aspect at that time? Why did that aspect appear?

You are speaking of seeing your mother—

Lilian: Yes, she saw me outside a window looking in, and physically, that's not where I was. And when I said to you—you said it was an aspect of me.

It is the spirit of you—each of you has—you are spirit and you have a physical body, which most of the time is together, but the spirit can separate from the body—not fully, until you leave to come home to us—you are attached as you know. But the spirit can travel and show of itself.

Lilian: So is there a reason behind the showing? I've seen my son as well.

It just might be that the subconscious mind is thinking of those people at that particular time. You may not even be aware of the thought.

Lilian: No, I wasn't.

Yes, but all of you travel, whether you believe that or not—again I leave it to you. But yes, you leave your bodies at night when you rest, in order for the spirit to be rejuvenated; but you are still attached to the physical body. Only when you are free of the physical body will you then be seeing spirit as it truly is. So I would suggest the reason is that the thought was there without you having the awareness.

Lilian: Yes, I thought about that and I thought: is there a reason? But yes, I see what you mean (yes). Thank you.

Now, I am happy to leave you, my dear friends, and look forward next time to coming together, as always in love and upliftment. And that is what I shall leave you with this time—upliftment.

(Thanks and farewells)

Following a pause, another was then with Eileen:

Audio Link: <http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/11th+Aug+2015one+wanting+to+be+an+angel.mp3>

Lilian: Hello.

Hello—hello.

Lilian: Nice to have you with us.

I didn't know whether to speak or not.

Lilian: Have you been before?

No I haven't. I heard you speak about Angels and I thought I've got to just come and tell you: I want to be 'an Angel on Earth'.

Paul: Ah, you want to be an Angel on Earth?

That's what I'm going to be. I want to come back—I want to be an Angel on the Earth.

Paul: What would you like to do as an Angel on Earth?

I'm not sure yet—that hasn't been arranged. I just want to be an Angel of the Earth. Doesn't it sound wonderful?

Paul: Helping people—

Yes, I'd like to be in the hospitals.

Paul: Well, there's much need of it, so that's a good thing to try to do.

I always thought only Angels were in spirit, but that's not true. You can be an Angel on Earth, if that's what you've planned to do.

George: An Angel on Earth with a human body?

Yes—yes, I want to come back and I want to be known as an Angel. I know it's not the same.

Paul: It's not the same as a real Angel, but it's a good aspiration.

—A good thing to do.

Paul: Like Mother Theresa—some people think of her like an Angel.

Yes, I know about her. Yes, she was an Angel on the Earth. Yes, lots of Angels—

Paul: Florence Nightingale (yes)—

George: Yes—so a human who has Angelic qualities and Angelic helping and giving—and loving.

Yes. I have been told that you have to have lived quite a number of lives, and you have to have reached a stage where you can use that word 'Angel'. So, although I want to do that, it may not always have been possible; but I'm excited because I know that's what I'm going to do. I'm not sure about the coming back bit—I don't know too much about that yet.

Paul: You don't know which country?

No, I don't know where I'll be at the moment.

Lilian: So obviously you've grown spiritually enough to be able to want to do something, really—
I suppose so—I suppose so.

George: Yes, I was just trying to think back in our history. There was Florence Nightingale who was devoted to healing in hospitals and there was Albert Schweitzer—

Yes, but you don't have to be famous. You can just be an everyday person—and you can still be very good. I feel I want to work with children; I want to help them all I can. But I'm excited—I don't know if you can tell?

(Affirmed)

I am really excited about going. And when I heard you speak about Angels I said: please let me go and speak with them!

George: The excitement does come through.

Yes—I must remember to keep my modesty though, because I am really excited I know.

Paul: But we've been told we mustn't feel any guilt about things, so if that's what's coming from within you, then that's your enthusiasm.

It's not guilt—I don't feel guilt.

Paul: No, right—so it's what makes you happy.

Yes. I don't want to find any ego—that's what I'm trying to say.

Paul: Right, yeah—there is always the chance of a naughty bit of ego (yes).

George: Have you any feeling of fulfilling a need that the people of Earth have in this?

If I'm going to be really honest with you, it's a need within ME—as well as helping others—it's a great need for ME—I don't know if that makes any sense.

George: Ah yes, I understand.

Paul: I think it does. I think that's often the way—it works both ways.

It helps you to grow.

Paul: In helping others you also help yourself.

Yes, that's what I'm hoping anyway.

Paul: In giving love to others, it seems to come back to yourself as well.

Yes, well anyway, who knows? I could even bump into one of you, who knows?

Paul: Yeah, if you get a move on and come down here fairly soon, you could perhaps.

Why, are you planning to come here?

Paul: Well no, not for at least another 50-years or so.

(Laughter)

Okay, I'll see what I can do! But of course it would depend which part of the world I'll be going to.

Serena: Most of the people we speak to are doing jobs after life with no thought of coming back; so are you between lives?

I am between lives—yes. I am at the moment considering when to return—I KNOW I'm going to return, I've already moved forward on that—so, yes.

Serena: Is that a different state to people who aren't coming back to an Earth life?

We all have the choice—we all have the choice and we all have guidance, but I've always wanted to come back, because I feel this need. It's—I don't know how to describe it to you. It's not a feeling I had on Earth—it's something that's happened since I've been here.

Lilian: A need to help?

—A great need to come back and be an Angel—an Angel of the people.

(Short pause)

Anyway, they're saying you're outstaying your welcome.

Lilian: Well thank you for coming back and telling us—that's given us something to think about.

Yes, I'm really, really becoming excited—I must go.

Lilian: So we'll say: good luck to you.

Paul: If you get clarification on exactly where and how and who, maybe you can pop back and tell us a bit more about your dream.

Perhaps—yes, I don't know, I'll think about that one—but it's been very nice, but I am going—I really am.

Paul: Good luck to you and lots of love goes with you.

George's Notes:

1: 'Deep Innate Love': This would appear to be an innermost feeling, and 'guilt' may arise from going against this. Clearly, guilt should normally result from the killing of another, but military training surely opposes this. Psychopaths / sociopaths fail to feel guilt for their antisocial acts—a part of dictionary definition. So can training produce a psycho- or sociopath? It would appear so, and yet, a proportion of military personnel are known to develop mental disorders as a result of what they do—so the attempted removal of personal responsibility through training fails, and guilt eventually catches up.

2: Fear and Nuclear Missiles: It seems that nuclear missile stockpiling has been driven by fear. But the object of that fear is clearly nuclear missile attack; so that cause and effect are opposed in a dangerous balance. [Perhaps we should note that the Spithead Review, with its dreadnought class battleships, was a show of British naval power which Germany endeavoured to match. And this was one factor leading up to World War I.] It is most imperative that we learn to control our fears in today's world!

3: Accentuate the Positive (ref last week): A recent study (2014) – 'Prioritizing Positivity...' by Sara B Algoe & Barbara L Fredrickson, University of North Carolina; indicates that positivity relates to improved organization and happiness.

~17th August 2015~ SALUMET

Salumet having been with us last week, we had not really anticipated a further teaching this evening. But Jean, Graham's mother, had travelled from Cornwall to stay with Sara and Graham, so they brought her along. Jean has sat with us on previous occasions. Proceedings were held up just a little at first on account of Eileen being troubled by a tickly cough. During our sessions, several use a rug over their knees for comfort, including Eileen. Eileen felt that her rug was causing the tickly cough, discarding it, she asked for another to be passed to her:

Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_08_17+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I would like to apologise for the irritation in the speaking box. At last, this one is listening to the quiet still voice. We have tried to impress upon her about the irritation caused by the covering over her knees (ah!) But now at last, she hears our voice.

(Chuckles)

Sometimes also, when we are making adjustments, the voice can be affected, but not usually to make the instrument cough.

Lilian: That's interesting.

Be aware that we endeavour to use this instrument as gently as possible, as well you all know. I felt that it was necessary this time just to welcome an old friend, and to say that no matter how long in time, those who are part of this group will always be part, whether they are in this room or not. It just shows that you are never far from our thoughts and we give a welcome to the one you call 'Jean'.

(Chuckles)

George: That's nice for you Jean.

Jean: Nice, yes.

We wish only to say one thing: as you know, I do not usually speak on personal matters, but there is something to be wary of in her home. There is a step which needs to be attended to. The step is in the garden. Are you aware?—It is not anything substantial, but just enough that needs small repair to keep this dear one safe. Can you please check on this for her?

Graham: We will check on that, yes—thank you Salumet.

Now my dear friends, as always, it gives great pleasure to all of us in spirit to join with you, and it is also good to see so many faces this time.

(Ten of us present)

As you know, I do not always come so often, but I will not miss an opportunity when a dear one returns to us.

(Thanks from several sitters)

George: That's very much appreciated Salumet; and in just a few weeks time, we have two people who will be travelling about 300-miles to come and sit in with us (yes), so it's nice to feel that you will also be around on that occasion.

Yes—I will keep them safe—yes. As I have told you on many occasions, there will be people who come and go, and that is the way of things. That is how we are expanding, although we have the spoken word on record and we have your pages of written verse, it cannot compare to being in this room and to feel the energy which is created by all of you. That is something that needs really to be experienced. I am sure you would agree with me.

(General agreement)

Now, if you have any questions this time I will be happy to answer them for you.

(Brief pause)

Are there questions please?

George: Ah yes—sometime back I asked a question about the creation and understanding the creation, and you very appropriately indicated that we could not possibly understand whilst still here on the planet—there still has to be a reason for not being able to understand. And shortly after that I had a dream whilst asleep, that referenced another dream that I'd had. And the idea of a dream within a dream left me with the feeling of the creation involving a dimension within a dimension. And if it is something like that, then I can easily see that we could not possibly have any understanding of the creation! Have you any comment on that Salumet?

Only in as much as it helped you to understand my words. Of course, all of life—all of spirit is intermingled. I know many in your world find this difficult to understand. But all is now. I feel we are beginning to move into difficult situations when we speak of creation because, let me tell you my dear friends that the understanding of creation will never be known—not only on this Earth plane, but in the many lives and situations you will find yourself in, in time gone and in time to come. It is a deep—a deep situation to try to explain. I could not even begin to explain it to you, because we as beings are not even fully aware of what creation means. So that gives you kind of some range of understanding that it is not a simple explanation, and as much as you would try in your world, it will never be. Your scientists are making inroads as far as the existence of planets and all of these discoveries. But it is but a point on a pin—I will put it that way.

George: I think today, we tend to distinguish between what might be called 'mainstream science' (yes) and the work of individuals. And I think currently, the work of mainstream relates to the material world, and—Because that is all mankind truly understands.

George: But there do seem to be individuals who are making headway with what is often called collectively 'the paranormal'.

Yes, you have to include what you call 'paranormal', which is indeed 'normal'—it is not paranormal—it is normal to many. But the understanding will never fully take place; after all, you are existing in only one universe at the moment!

(Chuckles)

And yet, all is intermingled—all planets, all universes, all of spirit.

George: Yes, some of us tend to think of the principle of other universes being other dimensions.

Yes, and as you say, there is one dimension within another and another and another; and so it continues.

George: Ah, yes, and the other thing is, I think you have told us our understanding becomes clearer when we pass to spirit—but that still doesn't clarify everything.

No—you will see a wider picture. You will have wider understanding; you will be much more knowledgeable about spirit. But remember, my dear friends, you are still only babes—babies.

(Chuckles)

—Babies in the understanding world, babies in the collective use—I am trying hard not to go beyond what you would understand. But yes, you will never completely understand, although as I have said, the picture will be much bigger. Is that helpful to you?

George: That is most helpful, thank you Salumet. Yes, that does open up our minds I think more clearly to the general situation.

Yes, that is all it can be—is a general situation. Yes, but I know also, that as human beings you have curious minds and it will never stop you seeking such information. But the more you learn, the more you understand—the more spiritual you will become, and that is a much bigger asset than trying to fully understand creation.

George: I think we all here recognise that many others in the universe have progressed in that direction further than human beings (yes), and thank you for arranging connections in order for us to become clearer on that point.

When you can become one with your own being, then your understanding is great. Think about those words this time—when you can become as one with your own being, then you have a small inkling of what is ahead of you.

George: That is a deep thought.

Yes. Now, it is a short visit this time. I hope my words have given you food for thought. I know my dear friend, you work so tirelessly to give the word of spirit, and for this we will be always grateful to you. Continue, but sometimes allow yourself just to be—to be still and to listen to that quiet voice, and all will continue to be well.

Sara: Could I have one more question Salumet?

Yes, of course.

Sara: When we consciously invite Angelic presence into our experience, would you say it's more common to have synchronicities and coincidences?

Yes, when you invite Angels into your lives, it is the way they communicate with you.

Sara: Ah!—because I have experienced a lot recently, and it helped me to make decisions (yes) because I was amazed by the synchronicities.

Yes, it is their way—there are many ways in which they can communicate, but the synchronicities, are I would say, one of the most often used ways.

Sara: Ah—interesting! Thank you so much.

So I would say: continue, and not only be aware, but to listen in your quiet moments; because if you have called them forward in one way or another, they will always reply to help you.

Sara: Yes, thank you for that.

George: And I shall endeavour to have more quiet time and seek in that quietness.

Yes, you all need to do this. I know some of you are good at doing it, but others may be a little lax. So as I leave you, my dear friends, I thank you for your presence here this evening. We also thank that Great Creator for all the love that is given to us. And so, as I leave you, I cloak all of you in my love and in light.

(Thanks and farewells)

A period of clairvoyance then followed—information concerning Sara and Graham's family. This was followed by a meditational guided journey via Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_08_17+Eileen+journey.mp3

Okay—I want you gathered together as a group; and it's a beautiful, beautiful summer's day, and I want you to feel the warmth of the sun on your body and your whole being. And on the start of this journey I would like you all to slip your shoes off and step onto the grass, which is soft and silky and it feels good on your feet. And as you get used to the feel, I want you then to move forward—slowly and happily and to look at one another, and appreciate the bond that all of you have. I want you to carry forward and look around—look at the sky, how blue it is, how green is the grass and see where you are. Are you in an open space? Are you in a woodland? Are you by the sea? Each one of you will find your own destination. And as you continue on this journey, you begin to feel very light—lighter than you’ve ever done before—and you continue forward. And as you look at the fields ahead you see many things and you can see many people. I want you to carry forward, and suddenly you can’t feel your feet in the grass. You feel so light, lighter than you’ve ever been before. And as we go forward there’s a small rustle in the trees, and the smell of wherever you are; whether it be the sea or the woodlands or the open space. Just stop, just smell what is around you—and feel yourselves being absorbed by Nature, and you’re feeling really, really good. You’re feeling relaxed, you’re feeling happy and you’re glad just to be alive. Now as you move forward, before you there are another crowd of people, and whichever pathway you’ve chosen, you will find the group of people that are known to you. So slowly, slowly go to meet them. And suddenly you’ll recognize within this group that there is someone you love or you recognize from other times and you can’t wait to meet them. So continue forward and stop a while and see who that person is. You will recognize them and they are coming towards you. Take the time to recognize and to feel the love that they bring towards you. And as you get closer you become as one. You talk to the person that you have met, and you discuss how you feel and how glad you are to meet them again. And I want you just to be still, to feel that love, to feel that light, before you return back to where we started. So take your time and see just what happens. Feel the peace, feel the lightness, feel the joy and the happiness; and know that you’re more uplifted than you’ve ever, ever been. And whenever you’re ready, you can return in whichever way you want to; and I shall meet you all back at the beginning.

(Pause)

Now, we’re back at the beginning, please remember to put on your shoes, to feel the ground, and yourselves to feel grounded and happy about where you have been. So gradually return and come back. Thank you.

Everyone back?—did you meet anyone you knew?

Some discussion then followed about the various friends and relatives who were met.

George’s Notes:

Paranormal: The Concise Oxford Dictionary gives a succinct definition—‘Events or phenomena supposedly beyond the scope of normal scientific understanding’. So it is a supposition (assumption) that the paranormal is beyond normal scientific understanding. And normal scientific understanding is considered by mainstream science to be a material construct and testable as such. The term paranormal must eventually be discarded when scientists in general seriously accept the non-material—the spiritual and aetheric parts of reality. And as Salumet declares: the paranormal is indeed normal!

~24th August 2015~ SALUMET

Whilst Salumet does not speak at every meeting, he nevertheless watches over and this was to become clearly evident on this occasion. As we settled, there was some discussion of the problem of ‘addiction’, and this attracted one to come and speak on this. There was some difficulty at first and it was a slow start:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_08_24+Miriam+addiction.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

(Pause)

Lilian: Can I help you?

(Pause)

Lilian: Do you wonder where you are?

(Pause)

Lilian: You are with a group of friends who would like to help if we can.

(Lilian extended a hand to Eileen's shoulder to see if energy adjustment might help. Jan received clairvoyance regarding a name, which she suggested might be Joseline.)

Lilian: Is that right?

George: You're very welcome. Do you wish to speak with us?

(Pause)

Lilian: No need to worry. We're here to help.

(Still no response but Jan's clairvoyance now kicked in)

Jan: Try Mary-Ann or Marian.

Lilian: Does that mean anything to you?—Mary-Ann or Marian?

Lilian: A bit confused at the moment—who are all these people chatting away to me.

(Pause)

My name is Miriam.

Lilian: Miriam—that's a nice name. Can you tell us why you're here to chat to us? We're here to help or listen.

Only because I listened to you talking about addiction.

Lilian: I guessed you were—so you're here to help us?

No—I'm here to help me.

Lilian: You want to talk about your addiction—what happened to you (yes). Well we're happy to listen, if it helps you to get it off your chest—well, we'll be pleased.

If only I could help others, it would be a blessing.

Lilian: By talking about what happened to you, I'm sure that would be a great help.

(Pause)

Lilian: You know you're in spirit? (Yes).

George: Are you concerned about any particular type of addiction? There seem to be a number of addictions on our planet at the moment, with alcohol, tobacco and drugs—

Yes—and violence. I think the one who spoke about all of you having addiction is perfectly correct.

Lilian: I guessed that.

But it is a weakness in the being who struggles to help themselves and do not have the back-up of knowledge in their lives.

(Pause)

I apologise for the slowness of my speech.

George: No worries, that is perfectly acceptable to us.

It has brought back to me how destructive it all is—not only for the person with the addiction, but for all who know them.

Jan: That's right—it extends out far and wide (yes). When you spoke of—I think you mentioned the word 'support'—you can give all the love and support you can give, but unless that person wants to get better and wants to accept the help—

Yes. They do not listen to that—

Jan: —Inner voice...

—inner voice. You are correct—they say they want to, but they are weak. All you can do is to send up thoughts for them, because although they may be full of good intention, it is so easy to fall backwards, as well I know.

Lilian: Yes, very easy I imagine.

I just wanted to say: I hope I can bring all of you some love and upliftment for yourselves or anyone that you are aware of who has such addictions.

Jan: As you can now see it from spirit side—and as a survivor—that's the wrong word, isn't it? You yourself went through an addiction while you were here (yes). What would be the best piece of advice you could give for those helping others with an addiction?—apart from love and patience?

—And to listen to the inner voice.

Jan: —Our inner voice or are you telling the person—

—The addicted.

Jan: —Telling the addicted person to listen to the inner voice.

—Because, no matter how much love is given, they are ignoring it.

Jan: Yeah, they don't accept love.

No, and unfortunately, when they come home, they will be faced with all that they have done and I can tell you only how I felt—and I was ashamed. And even now, coming back to the conditions of your Earth, I am being bombarded with memories. That is why I speak as I do, because my speech was one thing taken from me. Therefore I hope for all the love you have sent out this evening, that if only one or two of those people are touched, you have done much good.

Jan: Oh that's good to know.

George: Listening to the inner voice is a very personal thing (yes). Have you any recommendation as to how one might encourage people to listen to that inner voice?

Each and every one of you knows what your inner voice is. That is why so often with addicted people, they are full of hope that they will beat the addiction, but because they are weak, they cannot sustain it. But you cannot help someone who has given up on life, because basically that is what they are doing.

Jan: The substance, whatever the addiction is, and I mean a vast array of addictions (yes), when they're taking it, when they're in that state, that's when the inner voice is completely switched off from them (yes). It's only in the cool light of day, do they feel remorseful and are not going to do it again (yes), and then as soon as that substance is touched, it's cut off...

Yes, but no one MAKES them do these things. So if they refuse advice and help, then unfortunately there are consequences (yes).

Sara: Presumably we can pray for help (yes), for them to perhaps listen (yes)—we can pray for spiritual help to encourage them to listen to that inner voice (yes); perhaps Angelic help also, to bring to their attention—we can try maybe.

That is all you can do (yes). But what I find, or did find upsetting, was that those people who loved and tried to help ME, I treated them abominably—and they are the ones who are supposed to love. It is a selfish act, I'm sorry to say.

George: On the other hand, those who are addicted to violence are trained into being that way. I refer to the military system. So many are trained into (yes) violent ways in such a way that they do not have to accept personal responsibility—

But they DO—no matter whether they are military they have the right to say 'no' or to abandon their way of thinking. Of course, when they pass to spirit, the reasoning behind the actions are always considered, but nevertheless, every individual on your Earth plane is responsible for their own ways of thinking and their own actions.

George: Yes—they are trained into acting under the orders of another, which has the effect of removing personal responsibility—but I take your point that in the final analysis they must be responsible.

They have to be, there is no getting away from it—no matter what the addiction, they have to have their own personal responsibility.

Sara: I think we all make choices every day, don't we?—in a way—but you mustn't blame yourself, because it was a—

But yes, you do blame yourself.

Sara: But we all do things—we only learn unselfishness usually through being selfish first. I think that's how all human beings probably discover many—

No, I cannot agree with you on that we do not need to learn from being selfish. Selfishness is an act of the being who does not extend love.

Sara: Ah yes, yes I see.

It is difficult sometimes I think for you to understand.

Jan: It's very like when somebody takes their own life—it's that type of selfishness.

Yes, although most people would feel sorrow—yes, of course you feel sorrow, but what harm has that person done? Of course, the state of mind is taken into play, but at the end of a life, you become very responsible for that life.

Sara: True—yes, I see. I don't mean to say that we can't feel responsible, but I suppose we can only feel compassion—that's all—for others.

That is why—this is only MY feelings—why it is important for mothers and fathers to teach love in their small children (yes).

George: And I guess demonstrate love.

Demonstrate love to all people, to all creatures, to all of your Earth.

George: To all creatures, yes; and in the animal kingdom we have what we sometimes call the herd instinct. In order for that to be, there has to be a love between those animals?

It is a different kind of love (yes) from human being's kind of love. But of course, you only have to watch an animal in nature nurturing its young, to know that there is a bond there of some kind.

Sara: True. Did you come to understand how your addiction started? Did you understand?

I thought it was fun to begin with, but it is not fun—it is destructive, it is wrong and I cannot in any way, knowing what I know, condone it at all. And now I'm being called.

George: It sounds to us that you have made a very good journey since you have been in spirit.

I am happy and I am conscious that I made a lifetime of foolishness which now has to be paid for, and that is not in the sense that humans would understand. It is not a punishment, but it is—perhaps I will use the word 'education'.

George: Could also say it's a self-recognition of what is required?

When you come to spirit—I cannot answer sir, I am being called.

(Thanks and farewells)

Following a pause with a little discussion amongst ourselves that centred mainly on 'greed' and the code of practice that has been with us for a very long time called 'The Ten Commandments'. Then, to our surprise and delight, Salumet joined us:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_08_24+sal1.mp3

George: Welcome to you—Salumet?

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I had to join with you this time, listening to you speak about what you should not do. What, my dear friends, out of those Ten Commands do you think is the most important one?

(Jan and Lilian quickly responded with: 'Love one another—love thy neighbour')

Yes, that encompasses all others, because if you love your neighbour as you love yourselves, there would be no harm done to any other people.

(Acknowledged and enthusiastically agreed)

So, we need only one command. I had to step in just to say these words to you.

Jan: Thank you for that.

Paul: That clarifies it—yes.

Lilian: It's very simple when you think about it (yes).

Jan: I was talking about them in the context of the other person who came through—Miriam—the selfishness—teaching people how to be more selfless (yes). That's more to the point why I raised the Ten Commandments—each one is something to do with not being selfish, but doing things only in love. That's how I read them.

Yes. To speak as you do, my dear friends, brings harmony not only to yourselves, in your discussions, but you leave this room thinking a little deeper each time. And that in itself is something you should cherish, because if you do not think about the deeper matters of life, what is there to think about?

Jan: Very true—it's all trivial.

Yes—you are wise, my dear friends, and my only hope is that the words that you spread help others to gain that wisdom.

Jan: We do our best.

Yes—now, for this time, unless there is a very quick question, I will leave you to finish this evening in whatever way is for you to do.

George: I would just like to comment that we're back to that song again with the title 'Love is All You Need'. (All you need is Love—the Beatles) We've mentioned that before and I think you approved that title.

Yes, I indeed did approve, because the words say it all—yes. With 'love' you have everything.

Jan: I do have a really quick question about addiction. When I was washing up tonight before I came out, I was thinking about—before they come back to Earth, or this is their first time on Earth, but normally they return to Earth, and this time around they had an addiction; would they know in advance that they were going to be an addicted personality and it was something they would have to do this time?

They would be aware of the pathway of life—whether you walk a straight pathway or whether you deviate from it—that is entirely up to your free will (yes), but I will say that some—but it is not the normal for these people to choose to have addictions. It is normally something which happens within the lifetime. You know and we have spoken many times that you can bring things from another time, but with addiction I would say not. Does that help you?

Jan: It does, thank you.

George: Salumet, could I just say that we know of two young teenage people who are very interested and seem very keen to sit in with this group. One of them I know to have clairvoyance. The general feeling has been in the past I think that young teenage is a little young for sitting in séance. Would you have any comment on that?

There is no problem with young people in séance, provided they are accompanied by wise mediums. If it is just a question of seeking, then of course a medium would help very much in their learning. If you are speaking of a group such as this, which has taken many years to develop in understanding, it may be a little more difficult for the young one to understand. But I would welcome their presence as long as it is an evening of just helping them cope with questions. It would not be an evening where I would speak, and because that may be something they have not as yet encountered.

George: Ah! Not an evening for advanced teaching.

No, but they would be welcome to the group to speak to others, who would help—not myself.

Sara: So we could perhaps devote one evening for them to listen to others.

Yes, a discussion evening with perhaps some light-hearted people—because they are very susceptible to spirit. Some are okay, some are fine and some I have said could come; but these I feel are not quite ready for deeper stuff.

Jan: Christmas time, at the end of our year would be quite nice when the children are around in spirit.

Yes well, I believe you said one is acquainted with spirit anyway, but even so, if you all remember back to your first séance meeting, you can imagine what a young mind can be—

Jan: They're so vulnerable to different thoughts at that age (yes). I think it's far too young personally.

It is not young if they are the correct people; if they have encountered clairvoyance and other mediumistic—ah—

Sara: One of them is my daughter, and I think she has a lot of questions, because she has had a lot of experiences. Even though she's young she's seen a lot, for example, clairvoyantly (yes), and she still does—it's been going on for five years. But she also has experienced a lot in her short life, in terms of clairsentience. And she's heard a lot of things too—experienced a lot of spirit in the house and I think she will definitely develop when she's older, because she seems so sensitive.

Yes, all children have the gift of sensitivity— whether they use it or not is a different matter. But I feel that it would be best to have a question-answer circle rather than to have the usual sittings with me. I do not feel they are ready for deeper matters yet.

Sara: Yes I'm sure that's good advice.

(Paul then asked Salumet for any advice for a friend, who was suffering badly from arthritis)

Yes—is she close to the mother?

Paul: Um, I'm not sure if she's close to her.

Yes.

(Pause)

Yes—there are underlying issues here. That is all I will say at this time. She needs to separate a little more from the mother. Just to ask for help—that is my advice to her and there are many who would be listening. I will try and see what we can do to help her.

Paul: Thank you very much—thank you.

Yes—we may speak of this on another occasion, but for this time I am going to take my leave of you all.

(Thanks and farewells)

Finally, there was a period of clairvoyant messages via Eileen. These concerned a dog known to Jean, Sara and Graham; travel and family for Jan; and an observation for Natalie—all of which made perfect sense.

George's Notes:

1: Inner Voice: So we all have that inner voice to guide us, and so we each are responsible for our actions in the final analysis. Habitual drug-taking will it seems with certainty be regretted. And military training to transfer responsibility to another who gives orders is no excuse—the inner voice is still there, so personal responsibility therefore remains. Perhaps that is why mental problems sometimes occur in the Earth life following the killing of others.

2: Love and The Ten Commandments: It is both disappointing and sad that the man-made religions, the majority of our governments and those who vote them into office have ignored and continue to ignore that most important commandment. That is why Earth has had Inquisitions, crusades, witch hunts and wars. And that is why we still have highly aggressive governing bodies, Middle East war zones plus the enforced migration from those war zones, weapons manufacture to supply those who fight, drone and aircraft bombing, suicide bombings, nuclear missile arsenals, and an electorate who vote governments into office that initiate and conduct this love-starved status quo.

3: Séance and Young Teenage Sitters: The advice is that, for the reasons given, young teenage who express interest should be encouraged. They are best introduced to discussion and question-and-answer sessions in which understanding mediums may be present. The deeper ongoing teaching conducted by Salumet would be inappropriate for the younger mind—that journey should be reserved for later.

4: Addiction: Before Miriam came through, we had been discussing addiction and Paul had been describing an interesting piece of research into the nature of addiction, known as 'Rat Park', which you can read about here: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Rat_Park

~31st August 2015~

On this occasion Eileen felt that we should experience a 'temple meditation' with musical accompaniment that she had on CD and it was played at the start of the evening. Then, following some discussion about our feelings during the meditation one joined us from spirit:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_08_31.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

Hello.

Lilian: Hello. Have you come to talk to us or—

I'm just a messenger.

Lilian: I see.

I've come to talk about coincidences, and tonight was no coincidence. The lady thought that she'd picked the music/speaker, but in fact it has been planned from last time. Remember when you were speaking last time, when there were so many? And you were speaking about many different things, weren't you? Well I'm here to tell you that many people listen to meetings such as this—you're never just on your own.

Lilian: No, we tend to forget that.

Do you?

Lilian: Sometimes—we're often told there are people listening—they even come through like you have.

It's a strange thing to say isn't it?—'come through'. I always think: what am I coming through? It seems odd, doesn't it?

Paul: —because you're there anyway—you don't need to come through.

Yes, in an instant. But I suppose it's just a way of expressing.

Paul: —because we're not quite aware enough yet, to know who's around us (no). So we have to have these chats like this through mediums (yes), to find out who's around.

Well anyway, I'm being told to tell you that you needed this evening—all of you, for a little upliftment (yes). And so the music disk was not really for music, but for upliftment—that's why it happened. But it was all planned, speaking last week.

Lilian: Yes—we forget that (yes).

Paul: I kind of thought: if that's what we were going to do, it must be the right thing to do.

Yes, we always try and provide what's right for you at the time.

Paul: Yes, you look after us very well I think.

Yes, it's a two-way thing, isn't it? You—all of you help us to work and we try to help you in any way.

Quite simple really, isn't it?

Paul: Yes, we're all trying to help I think. You're trying to help and we're trying to do our best.

Yes, but anyway, I haven't really told you what the connection was. The connection you were speaking about last week was what you call 'the third eye' in the centre of the brow. And did you notice that was brought up in the meditation? (Yes) So that was the connection from last time—so just something to think about.

Paul: Yes, we also had an exercise, maybe a month or two ago, about eyes—the 'Egyptian eye' I think—how you can visualise that eye, then you see another eye, and then another eye. That seemed to be another way to—

Yes, if I might just say: really, I think it's best to find your own way. But you should know that it comes with practice—practice.

Paul: This opening up the third eye?

Yes—and the lady over there said this evening about pressure. That's when the third eye is opening.

Dawn: Right.

George: That's interesting.

Yes, but people have different experiences. Sometimes it is just there and people don't know why they have the sense—it is just there—and for others, it takes much work

George: Yes, we are aware of all the help that you bring to us in various ways—the speech during these evenings and the synchronicities during our lives (yes), and I know I get help with my writing and—

Someone's just saying: you're getting much better—at listening—much, much better. That's wonderful isn't it?

George: That's good to hear—thank you.

Paul: We'll give him an extra biscuit tonight!

Ur, he thinks you're a dog!

(Laughs)

George: So we're most grateful for the various ways in which you help us from spirit.

We are so glad that we find people such as your selves who are willing to open up and present the truth whether people believe it or not. It is not always easy when people regard you as not quite sane.

(Acknowledged and well understood!)

This happens on many occasions I know.

George: We are well aware that some people are just not ready for the truth yet.

Yes, but most of you are quite wise in your choice of words with other people, and for this we can only be grateful to you. Yes, but anyway, I have delivered what I came to say and I thank you all so very much for allowing me to speak with this one.

Paul: Thank you for the message.

George: We're grateful for your words.

Yes. Now I will just leave and perhaps another time...

Lilian: Yes do—can you give us a name?

My name is Rosalind. I do not mind giving my name. I know so many say it doesn't matter, but I still feel some identity, so therefore I do not mind giving my name. So I am known as Rosalind.

Paul: Thank you Rosalind—yes we still work with names of course.

Yes, it would be most confusing wouldn't it, if you did not have a name to be recognized by?

Paul: Yeah, we're not quite ready for that yet.

I like names—I like the different names that people give (mm).

Lilian: Do they have a meaning? I mean I can pick out a rose in yours.

Well, I'm not too sure about that—what the meanings are. I know we pick our names when we're coming to Earth—or we try to influence the name—perhaps that is a better way to put it. And some people don't like the name when they come here, and they change them. What is the point of that?

Paul: Yes, it does seem a bit odd. Because presumably they chose the name in the first place—or maybe they didn't quite manage to influence—

It's the influence that goes wrong I think. You do choose your name, but circumstances also change, and also you have to contend with the parents who are going to raise you; they may not be influenced enough to accept.

Paul: And also I think a lot of film stars, celebrities and musicians like to change their name, possibly a little bit for marketing purposes.

Yes well, as long as it does not harm anyone, that's alright I think.

Paul: Yeah, I guess it's not hurting anyone—yeah true.

No, as long as you never hurt another, then it's really not important. I just like names. Anyway, I really must go—I'm being beckoned.

(General farewells)

~14th September 2015~

This evening there were two speakers through Eileen. Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_09_14+first.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening.

(Pause)

My name is Gamehl. I wanted only to say that, although you feel that your planet is upside down at this moment in time, I wish to say that sometimes it is necessary in order that the results are a betterment for mankind.

(General agreement)

You may not feel this to be so when you are actually living on the planet at this time of change, but I can tell you not all is doomed. You must keep within your hearts the lightness of spirit and allow others to speak what they feel. But for all, for each and every one of you to be honest with yourselves in the way that you feel about all things in your world, whether they be personal or whether it be global—honesty from the heart is the right pathway to go. I just wanted to convey those words to you.

George: Yes, very nicely put—thank you. And I guess, for some of us, we need to observe errors in order to understand better our way forward—

It is good that you try to look at others with love in your hearts, no matter what your thoughts may be of them. You of course cannot be the judge—only the Creator has that right to say what is right or wrong. What we wish from all of you is that you keep your hearts open to ALL men. I know these words at times seem too simple for you, when there is so much going on. But I believe you have already been told that all you can do is to extend your love to all people.

(General agreement)

Yes, that message still stands—and that is all I wish to say.

Paul: A timely reminder. Thank you. Yes, it's so easy to lose focus down here, but I understand what you mean.

You will never fully have an extended view in the same way as we do here in spirit—it is impossible for you to have that overall view.

George: Yes well, the extended view is something for us to look forward to when we return to spirit.

Yes, hopefully it will be much better BEFORE you join us.

George: Ah! Yes, well that too is a beautiful thought.

Paul: We'll try to think with our hearts a bit more, and not be critical of things but to be more understanding of the process of change.

Our visitor had withdrawn—we felt that this was a wise one who understands our process of change rather better than we do!

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_09_14+2nd.mp3

Lilian: Hello—Thank you for coming.

Hello.

(The voice was indistinct and Paul enquired if it was Cho)

No. I came with the man. I am being helped with my own forgiveness. I have spent much time with not being able to forgive. I could not forgive. (Spoken tearfully)

Lilian: But you're managing with help now, are you?

Yes—yes, I am being helped. I am now ready to forgive.

Lilian: That's good—not easy is it?

No, even here, many cannot forgive. I know—I have been told: most people let go. I could not—could not forgive.

Lilian: I think there must be some things that are really hard to forgive—really hard, but I'm glad that you've come through in the end.

I wanted to say: there is always help here; but to not forgive hurts yourself.

George: Yes, and I guess it's important to remember to ask for that help.

Yes, I was wallowing in my own hatred and unforgiving; so I just wanted you to know.

Lilian: Yes—because the person it hurts is yourself, isn't it really?—I've thought about it.

That is what I now recognise, and I am being helped in order that I may help others.

Lilian: Oh that's a good idea.

There are many, many people now on Earth, who also cannot forgive.

Lilian: I'm sure there's quite a few here and maybe still struggling in spirit.

Yes—yes, but I will endeavour to do all I can when I am ready.

George: I guess with the fighting—the warring that goes on, on our planet, there are many who are seeking forgiveness in relation to their hurting of others in the warring situation—

I am told that when souls return to spirit, that mostly they recognise quite soon what they have done, and also, those who need to forgive, forgive quite quickly. But then you have those such as myself who hold on to this unforgiveness—this hatred which, as the lady says, eats at you constantly. So no matter your station in life, always remember: forgiveness is part of loving. That is my message to you all tonight.

George: And I imagine it's very good if we can learn that process of forgiveness while we are still on the planet here.

Yes, that is when it should happen; before you come to this world, try to forgive those who have wronged you. You will be the better one for it.

(Short pause)

Now, we do not wish to make your evening so gloomy, but know that when you leave tonight that there will be much light and upliftment around you. We would not wish you to be feeling gloomy.

Lilian: No, I'm sure we won't.

George: We thank you for that...

Lilian: Wise words.

Paul: Very wise words—yes.

George: That is very much appreciated and we also thank you for coming through and speaking with us on this matter.

Thank you, thank you very much.

In our follow-up discussion Eileen declared that she had the feeling that this one was associated with the holocaust and there was the feeling of broken fingers. And there was the strong feeling of the lady having been a German Jew of mixed blood.

It has been a spiritual teaching that before you judge another, look within yourself. And there is a saying (looking at your hand): for every finger that points, three point back! And there's the Jesus quote: forgive them for they know not what they do.

~28th September 2015~ SALUMET

This time our number included two visitors from Maidstone, Kent. It transpires that Gwen, accompanied by Chris does grand work as a platform medium, and like Eileen, often operates in full-trance mode.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_09_21+sal.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As we join together this time, we give thanks to those who have come this evening for their love and their light which they have brought with them. As always, my dear friends, we are happy to join with you once more. So much is happening in your world at this present time, so much so that there is fear, there is confusion and there is great unhappiness. But as I have often told you: you must not concentrate on those things, but to concentrate on the Love and the Light which you can send to all of those people who are in despair. I feel this evening that a little upliftment is needed for some of you, and this we will endeavour to do.

Lilian: Thank you.

I do not know, my dear friends, if you are aware of the knowledge that is coming to man from many things under your seas—great strides are being made there, and I would ask, because I have told you previously of these things—be aware of what is coming. That is all I wish to say on that subject.

George: Might I ask Salumet: does that embrace a number of underwater discoveries of structures—of stone structures, that have been made in the past, before the sea levels rose?

It entails all knowledge that has previously been missed. It will be of benefit to mankind to obtain this knowledge. But there is much that can be useful to you so be aware my dear friends. Now, for this time, I will take questions from you if you so wish.

Lilian: Two new sitters, have you got any questions?

Chris: Yes, thank you very much. Yes, good evening Salumet (good evening). Thank you for being present this night for our visit here to this group—we are very grateful for that. I would like to ask you about 'knowledge' (yes)—the knowledge that we might have when we come to the Earth plane from the realms of spirit (yes). Do we have access to all the knowledge that we might hold as soul-beings before Earth incarnation?

It is available, but I would say it would not benefit you to know all of the information, because you have come to this Earth to learn and to be guided. Therefore, to have access to all knowledge, would not I feel (be) of benefit to you.

Chris: I see—thank you.

I hope that helps you.

Chris: It does indeed yes. Thank you very much.

(Pause)

We are very quiet this evening.

(Chuckles)

George: Yes, well I do have a question. Some information was recently sent to me, in fact the recording of an interview with one Graham Hancock. His writing has always impressed me as being or as containing much which is close to the truth. One part of that interview concerned 'psychedelic drugs'. Now it is sadly the habit of many in the western world to overdo things such as tobacco, asbestos usage and drugs usage, but where psychedelic drugs are concerned there have been a number of reports from the Amazon rainforest in particular, about the controlled one-off and rare usage of a psychedelic drug which can open the mind to psychic and spiritual things; it's described as like opening a doorway. One drug in particular mentioned was 'Ayahuasca' which is a vine extract which is used in combination with another plant extract has been cited as having this effect. So I'm wondering Salumet, if you would care to speak on the possibility of sensible usage of a psychedelic drug such as ayahuasca for opening that doorway in consciousness?

I understand. I would say only this to you: there are many ways of opening the mind; and there are many, as you have mentioned, which use natural products. But this is not to say it is the correct way to open the pathway of the mind. Remember that the mind belongs to spirit, and sometimes the use of these drugs gives false impressions. Who are they to say that what they say is spiritual? It may seem so to them, but I would not advocate the use of them. And yes I understand when you speak of overuse in the western world, not only of drugs, but of alcohol and such things. I would not use any of these to open the mind; that should come naturally to you, because, as in all medicines—and that is the word I will use—all medicines, there are effects which are not beneficial to the body. That would be my only concern. But as we have spoken on many occasions about free-will, then I have to say to you, my dear friends, that whichever road you take, you ultimately are responsible for. So I can only say: if people feel benefit from these things, then that is the pathway that they must take. Do you understand?

George: Yes—yes, thank you—yes, that's a comprehensive answer.

It is always better—more beautiful, to see the mind open naturally.

George: Yes (yes). Yes, I was particularly interested because I had an experience myself, 26-years ago (yes)—and I was keenly interested in the Mayan peoples (yes), and I was in receipt of the most amazing sequence of synchronicities which led me to the wonderful Mayan temple site of Palenque; and I conducted what I considered to be a scientific experiment at the time, with what is commonly known as 'magic mushroom'—

But you see, my dear friend, your experience was a very good one. What of those who have not had such a good experience?—of those you know nothing?

George: Yes indeed—my experience was a good one (yes)—I received a spiritual message (you did). And it set me on a spiritual pathway.

—which can only be good for you.

George: It certainly worked for me, and that is the only time in my life (yes) when I have had recourse to a psychedelic drug.

Yes, but of course, as you know, all of your society relies on drugs today, as you would call them 'medicines', and of course, they have their good points—I will not deny this for you, but on the other hand, I have to say, my dear friends: what is better than to heal from within with that clear mind?

George: Yes, perhaps this is something I lacked at that time, but I think what was particularly relevant was the extraordinary sequence (yes) of synchronicities which led me to that occasion.

Yes, well as I have said, that experience for you, was a good one, but that is all perhaps I wish to say.

Each one of you has a pathway to tread, and it is up to each individual to choose in which way they go.

George: Yes, thank you for that, that's a very clear answer, thank you.

Lilian: Well, you've talked about medical advances (yes) that we shall be seeing in the future—in the near future.

There have been many in this past year.

Lilian: Yes. Will it happen that we won't need—or they'll discover something—that we won't need to take so many drugs for medical reasons? Will they slowly die out or be not needed?

That I cannot see for a very, very long time, but the possibility is already here. It is just that people have forgotten how to heal themselves. Do you understand? (Yes) Yes, and today your bodies have been adjusted and become dependent upon all of these drugs, which are made I hasten to add, from natural products. But that does not make them good. You understand?

Lilian: Yes I do understand.

I am not trying to tell you that you should never take any of these medicines—that is not what I am saying—after all, the doctors in your world are being influenced from spirit. They are the healers of your world at this time. Therefore my words to you, my dear friends, is that, do not always be so hasty to take these medical products, but firstly to put into place, the state of your own mind. I hope that helps you all and gives you food for thought.

Lilian: Yes, thank you.

Jan: It's certainly something that I feel I've experienced over the last 18-months—not taking all the drugs that the doctors have prescribed for me.

Yes, and you are beginning to win that war—

Jan: Yes, I am healing thank you—I can feel it every day.

We have been helping you my dear friend.

Jan: I know, thank you very much. I understand it entirely now—the words of the 'human spirit can heal the body'—entirely (yes), if that's the right way of putting it.

So many people would say: but that is not common sense. What is not common sense is that they do not think for themselves.

Jan: No. I think I know what caused mine—I know I'm lucky to have that—to be able to go within and find the answers to why I was in pain, and I know a lot of people aren't as fortunate.

And I hope, my dear friend, that I have taught all of you to think more clearly for yourselves, and I know that spirit are so grateful to all of you for the work that you do, and we will endeavour at all times to help those who try to help themselves.

Jan: It's very powerful—so powerful—to be able to help yourself.

Chris: May I ask about the etheric body (yes) that we each have, as far as I understand? (Yes)—and how that might link with our physical body, and the etheric body experiences we might have in our sleep state?

In what way do you wish to know the connection? You cannot have one without the other if you intend to live upon this Earth. The etheric body is a powerful image of the Earthly body which, if you are speaking of leaving the physical body at night (yes)—that is what you are asking I believe? (Yes, thank you) Yes, all of you leave your body at night to be rejuvenated and to help the physical to still exist on Earth. Is that what you wish to know?

Chris: Yes, I was very curious, because I've been reading an interesting book written by a medium who was on the Earth in the 1930s and 40s—Gladys Osborne Leonard, and she experienced the moving within the etheric body, in her conscious state you might say (yes), to meet up with her husband who passed into spirit—

You can be free from the physical. It takes practice for most people, but it is achievable.

Chris: Is it to be recommended do you think Salumet, or not particularly?

I would suggest caution, once the etheric body is free from the physical. I do not feel that you would come to much harm, but you can go further than you should. I hope that is helpful.

Chris: Very helpful—thank you very much.

I will take one more question this time.

George (looking around): has anyone else a question?

Mark: Mine's quite a quick one. I bumped into a woman who happened to have worked in the Bosnian pyramid, and she seemed to think that there was extraterrestrial communication going on from there currently, which sounded quite interesting. I don't know if you'd be able to comment on that?

I would have to consider this one. It does not feel quite right to me. I will return with that question to you next time (thank you).

George: Can I place one more concerning the Graham Hancock interview?

Yes.

George: He has studied the writings about what is termed the 'Ark of the Covenant'; and it seems that it's considerably pre-Christian era (yes), it is mentioned in a number of spiritual writings, there is a replica of it in 20,000 Ethiopian churches, I gather—so it has a very serious place. It also seems to have been feared, and it is claimed to be present in one particular church and people are denied access to it. And he seems to have reason for considering that it relates to, shall I say, a lost technology from a previous civilisation. Would you care to comment on that Salumet?

I will comment quite quickly, and yes I would agree.

George: You would agree that it is a technology from a previous time?

Yes, it is no doubt—and again, much longer than has been stated.

George: Yes (yes), that was my feeling about it (yes). Yes, it's interesting that you are able to confirm his contention that that is what it is.

Yes, there is no need to go deeply into this, but yes I fully agree.

George: Thank you—that's very nice to know.

Now, my dear friends, I thank you for your presence as always.

George: And we certainly thank you for yours, Salumet.

Yes—as always, I will take my leave. I leave you with my love as always, and I hope that the upliftment given to each and every one of you will be felt as you leave this room. Until we come together once more, I will leave you in my Love and my Light, and take my leave of you now.

(General thanks)

Following a pause while Eileen returned, she had clairvoyance with a message for Serena regarding her family, and this was quickly followed by commentary from one speaking via Gwen. In fact, a number came through, each speaking rapidly with a different accent, one following the other in quick succession. The first had a slight cockney or perhaps Australian accent. It was a light-hearted opener with lots of chuckles throughout:

So may we say good evening to everyone!

All: Good evening.

We've come along tonight because we thought it would be rather nice to talk to you, you know. We're strangers, or so you think, but we know all about you—we know all those secrets, you know, that you keep hidden.

(Chuckles)

Though not to us, because you see, we can see right through. We know you're nice people, 'cos there's a nice light here you see. And there's a great big healing vibration, as you would say—we call it a power—right in the middle of the room and it spreads right out to every one of you. So we thought we'd come along and say congratulations, you know. We don't often do it quite like this, 'cos we're more sedate, but you're a friendly lot, so we thought we would come through, if it's alright with you.

(Agreed)

There're a lot of us waiting here just to talk to you, if you will listen to us, if you'd like to talk to us that is, 'cos we wanna be polite you see, we wanna do things in the right way, 'cos it's different with everybody you know. At some of the places we go to they're a bit snooty—

(Chuckles)

—others are just like you, very friendly and very nice people. So we thought we'd come and say: how do you do.

Chris: Bless you.

Eileen: So could we ask your name?

Betsy.

Eileen: Betsy—that's a nice name.

Well, it's alright, isn't it—it'll do for now, you know. I might change it later on you know.

(Chuckles)

Eileen: Well, you'd be welcome to change it.

George: Well Betsy, you're obviously a very nice person too.

Well that's kind of you.

Eileen: Have you been doing this for long Betsy?—coming to groups.

Oh, for a long, long time dear, you know. 'Cos she's getting an old lady now. She doesn't like to hear it, but it's true.

(More chuckling)

So, we've been around for a long time, but she didn't know it, you see. But you see there's a lot of us that come around her and Christopher (Chris) and we try to help out and we try to help other people, but they're not very interested, you know, really.

Eileen: Are they not?

Not really, you know.

Chris: Well, some are surely Betsy?

Ah yes, but what do they want to know? They want to know who's gonna marry who—

(Knowing laughs)

—how much money they're gonna have—

(More laughs)

—and it's lovely, 'cos that's what life is all about. We don't have to stand on a high horse, or pretend to be something different to what we are, 'cos we're just ordinary people and we have to earn a living when we have a body—it's a blooming nuisance, but there you are.

George: Are you saying, it's not so much laziness, it's more the materialism?

Well, that's always been like that—it hasn't changed you know. 'Cos there were the toffs who had the money and there were those who did the work—and they (the toffs) didn't—it's always been the same.

(Affirmed/chuckles)

Eileen: And it still is.

It doesn't change you know. Don't expect your world to change and you know, you move into the spirit realms and you're just the same where you were, you stay there for a long—but you're always the same, you don't change one bit—a long time. Why should you, you're happy, aren't you?

Lilian: Mm—so have you been there a long time, in spirit?

At this point a different speaker with a more refined English accent quickly continued through Gwen:

Indeed my friend. Good evening!

Eileen: Good evening.

Good evening—yes we have—many of us have been this side of life for some considerable time and we move around you know and we converse with different people on different subjects—nothing terribly serious at this stage of life, but it's all very interesting and we come across some remarkable occurrences, you know; and people have the funniest of ideas about the spirit realms. But you'll be most surprised and delighted when you leave behind that overcoat and come into the spirit realms. There is warmth and there is love and there is hardship and depression; it's just the same as it is in the physical body. My dear friends, you don't change for a considerable time. But we thought we would just come along, you know. Each one of us is a little different and, my friend, you'll understand if we say the 'Americans' are here this evening.

Chris: Lovely.

And they might come and talk to you if you're very lucky.

Chris: Oh good.

And that would please you immensely, wouldn't it?

Chris: Yes, it would indeed, yes.

But you see, you're all very nice people and you're all very interested in the different aspects of the spirit 'life', shall we say, but can I—if I may just say: Be very interested in the life that you have NOW—that is most important, for you're in that physical body for a very, very short time and during that time, make the most of it! Enjoy every minute. Try to help other people of course—in so doing you help yourself, you know—as you give, so you receive. And tonight we want to say that it's a joy to see you all gathered together in harmonious conditions and that light goes out and you'll attract many, many other selves from the spirit realms and beyond, we can assure you. Love and peace prevail when there is a mutual interest, and you have that interest, one with another and it's delightful. My friends it has been a pleasure to come and talk to you.

George: It's been a pleasure to listen to you.

If you will allow us just one moment, there is another soul who would like to come forward, if you would just—one moment please—

Paul: Absolutely.

Short pause, before a powerful speaker through Gwen, in what sounded like an old Abraham Lincoln style American accent:

We want to say that great strides have been made in this pathway of life—that you have indeed opened the door to greater knowledge and as you receive and you act upon that knowledge, a lot of help can be given to the nations of your world. To consider that you are in a physical body, and it rather lacks something like—we can understand this. But you have within you a tremendous power—the power of almighty God, and if you will realise that and utilise that to the fullest benefit, mankind can change the path that it is walking upon at this moment. It can change tremendously, that man will come to realise that he is a power himself and as he radiates that power, peace will prevail. Many of you attend your churches and your synagogues and your mosques and various places of worship and your ask Almighty God in the wisdom that you have, to eradicate the hardship which exists upon your Earth and we want to say to you tonight: my friends, with the greatest of sorrow, we have to say it is a waste of time, unless you are willing to do something yourself; for you are the power of Almighty God and that works through the man who walks in the physical body. Now there are many in the spirit realms who are working as you would say 'overtime' to radiate that power of healing to the Earth and other places, but we need YOU, we need your hands, we need your light. Do you understand?

(Affirmed)

That united you can go forward and eradicate all the hardship which exists upon your Earth. Yes, it will take time, but it needs someone to start the 'ball rolling' as you say. When this happens, much can be achieved. We wanted to come to you tonight, for it is a great and wonderful honour to be able to be within this little group tonight, to help you to radiate that power, to say to you in all honesty, YOU are the instrument that we use. Remember this in your moments of depression, remember this in your moments of—troubles and tribulations.

George: This is a stirring message—

Realise you are that strength, you are that power and you can do so much to help mankind. You are the instruments my friends and we offer you a great and wonderful blessing from the spirit realms, that each one of you will feel within you the upliftment of heart and to know that the generations that are to come after you, will live in peace and harmony. God bless you my children.

There was a gentleman who wanted to ask a question we think?

George: I just wanted to say: this is a stirring message and thank you very much for that.

It is a message of HOPE and REASSURANCE to mankind.

Eileen: Thank you.

It is a message that should be given to all the people, wherever they are. And now you have heard the words, now you will be able to give these to others and encourage them, will you not?

(Agreed)

God bless you, thank you.

George: This message will be circulated through the Internet that we have now and that is in itself I believe, having a great effect. It is great being able to reach people via the internet and your message will certainly go there.

(Agreed + thanks)

There then followed a much softer spoken one through Gwen:

Now that's nice, isn't it? You see, these things do happen, you see. We weren't sure that we could manage it, but we did try you know—

Chris: You did really well.

—joined together and there's lots of us here and we want to say 'how do you do?'—to each one.

(Thanks expressed)

We shall remember you in our prayers and in our thoughts and if you have any doubt, you know, about the continuation of life, then stop for a moment and think about Nature as a WHOLE. The beautiful trees, for they are about to go to sleep for the winter—and in the spring they will come back to life again. And my friends, one day you will put aside, lay aside that overcoat and you too will march forward into the realms of spirit, and once again live with freedom, with joy in your hearts. We do hope you will understand this message.

(Affirmed + thanks)

Another then followed through Gwen after a short pause:

Can we just say to you that to be able to come to the fore and speak to people of a like mind is very pleasant, you know.

(General agreement)

It is very good and we do thank you for allowing us to come. It is a great and wonderful privilege to be with such people, to be with such light. You understand?

Eileen: It's a privilege to meet you all.

It is very nice—tonight we decided that we would do a little work. There's somebody else who wants to come and if you can allow us a few more minutes, it would be rather nice.

(Affirmed)

It just takes a little while sometimes to change over you know—not usually, but tonight is a bit different you see, because there's a lot of us and they all want to come and say 'how to you do?' Now they can't all come, but just for tonight, just for one moment please—

(Pause)

Another then began through Gwen, who, like an earlier speaker had an American accent:

Well now, we thought we would come to the surface as you'd say and speak to the good people, with the good will that you have. You've heard us before my friend.

Chris: Yes, my American friend—we so welcome to you, thank you.

Yes indeed. It's a joy to be able to come into this 'chapel of rest' I was going to say—it's not quite that is it?

Eileen: No, not yet.

(Chuckles)

We got the wrong term my friend—but this delightful atmosphere. If there's anybody wants to ask a question, because, you know, we're here and we bring a lot of power, a lot of love and many of us have spoken to you tonight—a few of us anyway—and they all say the same thing. So if you'd like something different, just say so.

Eileen: So you'll put in a good word for us, will you?

(Chuckles)

There's no question about that my friend. You know very well you have the power, you have the incentive, you have the joy within your heart, you connect with the spirit world—you don't understand ALL of the knowledge, of course you don't, but then you're inquiring all the time, and little by little and you gain more and more and more and that's how it should be—that's how it should be. So when you eventually emerge into the spirit realms, then my friends you'll be overjoyed at that which you have created, by all the work that you've done here and all the joy that you've given to other people—that will be with you in the spirit realms; it'll be a glorious day. Anyway, power's going a little, because we're a little tired, but if we could say 'God bless you all', and maybe God willing, we shall meet again one day.

Eileen: That would be lovely.

Bless you all. Thank you my friend (Chris) for the help that you've given.

(General thanks)

George: And we seem to be receiving from a group in spirit. Might I ask how many of you there are?
Innumerable people in the spirit realms who've joined together and there are all nationalities; some have been there a great length of time—many, many—shall we say thousands of years—and some have only been there a few hundred years. But we are a group and we have those in the physical body, who are instruments of this group. These are just two (Chris and Gwen), but in truth, you are all instruments of this group, because we all work together to create the atmosphere which allows spirit people to come to you to the Earth, to give upliftment and to bring the great and wonderful knowledge of the continuation of life. That is the sole purpose of our connection with the Earth, to teach people to put aside that great and wonderful fear that they have, that has been nurtured within them for so long, of death—it is quite ridiculous! No-one ever dies—you move into the spirit realms—life is continuous. And that is our message to mankind, to put aside all the rubbish that they have been taught, to bring about this new idea perhaps—this great and wonderful knowledge that to live within the physical body is a great and wonderful blessing that has been permitted—to live within the physical body for a very short space of time. And then you imagine you move into the spirit realms—that is wonderful—you reap that which you sow.

(Affirmed)

You will notice that we have changed places again.

(The accent had indeed changed at some point earlier, as another from the group in spirit had slipped in, replacing the previous American speaker)

Chris: Yes—you're very good at that.

(Chuckles)

We do this repeatedly—yes, we're very good, we're improving all the time my friend, we're improving all the time—yes.

George: And a recent teaching of our guide Salumet is that ALL is intermingled and I think that you epitomise that.

Yet another accent change as another slips in, with possibly a hint of a German accent:

All—you sit in your circle—whenever it is possible, you radiate a wonderful power to the spirit realms and there's no difference between one group and another really. They all want to say to you that we are all warm and happy and loving people and we wish you well. The difference is in the physical body my friends, where everybody has a different religion and they're always right and you're always wrong—

(Chuckles)

It's quite ridiculous you know, because all religions, all pathways lead to—the medium always says that they all lead to the summit. Well perhaps that's the best way of putting it—it's acceptable to most people.

George: But unfortunately all the religions that we have are man-made in a sense and they don't quite get everything right sometimes.

Do you know my friend we want to say to you that it doesn't matter in the least whether they are right or wrong; it doesn't matter whether you are a Roman Catholic or a Jew or a Hindu or Muslim, or a Spiritualist—it matters not at all. As long as you are the BEST Spiritualist you can be, the best Muslim that you can be and you follow that pathway in Truth and in Light. That is good.

(Agreed)

Chris: Good message.

You live in this area of your world. It is a Christian area, so most of you were brought up in the Christian faith, yes?

(Affirmed)

If you lived in the Eastern countries you would be brought up as perhaps a Muslim or a Hindu or a Jew—it depends really on where you live. So how can you possibly say one is right and one is wrong?

Mark: That's right. Gandhi used to say: God has no religion.

That's right!

Mark: But equally you could say God has all religions.

That's right. And so you see we agree, do we not?

(Agreed)

With this we say goodnight my friends. It has been a great and wonderful pleasure and a privilege to talk to you tonight, to listen to your great and wonderful guest. We do appreciate the privilege that has been extended to us. God bless you all.

(Blessings and fond farewells)

George's Notes:

1: Ocean Floor Structures: All around the world there are submerged rock structures suspected by many as being man-made; also pyramids.

—Yonaguni monument off Okinawa: Graham Hancock and others have investigated these submerged columns and steps. Hancock reports details in his documentary 'Quest for the Lost Civilisation' and in the Joe Rogan interview. It is reasoned that the rockwork must predate the last ice age when sea levels rose substantially.

—Bimini Road, off Bahamas: This has the appearance of a road about 0.5 miles long.

—Structures off Cuba: A submerged city with buildings and pyramids?

—Gulf of Cambay, West Coast of India: Another submerged city? This has radiocarbon dated items indicating 9500-years.

—Pavlopetri, off Laconia, Greece: A post ice age city that probably became submerged during an earthquake.

2: Ayahuasca: Ceremonial use of this psychedelic drug goes back a long way with Peruvian rainforest people. It seems that DMT (dimethyltryptamine) requires the presence of MAOI (monoamine oxidase inhibitor) to be effective, hence the admixture of two plant extracts. Traditional sources say that instructions came from plant spirits (elementals).

3: Magic Mushroom: Psilocybe caerulescens Murray, variety Mazatecorum—a paper on this subject published by a Mexican doctor was by chance passed to me for my possible interest, just a few days prior to my wife and I left for our Mexican adventure.

'There are the 'veladas' or sacred mushroom evening ceremonies. These were outlawed by the Spanish Inquisition following the fall of Montezuma and for the last four centuries such ceremonies have been conducted covertly. Maria Sabina (1894-1985) was during much of her lifetime, a revered practitioner and guide to proper use of the mushroom. And it must be stated that an important part of Mayan tradition is that the mushrooms should only be taken under guidance (either spiritual or Earthly) and for proper reason.' —From chapter 6 of A Smudge in Time. The complete chapter which includes all synchronicities leading up to the magic mushroom experiment is separately attached.

4: Gladys Osborne Leonard: (1882-1968)—an adept UK trance medium from an early age. She did valuable work with the Oliver Lodge family and for the Society for Psychical Research from 1918 onwards.

5: Ark of the Covenant: It is said that the ark is within the church at Abu Gosh and there are small replicas of the ark in 20,000 other churches throughout Ethiopia:

The information that the ark is technology from a civilisation dating from well before the Christian era leaves me with the thought that perhaps it has connection to Atlantis. We have the as yet unpublished testimony of one Vincenta Moog, and I sincerely hope that it will be possible to publish when the time is right. Vincenta has powerful visions of a time when in past life she was High Priestess of the Brotherhood of the Light in Atlantis. She gives wonderful descriptions and speaks of a gateway with lasers of a golden hue criss-crossing it. These generate a kind of force field. "Only a suitably advanced soul could walk through it unscathed. Spiritually impure souls would literally be thrown backwards through the air, never to be invited back during that life." Food for thought!

One of a number of illustrations from the literature that depict the Ark of the Covenant.

Lilian: Good evening—nice of you to come along.

I didn't realise you knew who I was.

Lilian: I knew you were there, but I'm not quite sure who. Should I know you?

No—I just meant that I thought you knew I was here (yes). Yes, I'm always attracted to peaceful places—peaceful quiet people and I think that describes all of you.

George: Certainly we're peaceful and peace-loving.

Yes, I do admire people today who have their own minds—who can discuss things in a peaceful quiet voice—yes.

Lilian: Yes, we might disagree, but we're fine together.

Yes, I never was quiet. (Oh!) I think today you would have called me a 'bible basher'!

(Chuckles)

Yes, I know that has brought some response.

Lilian: Were you a parson or—?

Oh my goodness no!—I belonged to the Methodists (yes). Yes, I did—my parents were very strict, and you know, it was the biggest regret of my life.

George: I was going to ask how you view that now from spirit—

Completely different and I now see what I've missed, because there was a young gentleman who wished to marry me and I wouldn't—because he was a blasphemer—quite against the rule of God. And anyway, my parents would not have approved—and now I can see what a wonderful life I've missed.

Lilian: Have you met this chap in spirit?

I have and he just laughed, and in fact he passes a joke and says: 'It was a narrow escape!'

(Laughs)

Isn't that amusing?—yes absolutely, yes.

George: So I guess you needed the spell in spirit to view all this and think about it some more.

Yes, you do—you see things differently—you see everything more clearly. Yes, I was quite shocked to tell you the truth. I thought I was a perfect little human being. Now I know differently—yes. But nevertheless, it is good to see that religions are more open to change.

Lilian: Yes, very much!

Yes—you're not about to be rid of it just yet, but nevertheless, it is nice to see that people are speaking out and people can now disagree (yes). I was forever quoting to my young gentleman, but there you go, that was part of a life where I learned a lesson.

Lilian: Yes, I was going to say: we are here to learn lessons. That's the main thing isn't it?

Yes, unfortunately I did not learn whilst I was there, but now I have.

George: Yes, I think we all feel that the religions of the world have been so much man-made and state-affiliated, and your Methodist one, as you imply, has been too rigid.

Yes, all are too rigid I think, but nevertheless, it was part of life and I now accept that.

Paul: Yes, we've been told that they still provide a useful sort of 'scaffolding' for people.

Of course, if that is what you people need, who am I to say differently?—if it makes you a good person—

Lilian: I was going to say, if they're good people, that's the main thing isn't it?

Yes—my father, he knew every word—he had an answer for everything from the book—yes, but nevertheless, he was a very good man.

Lilian: Yes. Did you have brothers and sisters?

I had two brothers, yes—hard working, yes. My father could be a bit cruel I think at times, but it did not seem to harm them (yes). So that is why I've joined you, because you are quiet and peaceful.

Lilian: We're glad you came.

George: Have you any plans for another Earth life?

Not at the moment sir—not yet—I'm enjoying life too much (yes). I'm finding out information and I am content at the moment.

George: Oh good—that's nice to know. And how do you view people—or how much awareness do you have of people in the world today?—the Pope for example—have you had any thoughts of him?

Well not particularly, but I think he probably is a good man. The trouble is they become too involved in what has been said in the past (ah yes). That is not their fault.

George: No, but as you say, I feel many see him as a good man.

Yes, he IS a good man—don't let anyone say otherwise. He is a good man, but I would say: a lot of the leaders in the religions are a little misguided. That's all—not that they are bad or cruel or evil—just a little misguided.

George: Yes, as are a number of political leaders today, I think—we must agree—there are interactions between political leaders and religions and how people have developed through not really understanding their religion—

Yes—I really didn't really study much about what you call 'politics'—never have, and thus far I haven't been able to acquire more knowledge—only in as much as I have not wished to. But I am sure the time will come, I'm sure as it comes to all, that you have a much wider field of vision.

George: Yes. I'm afraid our Middle East area is in a state of confusion at the moment (yes)—that's what I was thinking of.

Yes, I know there are problems in the world that you live in, but I'm more concerned about religion (yes).

That's not very helpful for you is it? But that is the point I'm at, at the moment.

Lilian: Yes, well you had a lot to do with it while you were here.

Yes, I certainly did!

Lilian: Can you tell me what part of the world you came from?

Paul: America.

Yes, that's right sir. My parents—I suppose today you would have called them 'pioneers' Yes—I don't know.

Lilian: So quite a long time ago—well longish—

—Long yes, but—yes, that is where I would have lived. But that is of no concern now, because it does not matter who you are, what your name is, where you come from—it's all very unimportant.

Lilian: Yes, the planet is a small place.

It is—it truly is. That is something that you will be surprised by—you will, you will. And I really must go—I've so enjoyed myself, I really have.

George: We've enjoyed your visit and it's been a pleasure talking with you—thank you!

Thank you sir—I won't say: God bless you—'cos I know there's no need.

(Chuckles)

Lilian: So feel free to come again.

I truly will, because I feel so comfortable here.

George: Well, you'll be most welcome.

I will leave my name, if that is convenient.

(Agreed)

My name is 'Jeanie'—and hopefully we can meet at another time.

Lilian: Yes, I'm sure we do.

George: We'll look forward to that.

Yes—perhaps I'll have a better view of the world and give you a little more information.

Lilian: Yes, that will be nice.

Paul: Yes, that would be interesting—thank you.

But as I said, I am focussed on my own—

Lilian: Growth really—

—Growth, yes. I wish you all 'farewell'.

Paul: Farewell to you Jeanie.

(General goodbyes)

Next followed a 'rescue' of a blind lady—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_05+rescue-blind+lady.mp3

Lilian: Good evening. Can I help you?

I can't find Percy—I don't feel well.

Lilian: You don't feel well and you want Percy—

Yes, please find him.

Lilian: Is he your husband?

Yes.

Lilian: I will see what I can do.

Please help me—do not leave me.

(And the lady held out a hand to be guided)

I can't see.

Lilian: You're blind? (Yes) Well, we can sort all that out and you'll be able to see again by the time—

No—just please fetch him.

Lilian: And that's your husband?

Yes—I feel so unwell.

Lilian: How old are you—can you tell me how old you are?

I'm eighty—please get him.

Lilian: Right, okay—let's find Percy first. I think he'll be waiting for you when I tell you what's happened—he'll be waiting for you. Did you ever wonder what would happen when you died?—where you go to—spiritually? Did you ever think of your spirit?

Yes.

Lilian: Yes? Well you've left your body behind.

No—(yes)—no I'm still here.

Lilian: It feels like that, but no. You're still you, but you need some help to go to Percy, because he's gone already and he's there waiting—he got there before you. You've been asleep for a little while and now you're ready to join him.

Oh—I'm confused.

Lilian: I'm sure you are. But you're eighty and that's a good long life, isn't it? But something has taken you—well you said you felt unwell—and something has caused you to die and leave that body behind. So you're talking to me spiritually. But you're still you—you're still the same person, but you will take on a new body.

George: It's very understandable that you would be confused about it.

Lilian: You'll be really happy in a moment. But now you feel nice and warm—you feel surrounded by love. You think about it. You feel that love, don't you?—good. Now what I want you to do is look forward and you'll see a light. Eventually in that light you'll see someone you know, which I suspect is going to be Percy.

It's dark.

Lilian: Yes, but you'll be able to see again—remember that—you'll be able to see perfectly—any disabilities will disappear. So if you look for the light. (Pause) Someone's holding out their hand to you?—good. Who do you see? (mm) You see Percy? And you can see him, can't you? And if you're happy to go—

It's him.

Lilian: Yes lovely. Well, you'll start life afresh—

It's him!

Lilian: And he's pleased to see you—well off you go—and be happy.

The experience left Eileen feeling shaky and she needed a minute or two to clear the residual feeling. When Eileen first saw (as did the rescued one) it was beautiful colours, which is unusual—before more normal vision took over. Perhaps this related to the lady having been blind. Eileen felt it to be a nice rescue and he was waiting.

The evening was concluded with clairvoyant messages via Eileen for Natalie, Mark and Serena. Serena had cold feet and Eileen was actually aware of one giving her energy about the ankles.

~12 October 2015~ SALUMET

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_12+sal1.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

(Pause)

Lilian: Have you been listening to us talking?

(It then became clear that this was Salumet)

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet. I guess you have been listening.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, we are aware of your conversations as you come together. Still my dear friends, you find yourselves absorbed with the ways of your Earthly world. I wish to say one thing: to remind you of what each individual's life should be, no matter where their status lies; whether it be, as you say, with too many Earthly gifts or whether you belong to those who suffer and are without the very fruits of existence. I say to you all my dear friends: what has happened to living in this moment?—because whilst you are concerned about all of these matters you are foregoing your own lives. Do you understand?

(General acknowledgement)

I would like you all to think a little more deeply about this matter. I have told you so often: all really that you can achieve and what you should do is to give your thoughts and love for all—not to distinguish between your brothers, but to love all people, no matter the circumstances. And for yourselves to live in the moment, and in this way you move forward with knowledge and with love. I hope that makes sense to you.

Lilian: Yes it does.

(Affirmations)

George: It does indeed. I know that some find it more difficult to love those who are involved in the fighting and the bombing. But I know your statement also refers to those soul aspects.

Yes—you must allow each and everyone to exist within this world, whether you agree or not. This is a very big ask of anyone. But I want you my dear friends, to think about the words I have said to you and begin to understand that what you must do is place all of these difficulties into the Creator's hands. The answer therefore lies with that Great Creative Force. And mankind at this moment in time is refusing to listen to that inner voice. We know and understand, my dear friends, the heartache that is caused, and of course we would wish for a good life for all people; but that is not for you to pass judgement upon. Your love must surpass all things. You must turn to the Great Creative Force and allow that force to take care of all that happens within your world.

George: Yes, unfortunately it has been a human trait to when hit (yes) strike back (yes), but I recall a phrase from the Bible about turning the other cheek, and perhaps that would be more appropriate.

Yes—again, we have to—there is so much still to do within your world. But my dear friends, I wish you to continue, to be uplifted, to feel love for all of your fellow man—not just those people that you feel deserve your love, but for all people, for all those—especially those you feel have done wrong; they too will need your love and your prayers. So think about these words this time and see how your discussion goes; when you really feel and become part of this Earthly world with all of its, what you call 'problems'.

George: Yes. One feels there are certain people who have worked themselves into a position from which they are able to make improvements within our world. And I've always felt that it's appropriate to give those people support. How would you comment on that?

There is nothing wrong in giving support, but what you are doing my dear friend, is making selection, when indeed that should never happen. What you are doing is passing judgement upon many others. Do you see what I am saying to you? (Yes) You are selecting those to have your backing and that is never right. No matter how harsh these words may seem, I feel that I have to say to you: love for mankind is for all of mankind—there can be no exceptions. After all, the Great Creative Force is all love.

George: Yes, that would seem to imply also, a neutrality—where the workings of society are concerned. Yes, mankind should be working towards unity—not whether one side of people are evil and another is good. There is good and evil in all men. I do not hesitate in saying this, but that is why you need to find the spirit which you are, with that all-unending love that is within it. Only then can you look to yourself and say that you love all of your fellow man. I do not say this is easy my friends—it is not. I understand quite well the workings of your Earthly world. But I wish you to think about it. It is easy for me to say what you must do, but by now you should feel that burning within your heart for ALL of mankind—ALL of mankind. It is easy, as I have said in the past, to love those people with whom you feel there is a unity, but it is not so easy to love what you call 'your enemies'. After all, if you had two children, and one was very good and one was very naughty, would you make the distinction of loving the good one more? Of course you wouldn't—your love would go to both of them and you would help whoever is in need, with love. I am making that very small comparison in order for you all to understand. And I am going to leave you with these words this evening, because they mean a great deal and there are many of those from spirit who are here to help your world. And they need your help—they need your thoughts, they need your prayers to create love and unity for all of mankind. But do not leave this room feeling so downhearted; instead you leave this room feeling uplifted and hopeful for the future.

Paul: Yes, that seems to simplify it beautifully.

Again my dear friend, simplicity has all of the answers.

George: It is a clear message which you have endorsed with us Salumet—I hadn't really thought too much about the neutrality that has to go with this 'love'—and 'non-judgement'. Thank you!

Yes, you see my dear friend, too many come to our world who are full of regret. Is it not better that they change whilst they are upon your planet? Of course it is, and that is what we are endeavouring to do—to help them while they are here. No one says it will happen in a second—of course it will not. And today, mankind is much more used to his brain being superior, instead of allowing spirit to be superior.

Jan: Some of us on this planet over-think and over-complicate it with our mind.

Yes, but do you see how words, when they are spoken, can change the way that a person thinks, so quickly?

(Agreed)

But I could only say it to a group such as yourselves, because you are full of love and compassion, my dear friends. And it brings me great joy each time we are united, to speak of these things.

Jan: That statement you've just made that we're full of love and compassion—I think that one of the greatest lessons is recognising it in yourself—

You have to love yourselves—of course.

Jan: To know that you possess that. Modern day life tends to bombard us with so much information that, like as you were saying, it's very easy to understand what it's like to be human here, for us—but if we could only remember that first—

If ever you are in doubt you must go within. You must allow the soul to speak. You must have that outward knowledge that spirit is eternal.

I hope my dear friends I have given you a little to think about this time. And I will take my leave and allow the evening to continue. I as always, with all of us in spirit leave our love and upliftment for all of you. May your daily lives be filled with love, may your consciousness be true and may you allow that Great Spirit to touch others.

(Thanks + farewells)

That's quite a big message—quite a lot to think about. And very much at variance with our TV news bulletins—I have to say that, and as Salumet says, it's something he can say to a group such as this—Our discussion on this in relation to a rapidly changing world continued for 10-minutes or so, before Cho spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_12+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

It's 'Cho'.

(An enthusiastic welcome from all)

I'm going to be your gatekeeper.

(Acknowledged)

That's what I'm here for. There's lots of you tonight.

(Agreed)

George: Yes, there are twelve of us here tonight.

Not as many as I've got!

(As expected!)

George: I hope we're not overworking you.

No fear!

(Laughs)

No fear—I'm not here to talk, I'm here to guide some through. Can you understand me?

(General assurance)

I've been practicing.

Sara: Very good.

If anyone wants to speak, speak up!

Paul: I was wondering about these people that are with you. Are they going to come through tonight?

—If you let them.

Paul: Well we'd like to.

It all depends on you.

George: I thought it depended on you!

(Laughs)

No—you naughty!

(More laughs)

—Not me. I got to go.

George: I think I notice more clarity in your speaking (yes). Well done!

Yes—I still trying get Cho—hard.

(Appreciative comments)

Paul: Yes, but it's coming along nicely.

Somebody come for YOU, lady.

Jan: Let them come through—Are they with you now?

No YOU!

(Realisations that Jan was to be used for speech)

—I'm Cho, I let them through. That rhymes, doesn't it?

(Laughs)

'Cho' and 'thru' ... I'm off!

Lilian: I was going to say are you going to stay with us.

Cho then left to allow others to speak. Cho had a speech defect in Earth life and is learning to get speech articulated and flowing.

Eileen commented that there are a few around and we waited to see what would happen next

Eileen: Have you got anything Dawn?

Dawn: No but there's a lot over here.

Eileen assured there are those over there between Dawn and Jan. We waited in silence, then one via Jan, who after a brief introduction, began to talk about what they used to do on Earth:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_12+Bob+the+Thatcher.mp3

Sara: What did you do Robert, or should I say, what do you do with yourself?

Which one do you want to know?

Sara: Well, whatever you want to tell us.

I was a Thatcher.

Mark: Whereabouts did you do that?

Dorset.

Mark: There are not many around these days—thatchers.

No—lots in my day, but then—lots of thatchers. Chuckle

Mark: When was your day then?

1860—something like that—a long time ago, isn't it?

(Agreed)

Eileen: Must have kept you very busy.

It was a good living—not a bad living. You know, it put bread on the table and paid the rent. It was cold; we had some bad winters then—really bad!—you don't know what bad winters are really—not now with all this global warming and things warming up. It's true—it has. We had some terrible winters. You could have snow on the ground for 4 or 5 months, in the winter—it never went!

Mark: Did you still thatch in the cold?

Oh, you had to—you had to—very difficult mind. Them metal things—what were they called?—it's so long ago—the blacksmith would make them, they looked like half a ring and when you put them in ... ah blimey! Your skin could stick to those—when it got cold it was like a burn, you know?

(Affirmations)

You know what I mean by the metal things?

Mark: Yes. I bet there were some accidents, weren't there?

Well, I fell off the roof a couple of times—yeah! You couldn't really thatch when it was very icy, or if there was a lot of snow on the roof, you'd had it. We had a hard life, us country folk really—well, we all did—those in the city I understand didn't have it much easier really. At least we had a privy down the garden—they had to do it in the street!—Awful in'nit?

(Agreed)

Mark: I suppose you had a bit of cider down in Dorset, did you?

(Chuckles)

Have you been there then?

Mark: Yeah!

Well, not so much Dorset, was it? The 'scrumpy' (cider) was Somerset—Somerset made the scrumpy.

Sara: Nice countryside in Dorset.

Oh yes, it still is. I love it. I have a look now and again. I can still recognise the coast—the coast you know, it hasn't changed.

Sara: Lulworth, the lovely rugged place.

Yeah, that's still—and Durdle Dor.

Lilian: Chesil beach.

Chesil! Oh I say—they still fish that stretch like there's no tomorrow—yeah.

Graham: What do you think of modern thatching now? It is the same skills?

Same—well actually I think they're a lot tidier than we were. They take months!

Eileen: Did you use local thatch or did you buy from somewhere else?

Reeds—we didn't use the straw then—that's not Dorset—it's reeds.

Eileen: Right, okay.

They're different—reeds are what holds the warmth in, in the thatch. Yeah, we was busy—not so many now really. All gone—even public houses were all thatched—that's all gone, isn't it.

Sara: But we did see the other day—we were driving and we did actually see some brand new houses that had thatched roofs.

Graham: That was in Lulworth.

Sara: We were there last weekend and we saw these thatched brand new houses.

Oh, so I suppose you applied for a job—

(Chuckles)

Perhaps I should come back and show 'em a thing or two—no, I wouldn't wanna do it again.

Graham: What do you do now then? What's your job now?

I haven't got a job—you don't need a job, do ya?

Sara: You've got a bit of a job talking to us!

(Chuckles)

I'm just being funny—I know what you mean—have I got a job? Well, I suppose it's the same as everybody else really. You've just got to do the best you can—help other people.

Eileen: You've done very well tonight.

Do you know what Cho said to me earlier on—that once I started talking I wouldn't be able to stop—I think he's probably right.

(Chuckles)

He's pulling my jumper. 'Ere—get off!

(Laughs)

I'm alright here, you leave me alone!—I'm alright now. He's laughing—I know I gotta go. I'm quite comfy now though, it's not so warm. It's nice, I like you lot, you're alright.

Mark: You'll come back and see us again then, will you?

Yeah, I'd like that—just call me 'Bob' next time.

Agreed

Robert's a bit stuffy, innit? I'm coming! (Directed at Cho the gatekeeper) Oh dear, oh dear, oh dear!

(Chuckles)

Eileen: Is that so someone else can come?

I don't know—he's pulling me. What's going on? Oh well, I've gotta go, he said—I better go. Love to everybody.

General farewells, then another via Jan:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_12+second+thru+Jan.mp3

I'm so sorry about that.

Sara: We enjoyed it.

I'm glad you did—he's a character!

(Chuckles)

No one have any questions?

Sara: Can I ask your name?

I knew that was coming, I just knew it—someone would ask my name. My name's 'Betty'.

(Said with a merry chuckle)

Dawn: That's a good question to start with.

It's polite isn't it—we've all done it, haven't we?—we all do it. Even here in spirit we say, what's your name? It doesn't matter—I'm sure you've heard that before—it doesn't matter, but it's still nice—to be addressed with a name.

Sara: Have you been before Betty?

No.

Mark: Did Cho have to push you in?

(Laughs)

I volunteered.

Lilian: Have you been to other groups?

No. The little group of us here—this is my first time.

Sara: So what do you like to do Betty?

I sew for the children. I like children—I like the children—always been happy around children.

Eileen: What made you want to come to us Betty?—to visit us.

Well, we're working on 'rescues', regarding the children; and so, to instruct children in rescues, it's important that we experience for ourselves. I can't ask a child to speak through an instrument unless I've done it.

(Acknowledged)

—Or guide a child. Do you understand?

(Affirmed)

Sara: You're doing it very well.

That's lovely.

Mark: So you don't feel it a bit warm then—in here, like Bob did?

No—very comfortable, thank you.

Mark: That's good.

So it's been wonderful—and I'm going to do this again.

Eileen: Were you nervous to do it?

Mm, it's a bit like going up in front of the headmaster!

(Laughter)

—Very nervous—silly really, but yes; it's out of your comfort zone.

Sara: Yes, anything new is a little bit out of the comfort zone, isn't it?—we find that too, with everything we do.

I know—but isn't fear silly?

Sara: Well it's worth facing it sometimes isn't it?

We hang onto it, don't we—even in spirit we hang onto that fear—not in a negative way you understand, but you know, you're still shy and hesitant. There's no need is there?

Sara: No there isn't, not really.

What's the worst thing that can happen?

Mark: You just look a plonker, that's all—but it doesn't last.

(Chuckles)

I love that word!—I'm going to use that.

(Laughs)

Sara: Well we don't have to worry about cabbages being thrown any more do we, or things like that?

I came after than dear—yes. Oh this has been nice! I'm a friend of your mums.

(Warm appreciation of this)

Mark/Sara: Give her our love.

She put me in touch.

Paul: Did you know her on Earth?

No, we've become friends.

Sara: Ah yes, because she loves the children too?

Yes.

Graham: That's how you met—is she with you now?

No, she isn't—she IS of course in spirit isn't she—of course she's with us. But not WITH me.

Sara: Not at this moment.

No—Anyway, I too am being pulled back now, okay?—so lots of love.

Sara: Thank you for coming Betty.

I hope to come at your Christmas time, for the children.

Graham: Ah that's very special.

Bye-Bye for now.

(General farewells)

Finally, one via Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_12+light-hearted+one.mp3

Hello there!

All: Hello.

I'll be the last one.

Lilian: Nice to meet you.

Yes—I said to Cho: I'll come on your first visit, after those two have spoken—I thought it might be a good time to step in.

Lilian: So what news have you got to tell us?

—Nothin'.

(Laughs)

I'm not bringing news—I've just come to help Cho out. He's new to this (yes). I said: I'll step in—I've done it before. And I have listened in at times—even though you don't know me.

Sara: What's your name?

My name?—Barnham.

Sara: Barnham.

Yeah—lovely name.

Agreed

Mark: Unusual name—around these parts.

—Around these parts?

Mark: Yeah—Barnham—I don't think I've met a Barnham before.

Oh well, you can call me what you like sir—don't matter.

Mark: I'll call you 'Barnham'.

Call me what you like.

George: It's nice to have a name that's a little different.

You speak for yourself!

(Laughs)

George: Well, my name's George, so—pretty common I think.

(Chuckles)

—Yeah, quite common. Well I'm sure you're very nice sir—don't mean to be rude.

George: We try.

Just my manner you know—people take me all wrong. Quite nice—I quite like the ladies as well.

(Laughs)

George: So what part of the world are you from?

Well it's called 'spirit'.

(Guffaws)

George: I don't know whether to call that a big place or a small place!

I can assure you sir, you can go anywhere you like here (yes). You don't need transport (yeah)—don't need wheels—don't need anything.

Lilian: Much quieter.

Much quieter?

George: —Quieter—yes. What I really meant was—

I know what you meant sir (yes)—I'm not actually that daft!

(Laughs)

George: I'm sure you're not, Barnham.

I don't even discuss where I'm from—

(Laughs)

I'm just an awkward geezer!

(Laughs and a cough)

Was that me making you cough?

George: No, I've got a funny throat.

Oh, you need to get that sorted or else you'll be joining us.

(Laughs)

George: Yes, well I'm getting on in years, so I might be joining you in the fairly near future!

No you're not—no you're not. Don't you be trying to get out of your job!

(Hearty laughter)

I know what these men are like.

George: Well, you say it's nice and quiet where you are?

It is—it's great. Where's the little lady gone?—she's gone all quiet on me.

Lilian: Me? I'm just listening.

You're supposed to be talking to me!

Lilian: Am I—sorry about that.

Anyway, I've done my bit—that's good enough—yeah—alright.

(The last bit being as an aside to Cho)

Lilian: Well, nice to have met you.

'Cho'—'e can't talk properly either can he—keeps saying 'Cho' ... who wants a bleedin' name like 'Cho'?

(Much laughter)

George: You've had words with Cho before you dropped by, have you?

Dropped by?!—You're a bit of a comedian sir!

(More hearty laughter)

George: Well, he is the gatekeeper, so I wondered if—

He's in charge—I'm only joking with you sir. I don't mean to be rude, but it's just my nature.

(Chuckles)

I've got to go.

George: I'm sure you haven't really got a rude nature. You have a touch of humour.

Is that what you call it?

(Chuckles)

I just wanted you to all finish on a bright note. I'm not really this gruff.

Jan: Do you know Bob quite well—do you know Robert quite well?

Sara: 'Bob the Builder'?

What? Who's Bob the builder?

Lilian: m—Bob-the-Thatcher.

(Laughs)

She makes me laugh!

Sara: 'Bob-the-Thatcher'.

'Bob the Builder'—who's 'Bob the Builder'?

(Laughs)

Jan: He's a child's TV character.

Ah, somebody's just telling me—that was funny wasn't it? Yes, I know Bob—he's a nice kind character.

We all know each other. Anyway, I got to go, 'cause Cho—

(Laughs)

Sara: —Is he pulling you back as well?

He's just saying: get a move on—time to go.

Lilian: It's nice of you all to come.

I think so.

Paul: A lovely evening.

George: I know who Bob is?—Bob's your uncle!

(More laughs)

Bob's—your—uncle? Now you've really got me confused! Bob's your uncle—Bob the Builder?

George: It's just an expression.

I should think it is—oh blimey, what I let myself in for! Anyway—you folks all have a good time—I'm going off now.

Lilian: Thanks for coming.

(General farewells)

George's Notes:

1: Bob's your uncle: A very English expression meaning: everything is alright or a successful result. The origin is uncertain but likely to be political, relating to Prime Minister (1895-1902) Robert Arthur Talbot Gascoyne-Cecil. As 'uncle Bob' he appointed his nephew Arthur Balfour into favoured political positions, and the word 'nepotism' is derived from 'nephew'!

2: Plonker: At first used from mid-19th century meaning something large of its kind, but now refers to a silly person.

3: Modern Thatching: Traditionally, thatching in the UK is a local art using local materials—water reed, combed winter wheat straw or a combination. As such, it was always expedient and economic as well as nicely insulating. Combine-harvesting of wheat now makes quality straw much less available and local building regulations have added their difficulties. And reed often has to be imported from Europe. In general, reed lasts longer than straw, but the latter is used for the roof ridge because it is more flexible. The ridge is likely to need replacement every 10-20 years. The reed is likely to last around 50-years, but while wheat straw has a shorter life it need simply have a fresh layer laid over the old as required. While there are now modern competing systems, thatch still has popularity because it is good insulation, in reality carries very little fire risk if done properly and it has attractive appearance. But as Bob says, it now takes much longer (and is also more expensive).

~19th October 2015~ SALUMET

On this occasion, Sarah who has been caring for her elderly father was able to be with us, and our dear friend Jette, on a visit from Denmark, also sat with us:

Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_19+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet—nice to have you with us again.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

We welcome back our dear friend who has been absent for a short time.

Sarah: Thank you very much—it's good to be back.

Of course, you know that we have never been too far from you.

Sarah: No—thank you very much.

—And also, as always, we wish to welcome your guest this time. It is always good to welcome those who have a connection with spirit. As you well know, once that spiritual connection is made, there is no one who can sever it—only the individual themselves. But although this happens very occasionally it is not the normal way of things. Therefore we are grateful, my dear friends, for all the love that is brought to this room—many who have visited and those of you who are dedicated to spirit. I cannot of course thank you enough for all the work that you do. If there are questions to be asked this time then please speak out.

(Pause)

George: Do you wish to ask a question Jette?

Jette: Yes please—it might be a big one. I am wondering Salumet, why does our beloved father-mother God always want to be in omniverses/universes, and all us people and the grass and the leaves—I wonder if it's for fun and for creativity, please?

—For fun and creativity. We desire, those of us in spirit, that those who abide upon this planet make the fullness of life, which is their entitlement. Who are we to deny happiness and joy, and 'fun and creativity' as you call it; but human beings themselves tend towards negative views so often, and this we in spirit struggle with constantly. So I would say that each individual, each individual on this planet has a responsibility to live life to the full, because innately as individuals you know what that is, even if you are not consciously aware. But I say that the Great Creator, who knows all things, knows each of us, because we are part of that great creation—knows what is best for us; and because we are part of that great creation, then it is up to us to fulfil all of these things whilst on this planet. Does this help you just a little?

Jette: Thank you very much.

You are ever seeking, my dear friend—constantly looking—constantly feeling—constantly questioning, but for you that is part of this lifetime for you—that these questions and answers are of so much importance. It is the pathway that you walk. But let me tell you, my dear friend, that you are supported in every step that you take and when your time comes to leave this Earthly planet, you my dear friend, will look back upon your life and be happy with what you have achieved. We know that you crave more information but, as with all others, you have to be a little patient. You understand?

Jette: Yes, very well—thank you so much. I am so pleased with the messages—thank you.

Now, have we any other questions this time?

George: Could I just add to that—positive creativity—yes, this clearly is our best and proper way forward, while negative creativity is so sad. Perhaps it sometimes has its place in helping us to become more positive. But as you imply, it's the positive creativity that we should ideally all be seeking—

Yes, as always there are always mirrored sides to all of these conditions. In the same way that you experience sadness—how can you know happiness if the experience has not been felt? Too often mankind dwells on the negativity, as you say, but it is our work, it is our gift to The Creator to try to uplift those who have negative fears—who have negative lives, and to turn that energy into positive occurrences; as it is your task, my dear friends—your task, my dear friend, has been to spread the word of spirit, and you have done this admirably. And for this, spirit will always be indebted to you (thank you), not only for the work that you have achieved here, but in giving the help to those in spirit when it has been needed. So you see, my dear friend, you are creating positive energy at every step of your living (thank you). We thank you deeply for it—for all of you within this room, who come and succumb to give their energy in order that we may speak with you.

George: It is also appropriate that we thank those in spirit for standing by and for assisting. I'm sure their assistance is of great value to the total way forward.

Yes, you will never stand alone. I am sure that many of you have felt this to be—that sometimes you feel you are guided or uplifted, or a thought or idea enters your thinking that moves you forward for the better. All of you have experienced this, and whilst you are dedicated to the work of spirit, there will always be the help, but remember that I have told you in past times that you must ask for our help (yes), especially those beings in the Angelic Realms who have a little more vision and are able to come closer to you.

(Pause)

Are there more—?

George: I wonder if—following your teaching last week Salumet—I find I am often analytical of the various political ramifications that go on. And although one sees both positivity and negativity—with rather too much of the latter—I find I can still love everyone concerned and recognise that they are each on their own pathway at, shall I say different levels; but regardless of being analytical, I feel I still love everyone concerned and recognise where they are. Would you have any comment on this?

Yes—you have been endowed with a brain which thinks sometimes perhaps more than others. There is nothing wrong in analysing any situation upon your Earth. Yes, I have given to you the knowledge that love outlives all negativity. Love will always come to the fore. And yes, I totally understand why you say the words that you do. Of course, you can be analysing situations, but still love your fellow man, as long as you do not allow the negativity to creep in and allow your views to be changed too drastically in the other way. You understand?

George: Yes, thank you, that does help—

Yes, as long as you are clinging to the love of all men, then there can be no question that you are following the right pathway.

George: That's very reassuring—thank you Salumet.

You live in a world that at times is angry, at times is cruel to other human beings, and of course there has to be some order, but what I speak of, my dear friend, rises above all human happenings. The love I speak of comes from that part of your spirit which is all-loving and all-giving. You understand? (Mm—yes)—that is not to say you must be blinded and not understand what is happening in your world—that is not what I was saying. I was telling you to look inward and to find that deep spiritual love which comes from spirit—and understanding that is greater than any that you could have as a human being. I hope that helps you.

George: Indeed—yes, from deep within with no judgement.

Yes, you must never make judgement—after all, none of us are the Great Creator. Therefore, you must find that deep abiding love within.

George: Yes, thank you so much.

Now—I feel I have spoken enough and reminded you of why you are here and what your lives are about—about never harming another human being—to never pass judgement, because you do not have enough knowledge to do so—and to find that deep love within you; and it is within each and every one of you—and to let that love grow and you will automatically do what is right for yourselves and for your fellow man. And now, I will withdraw this time and allow whatever is to come next. I leave you as always my dear friends, with our love, with upliftment and with we hope a little wisdom.

George: Wonderful!

(General thanks and appreciation from all)

Following a pause of several minutes while Eileen returned, she and Lilian had clairvoyance of a group of happy people of mixed nationalities, all waving. The impression was that they were ex-holocaust but now a very happy group. After another pause, one was with Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_19+Sister+of+Mercy.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening my child.

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

I wish to join with you if you would allow. I have listened to your every words. I feel your pain. I feel your anxiety—I feel all that you feel. When I was here upon this Earth I spoke to God every day (yes), but now I know that God is not quite the full picture; so I would like to take you and say a prayer for all of you.

Lilian: That's very kind.

—To ask the Great Creator that you may all be blessed with upliftment—that you be blessed in your everyday lives—that you do the best that you can in that life; and goodness only knows how difficult it is at times to deal with life. We are not unaware of the trials and tribulations which humankind suffers from. Therefore my prayer for you, my dear children, is that you have the knowledge and wisdom to take you forward in all aspects of your life, in order that you do what is necessary for you to do. I extend to you great love. I extend to you the understanding of mankind. And I extend to you all, the knowledge that there exists a much greater life for you when the time is right. So as I come to you all tonight, I wish that you feel the love of spirit—to wrap around you, to comfort, and to love you, each and every moment of your existence.

George: What a lovely prayer!—thank you so much for that. Might I ask if you were with a religious order whilst in Earth life?

I was indeed, and I still revert to some of the—as you see, my hands are often joined together (yes), when I return. It comes from a remembrance of who I was, but as you know, it is of no concern any more. And of course, you are right—I indeed spent a lifetime as a Sister of Mercy.

George: Ah—wonderful! Thank you.

Yes—thank you all.

Next, following a brief period of clairvoyance from Eileen, she asked Jette if there was anyone speaking to her—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_10_19+Jesus+via+Jette.mp3

Jette: Well—Yes—it's my good friend—and everybody's friend—a wonderful man.

Eileen: What's his name?

Jette: Yeshua ben Yosef—who walked the planet over 2000-years ago.

Eileen: Is there anything he wishes to say?

I greet you (thank you). Beloved brothers and sisters, I'm honoured to be with you.

Eileen: And we're pleased to have you here—thank you.

I just want to say a few things through this, my friend that I know so well for many years.

Eileen: You do?

I really only want to say one precious thing—(yes?)—and listen well now.

Eileen: We're listening.

Nothing happens outside of YOU. Can you comprehend that?

Eileen: Nothing happens outside of us.

No—it is your perception that forms your whole life—and I know it is too hard to take in, but you might take it out in your daily life. One day you will know that it is right. And we are gathered—a huge amount of energy here to see your light. And let me tell you one more thing of the truth: we see your mastery. We see that you are about to have the full awareness of your masterhood. You are all ready to become the Masters that you once were—from the beginning of time. YOU have been there with your love, and we honour you, as your beloved Salumet does—we bring our blessings to your forward, re-membering to your mastery again.

Eileen: Well, that was wonderful—thank you. Thank you for those words.

Paul: Yes, thank you—wonderful message.

George: Yes, we are much indebted to you for those words—thank you.

Paul: It gives us a lot to think about.

I leave you now because—and with the strong, strong connection that we are all one with the 'I am' presence. Amen.

Paul: Amen.

Eileen: Bless you.

George's Notes:

1: Yeshua ben Yosef: This is deemed to be the original name of Jesus of Nazareth, prior to AD 30, and means 'Yeshua', son of Joseph. 'Jesus' is actually a misspelling of the Greek version 'Iesous' that was later Latinized to 'Iesus' under the authority of Emperor Constantine who presided over the Council of Nicaea. The letter 'J' did not enter into the English language until the mid-17th century. All relatives and friends knew this one as 'Yeshua'.

2: Analysis of Political Ramifications: A current example of 'cause and effect' analysis that appears to be non-existent in media news reports of today, is the sudden huge immigration problem with which Europe struggles to find a solution. But it is so clear that people are being driven from their homelands by the warring conducted by people who are 'foreigners' to their country. These 'foreigners' use and supply mega-weapons (drones, bombs, aircraft, guns, rockets etc) that destroy homes and create a living hell from which people flee in terror. This is clearly the cause that produces the effect. So the obvious solution is to stop supplying munitions—stop the warring. And if necessary, very heavily penalise any firms and countries that dare to continue to promote and support aggression in this way. The above is an analysis of a highly problematical situation. But as is amply borne out in this meeting transcript—WE ARE ALL ONE, and ALL ARE LOVED for individually believing in what they do—and all are part of humanity's evolving consciousness. And our collective consciousness will ever approach a greater perfection; so that we may later look back on these more primitive decades, see them as such and wonder why all that happened. But we must never ever lose sight of the fact that WE ARE ALL ONE.

3: Further Commentary re Jesus: A question had been placed regarding Jesus during the meeting of 13th August 2001:

George: I wonder if I could also ask about—I was reading Edgar Casey on this, and he mentions past lives of Jesus and a number of past lives of people known to history and I imagined Jesus evolved to his state of perfection as a result of a number of past lives on this planet.

Of course—and may I say to you that the essence of the one you call 'Jesus' still exists. Does that surprise you that the essence of this being is present here upon your Earth at this time? (Yes.)

Lilian: In a physical form?

Yes. Remember what I have told you, you are not one being. Would it not seem natural that Spirit as developed as the one you call Jesus, has trodden many lifetimes and continues to do so? Remember there is no perfection that you know of. Do you understand this, my dear friends? (Yes.) He has been revered as the greatest one, but he is but one of many. If you can hold this in your thinking, then you would understand more. The being known as Jesus upon this Earth, does not wish to be revered. He came to do work which he had chosen to do. Mankind has placed him upon a pedestal; but the essence of his being still continues to do good within your world.

George: One particular reincarnation that has been mentioned is that of Akhenaten in Ancient Egypt. If that indeed were an incarnation of Jesus at that time, it would solve a number of historical riddles for us.

Yes, you see, there is always problems when what you call 'religion' interferes. The Spirit is always present, the Spirit will return to continue work, and I can tell you that the one known to you as Jesus, has returned many times, not just one part, but many, because in his own development, he has achieved much.

Lilian: So would he still be a teacher of sorts?

He would be a spiritual teacher, yes. He has attained the knowledge to such a degree that he cannot return to what you would call normal life. He would always be in some form a spiritual teacher, whether it be in the form of male or female. Do not forget this, because it is important. I can tell you that he is at this present time a female. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmations + thanks)

George: So would it be his same soul aspect, as opposed to, in the case of the Dalai Lama, different aspects of the same soul?

Always it is an aspect of the soul. It is never the same aspect.

~2nd November 2015~

Our first visitor was one with fidgety feet:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_02+Olive-architecture+etc.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you.

Hello.

(Pause)

I'm always amazed you sit so still.

Lilian: Well we ask for healing for anyone who might need some help, and then we just sit quietly and wait to see who might come from your realms.

I know but—it just amazes me; I never could sit still!

(Chuckles)

Lilian: It's not always easy.

No it isn't—especially when you have itchy feet! So, have you been doing this for very long?

Lilian: —for myself—yes, quite a long time.

—Quite a long time—

George: More than 20-years.

Oh that's such a long time! Let me tell you: that is but a blink of the eye.

George: But a blink of the eye—

But in your time, I know it's a VERY long time.

Lilian: Did you used to sit in a group like this?

I tried, but I was too fidgety—I didn't have your composure. I was too, I suppose, nose-y. I didn't want to miss anything—I wouldn't shut my eyes.

(Chuckles)

Yes, you may well laugh. It was amusing to me but not the others; so I decided: no, that was not for me.

So that's why I'm interested now—yes, so I just come back and look. Not all are as good as you are.

George: So did you find alternative interests whilst on Earth?

I just used to pray—that's all I did; and I just found there was a calmness when I did that—a peace that I managed to hold onto. But to actually sit quietly and not say a word, well really that was like purgatory to me—yes. As you probably notice, I keep chattering now, don't I?

Lilian: Why not?

Yes. But I don't bring any specific message to you. I just wanted to say how I admired you all.

George: Oh, that's very kind (yes), but as to describing yourself as 'fidgety', well I can only say: it takes all sorts!

It certainly does sir—all kinds—yes.

Lilian: And it's nice you come through to talk to us—that's why we meet.

Oh I really know the reason why you do it (yes), of course I know—I do know that.

Lilian: It's nice to chat to someone on your side.

You like to call on us do you?

Lilian: Yes, maybe find out what they do in spirit, and so on.

Anything you want—anything you want to do, you can do in spirit. I'm sure you've been told that before (yes). Yes, of course you have. You're not silly people, are you?

Lilian: Can you tell us what you do?

What do I do other than visit people like yourselves? I'm still learning—I'm learning an awful lot; and sometimes I work with the children, sometimes I work with animals, and another time I study architecture (oh!). Isn't that interesting?

George: It's quite a mixture!

It IS a mixture, but whatever you want to do, you can do—and I bet you can't say that here!

Lilian: Not really.

No, I know you can't.

George: So you have an appreciation of architecture—

Well I am (interested) in spirit, because the materials are so different (ah yes). Yes, there's no heavy weight like there is on the Earth—no heavy bricks—nothing that's too dark—everything is light and beautiful; and yet, you can create this beautiful building and it's just amazing.

Lilian: Have you done that yourself?

I'm studying light structure at the moment. Yes, that you visualise light and it can become a structure of anything you wish.

George: Yes—I've been reading about Atlantis recently (yes), and there are wonderful Edgar Cayce accounts of past lives of people on Atlantis (yes), and wonderful descriptions of temples—their architecture, built with red, black and white stones.

Yes—we wouldn't have red and black in our structures, because it's of a different ilk—is that the right word—I think?

Paul: Yes.

I have to say this before we continue: will you apologise to this lady, because I can't stop moving her feet—

(Laughs)

You see, that's the problem isn't it? Sorry sir, I interrupted you. Yes, our—shall I call them bricks just for recognition? Yes, these bricks are constructed from light, and as you know, light has beautiful colours—shines through beautiful colours, in the same way that the water does. Have you seen anything like that? Have you been aware of anything like that?

George: I've been aware of Mayan temples that are made of limestone blocks—
Yes, that's closer to it.

George: At night time in certain conditions, you can see a wonderful violet glow from them.

Yes, that's right—you can. Well, you'll have a wonderful surprise when you come to us—all of you will. Yes, and by then I'm hoping that I've built my own structure. But I've got a lot to learn, and of course the problem is keeping two feet to the ground for any length of time!

Paul: Do you have to learn to materialise each brick?

You can think—the thought creates. Yes, and as that thought becomes constructed, there it is.

George: You began by saying you did not come to give us any particular message, but you're giving us a very nice message about your architectural pursuits.

Oh! I am so pleased! Perhaps I'm not such a scatterbrain.

(Laughs)

Oh, if only these feet could stay still—I'm so sorry.

Paul: Oh I don't expect—I'm sure it doesn't bother the lady.

Well I do hope that you give her my apologies—I've already said 'sorry' but she's not responding.

(Chuckles)

George: Did you wish to interject Lilian?

Lilian: No, no—that's okay—

Lilian? That's a pretty name!

Lilian: Thank you. What's your name?

Olive.

(Several repeated 'Olive?')

Yes! You can't eat me though.

(Chuckles)

George: Yes, well 'Olive' conjures up very nice thoughts: the olive branch, peace and love.

Well I strive to be all of those things, but I have to say I'm a bit naughty—I did have a very funny sense of humour and I still struggle with it.

Mark: Well, that's a nice thing—it's a nice thing to have a sense of humour.

Well, I believe some people can find it most irritating. But I do know when to stop.

Mark: Ah, that's good.

George: Well, I think we all appreciate a little humour.

Yes, it glitizes the day, does it not? Yes of course it does. Yes—oh well, I can hear my friends calling to me—saying: get those feet moving in the right direction!

Lilian: We're just pleased you've come to visit.

Yes, it's been a great joy—I've really, really, really enjoyed it.

Lilian: Come again if you can (yes).

George: Yes Olive, please do come again.

Yes—well, you know there's so much to keep us occupied. I'm always amused when people say: what do they do in spirit?—as if it's all or nothing. You know? We are very busy if we want to be.

Paul: It's so interesting.

George: I think we understand that the main life goes on in spirit and this Earthly existence is just a top-up really—

Yes—don't make me feel sorry for you.

(Laughs)

Now I really do have to go. I give my thanks to all of you for allowing me to use my fidgety feet.

(General thanks)

Lilian, as requested, passed on apologies to Eileen for fidgety feet, and this of course had been no problem to her. Eileen had been aware of the very light and crystal-like colourful stonework. Our dear friend Cho then spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_02+Cho.mp3

He explained that he would like to come and tell us more about himself another time and he had a little joke with us before he left:

So, I have to tell you one thing: I visited a group like this and when it was time to leave—they said: 'Ciao Cho!'

(Laughter)

I wondered what they were saying to me! 'Ciao Cho!'

Paul: Ah yes—you know what it means now though, don't you—

Yes—I thought you would like to know that.

Paul: Yeah, we can use that one sometimes—yes.

Yeah—I have to go.

Paul: Yeah okay—bye for now Cho.

(Eileen said afterwards that the side of the face felt in some way twisted.

'Ciao', pronounced 'chow' is the Italian 'goodbye / hello' but has become more universally used.)

There followed a period of clairvoyance from Eileen. This included reference to 'itchy eyes' that three declared they had. This it seems was just to let us know that there are those in spirit who are aware of our lives. And a fleeting shadow that one had seen was not imagination—and there would be more. And then a rescue:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_02+rescue.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

(Pause)

Lilian: Do you wish to talk?

No.

Lilian: Feeling a bit cross?

Yes.

Lilian: Well it might help if you could talk about it—sharing it with someone helps sometimes.

I didn't let you in.

Lilian: Well, I crept in, but I'm quite friendly.

You don't go creeping into people's places!

Lilian: Well, I think I've crept in to help you.

Where's my stick?

Lilian: How many sticks do you have?—one or two?—to help you walk around?

I don't believe this—walking into my house—who do you suppose you are?

Lilian: Well, I'm here to help—that's the thing you need to remember. If you could tell me your—

Are you that new nurse they promised me—they promised me, they did.

Lilian |: I'm just someone to help you.

—Do what?

Lilian: Well, to show you—or at least to tell you what's happened and why I'm here. Did you feel unwell all of a sudden?

I'm always unwell dear.

Lilian: But did you feel even more—a little bit faint perhaps?

Yes.

Lilian: You closed your eyes?

Just for a second—but I'm fine now—you can see I am.

Lilian: Yes, I know you're fine now. But had you ever thought what would happen when you died?

Of course.

Lilian: What did you think?

Well, they'd bury me.

Lilian: —and that would be the end of that!

Yes.

Lilian: Right—well it's not the end, in fact it's a new beginning, and that's the bit that you hadn't thought about. I'm just here to tell you that we live on.

No—that's a lot of tosh!

Lilian: Well, you feel perfectly well?

Yes, I'm fine.

Lilian: Yes, you feel nice and warm, and do you feel a lot of love around you?—think about it. You feel a pull towards love? And that seems to be pulling you forward (mm). You feel happy.

I feel—yes, I suppose I do—yes, I suppose I do, in a way.

Lilian: And ahead of you, you can see light?

I can't see anything.

Lilian: Well you just wait a little while and you'll see a light—a light that again, will draw you to it. And you'll see someone waiting. And that someone is waiting to take you forward into spirit. Although you hadn't thought about it, it's there and we all have to go the same way—to start a new life.

This is too much to take in.

Lilian: It is—I understand—if you hadn't thought about it, it's just a bit too much, but it will make sense to you as you move forward.

Oh!

Lilian: Who can you see?

Like a little star—pretty little star—mm.

Lilian: Getting bigger?

Mm, yes—I'm really confused now.

Lilian: Try not to be confused, but what can you see in the light?—in the star?

It's like sunshine—big rays of sunshine, and it's almost—

Lilian: Who would you like to see that has passed on before you? Is there anyone you'd especially like to see?

Well, I don't want to see that husband of mine.

Lilian: No well we'll forget him then.

I didn't have any children—

Lilian: No—did you have a pet?—a pet dog or cat?

—I 'ad a cat.

Lilian: Would you like to see the cat again?

Oh—not too bothered.

(Pause)

Oh yes!—it's my good friend (yes?)—from years and years and years ago!—I should have married him!

Lilian: Oh! Now you can be friends and have a good old chat about days gone by.

Well, well!—he looks like a young man!

Lilian: And that's what you'll look like quite quickly.

—A young man?

Lilian: No—but you'll feel a lot better; as long as you go forward—that's the main thing—I've done my job then.

I have to move forward—

Lilian: Yeah, towards your friend.

Well, it's like he's coming to get me (good). Well—do you know something?

Lilian: A nice surprise?

No—I LIKE you!

Lilian: (with a chuckle) Good.

Oh, this is lovely!

Lilian: Yes, the main thing is you've listened to me and that's all that matters.

I never would have believed it could be so lovely, and I'm not in that old chair any more, am I?

Lilian: No, you won't need it.

I'm free (yes). I'm free, yes I'm free!

Lilian: And you're happy to go—I'm sure you are.

Bye—good bye.

Lilian: Bye.

(It was a wonderful turnaround and Eileen said afterwards that she could feel her smiling.)

~9th November 2015~ SALUMET+Cho

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_09+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Once again I am happy to join with you.

Lilian: Yes, we are pleased you've come.

I bring to each of you, upliftment and much love from our world. There is some need of it in different ways with you all, for this to take place. My dear friends, you should by now be aware of the tremendous strides being made in your medical fields. Much is happening in your world at this time; much is being discovered by those who seek relief and help and cure for many of your ailments, and this, my dear friends, I am pleased to tell you is taking place at a great speed. I hope you are aware of some of these happenings.

Jan: Yes we are.

Lilian: Yes, things are certainly changing and they're finding out things very quickly.

Yes, those of us in spirit are working hard to impress those people in knowledge and also to help to bring comfort and upliftment for many who are suffering. It is a great part of our work at the moment—in this moment of your Earthly life. There is no need for me to make details, because I know that it is widely spread throughout your media when these things occur. So I say to you, my dear friends: be thankful that the Creator has allowed these things to happen at this time in your lives. There will be eradication of many diseases—not quite all, but many, and it is not as far away as you may think. So, my dear friends, that is a message I wished to impart to you all. Be hopeful, be kind, be caring to all those in need, and of course be thankful for yourselves that the Creator has given you this opportunity to exist in this lifetime.

George: Yes—this is a wonderful statement; and I imagine when you say: not all will be cured—I imagine those conditions to be those that we make ourselves, through smoking, bad diet and asbestos—

As always, I will remind you that a great responsibility lies within yourselves (yes). That part does belong to you and as such, as we have spoken previously, those conditions can be helped by yourselves; anything created by you can be gotten rid of by you. You understand?

(Affirmed)

But that is not to say that life will continue forever, because you are made that the physical body will at some time release the spirit.

George: Possibly one (condition) that we do not understand too well is stress, and the stress-related conditions.

Yes, there are always instances that you can recall. But yes, the very lifestyles that most of you lead, creates much stress. Yes, it is a human condition—stress, and as such, can be diminished or made greater by you. It is one of those conditions, where the mind becomes too much involved in its own issues. Whereas with the people who suffer from stress—if only they would open their hearts to a wider audience, then they would find that love flows into themselves—love which would bring you happiness and upliftment. So the answer to stress, my dear friends, is that you dismiss it as a form of fear and let it go. I hope that has answered your question.

George: Yes indeed—a form of fear—and let in love.

Yes, and allow the love you feel to extend its arms to those others—not only within your own circle of friends and family, but to those who are in need. In the same way as within this room, you send healing thoughts to others—others that you do not know personally, but who nevertheless occupy your thoughts. You understand.

(Several acknowledgements)

So my dear friends, that is all this time that I wish to convey. But again—few words trigger many thoughts, and that is what I endeavour to do for you all this time. So as I take my leave, I want you to know and to understand how much love there is that surrounds you in this room. Get to know that feeling of contentment and peace—and LOVE. And safeguard it when you leave this room this evening. Hold onto that feeling of peace and you will, all of you, be uplifted. So I leave you now, again cloaked with love and upliftment.

George: A wonderful message and teaching—thank you Salumet.

(General thanks)

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_09+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

Hello! It's Cho (Oh Cho!). Just a quick drop in—say 'hello' to the lady—not here last time—know where I born?

Jan: Hi Cho.

I have lady here, not wanting to speak, but says that she's making great steps in India and in Africa. She wants you to know. I give you the message because I'm not staying long.

George: I wonder if that is our dear friend Emma?

Yes—she's touching her hat.

George: Oh she loves her large hats!

Yes, but she's not coming to speak this time, but she wants you to know.

George: We wish her well, and it is very good that she continues her work.

Paul: Good work, yes.

Yes, she working all the time, she's saying, but she's been to Africa as well, making great progress.

Jan: Oh that's good.

But her heart is with India still.

George: Yes, I believe she began with India.

Paul: Working with the downtrodden women—yes.

Yes, she's doing a good job.

George: And the way the words are flowing, I think you're making very good progress too.

Yes I am—you noticed—yes; not that I am proud or anything. I found my way to laugh as well—that's probably the way you will recognise me.

(Laughs)

Because I feel I want to smile. But anyway, there are other people waiting, and I wouldn't be doing my job if I stayed here talking.

George: So you're going to let them through—

Yes—perhaps a little push now and again.

Jan: Lovely to hear you.

But I promise I will be coming soon, to tell you a little bit more about me.

Paul: That would be nice, yeah.

George: Well, thank you Cho, and perhaps we should say : 'ciao Cho!'

No! Not that again!

(Laughs)

No, no—you naughty!

(Laughs)

But if you want, I say: ciao! Yeah, goodbye.

(General goodbyes)

(Pause)

I back again!

(Laughs)

You want me to say: I ciao or Cho? What would you prefer?

Jan: Cho.

Cho—shall we have a vote?

(Chuckles)

Mark: Democratic!

Okay, I come back next time—‘Cho’.

It very smiley here—I can’t leave—I will be in trouble.

Paul: Well, you’re the boss of the gate, so you can stay as long as you like!

I may close the gate if I—

(Laughs)

I am going this time.

Paul: Well, come back soon.

George: We look forward to that.

There next followed a period of clairvoyance via Eileen:

There was some discussion as to whether my dear wife Ann was at birth, going to be called ‘Marion’, and I was unable to confirm that at first—but on reflexion, I think that may well be so—and the child of a close friend was given that name; so I think ‘Ann’ became the choice of her parents. This is stretching memory back to a conversation in 1955!

Eileen could see Ann wearing a blue dress and I was asked if I preferred the paler or deeper shades. I responded that the paler shades suit very nicely, and:

George: I recall the old Bing Crosby song: “Moonlight becomes you, It goes with your hair; you certainly know the right things to wear...” It seems to fit!

Ann was also talking about her mother and her interest in fancy lacework—which she showed to Eileen.

Paul and I agreed that she (Connie) had that appreciation and talent for intricate lacework. Ann’s granddaughter Natalie was also present and she had a word for her about looking after her knees (They are apt to get a bit roughed up in her work as a ski and snowboard instructor and Eileen had in fact been giving her healing). Eileen was shown a bottle (could not read the label). I suggested it might be a favourite Cider—which I gather made Ann smile. I volunteered that I had recently attempted a between-worlds conversation in which I inquired what she had been doing ... Enjoying the colourful flowers, especially the blue delphiniums. Ann went on to say:

‘George, you should see the colours over here—what we’ve been told is perfectly true.’

Eileen: She loves the colours. And when you go over—when it’s your time, you can both go to ‘the waterfall’, which is all beautiful colours. She said she’ll be looking forward to that!

George: Yes, well I’m not looking forward to death exactly—but in a manner of speaking, I will certainly look forward to that!

(Chuckles)

Eileen: Yes, she says: don’t be silly!

George: There are just one or two things I would like to do first.

Eileen: She’ll be there with you, she says—don’t worry.

George: Wonderful! That is very cheering and reassuring.

Eileen: I do get the feeling that she is with all of you still quite a lot. It's as if you are all very united and she's in the middle.

George: Ah—I have that feeling myself.

Eileen: And she's pleased about the dress. When you talk to her, you can think about her lovely dress. And as she goes, she's just saying a little 'thank you'.

George: Oh, thank you love, for being with us again and I think, being with us all-the-time.

Eileen: She's throwing a kiss to all of you.

George: I send her one every night.

Eileen: She's returning it George.

It was a beautiful warm exchange that kept us chatting for several minutes. How the lacework was so intricate and Connie had been creative in several ways.

There was further clairvoyance via Eileen regarding progress of Jan's grandchildren—and a cautionary message for Dawn about someone running on the stairs.

George's Notes:

Anything created by you can be gotten rid of by you: How very true! So in order to be rid of:

—Lung cancer from smoking – we stop smoking.

—Lung cancer from asbestos – we stop using it.

—Dietary illness – we review and improve diet.

—War zone injuries – we stop warring.

—Warring – we stop making and selling weapons.

—Drug afflictions – we ban production and sales.

—Toxic air afflictions – we must use clean fuels.

—Mental disorders – we must endeavour to keep the mind free of stress and let in the love.

These are our responsibility, and so it is up to each one of us to exercise our free-will wisely—and set the good example to the collective humanity. If we stopped using drugs, manufacturers would soon go out of business, likewise cigarettes and likewise lethal weapons.

~23rd November 2015~ SALUMET+Cho

On this occasion, Jo was able to join with us again; also Sally and Ben were sitting in for their first time experience—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_23+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As I join with you this time I wish to welcome our dear lady friend on her return to us; we also welcome those here who wish to learn just a little more. There is with them just a little apprehension, especially the dear lady. Do not be concerned because within this room you are surrounded by much love and upliftment. It is always good for us in spirit to see those who wish to gain a little more knowledge.

Sometimes we forget that not everyone knows as much as we do here, but it is uplifting to know that still we have seekers of truth who are forever looking, who are forever wondering what spirit holds for them. As usual, when we have guests, I will take any questions that they have. I will allow the dear lady here next to me, to conduct these questions to me.

Lilian: Yes, okay.

Ben: I have a question please—um—I recently lost a relative of mine, who passed away, and they were a 'Jehovah Witness' and quite a devout follower of that religion—I wonder if you would be able to comment on how they are getting on in the spirit world?

Yes—I will say this to you: that there are so many religions within your world, no matter what title you choose to follow, whether it be the Christianity or any other—all peoples are destined for the same place—with that, I mean the world of spirit. Your dear relative, if they were happy to be, as you call them: Jehovah's Witnesses, was happy with that life—was happy that they had a good life, that they harmed no one nor pressed another to take their point of view, then they will of course come directly to spirit, but what happens sometimes, is that when they are so set in their ways or have such strong beliefs, that they are drawn to the same kind of people. You may not realise that this can happen and that everyone intermingles, no matter who or what they are. If their religion was so strong that they would still retain it for a while, then your relative will be with those like-minded people, and what eventually happens is that they begin to recognise that there is no need for religious names—that each one is in the image of the Great Creator, no matter who or what they are. This is what is important. Sometimes it takes a while, but what I would like you to remember, my dear friend, is that each and everyone is entitled to the love of those that they have known. So I can truthfully say to you, my dear friend, that whoever this being is—and you must not use them in the past tense, they are still with you; they will have been loved and guided from the minute they passed to spirit. So I say to you: if you are involved in any way with those who become a little fanatical about their religions, just to gently remind them that we all came from the same place, and we will all return to the same place. Has that helped you just a little?

Ben: Yes it has—thank you.

Yes.

Lilian: So would a like-minded person be waiting to greet them when they pass over?

Those with strong thoughts of what they expect, as you know, my dear friend, will find what they expect (yes), but if the feelings are still so strong, they will gravitate to those of like mind. You understand? (Yes) It may only be for a very short time or it may be longer. It depends on the individual and how deep is their religious belief. But as you know, if they have lived a good life upon this Earthly plane, there will always be someone who lovingly greets them.

Lilian: Yes, only last week there was a rescue and for the very first time as I remember, I was saying: you'll see someone in the light waiting for you, and it was an angel! But I guess really they were seeing the light of spirit, were they?

Yes, sometimes with traumatic passings that—they become confused (yes—), especially if the passing is very quick—they become confused. And do not forget that they are still very close to the Earth plane.

Lilian: Yes, but he was frightened too—a little bit frightened.

Yes—because he obviously had not thought too much about what happens when the time comes for them to pass. You understand? (Yes)—yes.

George: Yes—those who have been severely indoctrinated by the older Roman Catholic teaching of really heavy punishments (yes)—they may have an expectation of heavy punishment on passing to spirit. But I think I would be right in saying there are many who are looking out for them and wishing to assist and influence?

As you know, because you have dealt with some rescues, that those of that religion sometimes pass to us confused, because many believe and fear of the place called 'limbo'—which causes confusion, but always there will be someone to greet you, whether it be angelic, whether it be someone who has been close—mothers, fathers, sisters—all are there and ready to help. But sometimes it is those beings who have always been with you throughout time, who will meet you if there is great difficulty. And the question the lady asked: why an angel?—because that would be one association that the gentleman would have recognised. All children are taught about angels and good people, and that would be a thought within their thinking. You understand?

George: Yes—yes, thank you.

Do we have more questions please?

Jo: Salumet—I thank you for coming and talking to us. I would like to ask you about spiritual healing, when we are being used as channels. Do you get the right person for the right person, if you know what I mean?—the right spiritual person for the healer to pass on their healing?

Yes—it depends rather a lot on the spirituality of the person who is being used, i.e. the person who is giving the healing (I see). We can only give as much as that person is able to relay (I see). Yes, there will always be those in spirit whose desire is to help with healing, and it is imperative that the right one is blended in order for the best healing to take place. So—yes, there are no mistakes within that healing for someone not to have the right spiritual healer behind them (thank you). Does that help you?

Jo: Yes it does—it answers my question. Thank you.

You feel you are growing still (yes)—yes.

Jo: Very much so.

Yes, you have made quite a lot of strides forward.

Jo: I hope so—I really hope so.

Do not hope—I am telling you that you have.

Jo: Yes (yes). Thank you very much.

Any more questions please?

George: Do you wish to ask a question Sally?

Sally: No—not at the moment thank you.

She is still a little apprehensive, but we are helping her.

Lilian: I think we all are when we first sit in on something like this.

Yes—I would not like to say: they have thrown you in at the deep end.

(Chuckles)

Sally: I don't feel as if I've been thrown in the deep end!

No.

George: We have spoken Salumet, about the 'crystal skulls'. I have recently received information indicating that they originated in Atlantis (yes), and I just wondered if you are able to confirm that—

I have no doubts about confirming that that is so (thank you)—none whatsoever.

George: Oh, that's very nice to have that.

Yes, there has been so much spoken about these things, and again I have to tell you that as Earth beings, you do like to complicate matters.

(Chuckles)

But yes, I can assure you, my dear friend, that it is so.

George: That's very nice to know.

I want to just say something to you, my dear friend: I do not want you—and I am going to use one of your Earthly sayings—to burn the candle at both ends. I know you become a little enthusiastic about your writings, and we are indeed grateful for all the good work that you do. But, as I say: just be aware that you do not over-tire yourself. This is not a reprimand—it is encouragement for you.

George: Actually—yes, I do welcome that, and again, it's really another confirmation, because I have indeed felt the need to slow down just a little.

Yes, your energy is a little depleted, and I am not speaking of Earthly energy my friend, as you may well know (yes), and it is important for us in the world of spirit to help you maintain tip-top conditions.

George: I thank you for your concern and advice—yes, thank you.

Lilian: Better remind him Mark (Mm).

(Chuckles)

(Pause)

We are very still and quiet this time.

George: Salumet—we do have a question that has been sent in by one of our audio-link listeners—from the other side of the world, in Tasmania (yes). I know we have spoken on the subject of 'global warming', but he was wondering if you could speak any further on that. Are there any updates, and the thought was sparked by the governor—or he found out that the governor of Florida has banned use of the term 'climate change' throughout his state—this has sparked his thinking in that direction, and I think he's looking for a little hope for our world in this respect. Are you able to speak further on 'global warming'?

I believe I have told you that all of these things that happen within your world—all of these concerns and worries are in the whole unfounded. Your world—your planet—has to evolve, and this you know and understand (yes). No energy is static. All is movement, and that includes the changes in your weather. I know the words 'climate change' has been thrown around your world for many years now. I would rather that you concentrated, my dear friends, in developing the love of each person rather than what is happening at the moment with the structure of your planet; because, as I have said, you cannot stop the evolution of the planet. That still has to take place. So my words about this subject are these: yes, there are changes to your climate. I think you would be foolish to dismiss them, but I do not wish you to focus upon them so greatly that you become concerned, because that is the fear behind this question.

George: So we should simply accept and not be disheartened.

Do not be disheartened. You know my dear friends: that is my message at all times. So I would say: stop being so concerned. I am not saying do not think about these things, but we in spirit of course are much aware of what is happening on your planet, and are doing all we can to help those in power to understand the need for all of mankind to understand what is happening. Is that helpful to you?

George: I'm sure that will clarify the thinking (yes) of the correspondent and it's so nice that someone on the other side of the world is picking up the communications that we have here and is giving some serious thought to this (yes). Thank you, Salumet.

Yes—now—now you are all so quiet, I will take my leave this time and allow whatever else is coming to you. I leave you as always, my dear friends, with my love, my upliftment and know each and every one of you that spirit is here to help you all—but you must ask for that help. You deserve the help that we give you. We thank you and are grateful for all that you do.

George: That's most reassuring. Thank you Salumet, so much.

(General thanks)

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_23+cho.mp3

Hello!

Lilian: Hello.

I Cho.

George: Oh Cho!—welcome!

I very honoured tonight—I very honoured.

George: You're very honoured (yes). And why is that?

—Because you've got different people.

(General acknowledgement)

George: Ah yes indeed!—yes.

(Lilian explained to our guests that this is our new gatekeeper who has recently started with us)

Lilian: We get on well don't we?

Yes—I like you—and my friend.

George: Yes, we have two who are sitting in for the first time this evening and—

I can see that! I'm not stupid!

(Chuckles)

George: No, you probably know much more than I.

Oh no—no—Cho know.

Lilian: Did you hear anything of Salumet before you came through?

No, I not allowed—I work to do, looking after you lot.

(Laughter)

George: Oh well, that must be quite a difficult task!

It is! No, I pleased to be here. I'm not speaking about myself tonight though. Are you disappointed?

Mark: Yes—we're looking forward to that!

Good.

George: Yes, we'd always like to hear a bit more.

I'm coming one time, to tell you all.

George: Do you still have memories of Mongolia?

Few, a few—hard enough speaking to you without remembering that as well!

(A chuckle or two)

George: Yes.

You're very subdued—this lot! You need to cheer them up—or else they'll be joining with me!

(Laughs)

George: Well it's so nice for you to come through to us from time to time Cho (yes)—we do appreciate that.

I've got a lady here—keeps standing behind me—she's so anxious to speak to the lady across from me. You—hello! Yes—she 'Cho', somebody tell me!

Lilian: Jo, it's for you.

Jo: Yes I guessed it's for me.

YOU have the same name as I do—Cho! But you're not a man.

Jo: No, I'm not a man.

No, you're a lady—a very nice lady (thank you). Yes—this lady saying you're one of God's angels. That's nice isn't it?

Jo: That's wonderful—yes (yes). That's wonderful.

I can't see your wings! (Ah) I only joke!

(Laughs)

I only joke.

George: Well it's nice to have a joke.

I need to tell jokes—no one else is! You all very subdued tonight. What's the matter?

Lilian: No I don't think anything is the matter—sometimes this happens, you know.

Are you just quiet?

Lilian: Just quiet.

I'm glad you don't live with me.

Lilian: We're not always quiet.

But she is—that Cho (Jo) is one of God's angels. She does good things.

Jo: That's wonderful to hear Cho, thank you very much.

Yes, you're a good lady, yes—and you come again. I haven't met you before, have I?

Jo: No, I haven't met you before Cho. No—I would have remembered.

I'm unforgettable, is that what you're saying?

Jo: Yes I am.

That's nice.

George: No, Jo has been with the group before, but a long, long time ago.

Yes, I'm a newcomer—I'm a bit of what you call 'chatterbox'.

Jo: Same as me Cho.

A new language for me—it's been quite hard, hasn't it?

George: But you're coming along extremely well with it.

Yes—yes I am, aren't I? I want you to laugh before I go and get on with my job.

Jo: Tell us a joke then Cho.

Oh no, can't do that—I don't know any.

Lilian: So what's the job you're going back to?

I'm the gatekeeper!

Lilian: Yes, but when you leave here, that's what you're going to do with another group?

Yes—no—I'm doing it with you.

(Laughs)

Lilian: —when you leave us—

When I leave this—

Lilian: —are you going to another group?

No, not at the moment—I will go back and I want to do something else. I want to be a gatekeeper, which I've started as you know (yes), even if you don't laugh at my jokes.

George: Well, when you do go Cho, perhaps we can say: 'ciao Cho from—

No—you said 'ciao Cho' last time!

George: But it's 'Ciao Cho from Jo' this time.

Ah—'Ciao Cho from Jo!'

Jo: Absolutely!

That's amusing isn't it Jo? Ciao Cho from Jo—I'll remember that one sir! You could be my partner in crime!

(Laughs)

I'm really happy to talk to you all—now I am being called. 'You've said enough' they've said. I'm supposed to be the gatekeeper!

George: You have a little chat with Paul sometimes, but he is away in Thailand, so—

I know!

George: —so he's half-way across to Mongolia.

I went with him—I travelled with him.

George: You travelled with him! (Yes) Oh very nice!

—To make sure he got there okay.

George: Was he aware of your company?

I doubt it—no.

George: How lovely that you travelled with him!

Yes, you'd be surprised what we all do with you lot, just to keep you safe. We know all your little habits.

George: And he will receive the transcript of the evening here, and he'll be quite surprised and pleased that he got a mention of your presence.

He'll be surprised at my presence—of course he will! Yes—okay—all right I have to go—I'm being called to go. Cheerio then!

(General fond farewells)

A period of clairvoyant messages via Eileen followed. An intriguing one was for our visitor Sally from her sister 'Marj' in spirit, who began by saying: 'What are you doing here?' It was a lovely message for Sally, and of course, Marj would only be known to Sally and Ben, and no other sitters. And the exchange, we understand, made perfect sense to her. Then there followed a rescue via Eileen.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_23+rescue.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

Hello dearie.

Lilian: Good evening.

Have you come to make me a nice cup of tea?

Lilian: That's what you'd like, is it?

Yes, and something round my shoulders; because I'm very cold today.

Lilian: Are you? (Yes). Can you tell me how old you are?

I'm ninety-six.

Lilian: Well! That's a good age isn't it?

Yes, everybody says it.

Lilian: You should begin to feel nice and warm all round your shoulders.

Mm—that's lovely dearie—lovely. But you just toddle off and get my cup of tea.

Lilian: Well first of all, let's have a chat—did you feel unwell?

Well I feel unwell all the time—

Lilian: Yes—it's a good age isn't it—and I expect you're tired—

Yes, I'm fed up now. I keep asking to go, and nobody comes.

Lilian: Do you? Well I've got a surprise for you—you have passed into spirit.

Oh no dearie, no, I'm still here.

Lilian: You're not. Did you have long hair or short hair?

I had it in a bun—I never wanted to cut my hair. Why are you asking?

Lilian: If you could put your hand up and touch your hair now, you'll find you've got short hair.

(She discovers Eileen's ear decor))

Oh!

Lilian: Don't worry about it.

What's that in my ear?

Lilian: That's an earring (oh!). Okay, now I'm telling you that because something has caused you to die—old age probably, and you've had a good life. And you are just using this lady so that I can talk to you and tell you what's happened.

Oh, where am I? Where am I?

Lilian: It's okay, you've just come back for a minute or two so that I can tell you what happens. You are all nice and warm.

Yes it's lovely dearie—yes.

Lilian: And you feel really comfortable and surrounded by love. Can you feel that?

I can dearie, I can. I'm just worried about my cup of tea.

Lilian: Never mind about your cup of tea—you'll get one in a minute.

George: Yes, shortly you'll be getting something much nicer than a cup of tea.

Oh no, I don't touch that any more. (Referring to alcohol?)

(Chuckles)

Lilian: You're going to get a nice surprise. If you look forward—I want you to just look forward and you'll see a nice bright light, as though it's beckoning you towards it—a really, really bright light.

Oh yes—a beautiful day—it's beautiful!

Lilian: And in that light, you'll see someone waiting for you—somebody that you'll recognise who has gone before you.

Oh my goodness! It's Wilf! It's my Wilf!

Lilian: Well, that's lovely. And you're happy to go off with Wilf.

I'll say so!

Lilian: So you understand when I said something caused you to die? We don't really die—we just go to another life in spirit.

Well if this is dying, it's great!

Lilian: Good! I'm pleased about that. You tell him you want a cup of tea and see what he says.

He'll tell me: go and make my bloody own!

(Laughs)

Oh well, it's lovely dearie—it's really beautiful.

Lilian: And you're happy to go with him? (I am) Good. Well it's nice to have met you.

What's your name dearie?

Lilian: Lilian. What's was your name? Greta.

Lilian: That's a nice name (it's okay), and you're happy to go?

I'm gone already.

Lilian: Good—anyway, nice to have met you for a short time.

Thank you—thank you.

Lilian: You're welcome.

George's Notes:

1: Crystal Skulls: Our Salumet meeting of 10th November 1997 refers to the crystal skulls. On that occasion it was made clear that our modern technology would be incapable of making them, and Salumet described them as pre-Mayan.

2: Climate Change: This subject had prior mention at the end of our 14th January 2013 meeting. It was made clear that all planets have their own evolution which must continue.

~30th November 2015~

Our evening began with a few words from Cho—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_30+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Hello, it's me again.

(General greetings)

I need to cheer you all up.

(Giggles)

George: That's good.

Some of you a little down—yes. I'm not here to stay—just cheer you up—then I go.

Graham: That's very kind of you.

Lilian: Okay.

I got to tell you: the one you expect will be here next time (thank you). We would like the dear lady to do some work this time if you would.

Lilian: Do you mean—which lady?

Dear lady next to you.

George: Oh Sara.

We always catch you, don't we?

Sara: Yes!

(Laughs)

Anyway, that be a little later—people here waiting, so I have to go.

Lilian: Thank you for popping in.

Where's my friend ciao now?—where's my friend ciao now?

(Turning to George)

Oh, there you are! You no speak to me?

George: Oh sorry! I'm a little bit deaf and I don't always catch the right word.

That no excuse!

(Laughs)

You always say: see you again ciao now, don't you?

George: I did last time—yes (yes), it was 'ciao Cho from Jo' last time.

The fact is I (George) usually miss a few words, especially with Cho, and I at times hold back, simply to avoid the risk of making a gaff. But Cho is so perceptive, and his word-power is so improved that at times I wondered if it was still indeed him!

Yes—you my friend.

(Chuckles)

George: Oh and it's very good to hear you again Cho—um—

I'm not staying—just cheer you up, now I go.

Lilian: Thank you for cheering us up.

George: You have a cheery voice, and we're so pleased that you're really getting to grips with the language—the words.

Yes, I getting very good—yes. You're so slow tonight—what's the matter?

Lilian: I think we're half asleep.

Half asleep? What does that mean?—half asleep? One eye closed—one eye open?

(Laughter)

Mark: It's winter now, and we're sort of hibernating a bit, I think.

Lilian: That's what it is Mark.

I'm not going to let you.

(Laughs)

Really, I am going.

There followed a period of clairvoyance via Eileen—firstly concerning a hardback book with blue cover containing two lines that had really impressed the reader. Serena had been reading a White Eagle book recently, which fitted the description and there then followed a very nice message for Serena indicating that she could be used for inspirational speech.

My dear wife Ann was then with Eileen with a bunch of snowdrops—a favourite of Ann and family. Sara, Mark and Graham were present and Eileen described how Ann held them under the nose of each of us:

Sara: Thank you.

George: Ah lovely—we shall certainly appreciate the snowdrops when they flower. But the seasons seem to be changing a bit. So they may well come earlier this year. We shall see.

Apparently, Ann was tapping me on the shoulder when I was deciding which tie to wear recently—but I wasn't aware! Eileen explained that sometimes she gives a little peck on the forehead, but he doesn't even feel that! Sara also has taps and has been aware and it felt wonderful that Ann was very much still around and with the family.

As she feels more at ease coming back to us all, it seems that it may well be that we all sense her a bit more. She added that next time, she'd pick George's tie, which brought laughter.

We spoke of love, and she reminded us that there is a difference between 'sensing it' and 'actually saying the words'. It was a heartfelt exchange, concluding with her lovely smile.

And there followed a family update message for Graham, showing that they were keeping a caring eye on the family and knew what was going on.

Sara was next invited to guide us in a meditation. This was spoken via Sara as a set of quite well-spaced statements, following a pause to see what was to be forthcoming—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_30_Sara+med.mp3

Just think about the word 'love' and what it means to you. Just spend a few moments thinking about the word, and see what images come to your mind. You may get a picture—you may get some colour—you may have a few words. Just sit for a few moments and see what comes to you.

So later we can talk and we can share what we've found about that. And when you hear the word 'love', how does it make you feel?—just the word—to hear it?

Think about the people in your life who behave in the most loving manner. Think about what's special about them—why you feel that they are so loving. There are many different expressions of love—many ways of showing love to others; because everybody is unique and everyone has their own special gifts and strengths. They express love according to their unique way. So the expression is very different with everyone.

And now think about when you yourself are feeling at your most loving. How does that affect you?—how does that make you express yourself and how do you behave towards others?—and how do you think when you feel that you are at your most loving?

And then have a think about what makes it possible for you to one day feel that way?—what conditions are there that make you feel more inclined to be loving to people around you?

Try if it's possible to think about what causes you to open up and expand and open towards others, and what causes you to close down.

And now if you could imagine a rose in your heart-centre—just imagine it is a rose bud, and watch it in slow motion opening and see if you can feel an expansiveness as the flower opens slowly.

Now just imagine yourself filled with a beautiful love and peace, and just imagine that that is what you will give to all the people who cross your path this week.

Try to just imagine the lightness that you feel when you are consciously filling yourself with love and opening yourself to others—just try to feel that lightness.

Thank you.

Finally there was another through Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_11_30_Thomas.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

Hello.

Lilian: You are very welcome.

I am Thomas. I have been listening to you discussing 'love'. I was unfortunate, that whilst I lived, I did not feel any kind of love.

George: Oh that's a shame.

Lilian: —Towards you or towards other people?

—Towards me.

Lilian: Oh that's a shame.

But it doesn't matter.

George: Have you felt more love since?

I have felt such an abundance of love here. But I had to come and say to each one of you, that to understand love fully you must understand it in yourselves. If you do not love yourselves, you will never love at all. So I hope that this evening and the talk about love has touched each and every one of you—that all of you will be able to express love and to be aware that that expression of love is being felt by all (yes). It is a sad world where love does not exist. And I know I need not speak of the state of your world, where love is sorely lacking. That has not been my purpose this evening; but to speak as you as individuals—to love and to be loved—not only physical love but spiritual love, and there is a great difference. Physical love is fleeting—spiritual love is for all time.

Lilian: Yes, I think some of us have been lucky to feel it sometimes—love, which really we don't understand here.

People's expressions of love vary so much. It is as diverse as people in your world are. People feel that they love when in fact they do not nearly understand what true love is.

George: Yes, I think spiritual love has grown with me since my dear wife has been in spirit, and that love between us seems to—and we know that she is still around—and that love between us seems to just grow and grow.

Yes, but you can only feel it from the physical side. She is helping you to express the spiritual love (ah yes). It is so much different from the physical love that is expressed upon the Earth. True love is unselfish. True love is when you wish to give and not to take. There are so many expressions of love. But spiritual love is something you will understand when you come to the spirit world. So if nothing else, I wish that you would take with you this night some thoughts, some expression of the love that surrounds you within this room. That indeed is spiritual love which encompasses you each time you come together. And I know that most of you feel it at some time (yes).

George: Yes, I think that feeling has deepened this evening and we so much appreciate the meditation through Sara and your words that follow up. Thank you so much.

You are most welcome, and I Thomas will take myself from your presence, and thank you for listening to those words. And please be full of gratitude to that Great Creator who has allowed each of you to feel the blessing of that deep love.

George: Yes, I was only thinking earlier today about this beautiful world that we have and nature, and all that can only have been created in love.

Yes, and remember: you are all a very small part of that great creation—a very small part.

(General thanks as Thomas withdrew)

George's Notes:

'...Your world where love is sorely lacking': Clearly, in the Middle East there is turmoil. There is love—expressed especially by those bereaved who mourn the loss of their loved ones. But it is so clear from the teaching that comes to us direct from spirit, that to kill another is spiritual crime. Many should reflect on this—those who kill, those who incite the deed, weapons suppliers and all in faraway places who share responsibility. Warfare must eventually go, but first we must recognise and feel the LOVE that will heal all.

~14th December 2015~ SALUMET

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_14+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I am happy to be with you all this time (thank you). As you probably already know, this will be my last visit for this, your year ending (yes). It is time for me to withdraw, my dear friends, to the part of spirit where I am most comfortable. I of course will be with each and every one of you over your holiday time (wonderful!). I wish for you all much love much upliftment and much joy in your lives.

(Thanks)

Know that I am only just a few words away, and I know that you fully understand.

George: Most reassuring—thank you Salumet.

You must know that the Great Creator's love is always with you, but sometimes you forget to ask for that happiness. All of you, my dear friends, deserve happiness, if only for your dedication and your deep love for all those in need; and this I know is a continuing thing. It is not a fleecing, fleeing and objecting to what is happening, but an acceptance of what your lives are all about. Therefore for this time, for a short while, I will take any questions that you may have, and hopefully we can conclude this, the end of your year, with much satisfaction, much hope and much love, because my dear friends, I want you in this coming year to feel more positive about your lives in general—not only you, but for all the population of this planet. You do so much for others, let this holiday time be time for yourselves; to gather with families, with friends, with children. And you know that next time, there will be children to visit as usual, because their love is love of purity—so remember this, my dear friends. And now, I will try to help you with any questions.

George: Could I ask one Salumet which is in a way topical, concerning 'charities'? I have the feeling that these have got somewhat out of hand, in that there are many people making huge sums of money from advertising their charities. The top executive, who receives the highest salary, receives £850,000 per year, and of the top 100 executive salaries, the average figure is £208,000 per year. So many, many people are paying into institutionalised charity organisations and I believe are unaware that much of the money donated is going into the charity organiser's bank balances. And in addition to top executives, there are managers, sub-managers and trainee managers and they all get very good salaries (yes). So my question is: is it better that we give on a personal one-to-one level instead of involving these institutionalised charities?

I understand your question, my dear friend. Of course, these people who are not genuine needed to be exposed; and of course, they have been exposed, otherwise you would not be aware of this problem. I can only tell you, my dear friends, that your own conscience will tell you what is best for you. As much as there is hidden agenda with these people, there is still a great deal that is done to help others and this we cannot doubt, but of course, if one-to-one giving is there and acceptable, then for most people I would say: that is the way to go. But when you are dealing with so much money, it is necessary sometimes to have some kind of organisation. I can only say to you, and I hope it brings comfort, that these people must face what they have been doing when the time comes. They have to face themselves—they have to know that what they are taking from other people is very negative for their own souls. And I know that at the present time that may seem like no kind of consolation, but let me assure you that no one on this planet can do any misdeed without having to face themselves. It is a difficult problem for you I know, but I would suggest that you go inwards and find the right solution for yourselves.

Sarah: But of course it does actually, even though those people are taking, in our eyes, far too much money, it doesn't take away from the fact that people are giving—and that is in essence the good part about it.

Yes—again, we have positive and negative; all throughout life we have this, but the awareness and the knowledge of what is happening is the greatest weapon to have, because then these people can be dealt with by those in authority. You understand? (Yes) I hope that is helpful to you.

George: Yes, that's a wonderful answer, and it will help to give this exposure (yes) which I feel the problem is; and it also has its nuisance value, in that through mailing shots and TV advertising (yes), it's been calculated that every one of our population here in the UK, receives 200 asks for money through the year.

Yes, again it comes down to a personal level with each one of you. You can only give so much. You cannot change your world in a heartbeat, but if it is right for you, then it is right for many. I say: think upon it and do what you feel is right, because my dear friends, you have that innate knowledge of what is right for you.

George: That's a lovely answer—thank you very much Salumet.

Sara: It's not a problem to screen out a lot of this—a lot of people who are asking, and just select just a few ways of giving—if they're enjoyable then—

Yes—underhanded deeds will always be ousted, in many different ways. As I say, once the knowledge is in the open, then people can then deal with these individuals. And of course, that is not the end—they do have to stand and see themselves as they have been. That is a little cautionary note for all of you, my dear friends.

(Chuckles)

Because we know, being human, there are good thoughts and not-so-good thoughts, and it is as I have said, individual responsibility that must take charge. I hope it is helpful.

George: Yes indeed.

(Pause)

George: Does anyone else have a question?

Ben: I have a question please? (Yes) It occurred to me that a great number of people complete their human experience and return to spirit without becoming enlightened or even curious during their time here on Earth. As we are sent to this planet to evolve, isn't it a shame that some people spend their time chasing wealth at the expense of others?—or spend their time going to wars to kill others? Why are there so many wasted opportunities?

Each and every individual upon this planet—and I have already told the others in this group this on other occasions—that you cannot make people understand and know what truth is. You cannot make them be the same as you are—in the way that you think or hope or help. Because you are individuals with free-will, it is not always easy to follow the road of goodness. After all, this is a planet where there is good and there is not-so-good; I use those words again, rather than 'bad'. A lot of individuals are just misinformed sometimes or naive about existence, or who neglect to even sit and think about their lives. So I say to you, my dear friend: if the opportunity arises, then of course you can offer words of hope or knowledge to another, but you cannot make them listen. That is why they have come—and there are many individuals who change throughout their lives.

(Eileen coughed and there was a pause here)

When the soul decides to come to this planet for another lifetime it is well aware of the opportunities that will be open to them. For most people there is a graduation at the end of their lifetime, where they have grown in knowledge, grown in love, grown in understanding. But for many, this life is exciting, for many, they can only focus on one part at a time, and for these individuals, they are the ones who regret the lifetime that has been wasted. But it is their waste, not yours, not anyone else's. And they have to again, face up to the fact that any opportunities they have had has been wasted. Do you understand so far? (Affirmations)

Yes. When this knowledge and truth comes to many, their desire is great to inform other people. We understand this, because when the spirit is touched, all of the body is touched—and then we have happier lives, healthier people, more knowledgeable people about where they have come from in spirit. So you must allow people to evolve in their own way, in their own time. And do not concern yourself too much about others in that way, because whilst you are focussed upon another, you are missing the moment in your life. And my dear friend, to live in the moment, as the others now know, is the most important thing that you can do for yourselves. Do you understand?

Ben: Yes—thank you.

Sarah: That reminds me of you saying you shouldn't judge. I was thinking of a Japanese man and an Englishman—a Japanese man during the war had treated this Englishman appallingly—it was really not very good at all. And after the war, the Japanese man was full of remorse and he got in touch with the Englishman, and it gave the Englishman the opportunity to forgive—and the other man also to be sorry for what he'd done. So it actually gave them both an opportunity.

A very good indication of what I was saying that people graduate to better things throughout a whole lifetime. They may start off as being selfish, non-caring, and just some little incident like you have expressed is enough to change them—yes.

George: Could I refer to the Vietnam War? There was a very highly toxic chemical use, called 'Agent Orange'. And it has horrific effects, causing deformities in birth, and these deformities pass across generations, and there are still people being born in the world with terrible deformities as a result of their ancestors being contaminated with Agent Orange. Those in spirit who decide to take an Earth life—it is difficult to fathom the reasoning regarding what good they can do by taking such a deformed and often very short life. I wonder if you have any comment on that—

You mean the individuals who have been damaged, yes?

Mark: The descendants I think, of those who come in from spirit in a deformed body.

—Why they have chosen those—yes.

Mark: Yes.

Well, that is a difficult question, because who are you to know how much that soul has grown? When you come to spirit—you have returned to spirit without any bodily disease or harm. We are speaking on a different level. When the soul decides to reincarnate, it decides for the benefit of the soul, not what the physical body will be like, and it is easy to judge others—too easy to judge others, and although your understanding is not quite as secure as it might be, I can only tell you, my dear friends, that understanding of spirit takes many eons of time. You will never understand fully whilst you live one Earthly life. It is an increase in spiritual knowledge, lifetime after lifetime; and even then my dear friends, I would say to you: the answers will never be what you suppose them to be.

George: It is wonderful Salumet that the Vietnamese people of today do not seem to have recrimination in their temperament.

Yes, and that is one of the good aspects that has come from disasters such as this. There is always a plus and a negative to all of life. If only you could look upon life as being that way, it would help to ease the grief that exists in these human actions. And as I have said: not all actions are fated; there are many people in your world who indeed have lost their way—and that is when you have events that happen that distress the majority of people. But on the other hand, you are not the Creator—you are not to know why, and I can tell you my dear friends, that in all of these cases—all of these human beings—their spirit has lifted them higher than you could ever imagine. Does that help?

George: Yes—thank you.

Graham: I was watching a television program yesterday about Germany—has accepted 800,000 refugees from Syria and other countries, and it was just following the story of a couple of families, what they've come from and where they are now, and it was incredibly heart-warming (yes)—the reaction of the people in that area and how the Syrians were helping the Germans a little bit on sport and how to dance, and the Germans were showing the Syrians a German Christmas market, and to see the women smiling and the children not afraid any more (yes)—it was very, very heart-warming.

Both peoples have gifts of knowledge to each other (yes), that is how it should be in life. I do not tell you, my dear friends, that your lives are easy. We all know do we not, that life sometimes is very, very difficult for those of you who live upon the Earth plane. It is difficult to see one day follow another, especially when your media is so quick to report what is happening in different places of your world. I would suggest to all of you that you take a step backward before making any criticisms about either sides for whatever reason. Stay partial, impartial, whatever is best for you and focus on yourselves. In that way you are doing the best for your own spirit, and after all, your spirit has to be wise before it can progress. I hope that has helped you (yes).

Now, my dear friends, I feel that we have spoken enough for this time. I know you will join me in saying that I hope all of you on your Earth planet will find that this new coming year will be greater in happiness, in love, in upliftment and with newfound joy for all people.

(Agreement)

So as I take my leave of you, know that I leave you, my dear friends and all of those absent ones, and know that I will rejoin with you in your New Year.

George: That we look forward to.

(Agreement and thanks)

Our friendly Gatekeeper Cho then followed—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_14+cho.mp3

Hello.

(General welcomes to Cho)

Cho! I am not staying—I'll be next week with the children.

Lilian: Oh lovely!

Yes—it feels very nice in here (thank you).

Lilian: Yes, we've just had our teacher come through, and maybe what he leaves behind is really good—he leaves a good feeling.

(Cho then asked after another sitter who wasn't present this evening)

George: How do you find us this evening? Do we need cheering up? (No) No, I think we're nice and relaxed following Salumet's teaching.

(Cho, as if searching for a motive)

You just want me to stay, don't you?

George: Well, that's always very nice when you can stay for a chat.

Well I can't!

(Laughter)

I chat to you next week, okay?

George: Yes, that'll be good.

It will be VERY good.

George: You know in advance—or is that conjecture?

(Ominous pause with a few chuckles)

George: —Or is that rather a big word?

What does that mean? Will you try to trick me?

(Chuckles)

George: Is that how you imagine it will be, or do you just know it will be good?

I KNOW it be good!

George: You know—yes.

I know! Just know! Cho Knows!

(Laughter)

George: It isn't just a guess? That's what I meant.

(More laughs)

Guess?—I sort this one out next time.

Lilian: That's a good idea.

George: You'll sort it out—right.

No—sort you!

(Laughter)

Lilian: So you'll be bringing the children along?

I'll be letting them through (I see). I'll be your keeper next time (yes). I didn't have to let that other one through—I was kept out.

Mark: He's got his own key, has he?

—Pardon?

(Chuckles)

Mark: He's got his own key—he can open the door himself.

Ha! Ha! Very funny, isn't he?

(Laughs)

George: Well, he has a wit on occasions—yes.

He's trying to steal my—thunder! Is that what they say?

(Laughter)

George: Thunder!—a good expression!

Stealing my thunder!

George: : That's a good expression. When you let the children through, will you be letting them through in a batch or one at a time?

You're very noseey, aren't you?

(Laughter)

I'll be letting them through if they behave—and they won't be behaved, so it will be a struggle

Lilian: They get too excited.

They get very excited. I let some through a few days ago, and do you know what happened?

Lilian: No, you tell us.

The tree in the room toppled over!

(Laughs)

I don't think they were amused. The CHILDREN were, but the lad wasn't.

George: I don't think the tree toppling over was down to the children, was it?

(Whispered)

Yes it was. They pushed it.

George: Really?

Yeah—we can do all kind of things you know (yes), we're not silly! You seem surprised. We can even push people.

George: Well yes. When my wife taps me on the head, I don't feel it—but children pushing a tree—it falls over.

I'll tell her to do it harder (yes).

Sara: I often feel taps on my shoulder—probably more than anything—seeing—

Yeah—we can do all kind of things, but only with love—not naughty. The children didn't get scolded—I did. No—I only joking—we don't get scolded—anyway I'm not staying.

George: When you come through Cho, Paul should be with us then.

(Cho of course was aware of this)

Okay, nobody wants to say anything when I'm here.

Mark: I was going to say: maybe you could get the children to shake the tree a little bit, so that we can see it move a little bit?

Shake the tree?

Mark: Just so we can see it move a little bit.

Are you sure?

Mark: Yes, as long as they don't knock it right over.

Oh right, well something probably will move—it's up to you to look, okay?

Mark: And play with the light?

Play with the lights?

Sarah: That's not a good idea.

You all complained the other week when the lights went funny.

Lilian: Yes, they did go up and down. Wow! That wasn't the tree—

That wasn't the tree, no. But I'm going now.

Lilian: See you next week—well, hear you next week.

Well you won't SEE me will you? I can see you, but you can't see me.

George: Well thank you for coming through and talking with us.

I like coming here.

Lilian: That's good (Yeah). We all like coming here.

Yeah—will you tell that lady who hurt her leg that I've been around—'cos she was my friend as well.

George: Yes, that's Jan.

Yes—just to watch out, because I might be a bit naughty there as well—okay?

(Laughs)

Lilian: Yes I will, I'll pass that message on.

George: Yes, Jan will be pleased to hear your message (yes).

(Jan slipped on mud and broke a leg)

Lilian: Yes—unfortunate, but there we are.

There is someone else waiting, so I have to go.

Lilian: See you next week, or hear you next week. Yes.

A period of clairvoyance followed via Eileen, with messages for Serena and for Sarah, that all made good sense. And Eileen could see one standing behind Sarah, suggesting that she might be used later. And the one via Sarah followed—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_14+thru+Sarah.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening to you all.

All: Good evening.

It has been a great pleasure to be here with you, listening to your words. I do quite often listen in, but this time I have been much closer to you.

George: Ah, that's interesting.

I always try to bring something to a meeting, whether or not you are aware of what I am trying to do. So this time I thought I would come to you, just to let you know that I do come and bring upliftment and HOPE to you all at each of your meetings.

(General thanks)

George: Upliftment and hope—how wonderful! Thank you very much for that.

I am always happy to try and help those who are trying to learn more about spirit. I can tell you that when I walked this Earthly plane, I too was helped by spirit, and at the time I was here, I was in much need of upliftment and hope, and it is for this reason that I wish to bring the same to you all.

Graham: That's very kind of you.

There are I know, many who are in need of these thoughts from me, but I do find that it is so much easier when I focus on a smaller group and those who have understanding of spirit, so that I can come that much closer.

(We numbered 10 on this occasion)

Graham: I can imagine that would be true—yes.

At this time of year it is my gift to you and I hope that you will all have much love and joy in the next coming weeks.

Graham: That's very kind—thank you.

George: Yes, thank you—can you say when you were walking this planet? Was that some time in the past when times were difficult?

I can tell you it was during the reign of Queen Victoria (thank you). I remember this very well.

Graham: Lives were very hard in those days. You hear the history of how people struggled in those times. I think we are much more comfortable in many ways than we were then.

Yes, you do not or cannot imagine what it was like to have nothing.

Graham: Gosh!

Lilian: Were you aware of spirit? Did you sit in a group like we do?

No, I did not—I used to sit by the roadside and hope that someone will give me something, and it was at this time, when I was feeling so low and so wretched, that I became aware of the help that was being given me (that's lovely). It was also a time when I began to become grateful to spirit for the help and love they were giving me; and also at that time, someone would put something by my feet. So I was being helped both spiritually and physically. And it is something that I am eternally grateful for.

Sara: Would you say that you made the link between the gratitude and the offerings that were given to you?

I think there was a link there. It was a way of them helping me in such poverty that you cannot imagine that the smallest offering was of help. So yes, I was grateful on two counts—for the love and the comfort that I received and for a little physical help—yes.

Sara: So was it a short life that you lived?

No, it was not particularly short, and it was in the beginning, extremely hard. But as life progressed, I cannot say it was easy, but it was much easier—yes.

Sara: Did you always live like that?

How do you mean—‘always’?

Sara: Did you live a long time on the streets?

I was not exactly living on the streets, because I did have parents and brothers and sisters—but we had nothing. And as time went on I was a little more comfortable, and I did manage to get some money by working. So I did move on a little, but it was still hard work (yes), and it was still only just enough to prevent me from dying.

George: —And your becoming aware of spirit was really a turning point for you. Do you see it like that? I would say it was such a comfort to me that it was something you could not forget. It was always there if I looked for it—it was always there, and this was the comfort—and I believe it was the comfort that helped me to keep going. Yes, so now in spirit there is no problem, but I sometimes come back to give some love to you who, I have to say, do not struggle in the same way that I did (no). But it is nice to come back and feel the comfort of humans who have understanding of spirit, and that is what I am attracted to.

Graham: Sadly, there are still people around who are very, very poor, on this planet——And there are many who are around them helping them, and if they could look to them, they would get the same comfort as I had when I was here. You are never alone, even though you think you are—yes. And we all have jobs or wishes that we like to do, and I feel this is something I like to do at this time. Maybe later, I will branch out and do other things, but at this time, I feel this is how I like to come back and try to bring a little more upliftment, especially in times when you think you are struggling, but in fact you are not really.

Lilian: —Not to extremes.

Graham: It must be awful if there’s not enough warmth and food and shelter. There must be—we’ve never known that. I can’t imagine how it must feel—

—Or not enough clothing or shoes when it’s cold—yes.

Graham: Gosh—yes.

Sara: The comfort that you were talking about was the sort of invisible cloak of love, that you felt. Is that right?

I’m sure it was the love—yes. That is what it was.

Sara: I know someone who compared to all of us is really poor and very lonely, and she has told me that she has felt enfolded by Angels and uplifted. At times she can sense and feel them around her. She prays a lot and I think she has that comfort.

Yes—yes, there are always people around you—you just have to open yourself up to them. And now I will return, but I have enjoyed being with you and making myself, or making YOU should I say, aware of my presence.

(General thanks)

George: Well, thank you so much for coming through to us and explaining so much—thank you.

Thank you.

And then another via Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_14+via+Eileen.mp3

Lilian: Welcome.

I felt I had to come—I had to speak to you, because you will be the one to remember me. Do you remember Sister Agnes?

(Lilian and George quickly acknowledged)

Well, it is I. But I only come to tell you that I have now moved on, and I have been able to rid myself of the religious garb! And I am so pleased and I just needed to tell you.

(Expressions of congratulations)

George: Oh well that’s wonderful news! And we older ones do recall Sister Agnes.

And Sister Anna, you remember Sister Anna?

George: Sister Anna—yes.

The lady will remember Sister Anna.

Lilian: Anna—ah yes.

You remember. Yes, but I had to come and tell you.

Sara: How did it happen? Was it just a gradual process?

It was a gradual process. But in the understanding and the relief of releasing religious garb was quite strange, because although I've been in spirit, I still kept to those religious aspects of my life, and although I was quite happy, it was not the thing to do.

George: Yes, I was thinking about that recently: the religions of our world—they are all man-made with some spirit connection and affiliation to the state; but what comes to us direct from spirit—well that must be the more pertinent truth.

Yes, but you see, as nuns, we were in constant touch with spirit, but didn't realise the significance. We always spoke just to God.

Sarah: You were a silent order, weren't you?—you didn't speak with each other?

No, not a silent order—I long ago gave up the silence, but I could not let go of the garb (yes). And now, it's beautiful and I feel free—and I wanted you to know.

Sarah: Well that's very good news.

And I really must go, because I am stopping the closing of your meeting.

(Appreciation + congratulations expressed)

George: Well we are very pleased to have your words. Thank you so much!

But nevertheless, I'm going to say: God bless you!

(Laughs)

Sarah: God bless you too!

George: Do you still have the name 'Sister Agnes'?

No, I've dropped 'Sister' now. That was only my religious name: 'Sister Agnes' (yes). I've actually chosen the name of 'Miriam'.

George: Ah—Miriam!

Sarah: That's pretty—that's very nice. So next time you come to see us Miriam, we'll have to remember your name.

I came partly because I will be moving forward now.

Sarah: Ah yes, so you won't be coming to see us anymore.

No, I won't—I spent so many times coming to see you, didn't I? (Yes) Well, we all did—but I am thrilled.

Sarah: Good—that's very good.

Yes—I am thrilled—I shouldn't really say that—that's very immodest.

(Laughs)

Sara: You're allowed to be!

George: You're a lovely lady—thank you.

Yes, God bless you all.

(General thanks)

Sarah: Thanks for coming and telling us.

Eileen commented afterwards that she felt she had been around most of the evening and she had difficulty in keeping her hands still.

George's Notes:

1: Charities: Internet figures indicate that there are 189,000-195,000 registered here in the UK that receive a total of £80 Billions per annum. Through the year, this means on average, 200 asks for money from each of us. It is understood that the highest paid top executives receive 850,000 (London Clinic) and £770,000 (Nuffield Health). Some charities employ quite large numbers of staff, each receiving a salary of £60,000 or more; examples being 'Cancer Research UK' - 189, 'Save the Children International' - 184 and 'Marie Stopes International' - 59.

When one views the system as a whole, there are some further effects that should perhaps be noted.

Unfortunately, any rogue charities cast doubt on others who do a good honest job; and their allowed recovery of funds from tax revenues, of course, has to be balanced by higher taxation levied upon the rest of the community, so perhaps this should be questioned as a possible flaw in the system.

2: Agent Orange: Agent Orange is a mixture of chemicals with very long names shortened to: 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T and 2,3,7,8-TCDD. Sadly, it was quite extensively used in South Vietnam as a warfare defoliant. Soils and crops were contaminated and many people developed deformities and there have been dreadful ongoing birth defects, including additional fingers and toes, cleft palate and absence of brain.

3: Sisters Agnes and Anna: Sister Agnes was with us prior to Salumet, and in the early days of Salumet, Leslie often mentioned her. She helped prepare the group for what was to follow. We have dates for Sister Anna, who visited us during the evening of 24th July 1995 and again on 27th September 1999. There was mention of 'others'. These would be Sisters Marian, Marietta, Rosetta and Veronica, for whom we have recorded visits—all truly dedicated and loving ladies.

21st December 2015~

Children from spirit visited us as usual at this seasonal time. Some of us had vague impressions but Eileen could see them quite clearly and kept us well informed. One commented that the tree was pretty but not very big and declared he likes big trees.. Cho came through to say that we are not trying hard enough with our sensing—and there are six children in the room. He declared: I don't know why you don't see them (clearly). Sara was able to give some description and Paul pointed out that they seemed well behaved. Cho replied that he prefers it when they are noisy and full of mischief. We would like to have seen the children shake the tree a bit, but this group seemed far too well behaved for that.

Sara then took us on an inspirational journey—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_21+sara+journey.mp3

We're just going to go on a short inner journey. Think about what you have achieved this year—think about the year; and try to think of the things that you feel pleased about—some progress you have made within your own self. Perhaps with people that you know well—perhaps you've helped in some way—what do you feel has grown positively this year. Just think about the areas you feel proud of, and you feel have been beneficial and good for you. Think about what you may have done to bring those things about; and perhaps give thanks for all of them—for all those things you feel grateful for and for the people that you have been a help to. And as we come to the end of this year, perhaps it's a good thing to think about the following year to come—that you are hoping to improve in that year. Think about the Christmas tree and the branches coming out, and imagine yourself standing and imagine your lights and your energy coming out like the tree. Think about that energy that you give out to others and feel that openness that you feel when you give of yourself. When you look at the tree with the lights and beauty, imagine yourself in that act of giving with your arms out. And your energy is going out to those around you. And think of the coloured lights—think of the beauty and the light, twinkling brightly—shining. Think of your own self in that way too this Christmas. Think of yourself as a light which shines and gives light and twinkles—that is bright, is warm, like the rays of the sun—and just reflect on these words: 'beauty', 'light', 'love', 'peace', 'happiness', 'Joy', 'laughter', 'smiles' and be joyous.

The children were still with us and some were around the tree. It was felt that there was very slight movement of the tree, but nothing very positive.

In conclusion, an old and dear friend spoke via Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2015_12_21+emma.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you all for allowing the dear children to join with you this time.

George: That's very nice—they seem to have been a very good party of children.

They would have to be whilst I am present!

(Understanding chuckles)

But I wanted to take the opportunity to join with you this time, because I have not joined you for quite a while. It is I—Emma.

(All responded with delighted recognition)

George: Welcome to you Emma!

Yes, it is a very short visit this time, just to thank you and to wish you all a very happy festive season. I also wanted to update you all on my progress, and I have to say: it is wonderful and progress is steadily being made, not only in India, but in Africa too. And I just wished you all to know, because you have always been so kind to me.

George: Well, it's very nice to have that news, and I think in the Gulf States also, women folk are coming more to the fore (yes) and better recognised.

Yes, it is worldwide. But of course, you know my passion was for the women of India.

George: Yes, that's where you began.

Yes—so, I'm SO happy to join with you. And please take my love and good wishes for ALL of you, and thank you once more for allowing the children to join you.

George: Well, thank you for coming through, and we'll certainly pass your message on to others who unfortunately are unable to be with us this evening.

Yes, I know that you will—yes. Thank you and goodbye.

(General farewells + good wishes—to our dear friend and champion of women's equality.)

Following our healing prayers, one spoke via Eileen about healing:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_11+one+thru+Eileen+on+healing.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I've come to speak a little on what you call 'healing'. If only you could see the cascade of energy which is your healing thoughts. The amount of energy which comes from your planet when others are wishing help and love and security for another, it is the most beautiful of sights—the most beautiful of colours; and I wish that I could endow upon each one of you the vision that we have. We are so grateful for those of you who take the time and the effort in your everyday lives to help another human being. For most people it is a natural action or thought, but for many it takes just a little nudge for them to understand how much is needed—how much love for another human being when they are in trouble. When children come to your world as newborn infants, they have already all the ingredients of love—of healing. They have the sense of touch, to feel, to look, to speak and to give love; only because they are a being from spirit. So you see, even from the birth of the human into this Earthly world, you are all endowed with the gift of healing. But it is in groups such as yours that we truly see and are grateful for that spiritual love which you send, because you see my dears, the love that you send from groups such as these, is indeed spiritual love. I just wanted to tell you that those thoughts—those actions in your everyday lives—your deeds—everything; we are most grateful for. And I just wish to say to each and every one of you: we return that love threefold. You may not even be aware of it, but I can assure you that this is so.

George: These words are most reassuring to hear. Yes, thank you for them. Are you able to say how this compares with our standard medical health service? I imagine both are needed and sometimes the two aspects of healing would be concurrent I think.

Yes, I believe you have already been told, so I am being informed, that the medical profession as you know it—those people who have desire to help another—they are indeed healers in their own way, and that must be appreciated also (yes); but so many of you are healers, without even realising it. The spoken word is a healing, listening is a healing—the very gifts that you have come to this planet with—you have been given that great gift of healing.

Graham: It's interesting what you said about very young children, because there was a remarkable case in America, where two babies were born together as twins. They were premature and very weak. But after a while, one of them started to not do very well, and the other one was much stronger. And the doctors became very, very concerned about one of the babies. And somebody had the idea about putting the healthy baby with the baby that was failing. And they put the little baby's arm around the other baby and the transformation was almost instant. The failing baby started to recover and eventually was fine and grew to full strength.

Yes, when you speak of babies who you class as twins, there is an energy between them that shouldn't be broken. That is why, as you say: as soon as the energy was felt again between the two, there was an equilibrium.

Graham: Yes, it amazed everybody in the hospital and it went onto the Internet. This was just a remarkable thing which I think people were in awe of.

But for you my dear friend, it should not be surprising (no), because such as yourselves who are developing their spirituality, everything about themselves, allowing the spirit to be the stronger part of the being. You should never be surprised by anything that happens in your lifetime.

Sara: And touch itself is so very healing.

Touch, yes.

Sara: To feel the human touch.

Yes, all human beings have the capability to heal. Of course, there are some in your world who take it a little step further and who are working with us in spirit to help others. But this in itself takes a little dedication.

Sara: You mean to work with the energy?

Yes, you all have the ability, but again, you also have the choice, and not everyone will make the same choices.

Sara: Sometimes it's quite hard to choose.

I'm sure it must be, but know only this before I leave you: that if there is love in your hearts for other people, that love will grow and become stronger. So therefore the healing factor becomes stronger (ah yes) and I am sure you must be aware of people not known to you who have had some impact and have allowed you to help them with your words. I am sure everyone in this room has experienced this (yes). Thank you for listening. I did just feel it was time to say a little about your healing thoughts.

General thanks

Sara: Can I just ask, are there any colours—you say you see a cascade of colours—

—A cascade of energy.

Sara: —Energy—Are there any colours you would associate more with healing thoughts than other thoughts, or is it quite a wide spectrum?

It is a wide spectrum, and different colours may be used for different conditions. That comes when you work with us in spirit. It is not as straightforward as a lot of people think. They tend to choose colours for specific complaints when in fact the unity between you and us can make a complete difference to which colour is to be used. But colour healing is most helpful.

Sara: I have had the experience when sometimes I've been giving reflexology to someone that I've felt that I've been impressed with colours that would help that person, so I've communicated that sometimes, when I've felt really sure.

Yes, and if you are so sure, that knowledge is coming from our world.

Sara: Yes, it's only when I feel certain that I say it—if I see it, as well.

Yes, do not become too rigid in how you feel about certain colours—be changeable if you must—you will be guided (yes).

George: And some are versed in the use of crystals. I imagine that crystal use also relates to colour—

Yes, crystals are full of colour. Crystals are pieces of energy—little understood even now. But yes, crystals can be used quite successfully for healing—and many other things. But before I leave I am to tell you that the one known to you as 'Salumet', will be here with you next time.

George: Thank you—thank you for that—for both your timely messages (yes).

Paul: I'm sure we will be doing more healing with our thoughts and trying to send out more healing, after your inspiring talk.

I sometimes feel that the purest healing is when you yourselves are unaware that you are giving it, because then it is given with pure love. Now I must leave.

Paul: Ah, that makes sense, yes—thank you.

General thanks

There followed clairvoyant messages via Eileen for Sara's family and Sarah's family, with assurance of help from spirit. Then following a pause, one was with Sarah:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_11+one+thru+Sarah+-+xmas+tree+planting.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

Good evening to you.

All: Good evening.

I have brought a Christmas tree with me (oh). It is one that has been used by the children in spirit. They have been grateful to you when they have visited you at Christmas time, and this tree is a reconstruction of the one that they visited last time, but it is now a tree that is being brought to you that is full of life. It is a tree that is giving of all that Nature needs and because of this, you will also benefit from this tree. This tree will be planted in each place where you are. It is a tree that can be divided and divided and divided, but it is a tree that will bring much love to all of you. If at any time you see a tree that makes you feel what a wonderful tree this is, it is because you have been influenced by the tree that has been brought to you by these children (mm). It is their way of giving thanks to you for the time and love you have given them.

Sara: Lovely gift!

Paul: Yes, our love goes to them—lovely thoughts.

Some of these children had never known Earthly happiness, and your kindness to them has meant so much, not just to them, but to all those who care for them. So I will leave, giving thanks and love to you all, and this tree that can be divided will be planted near to each one of you.

George: What a wonderful gesture—thank you so much for that!

General thanks

I will return.

Another then spoke via Eileen:

Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_11+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

'Allo.

Paul: Cho?

Cho.

General enthusiastic hellos:

I hope you like who came.

Sara: Yes—very nice! Thank you.

Paul: Yes, it was a lovely idea.

I just want to say: thank you for letting me speak again.

George: You are most welcome.

Yes—just to finish off this evening, I thought I will speak.

Lilian: Yes, I thought of you maybe behind the scenes.

Did you? That's because I sitting beside you.

Chuckles

Lilian: Before that.

Before that, yes. I am pleased that you enjoyed this evening. I think you had very nice people come.

All agreed

So now I'm going to say: it's time for you to go and to drink that stuff you drink.

Laughs

It's a strange name isn't it?—'tea'. Yes, anyway, I go now. I'll see you all again.

Cordial agreement

George: Thank you for your few words—thank you for closing the evening.

Bye.

Bye-byes

Afterwards, Eileen declared: he's been nudging me while the one was with Sarah, saying: how long's she going to be?!

~18th January 2016 ~ Salumet

Our prior conversation concerned some of our planetary problems, problems arising from our plunder of the seas, animal extinctions arising from climate change, the need for and likely benefit of upcoming generation etc:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_18+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always my dear friends, it is good to join with you again.

Sarah: It's good to have you, thank you.

Lilian: It's wonderful for us as well.

If only you could realise how many listen to your conversations before we begin, you would indeed be surprised; but that is not new to your understanding—of course you know. There are many changes in your planet that are happening right now, and we have spoken of some of them. I wish to say only that: please do remain optimistic in all of your thoughts and dealings with this planet. No matter how dismal events may appear, I want you my dear friends, to look beyond that and to look to the positives in life. In that way you expand and you grow. So just, my dear friends bear this in mind. On this, another of your coming years we will not dwell so much on the negatives, but on the positive aspects of living and of development of yourselves. For a number of years, we have begun the year saying: we must develop our own selves. But my dear friends, these things take time, and no matter how slowly, as long as the steps are clear and you know where you are going to, this can only be good. So once more I will say to you: to look forward to your future; of course, you must accept what is happening in the world, but we have always had problems. So, therefore my dear friends, be positive in your own individual attitudes to life and you will find that the rest will follow. Someone mentioned children—children are indeed the future of this planet, and yes it would be wise to try to guide and steer them in the right direction. It is not always easy, because they are surrounded by so much negativity, but if every individual parent were to take on board that job for a child, there would be great changes made upon your Earth. I wish you my dear friends, to go within, to listen to that still quiet voice which you all have. It is that part of your spirit which is mainly subdued whilst you live your Earthly lives, but I would like you to sit whenever you can and listen to those who are trying to help. The more you do this the more you will hear their voices—those helpers—those Angels—those teachers who come from our world; they are all waiting to help. Now I do not wish to sound as if I am preaching to you—know that would never be what I intended. Therefore I will say only: if you have any questions, then please let's discuss them now.

Serena: Could I ask a question about what was mentioned last week, about the healing?—'if we could see what our healing thoughts are doing we would be surprised' (yes). How is the best way to send them and what should we really do to get the maximum effect from our endeavours?

Your thoughts must be made in love and dedication to the knowledge that it is being received by those of us in spirit who wish to help with the healing. I would say 'love' is the utmost thing to have when you are sending thoughts for another.

Serena: So we send to spirit and spirit sends on, rather than sending to the individual?

Spirit will deal with the thoughts—yes—yes. I hope that that helps you (yes).

Sarah: Did you want to say something Lilian? Did you want to mention to Salumet?

Lilian: Yes—so, we do ask for healing, ask for thoughts, for my youngest grandson, who is being a bit of a worry, especially to his mother at the moment. Are we doing the right thing? Is there anything else that we can do to try and make life a little easier?

If you are not trying to change the life plan of that young person, then of course all thoughts will be taken into account. You must remember also my dear friends that it is not permissible to interfere with another's life once you have come to the Earth plane. But yes of course, loving thoughts are always dealt with; but as I have told you previously: you do not always have the results that you want. When we receive healing thoughts, whatever is best for that person will be fulfilled, and that is not always what you would wish for; you have to understand—you understand, don't you?

Lilian: Yes (yes)—it does seem hard at times, but—

Of course, that is part of your life's pathway. When things are difficult for any one of you, do not immediately say: why me? Because why not you? There is a whole world of people, and most I would say have encountered problems and troubles at some stage of their lives. We in spirit are here to help, I have told you often that you must ask for that help before we can give out the help that is needed—you understand? (Yes).

Let us for example take: if everyone is praying for someone who is ill, and you have interfered with the passing of that loved one. That is not what you would desire would you?

Lilian: Well I hope not, no.

No—so therefore it is best to give the loving thought and allow us in spirit to deal with it.

Lilian: Yes I see.

And I wish to say one more thing about this, that it takes only one loving thought, if it is genuine and sent with love, for it to be dealt with. There is no need for the repetition of thought (ah!). You seem surprised my dear friend—

Lilian: Yes, sometimes you feel a little bit desperate, we do tend to—

Then what would happen is that those who are dealing with loving thoughts would try to help you also, because you have difficulty with accepting what is to be.

Lilian: Yes, I know my daughter has a bit of a tough time.

Yes—I hope that has helped you (thank you).

Paul: Yes, I was slightly surprised as well, because I wondered if it was—part of sending prayers and thoughts to someone who's got an illness or a disease—you're sending—okay, love—which is an energy; and it might take—some illnesses might take several 'sendings' to help—

If you have sent one genuine loving thought, it is received. If you continue to ask for help over and over and over, do you not see that you have created a doubt?

Paul: I see yes—you've mentioned that before (yes) about not asking for 'help' as such (yes) but just sending love—

And to trust in that Great Creative Force that they know what is best for that person.

Paul: Yes, that does make sense now—so once should be enough.

Yes, but we understand that you are human, but if you are to be doing it day and night and on and on, it is wasted energy.

Paul: I can see that that could show your own inner doubt (yes).

Sarah: And also I remember you saying that repetition just becomes something you're saying, so you're not getting that same in-depth feeling, because you just think: I'll ask again—so you're not doing it with the same energy as the first time.

Yes—it is a little like the religions of your world who are constantly repeating the same words (yes) and after a while those words become a little meaningless.

Sarah: Yes, I remember you saying that—yes.

So it is good that I have reminded you my dear friends, of words that have been spoken.

Lilian: She does see lots of lights around him.

Yes—which to you should indicate that the help is being given.

Lilian: Yes, I'll tell her—

George: I guess the repetitive prayer is more suitable for praying for planet and planetary conditions and for large groups of people who seem to require more awareness—

No!—again, one prayer, if it is honest and loving and truthful should be enough. What would help is if you have a group of people sending that love energy to us. That is helpful.

George: The one prayer from a group of people—

Yes, it has a little more what you may call ‘strength’ behind the thought (thank you).

Sarah: So what we do at the meetings, asking for help for people—that’s all our energies going into that one thought—

Yes, but also not to be disappointed. So often you human beings are disappointed when your thoughts are not used in the way that you think.

Lilian: Yes, it doesn’t go our way.

Yes, so trust—trust in the Great Creator that things will be utilised for the better.

Paul: What happens with the thought when we just occasionally send out a thought—just send my love to wherever it’s most needed?

Yes, it will be used to help the person named and then it will become part of the energy field.

Paul: Right—so if I don’t name a person, I just allow those Angels of Thought—

—If you can feel the person. If you do not know the name; if you can feel that person’s energy then that is acceptable.

Paul: What if it’s just a general thought to all humanity?

Then we in spirit will use that thought. Yes, it is all to be used. I have told you previously that energy can be transmuted. You have to remember all of these teachings to fully understand. Do you understand my friends?

Paul: Yes, so presumably if it’s a general thought for all humanity, it will—

It will be accepted—yes.

Paul: —and it will be put to some use (yes) perhaps in a troubled area—

Yes, a loving thought—and this is the important word—the ‘love’ behind the thought will never be wasted or changed to be meaningless.

Paul: Yes—(yes). It’s simple really—we just get a bit—

You forget my words my dear friends—yes.

Sarah: Yes, we do need a little jog from time to time.

Yes, but I hope it clarifies for you again, how we use your thoughts.

Sarah: You have mentioned once before Salumet I know, but all these people that have been murdered by terrorists—were they really just in the wrong place at the wrong time?—or do they perhaps know that this was going to happen to them?

You know we have discussed this before too—you cannot make a clean sweep of all of these events.

Some will have been, but it depends on what you call the ‘terrorists’ as well—how their life path has changed or altered, as to whether the person killed, as you say: is just in the wrong place or it is meant to be. Be careful that you do not put everything together as being fated—that is not quite correct. And there are many explanations that you would have to try to understand. It is not quite as simple as it may seem.

Ben: Can I just ask about negative thoughts and how they are dealt with in spirit?

Negative thoughts would be transmuted into a positive thought. Remember that in spirit we are able to do such things, whereas you people upon the Earth do not have as such that knowledge yet.

Sarah: So what you’re saying is: if somebody sends out a bad thought to somebody—

Let us first clarify what is a thought. I told you from the very beginning that a thought is the most powerful thing that you will ever possess (yes). Yes, so the thought that comes to us has to be dealt with, and there are many souls who work with thought energy. Thought is just energy, whether it be negative or positive—you understand? (Yes). Yes, so when we receive thoughts that are negative, we then utilise that energy and it becomes more positive. You would never allow, if for example a negative thought sent to one in spirit—we could never allow that negativity to touch the spirit of one in our world; so it has to be dealt with.

Sarah: I know you've said it's like a boomerang—thought (yes), if you don't use it wisely it comes back on you. But if you were to think something bad about a certain person—

You are harming your own spirit.

Sarah: But you are not changing that thought on this planet, or are you?

Again, it depends on if there is interference in the life or not—there are many factors to it. You are trying to make it black or white and it is not.

Sarah: it makes it more complicated—

Yes, it is not simple.

George: Well Salumet, I was going to say this evening that our view is so much narrower than yours (yes), while we live on the planet—

Yes, we would not expect you to have such an open view.

George: I was comparing that with your view, which is so much deeper and wider. And you clearly have full knowledge of past and present, which leads to—perhaps I could say: very firm impressions as to how the future will be. But you also are so well aware of what is being done and what can be done from those in spirit (yes), to aid the Earth, whereas the vast majority of us living on the Earth, do not have this knowledge. And I was going to say: is that a fair evaluation, and if you would care to elaborate further—but I think you have already elaborated as much as is reasonable for us this evening!

You see, my dear friends as you know, your knowledge is limited—it is blinkered in a sense that you can only take in so much—you can only understand so much. And yes of course, my vision of your world is much greater. But it is not my pathway to show you these visions of the future, but instead to help you as individuals to become 'greater spirits' if you like. You are already are spirit—you know that (yes), but what we would like is for you to develop more whilst in your physical path. That is why, occasionally I say to you: you must develop yourselves because with that development comes greater knowledge; and my dear friend, as I have said to you previously: really the past is irrelevant—the past has gone. You cannot change the events that have already gone by, but you can in some way, on your planet, influence your future for the better, and that is what is important at this time. But you will never fully understand what is happening.

Sarah: You did say to us that the past, present and future is all one.

It is, but that does not mean you focus upon the past—that is unnecessary.

George: Where past knowledge is concerned, another question I would like to place is: if by any chance when in spirit, I wanted to read books in the old Alexandria library, would I be sensing the thought-behind-the-words as it were, so that translation would not be necessary?

Let me say this first: whatever you desire is possible—whatever any one of you desire is possible, but you have to be in that state of spirituality where these things can happen; so yes, whatever you desire, my dear friend, is all that I am going to say. If you wish to look in these books, is that not possible?—yes it is.

George: And translation would not be necessary?

Translation would not be necessary. The understanding would be instantaneous.

George: Ah yes—it's a sort of semi-technical point. Yes, thank you for answering that.

Yes, I hope it has helped you.

Serena: Could I ask another question re healing? If you visualise someone that's unhappy but you visualise them happy—or you visualise them in a better state; is that the same as sending healing thoughts, or is that another way of helping them?

That is another way—you could call it 'healing'—of course it is a healing in a sense, but it is slightly different in that the 'visualisation' belongs to you, so there is a slight difference. But all of those things are good. Is this something you would be able to do?

Serena: Well I do try and do that.

—Because I feel that you would be very good at it.

Serena: Oh, thank you—I'll continue then!

Yes, yes. But what you must never do is visualise someone in a different position; that could bring disruption to them or interference in their lives. That is what you must be careful of.

Serena: I just tend to try and see them smiling rather than unhappy.

Yes, that is good—I would commend you for doing that.

Now my dear friends, are you happy at the start of this New Year?

George: Yes indeed and we're very happy with your evening discussion with us (yes).

Lilian: Yes, the words have been most helpful.

Yes, I would say that working on the Earth plane is interesting in as much as the words are repeated time and time again!

Knowing chuckles

And it has been a great joy to all of us who come close to you, to join with you this evening (thank you) and until we come together again, I leave you all my dear friends, cloaked in the love and the light of the Great Spirit; and until we come together again, I will leave you.

General thanks

A brief period of clairvoyance followed Eileen's return, and then another was with Eileen. As will be seen, there were a few difficulties with this one!

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01-18+rescue+toes....mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Hello.

Lilian: Hello—nice of you to drop in.

Drop in where?

Lilian: —to say: hello.

Are you new? I don't know your voice.

Lilian: No, probably you wouldn't recognise my voice, but you're still very welcome. We could have a chat.

Very welcome? Who are you?

Lilian: You're welcome to the house.

You come to do my toenails?

Lilian: Is that what you want done? (Yes). I see—and you're waiting for someone to come and do them—

Like little knives in my toes.

Lilian: Yeah—okay. I think we can soon have—

Where's Doris? Where's Doris?

Lilian: Is she a friend of yours?

No! —stupid girl!

Lilian: Is she your wife?

Oh my God—do I look like a man?

Lilian: Oh sorry! (Chuckles) I'm not doing very well am I?

Somebody needs to get rid of you!

Lilian: So you think you're in your house waiting for someone—

No! Where are you getting this drivel from?

Lilian: I'm just trying to find out where you are, or where you think you are.

In the lounge—everybody's here, can't you see them? Can you see them?

Lilian: Who are they? Can you tell me their names?

There's George over there (yes), Michael, Amy and Clive.

Lilian: I see, and you all live together (yes). Lovely, but have you been feeling a bit tired and unwell?

I've been feeling dicky for years love.

Lilian: Did you ever think what would happen to you when you die? Did you think that that would be the finish?

Well I won't be sitting here will I?

Lilian: Well, you are sat there and that's what I've got to tell you.

I'm not going anywhere till you've cut my toenails.

Lilian: Well we'll see to that, but something has caused you to die; but you think you're still in your home, don't you?

No—this IS my home.

Lilian: Yeah okay, but something—did you feel unwell for a moment or two, or did you just feel tired?

Yeah, tired—I'm a bit tired.

Lilian: Tired—and did you—have you never thought what would happen when you did die. Did you think about going to heaven?

I'm not sure if I believe all that stuff.

Lilian: Well it's true, and that's where you are going to have to go now.

How do YOU know?

Lilian: I just know.

Who—what's your name? (Lilian) I think they should throw you out Lilian!

Chuckles

Lilian: Perhaps they will! But if you'd listen to me—you're beginning to feel nice and well and fit and your feet don't bother you anymore.

Attitude changed

Well I'll be blessed—how d'you manage that?!

Lilian: Like I say: something's caused you to leave your body. You've finished with that old body and you've taken on a new one.

About time!

Lilian: Yes, and if you look ahead of you, you'll see a light, and in that light you'll see someone you'll recognise. Give it time. And you'll begin to feel really good and peaceful.

Oh it's lovely to have my toenails cut—I know that. I don't know about all of this.

Lilian: You'll soon get used to the idea.

Oh my word!

Lilian: Who do you see?

I see Jim!

Lilian: Lovely—he's waiting.

He's my brother you know—Jim. Good friends we always were. What's he doing here? —Because he IS dead.

Lilian: Well that's what I mean—now you've got to join him. He will explain much better than I can.

Oh my word!

Lilian: We can't die really—the spirit can't die. We leave the old body behind and take on a new one—a spirit body.

Well it can't be any worse than the old one, can it?

Lilian: It should be better!

Are you coming with me?

Lilian: No, I've still got a few jobs to do before I join you.

Oh look at Jim—he's got that waistcoat on—never did like it.

Chuckles

Oh my word!

Lilian: And you're happy to go with him?

I tell you what: I feel good (yes)—I feel lovely (good). Oh—what's your name? (Lilian) Lilian—well—well I never—Jim. I AM going to go with him.

Lilian: Yes, that's right—a grand reunion—you'll have lots to talk about.

And a little tipple (yes).

Well, thank you Lilian (you're welcome). I don't know you, but thank you!

Lilian: I'll probably see you one day.

George's Notes:

1: Salumet's need to repeat some words. Some of those words that need repeating have been around for a long time—'Love thy neighbour', 'Thou shalt not kill' for example. But as Salumet says, frequent repetition can devalue, and looking at the world's war zones, it is as if those fundamental tenets of religion no longer exist!

2: Terrorism—not a simple matter. So many motive considerations must be taken into consideration, so that there is not one simple black-and-white answer. And perhaps we should define who exactly is a terrorist—those who instil terror? That surely includes those conducting thousands of airstrikes? Terrorism, as Salumet says, is not a simple matter—neither, I would say, is it simple to define!

~25th January 2016~

All remained silent for about 10-minutes. Eileen then indicated that the room-energy needed slight adjustment, and requested that we all hold hands for 2-minutes. One was then soon with Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_25+Joseph.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Hello.

General welcome—pause

Lilian: Can you tell us why you've come? You are very welcome.

I can tell you this is the first time I have ever done this.

We assured our visitor that he was coming through clearly

Yes, I have been told this, but I wanted to come and speak with people of like mind on my first visit (wonderful). That was the reason for the hands to touch—in order that I could be more comfortable with you.

We indicated our understanding of this

Sarah: Do you feel comfortable?

I feel very comfortable, thank you—yes. By the way, my name is Joseph.

George: 'Joseph'.

And I know most people say names do not matter, but I am afraid, for me it is important—only in as much as I wish you to recognise me if I should come again.

Sarah: I hope you will.

This coming together is not as easy as you would imagine. There is much to consider and many people will not even entertain the thought. But me being me, I had to do it.

Graham: I'm glad you did.

Lilian: It's a challenge.

Sarah: I know there's no time in spirit, but in our time, did it take you a long time to come through?

I believe so from what I am told, but if you are speaking about time in general, it feels but a second to me (yes). But I am told this is not so. It is something I am still trying to come to terms with.

George: You speak very well and your words are coming over very clearly.

Yes—I was not sure which instrument to use—that too caused the problem at the beginning, because everything is so finely tuned normally (yes). But I was not sure who to use. I know there are a couple here who I could quite easily speak through. But this one does not seem to mind.

Agreement/encouragement

Have you anything you would like to ask me?—not that I know too much, but I am willing to try.

Lilian: How long ago did you live on the Earth?

Well I am not entirely sure, but I've been told about 200-years. Does that sound correct?

Sarah: Yes, it could be. Do you remember much about your life?

No not now—no.

Sarah: So you don't know what you did or even if you—were you Joseph then?

My name has always been Joseph. I do remember that I was given the opportunity to change it but I decided that Joseph was a good solid name.

George: Yes it is indeed.

Yes, and even as I say it, I feel that old pride, which I used to have—

Chuckles

—And which is not really forgivable now. But I like the name (yes).

Sarah: So what made you want to come back?

I found the interest when, someone who was close to me decided to do the same, and when they returned, they were as you might say today: full of it!

Laughter

George: They set an example—and that's nice!—that's interesting.

Graham: Have you had a chance to look around the Earth? It's probably changed a little bit since 200-years.

I believe so, yes. We can find out whatever we wish to (yes). I have not been so much interested in that as in coming back to offer some guidance. That seems more important to me, yes. And that is why I felt it necessary to keep my name.

Sarah: Yes—so have you got anything you wish to tell us to help us?

I am afraid I am no scholar. I am but a mere man who wishes to try to help.

George: Have you any memory of the part of the Earth in your previous life?

No, the lady has just asked me that question.

So he clearly considers that Sarah's earlier question embraces this

Time means very little to me at this moment.

Lilian: Can you tell us a little, apart from visiting us, what you do in spirit?

What I intended to do was to—I always wanted to teach people to some degree or other. Mathematics I think is the only thing I can remember, but that is very vague (yes), but all changes when you come to this place—not THIS place, the place I come from (yes), yes.

Sarah: What are you doing there now?

Many things—I am still learning. I am still interested in all that happens, and I am very interested in colours and light and time.

Sarah: Sara here—she likes colours—spiritual colours.

Yes, you should all be aware of your own spiritual colour, but I know that is not the case.

Paul: We were all told once I think—well, not everyone in this room actually, but the people that were here that evening were told their spiritual colours at the time I think—

Sarah: Do they not change?

Yes they do—they do change. They change with how you are feeling—health-wise—lots of different reasons, you change colour. But there is one shade that stays with all of you. Did you know that?

Sara: I'm not surprised. I felt an affinity with one myself. I always like it and want it, and it's a blue—a royal blue (yes). Am I right?

Yes, a heavenly colour—the deeper the colour HERE, the lighter it is in spirit.

Sarah: Ah, it's the opposite, is it?

It is the opposite yes—a more spiritual colour.

Sara: So it's a deep blue—

Yes, but there is always—I will call it a shade of pure light that is with each of you all of the time, yes.

Sarah: So you said: the deeper the colour, the lighter it is in spirit. Is that also the reverse—the lighter it is here, the darker it is in spirit, or not—it just gets lighter and lighter in spirit?

Well, it is just that the spirituality of the person shows the colour. It is not so much just colour. There is more to it than that I think—yes. Well I'm really happy—I'm really, really happy to have joined you this time.

General convivial response

George: So can I ask: do you take an interest—do you observe the happenings on the Earth at the present time, and do you have any impressions or helpful comments you wish to pass on?

I am not well endowed with the facts of your world, if that is what you mean. I am not so interested in that at the moment, but of course we can know whatever we wish to, and I do believe your world is in some little turmoil at the moment (yes).

George: Yes turmoil and it's a period of change I think.

Yes, I am being told that that is what to tell—the world and many other worlds are changing at this particular time, and of course although there are many troubles, do not concern yourselves too much. There have always been many troubles on the Earth planet I think.

George: Yes, and I think I understand that there can also be very good outcomes from those troubles.

So I believe—so I'm being told. But it is not something I am well versed on.

Sarah: You did say just now: 'many worlds', so our world and many other worlds are in trouble?

Yes! Why would you only accept that this one would have troubles?

Sarah: I just thought you might have meant it was like a sort of time when there's trouble and then you get times when there's not trouble—but it's just an ongoing thing on other planets just the same.

It is called my dear 'evolution' (yes). Yes, that is a word you need to remember (yes). That is what I am being told. But I am no expert upon what is happening in your world.

Sarah: I don't think any of us are experts!

Yes—I am so happy to have joined you, but I am feeling a tug. And I do believe that is what they do when we must leave.

George: We are also pleased that you have been able to do this for the first time.

Yes, it will be easier next time.

Lilian: I was going to say: we look forward to the next time.

Well I do not promise it will be here. I only wanted for my first time to have people who have a little knowledge (yes), just to make it more comfortable for you and for me—and I do believe I made a very good choice!

General thanks and appreciation

Sarah: Well, if you come again, you could come with your friend.

My friend is much more on the way to advancement than I am; so I do not know about that. It always amuses me when I hear that people think because we are in the spirit world that we suddenly know everything—that is not true (no)—not true. Anyway, thank you for allowing me, and I really—the tapping is getting sharper!

George: Please feel free to come again Joseph—we shall be pleased to have you with us.

Thank you. Thank you and goodbye my friends.

General farewells

Next, one via Sarah:

Audio link: http://www.solutetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_25+Ung+Kulla.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is a long time in your years since I last came to you, but I wish to visit you one more time, because I said I would do just that. I don't know if you remember me?

Lilian: I remember the voice—

Paul: Yes, it seems familiar—

Lilian: Sorry, but we're not good at remembering names.

Yes—I'm Ond Kulla. Yes, it makes me a little sad to come back at this time, because there is so much trouble in my old country. But I am doing what I can to help all those who are suffering and who are perhaps not doing what they had planned to do—yes.

Paul: Would it help if we sent some prayers for this country—was it Egypt?

It was indeed Egypt, and always all thoughts that are given to us in spirit will be listened to and acknowledged. And there are those who are 'selected', if you like, to work in certain areas, and my choice has been to help those who are from the area that was so much part of my Earthly life. Although it does not matter where you come from in the Earthly life, sometimes you do hold on to just a little of what was. And it makes me a little sad when there is so much turmoil.

George: Yes it does make us sad too. In fact, much of what we call the Middle East area is at the present in some degree of turmoil.

Yes, there is much unrest in many areas, but as I said to you before: It is my wish to do what I can—my small part in the big world. There are many like me who choose certain areas and this is mine. I do remember when I came last time that you seemed to be interested in my life upon this Earth and it is why I decided it was time to come back, just to let you know that I appreciated your time, and thought you might be interested to know that I am still working for my old land.

Lilian: You were on the planet when the pyramids were just being built, did you say?

Yes, it was that sort of time.

Paul: And you worked on the land as a farmer—

Yes I did indeed, yes.

Lilian: So with your thoughts from spirit, you hope to help the people in these dark places.

Yes, I try to help—not to change their lives, but to bring peace to the area.

George: Could I ask a deeper question? In your farming at that time—your farming procedure, were you aware of any influence in that from the previous Earth civilization of Atlantis?—or is that not part of your awareness?

That was not part of my awareness. When I was on this land, I was aware of spirit in my own way as a mere labourer, but I was not in any way one of those who had in-depth knowledge at that time.

George: Ah yes, I understand.

So I have been glad to return as promised, and now I will take myself back and continue with my spiritual work.

George: Well, we are most pleased that you have been back. Please do feel free to return to us again if you so wish.

Paul: We'll remember Egypt in our prayers—yes.

Thank you.

Paul: Yes, thank you for coming back again Ond Kulla.

Thank you.

And finally, another was with Eileen, to take us on a meditative journey:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_01_25+med.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening. I've been asked to come to finish your evening—to let you leave this place with a feeling of love and of upliftment.

George: Ah, how nice!

Lilian: Lovely!

And I know that we usually use the dear lady across from me (Sara), but this time I am instructed to take you on a little healing journey. So, if you would my dear friends, gather together, sit back, close your eyes and I will take you on this short journey. If each one of you will just take that deep breath and let it go, and then we will be ready to do our journey. If at any time you wish to stop or it seems too difficult, then please quietly return, open your eyes and feel your feet firmly on the ground. So let us begin:

'You gather together all of you in the most beautiful summer field—the sky is blue, the air is clean and you feel happy, and each one of you look at each other and smile. And each of you feels good about this new day; and as we go on our journey, slowly at first but all together, we are thinking really about nothing at all but just to feel the soft breeze on your face, the slight wind in your hair and you feel good about your lives. So as we move through this beautiful field, you see ahead another field that is absolutely filled with the most beautiful flowers that you have ever seen. I want you to enter this field and each one of you, pick that special flower that is yours alone. Let us take a moment for you to choose that flower.

Pause

You all have your flower, look at it—see the colour—look into the middle of the flower, and there you will find a feeling of great love and a feeling that you must travel forward into the next field. So I ask you to continue forward, still looking at your beautiful, beautiful flower. And as you reach the next field, ahead of you seems to be a little misty. I want you my dear gentle friends to move through what is not mist, but a beautiful cascade of water—water that has every colour you could imagine and more. And this water, my dear friends, will cleanse you as each one of you moves through. So continue, and as you pass through, you are not wet, but you feel uplifted. Each one of you go through this cascade of beautiful coloured water, and you begin to feel much better. And we have one more field that lies ahead. And now you feel light, you cannot feel your feet upon the ground—it is as if you are floating, and yes my friends, you should be. You feel light and happy and uplifted. And as we go into the next field, you stop, and I would like you to look around for a moment or two—and if you cannot see someone, I know that you will feel or sense someone—someone who is associated with you. And I want you to reach out for that person—to feel the joy and the love that they bring to you. I will leave you for a moment, just to draw in that deep, deep breath.

Pause

I hope, my dear friends, that you have found someone, but if not, do not be too concerned as long as you have the feeling of love. And in your own time, I would like you to retrace the steps that you have taken—to come back through that beautiful coloured water, to see the flowers in the field, and to meet each other at the very end. And when you are ready, you can open your eyes, and you should feel as if all of life's burdens have been lifted from your shoulders. I will leave you in the field to open your eyes as you wish and to feel that great love.'

In conclusion, we discussed our feelings, our chosen flowers and whom we met. It was quite an experience!

George's Notes:

Ond Kulla: There is reference to the Egyptian farmer Ond Kulla in our transcript of 5th December 2005, and it was during our previous meeting that he spoke with us.

~1st February 2016~

This was the first evening that Jan was able to be with us following her leg repair. After some discussion about medical matters, the evening began with clairvoyance. One was with Eileen who passed family information to Sarah. Then another spoke via Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_02_01+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Hello—me Cho.

General greetings

I come quickly say hello to the lady: 'hello'.

Jan: Hi Cho! Thank you for being around me a lot—

Yes—yes. I think about you all the time.

Jan: And me you.

Yes, and I will come back another time and tell you what I promised—a little bit more about me, but this time I'm very busy (okay), but I just wanted to say lady: pleased to see you again.

Jan: And you—I know you're around me a lot.

Yes—you helped me at the beginning—yes you did.

Jan: Yeah—lovely to hear you.

Yeah—I'll be back sometime—tell you a bit more about me.

George: If you're busy Cho, does that mean that we are going to be busy?

I hope so, I can't promise—yeah, anyway thank you lady talking to me.

Jan: You are more than welcome—lovely—our love goes with you.

Thank you. Ciao Cho.

Jan: Bye.

Farewells

Another followed via Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_02_01+message+4+Sally.mp3

Lilian: Welcome—nice of you to come—hello.

Thank you—I wanted to come. I want the lady who you are calling ‘Sally’ to know that I am one of her helpers, and I want her to know that in any time of distress I will come close to her. But although it is not necessary, I wanted her to know of me (yes), and she can gain comfort from knowing that she can call upon me at any time. My name is ‘Martha’ (Martha). Yes, I hope she will accept my presence.

Sally: Yes—yes, absolutely—thank you very much.

Yes, you must ask for some help. Don’t be afraid to ask for help sometimes, because everyone needs a little help in their lives at times, and I feel quite uplifted coming to talk to you here. I think it is because you are a group rather than an individual. It is very pleasant.

Lilian: Good, it’s nice to know you feel it, as you say (yes).

Ben: Do you look after other people as well?

Of course, yes, it would not be quite right to only help one person, but each of you have helpers at different times throughout your life. And I do understand this dear person and it was my desire and my wish to come to help sometimes.

Ben: How do you choose who to help?

You just know by the light—of course there is guidance if you do need some. But ultimately the decision is mine. I feel a great affinity with this dear one; so it does not have to be people that you know. There is a misconception that all those people who wish to help are either family or friends. That is not quite true. Of course, they wish to help if they are family, but there are those of us who have known of each other for quite a long time.

George: Yes, part of our teaching is: we are all one, and this seems to bear that out.

Yes—yes, we belong to a much greater light, and that light attracts us to others that we have previously known. It is not always necessary to make yourself known whilst on the Earth, because as human beings you are so curious, and sometimes it is unnecessary.

Sarah: So actually are you saying that you’ve known Sally before, perhaps in a previous lifetime?

Our energies have been connected at some point—yes (that’s nice). Not so much that we have gone through a lifetime together, but just that our energies blend so very well, and I have decided at this time to make an appearance—yes.

Sally: I’m so glad you have—thank you. I really appreciate this—thank you very much.

Just know that my love is always with you and I am on hand for whenever you need me.

Sally: Thank you. Thank you very much.

Thank you for listening.

A further period of clairvoyance via Eileen concerned the possibility of a forthcoming marriage

There was then a ‘rescue’ with Eileen:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_02_01+rescue.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

Don’t you be talking to me!

Lilian: Why don’t you want me to talk to you? You don’t recognise my voice?

No—don’t like you.

Lilian: I’m sorry about that—why don’t you like me? Who do you think I am?

YOU know who you are—don’t like you—want you to go.

Lilian: What do you think my name is?

Well, you wouldn’t like what I call you.

Lilian: (With a chuckle) well you tell me what name you think I am.

Susan.

Lilian: Well, my name is ‘Lilian’, not Susan.

She sent you here, didn’t she?

Lilian: I must be somebody different.

No—you want me to get out of my house and I’m not—not going.

Lilian: I'm not going to do that—I'm not going to do that; but I'd like you to tell me if you're not feeling very well.

—None of your business—coming in here interfering.

Lilian: Well it is my business, because then I can help you.

Where's that Susan gone then?

Lilian: She's gone. We don't need to worry about Susan. How have you been feeling?

Pretty awful—she twisted my arm you know (oh dear)—yeah. That was rough.

Lilian: Was she some kind of a nurse or something? A carer?

Yes—supposed to come in and help me.

Lilian: But she wasn't very kind—

No kind of bleeding help, is she?

Lilian: How old are you?

—Ninety three.

Lilian: Oh my word, that's a good age, isn't it?

—Too bleeding long—yeah.

Lilian: Are you fed up with the life?

Yes, I am.

Lilian: And you feel ready to go to the next life, because there is another life.

I know that! I don't need you to tell me that you young whippersnapper!

Lilian: Well that's where you belong now—you've left this life and you have to move on. We call it 'heaven'—where you've got to start living is in heaven.

Jan: Does he know a Phyllis?

—My dear wife.

Jan: Well I've got Phyllis here with me.

What's she doing there with you? Who are you anyway?

Lilian: She's waiting for you—that's why that lady's saying that.

I can't see her.

Lilian: You will—you will. Is it quite dark where you are at the moment?

It's kind of hazy at the moment.

Lilian: Well that will begin to clear and it will be nice and light.

Jan: Phyllis wants you to look into the mantle mirror.

—Into the mirror?

Lilian: Who do you see?

Oh my God!—Oh my God—it's Phyllis!

Lilian: And you also begin to feel a lot better.

Yeah I do.

Lilian: Good, so you're quite happy.

Well I never!

Jan: There's a big light around the mirror now. It's all lit up, and Phyllis says you should go through the mirror like Alice in Wonderland. Just go—just keep looking at the light round the mirror.

What's she think?—I'm a magician?

Jan: Probably.

Lilian: You'll be okay if—

She looks beautiful, she does—like my young Phyllis.

Lilian: Well she'll be very pleased to be reunited with you.

Jan: You just keep concentrating on your light.

How did I not know?

Lilian: You just needed a little bit of help.

Why—you're a nice lady! (Good.) What's your name again?

Lilian: Lilian.

Lilian—I'll remember you, Lilian.

Lilian: Thank you. But you're happy to go and join Phyllis?

Yeah—if I was a little bit younger, I could take a fancy.

Chuck

Lilian: It won't take long, and you'll begin to feel a lot younger.

I'm feeling as if I'm just floating through this mirror.

Jan: Bye!

Thank you—I'm gonna go.

Lilian: Be happy—you'll be happy.

I'm going.

Lilian: Go and be happy.

Jan: Phyllis says 'hello darling'—

Hello my dear.

Spoken via Jan: Hello!—told you I'd wait.

Isn't that just beautiful!

There was some discussion about that rescue. Then another was with Eileen, followed by one via Sarah:

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_02_01+Henry+and+Sol.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

Jan: Are you Henry—or Harry?

Lilian: Can you tell us your name? It would be a help.

Good evening.

Jan: Hello.

My name is Henry, and I've come just to tell you that the next time, your teacher will be with you. That is the message I bring tonight.

Lilian: Thank you very much. So you're a messenger—

I am indeed a messenger. Someone is trying to use the lady across from me.

Lilian: Yes, I guessed they were (yes).

George: Very nice to have your message Henry. Thank you for that—we look forward to that (yes).

Lilian: Anything else you'd like to—

I would like just to stay for the rest of your evening, quietly.

Lilian: You're welcome.

—Helping you to blend together (thank you).

Lilian then approached Sarah:

Lilian: Good evening—and you are welcome too.

Thank you. I was drawn to you because I heard my name, but then I realised you were not talking to me—because my name also is Henry. I used to help many people whilst I was on the Earth plane.

Lilian: In what way did you help?

I was a doctor, but I have to say to you that the methods I used were certainly not the same as you use today.

Lilian: Can you give us a clue as to what the year may have been?

I helped treat the other Henry—your King Henry.

Jan: So you're the leach doctor—

I used many methods to try to help this man, but now I am no longer on the Earth plane, I can see that the treatments we gave were not always very helpful.

Lilian: Not very pleasant.

Jan: But you didn't have our knowledge of today's medical practices—so you did your best.

The best thing about my work was the thought behind it.

Jan: Yes—the intention.

I wished to help these people to get better. And I can see now also that I did indeed help the many people I treated (I'm sure you did)—not physically but spiritually.

Jan: So you were aware of that spiritual healing? So you were unconventional for your time?

I was not aware whilst I was on the Earth plane (Oh I see). But since I have returned to spirit, I can see that my passion for helping, did indeed help, but not in the way that I had intended.

George: Perhaps we could call that 'inspirational help'—

I do not know what words to use.

George: You seem to have inspired people with the thought of getting better.

Yes, when you say 'inspirational', it also was down to the patient, because if the patient had faith in me and was prepared to let me help them, the help which I now know was spiritual help, was greater than those who fought against me (yes) and I can tell you that the other Henry, in the beginning, was willing to let me work with him, but it did not last long.

Jan: By today's standards, was Henry diabetic? Would he be classed as diabetic today—and am I right in saying it was gout that Henry suffered from, which is a form of arthritis. Do you know that now?

Yes, he did have gout and he did have many other problems relating to his diet (diet—yes), but I do not know if he was, as you would say: diabetic (no)—I cannot help you on that one. But I can tell you that the diet he had and his mind-set, all contributed to his demise.

Jan: Yes—great king I believe though—great man!

He had his moments, but he also had, as you would say, his free-will, and perhaps if he were to come here again in the same role, he might do some things a little differently (yes).

George: Can you say which Henry this was?

Jan: Henry VIII.

George: It was Henry VIII, yes—thank you.

Lilian: I just wondered if you are interested in the medical matters of today—

I am very interested and I follow what is going on very closely; in fact I am very near some of those who are, as you would say: at the cutting edge.

Jan: You like to watch the pioneers at work, don't you?

I do try also to influence them a little. So that is all I wish to say. I heard my name and I came.

Lilian: Well, I'm glad you did—

Jan: Fascinating to talk to you.

—And very good to talk to you too.

Lilian: It would be nice if you could come again.

Jan: Do you know Henry, that the use of maggots is still very much used in today's medicine?—and they're beginning to realise just how much they do actually work, because they went out of fashion, as it was, for a long time. They're using insects and maggots and spiders again, which your medical books were full of at the time—those types of 'natural' healing.

Pause

Jan: Has he gone?

Eileen: Not quite, no.

There are many who are influencing all your doctors and medical advances, and those who helped promote the use of these insects and other live—I was going to say 'beings', but I cannot find the right word. However, those who influenced them to use these leeches, they are still around and helping all those who today search for the best cure. So it would be inevitable that if there were to be something that worked, we would not let you forget it totally.

Jan: No, but there are cures for cancer etc and other diseases available to us, but for some reason, part of the human element of the corporations that run these things, want to keep it from us. Is that something that in the future will disappear? I hope so—then we'll be able to use things like cannabis oil.

Can I say to you that many of those who are running the businesses are afraid—

Jan: Yes, we understand.

—And fear, as you know, does not bring out the best. So I can say to you: please send love to all those who have these powerful positions; and all will 'be let loose', if you can understand that phrase (yes).

George: Do you imply fear of losing their profitable industries?

Yes, and they also have fear because they are afraid that the simple things in life that work so well can be better than the ones they have found or thought to be the right ones—and they do not wish to lose face.

Jan: Yes I know.

George: We well understand that—thank you.

Paul: Yes, we'll send them love in our prayers—thank you for reminding—

Be assured that there is much help being given to all in the medical field, as there is those who are in need of this help.

George: We are most grateful for help.

And now I will return.

Paul: Thank you Henry—

Jan: Lovely to meet you.

My name is not Henry. Henry has already gone back. My name if you wish for a name—it's 'Saul'.

Jan: Thank you—I did wonder. It's still lovely to meet you Saul.

George's Notes:

1: King Henry VIII: King of England 1509-1547. He broke from the Church of Rome (1534) and became head of the Church of England, and oversaw the destruction of many religious buildings. He is noted for having six wives, two of whom he executed; he also had mistresses. Henry was responsible for many executions during his reign. He increased the navy from five ships to around sixty and established coastal forts. The Treason Act forbade anyone to predict the death of the king, and so doctors did not tell him of his approaching death.

2: Simple Cancer Cures: (a)—A step that seems to have been overlooked is: what about those countries that have low cancer incidence? Perhaps we should move towards their diet and lifestyle. Example: South East China, where it has long been thought that the Chinese pearl barley featuring in diet is the reason. Recent clinical trials have proved this to be so.

(b)—Canadian scientists report that DICHLOROACETATE (DCA) is an effective remedy. Trials have been successful. DCA is a simple substance and requires no patent.

(c)—TETRAHYDROCANNABINOL (THC) from the plant cannabis sativa is a proven cancer cure that reduces tumour size. There have been twenty scientific journal articles that report its successful use.

These simple remedies are very, very much less costly than current standard treatments and surgery and they work! And there are those dedicated to getting the word out to everyone.

~8th February 2016~ SALUMET

At the outset, Eileen had a tickly throat and was coughing. Salumet quickly dealt with this.

Our prior conversation had included the mention of surgical procedure updates and the news that 'hand transplants' should be available from April onwards; also 'head transplants' were being seriously considered following experiments with monkeys:

Lilian: Good evening Salumet. Welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Coughs

Lilian: Would a drink help?

I am dealing with it. I am happy—

More coughs

I think it should be okay now (oh good). As always my dear friends, I am happy to join with you; and again, those of us in spirit have been listening to your conversations. As humans, you always will have had many doubts about advances in your world. Remember how we discussed about transplants of the heart and how our comments helped many of you at that time. I wish only to say that these things are never clear at the time of speaking about them. All I will say is that advances in medicine will always be taking place and sometimes it may not be to everyone's agreement, but still you have to allow these things to advance. I of course see a much wider picture and have to this time in your universe, been aware of many changes. I will say to you my dear friends that continue to question whatever you will, because in that way you will surely for yourselves reach the correct answer. We do not come to tell you what you should think—that, my dear friends, is entirely up to you. But I want to reiterate this evening that I have indeed come to you in the name of truth. That is what I have always stated. My message to you has always been simple. I try to bring to each one of you ‘love’, ‘understanding’ and many of the qualities which make for a good human being. Your understanding sometimes takes you too far from the simple truth, and I wish only to say to you this time that love, understanding and allowing spirit to help you at all times, that other gifts that I bring to you; but again, I offer them to you this evening. But when you leave this room, you will feel that love of spirit, you will have understanding of your fellow man, even if you do not fully agree with him. You have to allow this planet to evolve, because that is what is happening all of the time—that this planet and many, many others are evolving at the same time. So I would like you my dear friends, when you leave this room tonight that you think about that simple word ‘love’. It is a small word in your vocabulary but it is of great magnitude for all. This is what I ask you to do this time, my dear friends. Do you have any questions for me this time?

George: I think I am right in saying how the steps on our way forward, are as your words very strongly imply—are an important part of our evolution.

Yes, and for your own spiritual development; after all, with your mistakes in your lives, you learn so much do you not?

George: Indeed (yes); with the thought about head transplants, I feel so sorry for the monkeys, who are being experimented on.

Yes—yes, and you must hold those thoughts at all times, but as we have spoken of in the past, you do not know the reasoning behind all of these things. But yes, of course you must have love for all of the animals. It is never right to create these conditions with the animals. So I am in agreement with you that it is not always suitable. I cannot say more than that at this particular time (thank you). After all, humans and the animal kingdom belong in this planet with equal rights (yes).

Lilian: We use—it’s quite a hard one—thinking of the animals in the experiments.

Yes, but again my dear friend, when you do this, you are thinking in the moment. You do not see the wider—

Lilian: Yes, the bigger picture—

After all, there was so much outcry when you had the first heart transplants, and people were saying that it must have been their time, but no, you humans as human beings can—shall I say?—make a mess of your lives (yes). You create situations that are wrong, and create ill health from within the body when in fact the body should have remained healthy. You must think along all of those lines before you make criticism.

Lilian: Well I know when I was facing operations on my heart—it did worry me about the animals that would have been used, so I defend them in my way.

But today those animals would say they were grateful that they could have helped, if they could use human words. That is what they would tell you.

Lilian: That’s lovely.

George: That’s interesting.

Jan: As you mentioned monkeys (yes), are there things in their consciousness—of the monkey involved (yes),—because they can see the bigger picture from spirit. Would they not see it as——A gift to humankind? (Yes.) That is exactly right; and that it is always difficult when we are trying to explain why these things happen—of course it seems horrific and of course we do not wish harm to anyone—animal or man. You must look to the wider picture of this.

Jan: Yes, because in my own little world I can imagine—like contracts between species almost—spiritually being drawn up, but it is for the betterment of mankind, but who knows that that medical advancement may help the animal kingdom in return at some later stage?

And also, when the human has received, not only from animals but from other people, whatever the transplant may be, it has allowed that person to grow—the one who has donated; but also it has given more time to the person to whom the transplant has been given (yes). It has given that person time to look at his own spirit, and where perhaps he may have gone wrong in this lifetime. So you see there is never one clear message.

Jan: No, not at all—no, even regarding the eating of another animal, I was reading that the animal kingdom; although they wouldn't really like us to eat them—but because a vast majority of them also eat members of the animal kingdom, it's a gift—really, when they go back to spirit as one consciousness, they really—how can I put this?—there's an acceptance.

Yes—yes, you have to understand that, from spirit, we are looking at everything in much more detail (yes)—yes.

Jan: Well they prefer that we didn't eat them but they understand why—that's the main thing.

Yes, but of course we do know and understand that the Earth is not a perfect place (no), neither are those animals who exist upon that planet. So, again I say to you my dear friends: be careful in your judgements.

Jan: Yes because some of the animal kingdom just literally kill for fun (yes). So yes, we shouldn't judge one another at all.

George: Perhaps an extreme example is: during World War II, a thriving rabbit population became (in UK) a very important food source. It certainly increased thought that there might be on Earth a certain gratitude in relation to the rabbit, for the service given. It was certainly appreciated by humans at the time.

Yes—yes of course, and you have to remember you all belong to the same energy—that when you leave this Earth plane, you will all return to that energy that you know as the Great Spirit. So whatever is happening in your world today, I say to you my dear friends: analyse if you wish, but keep your hearts open to all of the things that are going on around you. Remember the word 'love' and it will carry you through, no matter what conditions you may come across.

George: Perhaps one more difficult one to think about is a technical consideration. We are all familiar with the Galileo telescope based on the convex lens that enlarges our view of the universe and matter. I have recently read a report on what is called the 'Santilli' telescope, which is based on the concave lens, and designed for revealing, not matter, but antimatter—antimatter based on antiparticles.

I would only say this to you my dear friends: if there is matter, there is always antimatter.

George: Ah! Well that in itself is very interesting—

Yes, because you always have to have a balance.

George: Yes, it has been rather conjectural.

Yes, but just keep that in mind about matter. There is much you do not know yet and much for this planet to find out.

George: I understand the digital camera is able to photograph images from the Santilli telescope.

Yes—but do not forget also that they are being helped by us from spirit.

George: Yes of course.

Yes, all things that happen have been helped by our world in some way or another.

George: So this is another part of evolution on our way forward—

Yes—yes, of course. Now, are there any more questions this time?

Jan: I do have one from Richard, but I feel at this time it is probably not the right time to ask you. At the end of our discussions—he wanted to know, regarding the 'missing link' in the human chain of evolution—

Yes, do you feel that there is only one missing link?

Jan: No, Richard suggests that there are more than—quite a few actually that we haven't had answered.

Yes, you are at the very beginnings of discovery of your planets. So yes, I will say to him: he is right in his thoughts (yes). Yes, there is not just one missing link.

Jan: No, he mentioned to me at least three that he was aware of in the chain that they haven't lined them all up yet, but—

As the planet progresses and evolves, you do not get the answers to the questions. The questions become greater—that is what you have to remember also (yes). As you answer one question, another one arises (yes), and that will always be whilst you live on this planet.

Jan: I think he, well I know he is extremely interested. His main question to himself is: were we engineered in some way—that we don't appear to have evolved from the ape, that they say we do. I'm not quite sure what he's read up to, but were we engineered in some way by ETs?—that was his question.

I know where he is going, but at this time I will say to him 'no', you have not been engineered in the way that he means.

Jan: Okay, thank you.

George: I have another question regarding the final disappearance of Atlantis. There is very good evidence that this has been accompanied by 'climate change', and quite a marked climate change—in that in Siberia, there are areas that are now icy tundra—were abundant grasslands supporting thousands of mammoth, woolly rhinoceros and sabre-tooth tigers—quite large as well as small animals. But at the same time as the final disappearance of Atlantis, there seems to have been this huge climate change, which has caused these animal extinctions. So again—part of our planetary evolution—

Yes of course, there is so much you do not understand, and it is futile to try to explain what has already gone. Remember I have said to you: you must go forward—you must look forward and can't look backwards. But yes, there have been many changes in this planet, as there are in others, but you will never come to the end of wondering. But I understand why, as human beings you are so curious, when all you should really be striving for is the beauty of your souls and the beauty of spirit when you return to us. All of life seems so complicated does it not?

Jan: I wonder if that's one of the reasons why humans are inquisitive and so curious about the past?—is it because the answers are moving forward sometimes?

—Not at all (no?). You do not make the past to move forward.

Jan: No, I know that, but we all seem to be wired in that way, where we're all looking for answers from the past. Why is that?

I will just say and call it the word you used: 'just curiosity'. You have been endowed with free wills which includes curiosity—that is why (I see). And there is no harm in trying to find about the past, but what I am saying my dear friends, is that you must not allow it to take precedence over what you should be seeking. That is all I am trying to say.

George: Perhaps it helps to colour our impression of planetary evolution, but yes, I fully accept what you say—

Yes, but there is no harm in doing so. It is entirely up to individual's free will—yes.

Jan: Children are also very, very curious, they are closer to spirit than we are and we've all had this—especially the little boys—amazing curiosity and eagerness to learn about dinosaurs. It's really the thing to learn about when you're aged six (yes), so I think there's no harm in being childlike—

Do not forget that the genes retain memory (yes). You must look to that source as well—yes. Yes, there is no harm, but my wish for all of you is that you look forward, that your spirits soar, that it becomes imbued with all of the knowledge that you need to grow spiritually; after all, that is the main objective of you being here—to love each other, to change what is wrong and to go forward.

Jan: When you say 'changes', what sort of changes?—to change what is wrong within ourselves?

—Firstly, and then in your societies—yes.

Jan: —because obviously you can't change society if you're not prepared in yourself, it seems to me.

Yes, that is correct—that is correct.

George: Yes, an area that sorely needs much more love at the moment is the country of Syria; and there would appear to be six foreign nations conducting a war in their homeland (yes), and driving immigrants to other places—which is a natural thing—I think many would run away in that situation (yes). So the immigration which many simply see as an isolated problem is really very much of our own making.

There is no doubt that in the world you inhabit this day, that there is ignorance to 'within', there is hatred, there is all sorts of negative feelings which need to be obliterated. But it is still part of the planet's evolution, of this there can be no doubt, but that should not stop all of you sending out love for all people, all those who suffer and for those who are committing terrible deeds, each to the other. Yes, there can be no doubt that the world in certain places is in turmoil, but it has happened before and I can only say that until each Earthly individual finds in their own hearts the love of the Creator, we will always have some problems. That is why it is important for each and every individual to give of themselves with love. I will never tire of using the word 'love' because that is the very core of your beings. Do you understand my dear friends?

George: Yes indeed. Yes, I think of this as a basic essence.

Yes—yes. If you can reach into your own hearts and spirits, you can make this world a much safer and much more loving place. And I know to many, it must seem like that is an impossibility. I sit here with you my dear friends and tell you: it is a possibility. And now, I feel I will take my leave this time. I just wanted to reiterate to you all, what love can do for each and every one of you, and to never forget that that is the very, very deepest part of your being.

Jan: May I just take this opportunity—I would like to say 'thank you' for the love and help I have had over the last couple of months (yes). So I thank you.

All of you are loved and we try to help and uplift you at all times. So as I leave, again I enclose you in my love and leave you feeling uplifted—until we come together next time—I will leave you quietly.

General appreciation and thanks

Following Eileen's return, there was a brief visit from Cho:

Lilian: Hello.

Hello—hello.

Jan: Hello—I knew it was you. I could see you above my head.

I coming next time—tell you little bit about me.

Welcomed by all

—Next time, okay?

Jan: We look forward to that.

I was helping this time.

Jan: Are you able to help Eileen come back?

No, I just know—she ready to talk.

Jan: I see.

I come next time—ciao!

All: Ciao!

Jan explained that she could see him—what he looked like when in Mongolia—cleft palate, round face, thick set, very short and with a crop of black hair.

Next, a brief period of clairvoyance via Eileen, with Jan's father letting Jan know that he is still around and commenting on her business accountancy—"You make your own lottery!" And Eileen could see him placing their old money box on the table in the middle of the room. There was some nice humour in this, and he was encouraging Lilian to spend a little of her money and "Buy yourself a nice cake!"

George's Notes:

1: Santilli Telescope: The data on this item was sent to us by a reader in Australia. Thank you Emmanuel! Dr Ruggero Santilli is highly regarded and has in the past had Nobel Prize nomination. The telescope or a pair of telescopes are able to reveal intelligently moving objects in the universe that are otherwise invisible; also likewise, entities in Earthly domain. It is expected that this step forward will achieve much.

2: Warring in Syria: Apart from the foreign nations actually waging war and supplying the arms being used (U.S., U.K., France, Russia, Turkey and the mixed-nationality ISIS), other countries named on the Internet for supply of arms are: Iran, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Libya, Lebanon and Croatia. Well, it all adds to the turmoil. The news that it is planned to end hostilities within just a few days is welcomed news indeed—perhaps the prayers of we ordinary people are being visibly answered at last!

~7th March 2016~

Eileen was on holiday last. Our first visitor this evening was Cho—Audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_03_07+Cho.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

Pause

Hello.

Several 'hellos'

Lilian: Is it Cho?

Cho.

Lilian: I remember you said you would be coming.

Pause

I just looking for the lady.

We suggested that would be Jan, with the leg problem

Yes.

Paul: Her leg's still a bit too bad, so she hasn't come this week.

George: She is having a problem with the broken bone knitting together, so Jan can't be with us this evening.

We try to help her.

Appreciative comments

Paul: How are you anyway?

Cho very happy—(that's nice) Yes.

Lilian: Were you going to tell us a little bit about yourself when you were here?

I am—I'm just organising first—people to come—yes—I cannot remember too much, but I will tell you what I know.

Paul: That will be nice.

You all seem a little reserved tonight.

Sarah: We are just quiet so we don't miss anything.

Ah—nosey!

Laughs

Yes, I understand, yes. I believe you know that I was saved by two people—

General response—'yes—missionaries—yes

I am sorry?

Paul: We call them 'missionaries'.

Yes, I was found as a baby. I only remember '8', so I believe it must have been your year of 18s? Does that make sense?

We agreed it makes sense

Unfortunately I was not a well baby. I could not hear, I did not see very well, and I was physically handicapped. That is why I was abandoned.

George: That's a very tough start.

Yes, so you see, Elizabeth and John had much of my gratitude when I realised what they had done for me (yes). They obviously could not take me with them, because they travelled quite a bit. Are you understanding me?

General positive response

I know my language is getting stronger and stronger.

And general agreement to that

Yes, but sometimes I revert to not saying any words—it is something I am still dealing with. I know I do not need that problem, but it still comes. Elizabeth and John were good people. They were 'childless'. Is that correct?

Cho was assured that the word was correct

They gave all their love to me. I don't know if it was pity or it was immediately love. Knowing them as I do now, I would say: they fell in love with me.

Understood

Yes, and because they had to travel all over the place, I was given to an elderly couple first, but I did not make a connection with the gentleman and I have to say: I was a difficult child. I cried a lot because of the many problems that I had. But I want you to understand that even when children are handicapped, they have a knowledge which is strong—their senses become stronger (yes), and I sensed that this older gentleman found it difficult to deal with me. When Elizabeth and John returned from their travels, they always took me to different places. They helped me to become nourished, not only in body but in my mind. They gave me every opportunity that they could at that particular time. I would not say my life was hard, but it was perhaps harder than most children (yes) and I could feel myself growing to love them, the older I became. I was passed from couple to couple, and they paid for my—‘upkeep’, I think you would say today (yes). So you see, my story of that lifetime was quite simple, but I experienced love, whereas I could have easily passed to the spirit realm. I was saved by that dear couple. And today you know, they are still helping deprived children.

Sarah: Is that deprived children in spirit or back on this Earth?

—On this Earth, yes. They travel back to here to help deprived children. So they have spent a number of lifetimes in helping others and I do see them occasionally.

Sarah: Are they still together on this Earth?

Not on this Earth, no. They come from spirit.

George: They are in spirit but they are still together—
Yes.

Sarah then clarified that they were helping children on Earth, but from the spirit realm

So I carry on in spirit, trying to help others. That is why I wanted to be a gatekeeper and that is the reason I have worked so hard with my words.

Sarah: Well, you’ve done very well.

Yes, and people know me now as ‘Cho’.

Sarah: Do you understand now why you came back as a handicapped child?

Yes I do—because I was a much stronger spirit than I thought. Yes, I understand now that the choice was mine (yes). Yes I do. That is a very tough thing to understand when it is happening.

Sarah: Yes I’m sure.

But I was fortunate, was I not?

Paul: Yes, well I suppose fortunate—we are told that we choose our parents, so perhaps before you reincarnated you sort of chose the situation with Elizabeth and John—

I know I chose the situation, but I was not aware of Elizabeth and John. I knew that someone would save me in that lifetime, but I was not aware of all of the details—yes, and they are wonderful people.

Lilian: So how old were you when you passed back to spirit?

I believe I was in my what you call ‘teenage’ years.

Sarah: That was quite young.

Quite long—

Sarah: Quite young I would say!

You say ‘young’, I say ‘long’!

Laughs

Sarah: You’d obviously learned all you needed to learn in this lifetime then when you went back—

Yes, they were my eyes and my ears. Yes, I do not pretend it was an easy lifetime—it was not. But I do remember Elizabeth saying I was always smiling.

Sarah: Oh well, that was nice—you were very happy with them, that’s why—obviously.

Paul: And you’d come to the Earth already with a strong spirit (yes).

Sarah: I think Salumet mentioned to us a while back, that many of the people who come back as handicapped people are actually ‘old spirits/souls’.

You have to really WANT to come back as a handicapped human being—yes, but I can only say that your spiritual growth from occasions like that is so powerful, when you realise how you have lived, and how other people pass through human living so easily. Yes, it is a strength of spirit.

Paul: Yeah, you had a greater challenge perhaps—

Yes, and I was prepared to take it. Anyway, I hope that has given you a little insight into my life before.

General agreement and thanks

Now I just want you to recognise me now as ‘Cho’ (yes).

Sarah: Do you still have contact with Elizabeth and John, did you say?

I still see them at times.

Sarah: Yes, that’s nice.

They have decided not to reincarnate for a while. They are happy to be doing what they are doing, and of course, we do get together at times.

Sarah: Yes, that’s nice.

George: I’ve been thinking lately about gender inequality, and how the female is generally loving and caring while the male is more aggressive and warlike. How did you manage with the various couples you lived with? Did you usually find that the female was more loving and caring than the male?

I was only aware of the first one, where I felt the gentleman was not in connection with me—even as a small baby I felt that. But I would only say that it does seem to be that way, but in fact female and male gender should balance each other out (yes). That is what it is about.

George: It’s very nice when there is the balance, as there was with Elizabeth and John.

Yes, because they had a deep love for each other and for humanity. Yes, you all have that deep love, but sometimes your everyday living creates a strength in one side of the gender or another. A woman can be masculine as a masculine can be feminine. Does that make sense to you?

Agreed

I know what I am saying.

George: Yes, I think we are aware it can be like that.

Yes, but I understand, in general man is a little more, let’s say ‘forthright’.

George: There are times when I have thought that if men were banned from taking part in government, then the world would be a much more loving place!

Chuckles

Well we would like to think so, but I tell you something: I am not so sure.

Paul: No, I think probably what you need is the balance—human beings who are balanced.

Yes, there are times when you need the strength of a male energy, and there are times when you need the gentleness of the female. But we have all been created in human life to be balanced in both. And of course it is your free will in whichever direction you wish to go.

Paul: And I think whatever gender you are, you should be capable of expressing the both sides—the strength and the gentleness.

Yes—the Great Creator has made you that way.

Paul: —because spirit is neither—is genderless

The spirit has no gender—the true spirit. And when gradually you move through spirit, we are supposed—and I have not reached that yet—but gender does not matter.

Sarah: In fact there are some animals—I think mainly from the sea, that actually change gender in certain circumstances—they can be male or female...

Yes, and in a sense, that is what you as human beings can do.

Sarah: It depends on the challenge doesn’t it?

It depends what is feeling the strongest pull for you at any given time.

Paul: Sometimes I feel it’s a great pity when you get a child that grows up—I think there’s a name for them—is it hermaphrodites?—where they’re not really clearly one or the other.

That is because at the time of reincarnation they have jumped too quickly into human form, before allowing themselves to think deeply about what is happening.

Paul: Ah!—I was wondering because quite often they then decide later on to have surgery one way or the other, but in a way—

In a way, that decision should have been made before they entered the human body.

George: Yes, Salumet has talked about this. He said they are too rushed in, pushing their way forward.

Yes, you see, when spirit decides to reincarnate, it is not quite a solitary decision. There are always those who are wishing to help them make the right choices. But they cannot be stopped because of their freewill, and often it is too rushed. It is not a fault, it is just part of how it all works.

Sarah: Too eager to get back—

Yes, or sometimes because they are hesitant as well (oh right!).

Paul: Are you still Cho?

I AM Cho.

Paul: I just wondered because you're beginning to sound a little bit like Salumet.

Understanding chuckles

No, I can never sound like Salumet—only Cho. I can only tell you what I know, and there is much I do not know.

George: And you're telling us very well. Your word usage has improved immensely.

Yeah, I feel the energy is good here.

Paul: Yes your words were flowing so well I just thought maybe—

I am very pleased you think I am Salumet.

(More chuckles)

Sara: That's right, he words are very fluent—

Well, I am pleased that you have enjoyed me talking to you, and of course you know I am your gatekeeper at times.

Paul: I'm sure Jan will be very happy to read this one, because she likes your chats.

Yes, I will endeavour to be with her as much as I can.

Lilian: She's not having an easy time.

She recognised me when first I struggled to come.

Paul: Yes, she tuned into you well.

Sarah: When you say you're our gatekeeper—are you the gatekeeper for this group or for us individually?

For the group, but I have a special bond with the lady. That is why she was able to tell you a little about me (oh right!)—I was able to tune into her energy.

Sarah: Why have you got that bond—just because you were able to tune in? Had you known each other before?

No—no.

George: I guess it's just that Jan's clairvoyance ability suited well—

Yes—like all of you, you will bond with one person more than another. It does not mean it is any better or any worse—just that the connection is right.

Paul: Is it something to do with vibrations or an affinity?

All energy—it is to do with the energy, and you are attracted like-to-like spiritually.

Sarah: So you are on the same spiritual level—

Yes, on the same spiritual wavelength.

So, I am grateful for the help; it allowed me to come and to grow strong, and so be able to use my words more strongly—because when first I came I struggled.

Lilian: Are you aware if in spirit there are any more—I'll say 'Salumets'?

Many more Salumets? There is only one Salumet.

Chuckles

Lilian: Spirits like that—teaching—

—any more spirits like Salumet. No—I know there are teachers here on different levels, and it depends on what level you are able to go to. You never can go forward—higher—they must always come down to OUR level to teach.

Lilian: They teach in your halls (yes).

Sarah: But gradually you start to go a bit higher as time goes by.

—Only after eons of time (oh right)—and that is only if you do not wish to reincarnate (oh I see). We can be in spirit for a LONG time—a long, long time before we move forward or we come back. I do not wish to come back just yet, but I know at some point that I will. Now—

Sara: Is there something you would like to experience in the Earth life if you were to come back again?

I would have to discuss that with MY teachers—what would be best for me as spirit—what I would gain from the experience. But there is not one thing I can tell you now.

Lilian: And when you come back, it would be another aspect of the aspect you have just told us about? Am I right?

Pause, then quietly

I am still here. I am being called.

Lilian: Well, nice of you to come and chat to us.

Kindly words and farewells

Next, a difficult dialogue followed between one via Eileen and Lilian. This turned out to be a ‘rescue’ of one who worked in the ghastly sewer tunnels who was calling for his partner Jimmy and who brushed away the occasional rat. At one point he said to Lilian: “You’ve a soft hand for a man!” Lilian replied: “I’m a woman.” His reply: “Ah—get off!” It all worked out in the end and he was met by Jimmy who had already passed on. He had thought that the spiritual basis of life was a ‘load of rubbish’ and that is what had been holding him back

~14th March 2016~ SALUMET

This evening began with clairvoyant messages from Eileen to Jan, all of which made perfect sense.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_03_14+sol.mp3

Lengthy pause

Lilian: Good evening Salumet—welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

There are many who are with you this time, so I will not stay too long, because this my dear friends, should be a year of much more awareness to you all as individuals. I have said this to you in past times and the development that is with you has not always been achieved. So this coming year of your time, we will endeavour to come ever closer to each one of you, no matter your circumstance, no matter what you desire, know that we in spirit will be very close. We will try to sustain and uplift you in all matters of your daily living.

Lilian: That’s very kind.

You know my dear friends that life can be harsh at times, but all I wish to say is that these hard times make you much stronger—the spirit grows stronger, and that is what I would like you all to focus upon.

Lilian: Yes, I’ve tried thinking that and I’m sure when a better time comes along and we realise maybe how we’ve grown (yes) and got through the bad times—

Yes, it is only by surviving the harder times of life that you appreciate all of the goodness in your lives—that is quite correct. So, that is all I wish to say to you at this moment in time. So if you have any questions, I will be happy to answer them for you.

Pause

George: This Salumet, may be an inappropriate question. It comes from someone we have mentioned before. He is seeking, and his name is Tom Kerr and to those in spirit he is known as ‘Uncle Tom’. He is inquiring—I think he is seeking the meaning of those in spirit who have ‘all knowledge’. He says: ‘Do you know who he is and what circle he is with?’ His medium is known as ‘Douglas’ and his wife ‘Nell’. And I understand his medium is in Australia; and Tom Kerr is here in the UK. So it may be an inappropriate question, but he is inquiring if you know of these people and their circle.

All things are known if you desire. But what I do not do, is apply for those who seek information that they can discover for themselves. So, in that sense it is inappropriate to ask me to help them. They know very well what they have to do or who they have to contact if indeed their medium is a true one.

George: Yes, I felt it would be something like that.

Yes, that is all I wish to say about this. There are many, many mediums upon this Earth who are in contact with spirit, all to varying degrees of knowledge. So whatever degree of knowledge the medium has through those in spirit—that should be enough to sustain, to uphold them to inquire further. And I have not come, as you know, to talk to people on these matters—matters that can be found for themselves (yes). So I hope that is helpful to you.

George: Well, that answer I well understand (yes)—thank you Salumet.

George: There is another question—there's been much talk on the planet about 'gender equality', but of course, genders are not equal. The female is naturally—for the most part—loving and caring. The male—for the most part—is or can be aggressive and of a warring nature. We have discussed this a little and we feel that the blending of the male and female energies is important. And I just wondered if you would care to elaborate a little further on this?

Yes, I was about to say that this had been discussed before, but you have to remember when we speak of gender, it is a physical instance (yes). When we come to spirit, gender is immaterial; it is important for a short while again, for recognition purposes, but nevertheless it is unimportant in the spirit world that you remain with a certain gender; after all, you are made up of both male and female. Therefore it is unnecessary for you on the Earth to become so interested in what is happening with male and female. I agree that upon this planet it is assumed that the male is more powerful—more warlike, but I would like to dispute that with you. You must remember, my dear friend, that at certain times you will find that the numbers of the female or the male gender outnumbers the other; and this is part of the human being's quest for living, and it is also part of the Great Spirit's intent that all must remain balanced at all times. So I hope this helps you in your equation of both male and female.

George: Yes, and I sometimes feel that government would be more successful with more female representation.

Yes—are you not aware of the many female warriors that have existed in your world?

George: Yes indeed.

Yes—so therefore be careful not to cloak them all in the same garb.

George: I speak of majority numbers.

Yes—yes. So I hope that helps you a little. But in general I would agree, the female does seem to be more gentle (yes), more refined; but within the breast of that female lies the same energies as that of the male (yes). Yes, you must try to see them as non-male or female, but try to see each individual as an individual and as a spiritual being.

George: With both qualities.

—With both qualities, yes.

Sarah: Salumet—is the male and female beings on this planet—practically all nature is male and female—is this peculiar to this planet, or is it the same in all the universes that we have?

Whatever the planet—whatever form the being takes, these are energies we are speaking of. So, yes I would say you would have to have a balance of both energies. Does that help you?

Sarah: Yes thank you—yes. Yes, because I was thinking: they're a lot more advanced than us—you've told us (yes) and in spirit you don't need male or female. So I just wondered if they were advanced, if they had some other way of reproducing than we do.

There are many possibilities, and many that you as yet do not know of. But yes, I have told you in previous times that energy can be transmuted; so that perhaps would give you the clue as to how these superior races have worked in the past. It gives you something to think about.

Sarah: It certainly does yes—thank you.

Jan: Salumet, going back to what you initially said this evening on development (yes)—please may I have the name of the type of clairvoyance that I have when I sit in this room?

Yes, you have a mixture of ‘Clairsentience’ and ‘Clear hearing’. You may not be aware of the hearing yet, but it is there to be developed (right) and that is why I say: each one of you in this year to come, should work upon the awareness that you already have and develop what is your potential.

Jan: So in my quiet moments, when I’m not in this room, is there anything in particular that I could be doing within my meditational quiet times to enhance those feelings?

—Only to give of yourself freely, to allow yourself to open naturally, and just to allow those who are close to you to help (right). What you do not do enough—all of you within the room, is to ask for our help enough—We are there to help in all manner of ways.

Jan: We’re very good at asking for help when we need it for our own—

—For others, yes, but not for yourselves.

Jan: Yes, not for ourselves or our own development—that certainly gets missed out quite a bit.

Yes, and also for your health you must allow others to help you. If you have a blockage we cannot come close enough—you understand?

Jan: Yes.

Good. Now, my dear friends, I will take my leave of you and allow each and every one of you to feel who is close by. I would like you this time to speak out about what you feel, and I assure you that there are many within the room waiting, to be allowed a little closer to you. So my dear friends, as I take my leave, I cloak you with all my love, and until we come together once more I leave that love with you.

General thanks and farewells, followed by a period of silence

George: Perhaps I should mention this: I have a Spring-time scene—wonderful snowdrops.

Eileen: Continue to sit quietly and we’ll see what happens.

Sarah: I don’t know who it is, but I saw these jewels and gems. Somebody’s giving them to me, saying that they belong to me, but I don’t know who it is.

Pause

Eileen: We’ve been shown a name; it’s William Sawyer.

There was some discussion regarding the possible significance of the name

Jan: Sarah was right—they left for India in 1947 (right)—they said the British were signing over India’s independence, still worked for the government, and they were sent to India. I think we’re all being given one thing that’s tying together.

Sallie: I don’t know what’s going on but I’ve had this man in my brain for the last ten weeks or so—‘Ronald’.

Eileen: ‘Ronald’—you don’t necessarily have to know them—you just accept.

Pause

Eileen: I’m being shown a train—

Pause

Eileen: This train’s green and I can see the word ‘EXPRESS’.

Sarah: It’s connected with India again, I think.

Eileen: Is it?—don’t know much about trains.

Jan: I got the word ‘Delhi’ come up in big letters when you said the word train—I’m still with the Indian connection here. I’ve just got a tremendous feeling of expansion—my heads growing.

Sarah: I’ve got a feeling that something not very nice went on in India—I’ve got very cold..

Paul: I started off with a small golden object—a bit like a toffee with a shiny wrapper, but it’s now more like a gentle golden light shining on the face—very nice. There seems to be a man there as well—in working jeans, sort of dungarees.

Jan: That’s the train driver.

Sarah: It’s all past now, but I think I died out in India actually.

Eileen: So you thought you were William Sawyer?

Sarah: No (no?). I think I was a woman—I think I was an Indian woman.

Eileen: Have you got any more Jan?

Jan: No, the expansion has stopped. I have a feeling that I've been impressed to see something that happened on this particular train journey. I've still got very much a connection with India and the train. They're showing me a person similar to what Paul described—dark denim dungarees—as the train driver, and I have the feeling that something quite horrific that they will have encountered.

Eileen: Are you are having the feeling that it could have been a train crash (yes).

Eileen: Yes—that's what's just come into my head now that there was a very severe crash. Does that connect with you Sarah?

Sarah: I've got a lot of goose pimples, so it probably does (okay).

Ben: All I could see was lightning—like a storm.

Jan: It could tie in with the fact that I'm being shown that the train was attacked. This could be what we know today—we call it a terror attack, but it's part of—the 1947 bit is really quite significant—there were a lot of killings around that year.

Sarah: I did get the feeling that it was something nasty rather than an accident. I didn't know what it was at the beginning, but I did get that sudden feeling that it was something that wasn't very nice.

Jan: I think we have people in the room with us on that were on that train.

Sarah: Actually, you saying that, I think the people that are in the room are the people that did it and have come to say 'sorry'.

Jan: You are going to have somebody with you in a minute. (Meaning a rescue)

Pause

Sarah: So whatever it was, they've gone now.

Eileen: I think to clear that I think you should be seeing a loved one of some kind, showing themselves to you—perhaps you'll let them come forward.

Pause

Eileen: If you don't see anyone, you may have a touch or something of that kind.

Jan: I've had mine.

Sarah: I haven't seen anybody, but I have got a feeling that it's actually three people. I think it's a mum, her mum and her mother's mother—all 3 of them.

This seemed to conclude the Indian clairvoyance.

Eileen then stated: I hate to tell Sally, but I think she's sitting on my husband's knee!

This caused laughter and lightened the mood.

There followed a further session of clairvoyant readings for Jan via Eileen that made perfect sense for her. This was followed by one for Mark from Ann.

George's notes:

1: Salumet's Mission: At the outset in 1994, Salumet declared his mission to have two parts—(1) to divert us from nuclear oblivion that we were at that time rushing into, and (2) to teach the truth of spiritual existence. He has also made it clear that he can only teach to the ability of the pupil (that changes), and he does not teach details that we had best discover for ourselves.

2: Gender: It is now made very clear that we each have both male and female energies, and so it is unnecessary to dwell on the attributes of one or the other. Balance is important, and there may be a semblance of loving partnership in spirit just for an initial period.

3: 1947 Indian Express Train Disaster: On 22nd September 1947, the train carrying 4500 Muslim refugees was attacked by armed Hindus and Sikhs at Amritsa station. The train was fired on for 3-hours. 3418 were killed or missing and 1328 wounded.

Indian Express 1947.

~21st March 2016~

It was about 10 minutes into the session that one seemed to be with Eileen.

Lilian: Good evening.

Pause

Lilian: Do you wish to sit quietly or have you come to say something?

Pause

Lilian: I'll just touch your shoulder and that will help you.

Pause

—I'm sorry.

Lilian: Can you tell us your name?

Freda.

Lilian: Linda?

Freda—Freda.

Lilian: We've had a Freda before, but this is your first time?

Jan: Are you alright Freda?

Lilian: So this is your first time to come through and talk to anyone is it?

Yes, I'm our Freda.

Jan: Your mine?

No.

There seemed to be something wrong with the transmission

He's not letting me through.

Paul: She needs a bit of help coming through.

Lilian tried giving energy by touch, but to no avail, and the attempted transmission terminated. When Eileen returned, she felt it concerned a memory from her very young childhood, and the lady had drunk herself to death having lost a child and there was no stopping her—not a nice feeling for Eileen, and it was Eileen who decided to terminate the transmission.

Then Ruth, Leslie's wife in spirit, spoke through Eileen.

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_03_21-Ruth.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

Hello Lilian.

Lilian: Hello.

A few familiar faces here tonight.

Jan: Is that you Leslie?

Not Leslie—Ruth. Yes—I've been with you recently Lilian—pottering about.

Lilian: Doing things I shouldn't.

Chuckles

Doing things you shouldn't?—I'll say what Leslie always said to me: You can't be doing that because you're needed too much.

Lilian: That's very kind of you.

It's very nice to see Dawn here.

Dawn: Hello.

Hello Dawn.

Dawn: And how are you doing?

I'm doing very well. I'm working hard and of course I see Leslie—not all the time, but I see him.

Dawn: Can you tell us what you both do now?

Oh, he's doing so much as usual. You wouldn't think he'd come over here for a rest!

Chuckles

George: And does he spend a bit of time in the Halls of Learning?

He does—all the time; and he's very often with you.

George: Oh!

Yeah—with your books and your information.

George: Ah, yes, that's good! Yes, I find bits run smoothly at times and I feel I must be getting a little help.

Yes, well, he found the same when he was there. You know, never had enough time for anything. And you're a bit like that sometimes, aren't you?

George: Yes.

Chuckle

Yes—not enough daytime.

George: Yes—I'm slowing down a little bit now. Well at 85 I'm getting a bit tired at times.

Well, I can understand that—yes.

George: Yes—only to be expected.

And I understand Lilian's pain sometimes, because you know, I had a bit of that—and you were very good and kind—I'll always remember you Lilian.

Lilian: Thank you—glad to have helped.

And you helped Leslie when he needed it.

George: Yes, please send our very best regards to Leslie. He is much thought of here.

Yes, and I want to come here just to give the lady Jan some upliftment.

Jan: Thank you Ruth.

Yes, that's okay Jan—we're going to help as much as we're allowed to.

Jan: Thank you—with my face and my leg—

Yeah—well, it's more your spirit that we're concerned about.

Jan: Yeah, of course.

Leslie still uses people for healing—he couldn't give that up and he still does it.

Lilian: Yes, in spirit as well as helping back here—

Yes—he actually uses Eileen sometimes—I don't know if she's told you. But I don't think she likes the way he catches her breath—because the breathing goes—as soon as he comes back, it's off. I know you must all find that really difficult to believe, but it happens.

Leslie had breathing difficulties whilst on Earth, which of course in spirit no longer trouble him at all; but when those in spirit return to the physical, these conditions sometimes return.

Jan: No—because we've seen it so much, haven't we? (Agreed) So it makes sense.

And I want that Dawn to stop worrying so much about her family. Yeah—give them a little bit more reign. Yeah—just a little bit—but they'll be fine. (Pause) She's like the grandmother of the world, isn't she?

Giggles

Dawn: I feel old before my time.

Chuckles

Lilian: Just at the moment it seems like a rocky road all round.

Yes—what's better than to see a rocky road become smooth?—nothing better.

Lilian: Yeah, you know what that's like.

Well, I'm nearly going to call it a project; it's not a project, but I'm helping people who've felt resentful—resentful in life and how it affects them. It's really interesting (agreed).

Jan: They carry that resentment with them then Ruth, for some time.

They can do yes, for a very long time.

Sarah: Do you mean you're helping them in spirit or you're helping them here?

Both—when I get the opportunity I come back—

George: Resentful—is this at a personal level, or does this extent into politics?

Any resentment—any resentment isn't good, because it affects your Soul; doesn't it? (Agreed)

Sarah: I think that's where Hitler started, isn't it—resenting things; and look at the trouble that caused—

Well I know what resentment was, because I resented my first husband.

Sarah: Oh did you?

Yes, I expect Lilian might tell you a little bit about him, but I definitely resented him—not just for the way he treated me, but for the way it affected my children (yes).

George: I expect it all helps you to understand the principal of resentment.

I understand it NOW, I didn't then.

Sarah: Do you think it affected your Soul very much?

A little—I was fortunate to have met Leslie, who helped that process. He was the beginning of the process—of letting go.

Sarah: Yes—that's good.

Lilian: I sometimes still see Michael, you know, your brother-in-law.

Yes, he's okay at the moment.

Lilian: He's got slower, like the rest of us.

Well I'm afraid like most people, that's what happens.

Sarah: And are your children alright now?

My children?—I'm fairly happy with them. As always, you never know what's in people's minds. You know, I could look around this room and give you a different picture of what you present. But what I do want to say is, try not to resent anything or anybody, because in the end, it's you that's affected.

Sarah: Because it's a negative thought and it comes back on you, doesn't it?

It is—that's exactly what it is—it's negative.

Well, it's lovely me talking to you. I think I've had my allotted span.

Lilian: Well it's been lovely. Come again a bit quicker—it seems a long time to us—not to you possibly.

No, I know—time's a strange thing to come to terms with. But I'm glad you're all looking so well—even the ones I don't really know here—or DIDN'T know here.

Sarah: No, I never met you Ruth.

But you heard quite a lot.

Paul: Yeah.

Sarah: And we saw pictures of you.

Yes—oh I'd rather they didn't exist.

Laughter

Sarah: Well, maybe they don't any more—I don't know—anyway you looked very nice!

At least with Leslie I smiled a lot more.

Sarah: That's good.

Well, I'm going to say cheerio.

George: Do feel free to come whenever you can.

That's very kind of you George.

Lilian: And give our love to Leslie and to you.

Oh, he knows everything you're up to, don't worry.

Sarah: He must be pleased that the group is still going.

He's thrilled, absolutely thrilled that some of his words have outlasted him.

Lilian: Yes, he started a very good road for us to travel down (agreed) and you of course!

Jan: Thank you Ruth.

You're welcome and bless you all.

Jan: And our love goes with you.

General thanks and farewells

Oh and by the way Lilian, I still go to the church to listen to the songs.

Lilian: Do you!

I do, I still love it—isn't that strange?

Lilian: Yes. They're changing—the music is lovely, but—

Every now and again I just go back.

Lilian: They get together much more now, which is nice—the churches around.

Yes—I know you've had little conversations about me, but no, I wasn't hedging my bets—I just like the songs!

Lilian: Yes, I remember Les saying that you liked the singing.

Yes, anyway I really must go.

General farewells

Notes:

Ruth was Leslie's second wife, his first having passed on. They were a devoted couple, sharing in the work in the early days, and Ruth did valuable work as a medium. Eileen, Lilian and Dawn are known to Ruth, but the rest of us are newcomers.

~11th April 2016~ SALUMET

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

A substantial pause followed before it became clear that this was a Salumet visit—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_04_11+sal.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

How happy I am to join with you once again.

Lilian: We're very happy to have you with us.

As always my dear friends, your love for your fellow man is obvious to all. You ask for healing and upliftment for many, and (for) this we are always grateful to you; but I have told you this on many occasions, and I will continue to do so as long as that love for your fellow man continues. I was listening to you all speak before I came to you and I wondered, my dear friends, if you realised the complexities of communication which take place. Because your energy is so light I find it a little easier than once I did to join with you; but always I knew this to be so. So many people are confused by communication with us here in spirit. They believe it is just like looking at another person and all will be said and all will be shown. I have to say to you my dear friends: there are complexities with communication, but we have achieved it well and we have very few problems when I come to you now. And of course, each and every one of you play your part in the giving of your loving energies. So I thank you all, whoever may be here and to those who may be absent this time, I say: thank you.

Sarah: We should thank you too Salumet, because I think you've had to adapt as well to be with us, so I think it's probably a combined effort.

Of course, I would not be here without your love and your energy. No doubt you remembered in earlier times when the words were difficult to convey, and that is no longer the case. I believe I still speak more slowly than many who have addressed you, but that is only because I have come a little further.

Sarah: But it's also good for those who don't hear so well when you don't speak so fast.

George: I can vouch for that!

Sarah: So it's just right!

George: Yes, it's good that your speech comes through clearly and not hastily and I thank you for that.

Yes, there is no need to give thanks to me. The thanks lies with all of you—it is a joint effort, and the work that you have given to others in describing the work—and believe me my dear friends, it is a work of spirit that you have created. We give thanks for all of it, and thank you so many times when we hear your thoughts and your words for other human beings. You know of course that the word 'love' is the one that I have used most often, because without love, what would we be? And there is love missing in your world today. But we strive at all times to be positive and to help those who live in negativity and are negative about their own way of living.

George: It surprises me just how much militarism is in the world (yes). It seems to me that there is so much purely physical thinking and lack of love in that.

Yes, the negativity would dissipate if only people allowed the spirit to come to the fore. I believe you all know and understand this, but a great number of people in your world are afraid to speak of what is deep within their hearts, and you know, without love there is cruelty—cruelty from human kind to one-another, and this we should not tolerate. We should always give out love. Do you remember my words and that of many people within your scriptures who say: give love?—yes.

George: And this of course is the only effective way to counter what I have referred to as 'militarism'.

It is the best way to counteract all of that negative expression that is being used. But of course you know, I always try to bring to you, my dear friends, the message of being positive. That will always overshadow the negative side of your lives. So, not only must you try to achieve this positive energy in your own individual lives, but you must send it throughout this Earthly world—out into the reaches of other universes; after all, you are not just people of the Earth, you are spiritual beings that are part of the many universes that exist. You understand?

(Affirmed)

Paul: And I think you've said before that the love you give out comes back to you (yes), so what's given to these other universes—there might be more exchange of this beautiful energy.

It is like the circle of life—the more you give the more you receive—the more you receive the more you give. If you can think of it in that way, you can see how this love energy grows and multiplies.

George: I think this might be seen as the essence of creation—

Yes, of course—of course. I am always surprised, when I have to use physical words to express something that is not physical. But I know my dear friends, your understanding has grown so much that it is unnecessary for me to constantly remind you. But for this time I needed to let you feel 'love' that surrounds you in this small place of union. I know you can feel it and the more you feel the more you give. So that is my message for you this time.

(Thanks expressed)

So, do you have any questions this time?

Lilian: Yes, could I ask one for Eileen, your channel? Last week, she went on a journey into spirit—she was carrying something heavy. That's about as much as she could recollect—she was carrying something heavy. She wondered why that was, and also when she came back she had a slight headache, for which I gave her some healing, and I felt I was maybe pulling something out—I don't know if that's just imagination. Could you explain that a little please—where she was going, or why?

Thank you—yes—yes, I believe that you had been taken on journeys as individuals (yes), where you were given someone to recognise or something—as is my understanding. Because she is a little more experienced in the communication side of life, her journey was not a meeting here upon the Earth. Her journey took her a little further than she has been before—different from when I use the instrument, because she is placed to one side when I speak. This journey she was aware of, as you mentioned; and it was I should say—the word you would use on Earth would be 'honour' that she was allowed to take this journey whilst still in the physical body. The heaviness she felt was the heaviness of the Earth whilst her spirit soared. Yes, that is the reason why she felt that she travelled backwards. It is a great joy in spirit that this is easily done by those who allow themselves to leave their bodies; after all my dear friends, each and every one of you leave your bodies when you are asleep; whether you realise it or not, the spirit leaves the body and the spirit is free for a certain amount of time. I am sure some of you may recall feeling lightness at times. That is when the spirit is released; and the reason why she would come back with a headache—you said— (yes) yes, was: the experience ended a little too quickly, because it was the first time for this kind of experience. Although we were completely in charge of her spirit, we allowed the return to the physical to be a little too quick—that is all. It was not dangerous as some people seem to think. We often have thoughts on: should these things take place? I say to you always: if you are in that condition, you are well looked after by us here in spirit. It was a journey she will probably not ever forget, because it is given to only a handful of people. So you may tell her my words (thank you).

Sarah: So she should be able to remember what happened, should she?

Yes, she was able to remember.

George: And what a wonderful clear explanation. Thank you for that Salumet.

Yes, she remembers what happens, but she did not know the exact reasons why. I hope that is helpful.

Sarah: Yes, so what was Lilian doing when she thought she was pulling something out of her?

She was dealing with energy. There was a lot of energy still to be removed.

Sarah: Ah, okay.

Now my dear friends, I will close and allow others to come if they so wish, and I have to tell you: they come more and more, in greater numbers, because of your goodness, your kindness and your love for others. Something to think upon this time: what would you be or who would you be without love?

I leave you all now with my love.

General thanks and farewells

(Long pause) Then Lilian explained just a little of what was said to Eileen

Cho, our Gatekeeper then came through Eileen. He mentioned a Jessie in spirit, who passed suddenly, but none of us were able to connect with this and so it was put to one side. Cho then began again:

Someone has ringing in ear.

Lilian: Yes

Yes—who's that, the nice lady?

Agreement and chuckles

Lilian—I remember Lilian. Okay, lady here for you—ringing in ears. 'What do you think you're doing?', she says. She won't speak—I have to speak for her. 'What do you think you're doing in the garden?'

Laughs

Lilian: Yes, is it my mother—can you say?

Yes—she annoyed with you (yeah?) Not really—not really annoyed.

Lilian: No, I know—she knows I like to be outside.

Just looking after you—she says you never stubborn when little girl—only as you get older—yes.

Lilian: Yeah—perhaps we all do.

No, she never thought she was stubborn.

Lilian: Well—

She's laughing—

Lilian: No, we had a good relationship.

Yes—she's smiling. She's calling you her baby (yes) yes—nice. Oh!—you were little bit of a daddy's child, she says (um). Yes you were, she is saying.

Lilian: I might have been when I was little.

Yes, but she says: 'He was very proud of you—but not many words to say.'—not speak perhaps.

Lilian: I always felt quite safe—it's difficult to put it into words.

She's been around a lot, she's saying—not so much you, but your children (yes)—looking out for them—yes.

Lilian: Yes, she did enjoy the grandchildren and the great-grandchildren.

She wants you—this is what she wants to say—I don't know why she doesn't want to speak, but she doesn't. She said you need to treat yourself more often.

George: Ah, that sounds good.

Treat yourself more often—that's what she wants to say. Oh—Gentleman come now, next to her. I think it's your father.

Lilian: That would be wonderful!—he was a quiet man.

They were together straight away, when they passed to spirit—straight away.

Lilian: Yes, I can imagine.

She's rather proud of you doing this work. She might have been a little hesitant before, but now she knows better.

Lilian: She didn't understand.

No, she's saying, but now she knows, and she wants to leave you now. She's smiling and taking his arm.

Lilian: Love to them both and see them again one day (yes). Thank you.

A period of clairvoyance via Eileen followed, beginning with her impression of two rings—one sapphire and one amethyst. These may well be indicative of a forthcoming engagement. This was followed by one via Sarah—

Lilian: Good evening to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

My greetings come to you from my tribe. We have again gathered together and are visiting you as a group. We were from an Indian tribe, and there was one from this group who was a member with us. This lady is very welcome back in our tribe. We bring greetings to YOU and wish to leave with you a feather from the chief's headdress. This feather has been coloured, especially for you. It is a bright green feather, and it will remind you in your quiet time of those who you were together with whilst we were a tribe on this planet.

George: Excuse me—might I enquire if you are 'Chief Gran Mancha'?

I cannot tell you, I am sorry—I do not know. All I know is that the lady was one of us.

Eileen: Can you say which lady?

You, my dear lady (ah yes).

Eileen: Nahashiwah?

Nahashiwah. You are, my dear friend, SO welcome, and we are all rejoicing at this reunion.

Eileen: Thank you very much.

When you come back to us, your friends here will also be made most welcome.

George: Oh that's lovely to hear—thank you.

Paul: We've all been blessed to know 'Eileen'—as she's known now.

And now my message has been brought to you, and I wish to thank you for allowing me to come.

George: You're most welcome—thank you.

Eileen: Thank you very much.

George's notes:

Nahashiwah: Nahashiwah and details of the complex tribal situation that existed around 2,000 years ago are given in the communications of 10th January 2005 and 28th February 2005. We were then with the Gor-Rukka Tribe, within a group of many tribes known as the Boa-Ba. In the tribal language, 'Nahashiwah' means 'Small Body, Great Spirit'.

18th April 2016~

The evening began with a rescue via Eileen that was very slow at the start—

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_04_18-rescue--farmer.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

(Lengthy pause with no response)

Lilian: Would you like to say 'hello' or would you like to sit quietly? You're very welcome.

Who's this?—who's this?

Lilian: My name's Lilian—I've come to talk to you.

You shouldn't be on my property. Who gave you permission to come on my property?

Lilian: Well, I crept in when you weren't looking. I'm quite friendly. I don't wish you any harm.

Cheeky lass! Dratted fog!

Lilian: It's foggy.

Yes—won't clear.

Lilian: But you're indoors—

No—how can I be indoors when I'm talking to you?

Lilian: I wondered if you were looking out of the window at the fog, or if you were actually in the fog?

No—dratted weather!

Lilian: So you're walking in your garden?

I own the farm lass!

Lilian: I see, yes—fog could be a nuisance.

Who ARE you anyway?

Lilian: Well my name's 'Lilian'.

Lilian who?

Lilian: Never mind who I am, but I'm here hopefully to help you. Did you feel unwell? While you were working on the farm, have you felt unwell?

No, I tripped and banged my head, but I'm fine now. You can see that!

Lilian: I know you're fine NOW, but did you wonder what would happen if that fall had caused you to die?

Of course I didn't. Why would I?

Lilian: You never thought about life after death or what would happen?

Not yet—not yet.

Lilian: Not yet. Well I've got a little bit of a shock for you—that fall and the bang on the head caused you to die.

No, no, no—that's rubbish. I'm perfectly okay.

Lilian: I know you're perfect now. You think about it; it was really part of our plan and that's what's caused you to die; but although we're finished with the physical body, we take on a spiritual body. Did you ever think about that? We go into the spirit world.

I don't believe in any of that rubbish.

Lilian: I think you're going to have to change your mind.

Don't believe it—don't believe it.

Lilian: Is it dark where you are?—or is it nice and light?

Dratted fog! Fog all everywhere—

Lilian: Well that fog will clear and it'll be like the sunshine coming out—but even nicer than the sunshine.

They let you out from that mental hospital?

Lilian: I hope not!

Well my dear, you talks a lot of tosh!

Lilian: Well we'll see—we'll see at the end who wins.

(At this point Jan asks Lilian to find out who Sylvia is)

We don't need to be talking about that my dear.

Lilian: Why is that?

—Because it's none of your business. Of course I knows a Sylvia—she helps me on the farm.

Lilian: I see.

And a nice little thing she is too.

Lilian: Ah that's good. But let's concentrate on the sunshine.

—sunshine, mm...

Lilian: Yes, and the bright light ahead of you. You should see a really bright light through the fog—the fog is beginning to lift. It feels really peaceful and happy and so on—

So it does my dear, so it does.

Lilian: Good! We're beginning to be friends, aren't we?

Jan: That's why he hasn't seen Sylvia, isn't it?

You wonder where Sylvia's been. You haven't seen her for a couple of days have you? (No). No—that's why you haven't seen her.

Lilian: Now what you'll do is, you'll see someone else that you'll recognise ahead of you—a friend or a relative.

Jan: Who's Bert?

Who are you?

Jan: I'm a friend of Lilian's helping you. Who's Bert?

Bert's my brother.

Jan: That's what I thought. Bert passed away, didn't he?

He did, yeah—silly old fool, yeah—liked the old drink too much, he did.

Jan: Yeah—something about falling in a ditch. Well, Bert's going to meet you.

Well I don't know my dear; I'm still not believing all this rubbish.

Lilian: Well let's just help you a little bit. Can you see the bright light? (Yes). Now, who can you see in that bright light?—someone waiting—I think you know who it is.

I can see someone (good), you're right—again.

Jan: He's doing this—he's waving a cap at you, like this. Can you see Bert waving his cap?

Who are all you women, by the way?

Jan: I know—aren't you lucky!—surrounded by us lovely ladies?

You've got the cheek of the Devil, you. You carry on my dear—she's stealing all your thunder, she is.

Lilian: I'm waiting for you to see Bert. Maybe he's got his dog with him.

You're a couple of know-alls! I'll say that for you. I do feel lighter.

Lilian: We're just trying to help.

I know. I'm a stubborn old fool as well.

Lilian: Because you hadn't thought of what happens when we all die. We've all got to die sometime, and you hadn't thought about it and it's come as a bit of a shock. But you'll soon get over that.

Well if this is dying it's not too bad, is it?

Lilian: No, I think you'll find it's better than being in the physical body. You just live on—if you think what a waste of time if we just died and that was the end of that—it would be a waste of time, wouldn't it?

Who's going to look after my cattle?

Jan: Sylvia is.

Lilian: I think that'll be fine—

Jan: Don't worry about the cattle, they're fine. Lilian: It's you who needs to see—

Ah there's Bert—are! Are there he is! I can see him now in his silly cap. 'Come on', he said, 'come on'.

Lilian: He can explain a whole lot better than me.

No, he said you've done a good job missus. Yeah—and the other one; the one who's stealing your thunder.

Chuckles

Lilian: Well we all chip in.

Who are you all? I'm not going till I find out.

Lilian: It's a group of people that try and help people like you.

No it's not—it's you two nosy women!

George: Well there are twelve of us altogether

Laughter

George: There are twelve of us in the group.

Lilian: We are just interested in the fact that we are physical and we are spiritual.

Good job I'm dead, he nearly gave me a heart attack.

Chuckles

Lilian: You've got a lovely sense of humour.

That's not humour, I'm serious. There he is, he keeps saying, 'come on behave yourself—behave yourself', that's all he says. Okay—and he said say 'thank you' to those ladies, because they've done you a good turn.

Lilian: Well we know you'll be okay.

You do? How can you know that?

Lilian: Well we just do.

You been up there, have you? Is it up there?

Lilian: Well it's where we come from and it's where we go back to.

Yeah, but is it UP THERE?

Jan: It's everywhere—it's anywhere you want it to be. You'll be going home.

Well that's daft, isn't it?

Lilian: Yeah it is really, but it's true.

Jan: You wait and see. Just go with Bert and he'll show you the ropes.

Lilian: You've got quite a lot to find out.

I have, yeah.

Lilian: And you'll enjoy it.

I'm beginning to believe you—I am now. Okay, thank you ladies—and you gentleman. I'm off.

Chuckles

Lilian: You'll be fine.

A period of clairvoyance via Eileen followed which included useful advisory data for Paul.

Next, our dear gatekeeper Cho stepped in through Eileen, with a message for Jan: 'I watch over you lady'.

He went on to say that there were others around but we weren't talking to them. Jan agreed that she sensed her dad (Ted) was around and asked Cho to give him a push/encouragement to speak. Eileen then began to receive clairvoyance regarding Ted, to say 'Thank you' to Jan for helping him over. He gave reassurance to Jan and said he would come back and speak another time, when feeling stronger. As he departed Eileen felt he left a big pink heart shape surrounding the family.

Finally, there was another through Eileen, who seemed new to this form of communication and was interested to come for the experience. We chatted pleasantly for a few minutes and Lilian then asked her what she did in spirit.

I'm rather interested in materials—of course material isn't the way you would understand it to be. You can feel, but you know sometimes your fingers just go through, like it's nothing there. And the colours are beautiful and material is almost like very special silk; and I'm interested in all of that—yes.

Lilian: So do you wear any of this material?

Personally myself, I have one robe that I have, which is in actual fact a multitude of the colours available and it's almost like a healing robe. Do you know of our healing robes? I know a lot of people talk about the healing waters, but I prefer it to be a little more—solid is not the correct word—but for your understanding I will say: a more solid material. So we blend all the beautiful colours together and create, I will call it 'fabric'.

Graham: Do you use your minds to create the fabric?

That's correct—that's exactly what we do. You can create whatever you wish, be it either another being, or something material, or an animal or a house—whatever—it does not matter. Yes, but we use our robes for healing; especially those who come to us and are very shy and don't quite understand where they are. When they don these robes they feel a love they have not experienced before and it helps them to adjust.

Paul: So is that to do with the robes being imbued with certain healing energies when they're being created?

Yes, because every colour is an energy in its own right' and in spirit it is even more so.

Jan: It reminds me of our saying, 'Cloaked in Love.'

Yes, yes you could say that, because that's exactly what is happening—when these healing robes are worn, it is a cloak of Love—yes.

Paul: And are the patterns as the colours are used—

They're interwoven—

Paul: And are there any symbols?

There can be, depending on who is using and who is wearing the fabric; it is a very individual item. So my interest lies there, dear lady, to answer your question.

Lilian: That's interesting.

Sara: Do you have many colours in your cloak?

—All colours if you wish or one colour, but all colours blend together—they are images of each other—yes.

Jan: Are they on different vibrations the different colours, like they are here?

They can be, but as I said, they are attuned to the individual.

Jan: Right, so you intuitively know, spiritually—know what colour that individual—

You could say we are like a hospital, which knows exactly what to do for the individual—yes.

Sarah: When you create these beings, are they—

Beings?

Sarah: —you said you could create people—

Yes—if you wish to see another being, you can.

Sarah: Are these people—

—it is just a thought.

Sarah: Right—are they people that you know? Or how do you know how to create a being if you don't know them?

Well, it is a blending of your spirit. Be careful that you don't become tangled with physical thought. Yes of course, most of the people that you think of will be people that you have known or wish to know.

Sarah: Yes, and am I right in saying that if you create them, you can see them, but they don't necessarily have to see you?

If they do not wish to see you, no—that's correct.

Sara: But you're calling them to you, in a way?

Yes and everything is known, in the same way that we in spirit know your thoughts down here and we understand what you feel and think. Yes, so in spirit it is so much easier.

George: We have spoken to people who live on other planets and I guess we would equally have sight of them, if we wished?

If you so desired and it was allowed, yes of course. There are limitations of course, but perhaps you may not know of, or indeed you may know of. That perhaps—shall we take your beings on other planets—it may be that that would be an interference in their progress in spirit and it would not always be possible to actually SEE them. It depends—it is not so simple. But, because you know people gravitate in the same way, on the same levels—you understand that, do you not?

George: Yes—I imagine it helps if the people on other planets also wish to reciprocate.

Yes, they may not wish to do so, you see. And even although you wish to see them, if they are not happy then it will not happen, because you would be encroaching upon their spiritual journeys. Can you understand?

George: Yes, I see that, yes.

Yes, so there ARE times, but they are very few.

George: Yes, and you say that you are still learning, but the words are flowing very nicely and I imagine you do not find this interchange at all difficult.

I have found it fairly easy to be truthful. Yes, I know some people do not like to do it, and others wish to do it, and then decide not to. I am just a curious being—I just wish to know what is happening still.

George: I share curiosity with you.

Yes, and I do know the Earthly saying, of 'what happens with curiosity'.

Laughs

And I would not wish to be blamed for anything like that, would you?

Agreed

Sara: Talking of cats, two days ago my daughter said to me, 'I'd love a kitten, mum'. And I said instead of buying one we could make friends with one that visits the house (yes), and then the next day a cat walked in and wanted to spend lots of time with us. So that was a very quick manifestation!

Yes well, you know they are very close to us in spirit, these animals, especially the cats—and I hope every one of you, if you don't mind me saying, will listen to what I have to say about animals: that you have to THANK them with your every breath, for being part of your lives, for BEING with you. And that cat or kitten picked up on the thoughts of you both.

Sara: Yes. Well, I can't keep it, because it belongs to someone else, but it was lovely to have her company and I hope we have her more—she came again today.

It is not unknown for cats to have more than one home, because they just feel the love that comes, when people give it.

Sara: This cat was very receptive.

Yes, try speaking to your animals without words and you will be well rewarded when you come to spirit, because the same can happen here. If there is a love bond, you will have lots of animals.

Sarah: I think sometimes animals understand us better than we understand them.

Well, I didn't like to say that—

Chuckles

I did not wish to offend in any way, but I would agree. So anyway, I hope I have not interrupted too much.

We assured her that she was most welcome and said our farewells

~16th May 2016~ SALUMET

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_05_16salumet.mp3

George: Good evening Salumet and welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It gladdens us all when we see such dedication as you provide within this room. I would this time, my dear friends, just say to you that however you feel about the state of your world at this time, and it would seem that there is always strife—I want to still reassure you that we are doing all that we can to bring love and peace to all people. We do not wish you to become despondent, because that would not help any situation. So be reassured, my dear friends, that with your help and the help of many others in this world, we will come at some stage to a more natural and loving situation here.

Paul: Thank you—yes, I think there are positive little ripples and signs. It's slow, but it's slowly changing.

Yes, and that is what we still need to do—to have positive attitudes, all of you. I would wish to just say to you this time that even your scientific world is changing slowly, that their doubts are a little less than they were ten of your years ago. So in this respect it is a good sign that there are changes happening.

George: Yes, there is one gentleman who is basically a chef, and he is conducting a campaign to teach better food values in schools to young children, and this is something that at last is coming to the fore.

Yes, you will find that over the next two of your Earthly years, as I have said with your medicine, so you will now find that the scientific world will make discoveries that they until now have dismissed as not ur—

George: Yes, I would like to speak with you on that later, Salumet.

You may speak with me now.

George: Ah, well—we have recently spoken of the 'Santilli telescope' and the observation of an anti-matter universe (yes). You suggested I might think further on this matter (yes). Well, my physical thinking is rather like this: The aether plus its mode of transmission governs the speed of light to this planet. Its mode of transmission has been described as torsional or twisting, and this controls the speed of light until it strikes matter and transfers its energy to that. And thinking physically on this, if we consider a single twist, if it goes further to a break point, it will produce a clockwise part and an anti-clockwise part, which might suggest matter and anti-matter. Anyway, the aether represents a stage in the production—the creation of matter, and there seems to be good evidence for an anti-matter universe. And the present scientific community is aware and acknowledges that their reasoning leaves a large part of the universe unaccounted for. The anti-matter universe would contribute to that part which is not at the moment acknowledged. I would be glad of any further commentary you might have on that Salumet.

Yes, I understand what you are saying, but to simplify it for the others, it is not as complicated as it may seem. There will never be a full understanding with your scientific world, but it indicates to us how much knowledge they are beginning to gain. Always I have told you there is plus and minus in all parts of life, and this applies to the matter of the universe and the universes further afield. Of course, I would say that your scientists are dealing very well with the information which is being fed to them from our world. That is the first step I have to make to you.

George: That is very nice to know.

They would have no knowledge at all if some of it was not coming from us. You know and understand that all of your life is dependent upon being spiritual beings. And when you speak of the aether—of course, it is the most important part in gauging how the rest of the universes work. But I feel for this time, your scientists need to remain uncomplicated with their visions. Do you understand?

George: Yes, I see.

And allow more knowledge to come from us, which would then gain them more knowledge, here on this Earth.

George: Yes, and it would speed this process up if (yes) more of them went within and—

Yes, and listened to that still voice; yes of course it would help, but although in times past I have said almost they are a little ignorant of all that is happening. We have now reached a stage where some of them are beginning to listen—to work out for themselves that information, and to define what it is all about. But they will never have the full answer, not whilst you remain upon this Earth plane.

George: Yes, and would you agree that the aether plays a major role—

It is a natural role—it is not something that is made, it has always been.

George: Yes, it plays a major role in the Creation (yes) and a major role in——existence.

George: Yes, and in controlling the speed of light.

—And that also, yes, I would agree with you on that one point (yes, wonderful). Does that help you?

George: That clarifies very nicely, thank you.

I hope that the others have understood, because you are a gentleman of much wisdom but it is not always easy for the others to fully understand your questions, but we are grateful for them.

George: Well thank you. Well, I'm writing this book on the aether (yes), and it may well be that it will be beyond a few people, but I hope that some will find it of interest.

Yes, we can assure you there will be interest.

George: Oh thank you.

We thank you, my dear friend, we thank you for all the good work that you have done—the words that you have printed, and many people have come to know just a little more of the life that continues.

Mark: I believe you told us over a year ago about the discovery of more planets and that's come to fruition—they announced that about a week ago I think.

Yes, I am always happy to hear that our information materialises for you, and that you know that the words that I give to you are made of truth; we thank you for that.

Serena: Could I ask a question slightly related to George I believe, about Adamantine Particles (Yes). What are they?

What are they? They are made from the substance of all life—if that is a simple answer for you.

Serena: Because they're very, very, very small, aren't they?

Minute, I would say—is the word that I would use. Yes, they are part of existence. I do not know how else to explain it to you—yes.

George: We respect that what comes to us from you Salumet, is truth (yes). The generation of that truth, one could almost say, is a ‘feedback process’ from all knowledge that has been gained from this and other planets in the universe (yes) and other universes, I believe you have said in the past.

Well you see—all of your world is never still. It is evolving in the same way as you are, and mankind is a curious creature. He forever seeks answers to many things. Sometimes these questions are irrelevant to your spiritual growth, but we understand that, because of the curiosity, you like to ask more and more questions. The question, my dear friends, I would wish you to ask is: how do we become more spiritual whilst in the human body? That is the important question. Do you understand?

Natalie: On that note, at the beginning of the year, I had an experience in this room that I hadn’t felt before—like I wasn’t here (yes). Like my heart was bursting out of my chest, and I felt like I was being pulled back somewhere and it was weird, it’s like I could just about hear, in the distance, someone in the room like I wasn’t quite here, but I was here. I wondered if you could clear that up—

Yes, it was part of your development, it is part of the spirit separating from the body; and we know you found it a little uncomfortable at the time. So we try never to—what is the word you would use—to hold that someone would feel uncomfortable? But indeed, it was another step in your own development (thank you).

George: I guess the main thing is a going within to see what we can receive—but exercises such as we had last week would also help to develop this.

It would help each one of you to develop in your own individual ways. After all, you are each individuals and although you come together in love and peace, in your daily lives you are very different, but that makes no difference to the spirit; so yes, you must go within if you wish to be in more contact with the spirit. I find sometimes it difficult to explain that you are all one at the moment. You are spirit and yet you have this human body, which sometimes causes you and your minds to become a little cluttered. So when you go within, the spirit becomes freer. That is the time that as individuals, you should ask your questions, and you will receive your answers—maybe not exactly what you want to hear, but still it is your own spiritual answer.

George: And I think I would be right in saying that you Salumet are part of that oneness, because you receive so much from everywhere and recycle it.

Ah, that is a very good way to put it. I have never been called ‘a recycling bin’.

Hearty laughter

So I will remember that my dear friends, yes. Recycling—I must remember—

Laughs

George: But do you regard yourself as part of that oneness?

I do. I am part of many parts that is a whole. And again, we are going to a subject which is a little complicated for the human mind (yes). But yes you know, and I told you from the very beginning that I speak as a conglomerate of beings, and that is still true today.

George: So can we see a conglomerate of beings as—

You can see a conglomerate of being as a universe of Truth—the University of Truth, if you like.

George: —A collection of parts, or is that putting it a bit too physically?

I think for understanding that is a good way to put it—yes—yes, and parts which have never existed as humankind, and parts which have existed; but as a whole we are just bound in love and existence.

George: You say ‘and parts that have existed’?

—In some form—yes, have existed in some form. But again, what is important is the truth that we bring to you. I hope that is helping you.

Paul: Yes, it widens the picture a little more, and I just had the thought: maybe it helps the whole truth that you’ve got—you’re a conglomerate with formless beings and those that have had form, that no longer have form—

Yes, but not form as you would understand. That is why I say it is more complicated than words can say.

Paul: Right—so they wouldn't have been human.

No.

Paul: But yes—some form—it gives us something to go on.

It is something for you to consider—yes.

George: Would any of those forms be physical?

No.

Ben: Salumet (yes)—when we pass to spirit, we sometimes take on a form of how we looked when we were on the Earth I believe—for recognition purposes.

Yes, when you pass to spirit you mean?

Ben: Yes, so when we pass to spirit and if we were to call upon you for a conversation, how would you appear to us?

I can take—I can be transformed to the form of a human in order to teach on the lower levels, but I only come so far, so often. There are many teachers in our world who are prepared to teach those who have questions. It is not something that I do with regularity, but if you were to call upon me whilst in spirit, you would find that your answers will come (thank you). Is that helpful to you? (yes) There are many teachers in spirit and there is much you can learn when first you take your place there. But the others understand this, do you not?

Paul: Sort of—sort of, I think, in the sense that there're vast 'libraries' if you like—and teachers; and you know that the truth is there, as opposed to on the Earth where—

You will no longer doubt the truth once you have returned to spirit. After all my dear friend, you are returning home. Nothing will seem strange (that's right), so all will seem familiar and you will feel boundless love (yes)—unlimited love.

Paul: Yeah, I guess it's like you get beautiful days on the Earth, but that's not the norm usually, but they're probably just small compared to in spirit.

Yes, I would say that in comparison, a beautiful day here would seem very hazy in spirit. It would seem dull, although, as human beings, you would think it a most beautiful day. The colours—everything about spirit is—I don't know how to explain it to you properly. I can only say the beauty will astound you.

Paul: Yes, I think we can get the gist, but until we experience it again, we won't know for sure.

George: Perhaps we should think in terms of a beautiful summer's day here being a less-than-halfway stage in beauty.

Yes, although it is beautiful to human beings, to us it seems a little dull—yes you are correct—yes.

Paul: And yet, for many, even though the learning can occur as you say, on that side, many will choose to come back here. It almost seems—why would you choose to come back to the very hazy place at the best of times? But I suppose you do get the focus for certain lessons perhaps—

Yes, always the choice remains with the spirit. Of course, some are not quite so keen to return too quickly, but that is their free will and that is always respected. But there is advice from those teachers in our world who will offer guidance and love. And let me say to you all, my dear friends: you never return to a lifetime unless the decision has been made by you. So never feel that it is something that you must do—it is something that you have decided is right for the growth of your spirit. And after all, that is what these lives are about—the growth of your spirit and returning home.

George: Yes, it's a growth of spirit and not just a retrograde step!

Yes. No, you must never look upon it as that.

Ben: Would we have the chance to reincarnate onto a different planet, or will we always be human when we reincarnate?

There is much discussion about this that you can return—energy can be transmuted, but I would say: no, you will not do that. You will not inhabit another planet in that form. And I know there is dispute about this, but that is my answer to you (thank you). Have you more questions this time? No?

Pause

George: There is just one, which probably has a negative answer. You said at some stage that a new energy would be forthcoming from the sea (yes). One gentleman seems to have worked out a process for making alcohol out of seaweed, but I don't think that's what you had in mind.

Well, I thank you for the information, but no I was speaking of benefits to mankind in general and not seaweed drink. Although I must say that the seaweed in your seas can be beneficial—yes. But there are many things happening in your world. As I say: people, although it may seem that all is going wrong, it is not my friend, it is almost like a cleansing—a cleansing of the soul in order for you all to move forward.

Paul: Ah, that's a lovely way of looking at it. It does feel like that—this year and the last few years.

Those of you who are sensitive to spirit would see the difference, although many people with negative thoughts would see only the 'unhappiness', the 'wars'—the negative stuff in your world. But keep positive my dear friends—keep positive on all matters.

Paul: Yes, it's kind of a detox—you have to get rid of all this stuff, but you have to get it out first, so it's coming out isn't it? (Yes)—we're seeing it in the media.

The more 'sensitives' we have, the better the understanding will become. So I leave that all with you, my dear friends, and hope that it has given you a little food for thought.

George: Yes indeed! I feel this has been a wonderful evening, which has taken us further forward and I'm sure it will be of great interest to many of our readers (yes), thank you Salumet.

I thank all of you my dear friends, I thank you all for your love, for your dedication and I wish you could see the growth of your own spirits since first we met; you would be surprised.

So I leave you now, cloaked in my love and in the love of those here in my world, until we meet once more.

George: And I'm sure we send our love to you all in your world—thank you.

General agreement and farewells

Following Eileen's return, there was quite a detailed clairvoyant message via Eileen regarding a friend of two of us now living in China. Then a brief visit from Cho, who it was that had brought the information to Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_05_16-Cho.mp3

Hello!

All: Hello Cho!

I very pleased I brought that one—very pleased (ah).

George: Yes, we're very pleased, because it's been a wonderful evening with Salumet.

I'm very pleased.

Paul: Was it a lady who brought the message for Jeremy?—or—

No—no lady—one of his helpers (ah), yeah—looking after him—yeah—man called John.

Pause

Who's got a broken bicycle?

Paul: Me actually—I've been working on a few things. The gear cable's broken and it needs new tyres.

Yes, someone's saying: watch your finger.

Paul: Oh right! Watch my finger (yes). Okay, yes I'll take extra care, thank you.

George: A finger can be easily nipped between tyre and wheel.

Paul: Yes, it is actually—getting them off was.

You look after your finger.

Paul: Ah—thank you.

I sound more Chinese tonight!

Laughs

I look after my lady tomorrow (Jan).

Paul: Oh yes—well done. Jan will be very pleased to hear that—we can pass that on.

It's not favouritism you know!

Laughs

Paul: She needs it at the moment—yeah.

Okay, I go.

General thanks

There followed a further period of clairvoyant messages via Eileen, including one very specific one for George. 'Someone has a door that's not fitting very well.' Well the previous day the greenhouse door was having quite an overhaul. It now opens freely, but the advice given was that one particular pane of glass with a crack needs to be replaced. How very true—absolutely spot on! And thanks.

George's notes:

1: Matter and anti-matter: What follows is intended to bring the more general reader up to an understanding of that highly technical question to Salumet concerning matter and anti-matter. This follows a first mention of the Santilli telescope in a question to Salumet on 8th February. Salumet's statement at that time was: 'I would only say this to you, my dear friends: if there is matter, there is always anti-matter—you always have to have a balance.' This is the invention of Dr Ruggero Santilli that actually reveals (and proves the existence of) an anti-matter universe. So it should help the general reader enormously if we begin by considering the nature of waves, beginning with water waves:

Waves on water: We are all familiar with ocean waves. They are clearly visible, they travel slowly and they have their energy, which they give up on reaching a coastline. This energy transfer is apparent when we see shifting sands and cliff erosion.

Sound waves in air: This is a compression wave with alternate compressed and reduced pressure parts. Sound waves travel very much faster than water waves—around 340 metres per second (but with dependence on temperature, humidity etc). Just like water waves, sound has energy which is given up when it strikes a surface. If that surface happens to be our eardrum, then it vibrates the eardrum and that is the basis of our hearing ability. It is possible for extremely loud sounds to knock down walls and to shake machines to pieces. So in these cases, the energy transfer is well demonstrated. We must bear in mind that both water wave and sound waves are entirely physical involving physical media through which they travel.

Light waves in the aether: Light waves are very, very much faster again than sound waves—almost 300 million metres per second (186,000 miles per second). A reason for this is that the aether is non-physical so that the travelling light wave has no weight to shift. An important thing is that just like sound waves one can see it as units comprising pressure and reduced pressure parts—or each part may be a twist (torsion)—and Professor Ervin Laszlo makes a strong case for this—or it may be both. But whatever the structure of the light wave, the important thing for us to observe is that just like water waves and sound waves, it carries energy which transfers to the surface that it falls upon. When that surface is our skin, it produces sunburn. When that surface is dark, the absorbed energy makes it hot. Lighter surfaces reflect more energy and that is why sunhats are usually white; so all these waves have the common feature of carrying energy that is given up on reaching a material surface, and the understanding of one type of wave should help us to visualise another.

The aether: The aether is a universal (non-physical) essence that has several functions: (1) It conveys sunlight and starlight to this and other planets. (2) It sustains life on this and other planets. (3) Aether has an essential role in the creation process—a half-way stage between spirit and matter. (4) Matter and anti-matter are produced simultaneously, and there have been several references to the fact that this is so. These details lead to the conclusion that there is indeed an anti-matter universe. This is claimed by Dr Rerrero Santilli and is confirmed by Salumet.

Bio-fuel from seaweed: Whilst the question as placed was really seen as a means of making bio-fuel, several sources see the process of ethanol fermentation as a way of making wine. So it is understandable that Salumet's reply relates to winemaking.

Teaching children food values: It is to Jamie Oliver's credit that he conducts a number of significant campaigns. One recent campaign is to teach the value of food to young children in schools. This should be very useful since so many begin with poor diet that often continues in later life.

[No meetings on 23rd or 30th May, on account of Eileen being away and UK Bank holiday.

~13th June 2016~

The evening began with notification of Salumet's next visit and an excellent discourse on the subject of 'self-healing' by one via Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_06_13+self-healing.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Firstly, I am asked to tell you that your teacher will be here next time (thank you).

Pause

I pause because I am trying to gauge the energy in this room (yes). There are some of you whose energies are a little depleted, so we wish to say that we will endeavour this evening to help those who are in need of any kind of upliftment.

George: That's very nice—thank you very much.

Yes, it is almost impossible for you all to have equal energy at the same time—so we will help.

Lilian: Thank you. That will be very nice and we're very grateful.

Yes, I would also like just to say that most of you do not attempt self healing. I am correct, am I not? (Yes).

Lilian: Do we need to do more than just asking for help?

You can self heal, but as always it is only practice. But with the amount of time you have been together, you should be able to at least help yourselves in some small degree.

George: Yes, perhaps we have too much reliance in our doctors and medical services?

Well, you know that your doctors are healers, but in a different way from those healers that we use directly from spirit.

George: Yes, that would be in much more physical ways.

Yes, but do not dismiss your healer doctors.

Lilian: I think we should be very grateful for the help we do get.

Yes, after all, their healing desires come from their spiritual senses.

Lilian: If I think of self healing, what I do—and I don't know if this is right—I put my hand on the spot that needs some healing and ask, and ask that way.

You have almost taken the words from my mouth. If you wish to try self healing, let me try to show you. When you speak of placing your hands, that is what anyone will react and do to themselves if they have pain. So yes, but what you need to do is to go into the quiet time, allow your mind to be free; if you wish to place your hand on any spot, please do. But you have to feel and see the energy reaching the troubled spot (yes). But you need to do it on a regular basis (right). If you have pain in your arm, then you focus on that one place; you feel the energy go to that particular spot. Would you like to try it now?

Lilian: Yes—you mean all of us?

Yes, you may not have troubled spot, but you should—a group such as this, be able to feel energy.

Lilian: Right, we'll give it a try.

Let us use the forearm: Place your other one upon it, quieten your mind if you can—and that is the part that people find difficult; you ask for God's help, or whatever you wish to call God or Great Spirit—whatever is your desire. You should after some time begin to feel perhaps a little warmth, a comfortable feeling within and you have to focus the energy to that spot. I am being very quick, but with practice you will feel heat.

George: I feel we are very fortunate in having the two possibilities—the healing from spirit and the physical healing from doctors.

Yes, because all of healing comes from spirit (yes) and most of your doctors, they feel a compunction to heal others.

George: Yes, and there's the further variation of a healer from spirit, working through a medium (yes). I'm thinking as an example: St Paul, who works through a medium called Ray Brown.

Yes—yes, there are a few of them working in that way now, but most healers that we use—their HANDS. (Sic) For example, it is because they are able to allow their minds to be set to one side and allow those of us in spirit to heal.

George: Yes, returning to Ray Brown; I understand that the one who works through him is able to actually see and adjust the energy flows.

Because he uses a body physically, but he is spirit animated in that physical body. That is not the most common way, although many, many healers are working under trance conditions (yes). But it matters not how it operates, it is the results—it is the results of what you take in spiritually—then healing takes place. But if you listen to me about energy, you should after a while feel that energy in the spot that you have asked about.

George: I shall certainly use that self healing technique myself.

Yes, it is practice, but can any one of you feel anything now?

Paul: Yes, certainly, there's a nice pleasant warmth.

That is the beginning—just the very beginning.

Sarah: I actually saw like a cone coming down from a hand and it was swirling around.

Good, yes you may all experience different things, but I just want you to KNOW that it is possible to self heal.

George: Yes, I would imagine that doesn't have to be when sitting in the group, but as an individual.

No, as individuals, probably much better for you, because your mind is more focussed (yes).

Serena: What about if the pain is emotional or mental?

That may be a little more difficult, but not impossible. The emotional pain is still pain and I would suggest self healing plus the help of the healers in the world—yes.

Serena: But where would you put your hands, because you can't always identify where it hurts—

You do not always have to place the hand, if you are more comfortable just with the visualisation of the energy. So whatever would feel comfortable for emotional healing—perhaps around the heart area; the top of the head is an important healing point, but would perhaps not be too comfortable to maintain. But I would suggest that you just focus on energy rather than placing your hand anywhere.

Sarah: What happens in the case of Sally, who would normally be at this group, but she has terminal cancer (yes)—when the doctors say it's terminal, is it terminal, or can she heal herself?

Yes, we go into different situations when disease has captured the body to that degree, then it becomes a little longer, a little more difficult, but possible. Nothing is impossible when it comes to spirit. But that dear lady has suffered with this condition for quite some time (yes). Yes—the time to start self healing, if there is any condition, is when it is first noticed.

Sarah: Yes, okay—thank you.

But I thank you for listening to me, because sometimes, and in groups such as yours for development, will always argue that it is God's will that these diseases must continue. That is not so. So please take these words as I have meant them to be, with love and healing help.

George: Might I say, while you've been speaking on this—well, one of my problems has been a tension and tautness in the calf muscles of the legs (yes), and I've had my two hands on one of them and it has become more relaxed already.

That is good. That shows you, although it is a small thing that it can be used—the more you become aware of that healing spiritual energy. You are after all healers, whether you believe that or not. You are—you are spirit and you are capable of much.

Lilian: And I think we really cause most of our illnesses ourselves, don't we? Maybe doing something silly—the wrong thoughts—

Life on your planet is not easy and you know you all have diseases knocking at your door (yes) and sometimes these diseases are taken to be outward conditions. But I've been told that as a group, you have been told what a disease is. It is dis-ease.

General acknowledgement

Yes, it is something to remember. So think about what I have said and it is up to each of you to try to help yourselves.

Paul: If you've got more than one issue, would it be best to just focus on one thing for say a week or so and then—

I would suggest you give all of yourself the opportunity to heal (right). Yes, they are not separate issues.

Paul: Ah yes, of course.

Dis-ease of the spirit, of the body is a combination of all things.

Paul: So you bring—

You place yourself

Paul: —healing to the whole body—

Yes, yes.

Paul: That's a lovely thought to go away and practice on—it's nice and simple the way you've explained it.

It is simple, but being humans, you make lives difficult for yourselves sometimes.

George: Yes, could I say at this stage that we live in a world which has various germs and bugs around (yes). Some people use products that kill them off and they're living virtually in sterile conditions. Would I be right in thinking that they're more susceptible to bugs if they've been living in a sterile situation than if they have some degree of contact with germs and bugs?

Yes, that is why you have all been given immune systems, but all things should be together, after all, your planet has its own evolution, which includes bugs, as you call them; all creatures on this planet have their time and their place.

George: Yes, they shouldn't be—

And it, in some cases, depends upon the strength of your own immunity.

George: Yes, there may be justification in some measure of control, but they should not be eradicated (no). We are all one, as it has been said.

Yes, it is not up to mankind to decide how this planet should operate. You humankind are responsible only for yourselves and to be able to live in harmony—harmony.

Sarah: But mankind's already done quite a lot of damage on this planet.

But you must not look back—look forward. Sarah: Yes—thank you.

Now, again I thank you for listening to me.

George: Well, we thank you for giving us what amounts to valuable information. Thank you very much.

Please try to use and develop that energy which is available to you all. There are no exceptions.

Paul: Yes, I think that's going to be a great help to a lot of us, and for those who read the transcripts too.

Thank you and goodbye.

General farewells

Next came a rescue via Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_06_13+rescue.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome

I don't like you.

Lilian: Well that's a shame. I'd like to get to know you.

I don't like this place.

Lilian: Will it help if I told you my name?

No.

Lilian: Would you tell me yours?

Might—okay—Laura.

Lilian: Laura.

I don't like this place.

Lilian: Where do you think you are?

It's dark.

Lilian: It's dark?—night time?

I don't know, it's just dark.

Lilian: Okay, don't worry about it. What I'm going to do is to try and help you to come out into the light—a lovely light, nice and bright.

I've lost my little brother.

Lilian: That's a shame—but don't worry, we'll find him.

Mummy will go mad, she will.

Lilian: Well, I'll tell mummy and then she won't be mad will she, if I tell her first?

Who are you?

Lilian: But—can you see a nice bright light ahead of you with a lovely lady standing there waiting to help you. She might be holding something that you're looking for.

My little brother!

Lilian: She may be holding his hand. Can you see?

I'm not allowed to talk to strangers.

Lilian: Well this stranger—she's lovely. She helps all sorts of children. What can you see now?

Trees—I'm scared.

Lilian: No, try not to be scared (I'm scared). I'm here with you—Come on, I'm here with you. I know you're a little bit scared, but try not to be, because there's no need to be. Have you looked at the face of the lady that I was telling you about? What a lovely face she's got.

She's smiling (yeah). And she looks all white.

Lilian: Like an angel? (Yes). She is—let's say she's a lovely angel. And the more you look, the more you want to go and be with her—and she will help you.

What about Joey?

Lilian: Could you see him with her? (No). He will be. Can you hold her hand? (No). I think she wants you to hold her hand. I think she's trying to say to you that you'll find him together.

I feel funny, I feel all funny.

Lilian: You're beginning to feel happy—could you say you're beginning to feel happy as well?—not quite so frightened?

No, I'm not scared now.

Lilian: You're not scared, that's good—that's very good. She wants you to go with her. There'll be lots of other children as well (look). Yes, what can you see?

There's a big, big white light behind her. She's nice (good). She's nice.

Lilian: Well if you go with that lady—

No, you come with me.

Lilian: I won't be far behind, but there's someone else I have to help as well. So if you go with that lady and she'll look after you until you can find your little brother (yes).

Lilian: That's a good girl.

I do like you.

Lilian: Oh good! (Chuckles)—I'm glad we're friends now.

I'm sorry I said—I was very scared.

Lilian: It doesn't matter, of course you were.

And now I'm gonna go with the lady.

Lilian: She's a very special lady, so I'll let you go with her.

Finally, we were conducted on a journey by one, again via Eileen, starting along a woodland path and similar to ones transcribed during previous sessions. Those who practice meditation and understand how/when to meditate safely may wish to listen to it—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_06_13+med.mp3

~20th June 2016~ SALUMET

We began with quite a lengthy Salumet session—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_06_20+1salumet.mp3

George: Good evening Salumet and welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It always feels good to join with you all once again, my dear friends.

Sarah: Thank you, it's good to have you back.

I have been aware of your conversations this time, especially the dear lady speaking about her bones. Last time you had someone speaking to you all about self healing (yes). This is just a continuance of that talk. When you have separateness of anything, there is disharmony. That is why the lady has been told that it is necessary for the bones to be closer and united. This I will relate to separateness from that great energy or God, as you like to say, when as human beings you wonder why perhaps your energies or your life may not be travelling in the right direction. It is when your spiritual energy is not united with God; and I hear you say: why should this be, when we try to do all that we can to make connection? Yes, you do, but I have to tell you my dear friends that you must forget about yourselves as you are. You must allow the power of your energy to grow within, and with the help of meditations you become united as one with that great power. Do you understand what I am saying to you? (Yes). You do?—you do not seem convinced.

Jan: What you are talking about I presume is the power of prayer, and the power of—

All of these things together, allowing yourselves to take time to become part of the God that you recognise. I will use 'God' because it is the common name for humans to use.

Jan: I think it was the word 'God' in this room that maybe we like to—with your teaching, it's more of an energy isn't it, it's more of a life force-power?

Yes, it is power, and it is not power as strength as you may imagine. It is the power of energy which builds within to create the unity that you need to be with God.

George: Yes, I think we understand, but the difficulty I think sometimes is losing the connection to the physical.

Yes, you must forego all thoughts of physical if you are to be united; after all, you are only just sparks of goodness, which you need to cultivate in any lifetime that you may have. Yes, I do not say that it is easy and I do not say that you will always capture it in one lifetime—you will not. But that does not mean you do not have to strive towards it. So, be aware of all things, but mostly have that quiet, peaceful time to rebuild the power and energy within.

Paul: Yes, I think it's such a valuable time and from the talk last week, to be able to sort of add to the meditation time and then perhaps do self healing (yes), maybe afterwards or during—

Just take small steps at a time and you will be amazed how quickly you feel the difference in your energy within the human body and the connection that you make to spirit. You are all capable of it, but of course as we know, these words 'self will' always appears, does it not? Paul: Yes, it's our choice.

Yes, but I hope it will be just a little guidance for you.

Sarah: It's very nice when you tell us these things and remind us of what we should be doing.

It is all too easy in everyday lives to forget who you are, and I know I repeat words often, but I feel it is for your benefit (that's good). Now—

Serena: Could I ask a question on healing? (Yes). Is it better if you're doing self healing or even healing on other people to use the finger tips, the palm? Is touch better than a slight distance away?

There should be no difference in the result, but what you may find is that by the touch, people will react a little differently, will feel a little more secure—and then you have others who are a little afraid of the touch, so then you can use that healing power by not touching, but I know you are speaking about the energy in these places—yes.

Serene: Yes—thank you. I've also been told that if you massage in a circulation motion, you generate and if you do anticlockwise, you de-generate, so you could take away inflammation or you could add healing—

I would suggest in that instance that you be guided. That is why it is most important to have the connection to spirit first, then they will guide you in the correct manner (thank you). But yes, in a clockwise direction you are helping what I believe you all call the 'chakras' (yes). Yes—anticlockwise has a different job to do, if I may put it so plainly. But my answer to you my dear friend is always to be guided by those with superior knowledge (thank you). Have we any more questions?

George: We've had one sent in by a reader, Salumet, and I think I'd best read his letter to you.

This is a person of conflicting ideas.

Jan: So George doesn't need to necessarily read it to you?

Yes, I will listen.

George: He says: "I have been reading a rather interesting book—Secret journey to Planet Serpo—a true story of interplanetary travel, which documents an exchange program. According to the book, in 1965, twelve U.S. military people were sent in an—he uses the term 'alien'—spaceship to a planet 40 light-years away in the Zeta Reticuli star system. The journey took ten months and they were on the planet for ten years. In 1978, eight returned, two had died and two decided to stay on the planet. The material was sent in 2005 to a UFO site by a former U.S. military officer involved in the project anonymously who wanted the information to be released before he died. I was wondering if you could ask Salumet when you next meet, to confirm the story."

Thank you. Again we touch on topics that have interested mankind for however many years. We have spoken quite a lot about space, about 'aliens' as you call them; I prefer to call them 'other people', because that is what they are. They may have different form, they may not speak as you do, but their existence is for all to behold. And yes, you upon this Earth, as I have said before, you are quite a young planet, and have you not my dear friends, had some proof of 'aliens' in different ways?

George: We have indeed!

Yes—so it is not necessary to always continue to try to prove. I would say to you: think about this Earth planet first, and allow those whose interest is so strong to continue to find out details of what is beyond. I can tell you in simple words my friends: there has been space travel for a long time—centuries and centuries and centuries; it is nothing new to us. Whether what these men having contact is true or not—that really is not the question. But what I would say to the gentleman asking the question is: if he so believes, then so be it. I am not here to tell you or to say 'not' what is true and what is not. I will say this to you that if this gentleman who wanted something printed is genuine, and I believe him to be, then that is his pathway.

George: Yes, thank you and we've certainly had ample evidence that others (yes) are able to live on planets that are not their own.

Yes, this is just one small story. From time immemorial there has been space travel. Whether you wish to believe this or not—that is entirely up to you. But I am more concerned for 'mind travel', as you know. That has always been my quest for you. But please do acknowledge the gentleman and thank him for his question, and just to say that Salumet can say most definitely that many planets and much life continues on them.

George: Yes, I'll certainly do that. Thank you Salumet.

Any more questions?

Sarah: On the subject of self healing, there's quite a lot of 'radon' gas in this country and probably many countries, and it can if you live in an area where there's a lot of it, can cause cancer. If you happen to live in an area with high radon, if you ask for protection for yourself and those around you, would it be alright to live in that area?

If you have asked for protection, then we would hopefully help in any way that we could. Yes, you have the strength within you as human beings to rid yourself—and I am going to use our favourite word 'fear'. If you fear a substance, then it will take hold of you.

Jan: So that's the same as if you fear a certain disease, you're likely to contract that disease?

Yes, because the thought becomes reality (yes). Always remember this, but if you have asked for help from God or the angels or whomever, hopefully you would be guided in the correct way (thank you).

Jan: Going back—I'm not struggling with what you said about self healing, but regarding what happened to my leg, I remember you once saying to me to put your trust and faith into the doctors; well I did.

Yes, but they are human.

Jan: They are human—I know that, I understand that. I understand I had to have intervention, and then self healing after that would speed the recovery. But in this instance, even if I had all my energy and all my belief into self healing that leg; with the intervention that happened, I don't feel I would have been in control 100% of that.

Therefore there would be no healing.

Jan: Well they told me my leg wasn't healing.

No—that is the problem, but it is a human problem, but with self healing, you need as I said at the beginning, that you need to make sure there is no separateness. In the same way as your bone has separated, so too in some way have you separated yourself from the unity of God.

Jan: Before it broke, or after, or—

I would say to you: quite some time before. That is another thing that I feel as humans you do not quite understand. Disease is not instant, it can very often happen years before the occurrence.

Jan: I've been 'soul searching' for want of a better word (yes), and I believe that I know where and when it occurred.

I would say to you: if you have meditated you would have united and closed that separateness to increase the energy within your body, which in turn will heal your physical being. You understand?

Jan: I do. I lot of the non-healing on my side probably did come from fear (yes), and I believe that that non-healing on my side may have even come from a previous lifetime—

If that is what you feel then work upon that. You have the capability to do so. But that is what self healing is. Last week there was someone here to try to help you feel the energy for healing, which I believe some of you did. Yes, it's not a simple matter, and sometimes the words to describe what you need to do, is not always easy.

Jan: No, we go back to the word 'balance' again, don't we?—mind, spirit, physical—everything in balance.

Yes, but you must learn to place all of those things once there is balance. You have to unite yourself with the energy of spirit, and that is the blending, healing light.

George: Yes, with the heat from that healing, it didn't seem to me to be like a physical heat.

No it isn't. It is a spiritual energy (yes). If you are healing properly you have to be guided by those with more knowledge, and when you have that unison that togetherness, then healing is simpler.

George: Yes, to use a physical word in attempting to describe it, it seemed to me to be like a 'misty heat' and not physical.

Yes, it need not always be a physical sensation, but there may also just be a feeling of great peace and understanding and a oneness with all things—that is a true healing. Perhaps that is a better way to describe it for you (yes), to become as one with the Great Creator, and then you see that energy builds within the human body and all things can be healed. But being human, I don't want you to think that it is as simple as that. I am more interested that you have the understanding of it, in order that at times you can help yourselves. But I would suggest to you my dear friends that diseases and illnesses do not happen within five minutes of Earth time.

Jan: Yes, the culmination of thought (yes) can be a long time, even from infancy.

Yes, and you know I have always said to you: the power of your thought is the most powerful thing you will ever possess. And I'm sure you could name instances in your lives when you feel that has happened.

Now—

Jan: It's more feeling powerless for other people that you care about, and even though you can think of positive good thoughts, which we've spoken of before and visualising for them (yes), it's not a quick fix, because like you've just said, you could actually be battling—it is really like a battle. Your thoughts could be the complete opposite of the person you're trying to help.

Yes, and if it becomes too fearful or does not feel right, then you have to leave it; you have to step back and allow that person, whoever it may be, to continue on their own pathway, because there comes a point sometimes when there could be interference and we do not wish that to happen. Each and every one of you has trodden this Earth with a pattern of life, and it is not up to other people to interfere in any way, unless they are on a destructive pathway which then calls for help from those higher beings—and that I believe is what you are speaking about.

Jan: It is—so I should really be putting my asking for help—

That the right and correct help be given (yes). Yes, that is right.

Sara: That helps to remove the anxiety within us.

Yes, because you're giving it up yes—and that applies to yourselves as well as others.

Jan: So some part of our self healing is the same—is to give up—

To give yourself, yes—to become as one. Yes, that is the easiest way to put it.

Sara: It is disturbing when loved ones are behaving in a way that seems self-destructive—it's quite disturbing, but I think probably we can only really detach.

But you must always, each of you, show by example. That is why as individuals you have to build your own strength, your own energy, your own knowledge—before you can help others.

Sara: And I think follow your own joyful pathway (yes), because if you somehow stay in your own bubble of joy, the things that bring you joy personally, that brings its own detachment (yes), which is also an example at the same time, even though you don't know if they're taking any notice (no).

Jan: It's keeping that negativity at—keeping yourself secure from other people's negativity as well that can be so destructive to—

You can protect yourselves at all times when you are in the state of meditation. Those are the times when you ask for help for others, because in the proper state of meditation you are united with the God force (yes). That is the time to ask for help.

Jan: Not when you're doing the washing up for example, like I often do!

Chuckles

No because although all thoughts are caught, there are some much more powerful than others.

Jan: Yes, it's not the right conditions to send for help.

No, but your thoughts are never ignored or wasted.

Jan: Just not quite as strong in the signal strength-wise (yes).

Sarah: When people are at the end of their lives, do sometimes spirit help them on their way by making—I'm thinking of my father actually, because he did say he felt insecure and afraid when he was dying, and he probably created the (fear) problems he had—

Yes, but they are never left alone, so do not be concerned that that fear will last for any length of time.

We would always reassure, and you should understand, because you do rescue work that they are never left alone when they are ready to come to us.

Sarah: I just wondered if spirit was helping him on his way. I think he was afraid of going (yes) and maybe the problem he had was enough to tell him now he actually wanted to go.

Yes, there would have been with your father—your mother was there, as you well know.

Sarah: I'm sure she was.

Yes, she would have assisted him.

Sarah: Ah that's kind, yes. I saw her to the left of my face (yes). There was also a hare in the garden. She liked hares and we never have hares in the garden—and I'm sure that was mum as well.

Yes, we always leave some kind of sign for those who are left behind, because it becomes a comfort to them, and after all, being human you all need to grieve for a short time—and mark my words: a short time.

Sarah: And then be happy for them that they've gone back to where they belong.

And then be happy that they are happy. And in turn, they will look after you as well whilst upon the Earth.

Sarah: That's nice to know. Thank you for confirming that mum was there, because I was pretty sure she was around.

She was there to meet him, as was another lady.

Sarah: Are you able to tell me who that was?

No, you can ask that question for yourself!

Sarah: Yes I will. Hopefully dad will come back—I've told both of them to please come back to the meetings, so hopefully they will.

Yes, he will need a little time for rest. Sometimes people are under the impression that you just pass very quickly and you're there and are happy and glowing like an angel, when in fact, some people need to rest, especially if they have had illness. But I can assure you that your father is doing fine.

Sarah: Thank you—yes. That's very nice to know, thank you very much.

Yes—now I think I will leave you my dear friends, unless there is any more urgent questions.

Sara: Could I just ask one Salumet? (Yes) A friend passed me a website recently (yes) called 'channeling Eric', about someone who took his own life, but now works with his mother and sister to bring channelings through, of various people. I just wondered if you could comment on the veracity of that. Some of it strikes me as—there is a lot of overlap but the boy, who was about 20 when he took his own life, gives the impression that his suicide was meant to happen, so that he could then conduct these channelings with his mother even though it was painful for her. That's the bit I don't accept—

No, I will stop you there. Suicide is never right.

Sara: That's what I thought—

I cannot say otherwise. What they are doing is playing God.

Sara: That's what I thought actually.

Yes, so I would say 'no'. Perhaps he feels now from the spirit world, it was meant to be, because he has found out that he can now help others, but the actual act is not acceptable.

Sara: Yes, I felt that he wasn't completely sitting in his own truth (no) yet, but he may come to it.

To him you see—we are touching on another subject—to him, it may be his truth, and it may be something that he has to work through.

Sara: Yes, I think when I read it I feel he is working through things with his mother about it.

Jan: So it's his justification for his actions (yes) at this precise moment.

Sara: Yes, it's a form of coming to their own healing I think.

Well we hear so many cries from your Earth about people taking their own lives. I have spoken on this before and it is never right to take your time before it is due.

Sara: There were a lot of channeling of spiritual masters, such as Buddha, Jesus, Sai Barber and various actors and actresses that were well known. I wasn't quite sure how true they were, but it's a difficult one to know. I haven't listened to them. I've only read the transcripts. I don't like to suggest that some of the material isn't good, because I feel there's a lot of overlap with some of the information.

Remember my dear friend—I have said this to you also in past times, that teachers or whoever comes to you from spirit, that you must be prepared to accept what they say. But if you do not, then do not accept it, because they can only give you what they know. That does not mean it is true or untrue, only that it is their way of telling you what they know.

Jan: Your first instincts are always normally the correct ones—if it doesn't sit well with you, you don't have to let it—

And it is a form of learning to distinguish between what is right and what is wrong for each individual.

You are all at different stages of development. Remember this also.

Jan: Even though we blend as one in this room, every one of us is at a totally different stage.

Pathway—yes of course.

Well, I will take my leave of you this time and see what is about to come to you. I leave you all as usual, cloaked in my love. I hear your every word, I see your every deed, and I hope my dear friends that we come together quite soon.

Thanks and fond farewells

Eileen returned to a period of several clairvoyant messages, all of which made perfect sense. And then Cho came through giving us a nudge that people were around us within the room. He also had a quick message for Paul about needing to finish writing a letter that he'd started to write earlier—audio link:

Finally there was one through Sarah called Jane, who announced that she liked to play jokes on people. She then gave us a little exercise involving a ball that we were to attempt to feel and move the ball with feet, passing it around the circle to each sitter. We tried to describe the ball in terms of size and shape. Jane said afterwards, that it wasn't quite a round ball—more like a flat balloon shape—audio link:

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always I am pleased to be with you all, my dear friends.

Sarah: pleased to have you back again Salumet—thank you.

It would seem that some upliftment is needed amongst you this time. Firstly I will welcome our visitor this time and we feel just a little nervousness from her. What I would like you all to do this evening my dear friends, is to take just a few minutes and attempt to give yourselves some healing. If you have no physical problem, then allow the healing rays to help you overall. Are you happy to do this altogether?

Enthusiastic agreement

Firstly, imagine from the tip of your heads that there is a gateway; and I would like you my dear friends, to open up this gateway and to feel the healing power of spirit entering it so. I want you to feel where it goes within your physical bodies; direct it to the area that is troubling you and feel the rest of the energy throughout your body; but focus—see it clearly, the part of your being which is in need of spiritual healing. I will sit quietly and allow you a few minutes to try to help yourselves.

We sat quietly as instructed

Feel the warmth and the upliftment. Know that those healing rays come to you directly from spirit.

Long pause

I hope my dear friends that you have felt the healing that has come to you. it is something that you can all practise, within the confines of your own homes.

Lilian: Yes thank you, that's good advice.

You can discuss it amongst yourselves when I have gone, to see what each one of you could feel. We send healing to your world and to many others. This could also become a daily task for you all, to heal your planet. Now my dear friends, are there any questions that you wish to ask me this time?

Paul: There is a question that George suggested I put to you. It's one sent by someone called Tom, who has given a question before. In a way the answer perhaps is a little bit obvious, but I'll ask the question: Tom mentioned before that he believes that the world is in fact flat. He was asked to 'go within' and he has tried to go within, but he still gets the response that it is flat. Is it possible that even when you go within, you can still get the wrong answer?

Of course; when you say 'go within', when I speak of 'going within', it is to that place which is all spirit, where human consciousness is placed to one side. What I would suggest you reply to the gentleman, is that he is not totally in the state of medication. (Salumet occasionally confuses a word)—meditation I hasten to say—not medication! And that he is not fully receiving what he needs to. There can be no proof for him at this time and whatever he receives, he is take as being 'gospel'—I believe that is your term (yes). But I can assure him that what he is receiving is not quite correct.

Paul: It is a little bit odd—there is a website still—there are a lot of people who still cling to these ideas.

Yes, and once you have formed the thought, you understand that it becomes their reality. So the more the thought is put out, the stronger it becomes that it is real.

Paul: So you begin to sort of build up (yes) a story around (yes)—and you look for evidence to support that theory.

That is correct—in the same way when you hear of mentally ill people who swear that the voices are telling them to do something, when in fact it is an illness and not spirit. There are many examples that could be given, but all I can say to this gentleman is to just continue to meditate, to go more deeply and perhaps he will find the truth (thank you). So many people can so easily be misled by the words of another or even by their own thinking.

Paul: Yes, it's quite common, even in so-called 'science'. They've got terms like 'Experimenter expectancy effect'.

Yes, yes, whatever you expect, that is what you will receive. That is why you have to be open-minded. When you come to this kind of work, you begin to regulate yourselves in a way that is pure, in a way that can only receive truth. But that is something every individual needs to work upon. And I'm sure that in this group, where you have united for such a time that you would know and feel immediately when something is not quite true—but it is an individual thing. I hope that will help him, but I fear not.

Paul: Yeah, so often it's personal proof—you can never give...

And why should people expect to be given personal proof. They are only but one small person in this Universe. Why do they feel that they should have special treatment?

Paul: Yes! That's a point.

Truth is there for all to take, but mankind has a way of twisting words, or twisting truth; and it is up to each individual, as I have said, to clarify what is the difference.

Sarah: So there are some people who could be given messages, or are there not?

Of course, if they are in the right state of being—of course there are. That is what you do here, when you have someone to speak, or someone is used, that comes from spirit and if you are an established group, we immediately come to you as soon as you sit down.

Sarah: Yes, but this Tom, he's getting these messages, but some other people who are out there that get messages, maybe there right, are they, or...

Of course! I would not say they are all wrong, but in this particular case, the information being given is wrong. But people are being drawn it perhaps from interest, perhaps just curiosity, but they are not in the correct frame, to say that this is true or this is not. Perhaps they do not have the spiritual knowledge to help them.

Sarah: A friend of mine, who lost her husband a little while ago, has twice said she's woken up and said he spoke to her. So that probably is right?

Yes, when someone goes over to our side, it is their way of reassuring loved ones that all is well. Yes, that is quite common in your world, because the love bond as you know does not disappear and it is only natural that they wish to tell those loved ones that they are well and happy and so glad to see them; it is for comfort of course. And as you know, there are many psychics and clairvoyants and mediums in your world—enough to supply your world with truth, but they are not always accepted by the majority of people.

Sarah: I think some people who were sceptical are beginning not to be quite so sceptical (yes) and there was this programme on the television about detectives who can't get an answer and they've found an answer for them—so they've been converted.

Yes, there is always different ways to be convinced. Sometimes it is a personal little something that convinces someone who has been against the truth, but you can never convince anyone. Your task whilst in this physical body is to find the truth for yourselves. Do not rely on another's words if you can help it (thank you).

Paul: Probably all of us have found truth, not by necessarily meeting someone who's explained it to us, we've just gradually had it unfolded.

Yes, you feel it from the heart, you know instantly if it sits well with you or not and I have always said to you my dear friends, if you are not happy with any words that I say, then you are not ready for them, so do not accept them; but the time will come when all truth will be available to all in this Earth world. You understand?

Sarah: We've got a little way to go before that happens.

Quite some time yes, but I do not wish you ever to be despondent, because great things can happen, people can suddenly become aware that their thinking is not perhaps the right thinking and can change. That is what we work for in my world that all of mankind be gentle and kind to his fellow man.

Paul: Yes, I think people say to me sometimes that there's a lot more people out there than we realise who are certainly believing a lot more in spiritual ideas—they're not quite open about it, so we don't quite know the numbers.

Yes, I would say to you that at this moment of time, in your world, many, many people are believers that there is more to life than what they feel—yes.

Paul: Would you say the majority?

I would not say quite the majority yet, but it is heading that way and of course there are many people who refuse to acknowledge what they know, whether it be from fear or afraid of ridicule—there are many reasons for this; but the knowledge is widespread throughout your world, not only in this country that you inhabit, but throughout the whole of the Earth; in all nations, in all religions, there is a knowing that will only grow stringer.

Sarah: My father used to say that you had one 'God', as we would call it, at the top of a cone and it didn't matter which part of the cone you were at, at the bottom, you were all looking up at the same one, and I think that was quite a good...

That's a good analogy, yes. There are many pathways as you all understand here—I am not telling you anything new or unusual, but yes, people choose their own pathways, whether it be good or bad, but ultimately it all leads to the same place. So that is why human beings must be tolerant of another's view, of another's religion, of another's way of thinking—you have to be tolerant because you are brothers, you are human beings who are trying to do the best that they can.

Paul: I had thought recently that everybody plays their part, even the ones that we feel are being cruel or aggressive or whatever—they seem to have a part to play in the overall scheme and it certainly stimulates things a lot when people behave as we might term 'badly', it creates an opportunity for others to discuss it.

Yes, it creates a union of people who want to do better, and of course, it is only when, as you would say here, 'look backwards' that you see what benefits there have been from your world—and there are always disasters in this world, whether it be caused by man or nature, it matters not. But to strive, to do the best you can, you can ask no more of yourselves. To speak to that Great Creator, to help others in need—that is the brightest of gifts; and it is something that you all can do.

Paul: A very uplifting thought!

I wish always my dear friends, to encourage you to think for yourselves, to look for the truth at all times, to see the good in mankind rather than the evil, as you call it; to always seek the balance of good and evil, and then you understand the workings of your world. But I know for a lot of people it is very difficult to see only good.

Sarah: Yes, especially at the moment, these people who have been indoctrinated and are just coming and killing random people. That's very hard for a lot of people to feel love for the murderers really.

But who needs the love the most?

Sarah: Yes exactly!

That's what you must ask yourself and although it can never be condoned, the killing of another human being, you have to feel love for all of mankind.

Sarah: I suppose you could take Jesus' words, 'Forgive them for they know not what they do.'

Well that was a pure statement. Unfortunately a lot of mankind today, they do know what they are doing, but nevertheless they still need your love and your prayers.

So, is there any more questions before I leave you this time?

Pause—Lilian had thought of a question, but couldn't quite recall it now.

I must say to you all my dear friends, I always want to smile, because so often in your daily lives I hear, 'We must ask Salumet', and when the opportunity is here,

It is silence.

Giggles

Paul: I was talking to George before we came tonight, and I forgot to say, he said if you come, give him my love—and to everyone here as well.

We will send all of our thoughts to the dear gentleman, yes (thank you).

Lilian: Yes, it's better to write down the questions.

Jan: Yes, we'll have to write them down Salumet—we definitely will (yes). They all seem so relevant and so important at the time...

Yes, well I do try to communicate with you when the thought is voiced, but unfortunately you have not reached the stage where you feel the replies.

Sarah: Actually, now that we're aware that's what you're doing—we probably don't give ourselves a chance to get the answer, so next time we have a question, we'll perhaps be a bit more conscious.

Yes, your daily lives control a lot of what you feel and think.

Agreed

Paul: There was just one thing that I was talking to someone about and that was obesity, which is a big problem. I sort of answered that I think a lot of the time, what you eat and the amount that you burn off from what you eat—you have to get the balance right, between the exercise and what you eat. I know others have other ideas as well and probably there are other factors; it's not just what you eat, but it's a growing problem in the west.

Yes, all I can say to that is, each and every person in this room or out of this room, wherever, has the innate knowledge of what is right and wrong for their bodies. So therefore I say to you, the responsibility lies with every individual. No matter how much you preach, no matter how much advice, never will some individuals accept that they are doing something that is not good for them. So you cannot say that everyone should do this or that or anything else; you have to say to them that they have to accept responsibility, not only for their bodies, but for their thinking.

Jan: When these type of epidemics happen on a grand scale, which obviously is what an epidemic is, when you were talking the last time you came, regarding time that you may not be connected with spirit, I'm wondering—I don't understand the epidemic proportions, only the fact that we have too much greed and far too much food produced, which is a different matter altogether; but is the fact that we aren't listening to our bodies, is a disconnection between ourselves and spirit (yes), even on a nutritional level?

Yes, it is a disconnection from spirit, because if you were attuned properly and you realised that obesity was a problem, you could quite easily correct it. The problem is that a lot of people don't want to and if that is their choice, then that is what you must accept.

Sarah: I think sometimes in today's lives, you know they can be very stressful situations (yes) and when you're stressed, you're actually not behaving in the way you would normally behave if you weren't stressed. So I think sometimes that can...

Today in your world the word 'stress' is recognised throughout the world. Today I would say people do not allow themselves time to think, they do not allow themselves time to make, as the lady has said, connection to spirit properly.

Jan: No, they allow those external influences of noise, pollution, everything else to overshadow (yes) the important things...

...what is important, yes. That is correct.

Jan: So I wonder if eventually we'll be teaching our young Primary School children meditation as a natural course of their development—it would be nice to think so!

Yes, it is something for the future. You are looking for the perfect human beings and unfortunately you have not reached that stone, but the striving is what is important.

Sarah: I think there is one school where they do start the day with meditation.

Yes, all people should meditate. You would find an improvement in health, in the way you conduct your lives, the way you think—so many benefits from it.

Jan: And I think meditation makes you feel valued and that must make a huge difference.

In meditation, you are becoming united with that great power which you are; and you are just one part of that.

When you return and reconnect, then you become whole, you understand?

Jan: It's almost like a rechargeable battery—that's our recharging.

You need to push the plug a little further, yes—that is a good way to put it.

Sarah: I was watching one programme also on the television and they said it depends on your gut bacteria as to what makes you fat and what doesn't. So for one person, if they ate a cream cake they wouldn't put on weight, whereas another person would.

Yes, that is all...there is also part physical conditions. If you have been born to parents, it may be that you need to experience that for a short time, but if it becomes unhealthy, then that is when you must look more deeply. There is always a reason why people do as they do.

Jan: It's just come to me as a light bulb moment, but that connection is what's missing on the epidemic of obesity (yes), because it has a perpetual motion—one person becomes obese, they talk about it—another one, another one, another one. It's almost...

Yes, it's becoming reality.

Jan: Yes, whereas they are just missing that connection. They are bombarded with medical advice and dietary advice and everything else and yet if they were just to be able to connect, and that goes for all of us including myself, the answer is there, the answer is inside.

You have an innate knowledge, which most of you do not tap into. Even people such as yourselves, who have knowledge of spirit, who put trust into spirit; but so many people do not understand this.

Jan: No, it is the answer to everything, absolutely everything.

It is and that is partly why I came to try to help people in your world today. With just a little more knowledge, people can be so different.

Sarah: And of course we all have our free will, don't we, so that's another...

...powerful part of the human being is their free will and remember that does not disappear. When you come to spirit you still have your free will.

Jan: I feel there's free will and on the flip side of that there's the trust part and I'm learning to trust spirit. Yes I have my free will, but the two working together—it's so difficult to explain—I feel it more than put it into words. It's putting your trust into that big...

You see what you are speaking about really is that there is a fear that holds you back.

Jan: Myself?

Yes.

Sarah: Is that part of the reason why her leg isn't healing?

There is a fear and a focus is upon the area that is not healing. Please do the meditation and the healing and to actually see those bones healthy.

Jan: I will, but you've just spoken about something that I wasn't trying to explain at all, so you're telling me something that I wasn't even asking—I didn't feel I was even asking.

Yes, but you need to know.

Jan: I thought I'd started to get better with the fear of moving forward.

You have my dear friend, but not quite enough. You have to be positive in your thinking, you have to know that that is what you want, not as so many human beings do, and use the word 'but', but...

Lilian: Yeah that's the difficult thing.

Yes. Do you understand what I am saying to you?

Jan: Not from where my statement was coming from, no.

What do you not understand?

Jan: My statement that I made was that we have free will (yes), but spirit—I was trying to say also, putting your trust in spirit (yes), guides that free will in the direction that it should be going. Am I correct, or am I not correct? If you go about your daily life and you're listening—what I should be doing/what I shouldn't be doing—you listen to yourself, so you're putting your trust, not only in your physical, but in spirit, to be able to tell you which way you should be going.

But you must ask spirit for health, you should not just expect. You must ask—we are here always to help those who ask, but if you do not ask, we cannot interfere in your lives. So when you speak of your free will, you should have beside that free will, the innate knowledge that spirit is there to help you. Do you understand?

Jan: Yeah, but isn't that really what I was saying?

No, you were saying that you thought that spirit would just automatically help you. That does not work and in a sense that is caused by a little fear, again of using the word, spirit are there, 'but'.

Jan: Ah I understand now, yes.

I am sorry if my words have not been clear.

Jan: No, it now makes perfect sense. It's not having the fear to have to rely on, by saying 'I will' and 'I'm going to...'

Yes, you must have the positive, because once you allow any kind of negativity, then you change the whole course.

Sarah: And also when you're talking about having an innate knowledge, so surely when you have a problem, you can't always just rely on spirit, you should be going within and getting the knowledge that you know yourself that's in you.

Yes, all of you have innate knowledge about all things and you should use that, but of course we are here to help in any way that we can and I suppose in your world, you could say that spirit was your 'back up'. Does that make sense?

Agreed

But of course you should use your innate knowledge that is why it is there—in all things, not just health or what is happening...

Sarah: Inner knowing...

Yes, you all come to Earth with this inner knowledge, but you have to tap into it.

Jan: I know exactly what you mean now, because since you've said that I'm sat here thinking, 'oh dear, I haven't necessarily got spirit all the time telling me what to do—I've got to make my own mind up! I've got to make my own way—and there comes the fear!

Yes.

Lilian: Yes, it does with all of us.

Yes, you see, as much as you know and understand, fear and negativity are so powerful in your lives.

Jan: ...and intertwined.

Yes.

Jan: It's just—the penny's just dropped!

I am pleased you have understanding now of my words.

Jan: It just takes me a little while to internally, you know? (Yes) But there again, that's that innate knowledge, that you're able to decipher and connect and the knowledge come to you. (Yes) So your discussion tonight—the experience I've just had.

Sarah: Yes, and of course the more fear you have, that fear becomes reality—so you've got a double whammy.

Paul: That's the importance of meditating regularly.

Yes, it is no good to meditate once in—I don't know, what is your expression?

Sarah: Blue moon.

Blue moon, yes.

Now my dear friends, I hope my words this time have been helpful to all of you in some way and it gives you just a little more food for thought.

Enthusiastic agreement

Sarah: Yes, we don't need any more food Salumet.

Chuckles

Yes, I take your words, yes. Now as I leave you, as always I cloak you in my love, I ask the Great Creative Force for good health and happiness throughout your daily lives and until we come together again, I say goodbye.

General thanks + farewells

Sarah then sensed that Eileen had an Angel around her and Eileen confirmed that it was Michael who had just arrived and who was often with her and that it was good that Sarah had sensed this.

Eileen then began to receive clairvoyance, mentioning Pepperoni, which linked with Dawn's son who liked it on pizza. It was sensed that he had recently been staring at a photograph of a lady and that this lady, now in spirit, was trying to help him. His problems related to past times, which was why he sometimes seemed teary/frustrated and not knowing the reason why. This lady wanted Dawn to know that she was around and trying to calm him.

Notes:

Experimenter expectancy effect: Also known as Observer expectancy effect, where the bias of the observer influences what is observed. Back in the 1960's there were numerous experiments involving worms learning mazes. There was a popular theory at the time, that if you fed the brains of these creatures to other worms, they would be able to learn the mazes quicker than worms who hadn't been fed the brains. This was replicated several times by top western universities, all getting the same results, before they finally realised they were victims of the experimenter expectancy effect. (Scientists now use methods such as the 'double blind technique' to avoid this.) Similarly Salumet tells us that our thoughts create our realities, so if we believe the world is a certain way, we may draw to us evidence that confirms this—the power of Thought again...

Note from George: Following much wonderfully dedicated work by experts at Chichester NHS, I am declared terminal, but much more comfortable, and have excellent prospect of completing the book. This has been my objective. Two of the expert team are keenly interested and urge me to complete—also the daughter of one. So in greater comfort, all bodes well.

Best Wishes,

George.

~15th August 2016~

The evening began with clairvoyance from Eileen suggesting George is in good hands, particularly with one of the nurses that pops in to see him most mornings—Christine—she also heard the name Cristobel. The feeling was of a really lovely person, kind and gentle and George is picking up the good vibes from this one. Eileen also got the name Ernest in connection to George which was George's father's name (as well as George's middle name). He wanted to say that he'd been around for a while, which made perfect sense, Paul's grandfather/George's father watching over his family from spirit realm at this time. He also had a message for Paul:

He's proud of the man you've become.

Eileen also picked up that he used to gently tap Paul on the head as a youngster, which she sensed him doing now. (Paul expressed his thanks.)

Next Eileen gave a message to Sarah probably from her mother's mother, who had a distinctive head nod, saying she needed to look after her feet.

Eileen also gave the message that someone was talking about an incident at Selby. None of us could give any meaning to that at this time.

Finally a brief message for Natalie probably, who needed to cut down on cheese. The message seemed to be: Too much dairy blocks your passages. (a few giggles at this)

There then followed a rescue though Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_08_15+rescue-Stuart.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

I'm looking for Gloria—GLORIA.

Lilian: Yes—what's your name?

My name?

Lilian: Yes, could you tell me please?

I think it's Stuart.

Lilian: Where do you think Gloria may be?

I don't know. She's just left me.

Lilian: I was just going to say, were you waiting for her? (Pause) Do you know where you are?

No.

Lilian: Right—well let's see if we can help you to find Gloria. What do you remember last?

Dinner.

Lilian: You were having dinner?

Dinner—dinner—where's Gloria? I want Gloria!

Lilian: Yes, okay we'll find her. First of all, let's get your hands better, shall we?

(It became clear that this rescue involved a person who was both physically and mentally handicapped.)

Lilian: Right—just sit quietly and all these problems that you've got will begin to go.

(There was further discussion about Gloria, who was probably his Carer. After a short time, Stuart seemed to be calmer with the healing being given.)

Lilian: How are the hands feeling?

I don't know.

Lilian: I little bit better?

That's nice!

Lilian: Good! What can you see now? Can you see a light in front of you—a nice bright light?

Light, light—I see a light.

Lilian: You should see someone in that light waiting for you.

Gloria! Gloria!

Lilian: Is it Gloria that you can see?

No.

Lilian: No, but you can see someone—someone that looks rather like an Angel—a lovely person.

Sss—star—star!

Lilian: It's someone who's going to help you.

I'm scared—I'm scared.

Lilian: You don't want to be scared. It's a lovely person waiting and they will tell you how to find Gloria. But you need to get better first don't you—really, really well?

I like you.

Lilian: Good—I like you. How old are you?

Old—old? I don't know.

Lilian: Never mind. You're not a little boy any more.

No, no.

Lilian: No—a long time ago when you were a little boy...Let's think about this person who's waiting for you. You'll begin to feel really well and a lovely warmth, you'll really want to go with that person; that's the feeling you will be getting—and that's a person that can help you.

I hear them, I hear them.

Lilian: Good. They're asking you to come along?

Yes. (Good.) I want a cup of tea!

Lilian: Perhaps they'll give you a cup of tea. (Yes.) We always want a cup of tea, don't we?

Yes, I like a cup of tea.

Lilian: Will you go with that person? I would if I were you.

Yes I will—I said I will...

Lilian: Good—yes, you're gonna be fine—better than you've ever felt before.

Yes, I'm going now.

Lilian: Yes okay, I know you're gonna be fine. So I'll say cheerio and see you again I expect.

There was then one through Sarah—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_08_15+one+thru+Sarah.mp3

Lilian: Hello. Thank you for being with us.

Hello and welcome to OUR group. We come to you as a group, because we have in the past sat as you sit today.

Lilian: How interesting.

We have known much about you, because others have told us and it was partly for the interest of us and partly because we wish you to be interested in us as OUR group. We often visit groups like yours and I have to say that we do feel very comfortable here. There are ten of us and I am standing and the others are sitting on the floor with their legs crossed. They are holding hands and this is a symbol of the contact there is between you as people in this group, who blend together and can make contact with us in the spirit world. This joining of hands together increases the energy flow that each one of you has, but it is enhanced when the hands are joined. What I would say to you is, if at any time you feel the need as a group for a little upliftment, this would be a good way of getting that goal, because the increase in energy that is created can also attract those from our world to you more readily. So this is the first message I have to bring to you. The second message is a little more simple. We wish to blend our energies with you this evening and I would ask that you not hold hands together, but that you hold your own hand. Each one from our group will come and touch your hands and this will be our gift to you of upliftment for this evening. So we will do this for you and then we will depart.

General thanks

So just put your hands together and see what you will get. Thank you for your time.

Lilian: Thank you.

Notes:

Some sitters sensed a tall Native American Indian, even though there was no accent in the voice and Sarah said that this was her impression also.

~5th September 2016~

After our usual healing prayers, starting with prayers for our dear George, one called Maureen spoke via Eileen. She seemed a bit confused at first, because she was expecting someone called Martha to be here, who she explained was very good at changing the atmosphere in rooms. She complimented us on the non-egotistical nature of our group, which blends well with spirit. Maureen was deciding she may have to leave, when Martha arrived via Sarah—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_05+Maureen\$2C+Martha+and+Cho.mp3

Martha: Yes, don't leave, don't leave, don't leave—I've come!

Maureen: At last.

Martha: Yes.

Jan: Where have you been? Why were you finding it difficult to come through?

Martha: Because this one was not ready for me.

Jan: Ah, of course—yeah.

Martha: But I'm here now.

Jan: Well, nice to have you here with us.

Martha: Yes—we do normally come together.

Maureen: But I'm quite forgiving, aren't I?

Lilian: You're like me, I do like people to be on time, but that doesn't always happen.

Maureen: Well, we are not governed by time, but in this plain you are governed by time, yes. And now she's gone quiet!

Martha: I am just getting more energy now. Yes, it is very nice here, and I don't know what my friend wishes me to do this evening, but I have a feeling she is expecting me to do the work and she is going to sit back with her feet up. Is that true?

Maureen: It is certainly not true!

Martha: Well I got that wrong, didn't I?

Maureen: And I can tell you are on the Earth plain because you are fibbing!

(Chuckle)

Martha: You may have to speak up a little because this lady is a little deaf.

It was explained that the instrument (Sarah) needed to hear as well, because Martha was using her ears—communication would still be possible without the hearing she said, but the speech would come a little more slowly.

Martha then said that she also was a little confused as to what was going to happen this evening. Cho, our gatekeeper then spoke through Eileen to explain things:

Cho: Hello!

General welcomes to Cho

Jan: You were laughing—he was laughing!

Cho: They thought that they were so good—yes—no, I know what has been happening; don't be afraid, don't be worried, it is just Cho's little joke.

Chuckles

Cho: Yes, I am still in charge, do not worry. Yes, you need to laugh you people—you need to be lighter and happier.

Lilian: Well I think there're quite a few problems with most of us I think.

Cho: I am not concerned about your problems, I am concerned about your spirits and THEY are the ones that should shine and laugh and be happy.

Paul: More so probably at these difficult times.

Cho: Yes, you are quite correct—that is what should be happening and we are only trying to uplift you all.

(Thanks expressed)

Cho: Are you still happy with me to be your doorkeeper?

(Resounding 'Yes' from nearly everyone)

Jan: No, no, no—I think you should disappear.

(Joking)

Cho: I think that is my trouble-maker—yeah, I can tell. Have you been behaving yourself?

Jan: I think so—I think I have, what do you think? I think my leg's healing—I think I've been healing my leg.

Cho: Good! That's what we have instructed you to do—yes, that is good.

Jan: So, I've been healing my leg regularly and not saying the word 'BUT'—no buts—and I feel really positive.

Cho: You continue to be that way and things will be fine.

Jan: Good—I will.

Cho: Otherwise Cho will come and—oh no I cannot say that—oh no, I am not allowed to say that!

Jan: I know what you were going to say, so it's just between you and I. (Chuckles)

Cho: Okay—you need to sort this one out.

(More chuckles from Jan)

Cho: Yes—Okay well Cho will go and let your evening continue.

General thanks and goodbyes

There followed some clairvoyance via Eileen concerned someone called Stuart. She was being 'shown' papers, money and sensed irritation. Sara and Graham were immediately able to relate this information to an Accountant friend by that name. The message was that impatience and irritation were not good and if not careful would lead to health issues. Spirit was clearly aware and Sara agreed to help in this matter, perhaps via the wife who she was friendly with.

Next, another spoke through Eileen with message for Jan that she should allow Lilian to place her hands on the leg as she has very good healing hands. Lilian and Jan both agreed that they would do this. They went on to say that sometimes when there is a bond, a human connection, healing isn't always quite as good, because of the emotional side, but sometimes it works the other way and in this case it was felt it would be good, even though there was a connection. They also gave the name Thomas for Jan to keep in mind.

Lilian then said she'd actually had the thought of putting her hand on each head, to which the one through Eileen encouraged her to do and not to doubt the thoughts that came to her, which she pointed out, as she was sitting in a group such as this, all thoughts would be coming from spirit.

Lilian then went around the group placing a healing hand on each head and most reported afterwards that they could feel the energy being given.

Next there was further clairvoyance via Eileen, concerning a relative of George's known as Grace, who was standing behind George at this time. Ann (George's wife in spirit) was also around presenting small yellow flowers to Sara. Eileen's clairvoyance made perfect sense mentioning a favourite jacket and a handbag, which had recently been rediscovered. For a joke, Sara had passed it onto her daughter, expecting her to dislike it, and was rather surprised when she immediately liked this old-fashioned handbag, which produced laughter as Sara retold the story.

Finally, one spoke through Sarah—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_05+queens+handbag+sarah.mp3

Lilian: Have you been listening to the noise we're making?

Yes I was and I was amused, particularly because I used to like handbags as well. Yes, my uncle used to make handbags and so I was always allowed one each year, of my choice. So as you can imagine, I had quite a collection of bags, but I have to say also that they were well used and by the end of the year, yes I was ready for a new one—yes.

Lilian: Can you remember the year?

I can remember that Queen Victoria was on the throne. It was a time when people used to dress up a lot more than they do today. Sometimes when I look around I think 'Oh dear'.

Chuckles

Lilian: They don't wear very much, some of them.

No, and it is not very smart I would say—no hats, no gloves and very few nice handbags.

Lilian: But the Queen we have now, she's always got a handbag with her.

Yes I have noticed that and I have also had a peep inside the bag and there is not very much in there. I think you will find she has just a lipstick in there and sometimes a little mirror, but she does not even take a comb with her. She does have a nice linen handkerchief in there as well, but that is about all she has. Yes, she does not need to take her purse with her.

Chuckles

Sara: Or keys, mobile phone...

Natalie: I.D....

Paul: Credit card...

Sara: Bag of almonds...in my case...

Jan: I once read that she does carry a few little treats for the Corgis in her handbag. Did you see those?

I did not on this occasion, but then when she is dressed in her finery, she does not have the Corgis with her, so it would be pointless to put them in those bags.

Jan: Yeah, when she's more off duty she probably carries the treats for the dogs.

...In her pockets, yes. Anyway, I just came by because I was interested in the handbags, but I think I will return and see what nice things I can find where I come from.

General thanks and farewells

~12th September 2016~ SALUMET

Audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_12+salumet.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As I come to you this time, I am aware of a mixture of emotions. We welcome our dear friend who has not been with us for some time, but we are always pleased to see her.

Jo: Thank you.

Spirit has been close to you for quite a long time and we know that you are aware of spirit and all that we can do to help. My friend, once connection is made with spirit, it will never disappear, even if you wish it to. So I say to you, be rid of any doubts or fears which you may have had. I will say only that there are those who stand behind you at all times, and of course, you may not always be aware of them. As for all our regular friends, we know when life is harsh for you all, and we do our utmost to lift the spirit; and yes, you are correct when you say much help is given to you.

This evening, when I have finished speaking to you, there will be by each one of you, a loved one from spirit, who will be here to give you that upliftment which you seek. It may always be one that you recognise, but I assure you that you are well known to them.

I will say about the dear one (George), our dear friend who is missing this time, but indeed he is not missing, he is with us for some time during your earthly day—a time, when the body is rested and the spirit too is preparing for that journey. So I say to you, allow our dear friend to be the judge of what is best for him, at this particular time. I can reassure you that he is surrounded by many loved ones—yes, and I know there are many here who would wish him a safe and lovely journey when he is ready. I can only say to you, my dear friends that this one has helped you all in some way, during your times together and for this we in spirit are eternally grateful to him. After all, each one of you play your part in allowing me, and those with me, to come to speak to you. therefore my dear friends, for this time I will take any questions that you may have and then I will allow you all to feel the love and the spiritual energy of those who will be by your sides. Do you have any questions this time?

Jo: I would like to ask, are the Angels close by?

Yes, the Angels are always close by; as soon as you call them they are by your side.

Jo: Thank you.

Yes, and it may be that some of you will have your helpers and your Angels with you, but that is for you to sense and to feel; but trust in your Angelic friends, they are always close by to take heed of whatever is needed for you.

Jo: Thank you.

Paul: Thank you for that message about George, I know it will really help the family.

I have a question about a book I read recently. It was a channelling from quite a few years ago by Charles Simpson, a medium, who had a Doctor Lascelles, come through on many occasions I think (a group that were called The Seekers) and I was fascinated by one thing he said about the dawn chorus and the birds, when they're all singing together, he said it was like all the vibrations—the songs, actually helped the Earth itself to awaken, like setting up a chain reaction of vibrations.

Yes, I would like to tell you my dear friend that not only is the dawn chorus from the birds of your world, they are accompanied by the Angelic Beings in our world, which, if only you could be aware, you would see the strength and energy and how the Earth can be transmuted from darkness to light.

Paul: I thought the Angels must have something to do with it.

Yes, it is a whole choir of not only the physical birds and energies of the world, but also from our world; they are united, they are in unison with the vibration of sound.

Paul: Mm, because we've talked a bit about sound before, and I thought that's a wonderful working example (yes) of how these—it's a beautiful sound the dawn chorus...

And I would say to you that sometimes when people are ready to return home to us, they will often say they hear music; that is part of the changes that are made within your world by those of us in Spirit. It is a sound, an energy that is more beautiful than you could be aware of here. But yes, that dawn chorus, as it has been named, is a most beautiful happening within your world and within ours.

Lilian: So that's why the early morning, the very early morning is really quite beautiful?

It is, is it not?

Jo: Before everybody gets busy.

Yes, there is a quietness—in that still time, there is a quietness of Spirit when most people have been resting and the Spirit has been allowed to be free in order to rejuvenate the body. So of course, it is a most beautiful time, as also at the end of your days.

Paul: That's right, they do sing at the end as well, don't they.

Yes—is that helpful to you?

Lilian: That's lovely.

Paul: Yes, it made me wonder if there must be a benefit—I'm not always up at the dawn chorus, but there must be a benefit to be present and hear it, for us humans.

Yes, you will have the benefit even if you are unaware of it; it is for all to benefit from it. But yes, if you have that sense of knowing, you will of course be much more aware of it.

Paul: I just wondered—maybe this wouldn't help, because as you say it's the Angels who we can't hear as such, but it wouldn't help to record it and play it sometimes?

I would say that is a very good thing to do, because in listening back, you sometimes catch the vibration which is not audible to the ear sometimes, but in the replaying of it, these tunes or notes as you say, would be available to you. The more you listen, the more you capture.

Paul: Mm, because I also thought—it says in the book that certain parts of the world where there are no birds, so there's no dawn chorus, they're often very barren places (yes), so I thought well maybe you could play some of these dawn choruses...

You smile my dear friend, but that is not a bad idea. Yes, the lack of beautiful spiritual energy in these places is quite tangible sometimes, and it would be wonderful for thoughts to be given to those pieces of land which are barren, although I have to say, nowhere is completely barren. They are not always neglected, because Spirit would never allow that to happen.

Paul: Would it improve even maybe the fertility of the soil of the Earth?

Yes, along with the thought of the humans, who would wish to cultivate in some way. The thought has to be powerful enough, you understand?

Paul: I see, yes—maybe that could help some of the desert areas. (yes) Thank you, that's very interesting. Of course a lot of these places have been manmade, with the neglect of mankind in thinking about the whole Spirit of the place. They just see the land as something to be disregarded and disrespected. So mankind has some answers to give.

Paul: Well, I'll cherish even more the sound of those birds in the morning.

Yes. Become a part of it; you can become part of it, if you allow your meditation to take you with it. But of course you have to forgo your bed!

Chuckles

I hope that has helped you just a little.

Paul: It has, it has, thank you, yes.

Are there any more questions please?

Lilian: When a woman is expecting a baby and you think the baby is safe and cosy inside the lady. If there's an upset and the mother is terribly upset about something that's happened in the family or whatever, does this in any way affect the baby? Can the baby pick up the feelings of the mother?

Of course—the baby and the mother are living as one and any emotional turmoil will show itself in the baby. They are united by a cord of life, and yes, in the same way as a child has connection with the mother at birth, so too is that connection with the baby within the womb. I am sure there are many who could tell you stories of how the baby can become agitated or active, whenever there is some disquiet in the woman's life.

Lilian: Right, so when they're born, they would have forgotten that, would they?

It may remain, it would depend on the spirit—it may remain with them or it may be forgotten, there is no actual definitive answer to that one—yes.

Lilian: I see, thank you.

Pause

So, I can see you are all so weary of questions.

Smiles

Lilian: Any questions Sarah?

Sarah: No I'm afraid I missed some of that. I would just like to say—it's not really a question, but that dad came through—I saw him put his hand out to me. So, both mum and dad have been through, so to thank you.

Yes, you are fortunate that they both wanted to come. Not always do people wish to make communication so soon after their passing. People are always a little wary when they are told this and will often say, 'But we were so close'. It would depend on what spirit feels, whether they truly believe that communication even is possible. So, you know, I would say thank you to both your parents, who have come to you so soon.

Sarah: Yes, I was grateful. I did say to them both before they died, to come back and say 'hello'—so they have done that, yes—I was very happy to see they both.

Yes. If only people would develop that side of them, where they would not need mediums, or people of that kind, where they could make communication of their own, because my dear friends, you all have that capability.

Now, as I take my leave of you this time, I say thank you for your love and your patience, which allows me to come to you at certain times. I will leave you with our dear lady, who will take control after you have sat quietly; and please to let each other know what you feel and who is standing by your shoulder, because I can reassure you that they will give you upliftment and much love this time. So my dear friends, until we come together once more, I leave you cloaked as always within my love, with all the help that we can give to you, and to please unite yourselves each and every day, with that Great Energy.

General thanks

Sarah: We're grateful for you coming Salumet—it's no hardship to wait for you to come Salumet.

Paul: We'll try and have more questions for you, because it's so lovely to listen to the answers.

Lilian: That's where we miss George, isn't it—he had so many...

We then tried to tune into those around us as instructed earlier by Salumet. Eileen said she had two Angels with her either side—Michael and Raphael. Raphael was telling Eileen that she asked too many times for people and that she should trust him more. Salumet has said in the past that we only need to ask once in our healing thoughts and prayers and that asking many times can be negative...it takes only one loving thought, if it is genuine and sent with love, for it to be dealt with. There is no need for the repetition of thought...

If you have sent one genuine loving thought, it is received. If you continue to ask for help over and over and over, do you not see that you have created a doubt? (18/01/2016)

Other sitters mentioned deceased friends and relatives. Sarah got an impression from her grandmother that some of her thinking wasn't right whilst on the Earth and she's glad Sarah is not thinking in that way and that she is helping her to think in the right ways. Paul felt a similar connection with his auntie Sue, who got angry at worldly events at times, when it would have helped her to step back a little more with forgiveness. Paul said he had a similar issue sometimes.

Finally Eileen had some clairvoyance for Natalie concerning a trip to India, with possible connection to name Marikka. Jo also got clairvoyance regarding a small man in a flat cap, who was familiar to Sarah from the past. There was also the name Percy and the number 12. Eileen was also given the message from her mother to check on her brother, who says he is okay, but in fact is not. Eileen also had a message for Jo from her mother that her husband's knee needed checking out. She also said Jo took after her dad with her love of the countryside. She said Jo had managed her life very well and she was proud.

Finally there was one through Sarah:

I have come because you have all missed those who are not just beside and behind you, but there are several in front of you as well. The ones in front of you are those who have more recently passed into spirit. They are not quite so strong as those who are standing to the side and behind you, but I wish to make you aware of them, so that you can try and connect—and that it my message to you.

Thanks

Finally Eileen said that Michael who was still by her side would protect everyone on their way home tonight, which seemed a lovely note to finish on.

Notes:

The Dawn Chorus: According to Wikipedia, "The dawn chorus occurs when birds sing at the start of a new day. In temperate countries this is most noticeable in spring when the birds are either defending a breeding territory, trying to attract a mate, or calling in the flock."

Wikipedia is a work in progress of course and in time the vibrational awakening of the Earth may perhaps one day even be considered the main purpose of the dawn chorus as outlined in 'A Pilgrimage with the Animals.'—A Seekers Publication

~19th September 2016~

This was a short evening which began with prayers as usual. There was then a rescue via Eileen involving an eleven year old who was caught in a fire at home—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_19-rescue+11+year+old+fire.mp3

~26th September 2016~

After our usual prayers, a gentle one spoke through Eileen. It seemed particularly apt that this evening's theme should be beauty in spirit. Perhaps this was an example of orchestrated love from spirit realm, helping to remind us of the wonderful journey our dear George was now taking, having passed a few days earlier—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_26+flowers+sing+and+dance.mp3

Good evening.

Paul: Good evening.

Lilian: Can you tell us your name?

Miriam.

Lilian: Hello Miriam—I think you've been before.

I'm looking around—it's very quiet.

Agreed

Lilian: There's only 5 of us. We're just a very small group tonight. (Yes) It's quite unusual to be so small.

Sarah: We normally keep quiet, so that it gives people a chance to come through—they don't feel they're interrupting us.

Yes. I like quietness—I've always liked quietness.

Lilian: Yes, I can agree with you there. Sometimes I like to be with people, but yeah, to be in the garden and quiet is very nice.

Do you speak to the garden people?

Lilian: I do forget—In fact I'm glad you've said that.

Why do you forget?

Lilian: Why indeed! I haven't got a very good memory. Though I do thank the flowers—things like that—maybe that... especially when they've come to the end of their life and you know, thank them for the flowers that have been...

Yes; you've seen nothing yet!

Lilian: No.

There is a lot to see and flowers are some of the things that a lot of people are taken aback by; not only their beauty, but their scent—yes.

Lilian: Can you pick up their thoughts as well?

They dance! They sing! So yes, you should be able to know what is being said. It is almost—I believe you would say a choir!

Lilian: Amazing!

Have you ever stopped in a garden and wondered why? Or just enjoyed the peace? But when you hear the flowers sing, it stops you in your tracks.

Paul: That's a lovely reminder for us to spend more time in our gardens.

Yes and the flowers are never separated in our world—never apart—always mixed.

Mark: Like a meadow...

That is good yes. Meadows in your world have their own significant song. Did you know that?

Mark: No—they have a much more sort of...

...Basic sound.

Mark: Yes, because they'll allowed to form more naturally without so much human interference.

...interference yes.

Lilian: I've just had a thought, can they communicate with bees, flies and so on?

Everything that is living has the ability to communicate, yes. That is why when you walk in a beautiful garden your spirits rise and you feel so good. So imagine when you come over here, can you imagine how greater that joy is; to see the colours, the flowers, the singing, the swaying—everything...

Paul: And even in a winter garden in this country there are—some things remain flowering and seem to be alive still I guess—well, they're always alive, but they're still in flower often.

Sarah: There are winter flowering plants, are there?

Paul: That's right.

The Great Creator has thought of everything. Yes of course, there is a different kind of beauty in your world in the winter time; but yes, you have all of those flowers too—it is a sight to behold and one that leaves people in awe.

Paul: We just need to have a little more time and to open ourselves a little more to these things, don't we? You do, but you are doing well if you tend your gardens well here; you are at the beginning of a beautiful journey.

Sarah: I remember the one who comes through known as Salumet, he told us we should actually really look at the plants, look at the flowers, look inside them and just see the beauty in them—and it's absolutely true!

Yes, and speak to them, yes, and listen—listen.

Sarah: Yes, I hadn't thought about the listening part of it. (Yes) When you say they're singing, what are they actually doing? Are they singing?

I just say singing—it is a vibration, a higher vibration than you would be aware of here; and the different vibrations together is the most beautiful thing you will encounter.

Paul: I remember when I was walking in a lot of nature on my own in New Zealand. I could sometimes clearly tune into some kind of—it was like a choir of Angels, you could say, singing. I wondered if it was coming from the river, but I couldn't say for sure where it was coming from, but I was walking along this river. There was some kind of wonderful orchestra of music and sound.

Yes and you were privileged to hear that in this world. That is why when you encounter beautiful quiet areas in your world that you should take the time and appreciate what they have to offer you, because it is indeed beautiful.

Sarah: All things are wonderful really; I was actually watching a programme on the telly about the singing sands (yes) and they get so hot they start to move and then it creates this noise, but actually you can hear that, you don't have to be in trance to be able to hear it.

Yes, it's wonderful, isn't it?

Agreed

And the whole of your Nature on this planet is wonderful.

Agreed

And I'm afraid it's little appreciated by many.

Sarah: Mankind has done it's best to destroy it!

Yes, but there are those who work towards re-educating man; that is going on even now as I speak.

Paul: It feels like a bit of a battle sometimes, between the big money corporations and those who are trying to protect the wildlife, but I hope we're winning—I hope we're gradually persuading people.

Yes, good people such as yourselves, with insight can only help those of us from spirit who wish to correct all of these wrongs. We try to influence as much as we can.

Sarah: You're doing a very good job, because are beginning to talk a lot more about it now (yes) and things like the ivory trade—there is no point in killing these wonderful animals just for their tusks (no) and the general public is becoming much more for the animal and against the people who are doing the trade.

Yes, it takes people some time to become aware of what is wrong and what is right. It does not mean they are bad people, only misinformed or misguided; but education is a wonderful thing.

Sarah: And also when people are very poor and struggling in life, you can appreciate that some of the people do this because they just need something to live on—they haven't got anything.

Yes, they need just to be guided away from that form of self-survival. But yes of course, it is understandable why it has happened in the past, but once people become more educated there is not excuse—there is a limit to making excuses for people who do damage to other, not only human beings, but your animals. They are loved dearly in this world.

Yes, so it has been most pleasant to have a few words with you and I can assure you there is much—whenever your time may be, you will be amazed.

Paul: Mm you've inspired us and I'm sure you'll inspire others who listen and read these words.

Yes.

Sarah: Paul and Mark's father (George) has just passed into spirit and he learned a lot from this group, from the ones that came through and he was a keen gardener, so I'm sure he's thoroughly enjoying all the beauty...

There is so much beauty, not only plants, everything that you have on Earth is just multiplied. You cannot really imagine it until you see it, but I just wanted you to know that the peace and the quietness also benefits the wildlife—the plants and all of those things.

So I am going to say goodbye to you all and perhaps we can have another talk another time.

Enthusiastic agreement + thanks

Yes, and I'm sure the others who are usually here will be told of the beauty that I have described.

Agreed

Lilian: Thank you again.

There then followed another through Sarah—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/2016_09_26+sarah+naother+in+beauty.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome.

I am finding this quite difficult to breathe in this atmosphere.

(Lilian approached and placed a healing hand on Sarah's back—this lasted a minute or so, though the pause has been edited from recording)

Lilian: Is it getting better?

Yes, thank you. I was wondering whether I should come to visit or not and when I decided I would, I began to feel that tightness.

Lilian: Yeah, the heaviness of being back again.

But I have become a little more used to it now. Thank you for your help.

I was listening to you speaking and I was interested to hear the chatter again of human earthly beings—how different in spirit our chatter is, because we do not have the burden of your earthly life to contend with. I was drawn also to you, by the one who was telling you how beautiful everything is in spirit, and indeed it is; but there are some beautiful things on the earthly plane as well.

Paul: Yes, we're blessed with some beautiful flowers and animals and Nature things.

I too was here, but I used to live in the forests and at that time we did not have the pollution that you have today and when I returned the air did not feel clean.

Mark: Yes, in the forest it would have been much nicer air, I'd imagine.

It was a harder time, but life was a lot purer, everything was purer; and then when you return to spirit, you realise that what you thought was pure on Earth, was not as pure as when you return. So I have not come for any reason other than I was drawn here, but I would like to say to you and reiterate what the other one said: Life in spirit is so wonderful and the beauty is outstanding. So when your time comes to return, you will indeed feel overwhelmed by the beauty, but in a short time you will remember that this is how it used to be.

Acknowledgement and light chuckles

Paul: And is it still the case as here that beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so perhaps the more aware you are, the more beauty you see in spirit as well?

I think to an extent it is true, but not as true as on the Earth plane. When you return to spirit, you cannot help but be aware of everything that is around you. So I think really there is no hiding from it, not that you would want to do so. But I think here, you maybe have to look a little harder and then you see—that is a little different.

Paul: That makes sense.

Yes. Well I have accomplished my mission; I have returned and I was so pleased to come to you as a group, but now I will return and thank you for allowing me to have this experience.

General thanks

Paul: Yes, it's been a beautiful evening!

Notes:

Developing the Senses: In 22nd August 1994 Salumet said:

You need to redevelop all of your senses—your eyes, your hearing, your smell, your taste, your touch. There is so much you need to relearn and it would take such a short time of your day to do that.

Les: Right. Could I ask you what you would recommend? You'll probably say meditation and quiet, which I understand. Is there anything else you could recommend to guide us into the best way to develop these lost things within us?

You, of course, could not regain all so quickly. You need to do it a stage at a time. Let me take the eyes for looking. How often do you really look, stop and look? Let me take for example, a flower. Can you really describe a flower to me? Can you close your eyes, can you smell it, can you feel it? If I was going to bring a flower into this room, were you blindfolded, if you had gloves on your fingers, if your nostrils were blocked, that would be the state of your senses. You could not tell me what the flower was like. That flower is a living energy, as you too are. Take a flower from the garden. Sit, hold it, there goes the development of the touch. Look at it with your eyes, study it. Look at it's shape, it's form, it's colour. Feel that living energy from it. Then you begin to develop.

George: So George passed very peacefully at home where he wanted to be and we had a most joyous, celebratory and at times wonderfully light-hearted funeral in the lovely natural burial and sustainability centre in East Meon. It's comforting to know that George is now with his beloved wife Ann, who passed a few years earlier and is now enjoying those wonderful, beautiful and awesome gardens in that amazing world we call spirit realm and Salumet calls our true Home.

Thank you so much wonderful George—you've worked tirelessly for spirit. Enjoy your beautiful journey home. So much love goes with you and when the time is ripe, it would be lovely to hear from you at the group sometime in the morrow.

In the meantime, we will do our best to help finish George's book and I'm sure he'll guide us in the right direction with that. And of course, all our beautiful individual journeys continue and the work of this group will continue, towards Light, Love and Truth...

~10th October 2016~ SALUMET

The evening began with a brief visit from Salumet—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5029432/2016_10_10+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is good to join with you this time.

Sarah: It's good to have you back here too Salumet.

I wish to say to all of you that our dear friend, and we are aware of his loss to you, he has arrived home safely. And having the inquisitive mind that he had, he is now beginning to seek for some answers.

Gentle chuckles

This I know would not be news for you, but I wish you to know that there are so many on our side of life who will keep him 'engaged', shall we say, for some time. He has expressed a desire to meet with the other gentleman who started this group.

Of course, if that is his desire, then that will be so. And of course to meet with family and friends again is just wonderful to him. He may not come to you directly himself, but he may use his voice through another for a short time; so be aware of this. And our dear friend who is sitting next to me, (Ben) we have been aware of all that has happened in his life also and we wish (him) to know that any friend from this circle is always gladly received when they return home to us; (Ben's mother Sally also passed recently) the connection becomes much stronger.

Yes, I have one more thing to tell you that someone in our dear friend George's family said to him in a quiet moment, would he please return quickly to us. I wish only to tell you that he was aware of all things said to him and he will be pleased to return when ready—also with his dear lady. (Ann)

Paul: Wonderful!

So my dear friends, I say to you, be a little patient, become aware of any presence around you, or anything that he may try to do to attract attention—and the same with our dear friend here. (Ben)

Family always finds it difficult when there is a passing, but as you know, we gather around to uplift and to support you and all of you at some time have encountered bereavement in your world, whether it be a loved one or a friend or even a stranger.

We shall continue as always. We will always welcome those who wish to come to these meetings, if they are looking for the Truth. And as some go, then some will come; I have told you this previously that you ARE like a circle of life—as one leaves one enters into the group.

So my dear friends, I do not intend to stay this time for long, but next time I hope to bring you some more information that will make you stop and think. So I take my leave, and know always that you are surrounded by much love.

General thanks

George's bio-degradable coffin we had joked looked a bit like a parcel and guests at the funeral wrote messages of love on the cardboard surface and it was even addressed to Heaven, so we joked after that the package had arrived OK. We discussed how great it was that George was already asking questions and seemed up and running so quickly.

Eileen then began to get clairvoyance regarding a friend of Ben's late mum called Jerry, who had a middle name that he was not at all fond of. It seemed Sally was trying to nudge this man, though he seemed unaware of her at this time.

Eileen then turned to Jan with the names Valerie and Alice, concerning a daughter of a great grand parent, (perhaps one of 12) who'd passed very young.

Eileen then felt a connection to Sarah, who had been sorting through her late father's old coats. Sarah was in the process of moving house and her father had a little advice for her that she didn't need to keep so many shoes and also that she needed to keep her chin up.

Jan also felt her dad come close and saw his train set, and the message that there wasn't as much as she thought to sort out.

Next Cho spoke via Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5029433/2016_10_10+Cho.mp3

Hello.

All: Hi Cho

I told you, you need reflective evening.

Lilian: Yeah, very quiet, at times

I said I'd be quiet if I come.

Lilian: You join us in quietness.

Paul: Yeah, a lot's being happening, so it's good to reflect a bit

Oh, I not like reflect-ive, I like noise.

Chuckles

Paul: Ah yeah, I think we've probably done enough reflecting anyway, we can get a bit noisy now I think.

Yes, you need pick up happy—happy people.

Paul: Yeah, we've got so much to be happy about really.

Yes you have!

Sarah: I think sometimes when you're being reflecting it doesn't necessarily mean to say you're being unhappy.

No, I not say that lady.

Chuckles

You trouble as well as my friend.

Sarah: Yeah, big trouble.

Jan: I'm quiet tonight.

Very quiet tonight.

Jan: I know. Did you, well, you'll know anyway, the good news about my leg—it's started to heal! I've been healing it myself!

Good.

Jan: Isn't that brilliant?

What about me?

Jan: What about you?

I told you I'd be with you.

Jan: You did—I see what you mean! You know half of it's healed.

You must not stop, you must keep on.

Jan: I am, I'm going to.

And also let the lady help you. (Lilian)

Jan: Yes, we did healing tonight.

Good. She got very good healing hands I'm told.

Jan: Yes, we'll carry on with that.

Sarah: Thank you Cho for helping her.

Jan: But I had to do the work myself didn't I as well?

Yes you did.

Jan: That is what I realise, that's what my friend Serena said tonight that it was just the realisation that I couldn't leave it the chance

You see, you becoming very wise. You soon will be too clever for me.

Jan: I don't think so

I don't think so either!

Chuckles

Jan: You know far more than we do

No—Cho only joke with you; I like coming here cause you laugh at my jokes.

Chuckles

You know people think we not joke, just because we live in another place...how silly.

Jan: Don't they laugh at your jokes on the other side of life then?

Not always.

Jan: No?

Sara: It's like here then, isn't it?

Some people not like my jokes—other people laugh.

Sarah: Some people just don't like jokes, not necessarily yours, they just don't like jokes.

But it's not a problem because they don't have to come to see me, if they don't like my jokes.

Sara: That's right.

Now it's all gone quiet.

Jan: I feel the energy in the room, sort of—even though you're here, it's quite heavy.

Sara: It's peaceful but it is sort of—it's almost as if we're being held in it.

Jan: Yeah. Are there lots of people here tonight with us Cho?

Not as many as usual no. because you needed reflective time on your own.

Jan: Yeah. I definitely feel the atmosphere tonight is different.

Yes, yes. That is good when you feel the difference in the energies; you should all try to develop that awareness. Anyway, now made me serious, and I'm going.

Sara: Ho dear! We can't have that.

Jan: No, we can't have you going serious—just laugh.

I'll see who I can let come to see you; there's a little queue—not much.

General thanks and farewells

Sarah: Are you still there Cho?

I still here.

Sarah: I was watching a program on the telly about a very ancient civilisation in Peru, a little before the Incas, and a little while ago, somebody came through me and spoke in a different tongue, and it was a group of people who had been taken over by the Incas, and I keep hearing this language in my head. I forget how long ago it was that one who came through me—I'm just wondering if that actually was the place where these people came from? I suppose you wouldn't know that would you?

I not know that now, but I can find for you, and let you know another time.

Sarah: That would be very kind.

But it sounds like it probably is correct.

Sarah: Yes, oh thank you.

It not surprising people want to have their words heard—I find out for you, and let you know.

Sarah: Yes, thank you. This group of people they built their houses were round, they didn't use so much material and also protected them against earthquake, but I didn't think, when I saw them on the telly that didn't strike me, but I can hear this language going around in my head.

You are probably correct.

Sarah: Thank you. Anyway, it would be very kind of you if you could find something.

I will go and find out for you from someone who understands and knows. You know when people say when you come to spirit you know everything? That's not true, we have to learn the same as anyone else. So don't let anyone say you suddenly become all wise. Anyway I must go now ciao.

All: Ciao Cho.

Our discussion continued on the Ancient builders of the houses Sarah referred to, which seemed to draw the one through Sarah—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5029434/2016_10_10+Round+houses-Sarah.mp3

I am happy to be with you today.

Lilian: We're happy to have you.

I am being brought to you because we are able to give you information about these dwellings. They were built with help from the spirit world. It would have been most difficult to have been able to build the way they did without help from spirit.

Lilian: It was certainly very high ground that was for sure.

Those people who lived in those dwellings were advanced beings who had returned to this Earth planet on many occasions. They have since returned to a spirit and will most probably never return again to this Earth planet. They were able to finish their earthly lives on this last visit. They were known to each other from many previous lives, and this was their final visit.

Paul: It must have been a very special gathering of advanced beings then on the Earth.

They were aware of much more than you people at this time on planet Earth. They are helping with those who are trying to advance themselves in spirit and that is now their mission. There will be some more information that mankind will find about these people—but not too much.

Paul: Did they have a specific name these people?

They were known as "koltich-ka".

Paul: Thank you.

And, this one who asked about the language, she is correct; but, this language was also spoken in other parts, not just in that one particular dwelling place, but it was also taken over and the language has disappeared.

Mark: Is there is another language that it was closer to that's still around?

That language has completely disappeared and it was quite different from any other that was spoken in that region; and there is now just a message from the chief of that dwelling and he wishes to let you know that we on this planet here—I say 'we' because at this moment I am here, but, he wishes to let you know that what you do find out about that people and the buildings, will be of great use to you in this modern time.

Paul: Ah thank you, we will do our best to collate all the information we can.

It will be your scientists who will be giving out this information.

Paul: Ah right.

And now my message has been delivered, I will returned.

General thanks

There then followed one called Betty through Eileen who took us on a short meditative journey—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5029435/2016_10_10+short+med+via+Eileen.mp3

Notes:

On 1st August 2011 Sarah did a rather amazing channelling of a pre-Incan language no longer spoken on Earth, which Sarah refers to in the transcript—audio link:

~17th October 2016~ SALUMET

During our usual prayers, we often include those in group needing healing and this time Lilian was in our prayers for her arthritis. We laughed chuckled at the thought of inventing a new word: De-arthritisification, which someone commented would be an excellent scrabble word.

Salumet began shortly after—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5029437/2016_10_17+salumet.mp3

Lilian: I thought it might be you coming Salumet. You're very welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always we welcome your guests this time. (It was only Laura's 2nd meeting and Sabine's 1st)

Several 'thank you's

I am always happy to see so many of you at one time. I would like to tell you this time my dear friends of something that will happen in your world in quite few years time. There will be coming to your Earth planet many children, who come to try to sustain peace without (throughout) all of your countries. These are special spiritual beings taking the form of children, making their mark in your world. Within the next 4 years of your time, the first of these children will be born into your Earth. Take note my dear friends of these words.

Lilian: This would be in most of our countries?

Throughout the world these children will appear. They will become known for their peace and their skills of being able to talk and calm. Let there be no mistake that this is a great gift from spirit, but I wanted all of you, my dear friends, to know of this knowledge now.

Thanks

I hope also that it gives you hope for your futures, because although many of us are telling you that things are becoming better, in your everyday living it must feel that that is not so. So I hope, my dear friends, that this little piece of information will raise your spirits and give you a little knowledge for your futures.

Thanks

Jan: Are these children here to help the children of the millennium that you also spoke of?

No, this is completely—this is something—this is a special gift from spirit.

Ben: Was this always planned or was this emergency help?

Nothing is an emergency.

Laughter

I can tell my dear friend is one of the newer members—yes. All is planned, there are no mistakes. So you must accept that the time will be right for this to happen.

Serena: Will they have any identifying features or mannerisms or marks?

Only in the look in their eyes; it will be obvious to all that these children as they grow have special, special gifts for all mankind.

Jan: Are they mostly reincarnated souls?

They are spirits of longevity in the spirit world, who have agreed to return...

Jan: Contracted?

Yes, to help humanity.

Jan: Many hundreds of our years ago, or more recently than that?

There are variations, depending on which part of your world is chosen for them. So I cannot give you a specific detail there.

Natalie: Will they all cross paths with each other and work together?

They will be working together, but not necessarily have the knowledge whilst they are here. To begin with, they will be just as small children, but the light will shine from them strongly.

Jan: Where their free will comes into play, might there only be a small number that eventually follow their true path while they're here, or will we see many?

These are spirits who know their pathway and I would say that none will fail at this task.

Jan: That's wonderful. Has this happened in our history many times?

Not in this way—we have always tried to help as you know, we always tried to encourage.

Ben: Why now?

Because the time is right for your Earth. You must always remember that it is not only you, but other worlds, other planets that are evolving at all times.

Sara: Yes, so they are enlightened souls?

They are indeed—only enlightened souls could take upon themselves such tasks.

Paul: Would some of them be finding jobs in governments, or places like that of power?

That will all be decided already, and yes, of course because parliaments and people of power have such a big say in your world; so it would seem to me that it is the correct placement for some.

Mark: Will they be speaking openly about their spiritual quest from an early age?

Yes, that will be one of the divine—(slight interruption as Eileen coughs) as they grow, they know what their tasks must be.

Jan: Can you say if any of us here will have any immediate contact with one of these children?

No, no.

Lilian: I was wondering if the teachers that teach these children when they're young, would they notice something special—some of the teachers?

I would say that as these children grow, it will become obvious to everyone around them that this is a special child, and as they continue to grow, it becomes ever more evident—yes.

Serena: How are the parents chosen?

They will choose their own parents, as always, but of course they know which ones to choose already. This is a plan for your Earth, so there are higher energies involved. Those who become the parents of these children will indeed feel as if they have been blessed, and that is of course very true.

Lilian: So the parents need to be...

The parents will not have information beforehand that they are special children, but they will soon realise.

Mark: They won't be 'terrible twos' then?

Chuckles

Well, they will be normal children also, so you cannot expect them to be completely prefect.

Laughter

They will come to the Earth as small children with all the problems that small children bring.

Mark: Yeah, I was joking a bit.

Yes, I am beginning to understand jokes.

Chuckles

Mark: Yes, the 'terrible twos', they're not being terrible at all really, are they? They're just being...
...themselves, yes.

Serena: Is this the same as Jesus then?

Sorry?

Serena: Would this be the same as Jesus born as a normal child?

Just a normal child, yes—Jesus, as you say, was a different story, he was there for a different time and was indeed a very good medium.

Are there any other questions?

Graham: Is this an appropriate question to ask, how many of these children there will be?

There will be in every country throughout your world one of these children.

Sara: How wonderful.

Graham: That is a true gift, yes.

Yes. It has to be so, because when you think of not only numbers, but the differences in languages, cultures, all of those things, there would have to be one child for each country, or maybe even more.

Sara: It does give hope, doesn't it?

Graham: It does yes—it sounds like a huge...

Undertaking, yes, but I wish you my dear friends to take comfort from this.

Graham: It does give enormous comfort.

Sara: It does.

Paul: I would imagine that even—when you say the first one in the next 4 years, even as they begin to incarnate, though they won't obviously be adults for a long time, it may give the Earth a boost, just having their presence.

Yes, because their energy in itself will be an upliftment to begin with; but as you say, children take time to grow and their beauty and energies will take time to show itself.

Graham: Is this knowledge being widely spread across the Earth at the moment through groups like this one?

There will be a few, but not many. I wanted you to know, because I cannot give enough thanks for the dedication and the love that you send to others; and the dedication of coming together, I feel most humbled by it, and felt that it would be a gift for you also to know in advance.

Agreement + thanks

Graham: It's so exciting—gosh!

So, if you have no questions, I will take my leave.

Lilian: I think you've given us something to think about, thank you very much.

Yes. I give my blessings to the young lady who is new to us this time.

Sabine: Thank you.

Laura: Thank you.

She has much love energy and we thank her for that.

So my dear friends, with that little piece of information, I will take my leave; I leave you clothed in my love and know that whenever you need the help on this Earth that to please call upon us. We try to help you in many ways.

Now, until next time.

General thanks

Next, Jan began to get clairvoyance from our dear friend now in spirit:

Jan: I'm going to feel really silly, but I've got to do this: (Jan made an emphatic gesture with hands slapping knees and then palms up high)

She then said I've got to say:

"Hey guys, no batteries!"

(Giggles)

(We were amused, but didn't understand the reference) Eileen tried to clarify:

Eileen: Are you looking for some batteries?

Jan: No, I don't—come on, you know! No batteries!

Mark: No batteries for your ears...George!

(Delighted chuckles as we understood this referred to hearing aids that George wore due to quite severe hearing loss.)

Jan then seemed to be having a dialogue with George, who seemed to be in exuberant mood. He said that he didn't want to talk yet (speak via a medium), but being a keen scrabble player, he couldn't resist mentioning Lilian's triple word score. (de-arthritis—as mentioned during our prayers).

(More laughter)

At this point Eileen became aware of Ann's presence and commented that Ann was quietly/gently shaking her head in background at the spectacle.

Then, probably referring to his easy transition to spirit, Jan added:

Jan: He's saying he didn't need a boarding pass and reached there in record time!

Eileen: Ann's still here and says he's still got a lot to learn and she's still shaking her head patiently.

Jan: But I've got rid of the batteries.

(More chuckles)

At this point we thought they'd both withdrawn, but George had other ideas and Jan found herself blowing kisses to each sitter as a goodbye gesture. Jan also said that George was pleased that we had picked his apples and were sharing them around. (4 large bags were sitting in Eileen's kitchen to be distributed after the meeting).

Jan felt that in fact George was still there and reluctant to leave. The lamp at this point which we kept on very dimly during meetings, began flashing and we understood that George was having fun. Eileen, who was still with Ann, mentioned that George used to have nicknames and Mark confirmed one was the 'Toad', which seemed fitting this evening with George's exuberance, though he hadn't gone by this nickname for many years as age had perhaps mellowed some of these more zestful traits. There was further discussion about George's mannerisms and traits, which Jan had picked up on so well, even though some of these related more to earlier times, rather than as we'd known him in recent years.

Jan said that George wanted us to guess when he was coming next time, by these mannerisms, such as the slapping of the knees.

We were delighted and amazed at how soon George was able to return and how youthful and fun he was again.

Finally there was a rescue via Eileen. This was a deaf and mute person, so there wasn't much dialogue, but nevertheless Lilian was able to give the help that was needed to allow this one to move forward.

Notes:

Children bringing peace: There are about 196 countries on the Earth at this time, which means at least this many children arriving to help unite this beautiful Earth in PEACE.

George: A wooden 'toad' figurine on our dear George's mantelpiece, given to him many years ago.

George is truly home now and seems so much more alive than he's been for a long, long time.

~7th November 2016~ SALUMET

We began with healing prayers, which led to a discussion about the rise in food intolerances and Diabetes.

Salumet picked up on our thoughts—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5030288/07_11_2016+sal.mp3

Paul: Hello.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always I am pleased to be with you.

Paul: It's lovely to have you back.

It always brings interest to us when we hear of your questions amongst yourselves. Firstly let me say welcome to the dear one who has not been here for some time.

Martin: Thank you

Because my dear friends you have been asking questions, perhaps this would be an appropriate time to ask them out loud now.

Paul: Good.

Mark: Yes, one of the questions was: There are so many digestive related problems around at this time and we were thinking that some of them could be to do with psychological intolerance, some of them to do with unnatural processing of food; but the worrying thing is there seem to be so many, more and more incidences occurring. I don't know if there is anything you would like to say about that?

Of course—to consider, to ponder is good for you, but it is a complex issue with not just one answer for all. As human beings, you came to this life knowing that it was an imperfect planet. So it should not be surprising to you that the complexity of life will in some way affect the physical being. Some people are much better at living the human life than others. And so it brings me to say that if you associate the human body with the conditions that affect it, you can see that there is a sequence of events, that there is an explanation for many of the things that happen to the human body. We have spoken some long time past about some of these problems. I believe we spoke at one time about people who have repetitive back problems. If you compare it to what is happening within the mind or how that person is living, you will see that very often there is a rigidity, a rigidity of thought, a rigidity of thinking, which then would show itself in that painful back. Can you see that this is the possibility of many things?

Mark: Yes, I can.

You were already speaking of the sweetness of life, but there is also the other side of lack of sweetness, but too much sweetness. This is relevant in your world today, especially amongst your younger generation. It is important that you maintain a loving and peaceful diet, and by that, I do not say what you would commonly expect that you are told what is good for you. I say to you, my dear friends, use your instinct for what is good for you. What is good for one may not be very good for another. And so often we hear: 'But we are all made the same'—so why are there differences? That difference my dear friends, is within the THOUGHT BAND—the THINKING. That would be your first step of creating perfect health. I have said this on many occasions, in many different ways, but it is true.

Mark: Thank you.

Does this make sense to you?

Mark: It does, yes, perfectly—thank you.

So, you are correct in your thinking and trying to do what is best for the body, but first and foremost you must do what is best for the SPIRIT, and thinking belongs to the SPIRIT. I have been saying this often too, but as human beings, you want very quick answers.

Agreed

Yes, if only you would take the time to not allow these things to happen in the first place, your lives would be so much better. And also in your world today, the pace of your living, the lack of quietness in both the body and the mind also has consequences. You call it Karma, you call it many names, but, the basis of this is, there is a restlessness and the lack of love within your own bodies; therefore the body then creates dis-ease, that word again my dear friends—'DIS-EASE'. So I say to you, think carefully about this in your quiet moments, listen to the body and it will repay you in GOOD HEALTH.

Mark: Thank you for those wise words.

It hope it give you all something to think about.

Agreed

Paul: Yes, I remember once you said, in the future, doctors will be known as 'Tutors of the mind'. (Yes) It illustrates beautifully, I think, that the emphasis is mostly on the thinking.

That is why it is imperative for you as adult human beings to be teaching these things to your next generations. You can take command of your body, but unfortunately it is usually left for too long or too many years, when actually the body can be helped quite quickly, if the mind is in the right place.

Paul: Yes, we've got to get the—as you say, mostly the lifestyles and the lives we live are just so busy, (Yes) it's difficult to find the space and the time to live what we call 'good' lives.

But my dear friend, why would you not make the time?

Paul: I agree, I agree, this needs to be put at the top...

It has to be part of your daily living—it has to be that part of your life which comes naturally to you. You should not have to think about giving those thoughts and that body time to recuperate, it should come naturally to you.

Paul: It is more important than food really.

Yes, yes. So when I come to you next time, I will ask that each of you tell me what you have discovered about yourselves in the meantime.

Agreement and thanks

Now, are there any more questions this time?

Pause

Again my friends, you go quiet!

Laughs

Paul: On the subject of health then, I don't know if this would be an appropriate time, but the friend Pia from Helsinki in Iceland, (meant to say Finland) I mentioned in the past who's still struggling with arthritis, (Yes) and you mentioned a little bit, and you said that you could possibly say a little more later. I don't know if there are any more words for her at this time?

She struggles—yes. Again, I would say there is a simple explanation: that the mind is not quite in the right place. With people with arthritis, very often, there is a regret of some kind, a regret which twists the body in pain. So again you see where the connection with the mind comes into play.

Paul: Yes, yes.

So I would say only that this person continues to strengthen their thoughts and their thinking and, there are many remedies used by your doctors today, which can help to alleviate this problem. Do not be afraid to accept their help; after all, they are doctors from spirit too. You understand?

Agreed

So I would say, continue, and have ABSOLUTE BELIEF that it can be helped.

Paul: Right, yes—much like Jan and her leg, I think.

Yes, she is an example of how it can change even when doctors give diagnoses of 'nothing can be done'.

Agreed

There is always something that can be done; to what extent, there is no one answer.

Paul: Absolute belief then, in...

You have to have that strength of thought, yes.

Paul: Thank you.

Sara: And sometimes an affirmation might help to repeat. (Yes) I did say that to Graham when he was ill, to say every day: "I know that I can be healed" and to repeat the thought, because...

Ah, can I stop you there?

Sara: Yes.

That is one of the negative thoughts, "I can be"—that is almost like saying "can I be". So you say: "I AM healthy".

Sara: I am healthy, yes, yes--even better.

Did you see the difference in the words?

Sara: Yes, I think we used to say: "I know I'm getting better" everyday—they were the words, but "I am healthy", is better.

Yes, "I am WHOLE", because it is not just the body, it is the mind; so, "I am whole in body, mind and spirit", that is the better way to convey the message; and the more you say those words, the more you feel the strength in the body—the workings of the body, because it is a marvellous contraption that you have been gifted with—I know you would agree with that. So, my dear friends think upon these words and put them to some action.

Agreement and thanks

The best doctor for each of you is yourselves.

Graham: When I wasn't very well a few years ago, somebody said to me, when I went for some healing, that you should say thank you for the condition that you have, (Yes) because it is giving you an opportunity for growth (Yes) and that I found very strongly resonated at the time. And, when I took those words in, and really reflected on them, I found that I did start to improve.

The recognition is so good for you, because it means that you are beginning to understand yourself.

Graham: Yes

You see? Yes.

Graham: I enjoyed saying 'thank you' for the condition, because it did open new doors and my life went in different directions as well, so I used to call it my 'gracious condition'.

Yes, you have done well, in your condition—not quite perfect, but you did do very well, yes, so it shows again what is possible; and then you become like an example to other people, you become that light which becomes even brighter. So you see, in becoming well, you are affecting others.

Graham: It makes other people believe that it's possible.

Yes, and it is that knowledge, that strength of thought, which will continue to help each and every one of you. There are so many questions, so many contradictions, that I understand why you all become confused about illness. But although there is no one answer to anyone's illness, I would say that that one person is the best physician for them. So remember that also.

Paul: Are there exceptions where, presumably you've agreed to—some people have ongoing illnesses throughout their whole lives.

Some have agreed to come back with illness, misshapen bodies—all the things that people say: 'Why would you choose to do that?' Those who choose to do that are teachers in their own right. They come to this Earth to show others. And how often do you see these incapacitated people with smiles on their faces?

Agreed

It is because the spirit is shining from within.

Mark: Yes, we once had an England football manager who got into a lot of trouble, because he was open—he said that we shouldn't pity these people for their condition and he was completely misconstrued, which was rather sad; but our media has a tendency to take things wrongly and broadcast things in a bad way; but Glen Hoddle was very much badly treated over his talking about this issue.

That is why again, my dear friends, a thank you to that Great Creator is necessary, because you do not know what you will encounter in your human lives and to have that connection with the Great Creator is something wonderful. So those people who come—and I answer the gentleman's question: Yes, they come for a purpose. And they are the ones that will never receive healing whilst they are here, because that would be interference in what they have come to do.

Paul: But for the rest of us, to achieve 'full health'—I expect most of us have got a few little what we might call 'niggles' and things that are wrong with us—but to achieve full health is certainly well within our capabilities... (Your capabilities) ...and it would be advantageous on our spiritual paths to get to our peak, I suppose.

Yes. If only I could get you to understand that everyday thoughts of your thinking—because that is the beginning of good health—if only you would treat that as you do making your breakfast in the morning, or your dinner in the evening, because that comes naturally to all of you, because of hunger; so why not FEED YOUR THOUGHTS? Why not make it a regular blessing, to give thanks and to strengthen your own thinking?

Paul: Right—because as I said those words, those 'niggles' are quite possibly...they ARE relating to our negative thoughts.

Yes. You can always find an answer for some discomfort in the body; and sometimes of course, those problems have taken a great hold on the body. That is why you have some illnesses which are so strong and are quite difficult to fight, unless you know what you are doing. That is why I say: Teach your children well. But we do all we can from spirit, as you know. (Yes) If the thought goes out for help, then that is what we will give.

Sara: I think having enough peace of mind—enough peace every day—that's important, because then you make the choices that are going to make you happier, because if the spirit's not happy, you're going to be sad and that's going to bring down your health, so...

Well, you must remember that the spirit inhabits the body; so, would you put a young puppy in a cage which was twisted and dirty and gnarled? No you would not. So why, why do you neglect your thinking and your body? It is a lot for you to think of and I look forward, when next time I come, for you to all have some insight into your own, own selves.

Paul: Yes, we should maybe write down if anything comes to us. I'm sure it'll be very valuable to look into that.

Because also, being human beings, do you see yourselves as others see you?

Sara: No you don't.

No, that is something again to think of—to think about.

Now, I think I will take my leave this time; but know that your thoughts for all those mentioned this evening have been received and we will do all that we can to help them.

General thanks

So, as always, I will leave you cloaked in my love—another very strong and powerful word: LOVE.

Agreed

So until we come together once again, I will say goodbye.

Goodbyes and thanks

As Eileen returned, she began to receive clairvoyance:

Firstly the name 'Ester' was given, who was known to Graham. Information was given by 'Ronald' in spirit, a brother of Ester, who was concerned for her health.

Next, the name Sandra was given and Eileen became aware of discomfort within the mouth. Sara knew exactly the Sandra Eileen was referring to, who indeed was having problems with her mouth. Eileen said that one called Edward (in spirit) was saying she's not having the right treatment. Sara agreed she would try to get Sandra to explore other medical opinions/treatments.

Eileen then was being shown a book about Space and this turned out to be a message for Sara and Graham's son who is called George, like his grandfather. It seemed this young man may one day be drawn in the direction of something relating to Space exploration. Eileen felt this guidance was being given by an uncle who resembled young George, both in looks and personality.

Finally, Eileen felt that we should all be aware of somebody around us. Most sitters then voiced who they felt were with them. Some 'saw' someone, others 'felt' them, and Sabine 'smelt' her late father's perfume. Mark also mentioned he'd clearly felt a tap on the shoulder whilst in bed recently. Eileen suggested we repeat this exercise at future meetings in order to become more aware of those around us.

Notes:

Exercise: Salumet states: ...if you associate the human body with the conditions that affect it, you can see that there is a sequence of events.

We have been asked to report what we have discovered next time. As Salumet says: ...the body can be helped quite quickly, if the mind is in the right place.

All 'dis-ease' is curable (absolute belief) and we should explore the connections between our thoughts and our bodies. Our bodies, which house our spirit, need to be nurtured/loved to achieve perfect health, and good thinking is the most important key to good health and needs to be at the heart of our DAILY living: 'Feed your Thoughts'... 'I AM healthy'—'I AM whole'—'I am whole in body, mind and spirit'. (Bless yourself!)

Graham's illness: Graham suffered from Dystonia, which was diagnosed at the time as 'incurable'. However, by going within, as mentioned earlier, he was gradually able to heal himself/be his own physician...

Previous transcripts—Doctors as 'Tutors of the mind'—28th Sept. 2009:

When it is recognised—the power of the mind—then, a lot of hospital work, as you call it, will be unnecessary. Doctors will become 'tutors of the mind'. Is that not a wonderful thought?

Enthusiastic sounds/wonderment.

That would be doctoring in its highest degree (yes). But of course, that will not happen overnight of course (mm). As always on this Earth, time as you know it passes much more slowly. It takes much time for all human beings to be of one mind.

Arthritis + food allergies—1st Feb. 2010:

When you speak of arthritis, it is an inflammation within the body—an inflammation—what is inflammation, but an anger? Can you see that? It is an anger that has come from somewhere.

Lilian: Yes, I wondered if it was worrying about the family at times and not going forward.

Yes, that could be! Because when it is affecting your joints, it is stopping you from movement, that free flow of movement. There is something burning within you that has not been recognised.

Lilian: If I can sort them out, I'll be okay!

You then have the tools with which to work.

Sarah: If, as in Lilian's case, it's in her knees and ankles, it's stopping her from—

Moving forward—

Sarah: Can it also be that you have the problem within you, and, if you abuse the joint in any way, um—

Yes, that is the cause-and-effect aspect of which I speak (yes). Or if you ply the human body with food that it does not accept or like, then there will be an effect from that. You have to look at all aspects of your living.

Sarah: So, in the case of Emily, who has 'Food Intolerances', that is also something that is not right within her body that is causing the food allergies then?

Yes, it is a dis-ease of her spirit and her human form. Yes, each one has to go within.

Lilian: It is very difficult to get it right.

But, if you so desire and your desire is strong enough, you can free the body. You can free your body from all pain, but, I do not say to you, my dear friends, that this is easy, because, as I have already mentioned, it is not something that happens to you overnight.

Sarah: So, the longer it takes to arrive, the longer it will take to go!

Not necessarily. No!

Sarah: Ah right!

George: And we're considering ourselves as individuals when we do this, and I think this would suggest we are looking at ourselves as individuals and the way we are fitting into society.

Yes! Yes, as in all disease, you will have people who will recover and those who do not. That is the strength of the inner knowledge, and that comes from your spirit. Spirit and the human form should be equally in balance (yes).

Sarah: So, those who do not recover—for some of them, is it because that is what they need in this lifetime?

It may well be for some, but not for all. You cannot generalise too much. You cannot place everything on what you might call 'fate'. That is wrong. It is up to each and every individual in your Earthly world—(each) has a responsibility to take care of the housing of the spirit. That should be the most important aspect of your lives.

~21st November 2016~

After healing prayers, Eileen spoke about a friend of Lilian's who had been asked to help a lady with what appeared to be a ghost in her house. The details were a little sketchy, but it seemed that there was a ghost of a lady in the house, which had been accepted for many years, but now the lady wanted it to be gone. However the friend of Lilian's who had been asked to deal with it, had been unsuccessful and had phoned Lilian for advice.

We sat quietly and some sitters began to get clairvoyance. Sarah saw some Teasel (a tall prickly plant) Eileen fetched a notepad and began to make notes, which could later be checked with Lilian's friend. Eileen was shown a lady in a white mop-hat and felt the word 'Teasel' had been the old name of the house, before alterations. She sensed that the lady heard piano or some form of music in the house and there was the name Marie.

Paul saw a pale whitish elephant figure and then Sarah was seeing only one half of a fireplace—possibly due to house alterations. Eileen felt that the lady visits the church and wasn't resident as such, but comes and goes and seemed quite happy. Sarah then saw something like a bakery, but on a small scale, with perhaps rolls and scones, possibly connecting with the fireplace she saw earlier. Eileen was aware of the date in the 1800's and a small child, though wasn't sure how it connected. Paul then saw some sugar mice sweets, perhaps relating to the small bakery.

After some time, it was clear someone was with Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5722370/2016_11_21+Nahashiwa.mp3

Paul: You're very welcome to speak if you wish to.

Thank you. I have been waiting for you to speak.

Paul: Oh, sorry we were a bit slow getting to you.

It is Nahashiwah.

Happy responses

Sarah: Nice to have you back.

Yes. I felt it necessary to come, because when you open up to energies you are unaware of, it is most important that you surround yourself in a bubble of protection. So I have come and done that for you.

Sarah: That's very kind, thank you.

Always remember this please.

Sarah: Yes, I had forgotten.

Yes, because it is almost like being an open door.

Sarah: Yes we have been told that before, but like many things we tend to forget them.

Yes. Just call on your protectors and they will be there with you.

Sarah: Thank you—thank you for looking after us.

You are all important to us, to continue to do the work that you do and as you know, this instrument I have been with for quite a long time of earthly years.

Sarah: Yes that's right.

That is all I wished to say.

Sarah: Thank you. Well we might have forgotten that we should have surrounded ourselves in protection, but we didn't forget you Natashiwah.

Thank you, thank you.

Paul: Yeah, thank you for coming and reminding us.

Eileen said after that she always wants to cry when she comes.

We discussed how opening up to this is quite different to the rescue work we sometimes do as a group, where spirit guides bring the person to us and are always overseeing and in charge. Here, we need to exercise our free will and ask for protection as this is a slightly different area of work and we need to exercise caution when opening ourselves in this way.

Eileen then suggested that Sara take us on a meditative journey—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5722364/2016_11_21+Sara+journey++powder+blue.mp3

I'm being shown some bright blue colour and a paler blue too and I feel I'm being told that we need to sink in some peace. So I think the colour is there so we can drink this feeling into our being.

So take deep breaths and breathe in that nice blue—as you breathe take the blue colour into you.

Pause

And feel it flood your whole being from top to toe.

Pause

And this is something quite simple that we can do whenever we feel a little bit anxious or a bit agitated by something.

You can try to remember the blue colour and drink it in—breathe deeply. And it will slow you down and it will help your mind to become calm again. I feel that the colour is changing to a sort of powder blue colour. Maybe the 2 colours have blended together—the sort of stronger one and the paler one. So it's a nice powdery blue.

And still continue to breathe that in.

Breathe out through your mouth.

Pause

You should be beginning to feel extremely calm now—very tranquil.

Pause

And going more deeply into that peace and you almost become that powder blue colour.

Pause

It's a bit like when you stand in front of the sea and you almost become the sea—and it becomes you.

Pause

You can remember this any time that you need it. If you need help in resisting becoming drawn into something which is not very peaceful, try to remember this and breathe deeply.

Pause

Try to remember this feeling of calm.

Pause

Some people might find it easier to remember it as a jumper that you put on—a pale blue jumper of calm.

Pause

Thank you

~28th November 2016~ SALUMET

We discussed last week's meeting and Lilian's friend was able to confirm some of the impressions we had received, but the important thing was that the atmosphere in the 'haunted' house in question was reported much improved. Much like with rescue work, the details are unimportant; what is important is that help is given. We then sent out healing prayers before Salumet arrived—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5789835/2016_11_28+sal+edited.mp3

Lilian: Nice to be together again.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I delayed speaking because we have been listening to your talk. I can confirm for you, my dear friends, that the child spoken about is indeed one of our helpers on Earth. (Ben had told us about the nursing home where his wife works, where those who are within a few days of passing often talk about a little boy visiting them)

Jan: That's lovely.

So it is always good for you all to discuss these things, because with the knowledge that you already have, it begins to make more sense for you. I have come this time, as I have said, to let you all speak; I hope that you have remembered well, those of you that were here, when we were discussing healing and healing oneself. Do you remember? (On 07/11/16, Salumet asked us to explore the connection between our thoughts and our bodies in relation to self-healing)

Affirmed

Yes, it will be most interesting for us to listen to each one of you; and I want you, my dear friends, to be very truthful and to speak about those deep inner feelings and knowledge. Before we commence that, do you have any questions for me?

Graham: I was reading as book a while ago now, where the author was saying that our Higher Self is in fact our Guardian Angel. I might be wrong, but I didn't think that was the case, I thought that the Guardian Angel was an angelic being quite separate from our Higher Self. I was wondering if you could confirm that please?

Yes, there is some confusion about this. Your Higher Self is indeed the quiet voice within. Your Guardian Angel is an angelic being who has always been with you throughout all of your lives. So I say to you there is a separateness and a wholeness about this. (yes) You cannot separate the two, but in general terms the Higher Self is just that inner voice.

Graham: Yes that's what I thought you were going to say—I thought there was some confusion by the author over that,

(Yes) because I know that not everything we read is the truth, but people do write down their own truth...

Truth comes from within the person who is speaking or writing and they can only discuss what they know. (Yes) It does not mean that it is untrue, only different.

Graham: Yes—thank you.

(There followed a bit of whispering while Sarah asked Paul for clarification about the 'healing oneself' discussion Salumet had given previously.)

I do like it when you whisper.

Chuckles—Lilian then suggested Paul begin:

Paul: Yeah, I could start if you like, I did start to make a few little notes. One thing I thought about the 'Disease'—I've got quite bad circulation—cold feet and things, and I gave it some thought about why that was manifesting and I felt possibly that could connect with in the past, but also today, I think I don't circulate too much with people. And circulating—I tend to have—perhaps I find sort of groups of people and I don't perhaps circulate as much as I could. I don't communicate quite—like some people just naturally go to lots of different people. I tend to be a little bit—not circulating... so I just wondered if there's a connection with my poor circulation and my slight lack of circulating with different people. I also have—we talked a bit about food allergies and I have certain ones I think, certain allergies that sort of block me up, block up my nose and I feel irritated and blocked and I felt that was kind of connecting as well, feeling, communication-wise, being a bit blocked up; not with certain people I know well, but with people I don't know well, the communication isn't perhaps there.

And I wondered—just sometimes I feel a slight sort of almost an ache in my heart area just occasionally and I wondered if that was like a regret or something—literally like a heartache at not having the communication or the circulation. I'd love to be 'at one' if you like and in great harmony with the whole world—animals and ALL people, but my human part of me isn't quite there yet. I have good love connections with certain people close to me, but the love connection just isn't there with strangers or even some neighbours and people. And so, I've got that to work on—I need to love everyone and everything.

But in finding this you have already begun to free yourself. Circulation is the life force within you, which is pushing you forward at all times, and when you speak of blockages that is when the problems occur. But you have done well, my dear friend, to have reached those conclusions.

Paul: Thank you, thank you...

I do hope that you take it forward and work upon yourself, in as much as you gain more knowledge of how you react to this 'dis-ease'.

Paul: So, would you say then that it is partly (yes) a case of embracing all things and all people—loving everyone?

The circulation, when it flows freely, creates good health—of course. That is the spiritual aspect of the human condition. You understand?

Paul: Umm...

Not quite.

Paul: Not quite—so my poor circulation, how does that relate to the thought process?

You would have to free your mind, you have to trust completely that you can allow your circulation to flow freely throughout the human body.

Paul: Right, ah—sounds simple!...

I told you last time I believe, it is not simple. As human beings you find it almost too easy to block yourselves from what keeps you in good health. But in recognising the problems, you have taken the first step forward. So, I will say to you well done.

Paul: OK, thank you.

You must use your Mind to clear the dis-ease.

Paul: Right, so I will work on that circulation.

You cannot expect, my dear friends, to pray as you say, to those of us in spirit and to expect a miracle without some input from you.

Lilian: That makes sense.

You are in 'charge' shall we say, of the human body. After all it does house your spirit and it is your responsibility to treat it in the very best way that you can.

Lilian: So, would you say the biggest problem with human beings is their thoughts?

Of course! It is the thoughts—even if you accept that or not, if you have perfect thinking you will have the perfect body. Until such time you need to return home, and then your journey will be peaceful and quiet, without illness and all the many conditions that afflict this world.

Pause

Who else will speak?

Sarah: I wasn't here actually when you asked that question of us. I did know about it, but I'm afraid I haven't worked on it. But listening to Paul, it's quite extraordinary listening to him, because all the symptoms that Paul has, are exactly the same as I get and I'm actually quite happy with my own company. I do probably mix a bit more than Paul does, I don't know, just with my activities that I do, but certainly I'm quite happy being by myself. So, it was quite extraordinary—everything he said was exactly the same as I get as well.

But sometimes you hold back on the emotional stuff in life. You speak many words, but sometimes you hold back; and when we speak of circulation, it is ever free flowing. It should never be interrupted if you are to remain healthy. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, so I too have to work on that.

All of you, everyone within this room. That is why last time I said to you about teaching your young children. Teach them from a young age, help them to speak about inner feelings, not just the everyday trivial matters, but deep, deep searching of how they feel.

Sarah: The other thing that has been very much—I don't know if this is quite relevant, but I've been thinking a lot about it; I bought this house that I began to feel that maybe I'd made a mistake and then I thought to myself, no, I haven't made a mistake—what this house has given me has made me search within myself and my thinking has become actually quite different since I've been in there, because it's made me change, it's made me think differently. So, I think actually it has been the right move. Maybe it perhaps isn't quite the right place, but the actual move has made me change and think in a more positive way about lots of things, so...

Of course, not all as you term 'mistakes' are bad, because as you have said, you have grown a little strength from these experiences. It is the recognition of what you do that is important. You understand?

Sarah: Yes I do, yes.

But you must all work on your thinking.

Sarah: Thank you.

Pause

You are in no hurry to speak with me.

Chuckles

Graham: About 3-4 years ago, I noticed that my knees were beginning to give me a bit of jip; on staircases and when I was cycling and when I went skiing on the dry slope I found it was affecting my ability to ski. And I remembered your words about thinking and all of that and so I tried to analyse my thinking and trying to identify where my strongest thoughts were—perhaps negative thoughts—and it had been in fact all that was going on in the Middle East and all the outrages that were going on at the time and I was allowing my thinking to become very negative and I think that that was manifesting, that sort of critical thinking, was actually manifesting in my knees. And I remembered your words and I started trying to work on myself, trying to transmute those negative thoughts and then, as you've said, you should obviously pray for the victims, but perhaps you should equally if not more importantly, pray for the perpetrators of the outrages, because they are struggling and in their own way they're doing the best they can and in their own way perhaps believe that they are creating an ideal world in their parameters of whatever. So, when I started catching myself getting negative—and I'm not perfect and I'm not perfect now, but every time I try to remember that if I ever allow my thinking to go negative, I've tried to stop that and my knees have, over the last year, almost completely recovered (yes) and I just wondered if there was a parallel there?

Yes, again it is a sense of moving forward; (yes) legs, knees, ankles, feet—all of those are indications of movement. So, when you have negative thoughts, the disease or dis-ease of the body shows itself in the way that it recognises. So, of course when you free the mind, to let go of these negative thoughts, then that is when healing suddenly becomes possible, when the mind is in the right place. (yes) So, I say to you, my dear friend, continue in this way and you must be always your own successful physician.

Graham: Yes! I think there was a wonderful book, which was called 'The healing effects of illness', (yes), or words like that, which I thought was rather splendid in a way, because your illnesses do show where your problems are.

Yes, it is whether you deal with the problems or you allow them to become stronger, and that is what happens in your world, where illness takes over, becomes stronger, because the negativity has not been properly dealt with. You feed your bodies, you feed your cars, why is it that you do not feed your minds? (yes) It should be a natural occurrence for you, but it is not in this human world.

Graham: I think it was wonderful when you said, when you feel negatively towards a region of the world, you are actually adding to the negativity of the world (yes) and that was a big motivation to me to stop doing that as well—chuckles

Yes, you must know Love, you must have compassion, but you must also know yourselves. (yes)

Ben: Then can I just ask about George, who developed cancer, (yes) and I would think of anyone in the group, George was advanced and evolved in his spiritualism, and yet he still...

But you do not know that my dear friend. You are passing a judgement. You are living one lifetime now; you do not see the full picture of your own spirituality until you return home. Then you will understand there are many people who have lived lives, which you would term probably 'cruel', which I term a little 'misguided', but because you have lived one good lifetime, and who is to know what is within another's heart and mind? You cannot. So—but I understand why you say these things—in this time he was a good man; but he also went through times when there was negative thinking.

Sarah: In this lifetime?

In his lifetime, yes, when he was a young man. But you cannot pass judgement, you can only do what you want to do. That is why you have all been given freewill, to use it as you must, and not always wisely as you know.

Sara: Did the period as a youth, did it affect him later on? Was it stored in his body?

Yes, you must not always feel that illness comes upon you in a flash. It is a slow eating...

Jan: ...process

Thank you, yes.

Jan then began, but Salumet wished to return to Ben:

Ben: I think I was just surprised maybe with his illness, and obviously, I passed a judgement on him without realising. (yes)

Sarah: But his wife as well, I mean in all the time I knew her she seemed to be a very good woman and yet she had cancer as well.

Ben: Yeah, I wonder how much of cancer...

Cancer, let me tell you my dear friends now, cancer stems from some form of regret. Whatever that regret may be, has quite a hold upon the physical being. And as I have said, it does not happen in a second. All illness grows; that is why it is important for you to know yourselves very well, to be able to change the thought patterns, as our dear gentleman has just spoken about. You have to deal with them as they occur.

Ben: With cancer, would some of that be environmental impact as well?

Yes, there are many conditions. Once the body becomes a little less immune then many things take place, yes. But initially it is a thought process which has happened in all illnesses.

Ben: So, in the case of young babies or young children born with leukaemia or some form of cancer, that might be a hangover from a previous life?

That would have been their choice. If they are born into this life with a condition, it is something that comes with them, or something they need to experience for a very short time, yes.

Sara: So, we can heal our bodies in the present of wrong thinking in the past? (Yes!) We have the power to do this now.

You can transmute, as the gentleman has said, you can transmute the energy of thinking, from negative to positive. How many illnesses in your world that people become well from—how do you suppose that has happened? Does there not have to be a reason? Yes.

Sarah: Then there are these epidemics too—Ebola and all those things.

Yes, there will always be diseases in your world, but if you have a strong, clear, open mind and a clear body with immunity that is so strong that none of these viruses or whatever you call them, can invade.

Jan: That is why some people contracted Ebola and others don't.

Yes. Those are the questions you need to ask of yourselves.

Mark: I've got a bit of arthritis in my elbow, which I guess is a rigidity...

Yes, it is a form of rigidity

Mark: ...rigid thoughts. (yes)

Jan: I read only today that pain in the elbow can often be a sign of anger from somewhere.

Yes, yes—anger also can show itself within the joints of the body. It is almost like in those areas it is a clenching of the mind. Try to always compare what you feel—the body and the mind, the differences and the changes; that is what I am trying to convey to you all.

Mark: I was trying to think about it, and somebody, very recently, told me an exercise I can do. That's a physical treatment, but I wonder if that can actually help?

Jan: You'd be better concentrating on your mind...

Mark: Yeah, I know that too, but I was thinking in a way maybe it can be a double—two pronged?

Of course, you can exercise as much as you like, but if the mind has not been worked upon as well, there will be no healing. I have told you many years ago that until the soul is touched the body will not heal.

Sarah: So, if the mind isn't clear, that's when, for example, just ordinary wear and tear of the body, if your mind was thinking—was right, you wouldn't get the wear and tear of the body

Exactly. Once you have allowed it to come into the body, then it becomes a little more difficult for you.

We understand that in spirit, and we know you live in stressful times on this Earth, we know there are many things that happen, that make you feel angry, hurt, etc. But, you have to rise above all of that if you are to remain strong.

Sarah: I was also thinking about Lilian's heart (yes)—that's the same thing then Lilian: The heart was ok, it was the cholesterol.

Yes, which is partly because of food that has been eaten and the fact that the mind has not worked upon that problem, or there's been no change. I am trying to get you to understand a fuller picture my dear friends; you're a complex being.

Lilian: Yes we are!

Mark: I'm guessing that because it's my right elbow, and not my left elbow, that that's significant. As I'm right-handed, I suppose I do more with my right. (Yes) So, therefore my right is more involved in life, so that's why it would affect my right more than my left, would it?

You see, I can tell you all of these answers, but what I want, my dear friends, is for you to go inwards and find the answers. YOU ARE IN CHARGE OF THE PHYSICAL BEING. The physical being houses your spirit and it is entitled to a good healthy body. You understand?

Agreed

This is why I say to you, why do you not feed the mind? Why is it not a natural happening in your everyday lives?

Sarah: Because we're human, I suppose—giggles

But that becomes an excuse.

Agreed

Serena: I think sometimes, well most of the time, people don't actually realise what they're thinking.

Oh, I think they do on a deeper level.

Serena: Quite often if you say to people, what are you thinking? 'Oh, I don't know'.

You are talking about the physical brain.

Serena: Yeah.

Yeah, when we go to spirit, the mind belongs to spirit and your spirit knows much more than you could imagine. But I understand what you are saying; yes, people are so involved in everyday living that they have forgone all the beauty and the thinking that belongs to them. You understand?

Agreed

Jan: May I go now—may I speak now? (Yes.) I have always joked that I was born guilty, which sounds rather a flippant comment, (No?) but the way that I was brought into this world, I have always felt guilty in some way, and I lived my life with that guilt and I did things and said things that I shouldn't have throughout my life, purely I think to myself, to compensate for something. And then as a child I began to have growing pains in my legs and always pains in my legs, and I now know for sure, that that was the fear. Fear stopped me moving forward and has done, up until this year, and that culmination throughout my entire 56 years was the break in my leg. I wasn't fearful at that time at all, in fact I was so calm the day I broke my leg, I surprised myself. And then it was your words Salumet, a couple of months ago, that I thought, I've got to stop saying: 'I need to put this into the hands of Spirits', 'I' need to do this. And then, that night, my whole idea of mending this leg, it was just like a light bulb moment and it got stronger and stronger and it's healing—I know it's healing, it's going to heal, there is no two ways about it. It might take longer than the medical people want, but it is going to heal, because I am healing this leg. And something happened on that coastal path, that took away a lot of the fear that I have held within myself for past misdemeanours or whatever you call it, and the way I was as a child, the way I was treated as a child.

I would say one thing at this point: Can you look at the break as being like a new beginning?

Jan: Yes, that's what I think I was...

Breakages are always about new beginnings.

Jan: Yes, there was a lot of cleansing that seems to have taken place. I've got a long way to go, I mean I'm no way perfect, I tend to take on a lot of other people's negativity and I need to work on that—I allow that...

But you have recognised it, my dear friend.

Jan: I do—a lot of my health issues in my head etc., are all taking on other people's negativity, (yes) not my own and unlike Paul, when I was much younger, I craved people, I craved having people around me. Now, I love people, I absolutely love people and I get such a buzz out of spending time with people, but I also love my own space and spending time with myself, which I never loved before. I love ME—I think that's what I've learned to do.

And all of you should; and when you have reached that state of knowing, then we in spirit, that is when we can step forward and really help, because there are no obstacles in our way. You understand? (yes)
Yes.

Sara: I can relate to what Jan was saying, because I think I've always had a special ability to communicate and I can empathise easily with people and connect with them easily, but in the last few years I've been learning also to love myself and enjoy silence more and peace and it has become very important to me; but at the same time I feel that I'm building up to a new role, where I can connect just as easily as I always have done, but in a very purposeful way—with more purpose than I did when I was younger. So, I think I'm going to bring the two things together—the ability to be silent and peaceful and hopefully the ability to communicate, and find a good role for that that's perhaps a bit more than it is currently, but I think it's coming and I'm using my creative abilities hopefully as some sort of platform for communicating. (Good) But, yes, similar to Jan, I have felt the need to be more peaceful recently and go within more.

Yes, that should come more naturally to all of you, only in as much as the conditions that you meet under, that when we come together such as we have this time that the mind will take over. I'm sure you all experience within these walls a sense of peace at times...

Murmurs of agreement

...much needed peace sometimes, but I am glad that you recognise that you need to go within. It will not blot out the everyday worries of life, but when you change your way of thinking, then you are on the road to good health.

Sara: And in my sleep-state I felt I was being given a message. I saw myself drinking a green drink—turquoise-green colour, and I had the word 'Amaranth' given to me. I've looked it up, I didn't know what it was before, and it's something you can grow and it can be a sort of salad leaf that you can eat, but I felt I was being told that this would be beneficial, because it felt like a message—strongly visual and I heard it as well, the word.

Yes, you must always pay heed to those who come close to you in sleep-state; that is when your connection is strong; but the strongest part of all is when you are in a meditative state, but also still alert. That is when you realise that you have connection with the Mind and the Mind of those in Spirit. So, listen closely, my dear friend, to what is being given to you.

Sarah: Serena, do you want to say something?

Serena: I haven't really to be honest thought too much about it, but a health problem that I have—it doesn't relate to my health, it's discomfort of heartburn, (yes) and what I—I can't really make out why and I can't put it down to food, because it's not dependant on what I eat or when I eat.

Again, this is an emotional problem. (right) If you think of the word 'heart' and you think of the word 'burn', there is a disturbance within the Mind, which is causing this. You will know and understand in your quiet times what that is. You may have to seek for it, but it is there for you to find. And if you do, I would say, speak to the heart, speak to the body, and if you do you will have results. I hope that is helpful to you.

Serena: Thank you.

Jan: You haven't spoken mum. (yes) You haven't spoken Lilian, have you?

Lilian: No, I've just been listening. I can't really think of anything that I'd like to say.

Yes; but all of you my dear friends, I do wish that you will think differently, think differently about being in connection and I will use what the gentleman said earlier about your Higher Self; your Higher Self will always listen to you, in order to help you also. And I have not heard from the young lady who sits by me. Do you have anything to say?

Natalie: Um, I wasn't here either, but I got the general idea. (yes) There were two instances, probably in the last year—and I thought about this a few months ago when it last happened, when I had this flare up of tonsillitis, and at the time I was really angry at my mum and I wanted to tell her how I felt about something, but I knew it would result in an argument that I didn't want to have, so I withheld that anger and then I got this throat thing (yes)—at the time I thought that was probably that, because I haven't told her how I feel. (yes) And then also within the last year I had these two—I've never had it ever in my life, a debilitating kind of trapped nerve in my back. And the first time it happened I had no idea what it was and it was horrible pain and I just couldn't move and I was just basically in bed and I couldn't do anything. And I think that's also—I don't know why necessarily the first time, it could be in relation, but the second time it happened was the day before my granddad passed away and I think it's like an exhaustion, but also when I know people are demanding of me in some way—various people and I don't want to talk or see people, and it's almost like my way of avoiding people, because I physically debilitated myself, (yes) and then I don't have to leave—it's like an excuse, if you know what I mean—I've sown a seed and then (yes) I'm almost paralysed, I can't...

You have explained your condition yourself. The throat is the power of speech, power of communication to others. What you have done wrong this time is not spoken what you truly felt, and you have to at times be true to your own self. It is not being unkind, it is not being angry as you say, but it is just allowing people to know how you are feeling. If people are upset by what is said to them by another person, that fault lies with the—within yourself. And if someone is hurt, that is their problem, because they do not always understand that you are being true to yourself by speaking out. I do not say to you that you use harsh or unkind words, but always be true to what you feel. (OK) You understand? (Mm) That is why the throat will suffer. You can understand that, can't you? (Yeah)

Jan: I think I've just realised why my daughter suffers with so many problems inside her mouth. (yes) And between us, I know I don't want to hear the real truth and I skirt around it a bit and that's probably why she's still holding onto these throat problems, because I'm really the only person that she can talk to.

Yes, however hurtful it may feel to you, she is being honest in wanting to speak. (yes) Therefore, the fault lies with you, my dear friend.

Jan: Yes, I've just realised that.

Yes, think about those words. It is all quite complex for you I know, but it has given you much to think about.

Jan: Yeah, because it's not a judgement, is it, when you recognise in somebody else, that you not only have an innate knowledge about yourself, but you can start to see and feel where other people's blockages are.

Yes, when there is an openness, then it can be dealt with fully. If there is something you dislike, and this is words I have used back many years since, if you do not like something then look to yourself first, because the problem will always lie within yourself...

Jan: ...as you why you don't like what you're hearing...

...as to why you do not like either what you hear, see or what someone else has done.

Sarah: When a child has been traumatised by mostly an adult and then for the rest of their lives they struggle with what's happened to them, is that because they are then not letting go of what's happened? Children need to be helped, only in as much as until they reach adulthood, they cannot figure this for themselves.

Sarah: No, but once they get to adulthood, and they're still holding on to what's happened to them...

Yes, they must let it go.

Sarah: So once they've completely let that go then...

...their health will be on the mend, if you like.

Sarah: So, can that take a lifetime to happen?

Yes, and sometimes people will pass to spirit and it has never been sorted.

Sarah: So they really need to work on (yes) letting go as soon as possible. (yes)

Jan: I think that lovely word 'forgiveness' comes into play.

Forgiveness, yes—love...

Jan: Love and forgiveness comes first, before you can move on from anything like that.

That's right, that's right, and having the recognition of what is happening and why you are feeling as you do, why your body is reacting as it does. All of these are important questions to ask of yourselves.

Ben: I think personally I've always had quite a strong fear of loss and I think that's led to me being quite indecisive at times, and also avoiding conflict (yes) and like Natalie I had many years of tonsillitis and ended up having them removed (yes) and I think that's probably connected.

There is always a way in difficult situations for words to be kind and loving. So never be afraid to say what you feel to another human being. Do it with love and kindness in your hearts and you will not go wrong.

Sara: I also have often had a fear of conflict and dislike of it and used to have a lot of sore throats—and bottled up—and I can even remember as a child desperately wanting to sing beautiful songs of love and, you know, nice words at the piano, but I couldn't—I didn't feel comfortable to do it; it was just my own, you know, blocking myself. (yes) And then later I was able to, through more experience and travelling, I was able to then open up my throat to do what it wanted to do; and even now, if I don't sing for a long time, I feel sad, because I want to express that joy and the depth of the feelings inside me—I need to do it for my health really, (yes) it's part of my spiritual health I think to do these things, because without that expression, I'm only expressing a very small part of who I am, (yes) not the whole of me.

Sara then mentioned a personal issue which was resolved through communication. Sara continued:

So, communication I think is very important—open communication with people, because quite often we can bottle things up.

Yes, which again creates dis-ease, yes.

Sara: Yes, it causes problems not just for you, but for other people too, who need things to be talked about sometimes.

Jan: So collectively, we're able to not only heal ourselves, but we're able to heal each other.

Yes, that is an important point. You not only bring self-esteem, love, all of these great words that we use, but you also help another, and it is like a rolling ball that continues on and on and on.

Jan: I can only talk for myself, but I realise now from what you've said tonight that I hold onto this fear, (yes) which is a fear that what I'm going to hear, I'm not going to like, so you block it out (yes) from somebody else and you draw back into yourself, thinking, well, if I'm over here that can't hurt me.

Whereas in actual fact, to heal both of you, you've got to hear it—you can't go on until you do.

And when you withdraw from one person, you are showing to another a completely different person. So you could also be damaging another in a sense, because you are not free to respond.

Jan: And you're not being your authentic self actually, (no) by withdrawing in that way, just to protect the negativity.

That's true.

Jan: So it's being able to protect yourself from the negativity, but have the compassion...

It is an instinct within the human being; fear, anger, all of these emotions are part of spending time on this Earth plane.

Jan: Yeah, they were our flight or fight responses originally.

Yes, but there comes a time when you must go inwards, you must be open to others, you must give love.

That is why as I end this talk with you, it is important for you to guide the young children of today.

Sarah: I was just thinking, my brother used to have a lot of tonsillitis when he was quite a little boy and he was a very happy child; but he was a child, so why would he have had all that tonsillitis? Is that something he brought with him from a previous life?

Children can have negative thoughts also! You do not always know, unless they feel free to speak in love and openly what they are feeling. And children are more prone to anger outbreaks, only because of their immaturity in this world.

Mark: Yeah, I had my tonsils out quite young—or adenoids, I can't remember which now, but it is quite common, (yes) so I guess in a lot of families, children can't quite express.

Or they are told to be quiet and not allowed to express themselves. If they are allowed to express themselves in a good and loving way, there would be no such thing as tonsillitis.

Sarah: That's interesting, because I didn't really think my brother suffered in any way at all. He was the youngest and he had a very easy life.

But you do not know how he felt within.

Sarah: No, that's true.

Sara: They don't show feelings unless they feel it's safe to.

Jan: Richard, my son—everybody knows Richard was part of the group—he was born with those sort of problems; from 9 months old and earlier, he had huge tonsils and was deaf until he was three almost. So, maybe Richard brought that with him, or...

Sarah: Maybe he was mourning it, because he was a twin, wasn't he?

Lilian: I was just thinking that.

Murmurs of agreement

Well, I give thanks my dear friends for listening to you. I am so pleased that you listened to my words last time. And as I leave you, know that I leave you cloaked in love and upliftment.

General thanks and appreciative comments

~12th December 2016~ SALUMET

During healing prayers, one of the group had to move their car and there was some discussion about problems of parking and we sent healing thoughts concerning the problems of parking in the world, among various other stresses and work pressures and the need perhaps for a more gentle, natural way. Salumet followed—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5930215/2016_12_12+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I apologise if I have interrupted the conversation.

Several uttered: 'No—not at all!'

As always it gladdens my heart to see how, as individuals, you take stock of all problems within your world. I come this time, as usual, to say to you as your holiday season approaches, I too will withdraw to that which I call 'home'. I also wish, this time, if I may, to work quietly with this instrument; and the others of you will be used appropriately by others who will come when I withdraw.

Thanks

As always I know the dear children will wish to come to you next time.

At our next meeting, Eileen will have a Christmas tree in the room and spirit children will gather.

I hope, my dear friends, you have been looking more deeply within yourselves, as we have discussed last time. I would like you to continue with this practise and you will become more knowledgeable about who and what you are.

Thanks

I will allow just one question this time, before I work with this one.

Graham: I've got a question. You've mentioned many times over the years about a person can be healed when their soul is 'touched', (yes) and I was wondering what exactly that meant—whether it meant they'd reached the moment of enlightenment that their current condition was moving them towards, or whether it was Karma had been paid, or all manner of things; and there could be very different reasons—whether it's an external intelligence that had deemed that person to be ready for the next stage and therefore to be recovered? I was wondering what you meant by the words, 'the soul is touched'.

Firstly you have to understand that the soul is the part that continues. (Yes.) It belongs to spirit, not to the physical. It is the physical that is governed by the soul. (Yes.) So when I speak of the soul being touched, of course there are many reasons why this happens. I would say with health, and we have discussed this quite deeply recently, that when the body is healthy, then all is in unity—body, soul, spirit,

I am sure you have heard. (Yes.) Yes, when someone who may not believe, comes to a healer for healing, only when the soul is ‘touched’ will the healing take place; yes, (yes) you understand that. The soul may be at that moment in time, where it needs to be helped to heal; and there are two ways of healing. There is an understanding of the physical being, that they must be in touch with their inner-selves—it is a knowledge and an understanding which comes to them; but they are not guided or directed as you have said; this understanding comes from within. Is that a little more helpful to you?

Graham: Yes, yes.

Yes, I know it seems confusing when people are told that the soul must be ‘touched’, or feel that ‘love spark’—that is another way of putting it to you. (Yes.)

Sara: But is it that the soul’s understanding that comes from within, causes some sort of openness to being touched—is it connected to an openness?

The physical being houses the soul; so there is dis-ease when there are problems with the physical body. It is not the soul, but the physical being that has caused the problems. The soul is pure, the soul belongs to spirit. Does that make sense? (Yes.)

Sarah: Actually I haven’t quite understood myself—so when the soul is ‘touched’, does that mean that the physical has come to the realisation, or is that the innate knowledge coming through?

It can be a blend, but I would say that the physical being comes to a realisation of what is happening. (Yes I see.) And in that way then the soul can step forward to help. It is the same as your absent healing, when you call for someone who is not present; the soul has to help, but only when the time is right.

Pause

Are you sure that you understand?

Sarah: So, if that person who has got something the matter with them, if the soul isn’t touched, then they would perhaps go on to die, because they (yes) ...yes—and would that be, in some cases, that actually they are ready to die and that’s why the soul isn’t being touched?

That is also true. It makes no difference how much healing the person receives—if the soul is not touched, there is no healing. And of course, the physical body comes to a state of not understanding really what is happening to them.

Sara: So would it be true to say they sort of choose to go, rather than stay—they can’t really embrace the whole healing that’s required for the things they need to do.

On a spiritual level the soul already knows.

Sara: Ah right; because to give an example, when our father was dying (yes) a few months ago, we felt that he was resigned to it. (Yes.) We did have many, many cures that we wanted to perhaps try if we were able to, but he wouldn’t accept all of them—though he did try some and we sensed that he was resigned...

...Because he took responsibility for his own soul. (Right...) And when the time comes, no matter how much healing is given, if your time upon this Earth is here, there is nothing that will keep you here.

Sara: Yes, he did say: ‘It is my Time.’

Yes, and that is why he took charge of what he knew to be true.

Sara: Right! So he was reading the situation correctly.

He was listening to that inner voice.

Sara: Right, yeah we did feel that very strongly.

Yes, yes—it makes the transition to spirit much easier if the human being would only let go when the time is right. (Yes.) All too often, as human beings, fear—that word I use so often, fear comes into play, and although it may keep your loved ones here for longer, it is in a way, a little destructive for the soul.

Sara: Yes, he seemed to know his own mind very well (yes) and he shared some insights as the time drew near. He shared things that he was seeing, (yes) such as a white door, and he seemed very confident at times.

There are many people in your world, who can choose the day of their passing. How do you suppose that they have reached this point? It is because they know from within that it is the time and they allow the body to slip away quite easily.

Sara: Yes, we were quite—I did feel admiration for that—for how he he embraced it and seemed to know and yes, he did seem very peaceful for a lot of the time leading up to it. (Yes.)

Ben: I think that's the same for my mum as well.

Yes, once there is a knowledge of spirit, it is difficult to break that (yes) and it does help when the time of passing comes.

Sara: Yes, and he was so drawn and he actually said: 'I need more—more than this.' Meaning he needed more than what we could give him or/and Earth plane; he needed to pass on.

Yes, the draw to spirit at those moments is great and the time comes when the pull of the Earth no longer has meaning.

Sara: Yes I felt that when he was feeling it and they talk about a certain euphoric moment (yes) and I could feel his euphoria at wanting to go.

Yes, because they have the realisation that they too are returning home—home to more loved ones, home to the knowledge that is innate within them, but has never been used upon the Earth plane.

But now, my dear friends, I wish you a happy holiday season. I hope when we return that you may all be refreshed and looking forward to more of your earthly lives. So I leave you as always, cloaked within my love and I will work quietly with this one, whilst the rest of your evening continues. I ask only that there is a little subdued speaking, in order that this one may not be disturbed.

Paul: Yes of course.

Sarah: And we wish you, if I can say it this way, a good trip back to where you belong. So, we hope you enjoy your time there.

Paul: That's right yeah, and we definitely look forward to next year.

Yes—thank you.

We sat quietly for some time. Jan got the feeling that hot-cross buns were connected somehow to Ben's mum, but Ben wasn't able to think of a link at this time.

Lilian was reminded of a program about Water-lilies being one of the first flowering plants to evolve and how the lotus flower is often seen in Buddhist temples. Lilian then picked up that Eileen was returning from a deep trance state. Eileen described seeing a golden arch with light. She also saw a really big 'S'. Eileen asked if someone had been talking about food and we mentioned Jan's hot-cross buns. She wanted to say: Sally lunn bun. Then Cho jumped in—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5930217/2016_12_12+Cho.mp3

Hello!

All: Hello!

Jan: I knew you were around. I was sat here thinking, 'no Cho?'—yeah, he'll be here! How are you?

I like it when I come see you.

Jan: Good, we like it when you come and see us. How are you?

Well, I don't have a body...

Jan: I know—that's true!

How are you?

Jan: We're all okay I think, aren't we? (Murmurs of agreement) And I'm fine.

Why you not working?

Jan: Not working?

No—why you all sit not working?

Jan: Oh I see.

Mark: We're being lazy—we were yawning earlier, but we're not yawning now at least...

Jan: No, we were just waiting. Perhaps we were waiting for you—we didn't realise.

I bring two people, you not see them—you not working...

Jan: Oh I see what you mean now. Well, I haven't picked up anybody, apart from a lady called Sally. Have you got Sally with you?

No, I not got...I bring two people—you work, see who it is.

Jan: Oh okay—so two people.

Lilian: So we should know who it is—or some of us... (Yes, yes.)

Sarah: Are they people we know, or have we just got to get their names?

No, not people you know, people like to speak.

Sarah: I did get the name Anna.

Yeah...

Sarah: Yes?

I not tell you, you do work!

Chuckles

You not expect Cho work!

Pause

I like little lady here—this little lady here.

(Natalie)

Yes, she make me want to smile.

Murmurs of agreement

Sarah: Maybe it's the hat?

Oh, we got this funny lady now talking—she like your hat. I'm going to leave you now. (Oh) Yes, you've got to work!

Jan: We've got to work, okay.

Sarah: Are you going to come back and tell us if we've worked properly?

No, no, I come another time.

Jan: Well it was lovely of you to come and see us Cho and I hope we work well for you tonight.

I let you know!

Jan: I'm sure you will—you'll let us no. (yes) So, are we to expect someone to speak, or—you're not going to tell us, we've got to work it out.

Yes—two people—I not tell you, that not working...(OK) You should ALL be seeing now.

Jan: We'll do our best Cho.

Paul: They're not people that we know...

Jan: They're in spirit, two people in spirit. (yes)

Sarah: We don't know them, but do we know of them?

Maybe, I not tell you—naughty!

(Turning to Jan)

I still help you lady.

Jan: I know you do. Am I doing well?

You're doing very well.

Jan: Good!

You keep up, you be positive.

Jan: I do try.

I not like try, I like (love?).

Jan: I am being positive (Good.)—yes, they're not going to operate again, because I don't need to have an operation again, because it's healing. (Good!) So, there you go. It does give me problems at times, but I know it's only because it's healing.

Lots of people here your friend, help you—they all help you.

Jan: I know—I'm very lucky, I get lots of help, lots of healing; yes, I have been very fortunate.

One man say you be stubborn sometimes.

Jan: Oh, lots of times.

Chuckle

I think your daddy.

Jan: Ooow! Hi daddy!

He not here, he just tell me.

Jan: Oh, why's he not here? Is he still shy?

No! He come another time.

Jan: I hope so, I hope so. He's been in the background lots of times I think.

Well sometimes you too stubborn he say.

Jan: To help myself?

Yes—he help you too.

Jan: Oh, thank you dad—yeah. Give him my love, won't you?

You give him your love! You all want me to work, don't you? I'm not here to work.

Jan: You can be my postman.

Chuckles

Goodness me! I'm not allowed to get annoyed...

Sarah: ...but you are!

Chuckles

Yeah—you're my troublesome group.

More laughter

Jan: But you love us really.

Well, I suppose...anyway I go now—you've got work.

Thanks and goodbyes

We then sat in silence and tried to see who was around. After a few minutes, Jan seemed to have George with her:

Jan: Hi George—'Hi gang.'

All: Hello.

Pause

Eileen commented that it had gone cold in the room. Paul got the impression of a man with grey hair and possibly a sailor's cap. Natalie got the name Elijah. Jan then seemed to be being urged by George to sing Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious. Sarah felt her head turn towards Paul, which used to happen during visits from Bonniol—but there didn't seem to be anything definite happening with Paul. Sara wondered if a nun was trying to come through and Eileen had the name Francis, which Ben mentioned was his mum's middle name. Eileen saw an 'H' connected to Francis. She then got 'Howard'. Eileen was then seeing a scone, which perhaps connected with Jan's hot-cross buns earlier. Eileen then saw a ring, with a purple-blue stone. This seemed to be one of Natalie's and the message was that the stone wasn't quite secure and needed attention.

Note:

Sally Lunn Bun: It is a sweet bun, originating from Bath, Somerset.

*19th December 2016****

After our prayers we focused on the children who would be visiting us this evening, as is usual on this, the last meeting before Christmas. Eileen's room now had a beautiful silver Christmas tree with white lights.

Cho began—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/5984234/2016_12_19+Cho.mp3

Hello.

All: Hello.

Sarah: Nice to have you back again.

I bring children—yes. You feel them, you say, yes. They say you need to find the child within yourselves. I not know what that mean.

Sarah: Maybe it means the memories of how we were, or...

Yes—how you felt as children.

Graham: I still do feel quite childlike sometimes.

Chuckles

Do you?

Graham: Yes, it's nice to be able to play and get the same sense of fun that we did when we were children—it's in us!

Sarah: I think it's a male thing too.

Graham: Oh absolutely, boys don't grow up! We know that.

Chuckles

They say, 'naughty boys'! (Chuckles) You not naughty boys. Anyway, I go and let the children come when they're ready.

General thanks

Lilian: Happy Christmas to you.

Well, we don't celebrate like you do, but of course we know it goes on. Anyway I see you next time.

General thanks + farebyes

Paul: Thanks for all that you do Cho. (Yes) It's been a fantastic year.

Turning to Jan:

I say my friend, you listen to me talk in your ear. (Yes) I help if I can.

Jan: Thank you. Did you hear what I spoke to you today?

Yes, I listening—yeah.

Jan: Thank you Cho—yes, I know you're around me; thank you so much. (Yes)

Pause

If you feel anything, they say you say. I think they may even pull your clothes—just to notice.

Graham: Will they play with the Christmas tree?

If they want to, but I tell them not knock it over!

Chuckles

Graham: OK.

You may even hear a little bell ring, although there is not one on the tree.

Sarah: That's nice.

So, anyway my friends, I am going.

General thanks

We then tried to tune into the children. Eileen became aware of a beautiful curly-haired boy called Alistair, who seemed more interested in playing with Eileen's bracelet. She picked up that he really wanted a train when he was younger, but died before Christmas came.

Jan sensed twin girls (Sarah and Louise) who had been stillborn and now appeared around 9-12 months old. They had never experienced Christmas before.

Eileen then saw a ring of children going around the table in the centre of the room. One of the girls had bright red shoes.

The name Annabel had recurred in Eileen's mind several times throughout the day, and Eileen now understood that one of the visiting children was in fact called Annabel. She made herself known to Eileen, saying that she'd come because she was cheeky. She had a beautiful glow and Eileen sensed that she wasn't really a child—perhaps she liked to appear as one, though she was in fact more adult-like.

Jan felt a pair of hands behind her, covering her eyes and became aware of Sam (a girl) who wanted to say "Hello" to everyone.

Eileen said they were going to place their hands in ours and we should try to be aware of this.

Jan then said there was a giggling William, 8 years old, who declared himself to be 'the boss'.

Natalie then got the name Angela. Sara got a Hazel in a blue dress. Graham also sensed a William. Jan then sensed her right hand being patted and Eileen noticed one stroking her fingers.

Annabel asked Eileen if she could touch the tree, which Eileen agreed was fine.

Lilian then spoke, saying that if we stand back from the children that were close by, there were gathered children from around the world. Paul said he'd actually just seen an African-looking girl with a beautiful smile and Lilian was getting the song, 'Wonderful World'. Jan also became aware of a little Chinese boy at that moment, who seemed to know that she had not been feeling too 'bright' lately and needed a hug.

Sara felt energy around the head and felt that the children were giggling, which made her want to giggle too. Paul then got the name 'Rebecca', who just wanted to say a big "hello". Eileen then got a high-pitched ringing sound, which only lasted a short time and may have been the bell that Cho had referred to earlier. She felt her eyes were closed shut and could not open them to look at the tree, though she wanted to.

Jan then mentioned that a lady stepped in to say that Christmas is a time to watch small children on Earth, because it's a time when spirit comes closer.

Paul thought he got a whiff of chocolate and Natalie felt a tap on her back. Eileen felt she was riding in an old-fashioned train, with a blond boy in front driving, which felt most peculiar. Eileen then asked the children why they liked to come to Earth at Christmas time, when they can experience so much in spirit.

They said they just like the energy produced at this time of year, especially with the children—they know they can have what they want, when they want it, but it just feels different to them.

Sara then got an image of seals jumping out of water and felt they wanted her to make seal noises, which she tried.

Sister Anna, an old friend then spoke via Eileen—audio link:

http://www.solumetandfriends.org/app/download/5984236/2016_12_19+Sister+Anna.mp3

Lilian: Good evening—welcome.

Good evening.

Greetings

You do not recognise me?

Pause

No...

Paul: Are you one of the Sisters?

Yes indeed, it is Sister Anna.

Warm recognition from some sitters

You know I moved forward such a long time ago;

(Lilian and Paul acknowledged this) and I found that my vocation, in a sense, was to be with small children. So now I work with them and I can tell you, they are still mischievous in our world. In fact when first I made contact, they would pull on my rosary beads; (Chuckles) and it has brought great joy to me, because being in the closed order, of course there was no contact with children. I just wanted to take this opportunity to speak with old friends; and I felt sure that the good people that you are, would remember me and make me most welcome.

Paul: Yes, we certainly remember you.

Lilian: It's good of you to come back.

Sara: Yes it's lovely that you came back to say hello.

Yes, it does not happen often, but not only have I been helping with the children, I was most touched by your conversation—and that is also something close to my heart is helping other people. I must say that the energy here with your good people and the energy in this room is quite magnificent this time and the children are so happy.

Sara: That's good—it's nice to know.

Paul: The lady you're using was just saying why the children get attracted back to the Earth from spirit this time of year, when it must be lovely in spirit—but they still love to come, because it's a special time of year.

Yes, it is an experience for them, because many passed to our world quite quickly—not all but some, and it is an opportunity for them, for their soul's growth, to come to play with the Earth children—and not only the children, but their toys.

Several sitters: Ah!

That is an attraction for them.

Paul: Even though they could have toys in spirit realm of course.

Yes, it is the experience that they crave and the laughter and the colours, because some came to us when Christmas was not quite so celebrated in the way that it is today. But I feel joyous in having joined with all of you and I want to take this opportunity to say thank you, not only to this instrument (Eileen) of old times, but to all of you a big thank you and may all that is within your lives this Christmas time, be of Love and hope and upliftment.

General thanks

Paul: And wherever you are, I hope you...well, sometimes I wonder if it's a bit like Christmas everyday in spirit realm.

Well, that makes me smile. Ah...I would not say so, but it is joyous.

Lilian: So although you've moved on, the children move on as well, to where you are?

No, I come down to help them. They cannot join me where I belong, but it was my choice to help them. As I say, I did not have that opportunity whilst on Earth last time, and although I have to say it was not something I wished for then, but I can see now it was a part of life's growth that I did not experience. Anyway, I place a blessing upon each and every one of you.

General thanks

Sara: And our love and light goes with you too.

Thank you.

As she left, Eileen noted that the children had now gone and presumably had left with Sister Anna. Eileen recalled that there were 3 very dear and gentle Sisters who used to regularly visit the circle.

Finally we discussed how children grow in spirit and the need for them to still go through all the stages, even though of course, time would be different in spirit realm. Adults on the other hand, when they return to spirit, generally choose to be in the 'prime' of their previous life, until eventually they go back to being energy and are identifiable by their light.

Notes:

Sister Anna: Sister Anna had been a familiar visitor before our formal records began. On 24th July 1995 she gave an emotional farewell, saying she was moving on, but on 27th September 1999, she again spoke via Eileen on the special occasion of Leslie's passing to spirit. So though we progress to higher levels in the spirit realm, it is still possible to return, as indeed Salumet does.

Christmas on Earth: So an Earthly Christmas experience can be attractive to children who are now in spirit and for some reason didn't get to experience Christmas here or perhaps didn't have such a happy one. It is reassuring to know that these opportunities are available and shows another way in which this physical Earth plane existence and the spiritual planes are all connected and are in fact as one.

Perhaps it's good to finish on a few of Salumet's past words regarding this time of year:...You are beings of love; therefore, feelings of peace and goodwill to all men should be natural to you, but, of course, being human beings, makes it a little more difficult, but that is why you are here. But, I would like you to always retain those words in your minds, and, whenever you encounter upsets and troubles in your lives, remember those words, and automatically, you should find that that spirit within will come to the fore and uplift not only yourselves, but all of those people you know, so my message to you, at this your festive season, my dear friends, is to shine within that love which is eternal; feel that love—feel the peace which emanates from that love, and I will tell you, now, my dear friends, you will experience the utmost love and joy in this your everyday lives. I hope you understand my words this time, and I am saying to you and to all of creation: PEACE AND GOOD WILL TO ALL.

Salumet (2011_12_12)

PEACE AND GOOD WILL TO ALL

SALUMET — 30th January 2017

The meeting began as usual with individual prayers and then focussed on the United States of America's new leader Donald Trump, with thoughts of trying to be non-judgemental and positive to perhaps help in that arena. It was felt that in some way, ultimately all these experiences are providing much learning, which will lead to balance eventually. Salumet then spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6326649/2017_01_30+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Jan: Good evening Salumet.

It is good to join with you this time. We have been listening to your conversations and I would just like to say, my dear friends, that my words on non-judgement have been well taken and it is good that you can all sit together and discuss these topics; and that is as it should be, without personal commitments and judgement. I only wish there were more people in your world who would listen rather than to talk, because when you listen, my dear friends, you not only hear, but you feel and understand the words and thoughts of others. This is an important part of not judging; far more sensible to listen and allow others to speak. But what I do wish to say to you is that your planet at this particular time, where you are concerned about many issues: Do not be so afraid my dear friends, it is part of the planet's evolution. You may never stand still, there will always be change, there will always be difference of opinions; but that is all good, because it works to bring balance, as someone has already said this evening. So you see, continue to listen, continue to discuss and continue to Love—that is what you must do. You are entitled to personal opinions, of course you are, but what you are not allowed to do is to decide what another should do. And I know this can be difficult in these times in your planet, but this unrest lies not only here, but in other universes too; even those who are not inhabited, those planets still undertake an evolution.

Jan: Salumet, can I just jump in here and ask you a question please? (yes) Last year you mentioned to us that everybody on this planet would feel a shift in some way. Is this one of those feelings that you're talking about that we would all be aware of?

Yes, you are fortunate, my dear friends, that you have an understanding and a knowledge of spirit that you can allow these thoughts and feelings to take their proper place. But for so many they are completely at a loss as to know what to do about your planet. There is only so much you can do and you must allow the planet to grow—to work upon the balance that it needs. It is a big issue, I understand, for you to take in.

Jan: No, I don't feel it is, for me, no...

That is your understanding and that can only be good for your soul and for those that you wish to talk about, because if it is done in love, there is never any harm done. It is only when harm comes to another that you should stop and not to question another human being, but to question yourselves; therein lies the problems. Do you understand my dear friends?

Sarah: You were just saying if something is done in love then it's not wrong, but if for example—you've always said that you should never take your own life—and if somebody allows a loved one to be killed—the loved one wants to die and the other one actually maybe kills that person—puts that person out of that suffering...is that wrong too then?

Yes, you cannot 'play God', as you say; that is not the purpose you should be looking towards. Yes, no-one wants anyone to suffer, we understand, but in that suffering, there is growth and that is what you must try to understand. You can give love, support, help in any way, but also you cannot stop the free will of another. So, if someone wishes, and I would not use the word 'kill'—in most experiences, it is done because they feel they love the other person. (yes)

Jan: Are you talking about assisted dying?

Yes, but that still does not make it right. (no)

Sarah: When you say somebody—if they're suffering that's growth—I don't quite understand...

...because the soul comes into its own just before death, and I am sure you may have come upon occasions when someone may speak about their passing, who has never even given a thought to it before; that is the soul coming forward and recognising that there is more to what you call life.

Jan: It's a very beautiful moment to witness.

Yes, it should be, but what happens when someone is assisting another to take their own lives—you have to look at it from all vantage points.

Jan: Mm, the job hasn't been quite done from the person (yes)—not from the assisted suicide, but the person wishing to commit suicide (yes)—the journey hasn't been completed.

Yes, and it is hard, we understand—no one says that it is easy decisions, especially if it is people you love, but I have to, in all truth, have to tell you my dear friends, it is never right.

Jan: No, and nor is it for animals. (nor for animals) Natalie gave a really nice, touching ask (prayer) for her cat, when we first sat, and having had the experience of putting dogs down when I shouldn't have done, I know now that that wasn't the right choice—however much in pain and discomfort they were in I would always now allow that animal to slip away.

That is best to give and ask—ask for help from spirit and to send out love to that creature. That is what you should be doing. But no, we understand, we fully understand the pain there is in being a person upon this planet; but I do say to you, my dear friends, there is so much growth that comes from these difficult decisions.

Sarah: Salumet, what happens to the people who haven't completed their lives properly? Does that mean they have to come back again to do it all over again in order to get to that...

They would make the decision whether to come back or not, but mostly if something is left undone, they will return for whatever length of time is necessary.

Sarah: And is the same true of people who are murdered or who've been killed by a government or whatever—they're lives wouldn't have been completed or would they have been, because they might have known that was going to happen to them before they came back?

Yes, this one is not quite so straightforward; you cannot murder or hurt another human being without there being some return. Murder can be a result given for the person who commits the murder—they are the ones in the wrong most of the time, but there are occasions when someone comes to this world and usually for the sake of another soul, will allow their lives to be taken from them. It is not quite as simple as it would seem; but killing another person is not a spiritual act.

Jan: I'd like to talk about abortion really, because I aborted a baby 30+ years ago, and at the time it was aborted for medical reasons—the doctors were unsure whether I would even survive another pregnancy. It's not something that...I think about that person from time to time, but for me at the time it felt right, because I had two other children that I wanted to look after.

Yes, and you were allowed to stay and look after them (yes)—yes, you must look to that direction for your answer. There were things that you had to continue in this life, therefore it did not work out unless you aborted the child. So, I would not worry too much, it is not always the act which is so important, as the reason behind these decisions.

Jan: So, I always refer to the fact that the intention was done in love, (yes) so rather than...

And that unborn child would have already agreed to that before it came. So I would say to you, my dear friend, to anyone who has undergone it, we would look, or you would look when you come to spirit why it was done, why it happened and why you made that decision.

Jan: She has visited me actually while we've sat in the group.

Yes, unborn children grow up in spirit; don't ever doubt that and even if you are not aware of what happens in spirit, know that these children will greet you on your return home.

Jan: That's nice to know (yes)—which it should be, yes. (yes)

Sarah: You have also told us that some children, that's all they need, they don't need to come right into this life, they only need that first part, (yes) so they would be aware that that's what's going to happen anyway.

Yes, yes, there are many, many reasons.

Lilian: But would that be more for the parents, a learning curve somehow for the parents?

It may well be; there would always be, we have used the word before: 'contract', because it suits the explanation. There is always a contract between the souls, before they come to Earth.

Lilian: Because when they come for such a short time you wonder...(Why, yes.)...it's got to involve the parents too.

Is it not such a large word: 'Why'?

Agreed

Yes it is used so often in your world.

Jan: My sister has lost 11 babies (yes) and we always believed that those 11 helped path the way for the two that are now here and I've always really thanked those 11, because without those, maybe the two living would have been in the same—(yes) you see what I'm saying? So, they were a gift from the other 11.

Any child, whether it aborts or is born is always a gift from the spirit world; always remember this, no matter what the circumstances may be, and I would say probably your sister was not ready to have a viable baby; she had to wait until the time was right. (yes)

Ben: Can I just ask a question as well? (yes) This may have been asked before, but I was wondering at which stage the spirit enters the baby? Is it at conception (yes) or is it later on?

I understand you have not been in the group as long as the others, and yes this has been discussed and there is much controversy over this, but I can assure you that the spirit is at the time of conception.

Ben: OK, thank you.

Others I know dispute this and say you wait so long...I can only tell you what I know to be true.

Sarah: Could it have been Salumet that those 11 times that Jan's sister lost babies, could it have been the same spirit that kept coming back until it eventually managed to get to this Earth?

It could or it may not—that's all I can say. It depends on what has been spoken of, if you like, in which way that would work, yes.

Jan: One did manage to be born, but he was stillborn.

Yes, yes, I would say she was not ready at that time.

Jan: No, that makes sense to me.

Yes, and because you are human and full of emotion, all of these subjects are distressful to you, but you must look at it from a higher point; always think Love on every subject first; as I have said, even with those you cannot commit yourself to agree with, it is still easy to send love to them and we in spirit are always waiting for those prayers.

Jan: Do you know, I think the act of love is such, like you've said before, it's so much easier to do than even have feelings of hate, because that's such a heavy, heavy, negative emotion (yes)—it's draining; it's far easier isn't it, the lightest vibration being love is much easier, not to even focus on the other side.

If only people would realise it, yes, yes. Love shines like a bright light and in your world from our viewpoint, you can see areas of darkness and light, yes. But yes, continue to give love to the planet—not only this one, but all planets, and know that at this time evolution is continuing, which would explain much about the upheaval that you all feel at the moment.

Jan: Yes, there has to be a cause and effect doesn't there, (yes) and if the planet is evolving and looking after herself, (yes) then as beings and spirit, we're going to feel the effects of that.

You're all part of the same love, yes, yes.

Well my dear friends, I am so pleased to join with you again.

Jan: And us you...

...and I will take my leave this time.

Lilian: Could you just take one small question?

If you are quick, yes, if you are quick.

Lilian: OK, well it's a lady who lives in the village where I live and she's seeing so many spirit people in her house, especially at night, and she is doing the right thing in saying: 'please move on' and 'leave the house' and 'go to the light', but she really is quite, I'll say 'frightened' of this happening, she doesn't really want it; and me and another friend—she's tried clearing the house—we really don't know what to say to the lady to comfort her.

She must have someone who has full knowledge of spirit. If they are constantly with her and she needs them cleared, you need a medium you can speak to them directly—no good in a general manner, as you have said; this must be done on an individual scale.

Jan: I have two cousins that I feel would be able to help...

Yes, this is what it needs, it needs someone—and you see with her fear, she is creating negativity—so they are building upon that negativity. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes, thank you, thank you for that. As I say, my friend has tried to clear it and she has always had success, but this time...

Well, sometimes there are more difficult 'clearances', I believe you say in your world to do, and I think this is one of them.

Sarah: It must be, because if she is frightened she's attracting not very good people, which probably makes it more difficult to be rid of them.

Yes, it's possible that the building is on again what you term a 'ley line', or even in times long ago has been like a cemetery...

Jan: The stocks were there I believe.

Yes, you see that would create an energy, which would carry on. (Thank you.) I hope that will help.

Lilian: Sorry to leave that question to just when you were ready to go.

I leave you all as always cloaked in our love, and I hope, my two friends, that you call upon those of us in spirit whenever you need us.

General thanks

Paul: Our love goes with you.

SALUMET — 13th March 2017

After our healing prayers, Eileen mentioned the British astronaut Tim Peake and how it was interesting to hear that he misses seeing the Earth from space.

We sat in silence and Eileen soon noticed a feeling of unsettledness within the group and after enquiring, a sitter mentioned she had been feeling stressed. Help was given to this loved one and Sarah soon noticed that there was one with Eileen. This one didn't stay long, but simply stated they were helping to clear conditions in readiness for the one who was to come—to our delight, Salumet followed—audio link:

Sarah: Good evening Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Sarah: It's good to have you with us, thank you.

As always, it is good to join with you all again this time. It was just a little necessary to clear the conditions, but we have been dealing with that and I wish to say to the young lady, we will help her to clarify things in her mind, which of course will help her in many ways.

What I would like to say this time, my dear friends, there was talk of your planet Earth and how an individual was keen to see that picture again. (Yes) All planets are beautiful, but your planet has an extra sparkle about it; that is why your astronauts are so impressed with where they come from. I wish to tell you, my dear friends, that your astronomers are making great strides finding more knowledge and relating it back to the public people. At one time it would have seemed impossible to talk of such things, but now it is becoming a more occurring theme. There are discoveries still to be made, to satisfy the curiosity of the human mind. And you will become aware of this; in the same way as your seas are giving knowledge, so too is the vision beyond your planet giving knowledge. So I say to you, my dear friends, take heed of these words, take heed that all that is said will occur. There are many more planets in this solar system to be discovered.

Paul: It seems like there's a very bright outlook in lots of ways with these discoveries to come, in lots of fields of science—new energies. There's a lot of hope for this planet to get cleaner and...

Yes, it is the responsibility of all of you humans to play your part. We know you cannot all be astronomers and men of decision, but you can send those good thoughts to all who dwell on this planet that they may make choices that are good for all. (Yes) It is a great responsibility—having knowledge is a great responsibility; but this you know, but it is up to each one of you to endeavor to make these things come to fruition. Paul: And it very much has to be like a peaceful revolution of non-judging and gently persuading. Well, 'persuading', maybe that's not the right word, but encouraging everybody, including ourselves—working on ourselves to share more and give more.

I would say only this to you: As you love one another, take that love and allow it to behold the beauty of your world. Give it as much love as you would a small child or a loved one; don't allow it to become a separate issue.

Graham: I think people are developing a sense of awe about our planet as our understanding about our planet increases (yes) and the extraordinary things, such as the just amount of water on this planet; (yes) if there was less it would be absorbed into the rocks and would be chemically bound and if there was more there would be no dry land—and the amount of difference between those two extremes is tiny; and the fact that this planet lives in the 'Goldilocks zone', between being too hot and too cold and many, many other things, people are beginning to realise with awe, just how incredible the gift this planet really is.

Yes, it is the perfection of the Creator; (Yes) there can be no mistakes when this work is at hand—that is what you must remember. You may say we live on an imperfect planet—no, I disagree, you are living in a perfect planet with little hiccups.

Chuckles

And those hiccups again are your responsibility. (Yes)

Sarah: A perfect planet with imperfect people living on it.

Well, I cannot fully agree, but yes of course, the inhabitants of Earth have been given great chance to alter many things, which have gone wrong in your pasts; but if you take the opportunities offered, it could be so much better.

Sarah: I think people are becoming more aware of the planet now and want to look after it more now than before (yes)—I think we were abusing it a lot, (yes) but that's getting better and if we can just keep peace that would be even better still.

Yes, it is the positive side of all—if you can focus on the positivity of life you can only go forward with much better footsteps, yes.

Mark: There seems to be at the moment very big pressure going on in many countries to satisfy the needs of industry and productivity, and it's affecting the way we're running of schools. They're cutting out subjects which they see as irrelevant to material productivity, like Music and Drama and DT (Design and Technology), and things which give children a bit of breathing space and creative time to use their imagination and it seems to me a rather sad way to go.

Yes, but when you say you feel sad, you are allowing the negative feelings to come to the fore. Always there will be struggles in your world, this I cannot deny, but as you also know, think of it as a pair of scales finely balanced, sometimes down, sometimes too far up, until the balance is reached and people reach the understanding of what is best for them. (Yes) You must always find the balance and you know you cannot have balance unless you have—I will use the regular words of 'good' and 'bad', you understand? (Yes) Whether it be behavior, whether it be the children of the world, it matters not, but the balance will eventually reach that point of perfection. It may take many hundreds of your years, but you only have to look at this last hundred years in your world, to see how much progress has been made.

Mark: Yes there's been great progress in tolerance of people—people tolerance—there's a lot more of that...

...to come, yes.

...different kinds of people, (yes)—that's definitely got very much better.

So you need a little 'cup of patience', as you may say in your world; yes, you cannot make things right in a second of the clock. You understand?

Agreed

Now, if you have any questions for me I will take one or two.

Sarah: I was just interested actually because there's been a case of—this isn't the only example, but a man who, I don't know if he was hit on the head, or he went into a coma, and when he came out of the Coma, he could play the piano. He'd never learnt to play the piano before and he couldn't play it before, but then suddenly he could, so what is happening there?

You have to remember you are a body of genes, you understand? (Mm) Yes, genes also hold memory and you can go back many hundreds of years and still retain the memory within genes; and I believe you said a knock on the head...

Sarah: Yes, I'm not quite sure, but I think he did. ...yes, was enough to 'un-trap' that knowledge.

Graham: Good heavens.

It is more simple than you would imagine.

Graham: That's fascinating. (Yes)

Paul: So it wasn't a past life then that somehow got...

Sarah: It must have been.

It—no, it is memory that is inherited all through the generations. A memory does not disappear.

Sarah: So it's not what you have done in a previous life, it might be what one of your ancestors has done?

(Yes)

Sarah: Ah, right OK, thank you for that Salumet.

Sara: Can I ask, do you know if my musicality comes from my genes?

It has to have some effect—when you are here in a lifetime, to have that knowledge whilst you live has to come from recent times, but the case the lady is speaking of can go back hundreds and hundreds of years. So you see what perfect specimens you are!

Laughter

You just do not realise it.

Paul: There must be another way to unlock it then, rather than a knock on the head?

We would not advocate knocking each other on the head, no.

Laughter

Paul: Is there a more gentle way?

It is not meant to be really; it is better that you come to life with no knowledge really—you understand?

(Yes)

Paul: To focus on this lifetime.

That is what you are meant to be doing.

Sarah: Because there are children who are what we call geniuses, they've come with some knowledge.

Yes, and they may not be physically able, but within spirit they can, and they can bring it forward.

Sara: Yes, like the children at Graham's School—some of them—savants. (Yes)

Yes, you are all intelligent beings—don't ever doubt that, but as the gentlemen has just said, you are here to focus on this one life time. It does not matter what has gone before, unless it is causing you a physical problem; and I have said to you, my dear friends, if that is the case then you can do something about remembering that troublesome time, as our dear friend sitting next to me already knows.

Sarah: Yes, that's right.

(Salumet was referring here to Graham, who healed himself from the supposedly 'incurable' Dystonia)

Sara: Could I ask a question about something else? It's a friend of mine who recently told me about Sun-gazing and she discovered some health benefits if you gaze at the Sun but with closed eyes at certain times of the day. Would you comment on that?

Yes, your Sun is so important to life on the planet—that is not disputed. When you speak of feeling better by gazing at the Sun—and I hasten to add, WITH EYES PROTECTED—what is happening is that you become more aware of the energies and the rays that exist in your planet, which come not only from your Sun, but many planets, many moons; they are invisible energies, it is only when they are focused upon that people realise just how powerful they can be.

Sara: She felt her eyesight had improved (Yes) since practicing this regularly.

There is nothing wrong in feeling those energies; in fact all of you would do well to focus more upon energies outside of yourselves. That is why people hug the trees, people lie prostrate in the grass—many things that humans do, is to build their energies, you understand?

Sara: And relating to that topic, she also mentioned that she thought some Indian Sages were keeping themselves alive with the energies of the Sun, whilst going without food and water. I know we have touched on this many years ago, (Yes) we talked about 'Breatharians' not being able to last for long in general, but I wondered if it is possible with the energies of the Sun?

They can last longer, but there comes a time when they have to go; that is all I can say.

Sara: Yes, that's what I thought you would say, thank you.

Yes—yes that will never change, they may extend their lives—it matters not which way they choose to do that, but it is possible until such time as they must return home. All of you have a little 'leeway', I believe your word would be; (Yes) yes, when the time comes to come home, yes—but I hope that has helped you.

Sara: Yes, thank you.

Now I am going to take my leave of you, my dear friends, and allow others to come to each one of you, and they will focus on some thought or feeling that you have had. So, as always, I ask that you speak out so each of you know what is happening; it helps not only you, but those in spirit who are trying to impress you.

Thank and farewells—we then tried to sense, as instructed, what was being given.

We were quietly discussing these impressions and how they connected when Eileen noticed someone was with Sarah—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6630677/2017_03_13+candles.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I'm going to try to bring to you a candle each. This candle is symbolic of the light that we wish you to take to a place of your choice. This is a spiritual gift to each one of you that you can use as your way of helping another. It is entirely up to you how you use this light, but I would just say to you that once you have the flame alight, the strength of this light is very strong, so please use it to the best effect. So I will withdraw and give each one of you a candle.

Sara: So it's to give another person light?

Pause

I will just continue: When you have this candle, focus on the wick and you will find that it will light. It is at this point that you can use it in whichever way you feel is the best and the most effective. So, thank you for your time and I will stand back whilst each one of you receives a candle.

Paul: Thank you very much for this gift.

It will not necessarily be a white candle, it will be of a colour that suits your aura.

General thanks

There then followed a period of silence whilst sitters received their candles and then placed them somewhere in the world. (Some sitters chose to wait till later to place their candles)

Sarah said afterwards that she'd seen the colours of each candle as it was given to each sitter in turn.

Notes:

Genes: Here's a link to the man who banged his head and then found he could play the piano, as referred to in Sarah's question: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GTHDuZo7G3Y>

Savants: An example of Savant syndrome is where a heavily autistic child demonstrates brilliance in a specific area, such as rapid mathematical abilities, vastly superior to others.

Sun-gazing: It appears that this practice can aid our awareness of energies, though the eyes must be protected of course and perhaps it should not be seen as an alternative to food and water, but could be practiced whilst also eating/drinking sensibly.

Concerning 'Breatharians', who sometimes do go without eating or drinking, Salumet has stated: Those of you who are clothed in earthly garb, have to survive with a physical body. In order for that Spirit to survive within that earthly body, the soul would have to use that body wisely and, although many people would claim to be able to survive on what you call 'life', I would say to you that it would be impossible, unless that soul has existed before and has come to this lifetime with a particular purpose in doing so. After all, your earthly body needs what you call water to survive. There are I would say, a very few masters in your world who could survive for some time, but not all of your earthly time without sustenance. Does that answer your question?

Sara: Yes, thank you.

What happens, if I may continue, that when the body is deprived of earthly food, earthly water, that is what is needed to sustain the body, the soul then retracts and you become aware—you are in a higher state of consciousness, and many people attempt this in your world. That is no bad thing of course, but the soul has to return to the earthly body to survive upon your earthly planet, therefore it is not wise to neglect the human body for too long. If, indeed, that lady you have mentioned has succeeded for so long, she risks the health of the bodily overcoat and she may find that her lifetime expires more quickly than indeed it should do. (23/10/2000)

Tim Peake—The British astronaut recently stated he missed the view of the Earth from space, ahead of his second mission to the International Space Station.

Interestingly, Bonniol, our dear friend from Planet Aerah, has said: We feel that your astronauts are not bringing you the full picture of space. When you fly from one planet to another, or to the moon, there are some wonderful lights ... well not quite lights ... layers around the planet...

George: Would 'aura' be a good word?

Yes, that is a word we could use here, yes. But its character would have these layers more easily visible, when you are flying away from them or towards them. They should be visible with the naked eye from your spaceships, and they would not perhaps, be photographed. We are surprised that this one (Paul), does not have information on this (in memory) ... the auric patterns around your Earth, that your spacemen have, or may have observed. (19/12/2005)

Salumet has also affirmed: If you spoke with your astronauts who have travelled in space, they could tell you much, much more than they have already divulged to the ordinary people on your Earth. (10/10/94)

Yes, there is much more known on your planet than the ordinary man and woman is allowed to know, but the time is fast approaching when mankind's thinking will not be stifled. (12/01/2004)

So we shall hear much more as time unfolds and our knowledge and our responsibilities surrounding that knowledge grow.

Salumet also gives us an exercise to work on in our daily lives: As you love one another, take that love and allow it to behold the beauty of your world. Give it as much love as you would a small child or a loved one; don't allow it to become a separate issue.

SALUMET — 27th March 2017

After prayers, Eileen sensed someone around Mark not feeling quite well, who needed healing prayers.

Eileen then picked up an unsettled feeling within the room, around one of the setters, which was quickly smoothed out. Salumet then began—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6723780/2017_03_27+salumet.mp3

Paul: Good evening.

Good evening.

General welcomes

I am happy to join with you once again.

Sarah: Thank you—happy to have you.

Firstly, let me welcome another seeker of Truth—the dear lady who joins with us this evening, we welcome you.

Di: Thank you.

Now I wish to speak to all of you, because it is true for all of you that over the past few of your earthly years there have been many changes, and these changes are ongoing. It may not always be, my dear friends, what you would want or wish to accept, but let me say to all of you it is what is best for your spirit. (Yes) So, no matter how uncomfortable your lives may feel at times, I say to you find the acceptance, accept the knowledge that we in spirit come to try to uplift and uphold you at all times. I would like you all, my dear friends, to think about your individual situations, to recognise, if you will, what is happening in your earthly lives at this particular time. Dear friends, do not forget to ask for help—none of you are very good at it; somehow you feel that it is good to ask for help for others, but not so much for yourselves. After all, are you not emissaries of spirit?

Agreed

You work diligently, quietly and for this we are always grateful to you. So, I ask again that you think upon these things.

Sabine: Thank you for reminding us.

Yes—I will take questions this evening.

Paul: Thank you—Di, do you have any questions?

Di: I can't think of any at the moment—it's all a bit new to me really. I've been reading the books that I've been given by Serena, which I've found absolutely amazing that it's all chronicled and documented and I do think it's an amazing way that we can pass on to other people what's happening here and because I know there are some people that think it's all a bit potty, but there's such a lot of actual fact in there that even the most cynical people can realise that you are Salumet a spirit from the light.

Yes, if only more people could understand more, but you all are developing at different rates, so all that you can do is to provide what you know and what is the truth and it is up to every other individual to find their own pathways. If only more people could sense and feel rather than think. Do you understand? (Yes) Allow themselves to sense what is being given to them, rather than to analyse all of these things; but every individual on your planet is at some time given the opportunity to look further and to understand. Hence why people such as yourself dear lady, feel the need to look just a little further than where you are at this moment in time.

Di: Yes, thank you—it's so true.

Sarah: I think we've been extremely lucky having you Salumet and I sometimes feel with people that once they've been given the little bit of snippet of information then they do go ahead, but it's just finding that person or that book that's going to give them that little bit of knowledge to help them on their way, because I do find a lot of people I speak to, and I normally try if I can to bring you into it, and it's surprising how many people actually take it on board and are already on that sort of beginning of those pathways. So, I think we are changing as a population, beginning to look more spiritually again.

Yes, like all good gardeners you need to nurture those seeds; when they are given to others it needs to be nurtured and looked after, but that is up to every individual, that becomes their responsibility. I speak often of responsibility, because having free will creates responsibility. That is why you cannot judge another, because unless you can see into their hearts, you cannot know them truly. But you know and I have said often, how grateful those of us in spirit are to you for spreading the word of truth. If people wish to deny it or do not wish to try to understand then that is their right, and you must let them go and not continually try to prove anything to them.

Sarah: I think you get a feeling (yes) when you're not going to get there and you just think well OK. Yes, that is the time to let it go.

Di: That is very good advice for me, because I know my partner thinks there's just this life and that's it, (yes) so it could cause a lot of problems if I kept trying to...

Yes, you must stand back, (OK) drop the seeds occasionally and you will find that eventually one little part may start to germinate and grow.

Ben: It's quite sad in a way though that so many people go through this human experience, without finding that truth—so their lesson, that we all come here to learn—whatever their lesson is, they won't really get that is the benefit of that until they return back to spirit?

Every individual in your Earth planet is given the opportunity to grow—because of their free will, they will either accept and go forward, or they will remain in the same position. It is normally, I would say, fear, fear of the unknown, fear of not understanding what they are being told, or just disbelievers, who will try to prove a point to you that what you say cannot be correct. Send love to those people, send them light and joy and love, because that is what will activate the spirit. And after all, whether they accept it or not, they are already spiritual beings. So, yes, as much as I understand the frustration of not being able to convince another human being, that is their choice.

Murmurs of agreement

Mark: There's quite a lot of encouragement in wrong directions as well. I was talking to somebody today about how quite a lot of children quite naturally don't like the taste of meat and don't want to eat it, but they're encouraged to eat it and they develop a taste for it and then that's quite difficult to undo later on. Yes, but that child when it is older has the ability to think for themselves. (yeah) It may be that in their young years they are encouraged to do what is not natural to them, but they do not stay as children forever. So, all you can hope and pray for is that those adults do the correct thing by those children; that whatever they are taught or given or suggested that the child is strong enough that when it is older it will make the correct decisions for itself. You understand? (I do) Yes.

Sarah: I was just thinking of the balance in life that you always tell us about, and just recently a man has killed several people in London driving very fast over a bridge and knifing a policeman; and one of the people that was killed was an American tourist who was celebrating his wedding anniversary. And the whole family say that he would never want any bad feeling to go towards the killer and they all feel the same way and I thought well there is that balance between the two. I was also wondering, he seemed like he was a very good person and he always wanted everybody to find the best in everybody and his life was taken from him—was that a timely death for him or should he really have carried on living?

I will say a few words. (Thank you) I have spoken to you about darkness and light and the attraction that light has for those in darkness; this is what causes all of these events. I am not here to judge anyone and I try to teach you also, my dear friends, never to judge. Only those who know, know the hearts of those two individuals—and I will say only one thing to you, that we in spirit would never condone the hurt of one person to another—no matter the reasons, or what people think should happen, or should not happen. It should never be that one individual takes the life of another and that is something that they will face when they come home to spirit. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, I'd forgotten about the light and...yes, I understand that part now.

Yes, you need to always remember that all of life, all of creation, is a balance of light and dark, and it is getting a perfect balance. I hope that has helped you.

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

Jan: When you said tonight about asking for help, (Yes) I'm a little confused as to probably when, because I also remember you talking to us, I'm sure it was yourself Salumet, that said that it's not always necessary to ask all the time.

No, if you truly bring it from your heart and soul, why would the Great Creator need to hear it more than once? (Mm) But what happens is like all religions everything becomes monotonous and the feelings and the love behind the words are not there.

Jan: Right, I think I know where you're going.

I know you understand, but, yes of course, you must ask for help whenever it is needed, but if you truly ask for help...

Jan: ...it's a genuine asking for help to come from the heart, isn't it?

Yes, like I have said previously here, you need to sense rather than think—that is the way of prayer. I hope that has helped you.

Jan: It has, that's clarified that, thank you.

Sarah: Jan's leg is going backwards a little bit and I think that's...

Yes, I believe there will be a few words when I have left. He is not allowed to come through just yet, but he is anxious to speak with this lady.

Murmurs of delight as we understood Cho would have some words for Jan.

Jan: He's my friend.

Chuckles

Yes, I cannot allow him to come whilst I am speaking to you.

Jan: No, of course not, he must learn to be patient.

Again, a word of tonight, 'patience', yes.

Sarah: I don't know if I mentioned this last time Salumet, but you said to us that we would need to look to the sea—we would learn a lot from the sea (Yes) and I read the other day that they're putting fish skin on burns. They sterilise the fish skin and they put it on people who've been badly burnt and then it adheres to the skin and then when the skin has healed underneath the fish skin just comes off, and normally they would have to bandage the burn and treat it every day, which is very painful, but they put this fish skin on and the burn heals beautifully and there is far less pain.

It is a prime example of humans listening to the information that we give to them, and yes, there is still much to come, many discoveries from the seas of your world; but it is confirmation of what I have told you previously that there will be many discoveries.

Jan: ...including the main source of energy, I understand?

Yes, there is much for human beings to learn.

Jan: But we do need to ask for help and the responsibility to look after our seas if this is the case, (Yes) because there is so much happening at the moment that's not good for the seas and the creatures within it.

Yes, I do feel that now people of the Earth are beginning to realise what damage they have done and are still doing, but as long as you have those who listen to Spirit, there will always be good work (Good) and although it seems unnecessary for some of the happenings, I would say to you, my dear friends, again patience and love and thoughts for all good men.

Jan: Yes, but sometimes we have to learn the bad to reap the good, to be balanced.

Yes, again it is light and darkness together, yes, now—well, my dear friends, I will take my leave of you this time. As always, I leave you cloaked in my love and I ask dear friends also that you love yourselves.

Jan: Definitely—that's the place to start.

Yes—you have all grown in wisdom, even if you do not feel it, I can assure you, my dear friends, that your light is ever-brighter in your understanding of our world.

Thanks

Paul: We're like little baby co-creators, I guess.

Chuckles

Thanks expressed

Cho then quickly followed—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6723826/2017_03_27+Cho+and+Cleo.mp3

Jan: Hello friend.

Hello!

All: Hello.

Jan: Nice to be here with you again.

You no listen me!

Jan: Oh Dear, haven't I been listening?

No, you not rest!

Jan: Oh, now I know! It's true, it's true, I've done too much, haven't I?

You done too much, you not listen to Cho.

Jan: I'm sorry, I will take it much steadier.

Good!

Jan: You have told me, yes—I started to feel much better, so I thought...

I know, I help!

Jan: I know you did, I know, and I thought, well I can do this, but I obviously can't. It's not ready yet

You know you—independent streak.

Jan: I know, I know I have, yeah—I struggle to...

You not know you have, 'cos you keep doing it.

Chuckles

Jan: Well, I suppose that independent streak is...

...OK sometimes.

Jan: Yeah—you think you are doing right by everybody else, but in actual fact, you're not.

You no looking after yourself. (No) You never mind anyone else, Cho comes to look after you and these other people.

Thanks expressed

Jan: Did you see me walking on the beach?

I see you all the time!

Jan: Did you see me—yeah, you so me on the beach then. (Yes) I was struggling on the beach to get back.

(Chuckling)

If I wasn't told, I could have been quite cross, but I not allowed to get cross.

Jan: No, you mustn't get cross with me.

But I do.

Jan: I'm sorry, and you did so much with my leg and helping me to heal it, and then...I apologize, I will take it steady.

Good.

Jan: I've been told

I'll be watching you.

Sarah: Has she done any harm to it?

She 'll be alright if she listen to Cho now!

Jan: Right...OK...Mm.

We don't want you suffer.

Jan: No, it has been very painful.

I know, I know—anyway.

Jan: I will listen to you, I promise, (OK) I'm going to start resting it again and elevating it, instead of carrying on thinking everything's normal.

Not too high, you might get stuck.

Laughter

Jan: Oh, you have been watching me—yeah, I get stuck all the time!

You listen to Cho.

Jan: I will Cho, yeah, thank you.

That's all, I'll go and see who else wants to come now—I not allowed to take too much time.

Sarah: It was nice of you to come, thank you.

General thanks—Cho then said someone would be speaking through Sarah. Cho then had a little chuckle:

Jan: What's funny Cho?

I have one here very funny, he's not allowed to come first, so I told him.

Jan: ...“buzz off”, did he listen? (No)

Sabine: Who's listening to you?

He might come through the lady I expect. I say, 'I'm in charge', he say, 'that's what you think!' Anyway, Cho got to go.

General thanks—as Cho was leaving he got the old nursery rhyme: Sing a song a sixpence—the guest then began through Sarah:

Hello.

All: Hello.

Jan: That was quick.

My friend told me to come.

Jan: Oh, really, who's your friend?

Cho.

Jan: Of course, yes, he brought you with him. (Yes) Have you come to talk to us about anything in particular, or just to chat?

Nothing in particular.

Jan: No, that's all right

Cho then spoke again through Eileen:

Cho: Who said I was your friend?

Chuckles

Well, I didn't want to upset you here, so, that's why I said that; but you are really aren't you?

This turned into a light-hearted evening, with lots of laughter and giggles. Cho's friend's name was Cleo, and it became clear that she assisted Cho at times. Cho explained that they are very good friends and although they act silly at times, they just want to make people happy. The full dialogue is on the audio.

(length 15 minutes)

Notes:

Asking for help for ourselves: As the example of Jan and Cho demonstrates well, there are many happy to help us heal ourselves. We perhaps need to exercise our free will a bit more and if we ask deeply, from the heart and soul, this becomes more powerful.

Dark and Light: This topic has been discussed previously: 14/08/2000, 19/02/2001, 05/03/2001.

Remaining positive through life's challenges: Sarah's question about the gunman's victim's family, is an amazing example of how even when faced with such a test, it is still possible to show compassion:

<http://www.independent.co.uk/news/kurt-cochrane-london-terror-attack-victim-family-utah-khalid-masood-no-harsh-feelings-us-tourists-a7651881.html>

"Last night we were speaking as a family about this, and it was unanimous that none of us harbour any ill will or harsh feelings towards this," his sister-in-law Sarah Payne-McFarland said.

"We can draw strength as a family from that. His whole life was an example of focusing on the positive, not pretending that negative things don't exist, but not living our life in the negative and that's what we choose to do also."

Fish skin heals burns: This is a nice example of new discoveries from our seas:

<https://www.yahoo.com/beauty/burn-victim-covered-with-fish-skin-for-pioneering-new-treatment-165114174.html>

And Salumet has indicated several times that there is much, much more to come and it is reassuring to note Salumet's words this evening, concerning the health of our seas/planet: I do feel that now people of the Earth are beginning to realise what damage they have done and are still doing, but as long as you have those who listen to Spirit, there will always be good work and although it seems unnecessary for some of the happenings, I would say to you, my dear friends, again patience and love and thoughts for all good men.

After prayers Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6927695/2017_05_01+salumet.mp3

Graham: Good evening Salumet.

Sarah: welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, I am happy to join with you all once again. (Thank you) As I come to you this time, I would like to say to you, my dear friend, a little about the conditions of your world. (Thank you) I do not make an individual case for this planet that you call Earth; what I wish to speak about is the larger and bigger picture. We know and are aware of the fears within your world—that you feel so many things are wrong. My message to you this time is to say, and I wish you to accept my words, that this planet Earth is on its correct course and is only part of the whole picture. So, although there is fear and dread in your world, I would like you, my dear friends, to consider the bigger picture and how small you are in all of existence. I have spoken many times to you, but the evolution of this planet is on course; hard as that may be for you to hear, I can assure you that it is all part of what is happening in every other universe, in every other part of existence.

Sarah: Could you just repeat that Salumet, I didn't quite understand. What's happening on the Earth at the moment...

...is part of the evolution of the planet (Yes) and although it has created fear and anxiety on this planet, I wish to say to you that it is just part of its evolution.

Sarah: Yes, and how it fits in with other...

Yes, as part of other planets, of other universes, it is but a small—I will not say in...

Paul: It's not insignificant?

Yes, yes, so I don't want you to be continually fearful of what is happening in your own world. (Thank you)

Paul: Some people are fearful because there's certain world leaders with nuclear weapons, who seem to be... Have we not been here before?

Paul: That's right, I was going to say, you did reassure us in 1994 (Yes) that the planet would not be destroyed in that way, so...

What concerns us for you as human beings is that all of these actions create much more fear, and that is what we don't want; we do not wish to create negativity and more fear; but you understand, my dear friends, what I am telling you? (Yes) Since time began on this planet there has always been some kind of friction—that is happening. I would like you all to try to understand just a little more and to take that mind, that powerful mind that you possess, and go further afield in becoming aware of what is happening around your world. You understand?

Paul: Yes, it's a bit like what they call the Second World War—it was done, but so much good came out of it—all kinds of medical advances and peaceful conversations and the fact that people realised that war is a really bad idea. (Yes) That stayed with people for a time, until perhaps those lessons were not exactly forgotten, but...

Sarah: Took a back seat?

Paul: Yes, but nevertheless there was a lot of good that came out of it and we can see that today's struggles are the new pathway to learning.

Yes, in the same way as your space travel has brought to you many good aspects of knowledge. Always look to that wider field, my dear friends, always look further and allow your mind to be aware of what is happening elsewhere. I know that for some of you it is almost impossible to go to that place, but let me assure you that nothing is impossible if you so desire.

Sarah: So, you're saying the planet needs all these troubles, in order to move forward, to get to the right place?

It does not need them, but it is part of the change; with it will come, as the gentleman has said, more understanding, more knowledge of what your own planet is all about.

Graham: I think we're getting better at recording events now through history, (Yes) and all of this information will be passed on to future generations; (Yes) so, mistakes of the past are more likely to be learned in the future.

Yes, and that is what you must focus on—focus on what good will come from all of these deeds.

Sara: I think also the common man is finding a voice really, because of all the government changes and camaraderie and a sense of community—I think all of these things will become stronger.

Yes, it may seem such a small thing to say, but in fact it is a big step forward. (Yes)

Sarah: But all the strife that goes on, there's an awful lot of innocent people who suffer.

But you cannot individualize everything. (No) Again you must forget, and I do not mean that in a harsh way, but you must forget the small world that you are living in and you must see the bigger picture.

Sara: Because we can't carry all of the burdens; (No) there are many who would perhaps like us to, but you can't actually contribute anything positive, unless you...

You can only use your minds—that is why it is imperative that you do not allow fear to overrule. I know all of you, my dear friends, understand these words and I apologize if I repeat them so often, but it is necessary I feel for you all to understand.

Sarah: What I was going to ask, actually Salumet, I know you were saying this is only a small thing, but the people who are suffering, were they aware or did they come back knowing that, or you can't generalise like that?

You must not generalise in that way, otherwise it becomes—your vision becomes clouded and that is not what we wish. Of course, we would wish that all human beings could live together in peace and in harmony. From time beginning on this planet there has always been disturbance of some kind; even before the human being was here, the planet was in turmoil. So, try again, as I have said, to read that bigger picture.

Paul: That's interesting that it is was already in turmoil (Yes) before we got here—that makes us feel a bit better.

Chuckles

I am glad, my dear friend...

Sarah: A bit better...

...a little better.

Mark: Which beings would they have been then?

Graham: It was the Angels, wasn't it?

Sarah: The planet itself...(Yes)

Pause

Mark: I was wondering where the turmoil was—who it was between?

In the land, in the air, in the seas—there was a gathering together, trying to neutralise and to bring love to all things.

Paul: So, there wasn't fear though then, I suppose?

Not in the sense that you would recognise—no, there was not that.

Sarah: Was it because it was such a young planet?

All planets have turmoil to begin with; some just are better at going forward with love, going forward and accepting knowledge.

Sarah: You have told us that we are the least intelligent beings in our universe...

Paul: Well... 'bottom of the ladder'.

Yes, I would rather say, 'bottom of the ladder'. Perhaps intelligence—that indicates physical attributes, so let's just say as far as planets and life goes, you are quite young.

Sarah: Yes—are the other planets in the universe—they too are going through struggles?

They will be having their own problems—I do not like the word 'problems', but it is for your understanding, (Yes) because we are speaking of complicated matters here. Every planet struggles to go forward.

Paul: Yeah, I mean it's a bit like childbirth I suppose—it can be painful and a struggle, but it's a necessary process.

Yes, and the result comes further along the way in time—yes, that is a good way to say it, yes.

Mark: So, when a planet's in turmoil, is there some kind of debate going on there, some kind of argument about direction?

Within the planet? (Yes) I would not say so, I would not say that, it is a natural progression. We are looking here with physical minds and making assumptions about what is happening elsewhere, when, in fact, it is a simple progress in all of creation; it is a very, very small part of going forward on every planet that exists.

Mark: It makes me think of the yin yang symbol with the movement (Yes) and the white and the black and the little dot in each one.

Whatever comes to you and helps with your understanding is perfectly fine, and there are many situations in human life, where you can come across happenings that help you to understand, and that is good by us.

Sara: So, it's an evolutionary pattern really? (Yes)

Graham: Going forward in time, there are planets in our universe we know are millions/billions of years older than this one, (Yes) where life has so much more time to pass through these changes and evolution; (Yes) so there must be some truly amazing civilizations in our universe.

There are, but that is not for you to know of at this time; but, yes, if you can look upon it in that sense, then you come a little nearer to understanding all of creation. (Yes)

Sarah: You did tell us some time ago Salumet that the beings on this planet were actually more advanced than us at one time and we went backwards. Have we begun to catch up with that time now?

Yes. (We have?) Yes, the understanding of ignoring what was given has returned, although very slowly, yes.

Sarah: And you did tell us—I forget how long ago it was you came—in 4 or 5 years we would be able to treat all known diseases, and now they're able to treat an awful lot more and every day practically you hear them saying, (Yes) we can now do whatever, so...

Yes, and I am sure also that you are aware of the discoveries being made from your seas, as I told you.

Sarah: Yes, that's right, yes.

Always, always be positive; there is so much good on this planet and hence my talk to you this time about acceptance, because really that is what it comes down to: acceptance of the evolution of your planet.

Paul: And it was very comforting I think, early this year I think you mentioned that there would be children coming—special children, the first to be born within the next few years and they would be able to sort of be able to steer the leaders of the world into better directions.

Yes, we are always trying to help, help you to become a better place, better to become better human beings, who will then go forward and be in spirit, yes.

Paul: Yes, we really do have—there is so much help available and yeah, I think—I certainly feel in very safe hands, (Yes) with it all.

Graham: There's a lot to look forward to in the future.

Yes, and that is what we would like you to do: be more positive and you will feel in your own bodies, in your own mind that power and that strength; it will come! And you are beginning to see it within this circle of friends, where spirit is trying very hard to make contact in order that you go forward and help others.

Sarah: Well, I certainly do feel that I've been helped and guided, (Yes) and Paul was saying the same...

We will always try to protect those who work for spirit.

Sarah: We're very grateful, thank you.

General agreement

Now, I feel that you are quite happy with my words

(Strong agreement) and please do meditate upon them, because you will be surprised what comes to you. (Thank you) So, I will leave you all again with my love; I do hear your prayers sometimes and cries for help and let me assure you once again that your prayers are always heard.

Thanks and farewells

Cho then followed, amusing us with a quick chat about how he was trying to keep those who had gathered this time, in order—suggesting they were a bit of a rabble etc. He said he would leave it to us again to see who was around. We then recapped methods of protection as discussed last week, particularly as Martin had not attended last week—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/6927722/2017_05_01+Cho%2B+protection.mp3

Eileen then had a message for Natalie. A friend had lost a watch recently and it was said that this would be found. There was then a message for Sabine, concerning Beatrice, who'd been complaining about her shoulder—there was also the letter 'M', which was the initial of Beatrice's grandson. Eileen also enquired if Sabine's grandfather had an interest in trains. (This could not be verified at this time)

We then sat in silence for around 5 minutes before Eileen enquired how individuals were feeling. One through Sarah then spoke briefly, giving advice—audio link:

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Your energy in this room is not quite as strong as sometimes. I would suggest you do not try to seek for those who wish to come to you, but relax, because when you get tense, you push the energy away. So, I will return and hope that this information has been helpful.

General thanks

Sara then said she felt the urge to make a sound like a chicken. Eileen replied that we should do whatever we feel. After a short pause, Sara indeed began to cluck like a hen, which made everyone laugh and served to lighten the atmosphere.

Sarah was then seeing the image of a caterpillar emerging from the ground. Mark then recounted a story of when Russell Brand met the Dalai Lama. Apparently, they were both so happy to shake hands that neither wanted to let go and they carried on until they ended up in the next room still shaking hands. The mentioning of the Dalai Lama seemed to connect with the one with Eileen. She sensed this was a powerful holy man. He was in prayer position, though the hands pointed downwards towards the Earth, instead of upwards and the head kept changing from male to female. Eileen was not able to get the name clearly, though it was something like Kalamon/Kahamon/Kahamoun...At this point Sarah was seeing a temple complex. Eileen then felt very tearful. She explained that this Master was trying to show her the Book of Life, but she was unable to look—it was simply too much at this time and so she had to close the book.

*Sara suggested that the symbolism of the caterpillar emerging from the Earth, the temple and the Master bringing the Book of Life were all connected with what Salumet had been saying earlier about the evolution of the planet and the transformations that were ongoing at this time of change. Serena added that the Akashic records are sometimes referred to as the Book of Life and we discussed the world at this time in a new light, where the problems and tensions were actually lessons and evolutions—all has been written in the great book, no need to get bogged down in the details. As Salumet once said: All things are known, all things have been. But do not forget, you are on a cycle of time. Therefore, without being too complicated in my explanation, I will say only this: What is to come, is past, what is past is the future; we are on a never-ending cycle of events.

Salumet 4th July 1994

Notes:

No nuclear Armageddon: Salumet stated emphatically On 18th July 1994: Many Masters have come to tread this Earth plane, at this particular time. There will not be a nuclear holocaust. That is our mission at this time in your evolution! That will not occur.

SALUMET — 05th June 2017

During healing prayers, our thoughts reached out concerning recent terrorist attacks. We tried not to judge anyone involved. There was next, for some reason, a period of much giggling, which became contagious around the room—Salumet then spoke—audio link:

Sarah: Good evening to you and welcome.

Good evening.

General welcomes

It is always good when we come together again my dear friends. We have listened carefully to your talking this evening and we have spoken about the troubles in your world at this time, and that it is all part of the planet's evolution; but, I was happy to hear you say how much good has come from these tragedies, on both sides of the coin: the lightness and the darkness—remember, I have told you that the darkness and the light need each other. I do not want you to forget those words; I will say only this to you: that the darkness will NEVER overtake the light, the light of LOVE, because that is what it is. And all of these happenings, my dear friends, in some strange way, you may feel, it brings some kind of unity to people, because it is allowing them to think more deeply about life and what you call death. And it will only be when this understanding becomes greater, will there truly be PEACE among mankind. So, I say to you again my dear friends, be joyful in all that you do, in the same way as this evening you have found laughter and joy in your hearts, and I am sure, each one of you, has felt the better for it.

Agreed

TEACH YOUR CHILDREN LOVE, teach them UNDERSTANDING, teach them TOLERANCE OF OTHERS, tolerance not only in the religious sense, but TOLERANCE FOR ALL HUMAN BEINGS who are different from yourselves. When you can do that my dear friends, you are acting in God's name. The Great Creator has allowed you to be upon this Earth at this time, and why do you think that is so? Because you have the capabilities to show Love and Understanding to others. So I say my dear friends, take yourselves forward in your lives today, live those lives as best you can in Understanding and in Love, but firstly, you must remember that you must love yourselves; because if you cannot do that, what hope is there for others? So, think again my dear friends, as I have done and asked you often to look deep within, and when you shine brightly, allow it to touch the many others who come into your lives, especially those people you find difficult to be with; you do not have to even speak, but you can send out Love. It is such a small word is it not in your English language? And yet, it has such powerful meaning. Now, if you have any questions for me this time, I will answer some.

Paul: There is a question from a reader—sorry I'll have to put a bit of light on to read it out. (a reader from Tasmania—David) He was reading the transcript where Sarah mentioned about mankind being the least intelligent beings, then I said, 'bottom of the ladder'—that was the phrase I think that you've used many years ago to describe humans on the Earth at the moment; and his question was: "In consideration that many other planets in our universe are populated with life that is of an infinitely higher intelligence than our own, does it always imply that a much higher intelligence level is associated with beings of great empathy, compassion, understanding, a great level of spirituality if you will".

Yes, I understand, and no, advancement does not always mean spirituality is higher, let me say that to you firstly.

Paul: So technological advancement does not mean...

Yes, yes, you understand this, (Yes) but yes, just because a planet has many abilities not known to you on Earth, does not mean they are superior in the words of Love and Understanding; in the same way as upon your Earth many human beings are intelligent, but not always sensible. So, the answer to your question is no that is not the case.

Paul: 'Intelligence' is a word some people struggle to define, (Yes) I like—I think once you defined it as: 'Intelligence is life itself'—is understanding...

Yes—it has to be intelligence for all existence; and yes, you are quite correct, let us define what intelligence is: are you speaking of intelligence as being a brain pattern? Are you speaking of intelligence as being a spiritual attribute? Or, how do you define? It depends how it is defined before you can use the word.

Paul: That's the problem, (Yes) I think on Earth, a lot of people look to these so-called intelligence tests. (IQ tests)

Yes, it is all connected with the human brain—that is what most people would understand by using intelligence; but, I would say we have to go much further than that. Of course, there are planets in existence who are far superior to mankind on this planet Earth—of course there are, it would only be natural, don't you feel, for this to be so? (Yes)

Sarah: When you say 'superior', you mean superior in intelligence, or superior...

That is why we are trying to define that word; if you are speaking of intelligence of the brain, that is different from spiritual intelligence, which encompasses the whole of existence and is able to use the energy of all existence. It is quite a complex matter to be speaking of.

Sarah: So, would you say—I mean, if all existence has intelligence would there be superior and inferior worlds?

I do not like the words 'inferior' and 'superior'.

Sarah: Neither did I when you said superior just now actually...

Yes, it creates difficulties, but because that is the way of the human tongue, it has to be explained in those ways, those terms; but let's just say there is a difference in all of the planets and you would not be aware of what is happening, because you do not yet, have their full understanding.

Sarah: Ah right, yes, that sounds better.

Yes, I knew you were struggling with those words. Sarah: Yes, I was.

So I hope, my dear friend, you can reply to the gentleman, (Yes) and that it may help him a little.

Paul: Yes, thank you very much.

Graham: I wanted to ask a question about life itself and what the end game is, in the sense of, where do we ultimately become and what do we ultimately become, and I was thinking perhaps that, as our understanding and our spirituality deepens, our Love deepens that eventually we become so refined that eventually we may become part of the Great Creative Force itself, in the far, far future and perhaps in some ways we already are?

That—you have touched upon a good point, my dear friend. Of course we become much more refined as time—we will use the word 'time', but again, it is a word that cannot be explained fully. As time continues, let us say, the spirit becomes more and more attuned to what life is all about, (Yes) and I will say to you only this, that life itself is meant for returning to the Great Creator, that is the purpose of ALL LIFE, in ALL SPACES, to become part of that Great Creator from which we came. (Yes) You cannot say to anyone when this will happen—I cannot even tell you that. So that is something that will happen eventually, but it will take eons of time. (Yes)

Sarah: So, are you trying to say that everybody and everything will become part of the Great Creative force?

I am saying that is what everything is striving towards.

Sarah: I remember once you said to us that we would never—I can't remember the exact words—we would never get near the Great Creative Force—something like that.

You become part of it—there is no reason to think you become close to, you are putting a name to something that cannot be named. Do you understand? It is a blending that goes on for eons of time.

Sarah: But once that's happened, when everybody and everything is blended with the Great Creative Force...

It is for ever-increasing, it never ends.

Sarah: I was going to say, there's always going to be somebody or something that's striving to get there.

It is never going to happen for all things and all people to reach that stage at the same time.

Sarah: At the same time, OK, right.

Graham: Going back then, you have said that we are all inside us, we carry the spark of divinity, (Yes) which I think means that we were once part of the Great Creative Force, (Yes) and that in some time in the past we have splintered away to go on the pathways that we have.

Yes, you have put that very succinctly, (Yes) yes, that is a good way to describe it in a simple manner.

Graham: And has this happened, the breaking away to something we will eventually return to, happened? Has it happened because energy always has to keep moving?

Energy is always transmuting, yes, it has to continue onwards, but this is a very deep subject my friend.

Graham: Yes, it's one I've pondered on...

Yes, I know, I know, but it is a subject many people will pull away from, because it is too powerful for their understanding; but yes, I will say to you, we are all sparks of the Great Creator and that is the reason so many people say: 'why am I here—why do I return to the Earth?' It is because you are trying to attain that journey forward, to become part of what is the Great Creator.

Graham: Am I right in thinking that the reason that we split away is because of energy always moving?

(Yes) Otherwise nothing would ever happen...

Yes—no, energy is always moving, always changing, always expanding.

Graham: Yes, because I've tried to imagine the Great Creative Force that there was never a splintering away from the Great Creative Force—the spark of divinity never happened—then there would be nothing happening, in a way. Because we do splinter away from the Great Creative Force, that enables all this learning to happen.

Yes, yes you have thought this out very carefully, (Yes) I can tell.

Graham: So is this, in its own way, that the Great Creative Force itself progresses?

It is how it expands, (Yes) that is the way I would put it, it is the way that force expands, and further than that I cannot explain it to you, because we have not reached that point yet.

Graham: Yes, I can understand that.

It is difficult for me to say something that I do not know. (Yes)

Paul: Could you look at it in another way: we are sparks of it, the Great Creative Force, this is how the Great Creative Force reproduces? We are the offspring?

You are offspring, if you wish to put it that way, but it is all part of energy, you are all energy; you may have physical bodies, but you are energy, you understand that?

General agreement

And energy is always changing, but the purpose of life is to try to attain that level of existence, which comes from being part of that great force.

Sarah: I can imagine the Great Creative Force having a nucleus that is stable, and then the rest of it is, as Graham said, making it better, I don't think the nucleus could get any better...

There is no nucleus; that is all I can tell you.

Sarah: Right...I don't suppose there is one, but you could think of it like that, but it's not like that?

I would say to you, allow your minds, and I mean the spiritual mind, to go deep within and ask of these questions, you may find that you have your own answers. But I hope that has helped you with your question, my dear friend.

Graham: Yes, thank you—it's something I've been pondering on for a long time, (Yes) because it is fun to think about these things and it lifts you to a higher vibration just thinking about these things.

Yes, that is why I say: ask the questions and you will find some answers.

Graham: It helps put everything that happens around us into some kind of perspective.

Yes, so many of you, as I have said, puzzle why you are here, why you have numerous lives, what is it you are trying to learn and to achieve? But if you realise there is something to strive for, shall I say, it gives you purpose in your lives.

Graham: Yes, it certainly does—yes, thank you Salumet.

Sarah: I remember you telling us we could liken ourselves to a diamond that you dig up out of the ground—it looks like nothing when you dig it up, but you take an aspect of it and you polish it up, and that's what we're doing here, we're polishing up that aspect. (Yes) When that complete diamond is sparkling, is that when we blend back into the Great Creative Force?

No, that is when you move forward. (Oh, right) You will not become part of the Great Force at that stage. There are many stages to existence—yes.

Sarah: That's interesting. (Yes) So, when we move forward, when we've got that diamond all shiny...

It may be, I know your question, it may well be that you could return as I do to teach and to help, and sometimes it is not possible to return to live an ordinary life, because you have reached a level, a degree of knowledge, which does not allow you to return. Do you understand?

Sarah: Yes, I can understand that, yes, because it's only actually with you, you're a conglomerate of beings, (Yes) it's only an aspect of you that's come back as well.

Yes, do not forget that, my dear friend, that I come as a conglomerate of beings, so the knowledge you are given is not from one single entity or one single power, but the knowledge of many.

Graham: Yes—is your conglomeration increasing with time as you go into the future are you becoming a bigger conglomerate?

As of now, I would say no, because there are many who have work to do at this time. Until I return and others return to that conglomeration, it will remain as it is and I can tell you, it will remain for some time, (Yes) sometime of existence.

Well my dear friends, I hope I have helped you just a little and I will now take my leave of you all, knowing that I leave you cloaked in my great love.

General thanks

Sarah: Yes, you always help us Salumet when you come through, thank you.

Yes, remember I am with you all.

General thanks

Next one spoke through Sarah—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/7161378/2017_06_05+control+via+sarah.mp3

Paul: Hello—you're very welcome to speak.

Thank you. (Some heavy breaths)

Graham: Were you here before?

I have been trying to come to speak with you briefly.

Paul: Ah yes, sorry we didn't notice earlier.

I know you were busy with other things, that is quite OK. My reason for coming is quite simple; we have been watching you all this evening and have seen how much you are all progressing. We hope that you will all join together one more time this evening, not trying to feel what we are giving you, but that love from within we wish you to pour out to each other. That energy that will be created by this action, will uplift you all and when you leave this meeting of yours, you will take with you an energy that was depleted in your being and which we hope you will pass on to others.

Paul: Yes, so how do we go about it, we send our love to each person individually within this room?

I would say concentrate on an area in the middle of the room and let that love energy then disperse to all.

Paul: OK, shall we all try that now?

Graham: Sounds like a lovely exercise.

If you would be so kind as to wait a few moments, (Yes) so that this instrument can also join in with you.

Paul: Yes of course, yeah, thank you very much.

And thank you for your time and understanding.

Generals thanks

After the exercise (approx. 10 minutes) Eileen kept hearing the name Samuel. Jan immediately replied that Samuel was a slave (1 of 12) on a ship, shackled in chains. This was a rescue via Jan. There was no speech, but Jan was able to receive clairvoyance regarding the situation and Eileen then was able to guide Samuel towards the Light and home—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/7161388/2017_06_05+Slave+rescue+via+Jan++Eileen.mp3

Eileen suggested we then send healing thoughts to those other slaves on board the ship.

We then did the usual checks to see if everyone was back and feeling OK. Sabine was still feeling her hair being pulled and so Eileen suggested she ask whoever it was to leave now. Jan then got clairvoyance that this little girl was Arabella and she had taken a liking to Sabine, but that Cho was waiting and it was time to close.

Notes:

Darkness and Light balance—Salumet spoke about this on 14/08/2000: Many expressions are used within your world. You say ‘angels of light’ and ‘angels of darkness’, or you use the terms ‘good’ and ‘evil’. Let me tell you this my dear friends: Light and darkness are but reflections of the same vibration. That is not contradictory, but it is life itself, it belongs to the scheme of life. I hesitate here because I want you to absorb those words. Light and darkness co-exist, because they belong to the plan of all existence. After all, can you not see that perhaps the darkness—and we will use those words in order that your understanding is there—light and darkness—we will hold those words— without the darkness, which you feel to be destructive, yes? Am I right in that assumption, that you mainly feel darkness to be destructive? (Yes) What if I say to you my dear friends that clearing out, destroying, is sometimes the forerunner for rebuilding and recreation. Would you then view it in the same way? (No) No, then you understand that the vibration of darkness is necessary. The light and the darkness in your world needs to be finely balanced. We have spoken that darkness always seeks the light and that is because balance is necessary.

This is perhaps also why Salumet has asked us in the past to send our love to terrorists, paedophiles and those who seem to be in spiritual darkness, as they need the balance. (of dark and light) When there is balance, there can be peace. 17/09/2001 It gladdens my heart that not only were your prayers and thoughts with those who, after all, have come home to our world and are perfectly safe, but it gladdens me to hear that your thoughts have been with those that you call the perpetrators, because you see my dear friends, they too need help.

Intelligence: Salumet distinguishes between ‘brain intelligence’, which is perhaps associated with intellectual knowledge, and ‘spiritual intelligence’, encompassing the whole of existence. And having great brain intelligence, doesn’t necessarily imply high spiritual intelligence, compassion etc. So, there are 2 forms of intelligence and this may be why Psychologists over the years, have struggled to define and even measure intelligence. Perhaps IQ tests are some measure of ‘brain intelligence’, but even that has been debated by academics. (Salumet also spoke of intelligence on 30/09/96)

Great Creative Force—Salumet has discussed this much over the years and it was Leslie who first broached the subject 09/10/1995: Of course, I have spoken many times of energies—many, many times. I have spoken of the many religions within your world, I have spoken on the differing names that each peoples call the one they so worship. All of these names matter not, because you see, the very life-force which you call God, is an intelligent force. How could it not be, how could there not be a perfect energy, to have created all that we have?

Les: This is what prompted the question I thought there must be an intelligent energy.

We go on to deep matters my son, but let me say this to you:

No one, no one has ever attained such perfection, as to come before this ‘Intelligent Force,’ as you have called it. Let us use the term to supply these answers to you question. Within spiritual worlds, there has to be perfect laws, there has to be an intelligence behind them, for it to work, can you not see that?

Les: Of course, yes.

I am pleased you can, because so many cannot. You all are very sparks of this Intelligent Force, all of us, whether of this world or not, all of the cosmos comes from the Intelligent Force, as you call it.

It cannot be otherwise, it cannot be otherwise. But rather like each drop in the ocean, each drop can never fully understand what part it has to play, within that greater thing, can you understand?

Les: Yes, I have used that analogy myself.

All of you are so important—it is that very spark within you, that reaches out for that higher intelligence, which you call Spirit, which is in fact only another word, for the truth of a search for that returning 'home,' of which I have spoken.

Les: Quite and to follow through what you've said, it requires all the drops to make the ocean, otherwise the ocean couldn't exist.

There has to be perfection, there has to be that reaching out for attainment from you all, to create the perfection of you all, can you see?

SALUMET — 31st July 2017

Our healing thoughts were directed mainly at suffering caused by wars, past and present and we prayed for peace around the world. Salumet picked up on our thoughts—audio link:

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

General welcomes

If only you could see how much you have grown; it is a great joy to us to know that you can discuss many things with patience and love, without too much condemnation. I have been listening to your conversations you may gather. I would like to say just one thing about this, that wars have existed in your world since almost the planet was created; you can make assumptions about why all of these happenings occur, but what I wish to say to you, my dear friends, is that death should not be looked upon as the most tragic of things in your life. I say to you, my dear friends, that birth is the most traumatic of all, because they leave behind them all the love and joy which they have come to know. So although we do not wish man to fight against man, in speaking of death, be happy that so many have returned home, where they will find love and support in all things. Your world as you know, can be quite a violent place at times, but one of you said: 'not much good comes from all of these things'. I have to disagree just a little. There is much that comes from these actions; it comes with the change of thought within people; like your good selves, where you strive to help all people, not only the Innocent, but the guilty. So I say to you dear friends, continue with your discussions and your love and heartfelt wishes for others. It gladdens us here in Spirit, to see groups such as this trying to understand, without too much criticism.

Sarah: That was me actually Salumet, that said about war, (yes) but what I actually meant was, when people fight over land or fight for whatever, I do understand that good comes out of it, but they don't achieve anything—you know, they tried to take, say a piece of land and they don't achieve that...

But it may not happen within this lifetime, but let me reassure you that there is a reckoning, there is an understanding of what they have done. It may not be in one lifetime, it may take others, but let me assure you that that soul will grow from those experiences, and that is what is important. You understand? (Yes) Yes.

Lilian: And for the people they leave behind, they're learning too.

Yes, it is like a ripple on the water, it affects all people, you understand? (Mm)

Sarah: I don't know—my Grandmother's brother died in the war and he was 18, but actually she never got over it, it affected her, her whole life. But she had the understanding of loss, which is a lesson to be learned.

Sarah: Ah right, OK.

I know it seems cruel to many of you on this Earth planet, but it is not. Again, I beg you, my dear friends, to look to the larger picture; (Yes) it is a way for the soul to grow. Any trouble that comes to your lives, look upon it as a learning, not as something to be despondent about, because that only creates more fear, and you know we have spoken of fear so often, it is the most negative of all emotions.

Lilian: Yes, I was just thinking about my daughter and her family especially one of the children at the moment—well, it's not a child anymore, but with all the problems, both my daughter and myself said we are learning lessons, (Yes) we can see that we didn't understand until these things are happening.

No—there always will be lessons to learn, you may not even recognise them as life's lessons, but there are many and I say only to you: try to accept what is before you, what is with you at this present time, try not to look back in sorrow and in anger, because they are emotions which are negative. Look forward with love, look forward with acceptance that life must move forward. I do not say it is easy, it is not for human beings, if it was not, you would not be here, you would be perfect beings with no need to learn. I hope you can take my words this time and try to understand.

Sarah: Well I hope the lady that Paul was asking for help for a lady whose daughter was shot— (yes) so this is also—if she can take those words that would be a great comfort to her.

Yes, it may help her. I am sorry to say that with some people they hold on to negative emotions, which then engulfs them from many of their years and this lady is one of them. But give her hopeful words, try to give her understanding that death is not the end, (Yes) death is peaceful and full of love.

Paul: We know from all the years coming here that people have come back—even Leslie, who used to run the circle, has come back with glowing reports about the Spirit world / the life after.

Yes, and they are only on a very low level of energy. Imagine that energy and that love surpassed by all time. It is beautiful, it is something that you will not experience for quite some time. But I reassure you that it is there, it is waiting to enfold you within those spiritual arms. Many people who wish to help and who are helping you even now upon the Earth plane. And that brings me to something that you have been made aware of recently, about the Silence, (yes) and going within the Silence, being made aware that all things, all beauty, all knowledge lies within the Silence. You found it interesting? (Yes) Yes, I hope that since then, my dear friends, you have allowed yourselves to enter that Silence once more—or at least try.

Paul: Yes, I've tried a few times to be more aware of the Silence.

Of course it will be easier when you are here.

Lilian: Yes, definitely!

Yes, it is much easier because of the amount of energy that you all create; and that statement is made especially for our dear friend, who you call Serena, because she was not too sure of her part in this group, but what she does not see that she gives off pure energy whilst within the room; and you all play a very big part.

Paul: That seems to be part of the—this Silence, it almost feels like that's when you can hear this energy (yes) and feel it.

It is almost tangible, yes. You should be able to feel, hear, do so much within that energy; and it is something, my dear friends, that will help you with your own development, because it is essential at this point that you now move forward, that you now move forward in development of your own spiritual selves, so that the soul may expand.

Are there any questions at this time?

Sarah: I did ask actually within the group last week, but it might be nice to have an answer so that other people who read the transcripts can also know. I've been reading George's book (Proof-reading the new book) and he's been talking about the Pyramids and the Extra-Terrestrial help that they had doing it. How did these extra-terrestrials live on this planet while they were working on the pyramids, because they probably came from a planet where the atmosphere would have been quite different—so how did they manage to live here?

Quite easily, because you see, they have (what) you call 'powers', that you upon this Earth do not have and did not have at that particular time—there were a few, but in speaking about nourishment and food, they are able to materialize anything. This is something you will not fully grasp, because there is not the energy available at this particular time of existence to show you, but these travellers, and that is what they were, travellers, who could go about, not only the atmosphere of the Earth and their planets, but the universe, the many universes. It is a very hard thing to explain to you now, but if you had been here when they came, you would have been so surprised at their capabilities. Have you heard the story in your Christian Bible about Jesus producing bread and wine? (Yes) If you take that analysis of it, it then becomes easier for you to understand. How did he produce bread and wine? And he did, he was a very good medium and he had powers that not many people had. So you see, the capabilities of what you call 'aliens' and I call them 'soul brothers'—that is much nicer way to describe them—soul brothers—they were able to materialize whatever was needed, whatever was needed, whether it was movement or any kind of tool, or indeed their nourishment and food.

Paul: And the pyramids themselves sometimes were materialized.

Yes of course, what other explanation can there be?

Sarah: But how did they breathe Salumet—they were just able to be here?

Yes, to adapt—they adapted themselves, as they materialized other things, they were able to change their whole way of being.

Ben: Did some of them stay on as Pharaohs, when the others left?

I have to say 'no' to that; I know what you are speaking of, but no, they did not remain as pharaohs.

Sarah: So they all went back, did they? (Yes)

Ben: Because there are some hieroglyphics with elongated skulls and things, aren't there?

Yes, which in fact, would backup what I have just said, that they were able to change and transmute.

Sarah: So whilst they were here, would they have looked just like the other people that were here? They could if they wished. You have to understand that energy is able to transmit itself into anything it desires. We are speaking of deep matters here, we are speaking of things that you will not fully understand.

Sarah: So this is a different energy?

No, it is the energy of Life.

Sarah: Ah, OK.

It is just that you have not reached that point whilst you are on this Earth, for that to happen. Paul: Have there been humans who have been able to reach that point to change their form?

Not from this planet. There are a few people who devote their whole life to meditation; they are able in a small way to alter things and they are even able to pass to Spirit if they so wish; there are those beings upon your planet, but not to the same degree as the soul brothers did.

Sarah: So Jesus, he was able to use that energy to create the ... (yes) he wouldn't have been able to have changed himself?

No, he was a human being whilst upon the Earth, but he was a great medium in as far as the powers of Spirit were available to him. I hope that has helped you.

Sarah: Yes that's very interesting, thank you.

Natalie: If these soul brothers can take on our appearance, (yes) if they wish to does that mean would they ever breed with humankind?

There are many descriptions and stories—yes, they would have been interested in the way that the human reproduced, and there are many tales of this happening, but I have to say, that is not something I can confirm for you. As far as I know, that is not the case, although they would have been interested in the workings of the human body.

Ben: Do the soul brothers, are they walking amongst us at the moment—if they can change their appearance and fit in with us without us knowing, are they actually amongst us at the moment on Earth?

Yes, I would have to say 'yes' to that question.

Ben: Because there's lots of theories about certain governments having access to technology, (yes) such as the American government, for example, and there was also a theory that in the Second World War, the Germans were experimenting with flying saucers (Yes) and that sort of technology as well, (yes) and I wondered if that really—whether there was a link actually, whether the Germans had the technology, or were developing the technology with the help of extra-terrestrials? Is that something you can comment on?

The technology has always been there, it has always existed, although you as humans do not fully understand that yet, because of the idea of energies being unavailable to you; but yes, the soul brothers can come to this planet, they can transmute to look like you, they are among you, but I do not see that any would be destructive. Natalie: What is their purpose for being among us?

Interest in other planets—they are interested in life as they know it; in the same way, I would say, as you wish to travel to other countries in this world; you take yourself and you blend in, do you not? (Mm)

Ben: Would they also be here to help try and avoid a nuclear war, for example? Would they interfere and step in and help us?

They would ... I have to say prayers would reach them, but what you have to remember is they are not Spirit, they haven't passed to Spirit. So they are limited to a degree, although their powers and energy is much more potent than yours.

Sarah: So would they take sides, for example—I was thinking of Turing, the man who cracked the Enigma Code. Would somebody like that, would an extra-terrestrial or soul brother, would they take sides, and think, well what that country is doing not what I would do, so I'll help the other side?

That would be entirely up to their free will. You must remember that all of you here and in other planets and in other universes, have their own free will; even when they return home to Spirit their free will is still there. So I would say, you cannot control someone who is behaving in a strange manner, let's say, about weapons, or ... They have to carry on and we have to try to alter their way of thinking; whether they be a soul brother, or a human being on this planet, we have to do 'good', we have to strive for love and peace and all of those things.

But I should not become too deeply involved with what others are doing. You are here, my dear friends, to find Love and Peace for all of your own human people. That is your purpose to help one another, because you cannot beat the love energy—you cannot. You may try to convince yourselves, or you may convince yourselves of what others can do. Whatever is done upon this planet, has to be reckoned on when the time comes for you to return home.

Paul: It's a little bit like what we were talking about. (earlier) This circle, for number of years, tried to get phenomenon known as Direct Voice, which would have been quite exciting, with the ectoplasm, forms and voices in the air, but what we ended (up) getting was something much better than that, we got Truth coming from ...

Lilian ...You!

Paul: ... a very deep part of Spirit—we got Love and Truth ... and phenomenon ...

And that is what you have to continue to work with. It matters not what happens in the growth of the Pyramids, although we understand your interest, of course we do, because human beings are full of curiosity, but first they should go within, they should recognise themselves and what they feel—that is where the knowledge and the power come from, the striving to return home as a good and decent human being who has done all to help others. It is so easy to be within a war, as you have been discussing, for many, because that is all their mind is set upon. Lilian: Yes, I can see that.

Yes, it is up to every individual to be responsible for his own thinking; but I hope it has helped you a little, to understand that great need and the happenings on your planet; but you could spend the whole of your lifetime wondering why—and 'why' is a word that is not helpful. You understand? (Yes) Why did this happen, why did he do that—in all the time you spend in 'whys', you could have the Truth and the Knowing from The Silence.

Paul: Yes, it's a waste of energy.

It is indeed, but I hope that I have brought you something to think about.

Agreed

Yes, you are creatures of curiosity; sometimes we are amused by you—you sit and wonder 'why'.

Serena: Even our children do, don't they? (Yes) But WHY mummy, oh WHY? (Giggles)

It is true. Now my dear friends, I will take my leave of you this time. There are others to come, if you so desire to allow them to use you.

Sarah: Thank you very much for coming.

Lilian: It's been very interesting—food for thought.

Paul: As always...

And who needs food for Thought? . . .

As Eileen returned she saw a big sunflower, which seemed to connect with Di. Eileen also got the name of Di's dog. She said there had been a discussion in family—nothing 'big', but just to let her know that spirit knows what's going on in our lives in general. There was also a message for Sarah concerning a friend (Anna) who needed some healing thoughts at this time.

Next, Cho spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/7553299/2017_07_31+Cho.mp3

Hallo!

All: Hello Cho.

I not stay long.

Lilian: I think you say that a lot when you come.

Giggles

I know, I thought you nice lady (Giggles) You lady in charge.

Lilian: Well, maybe...maybe not.

No, you ARE. There's one more who wants to come through please, with lady over there.

Sarah: Who me? (Yes) I did feel actually somebody was trying to come through me a little while ago. Thank you.

And then that will finish your evening, when that one been.

General thanks

I say good bye.

All: Ciao Cho.

Ciao.

Lilian: It was a short visit.

Oh, she cheeky now, I was going, now you bring me back.

Giggles

Di: You have to make us laugh before you go.

Yeah...

Then the one expected through Sarah spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/7553304/2017_07_31+control+via+sarah.mp3

Paul: Good evening.

A good evening.

All: Good evening.

I have been asked to come to you to tell you that we are looking out for extra energy from each one of you. You have been given this evening some help to produce this energy that will last you for some time. With this energy we would ask you to try to use it in the best way you feel possible. We know that many of you are concerned with others, so this energy could also be used to help them. So whatever situation you find yourself in, please remember that this energy is with you and it can be used the way you feel best. It is a gift to you for all that you do in this group, and for that we are most grateful. So, with these words I will end and I understand it is also the end of your meeting. So, thank you for your time and please, use this energy, it is there for you.

General thanks—Sarah commented that initially she'd had the sensation of shrinking, but when she started channelling, suddenly felt very big—like Alice in Wonderland.

Notes:

Soul Brothers: The topic of Extra-terrestrials – Soul Brothers, has been discussed many times over the years.

For previous transcripts—website link:

The Silence: One through Eileen spoke last week on the Silence, which will certainly be interesting to work on during our meditations:

I have come this evening, to encourage you all to listen to the silence, the silence that is within this room. I would like you all, if you would, to take a moment and realise how loud the silence is. Within that silence, there are voices of your loved ones, of the voice of Spirit.

General thanks

We hope you understand now, how important it is to get to know the silence, because within the silence, lies all things. Please become a little more aware of this in your daily meditations and you will find that not only loved ones but those who wish to help you will come on that wave of Love.

War/Death/Loss: Death (and taxes) seem to be inevitable, but our reaction to them generally needs to change to one of celebration. There is a website page about returning Home:

<http://www.salumetandfriends.org/death-returning-home/>

As Salmet said after the death of Princess Diana (01/09/97): I would wish that your whole planet could move away from these occasions of deep mourning. When will you realise that death is not for sorrow, death is to rejoice, because to us my dear friends, it is your birth, it is your birth in returning home to those who have loved and who have helped you throughout your earthly trials.

Les: That has given us a great deal of comfort and we do appreciate you having told us, particularly that it wasn't an act of freewill, on the part of others.

Her time was here—her time had come.

Les: Good. Then we wish her God's speed.

Do not mourn her; she will know that she has been much-loved—she is aware! I do not wish you to speak of anyone who passes to this world, as if they are forgotten; they are vibrant, they are alive, more alive than you my dear friends.

Les: Yes we can accept that too! (Chuckles)

So, mourn not, but rejoice in the life that she has lived.

U-tube clip of 'Iz', a musician from Hawaii, who also passed away in 1997, and whose funeral was like a celebration (see end of song) <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=V1bFr2SWP1I>

SALUMET — 4th September 2017

Salumet spoke this evening about the Earth and other universes, DNA + instinct, artificial intelligence and the need to reject fear in our lives—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/7931918/2017_09_04+salumet.mp3

Paul/Graham: Good evening Salumet.

Good evening.

Greetings

As always we feel great joy, my dear friends, when we see how you have gathered together for the good of others. I would say to you that each one of you will feel uplifted by the time that you leave this room.

Thanks

I wish to say to you that your planet at this moment in time seems to be quite disruptive, and no matter how many times I tell you not to worry, you cannot but help do so, only because you are human. I wish to say to you, my dear friends, it is not only disruption on the earth planet, but it comes from the nearest universe to you; and you know that there are many. So again I will repeat words that I have said to you so often: accept what is happening, give all of your love to those who are disruptive and spread your love to all people; but not only that, but to send your love to the universe—spread it wider. So, we thank you again for the thoughts that are given to all who dwell here upon the earth planet.

Sarah: Salumet, how can the other universe affect our planet?

Because you are all joined; one cannot exist without the other.

Sarah: So does that mean that everywhere around, not just us, is being affected by this?

Part of the Universe, not all. As I have said, there are many universes that you will never become aware of in a lifetime.

Sarah: No, but there are an awful lot of planets in our universe.

Yes, and it is a universal thing, it is something that has happened before throughout all time; but when you are here in the flesh, listening to all that is happening, you cannot help but let your emotions go out of control.

Sarah: Are you able to tell us what's going on in the other universe?

That is of no consequence at this time; all you need to know is that the problems that you see is not confined to the planet Earth. You know that the Planets influence each other, (yes) each hour, each day, each week, throughout all of your earthly time. (yes) So, I say to you again, my dear friends, what you have is the most powerful weapon, and that is your love for all mankind. You have to become Love. (yes) We have spoken many times of love, (yes) but I say again to you, don't think of it, but FEEL it. When you FEEL LOVE, there is no need for words. Do you understand?

Agreed

Paul: Yes, I don't know if it helps at all, it's much like as you said, the planets are all influencing us, the earth and everything and the astrologers knew all about that, but it seems a step further, the other universes, particularly the one nearest to the earth also has an influence, so (yes) it's all worth ... we don't need to know, I guess, but I suppose it would be lovely to have some inkling as to the other universes, but we can't I guess, so it's just a question of embracing them in our love as well. (yes)

Sara: And we know that it will pass in time—the troubled time will pass.

The troubles cannot last, because time continues; it will not last.

Sara: And love and joy are our greatest protection (yes) for everyone.

Yes, you have to feel the love, feel the love for your planet, for other planets, for the universe that is close to you. These happenings have happened since I do not know when, but they have always been, there has always been upsets and wars and natural disasters, which we have discussed in past times; and what you consider to be disasters are just part of the evolution.

Sarah: I tend to think of wars being created by a person, but that person is perhaps being influenced by the other universes, so it's not ...

Yes, you have to go to the energy of all things, and when you have an imbalance that is when upsets are created, down to the very basic level. Paul: So if we can somehow restore the balance, that's all that's required maybe?

That is what we try to achieve, not only here upon your earth, but from Spirit; there are many working, many angelic beings, who are around all of you at these times, but I do not want you to think that these are unusual times.

Sarah: We've got the imbalances, are we talking about the energy of physical things? What about in Spirit, are there imbalances over there as well?

Not the degree that you would understand. There may be a slight imbalance of energy, but it is not disruptive, like it is upon your Earth. (Thank you) The subject of energy is a great one and I do not feel that this time, the capability from you, of understanding, because not only here does mankind feel he does not have the wisdom, but also some of those who have already passed to Spirit feel they do not always understand what is happening.

Paul: The energies—does that relate to the dark and the light?

Of course, yes, you have to always go back to my words; if you question anything, reread the words that you have placed upon your papers and see what has been said before. How many times on your planet has there been ceaseless worry, misunderstandings of, 'Will the planet survive?'

Paul: It always comes back to fear, doesn't it?

Yes, you are quite correct; and how many times do you see the people in your streets saying, 'The World is nigh?'

Agreed

So often ... So you must, my dear friends, try to keep everything balanced within your own hearts and mind, because unless you can do this, you cannot help others. And your understanding—the people's understanding is growing. I know you do not feel this, but I assure you that people's understanding is becoming much greater.

Sarah: When you say that, 'becoming much better', about Spirit, or everything?

About understanding life on the Earth and, of course, about Spirit; that is the most important part.

Sarah: It is surprising the number of people ... I always try and bring in a bit of Spirit somewhere along the line and it's amazing how many people are interested, (yes) many more than don't want to know.

Many seeds have been sown, yes, and remember I have told you there are those coming to this world; children who have great knowledge and love and wisdom to help this planet—remember that also, send out your love to them, even although they have not yet arrived.

Paul: Yes, I don't know, why it's a very exciting thought that they are preparing to come and bring all that love and balance.

Yes, their understanding is much greater than many who have already come, including yourselves, although I have to say it took quite a while to gather you all together. We feel that as human beings and Spirit, you are indeed great ones.

Sarah: Nice of you to say. Well, we've been helped an awful lot by you Salumet. We'd never have reached anywhere near where we've got to if you hadn't have come to us ...

I thank you for those words, but it is I who needs to give thanks to all of you. There have been many changes over your earthly years, and yet you still come together and give of yourself, of your spiritual love in order that others may live a decent life, with understanding.

Graham: I think one of the reasons we come, is that you were talking about feeling love, and yet this is one place we really do feel it, (yes) we really do feel the love amongst us and from Spirit as well—it's very tangible.

Sara: Yes, definitely, and it's not only that, because we've been coming for so long, I think all of us have experienced the wonderful impact on our own lives, of the knowledge that we've been given—we've felt so many results, positive results and ...

Yes, you cannot deny what you feel, (no) you can disregard the words of another, but you cannot deny what you feel within your soul.

Sara: And in many ways it's been one of the most important learning processes of my whole life really—this group has helped me so much to understand more—you've helped us so much to understand more.

But you see, when you come within a body, to live a life upon this planet, you are not perfect beings. You know, people say beautiful babies would never have a negative thought. Let me surprise you and tell you that those beautiful babies have already existed with all the love and emotions, the range of emotions that go with living a life here.

So, have you anything to ask?

Graham: I was going to ask you a follow up question, because I think it was Sarah a few months ago, who mentioned somebody who had a bash on the head and they were able to play the piano, where they hadn't been able to and you said that it was recorded in the DNA from many lifetimes earlier, (yes) and I just wonder if this was really how instinct comes in, that we often talk perhaps rather glibly about, you know, 'that's instinct', how a baby knows how to suckle, how animals know how to find their way across a continent and things. I was just wondering if all of this again, is written into their DNA from perhaps many lifetimes earlier?

All genes have knowledge, (yes) I believe I said, yes, of course you can never destroy energy and memory from Spirit is energy; you can forget with the brain, the physical brain, but you can never destroy or forget that which is part of Spirit. So yes, there is always knowledge available within you as human beings, but that energy exists in a wider sense throughout all of the universal energies. Again you go to deep matters, where one answer would not be enough. (yes) You understand?

Graham: Yes, so one way that this energy can be expressed is recorded in the genes, but that's just one way.

Yes, and once you come to human form that information can be tapped into, (yes) of course. Sara: And that's where we have memory from perhaps other lives too—there may be some memory of something we've done before that could be developed.

Yes, of course, yes, you are all capable of many things, but if the physical brain does not seek and search, it will never know.

Sarah: There's a girl recently who started playing the piano and she started composing when she was around about 3. I think she's 12 now and she's giving concerts and has written operas and all sorts, (yes) and that's obviously also from what's happened before?

Yes, of course, you all have retained memory from past times, whether you understand or accept it, it is there, it can never be destroyed. Sarah: So if you've done bad things in a previous life, (yes) or things you know you shouldn't have done, could you start doing them again in this life, if you felt that's what you needed to do?

That is possible, that is possible, it would depend whether the Spirit was ready to change or not; and yes that has happened, where people have returned and carry some of what you consider to be unhealthy ways of living.

Sarah: Because you wonder sometimes why some of these people do some of the things they do; but maybe that's not necessarily brought from a previous life, it's something they've decided in this lifetime?

Yes, of course, that is why you cannot judge, you do not know that answer until you return to Spirit, yes.

Sarah: On a slightly different tack, you've said to us that cancer—well, all illnesses are something that we have created ourselves, maybe not in this lifetime, but in previous lifetimes. When animals get cancer, is that the same thing, have they done something wrong?

Yes, it is an unbalance, the animals as well as humans, become unbalanced. That should not surprise you.

Graham: They think, but not perhaps in the same way that we do.

No, that is true, their thinking patterns are different; animals are different from you as human beings, but they are still 'prone', shall I say, to imbalances.

Sarah: How would they get imbalanced, an animal? Could you give us an example?

Because like people, you can have angry animals, you can have animals who become so afraid that they do not mix with other animals—there are many, many reasons.

Paul: They can become depressed, I think.

Yes, the same as any human being.

Sara: So they can all benefit from healing ...

Graham: ...and love.

And animals will give you unconditional love, if they are treated properly.

Sarah: Because I've watched some of those vet programmes and the owners are absolutely distraught that the animal's got cancer, so it isn't a case of them not loving the animal.

It is what the animal feels and does itself. You cannot blame another for any illness that occurs, either in an animal or in the human body. You see it happen when so many are told they will not survive, and they do. You have to then give an explanation for why this has happened—why does it happen with some, but not others? But remember, you all have to pass with something, unless you have the capability of understanding your own Spirit.

Pause

Paul: There is a question from a reader, can you take another question?

I will take one more before I leave you.

Paul: They expressed concern that the way artificial intelligence or 'AI' as it's called, is developing so quickly with computers and robots, they wondered if at some point these computers and robots will get so ... they'll develop an intelligence of sorts that goes beyond humans, and they could even annihilate humans at some point; but there's that general fear I think, being expressed about how quick, the rapidity of technological development at the moment.

Yes, we are well aware of what is happening in your world and, yes, your technology is taking 'leaps and bounds', I think you say.

Agreed

Yes, do not forget that all information originally comes from Spirit, so it would be for us to try to temper the way this knowledge is used. All throughout your history mankind has interfered, has not listened to Spirit and the love that comes with it; this will always be, because of your free will. All I can tell you at this point, is that we in Spirit are aware and will do all that we can to make sure this knowledge is used for good.

Paul: Yes, it comes down to free will I guess ...

You will never stop mankind's free will, you will never stop man doing deeds against his fellow man, which he should never do; but these things are part of life's existence on this earth.

Paul: I wondered if even computers are capable of really thinking, even advanced ones—I think some people think they can almost develop a consciousness, but I wouldn't have thought so myself. Would you have any comments on that?

I do, and I feel these comments are unfounded; that is all I will say, I do not see that they can become ... you are speaking almost as if they would become a god.

Paul: Right, yes, but actually they can only really do the tasks that have been programmed into them, (yes) they can't really go outside of that (yes)

Sarah: Surely consciousness, what Paul was speaking about, is a spiritual thing, and they're not Spirit, they're a machine?

Pause

Paul: Yes I think so ... so, yeah, they are just machines at the end of the day.

Yes, yes. (Thank you) But I would say, do not concern yourself too much about that, they are making great progress as far as that goes, but we are aware and we are trying to temper what information they are using.

Paul: Ah, yeah, I'm that's very reassuring to them, thank you, thank you.

You see, what is happening here, and I will say it before I leave you, is that they are trying to bring much fear to the world, because with such negative thoughts come the fear, (yes) and you must reject all areas of fear in your lives.

Paul: Yes, and technology can bring so much good, can't it?

Yes it can, that is why the information has been given, but as I have said, mankind is very clever at turning everything around.

Chuckle + agreement

Sara: And I think often many humans, they don't always realise they're doing it, but they create a big drama, (yes) and people seem to hook into that drama quite easily, without realising they're doing it. (yes) So it's very unconscious often.

You are quite correct, it is so much easier, it would seem, for human beings to find more fear in any situation, than they do love, and all of the positive aspects of love. And I hope, my dear friends, our conversation will help you to rejuvenate the thoughts of positive thinking, (Agreed) that it will help you in everyday life, (yes) to send out so much love (yes) and to allow negative thoughts to dissipate.

Thanks

Now, my dear friends, I will leave you this time.

Thanks from all

SALUMET — 9th October 2017

After sending out healing thoughts/prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/8117515/2017_10_09+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening and welcome; thank you for coming once again.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always I thank you my dear friends, for all the love and healing thoughts. I hope that if not all of you, that the great majority of you feel the complete peacefulness which is surrounding each one of you at this time.

Agreed

I wish to say to you this time that you will become even more successful as ambassadors of Spirit. All of you at some point have been surprised to know that people are drawn towards you; this is because of the increase in your lights, your beautiful colours, especially when you are giving healing vibes. Each one of you has your own way of placing these thoughts into another's thinking and this my dear friends you could never have done without the help of Spirit. There are so many people today who are seeking and searching for the Truth, and as you know, I have always been an advocate for the Truth. So again I say to you my dear friends, thank you for all the work that you do. I feel the energy this evening is pure but simple and to each one of you I give a note of love and upliftment.

Thanks

I would also like to say this time how beautiful your earth planet is. You may not always fully appreciate this, but I can tell you it is a beautiful planet, (yes) and I would like you to think of this planet not only as a learning planet, but one that has great sustenance for you, great upliftment, and a great love for all beings. I would like you just to focus my dear friends, on those words, to focus your energy on the whole of the planet; this I know you do with healing to help all of those people who are a little lost in their lives, but I say to you my dear friends, continue to grow yourselves, and in this way you are helping so many others.

Now if you wish I will take some questions.

Sarah: I've got just 2 quick ones Salumet: Both Eileen and her mother and Lilian and her mother both have marks on their bodies, the same marks in the same places. Could you tell me why that should be?

You know that sometimes when you reincarnate that you will choose your bodies and very often you return with marks upon the body that have drifted along from another lifetime; this you know and understand, but the reason behind a second person having the same marks is because they are inhabiting a body which is physical and which comes from the older being. It is not that they have suffered in any way, but it is all to do with the physical creation. Do you understand that? No ...

Sarah: Not quite ... I do understand that the second one ...

It is almost like a mirror image.

Sarah: Of the first one?

Of the first one, but it does not automatically mean that the second being has experienced the same traumas. (Right) Is that a little more clear?

Sarah: Yes it's clearer ...

Yes it will come to you now I have given you those words. (Yes, thank you)

Sara: On a similar note I was reading some palms recently and I noticed that with this couple there were some quite strong similarities between fingers and shapes and bends and I was wondering—and then I looked at Graham's (Sara's husband) palms and I could see big similarities between his and mine, even though his are bigger, and it just made me think that perhaps, well ...

It is because you come from the same soul groups. Sometimes there are similarities and likenesses, but it is basically that you belong to the same soul groups; (thank you) and do not forget that you are inhabiting a physical being from another, you understand?

Sara: That I am inhabiting ...

Yes, whatever physicalities you have inherited ... Sara: Yes, are inherited as well.

Yes, (yes) it is a bigger, wider picture.

Sara: Yes, it's not going to be, but it's ...

But it's fascinating for you. (yes)

Jan: On a similar note Salumet, I have a question for you from Richard ...

Yes, that boy needs to do more.

Jan: I know, I know, yeah, I will tell him, if you don't mind, I will tell him.

Yes, we try to encourage him, but he does not always listen.

Jan: No, his development would come so much quicker, wouldn't it? (yes) It's sat there waiting for him; (yes) we're all waiting for him. His question is: his belief in himself is that Anna and him have been together before and could you just confirm whether he is correct or whether it's wishful thinking.

No, they have been together before, not on one occasion, many occasions. Yes, he knows and he feels this. (yes) Yes, he just needs confirmation—I give you that.

Jan: Thank you, and I will ask, I think we need to get Richard back here on a Monday. (yes) He has so much to give, doesn't he?

He cannot escape now we have got him.

Chuckles

As you all know, once you are here it is very difficult to break the ties, not so much in a group like this, but with Spirit.

Jan: Yes that's very true—the connection can't be broken. (yes) No, in fact it gets stronger.

Yes and the information, there is usually some urgency to gain more information. I'm sure that you have experienced this, all of you. (yes) Yes.

Ben: Could I just ask a quick question as well please? (yes) Somebody recently suggested to me that when we reincarnate, we come back with the same face or facial features that we had in previous existences here, and in spite of gender. The suggestion was that you come back and you can tell it's the same person if you were to compare photographs for example. Is that correct or do we come back with very different looks each time?

The answer to that question is: both. You will of course, as you know, genes in the physical body have memory, which results in likenesses being passed down along the ages. But yes, I can tell you that many times in many incarnations there will be many similarities to what has gone before, for recognition purposes. (OK, thank you) So yes, your information is correct.

Jan: I think the eyes, when you look into somebody's eyes that's how you feel a connection ...

Yes, I like the saying upon your Earth that the eyes are the windows of the Soul; that is much more true than probably you would accept, yes.

Ben: Well, as you'll know, I went on a tour to the Czech Republic, to Prague (yes) recently and the chap who organises the tour has written a book on the subject and is one of the leading experts on this particular subject in the world, (yes) and somebody who was in the group with me who was a very spiritual sort of person, actually suggested that she felt he was reincarnated and that he had a part to play in the actual story. And then on the tour I just happened to see a period photograph of somebody who was connected to the story very closely and actually there was an amazingly striking resemblance (yes) between the author who was there leading the tour and this person from 1940s who was involved with the story, and I did wonder whether that was a connection for that particular person.

You must remember also that when you pass to Spirit and the time comes to reincarnate that there are matters left undone sometimes and it is imperative that the soul returns to fulfil whatever it is that they have originally come to do.

Ben: Ah, OK, so that would explain (yes) why some people are focused or interested in a particular subject (yes) or story maybe.

Of course—I hope that helps.

Sarah: So that would be the case with a lot of these musicians?

Yes, it is all innate within them—well, innate in the Spirit not the physical, yes of course.

Ben: So would I be right in thinking that everybody who was on that recent tour, that group of people ... ... was meant to be there together.

Ben: Right OK, so we all had a connection possibly to that event.

Yes, it may not be what you experienced, but as a collective group you were all meant to be there at that time. (OK, thank you) Yes, remember that when you meet new people outside, that there is usually one or two that you make a stronger connection with, yes.

Jan: I can do that with very small children. (yes) I make a point of smiling, but I don't just smile at the child, I'm looking past the child and into the child, and if you do that you get a totally different reaction; I've even noticed them following me after I've smiled at them. It's like a recognition, (yes) and I'm wondering if they can see my light?

They would be attracted, in the same way as you are attracted to their pure light, but I will tell you that this time upon the Earth, children and dogs are your forte.

Chuckles

Jan: Yes, yes!

I like that word also.

Jan: I can communicate with the dogs, yes, especially the one I have now, which you told me about 5 or 6 years ago I would communicate with him, (yes) but it's a wonderful thing to behold when you do; (yes) yeah, I can talk to him! He understands me!

Unfortunately—well no I will not use that word—as human beings you are a little suspicious of your own abilities; you need to all open up to what you are within. You all have gifts, you all have situations which are there to help others; not so much to make yourself larger, but to help others, and in doing so the Spirit becomes greater also.

Jan: That's a wonderful thing to be told, thank you very much—that's lovely, lovely. (yes)

Lilian: Can I ask a question about my daughter? (yes) I've pondered on why she's in the situation she's in at the moment, with people around her. Did she come to help?

She came as a carer of other people. (Did she?! ...of those 3 ...) She has a strength within her which is not usual with too many people. She may not feel this at this particular time, but she agreed to come, and let's say her life has not been the easiest; that is all I will say about that, but she has an inner strength which others are attracted to obviously.

Lilian: Yes, certainly we've talked about learning lessons (yes) and both her and I have said yes, we've learnt some lessons from the people in our life.

There will be moments of happiness as she becomes older, but when she first came, she accepted that it would be quite a difficult life—but she is a special being.

Lilian: I agree with that—she'll be interested to hear that.

Yes, but she needs more time before she feels a kind of freedom from difficulties.

Lilian: Right, well I'm sure that will help (yes) a lot, thank you.

I will try to see if we can help her more.

Lilian: Thank you, thank you very much.

Now my dear friends, I feel I have spoken enough this time. I am so pleased to join with you and the bond become stronger each time we meet. So I say to you, continue my dear friends, be aware of everything around you, be sure of the love that comes to you from Spirit, because indeed you ARE, as I have said, great ambassadors for Spirit.

General thanks

Lilian: And I'm sure Eileen is getting a lot of help from people on your side and yourself at this moment.

As all of you, she will have some help.

General thanks

I leave you always in my thoughts, in my light, in my love.

Thanks

Sarah: Very pleased for you to come to us as well—I always think of you as just being our friend as well as our teacher—thank you!

(NB: For a good summary of Truth see: 30.09.96)

Next, one spoke very briefly through Sarah as a prelude to a child rescue, which was also through Sarah—

audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/8117536/2017_10_09+rescue+via+Sarah.mp3

I'm just chaperoning someone who wishes to come.

Mark: Are they going to come through someone else then?

I, I... I'm a little, a little concerned; I lost my friend, if I could have a little help.

Lilian: Yes OK, we're here to help you. (I...) Yes go on, if you can tell us, we'll know how we can help you.

I was lost.

Lilian: Yeah, well you're not lost now, because I'm talking to you. Can you tell me how old you are?

Distressed sighs

Lilian: OK, you'll feel better in a moment. Can you tell me your name? My name's Lilian and I hope I can help you. Next to you is Mark.

Mark: Hello.

Lilian: Yeah? You're beginning to feel a bit better I know. Where are you?

I don't know... I don't know...

Lilian: OK, well we'll try and help you. How old are you? Can you tell us your name?

I'm eight.

Lilian: You're eight? And your name?

Angela... Angela...

Lilian: Angela, well hello, you got lost have you? (Yes) Are you in the woodland? (Yes) Right, well if you take my hand. Now you're coming out of that woodland then into a field, do you see?

Yes...yes, a field...

Lilian: What can you see in the field?

A pond.

Lilian: A pond? Do you like ponds?

No... no.

Lilian: Do they frightened you a little bit? (Yes) OK, well look beyond the pond and what do you see? Can you see other children? They should be waving to you. (Yes) Do you see them?

Yes, but they're near the pond.

Lilian: They don't mind the pond, so we'll forget about the pond, and they'll walk away and take you with them. What would you like to do? Fly kites? Or throw a ball?

I'd like to go home.

Lilian: You'd like to go home? (Yes) Well first of all, I think if you could play with the children and if you look again you'll see a nice lady there—very pretty. (Yes) Does she shine a little bit? (Yes) Let's call her an Angel, should we? You'd like to see in angel?

I don't know what an Angel looks like.

Lilian: Perhaps you can tell me, what do you see?

This lady, she looks like a nice teacher.

Lilian: Does she? (Yes) That's good, maybe she's an Angel really—so the children are starting to play with you?

They're coming nearer, yes.

Lilian: Good, I'd like you to go with the children and the lady, (yes) and they'll take you and look after you for a little while.

Yes... I'm cold.

Lilian: Yeah, OK, if you feel my hand grabbing here, I'm coming down your head—you're beginning to feel warm, aren't you? The sun's coming out, the birds are singing. (yes) As long as you're warm.

Yes, that's better, better... yes...

Lilian: I'd like you to go with the lady and the children, they'll all talk to you and chatter away and give you some toys to play with and they'll play with you.

Yes, then they'll get me home.

Lilian: Yes, they'll explain all about it to you, but for just a little while, if you stay with them, (yes) until you're feeling happy and warm and so on, OK? (yes) You'll do that for me?

Yes, thank you.

Lilian: Right, and you'll be as happy as can be.

Yes—the lady's got her hand towards me. (Good, right) Yes, OK I'm coming, I'm coming, yes.

Lilian: You'll be OK.

Yes, thank you... yes...

Lilian: Good, so I'll say bye-bye and leave you with the lady.

Yes...yes...

The evening finished with another rescue, (Lady Catherine) through Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/8117547/2017_10_09+rescue-Lady+Catherine.mp3

Lilian: Hello, thank you for being here with us.

And who might you be?

Lilian didn't hear this at first and Sarah repeated it for her

Lilian: I'm sorry, I'm a bit death—more than a bit.

I don't need to know that the information.

Lilian: No, but it shows you that I don't always hear what people say—I'll try a little harder.

Well, I certainly didn't ask you to listen, did I?

Lilian: My name's Lilian, if that's any help, can you tell us your name?

No I will not!

(Background chuckles—normally laughter during rescues is rare, but this one was different)

Lilian: That's not very friendly.

It isn't, is it? I will not be told what to do.

Lilian: Do you know where you are?

Of course!

Lilian: You do—you know you're sat with us, in a room?

With us? Who's us?

Lilian: Oh, there is a room full of people here.

Well they've got no right to be here.

Lilian: Where do you think you are?

In my chair.

Lilian: Right OK, so did you ever think what would happen when you die?

Well of course everyone does, don't they?

Lilian: Yeah, what did you think?

Well, not a lot.

Lilian: You thought it was the end.

Of course it's the end! If you've died, it's the end!

Lilian: You didn't think of the spiritual side of you?

No, I don't believe in all that stuff and nonsense.

Lilian: Well, that's what's happened to you, you're sat in this room with us and our job is to help people like you that hadn't even thought about another life when you die—that's what's happened.

Deep breath

I'm really losing my patience!

Lilian: Well join the club! Yes, I wish you'd give it a thought, because this is really quite serious and I don't want you to go away and not know where you are.

You're quite a force, aren't you?

Lilian: I tried to be—I think you are to.

I think I may even get to like you.

Lilian: Yes, good, but no, seriously there's the physical side of us which you've left...

And no good to anything either!

Lilian: And then, there's a spiritual side, and you now belong in the spiritual side of life—call it heaven if you like.

You sound like that silly old vicar down the road.

Lilian: Well, no, forget the vicar. Is there anyone you'd like to see? Someone that's died before you, and I'll bet you, you'll see them waiting—someone you were very fond of?

Well of course, I would wish to see Sir Henry, if I could, but I'm not sure that will happen.

Lilian: I think you will.

You do?

Lilian: Yes, positive, now you're feeling very well—no aches and pains, (No) all that's gone

That's true.

Lilian: And if you look ahead of you, you should see a light, maybe small to begin with, but it's growing.

I do hate to be told off.

Lilian: Well just listen and you'll be pleased at the end.

Ok, I really rather like you.

Lilian: In that light, (yes) who and what can you see?

Well, it's blue in the centre.

Lilian: Carry on looking.

Yes, yes it's very bright, I feel like I want to go there.

Lilian: That's right, and you'll probably see someone in a moment—Sir Henry?

Well, I would like you to come with me.

Lilian: Well, I do have a few more jobs to do, like helping people that didn't believe in Spirit, didn't give it a thought, but we all go the same way.

So what's on the other side of the light?

Lilian: Well I'm hoping you'll see your friend, or your husband or whatever.

My friend? How disgraceful!

Lilian: He was your husband, was he?

He was my husband!

Lilian: Ah right, well I'm hoping he's waiting to help you; he should be there waiting for you.

Well I can see some movement, and I am, I am keen to go forward I think...

Lilian: Yes, that's good, that's all we need to know is that you're gonna go forward. Your Earthly life is finished with and, you'll live another life in spirit. In other words we can't really die, it's just different—you're going Home—a lot of people call it 'going home', where you belong.

Well, I'm happy to be going home.

Lilian: Good, that's the main thing.

Well I do, I really rather like you, (Good) so I will go.

Lilian: Well, thank you for listening and I hope you'll be happy—I know you will.

What is your name?

Lilian: Lilian.

Lilian, yes, not a bad name.

Sara: What about your name?

No matter! I don't like to be spoken to like that. I do not give my name, unless it is to Lilian.

Lilian: Well, thank you for that, (yes) but we're happy to see you go, that's the main thing—we've done our job.

Someone said I was rude, how dare they? By the way ...

Lilian: We go on very well, didn't we?

Yes, and tell whoever asked that my name is Catherine

Lilian: Catherine, (yes) oh I've got a granddaughter, it's a lovely name.

But I really mustn't stay, I have to make haste, I can see them calling me now.

Lilian: Lovely.

It is lovely, yes, goodbye Lilian.

General goodbyes to Catherine and as Jan pointed out, as she was married to Sir Henry, she was actually Lady Catherine; and everyone congratulated Lilian afterwards with another rescue extremely well guided home.

SALUMET — 6th November 2017

We had a good long list for healing prayers this week, before Salumet spoke—audio link:

Good evening.

All: Good evening Salumet.

It is good to be with you once more my dear friends.

Thanks

Sarah: It's good to have you too Salumet.

I do not intend to stay long this time, but I wish to speak with you about so many people who are suffering from what you call depression. It is noticeable in your world where there is Winter-times, how low people can become. I say this to you my dear friends, they need to cultivate the vision of sunshine within their bodies; this would help to raise whatever is troubling them. I understand it is a very wide issue to discuss and many reasons for it, but again I will say to you that each and every one of you takes the responsibility of how your mind and your body, how they are working together. Many in this world would say: 'but I do not wish to be depressed', but they are allowing it to happen to themselves.

Paul: Yes.

You agree?

Paul: Yes, just sort of anecdotally, we heard about a lady called Louise Hay who passed to spirit this year, and I didn't realise, but she had a very hard childhood life, but it didn't seem to have the effect of depressing her, it seemed to spur her on to have a very positive life.

Yes, because the mind was strong; if you allow the mind as well as the body to feel low, then you are fighting a double-cause, if you like. You need to visualise, you need to feel love, and you need to feel that love for others, to allow the spirit within your physical bodies to become stronger. Do try it my dear friends and you will begin to understand my words. Practice every day to love yourselves, to love the bodies that you are in; remember it is but a cloak that can either keep you warm and secure, or opened wide to the world, can allow you to become chilled. I cannot simplify it any more for you, but we come back to what I have always told you that the mind is the most powerful thing you will ever possess—and really the word 'possess' is not the correct one, because it is a state of being, but for earthly language I will use: 'what you possess'. I hope each one of you can take in your own ways what it takes to be stronger, to give out love and also to receive love, because that is another aspect that depressed people are not very good at, in receiving Love; because there is so much negativity around them, or they feel they are surrounded by that negativity.

Sabine: Not loving themselves enough.

Not loving themselves enough...

Sabine: ...so they don't feel worthy of the love that's being given.

Yes that is quite true.

Sarah: You have also told just in the past Salumet I think that depression can be caused by thinking too much about yourself.

Yes, it is what you would call an ego—too much ego; yes there is of course a very fine balance. I make it seem simple when I tell you what you must do. For those who suffer with this depression it is very difficult to raise yourself, sometimes on your own, but there are always those who love you, whether it be a parent, a child, a friend—someone who could encourage you, to uplift you, and what better way for upliftment than your daily 'dose' shall we say, of meditation.

Paul: Yes, absolutely—that always steadies the ship. I think that's so important doing it every day, (Yes) even if you don't think you'll need it, it has to be practiced.

It is part of your being; if only mankind would realise how important it is, I think they would be shocked to know just how much help we can give; if only they will put themselves into the Great Creator's hands.

Paul: I've literally experienced where I've been worried about something and it's just dissolved into a big smile, (Yes) with meditation.

Yes, because in meditation you are first and foremost Spirit; the body should almost disappear from your consciousness, it is just a state of being.

So my dear friends, I hope I have brought a little comfort and I am sure those who are feeling low will soon find the way to help themselves.

Thanks

Sarah: Could I just say one thing Salumet, there was a programme on television where they were talking about depression and they were saying that they're treating it now using the immune system—there's a 'rogue something or other' in the immune system and when they treat it that helps with this.

Yes, there are many ways to help and medication is one of them, but the fact still remains that those immune systems have in some way been impaired by the thinking of the person. You understand? Of course, we are helping doctors and other people to help anyone who is in need.

Sarah: I think they were talking about treating this 'rogue thing' with stem cells, not with pills.

Yes that has been a way of helping people for many of your years now; but yes, whatever helps, whatever helps the soul can only be good.

Paul: In a way that perhaps isn't quite ...

That is not the ideal.

Paul: ... better to deal with the mind.

Yes, it is much better if the individual can see for themselves what is happening—and what is happening is that they are going further away from the Great Creator when all help is available to each and every one of you.

But I do not wish to make it sound as if it is like a magic wand. Many people who come to this planet suffer for all of their lives because they have not yet found the way that suits them. You understand?
(Yes)

So I hope I have given you just a little more to think about.

Agreed!

Paul: I don't know if you could just quickly clarify—I think I understand where suicides are concerned, they have to come back and redo what they were 'running from', sort of thing—escaping from, in another life. One of our readers would like to be assured that their son who recently committed suicide, will still be able to be in contact with other deceased relatives—he won't be sent straight back to Earth I think, will he?

(No) He'll be allowed access to his mother, who is in spirit?

Those of you who know and understand this work—it is always distressful to human beings when another takes their own lives; there are many aspects and thoughts and thinking about this subject, but I have to say to you only what is truth, and those who shorten their lifespan here have to at some point, and I stress 'some point', will have to—to say 'pay' for what they have done makes it seem unkind—it is not meant to be, (no) because most of them, their minds are in the wrong place at the time of taking their own lives; but they do have to recognise that what they have done is against all things meant by The Creator. (Yes) But they will never be alone—I have said before there are always people there to uplift, to guide, to help, and until they come to the realisation, they are buffeted from all things, until they realise that what they have done was not the best plan of action.

Paul: Yes, it's almost—they'll have to forgive themselves for doing what they did; (Yes, of course) others will of course be able to forgive them.

But as soon as they realise that, and I can tell you that generally it is very quick, and they understand very quickly, so that does not stop communication with other loved ones.

Paul: Ah, thank you—that will be reassuring I'm sure, to the family.

Yes, that is why it's important with people who are depressed especially, their minds are not in the right place, and although it is not the best result, it is in some sense understandable to their minds. (Right, yes) It is freedom from pain and suffering; that is how they generally look at their lives.

Paul: Right, and of course they probably aren't aware of the spiritual truths that we have been given.

Yes, because most people who are depressed will tell you: 'I do not want to be depressed,' but in a sense they are feeding from that, because they are not recognising the truth of what they should be doing. But please do reassure the gentleman that his son will be available to him as soon as he can.

Paul: Wonderful—yes, he's on the reading list, so he'll get the full words. (Yes) Thank you, thank you very much.

I will take my leave my dear friends and hope that my words have brought you some kind of comfort for many that you can help in some way.

Thanks

As always I leave you cloaked in my love and until we come together again, please, please be sure that you give time to your meditations.

Agreement + thanks

Finally another spoke through Eileen—audio link:

Hello there.

All: Hello.

Is it ok if I pop in for five minutes?

Sarah: Pop in for 10 if you like.

I was just listening to the last one and I don't know why I can't do that—use naughty words.

Chuckles

(Referring to Mark's granddad's phrase: 'bloody silly')

I don't think it's very fair; and no sir, you don't change very much when you come here. (Right)

So if that's true why can't I say that 'B' word?

Chuckles

Di: You're too polite!

Oh yes, because there's ladies present—they're the worst ones.

Giggles

I don't know—I wouldn't dream of it.

Sarah: But you used.

Who's that? You know me so well!

You're a quiet little lot, ain't ya?

Sarah: Sometimes we are. (Sometimes?) I think when we're waiting to see what we get—if anybody wants to come through to us or what we're saying; so if you talk through all that then you don't get the information.

Di: You can't concentrate.

What you mean I'm alone nobody?

Laughter

Is that what she's saying, I'm a nobody...

Sarah: No, not at all!

You are a cheeky one, you are!

Chuckles

Not many people talk to me like that, you know.

More chuckles

Sarah: I didn't know I was talking adversely to you, I was just speaking...

She's REALLY cheeky, I quite like her!

Laughter

I like a woman who'll stand up to me, yeah.

Paul: Were you quite a formidable character—well, you still are probably.

A what?

Chuckles

Paul: You sound like quite a formidable character.

Oh, don't give me any of that big tough talk! (Chuckles) Formidable—what the hell's that mean?

Di +: A strong woman.

Oh, I'm not a woman!

Di: Oh, sorry—a strong man.

Chuckles

See, we got another woman here—see what you've caused? You've caused nothing but trouble.

'Formidable' I'm going to take that back with me, because I'm a formidable.

(More laughter)

Sarah: You're not 'a' formidable you're a formidable character.

...All these long words ...what about the ladies down the end, they're not saying much. Come on, let's be hearing you.

Serena: I thought I heard somebody like you in my meditation this morning. (Did you?) I did yes.

Well, you best come out of it quick then my dear.

Chuckles

Sarah: She's too young to come over, (Yeah) and the other ladies even younger next to her.

Yes, she's quiet, isn't she? Go on, say something my dear.

Natalie: Hellooo.

Oh, she's sweet, isn't she?

Chuckles

Di: You've put it on the spot now.

Hello my dear—don't you be listening to any of these 'ladies'.

Di: A lot of innuendo going on here. (Yeah)

Sarah: And then there's one more. (Sabine)

Oh, she's nice, isn't she?

Sabine: I think you like to tease a little bit.

Di: A bit of a flirt. (Agreed)

No, I can't be that AND formidable.

Chuckles

You're a cheeky bunch, I can see that.

Di: Well you've just cheered us up and made us all chatty now.

That's right, that's what I like.

Sarah: That's what you came for, is it?

I like a bit of fun, especially when the gentleman said you don't change much when you go over—here's my chance!

Chuckles

Sarah: So what did you do before you went over?

I was formidable.

Laughs

Di: What were you formidable at?

Oh, don't complicate matters dearie! (OK) You're a troublemaker—a little troublemaker, I know...

Sarah: We won't tell your wife.

Anyway I've cheered you up, haven't I?

Agreed + thanks

Do you know what, every time I'm back I twiddle my thumbs and I'm doing it again—must try and stop it.

Sarah: That's all right. Do you come back very often then?

No—I won't forget you dearie.

Sarah: Well, I look forward to meeting up with you sometime then.

Then we'll be 2 formidables—the formidable duo!

More laughs

I really must go now. Thank you very much for all my cheek.

Thanks

I might even come back one day.

Sabine: Please do. (Agreed)

Sarah: There might be some other formidable people here then, because there are some more of us—some people aren't here today.

I don't tell many people my name, but you can call me Formidable Charlie. (Laughs)—That's got a nice ring.

Sarah: Or Charlie the Formidable?

...No, Formidable Charlie...I have to go, they're calling me.

More thanks and byes.

Notes:

Salumet has talked about depression previously: 21/07/2003, 05/11/2012 and 15/12/2014

Perhaps this evening has encouraged us to heal ourselves NOW, here on Earth, which is after all, our kinder garden/planet of learning, where we can learn to love ourselves more fully and everyone else too, with the help of our daily "dose", as Salumet says, of meditation to tap into that upliftment and healing spiritual love.

This was the first meeting of the New Year and after healing prayers and discussions, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/8535837/2018_01_08+salumet+1.mp3

Lilian: Good evening.

Graham: Good evening Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Sarah: Thank you for coming.

Jan: Happy you are with us again, it seems a long time to us.

As you enter into another year of earthly life, I would say to you my dear friends, as I have listened to you all, as I have felt your pain, as I have felt your desires and your hopes, I can only say to you: All is moving in the right direction. I know, these are not words that are taken easily, especially when life feels like it is against you. Let me say this to you my dear friends, we never promised that life would be easy for any of you, but take a moment, look back—and you know that is something I do not advocate, looking back, but rather to move forward—but on this occasion, I would like you all to look back to happy times, to understand how you have grown, how you have understood yourselves, just a little more, and then, you will understand that life continues forward. Sometimes, with your free will, you do not allow yourselves to feel in the moment, whether that moment be one of joy, of happiness, or of sadness, I still say to you, continue forward, and in doing so, spiritually you grow greater. I know this is not always easy to accept, but if you do not move forward, you become stuck in a kind of a spiritual fog; so you must say thank you for whatever good has coming into your lives, even if that good has to disappear for a while, give thanks to that Great Creator, that he is helping you at ALL times. Do you understand what I am telling you?

Agreed + thank you

For the past few years, we have been encouraging all of you to look deeper into your Soul, to find that part of you that is eternal, to recognise in others your own weaknesses; do you remember that teaching? Where there is fault, look only to yourself. Do you remember?

Agreed

I would like you to think about this a little more deeply, and you will find just how much you have grown. How many times have you stopped in your tracks and said, 'I must not do this, or I must do that'? It is that Soul within which is guiding you all. So I am saying to you my dear friends, that this your new earthly year, holds many surprises for you, brings more knowledge to you, and I know brings many blessings to some of you. Few words, but a very deep thought, and I would like you my dear friends, before we meet again, that you have discovered within yourself that little piece of the Creator which will continue to ever move forward. Never allow life to become static, allow thinking to be filled with Love and, when I say Love, I mean Spiritual Love, the kind of Love that overflows all things, you understand?

Agreed

Do you have any questions at this time?

Sara: Can I ask a question, Salumet? (Yes) I was recently asked a question about homosexuality: As we know, human beings exhibit different sexual behaviours, involving either the same sex or the opposite sex. Fortunately, our world is becoming more accepting of all choices. Why is it, and why has it been such a problem for so many people to accept homosexuality? I assume that people are afraid of it, and if so, why are they afraid of it? My other related question is, is the sexual orientation or choice of a human being linked in some way to our previous incarnations and gender? Sexuality in general on our planet seems not to be very well understood or viewed with much balance. Could you comment on that please?

I would say firstly to you, that perhaps you are not quite correct in saying it is not accepted. I would like you to think back one hundred years, or a little less, where it was frowned on and many things were hidden from the majority of people. I have spoken on this subject before, and if you remember, I told you that as human beings, you are both male and female in gender. How it happens, why it happens and why people do not feel connected in any way to people of this sort—and I do not say 'sort' derogatively, because it has been their choice to do this. What I have said previously, when there is a problem of any kind, you must look towards YOURSELF to see where that problem lies; it may be that your thoughts are a little unbalanced, because every human being upon this planet is in the image, and I will use the Christian faith, in the image of their God. If that is so, and that is acceptable, why should there be a problem to another being? As long as no one person hurts another, how can it be wrong? But, the problem is, anything that is different or not of 'the norm' as you would say, is frowned upon. It is fear, basic fear, that you do not want to become as they are; it is a deep fear, an understandable fear, and one where opinion has to be considered, because you do not have the right to tell another human being how they should live. It may not be what you like, but in that case you just leave it alone and focus upon your own lives. Does it help you with your question?

Sara: Yes, thank you, I think it would be nice to have that as a public, you know, a few words for the public on it, because I think there's a lot of confusion.

Well, I believe that is has been dealt already.

Sara: It is

People are much more open in your world today.

Sara: Yes, much better than it used to be. (Yes)

Sarah: There are countries though that don't allow it, so...

There are many countries who do not have the same thoughts as you do, whether it be gender, whether it be the way that women are treated, there are many issues in your world, and it is up to each individual to be responsible for their own thinking. I think that is the issue here that people have to be allowed to be who they want to be. (Yes) The time of looking at yourself comes when you pass to Spirit, you understand? (Yes)

Sarah: So when two men or two women are attracted to each other, are they...

Unfortunately... I beg your pardon, I interrupted.

Sarah: I was going to say, are they attracted spiritually or physically or is it both?

It is a physical thing whilst upon the Earth, but it is an attraction of spirituality in a sense because it's two units of life and light which are drawn together, (Yes) and if you can understand that each man, each woman is of male and female gender, how can that be wrong? You have to look at it on a higher level.

Di: It's names that we've put on it in this world really.

Yes, there are many things you do not agree with, there is nothing wrong with disagreeing, but, if it affects your attitudes towards another being, then you have to be careful why you are feeling that way, and that is when I say, look within yourselves.

Lilian: Am I right in thinking that you once said, sometimes the spirit comes back too quickly without taking advice on coming back as another person?

Yes, that can affect gender, we do have Souls who are far too anxious to return to Earth, and sometimes you will find, and this is the reason why small children tell you that they feel they are in the wrong body. (Yes) Yes, it happens.

Sarah: What I find difficult about the 'looking within yourself' and we should never judge anybody, but when you feel that somebody in our society is doing something that I think most people would consider not to be right, then it's very difficult not to think, well, that really wasn't good what they were doing, and I know you were saying we shouldn't judge, but that is what I find very difficult. You can have differences of opinion, but when you see somebody doing something that is not nice to another person...

That is a different matter altogether, I have just said, as long as it harms no other person.

Sarah: Ah right, OK yes.

Of course you have laws, you have rules and regulations as human beings, but what must never happen, is that you deliberately hurt or abuse another person, because of something they believe and you do not.

Ben: Can I ask a quick question as well please? (Yes) While we're on the subject of relationships and things, I read somewhere once that, who we choose to have a sexual relationship with is important, because when you come together with somebody else, you're blending some energy together, and, people who maybe have sexual relations with lots of people on a regular basis, is that damaging to their, sort of Soul?

It would be something for them to look at when they pass to spirit, the reason behind their acts. Some people, and after all, I would say, between two human beings, the sexual aspect of it can be what you would call, the icing on the cake, especially if you have deep Love for the other person. But, you have to accept that when people are with other people sexually, that is their free will and their choice. You cannot put everything down to being a spiritual activity. The most you can do for another person is to Love unconditionally; and I would say that is the most powerful words I could give to you.

Lilian: That's the hardest...

Di: That's the hardest thing to do, isn't it? (Yes)

Ben: Being able to forgive...

Forgiveness must take place, no matter what the subject matter, no matter what the problems; if you cannot forgive, you are then living with anger and probably hate for some reason. You have to be able to let go.

Ben: And forgive yourself as well?

Forgive yourself first and foremost, because until you can, you cannot do it for another human being.

You understand?

Ben: Mm

Jan: Yeah—on a relationship, I've been struggling the last week or so, with my mother.

You have a love/hate relationship.

Jan: I know, but this time when I blew—it's like a red mist comes over me when I do blow—I've forgiven myself a lot quicker than I ever have before.

Which shows how you have grown.

Jan: Yeah, I have noticed that, whereas before, I always joked that I was born guilty, cause that's how I've always been, I've always felt, where my parents were concerned.

But it is a very good lesson to learn, but what you have to do now, is learn to let go. (Yes) You can feel upset, you can feel the anguish, but you do not wish to create more trouble. So what you must do is feel those emotions and then, to gently let it all go, (yes) and you would find, that if your demeanour is that of gentleness and Love, it will have a great effect on the other person.

Jan: Yes, I did come to the understanding this morning, (Good) inwardly, that it's much better to be with a negative person while they're here, to be with them than be without them, (Yes) so unconstitutionally, I've eaten humble pie, as they say, I've...

But you have not eaten humble pie, you have grown my dear. You have grown spiritually just in that recognition. Do you not understand that?

Jan: Yeah, I do, because I can feel it; (Good) occasionally, I'm not quite sure how to deal with those deep emotions that I have surrounding it.

Yes, but you will. It is much better to try to sort things out whilst you are on the Earth plane, because if you carry them with you to Spirit, you know very well, just by being within this group that people come back with their problems. So, it is better you can only work upon yourself, you cannot change quickly the other person, but you can influence them.

Jan: Your initial speech, talking about recognising it in ourselves and basically working on ourselves first, (Yes) rings very true. I can't change this person while we're together, it's just the way I deal with it that's the important thing.

We also in spirit understand these emotions and feelings. After all, we would all like to change your world for a better, brighter, more beautiful planet, but we have to take things as it comes, we have to deal with things as they come, we have to feel Love for everything and everybody upon this earthly planet, (No matter...) No matter. So you see, we understand, I know sometimes that we feel we tell people what they should do, but they don't fully agree or understand our words, and I am going to leave you this time, I think you would probably call it, my favourite word, you know what it is?

Jan: Is Love.

It is Love. Please, my dear friends, think about this and perhaps next time we come together, we can discuss how that one word can affect each individual. So think about it closely.

Ben: Can I, before you go, I wondered if you could help me with any specific comments on the situation that I've been through recently with Zuzana? And any upliftment for myself would be appreciated, and also for her as well.

I am sure your dear friends within this room will give you all the support and upliftment you need, but we are aware of what is happening, and I will tell you, and I do not often tell individuals, that lady is a Soul mate; but Soul mates, it is misunderstood sometimes, that people think that Soul mates are special beings that you are meant to be together forever. Yes, you will be together forever, but it does not mean that everything is rosy in one lifetime.

Ben: OK, so there's a connection there deeper than...

There is a deep connection there for you, but, she has made a choice, and you must agree to let her make her own choices.

Ben: Because she has free will.

Because both you and she has free will. But even for a short time, if you meet your Soul mate—and not everyone does in every life time, if you meet your Soul mate, the strength of feeling is so strong, and this we understand my dear friend. (Thank you) We will try to give to you, not only upliftment, but upliftment and understanding for your friend.

Ben: Thank you. Can I also ask, you talk about Soul mates, do we just have one or is there a number of Soul mates that we have?

You can have Soul mates... there is one particular Soul mate who may come in different forms, in different lifetimes. It is not always man/woman connection, a lot of people seem to think that it is man/woman connection—not so.

Ben: But she was my Soul mate? (Yes) OK, thank you.

Sarah: When you say not always man/woman, is that when you're saying it could be man/man, woman/women?

Di: Or even child

Or your child...

Sara: Sister or brother...

Yes, any two people, because of course you know, you can transmute, it doesn't necessarily, but I know from my workings upon this Earth that most people assume that it is a man/woman connection—not, not so.

Sarah: Could I just go back to what you said to Ben, that you said that they will always be together.

Spirituality...

Agreed

Jan: We very rarely I would think, marry our Soul mates anyway—very rare.

You may never even meet them, yes.

Agreed

Ben: So why were we, were we brought together for a reason then? Was there a higher purpose for why we found each other?

There would be a higher purpose, I cannot tell you that, I cannot give to you why that has happened. That is something you could look into; I am not here to lead your life for you, that is not my purpose, but I feel at this time it is necessary for you to know, for your own understanding and your own peace of mind.

Ben: Thank you.

Jan: In time that may be of a comfort to you Ben.

Ben: Yeah, I think it will be and hopefully she might reverse her free will.

Gentle chuckles

Yes, well, only she can be responsible for that. And only you can be responsible for your way of thinking.

Ben: That's very helpful.

Jan: A privileged meeting, really.

Ben: Yeah, it does feel like that, which is why I'm not angry, I'm just disappointed and hurt.

But what comes after disappointment and anger, is Love and Joy. It may not be what you see now, but, on looking back you can see how things improve. Well my dear friends, I will take my leave; as always it has been a great blessing to have joined with you. I feel your Love, I feel your pain, your anguish and your puzzlement of life; so I leave you cloaked in my Love and those in Spirit who wish to bring only Love to you all.

General thanks

Sara: Our Love goes with you.

Notes:

Sexuality: This subject has 'arisen' a fair few times over the years...

08/08/1994 – the merging of the sexes

01/02/1999 – paedophiles / perversions – dark seeking light

04/12/2000 – homosexuality and transgender

04/11/2002 - homosexuality and transgender

Soul mates: The subject was spoken about on 17/10/1994:

As your soul develops, so you gain in knowledge and love, throughout the many ages and developments of your many lifetimes. Your soul mate, is in actual fact, a part of the original spark. Can you understand that? It is like the pea that is split in two. It cannot ever be divided, in a sense. When the two come together, they form as a whole. Remember, I am trying to explain in simple terms. You separate the two parts of a pea, they can go in their separate ways, but when they reach the point they can be joined together, they become as one. Soul mates are intimately one whole. It matters not what their sex is, male or female, that is not important, but the meeting, the joining of the two 'Sparks', I would prefer say, when the joining comes, nothing or no one can separate them. They can in actual fact, meet down through many lifetimes, not always as soul mates, but in other degrees of relationships, can you follow me?

On 12/11/2001, Salumet also stated:

Let me say this to you: that Earthly words become much confused when spiritual matters are spoken of but we know that your Earthly words have to be used in descriptive language in order for you to understand. The problem lies that one avenue of ideas becomes what you term 'the normal'. I am here my dear friends to tell you this time what the difference is. I have told you previously that the soul-mate does not often meet in the physical world. That statement still stands. I will not change those words because, you see, the soul-mate—without becoming too involved in highly technical details, because my friends that indeed would be foolish because you would not understand—again we are speaking of energy. The soul-mates were created together for all time, from the beginning of what you know as time, and that subject is much too complicated for us to discuss here. I could speak of molecular energy, I could speak of all kinds of energy but I feel that, for you, would confuse the issue. Soul-mates were created together. They vibrate on the same electromagnetic wavelength. They are counterparts of one another. That is the simplicity of the soul-mates; that they are energy which is vibrating on the same energy line. Do you understand? It is an issue of words again. That is why true soul mates do not meet in incarnations except very rarely: there is no need when they incarnate at the same frequencies. Does this make sense to you my dear friends? Now we come to twin-souls. This indeed should be the term you use instead of your soul-mates, which is used most often in your world because twin-souls meet many, many times in different incarnations and their purpose is in recognition, in coming together to try to form and create and blend into one energy; that is the purpose of their coming together. All of you in this room are twin-souls. You have met in other times, in other lifetimes.

Exercise for self-development:

Salumet stated earlier:

For the past few years, we have been encouraging all of you to look deeper into your soul, to find that part of you that is eternal, to recognise in others your own weaknesses—where there is fault, look only to yourself. I would like you to think about this a little more deeply, and you will find just how much you have grown. How many times have you stopped in your tracks and said, 'I must not do this, or I must do that'? It is that Soul within which is guiding you all. So I am saying to you my dear friends, that this your new earthly year, holds many surprises for you, brings more knowledge to you, and I know brings many blessings to some of you. Few words, but a very deep thought, and I would like you my dear friends, before we meet again, that you have discovered within yourself that little piece of the Creator which will continue to ever move forward. Never allow life to become static, allow thinking to be filled with Love and, when I say Love, I mean Spiritual Love, the kind of Love that overflows all things, you understand?

SALUMET — 19th February 2018

After prayers, there was feedback about the clairvoyance last time, concerning Amy and Emily and how the messages had been of great help. Salumet then spoke—audio link:

Lilian: Welcome to you.

Good evening.

Greetings

As always, I am happy to be with you, my dear friends.

Jan: And us here with you.

Agreed

We give a welcome to the dear lady who visits us this evening.

Corinne: It's lovely to be here, thank you.

As always, I have listened with great attention to all your healing thoughts this evening. We wish you many thanks for these offerings and I know that you ask so often and with love and with dedication to Spirit; and for this we thank you.

At this moment in your earthly time, there is still so much unrest, so much dis-ease, and I wish to say and to reiterate once more, do not be afraid, my dear ones; do not be afraid of what is happening, not only on this planet, but further afield. I know sometimes that it is difficult to question that all that is said is quite correct, and I am here to reassure you that all will be fine. I hope you take those words and really believe in them, because being Angels of Spirit, we do not need you to dwell upon negative thoughts; in that way, you are extending your Love for good, for the betterment of all mankind. And this is what I wish you to try to cultivate more, as I'm sure you will.

Paul: I think we're learning to appreciate that all is fine, whatever the outcome, whether you pass to Spirit, or whether you stay on Earth, still learning and experiencing here—it all is fine. It's sad when there's suffering and pain, but we know these are part of evolution and growth, so there's good reason for it all.

Yes. You were endowed with these physical bodies for very good reason. They are what causes you grief and pain, as well as the mental capacity that the physical body has. So many ways for you to feel unsettled and to feel ill at ease with yourselves. But I say, live only in this moment, forget what has gone and look forward to what is ahead. I cannot say this enough to you, my dear friends. I cannot say to you to forget everything, because that is not quite the way to go either, because you also have memory. But what I am saying is that you must remember, but then allow it to pass. Do you understand?

Agreed

Di: We need to learn from what's happened and go forward. (Yes)

Sabine: Don't we say that your body is your best friend, so that the disease is kind of reminding you that you should think differently?

It is the housing of your Spirit, (Yes) and after all, do you not look after and maintain your physical homes?

Agreed

Jan: You've just described Salumet, what happened to me in the shower, and I shared with the group a couple of weeks back, where, when I was showering, I found myself being able to look out of my eyes as if they were windows, (Yes) where I met myself, (Yes) and I thought to myself, this body is literally just that, and I have to look after it better than what I have done, (Yes) but it was like three of me: The real me—the number 1 me, the personality me (2), and then the machine (3), in which I am. (Yes) And I met all three at once.

You have described it very well. Of course the Spirit is the highest power you will attain, so when you discard these 'physical housings', as I wish to call it at this time, when you discard this housing, you feel free, you feel whole and you feel much loved.

Jan: I did—just from my experience, everything you say, it was just that for not even minutes, it was seconds, (Yes) my whole being was: Wow! Why do I need...I don't need to worry about this or this or this, because this number one Jan, was just full of this pure love and energy...

...which you are, all of you.

Jan: Yeah, and it was an amazing feeling—amazing!

You have to bring that aspect of yourself to the fore, and then you will begin to understand just a little, what Spirit life is all about. You understand?

Jan: Yes I do, having experienced what I did, yes, I've had much more clarity, since that experience.

Yes, you should all by now, my dear friends, excepting the ones who've come recently, you should by now know yourselves very well, you should know that Spirit within is the ruling part of all of you. And of course, you have to be respectful and caring about that body that you have been given; after all, did you not choose to come in that body? You see already, you had to rely on your own knowledge to take care of the physical being from the very beginning; but you need to grow, you need to continue to grow. You understand this?

Agreed

That is why you must live in the moment, forget all that has passed and focus to whatever future you bring to yourselves.

Jan: We do create our own futures.

Your future is not static, it is ever-moving.

Jan: Exactly.

So of course, you may have a view of what is to come, but remember Time even can transmute itself, as also you can; so try to remember this also.

Now, do you have any questions this time?

Ben: I've got a question please? (Yes)

It was about on the 8th January we spoke about my relationship with Zusanna and you were kind enough to confirm that we were indeed Soul-mates, (Yes) and you have explained in the past that there is a unique bond there and we're created from the same spark and we'll spiritually be linked together for eternity.

(Yes) You said that we had a higher purpose for coming together during this incarnation, but that it was for us to work out the reasons for that; and we both have given this some thought and we wondered whether our meeting was to rescue me from an unfulfilling marriage in this lifetime. I also recently had my Angel-cards read and I was told that my chosen life lesson or karmic debt is one of heartbreak. Is this information correct, and if so, is the pain that I'm feeling from losing Zusanna part of clearing that debt? And could that lesson of heartbreak also be part of our mission together? Can you comment on that please?

It will only benefit you if you recognise what is happening and then as I have just spoken of, to let it go.

Even although you are Soul-mates—this is the misconception amongst humans, that because someone is your Soul-mate, that you remain together forever in one lifetime. That is not the case, you may only need to come together for a very short time, but it does not break the spiritual bond between you.

Whether your lives go in completely different ways, that matters not, it is the strong spiritual bond that is important. Yes you may be paying a karmic debt, but you must allow yourself to be free from it; and to be free from karmic debt, you have to recognise it as such and then to let it go.

Ben: So do you think my debt will be paid now?

Not whilst you are in a state of uncertainty, which you still are. But I will tell you, and I do not often speak of personal things, I will tell you that this period of your time, you will look back upon and realise how much you have gained from it—then your debt will be paid.

Ben: OK—and also, just very quickly then, I wondered if, there was an event on the Wednesday afternoon and I wondered if that was necessary to create the closure that I was looking for? Do you know about that?

I would only say about this matter that it has not created closure, because your mind has not allowed it to. You wanted in some form or other to have closure, but let me tell you, you have to work on it for a little longer; you have to forgive, not only your Soul-mate but yourself, and then the cut would be, how you would say, clean? And you will find happiness once more.

Ben: OK, thank you.

You will be happy, I can assure you.

Ben: Feels like a long way away at the moment.

Yes, but that—you are speaking of physical emotions; what you have to do my dear friend, is to allow the Spirit to talk to you, the Spirit within; and then you will have all of the answers that you request.

Ben: OK, thank you very much.

I hope that has helped you just a little.

Ben: It has yes, thank you.

All of you, when you come to earthly life, in human form, most of you I am sure have experienced some form of hurt in your lives, whether it be yourself or someone close to you. But what we cannot do for you is to live life for you—we are not allowed to come so close to you that we may do that, but we will try to help in all the ways that we can. You are not the only one who is suffering from a breaking heart. I have to say that the lady you speak of, although it may not be said in her words, is also suffering; but she too will find happiness. But just know that your spiritual bond is strong and you will come together again at some point.

Ben: So is our mission together in this lifetime completed now? I know she has free will, (Yes) but it's finished now, is it?

It should be finished, but I feel that the onus is on you—you are the one who is clinging on.

Ben: Maybe that's another life lesson that I need to learn as well?

Yes, life is full of lessons, not only for you, for everyone within this room. You all have something to learn. You may not recognise it, you may not feel it attaches itself to you, but let me assure you that each and every one of you has felt the tugging of the heart strings.

Agreed

The human body is a beautiful thing, but it also creates much unhappiness. But you have to take it as part of life's journey; and I know that's not words you wish to hear at this time, but your journey ahead is fruitful, your journey ahead is blessed and there are many in Spirit who are behind you.

Ben: Thank you, it's very reassuring.

Jan: It's, in my simplistic terms of putting it, it's number two person that creates the problems with the machine; it's number two who has the personality and who the heart is connected to and that causes the problems with the machine. Number one is trying so desperately to guide in the right direction with just pure, pure Love and those two battle—you know—in a nice way of putting it, they battle with each other.

Ben: They struggle. (Yeah) It's funny because it manifests itself as a real physical pain as well.

Jan: Although scientists have now proven that the heart does 'break', there is a real phenomenon called, when we say 'heartbreak', it does, in a way.

But it is in the same sense as the body breaks down in disease. It is all connected, it is all connected to the thinking.

Jan: Which is the personality, the number two. (Yes) I could put it number one, number two, number three.

Yes, but you have to recognise that it is just part of your journey.

Ben: I think it's reassuring to know that, when we both return back to Spirit we can reunite.

But you must not hold on to that thought whilst you are here. (No, OK) I really would say to you, my dear friend that you have to let go. I know that is easy for other people to say, but what happens is, you would eventually create disease in your own body, because it is a negative, it is a negative emotion.

After all, you would not abuse your car, you would not allow it to be under stress and strain? You would give it love and oil and whatever else you place within your cars, would you not?

Agreed

So why would you neglect your physical being? You must do what is best for the Spirit. We will uplift you and try to help as we do with all of you.

Ben: Thank you.

Do we have any more questions at this time?

Paul: I've got a question from one of the readers. This one's from David in Tasmania. He said he's come to understand that in his last life, he was killed on his birthday aged 32 on 28th April 1919, and he wondered if there's any spiritual significance to these dates?

Sometimes, when a Spirit comes home, especially when they return home under conditions which are not always good, they hold on to significant things of memory, and birth dates as all of you know have become an important part of human living. It is the human side of you which has created this; so yes, dates can be held on to for quite some time, for quite a number of incarnations. It is not something we have spoken of before I believe, but it is like anything else; we have spoken that people retain scars of old injuries from another lifetime, and so it is with numbers and names and all of these things. The Spirit holds on, so therefore when they wish to come into another lifetime, they wish to bring it back to the same number.

Paul: Right, they might feel comfortable about a certain date?

Yes, many reasons why they do, why they hold on; but it is one of the reasons why you should let go of any uncomfortable feelings in a lifetime, you should allow them to go free before you return home.

Paul: So, would you say, there is not really any spiritual significance?

Not spiritual significance, no.

Paul: More of an almost superstition...

Well, I would not call it superstition—that makes me smile; no, not superstition, but just the need to hold on to part of a life.

Ben: So was it a coincidence that he died on his birthday?

No, he would have chosen. You choose when you come, you choose who you come to and you choose mostly the pathways that you take.

Paul: Yes, so it's another case of not letting go...

Yes, it is holding on to something from the past. It is simple, there is no mystery about it—it is, in the same way as people hold on to things from past lives—anything from a past life can be held onto, especially if they feel it has not been dealt with.

Jan: Such as phobias as well?

Phobias, are another case of holding on unnecessarily, yes.

Sabine: Yes, or having died in a certain way, like drowning, or in a fire...

Yes, it is something new for you all to think about.

Paul: It's almost like we cling to what we know, rather than...

Yes, you see, it may also be that the Spirit feels that to be reborn on the same day as someone passed before, it is almost like a new start.

Jan: A rebirth?

A rebirth, yes.

Jan: That makes a lot of sense.

Paul: Yes, we're creatures of habit.

Di: So if somebody's got a fear of drowning in this life, is that likely to be because they may have drowned in a past life, or is it just a completely irrational human thing?

It can be either, there is no one set answer to these things. Very often, the fear would come from another time, or from the life that they live now. It just depends on the life.

(Jan then asked Lilian about a question she had wanted to ask Salumet, but she couldn't recall it)

I am always amazed how little, or how many questions are not asked when I am actually here, and as soon as I am gone I can see that your minds are spinning; but, it matters not, because there is always another time.

Jan: So actually, you hear our questions?

I do, yes.

Paul: One question I think... me and Ben actually went to a talk a few months ago, and we had our doubts about it afterwards, but she claimed to be an extra-terrestrial hybrid, part human and part extra-terrestrial, but we couldn't quite see any point to what that could be about, (No) because we fully embrace the idea that we have brothers from other planets, but the need to hybridise with human...

Jan: Salumet answered that question for us last year, when he said it hasn't happened, we haven't bred with extra-terrestrials in the past.

Do you remember when first time I came to you? My words to all that were here—if there is something I say or anyone says that you do not feel is right, then you must let it go, you mustn't accept it; so I will say only that if it gave you an uncomfortable feeling, then just to let it go. That is not to say that everything will be untrue, only that perhaps you may not be ready for that information. But, I will say to you, no, there is no mixture, why, as you have said sir, what would be the point?

Paul: Yes, yes that's nice to know, it's one of those things that is said...

There are many of these people I know, who are confusing others, but that is not to say there are not what you term 'aliens'—I would rather call them brothers of the universe; but you must accept in yourselves what you feel to be true and helpful.

Paul: Thank you for clarifying that, I think that could be nice for the readers (Yes) to hear as well.

Ben: I think that was our conclusion, wasn't it?

Agreed

Lilian: I've remembered the question, have you got time?

I will take you and then I must leave.

Lilian: Ok, thank you. It's a good few years back now, I was reading an autobiography of a well-known person, an American actress actually, but she had been on holiday with a friend in the Himalayas and this friend who could walk better obviously than her and walked further. He had a friend that if he thought about this female, she could appear just beside him; but in the Himalayas, the mountains right at the top, was a group of spacecraft; I don't know where they came from. Would that be a true story? Can you confirm?

I will not deny that there are visitors from space, I will not deny that there are those who can appear in an instant, because there are those in other universes who are much more advanced than you. So yes, these things are possible and a mountain range, I know would be picked by quite a few 'travellers', shall we call them, who wish to be not so well noticed. That is why you hear stories of them landing in obscure places. I do not deny that they exist, but what I do not like is the assumptions that are made about them. But that is not for any of you to worry about, I feel that perhaps some of the people who speak so closely of them, are a little, how do I say, humanly unstable.

Lilian: She was an actress, so she would be used to...

It may be that she saw something, I do not feel it is untrue, but neither am I ready to say that what she saw was completely right.

Lilian: I don't think she saw anything herself, it was this friend that she was with.

Yes, but that can happen, that can happen; as you know, many things can transmute, can change their shape, their structure, so why not a being? (Yes) And after all, what is Spirit? It does not possess a body, but it can appear. So, I say to you my friends, just dwell and think on the points that we have brought up this evening, allow your brains to stretch and grow, but allow mostly, to allow the Spirit to enter and help each and every one of you.

General thanks

As always, I leave you with my Love, I leave you feeling protected and uplifted and I look forward to our time together next time.

General thanks and good byes

SALUMET — 8th April 2018

After our healing prayers Salumet spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/8951003/2018_04_09+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

We are happy to see so many of you, my dear friends. We thank you of course for all of the names of people needing some kind of help. As you know, we are always grateful that so much Love is sent from you not only to those here on Earth, but into Spirit also. I feel as I join with you again, I feel that there are questions to be asked and I am willing to do so this time.

Thanks

I would like just to say that as your year progresses, towards the end of this current year, there will be many "goings on", as you would say, within your solar system; watch out for all of these, because it is a change which we welcome, because of all the disruption not only in your system, solar system, but many others. I believe I have told you that the disruption belongs not only to your Earth, but to many planets, and by the end of this coming year, this will begin to change.

Sarah: So change for the better. (Yes) Good—thank you.

Paul: Will we be able to perceive the change?

It will be noticed within your night skies, that there are changes and there will be many new stars to be found. So be aware my dear friends; I tell you this, only because I know you are interested in what is to come; your curiosity abounds. So remember my words and you will begin to see an easing of problems.

Jan: So it's an energy shift, (Yes) within our universe-s? (Yes)

Sabine: It has already started, hasn't it?

Not quite yet, people have spoken of these shifts, but this is something different, this is something more powerful.

Jan: More radical even...

Yes—so yes, there are always changes, but this I feel is good for all of you to know.

Sarah: Are these stars, are they new stars, or are they just new stars to us?

They're just unnoticed stars a lot of them. But of course, there are 'energy bursts', shall we say that create new stars also, but most of them are just unnoticed.

Sarah: Yes, they'll become more visible so we'll be able to see them. (Yes) Thank you.

Graham: That's fascinating. (Yes)

Paul: Almost like things are clearing in the night sky.

That is quite a good way of expressing it, my dear friend, it is. There has been so much, shall we say, 'pressure' on the Earth, but it will help immensely, so I felt that it was good for you to have some uplifting information.

Paul: Wonderful! Can you tell us anything about, is it emanating from the other universes?

It is a collaboration of many universes, yes, it is not one particular universe involved, but it is almost like, you as a group, agreeing for something to happen, you all as individuals, take your part in it. You understand?

Agreed

Now, we will have some questions this time.

Lilian: Yes, because I've got a friend who's coming to the end of her life, quite quickly, she didn't want to know anything about Spirit, or anything to do with religion or especially Spirit. So, me and another friend, we just didn't talk to her about it, but she's coming to the end of her life and she has shown a little interest, so that's good—partly because she was frightened of what was happening. But I got to thinking, we begin to sleep a lot as we come to the end of our lives, and I remember when George was going, you said that when he was asleep, he was already being prepared to go over, I guess for good, (Yes) but if like my friend, they don't have those thoughts that George had, or the knowledge, what happens when they sleep? Do they still go over to Spirit and learn?

They still come to Spirit whether they realise it or not. What happens when there is some kind of fear, is that they hold back from crossing, but they still as they sleep, as all of you do, each night of your lives, that the Spirit leaves the physical body and returns home to Spirit. It matters not whether you have the belief or not, it is the matter that you must transmute and change and believe in where you are; and this will happen eventually, whether your dear friend doesn't want to join us, it is inevitable that it will happen. (Yes) But they will always be comforted so...

Lilian: ...and her husband has gone before her, so am sure he will be around.

And trust your own words, both you and the other friend, that Spirit will help you to find the words that are necessary for the passing.

Lilian: Yes, thank you very much, my other friend will be thrilled with those words.

Yes. If only we could convinced all people, that is a beautiful thing, but there still remains so much fear.

Lilian: Yes, she's been adamant about listening to anything we may be talking about—she really...

We will encourage you for your words to be ones of Love and Truth.

Lilian: Thank you very much, because it is rather difficult.

Yes. People shy away from it, because they find it difficult, not the person who is approaching 'death' as you say, because there are so many beings around them, that they almost become buffeted from anything that seems unpleasant. So, just allow your words to flow.

Lilian: Thank you.

I hope that helps you.

Lilian: Yes, very much, thanks.

Jan: Talking of finding the correct words Salumet, a couple of weeks ago, you may have even been listening to us, I hope so! I spoke to my grandson, who is very knowledgeable I feel, spiritual wise. We were talking about death and he said he wasn't scared any more after talking to me, and there were lots of tears, but they were tears of joy, that what he was hearing around him from the media and his friends wasn't necessarily true. But, I was given the words, I felt I was being impressed to use the correct word for an 8 year old. Could you just confirm that I was right on that occasion please, that I was being helped?

You will always be helped if what you are trying to do is instruct someone in methods of Love and Truth and understanding. Your words will always be true, if you truly believe in Spirit, as you do, and are used by Spirit, then never be afraid that what you say is wrong—yes.

Jan: It was a lovely moment, it was very touching, but, very spiritual—just him and I talking. I wasn't talking to an 8 year old, I felt that I was talking to his Spirit rather than...

Yes, and you all can achieve that if you truly believe that it can happen. After all, even the smallest child is Spirit first and foremost, yes. So never be afraid to speak to children. And I am sure at times, they will surprise you and tell you that they already know what you are telling them.

Jan: He did, he did! (Yes) But in front of his parents, he tells me to be quiet. So, it's just the conversations I feel, we are on the same wavelength, (Yes) him and I. I yesterday mentioned it in front of his mum and the little boy said: "No! Don't talk about that!" It's just between him and I, I think he feels that his mum's not ready.

Yes, well children are never treated as adults, but in fact, they are still close to their spiritual home. And their knowledge sometimes is quite intense.

Jan: It is, yes, he knows, he knew that that wasn't appropriate, which was very ...

Yes, because he would recognise the light of his earth mother, yes. Continue to talk with him.

Jan: I will, I will indeed, yes, thank you.

Paul: I've got a few questions from the readers, but if anyone else has a question first?

Natalie: I've got a quick little one: So, when we return to Spirit in our sleep, is there a difference between, is it separate from our brain that processes things in the day, because if we have dreams and nightmares, like nightmares for instance, I don't believe that would come from Spirit—that must be a separate entity.

Yes, it is the physical part of you. After all, you are a whole of Spirit and human body and brain and mind, so of course, any unpleasant dreams comes from the 'mishmash', shall I call it, a word used on your planet—so often it has to express itself.

Natalie: Like fear coming out? (Yes) Ok thank you.

Sarah: I was just thinking a little while ago that we used to hear an awful lot about crop circles, (Yes) and now we don't seem to, unless I'm not aware of it, we don't seem to be having them.

They are still occurring in different places, but no, the first flush of knowledge of them has passed, yes.

Sarah: So have the beings that made them moved on to other places, have they?

Yes, they have done the work that they intended. Of course, there are still some, who will remain or return; but yes, I would not be too concerned about not hearing, they are still making progress.

Sarah: On this planet or on other planets now?

You are speaking of this planet, I take it?

Sarah: Well, I was speaking about this planet, but you said they've moved on to other places...

Not necessarily other planets, but perhaps from whence they came.

Sarah: Right, OK, thank you.

Sabine: I had a question in regards of all the technology, with the Wi-Fi and all the 3G and 4G and all these things going on. I do understand that the human body can adapt to new things going on, (Yes) but it does seem that these things are moving a little bit 'too fast' and there's so many people suffering from all the waves that are all around them. It's a bit tricky, there are so many studies saying how bad it is for the body, and there are so many people saying that they can't sleep anymore and they have headaches and their body cannot move anymore, because of all that, and yet again all the phone companies and the governments are still building up more and building more even stronger and faster everywhere, so I don't really know how all that can be managed with everybody.

You have to remember, that all of these things have originally come from Spirit to be used for good, but as in many cases, mankind interferes too much and does not use what is giving in the correct way. What I would say, it is only part of the problem, because you have to remember you have a Spirit and a mind, who are in charge of who and what you are. So, do not blame all of the, what shall we call them?

Jan: Technology?

Technology, that's the word—all of this technology is also very useful, but I understand what you mean by being too negative, affecting people. But the most powerful thing that you as human beings have is, and I repeat this once more, YOUR MINDS, your minds can surpass anything that comes your way. I have said this many times, many, many times, it is the most powerful thing that you can have, because it is, and belongs to Spirit.

Jan: It's learning that lifestyle balance again, isn't it?

Yes, balance is a very good word.

Sara: Nature is a good antidote for technology, isn't it?

Yes, and for mankind to realise that he does not have the right to interfere so much in what he has been given.

Jan: There is some human trait of wanting to run before he can walk, and trying to rush things and that's when our free will comes into play.

Yes and you also have a very great deal of curiosity, also, yes.

Jan: There is a big movement throughout the world though to suppress these technologies and just to do it at your own pace, what feels comfortable, and you know, you don't have to be like sheep and follow the trend.

No, you have to use your own mind for what is right and wrong, and I suppose a prime example at this present time on your Earth, is the recognition of the damage that all of your plastics are doing.

Agreed

But, because of the recognition, it is being challenged and something is being done, it is a case of the mind overtaking the practicalities of the use of plastics.

Sarah: All these animals that have given up their lives, so that we will understand that; (Yes) there was a whale that was beached and its stomach was just full of plastic.

Yet again, we come to the balance of life, do we not?

Jan: You did say, didn't you that our future energies will come from the sea?

There is much to come from the sea.

Jan: So of course we need to look after—this is the first step in looking it after it...

Sabine: I did read about using seaweed in order to do bags, instead of plastic it would be seaweed bags.

Jan: There're lots of different theories that we can use, I mean, we should use hemp and things like that again, which we've stopped doing.

Sarah: And bamboo. (Agreed)

And hemp of course, at the moment, I do not know if you know, is being used for medical purposes.

Agreed

Many things from the sea are now being recognised.

Sarah: And of course, they've got the equipment now to go much deeper into the sea, which they couldn't do before, (Yes) so I think they're learning things from the very deep.

And this will always happen; if you allow yourselves to listen to Spirit, do not be so quick to condemn or to have voices of opinion which belong to others. Stop for a moment and just think for yourselves.

Lilian: It's really all a learning curve, I guess.

Yes, small steps lead to larger steps, yes.

Graham: You have said about balance on our planet is so important. (Yes) One of the big concerns of humanity at the moment is our ever increasing population and that because there are now over 8 billion souls on this planet, inevitably that is going to put extra pressure on our little planet. I am wondering whether that will continue into the future and whether we'll carry on expanding or whether there will be a recognition of some balance that's needed with that as well.

Yes, balance will always win. People have to realise that these events, these happenings will occur and it will only take time for mankind to understand what he has to do about it. For example, when you had the outcry about contraception in countries where there was none and now you find that their population has dropped, whilst others have increased. But it is really up to mankind to listen intently to Spirit—to be guided.

Ben: There is something called 'Agenda 21', I think, which I've heard about, which is a part of the new world order, to do with controlling the world's population. I think there're some quite big figures in there like Bill Gates, who've said that the human race is too big for the planet; we're sort of living like parasites, aren't we, on the resources, (Yes) and there's a movement to almost reduce the population.

I would say that in all of your living upon this planet Earth that there is always problems and the balance comes when mankind realises what needs to be done to rectify whatever problem it is. This is a learning curve for mankind; not for the plastics, not for the expansion of the human race, but an expansion of MIND. And in saying those words, I feel that 'expansion' is one of the greatest, shall we call it a 'project', for mankind to take up. Expansion of the MIND ... think of those words just for a moment.

Brief pause

Jan: When we do that on a more collective basis, such as the plastics, where different countries on the planet have come together to solve the issue, there's really nothing that we can't achieve, when it's collectively—the power of the mind, (Yes) where we're all working in one direction.

If you think, to simplify it, if you can think of this group of people sitting together, like-minded to help others with their healing; how POWERFUL is that if it is multiplied. Can you imagine my dear friends, the power that it emits?

Agreed

It is wonderful to see.

Jan: And that's where we come full circle really, when Sabine mentioned about the internet and that was the good that it was created for—you can see it, because that creates that expansive knowledge, (Yes) that would not have reached in the way it has, to people.

Yes, there is always good and bad, yes. You have to have the good and the bad, to have the balance; I have said this to you many times before also.

Jan: Yeah, well, we know that—(Yes) that's now the Universe's Law, isn't it? (Yes) Balance is almost the first amendment...apart from Love...

And once you have that realisation that you have to WORK for balance, that it is not placed in your hands—that every individual on this planet Earth has to work towards Good and Love and of course Balance.

Jan: Yeah, the responsibility again, lies within all of us.

Yes, individual responsibility, yes.

So I say to you all, my dear friends that is my lesson for this time, to think about the balance of the MIND; mind expansion and to continue to Love and create Love in all areas of your lives.

General thanks

Serena: Relating to what Sabine was talking about, Wi-Fi, smart meters and that kind of thing, how are we using the power of the mind to deflect it? Is it to strengthen our aura, or to just be positive thoughts, or... It will naturally strengthen your aura if you begin to expand the mind, because the mind is in control of all things. So, whichever way you want to use your mind, that is down to each individual. You can use it with mind expansion for Good and you can also use it for other things that are not so good. But when it comes to deciding what you must do, you have to use the expansion of mind to create more love and more education of people. Does that make sense to you?

Serena: Yes it does, but how to you know when your mind's getting expanded?

You may not always know, it is something that will happen—you will recognise the feeling of having done the right thing.

Sara: I tend to find that people come to me and want to discuss something and I just go with the flow really and try to give whatever comes to my mind to them, to help them. But I don't always look for people to help, they just seem to come.

Jan: It's your light, Sara.

Yes, they are attracted by lights... everyone outside of this room, if they meet any of you, would be attracted to your light. You may be unaware of it, as you probably are most of the time, but to truly see the workings of the mind, it is best done in meditation, and then to answer the dear lady's question, (Serena) you will FEEL that something is happening.

Sara: Right, yes, we've just set up a new place to meditate in our house, which I think will be very nice. I've also noted that I've spent a lot of time studying my dreams this year (Yes) and I've noticed they've become really clear direct communication that can be quite helpful sometimes, in understanding, not just about myself, but it could be others too...

If you feel that is what is right for you, then of course you must continue and the more confident you become in recognising the connection with Spirit, the better all things become. (Yes) So you must continue if it feels right for you.

Sara: It feels ... it's very interesting to me, yes, anything to do with the mind, I'm fascinated by.

Yes, unfortunately there is too much thinking with the brain. And although you were provided with this encasement, this body, this brain, remember that it is a minor part and when the body dies, so will the brain—and the mind continues. (Yes)

Jan: I don't wish to bring in my ego on this at all, it's not how I intend it to sound, but when you were talking about our light attracting people, (Yes) is it OK to recognise that, because I do?

Of course! The more you are aware of your own auras, your own light—that can only be good; that means that your own mind is beginning to expand—that you care about others, that you care about the planet, that you care for the underprivileged—of course it is good to recognise.

Jan: Yeah ... there's been a shift ... I think my Spirit has come to the fore, (Yes) I think my Spirit has stepped forward, which is why I feel so differently.

This is why you should always be pleased to sit in meditation and feel yourself grow.

Jan: Yes, that goes for all of us, yes! Wouldn't it be wonderful if we were all born being allowed the knowledge to meditate? That would be my wish for the world one day.

Meditation comes naturally to those who do it often; and as long as the ego is retained and quietened, it's a wonderful feeling; and that is why I always urge you, my dear friends, to sit in meditation as often as you can.

Jan: The other thing that goes with that, and I'm not going to ask if it's correct, because I know it is, but often when you're more in touch with your spiritual side, you become less reliant on being amongst people, you can be quite happy on your own, (Yes) and not seek help or reliance from anybody else other than yourself—I've noticed that in me, that's the biggest thing I can ...

There is nothing more beautiful than the Spirit who is relaxed and loved and feels part of all things, whilst being on your own.

Jan: Yes, that's how it is!

Sara: Yes, I've learned to love my own company this year as well, very much more. I've always liked my own company a bit, but I really have taken it to a new level.

Yes, as long as you do not become too insular—that is a different matter, but I know exactly what you are both saying.

Sara: ...that people always come to me ... and I have plans to share more with my music, I want to share that much more globally, so I do have plans...

Yes, well of course you all still have your own individual minds, and free will is quite a strong part of your lives.

Paul: When we were talking about expanding minds, I was thinking of, sometimes when you're in meditation, you get to a point where you know that if you were to think of a problem in the world, or a problem with yourself, it becomes like nothing ... you might not know the answer to it necessarily in words, but you just know it is just another little issue and it will go. I wondered if that relates to expanding minds?

Jan: You've put it out to the Universe, haven't you, you've put those thoughts out to the Universe perhaps?

Paul: You know that these are just hiccups that will be resolved.

Yes, that recognition of right and wrong, is one of the basic things that meditation teaches you. You know that your mind is working towards Spirit, to become stronger, to become more loving; and that is the purpose, to leave behind the troubles of the world in meditation; then you truly see what life is truly about.

Paul: That's not quite to same then, as expanding your mind?

Expanding your mind means using it wisely, to be aware that that is what you wish to do.

Graham: Is this how we eventually become more evolved in the far future? Is this when we start to lose our free will—do you mean by that that we just know what to do?

Yes, you retain free will when you pass to Spirit, (Yes) because it is a part of Spirit, in that sense. But eventually it is just the knowing of all things. You know, like the gentleman has said, that things are not an issue and you just continue until it wears away and there is no need for that will. But now you are beginning to touch deep matters; but yes, you will know all things, when the time comes to pass, yes.

Paul: I have a few questions from the readers; I don't know if you've got time to take any more?

I will, I felt there was quite a number of questions this evening.

Paul: There's one from Meika, in the Netherlands, who's been following the transcripts for quite a long time now, (Yes) and she would like to ask, if you or others in Spirit realm are aware of us are persons, abroad in other countries, who follow the group from a distance. And another question: what is our top priority in what we have to do each day? What would help us the most in finding our path through life? I believe I have already answered the second question—to meditate and to grow. (Yes) And your task in life, for all of you, is to give Love. To Love your fellow man, no matter whether you feel it is not quite right for you—to strive to Love another human being is the purest form of Love; because you have fought well for it. It is so easy for human beings to say, I do not wish, or I do not like that person; that is very negative, and if you can only remember the two things that I have taught you, negativity and positivity—yes, the two opposites again, for balance. But your purpose on this Earth, is to learn to Love all people, all animals, all things and to do so quite naturally.

Paul: Yes, and I suppose her first question, I know you do—you have in the past tuned-in to individuals ... Yes, we do not tune-in to individuals in that manner. We are aware if lights mostly, of the beauty that rises from the being. But yes, of course, we can tune in to individuals, as individual mediums here; that is how it works, the medium tunes-in to the individual and gives the message, which is to come across, if that is what she means.

Paul: I think as she's never been in the group, and there're lot's of readers now, (Yes) in different countries, I think she'd like to know if you're aware of them as individuals at all.

Yes, we can be aware of anything; in the same way as, let's for example say, if the physical body has been injured, it does not occur in the Spirit, so in that sense, you have to think, we cannot look at every individual on the Earth and see then as one person—it is not like that. It is difficult to explain, but you recognise the beauty and the knowledge that they seek.

Paul: Right, and if they were to be thinking about you ...

... if they were thinking individually, of someone like me, then of course that is a more personal connection.

Paul: ... and you would be aware of their thoughts?

Yes, of course. It is difficult for us to tell you how we communicate, how we know things altogether, just by being here—it's not easy to explain.

Paul: No, to put it all into words.

Yes, but all of these things you will soon discover for yourselves. I would say, try to develop your sense of just BEING. That's where Truth comes from; to recognise and acknowledge that what you are doing is Truth and Light and Love. Not to allow egos to step in, because that is what will hold you back.

Paul: Mm, we've got to be humble, (Yes) and loving; yeah, we've got to follow the little children really—the ones that are loving and humble. (Yes)

Serena: It's easier said than done sometimes though, isn't it, because when you see everything that's going on, (Yes) it's just so hard to believe that people in power are capable of doing certain things, (Yes) which actually make no sense and they're not good! And then you sort of think, well, is it just the way I'm thinking, is it me that's mad?

You do not help if you constantly criticise, because what it is doing is making that negativity stronger within yourself. (Mm) And I know and I understand and we see it so often, of all the struggles of mankind, and the hatred and the killing and I have said to you as a group, do not focus upon those things, but to focus on the positive parts of life, the positive people; and then in that way it grows stronger, the Love grows stronger and it becomes an entirely different kind of situation. You understand?

Agreed

Yeah, it is difficult not to judge your fellow man; we understand that and you are only human, but my wish for all of you, my dear friends, is that as individuals, you strive for the very best that you can be—you can do no more.

Sara: Sometimes, if we focus more on our own life and what we're doing, than what's happening out there, that can help us also to be ...

It can help you to send Love to the situation, which you feel is not good, and I know it will not change overnight, of course not; it has taken so long for this planet to evolve, and you as human beings, to evolve. So perhaps another word for you to use would be a little 'patience'.

Sabine: That word 'patience'...

Sara: It's also easier to BE, concentrate on 'being', when you're not doing so much. I used to be so busy that I was everywhere, but not thinking so much about myself, always about other people. But this year I've had more time, and that's helped me to be and understand about being...

Yes, because you have found a better balance of life.

Sara: Yes, it's a much better balance.

Yes, that is all it is.

Sara: Yes, but I'm not saying I regret the things I've done, because I really enjoyed all those things, (Yes) but I feel that it's a good phase now to go within more and understand things on a different level.

Yes, you must always continue to seek and to search as an individual, because, after all, you are individuals, you have your own feelings and thoughts and I am sure, even within this room, there are many different opinions on different subjects, and that is how it should be, as long as it is given with Love. And that is your own responsibilities.

And now my dear friends I feel it is time for me to leave. As always I leave you cloaked in Love, in understanding, in patience, in all the words I have expressed to you this evening.

General thanks

Paul: Wonderful to have you again—thank you.

There was then a rescue through Sabine, dealt with perfectly by Jan before we closed—audio link:

Summary:

Expansion of MIND: So I say to you all, my dear friends that is my lesson for this time, to think about the balance of the MIND; mind expansion and to continue to Love and create Love in all areas of your lives.

Clearly our daily meditations are a vital part of this: You know that your mind is working towards Spirit, to become stronger, to become more loving; and that is the purpose, to leave behind the troubles of the world in meditation; then you truly see what life is truly about.

There will always be problems in the world, such as plastics and over-population, but when the recognition comes, we can turn our Minds to it and anything is possible, especially with the combined collective power of many, working for Good and Balance, which also has to be worked for. And expanding our minds strengthens our auras, which will help to keep us healthy.

Changes in the night sky:

I'm sure we shall be watching the night skies towards the end of this year and perhaps then this topic can be revisited and expanded on...

SALUMET – 11th June 2018

After our healing prayers, we were discussing Salumet's previous words, when Lilian noticed he/she was with Eileen—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9154748/2018_06_11+salumet.mp3

Lilian: We are very pleased to have you, once again.

Good evening, I have listened carefully about your words this evening. I am pleased that you are recalling my words from time gone about the dissolution of the churches, or the beginning of such, of the fact that young people will have a fuller part in the world to come. It is so interesting, my dear friends, that you have recalled our conversations of the past, and yes, progress may seem slow, but let me tell you, it is going at a very fast rate now. Human beings are listening to their inner voices, of course they are, or there would be no change. So I thank you, my dear friends, for your discussion about these matters.

As we continue over this New Year, I wish to say to you that you must be aware of all of the things that are happening within your medical world. Great steps are being taken in all aspects of recovery and cure. This, my dear friends, will continue and I can tell you that there are one or two conditions which will amaze some people that is coming up not too far in the distance; I will not tell you what they are, because I would like you to have the element of surprise. Also, I wish to tell that there will be more discoveries at the bottom of your oceans; a little has been spoken of, but not enough. And all of these people who look into all of these matters are quite excited at the moment—not only the oceans, but we look up into the skies; there will be announcements of new stars, which is happening all the time, but you are not always aware of it. So, my dear friends, look out for all of these things to come, because your world is in need of them and we will utilise and help those who are willing to help themselves.

Paul: Will these discoveries in the ocean have uses for us?

Of course, what would be the point otherwise? Of course you will benefit from all of these things that bring 'new' knowledge, and although I say new knowledge, of course you know it is not new.

Jan: The source of our energy, main energy, will come from the oceans first, (Yes) as well as healing?

Yes water is a most powerful agent, yes.

Graham: It seems almost as if everything is accelerating at the moment, with discovery of space and our planet and it goes on everywhere.

Yes, I listen to you speak about 100 years, that is blink of one eye, but of course to you human beings, 100 years seems forever.

Sara: It's a life time.

Di: It's a good lifetime, 100 years.

Yes, and it is becoming the normal life span and that is because of discoveries and medicines and attitudes of people—the changing of all of those things.

Jan: Will we solve our pollution problem in the oceans with our plastic, Salumet?

Yes, we have been trying to help you for so many years, but just the recognition now on your planet has become much greater. I will not say at this moment that you will solve all problems, but at least, you have the inside to do something about it, and with the help from our world it should be greatly improved over time.

Jan: Good.

Sarah: David Attenborough has done an awful lot to make people aware and these animals that have given up their lives through eating plastic has also shocked a lot of people and that's good.

Yes, without knowledge you cannot change anything; that is why it is important that these people work hard to bring to you, I will say common people, but that almost seems like an insult to you, you are not common people, you are spiritual beings who want to gain more knowledge. But you need people who will lead the way.

Di: I think famous people who aren't politicians, I think the common people take more notice and find it more believable when it's not coming from a politician, as with David Attenborough; I think that is really helpful, because people take their heads out of the sand and realise it's up to them to do something about it, not everybody else.

Yes, but do not dismiss your government people; they, most of them are good, kindly people who are trying to help and support others. So, do not dismiss them too much, give them the benefit of the doubt, as you would say.

Jan: I have a feeling, my feeling is that the world's waking up to the fact that we've been so greedy with our resources. A hundred years ago, perhaps we were rather ignorant of what we were doing to the planet, (Yes) because the industrial revolution was galloping ahead at that same pace as we're trying to improve what that caused, if you know what I mean? The seas were dirty then (Yes) with effluent and waste throughout the industrial time, and then oil, we all remember the oil slicks etc. during my childhood that seem to have been cleaned up; so the last bastion of the cleaning process, one of the last bastions, seems to be the plastic. (Yes) So in such short space of time, again, we've created the pollution, but we're also going to clear it up. (Yes) So I think we're an amazing ... our evolution and our learning has happened in such a short space of time.

And that has been the purpose of Spirit to do so, that this past century of your time has been one of great knowledge, or greater knowledge, for others to use, and that is what you should be doing, but what we wish to expand now, is the spiritual mind, the spiritual mind that will give you all details and facts which you can then utilise.

Jan: Which comes back to what we were talking about, the churches as well, (Yes) because as everybody becomes closer in their spiritual thinking, (Yes) and bettering of the planet, then it will gallop ahead at an even faster rate. As you've said to us, the power of thought, even in this room, if people have enough power to heal my leg, along with Spirit, imagine collectively, every soul on the planet, (Yes) thinking with spiritual eyes, what we could accomplish.

That is why, the churches in some small way also benefit, because they come together in prayer and hope, but the problem with the religions is that they try to influence people to their way of thinking, rather than allow the people to join in with the beauty of their singing, the beauty of unity together. You understand?

Agreed

Di: They don't encourage people to go inside themselves and find their own way, because they want to tell them...

Yes, it is a power struggle. But most people today on your planet are beginning to think for themselves. (Yes)

Jan: Those of us that watched the royal wedding—he did go on a bit, bless him, but there was a pastor from America, who spoke about Love. That was broadcast to so many millions of people around the planet, and he was so inspiring, that it made you feel as if the whole world was listening.

Yes, such a small word with such a big meaning. (Yes) Yes, and I have said to you, my dear friends, many, many times, the Power of Love, the Power of your Thought and your Thinking; and I cannot reiterate those any more than I do, but if you always go back to Love, you will not go far wrong in your lifetime. Yes.

Paul: I think you've said in the past that, as these older religions gradually go, there will be new ones. Will it be a case of far less religions and then, after a while, they'll just merge into one religion for the whole planet, or something like that?

This is what happens when you come to Spirit; no matter what you believed or how long you have believed that at a certain point in Spirit, your mind changes, you begin to see the Truth, and this will apply to all religions, whether you believe that yours is the one religion or not. All people who come to Spirit are faced with the facts that there is only one religion, and that again, is Love. It may take many lives for them to believe that, but it, I can assure you, will happen.

Paul: We had a question I didn't manage to put last time by Marvin Naylor who is a musician, and he's written a few songs inspired by the words in this group. He asked about religions on other planets and whether they have the same thing or are there planets who have already evolved to that point where there is just one religion?

Some of the planets have evolved, others have not, but it would not be the same religion as you experience here; what you experience here is for Earth people only.

Jan: I can understand that. (Yes) Other believe systems on other planets I would imagine?

Yes, these religions have been created by mankind from the Earth planet. I would only say to you and to the gentleman that when you pass to Spirit, all becomes clearer. But there is no doubt that upon the Earth planet that most of the religions as you know will gradually abate and many disappear, maybe even in some of your lifetime.

Sarah: It seems that some religions are becoming more fanatic though, aren't they, instead of dying off?

Jan: I've been following the pyramids Salumet, with lots of interest; there is so much at the moment in the media and your words are coming exactly true. Scientists now believe that extra-terrestrial spiritual beings must have been involved. (Yes) That's really exciting to listen to—I found myself shouting at the television and my husband: 'Salumet told us that, Salumet told us that!' So that is becoming almost mainstream now.

Yes, eventually our influence will reach those who are able to discuss it with a wider audience. Yes, you are correct, and of course, we in Spirit know that as human beings, even when you accept something, you have the problem of fear and doubt; it is a big thing for you all to accept that sometimes you live your life with some little fear. I say to you all my dear friends, let go of all fear, because there is nothing to fear.

Sarah: Salumet, I was looking through some papers the other day and I came across one that somebody had written and he said he was explaining what had happened when he had actually died—he died and he said his body was beginning to stiffen—rigor mortis was kicking in and all the things he said I could well believe was true, but he wouldn't actually have really died, would he, because his chord couldn't have broken and then been put back together again?

You are speaking about near death?

Sarah: It was near death—it wasn't death...

No, until that chord is severed, you still have an attachment to the earth plane.

Sarah: But he'd said he'd stopped breathing and all this, (Yes) but he wasn't dead?

It is the beginning, but until the chord is severed, you are still, let's say, 'part' human; that sounds very odd and strange, but I'm sure you understand what I am saying. (Yes)

Jan: Did he feel being pushed back Sarah, you know, pushed back to Earth?

Sarah: He was just explaining all the things that had happened and then suddenly he was back in his body.

Yes, he would have returned quickly, yes.

(Sarah said she'd bring the article next time)

Yes, because do not forget that when you reach that point, the Spirit has partly left the body, so you are able to describe what is happening.

Sarah: It makes sense, but I hadn't even thought about it in those terms, yes.

I hope that helps.

Lilian: I was thinking, would it be similar to, while you're here talking to us, you're in charge of Eileen's body, her Spirit is away at the moment—so it's a similar situation?

She is away, but she is still connected, she is being looked after by another with whom I work sometimes. But yes, her Spirit is not with you at this moment.

Sarah: Last week, she said she went deeper than she thinks she's ever been, and she was crying when she came back, she didn't want to come back.

Sara: I attended a talk recently by a lady who had an NDE (Near Death Experience) and she was very upset to have to return, partly because she was grieving for her husband and she'd met him in Spirit during the NDE. But it seems quite common that people feel upset to return because...

Jan: There is so much Love.

Sara: The Love...

Yes, you have to experience that—it is intense Love. The body is dismissed, if you like, and only the pure Love remains, but if it is not your time, you will not come to us; you may get so far but you will be returned, yes. I hope that helps you.

Agreed

I thank you, my dear friends, for listening to me. I have been most interested this evening to hear you repeat the teachings I have already given, which tells me that sometimes you must listen.

Giggles

Sara: Yes, I've been reading them as well at home.

Sarah: I thing that a lot of the things you say Salumet, they ring so true that it's hard to forget. Obviously we do forget some things, but those sort of words that you give us we don't forget.

Jan: I thing you're right Sarah, our short term memory might be quite bothersome, but when it's needed, we can recall all those important messages.

Yes, that is why I tend to repeat them for you, because I know the human memory is not the greatest.

Jan: Well, it will be one day.

And it has before.

Jan: Yes, I'm sure we'll get back to that.

Paul: Do you have any tips for improving our memories?

Just to go forward in Love, and believe that all is good when you come to our world.

Thanks

Jan: I have an inkling that Alzheimer's / dementia is going to be one of the healing subjects or the cures that are going to be spoken about.

I will leave you with your inkling.

Laughter

Sarah: Did you say, you see I've forgotten this bit, did you give us any timescale as to when these two things would happen?

It will happen and you will be pleasantly surprised. And that is how I wish to leave it.

Chuckles

Sarah: I was just curious to know how long it was going to be.

As human beings, you are very clever at trying to manoeuvre what I am saying.

More chuckles

Graham: It doesn't work though, does it?

Thank you.

Jan: But it's also quite nice for us to record these feelings, (Yes) so that we can gain a little bit of our own proof, I suppose, because human beings are very nosy and even though we believe, we still would like to receive proof all the time, don't we?

Yes, well, there is nothing wrong with that.

Jan: No—and we still get excited when you know it, in your hearts of hearts, you know it in your mind etc., but when it's presented to you as fact, we still go 'woo'! —yes, we knew that!

Yes, and as I have said from the very beginning of our coming together, whatever you cannot accept, do not accept it. I have always said that to you—do not believe my words, then, let them go.

Jan: I don't think that any one of us here has done that—has not believed...

Sarah: That's what attracted me in the beginning to this group, because there was no pressure to be here or to believe, or anything, it is purely, when we are ready for it...

And that is the best teacher, that when you feel that you have learned, then that is the right time.

Jan: When we come into the room, our egos disappear. (They should) Yeah, we've mentioned that lots of times, haven't we? (Yes) I know I have, with Lilian sat next to you, our egos just disappear—we're just one.

Yes, you must open up your mind, of course, but you must let the ego go. Yes, that is imperative and we like when we come together and come to agreement. Yes.

Jan: Lovely—beautiful evening, thank you.

Now, I thank you for your questions and discussions.

Sarah: Thank you for the answers.

Yes. I hope at least I have brought some clarity to what you have been talking about.

Agreed + thanks

So now, my dear friends, until we come together again, I will leave you as always, cloaked in my Love, and those of Spirit.

Thanks

Next, our dear friend Cho spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9154753/2018_06_11+Cho.mp3

Hello.

All: Hello Cho.

Jan: Nice to have you with us.

You're my friend.

Jan: I know. I was talking to you yesterday—thank you for looking after her...

There are 2 people to speak tonight—2 people.

Jan: Using 1 medium or 2?

Two.

Jan: 2 people—2 mediums. Right, OK.

You be good?

Jan: I'm always.

No you're not. You be very good. I look after you.

Jan: Thank you, as always, as you always do.

Yeah, yes. I go now, I tell you 2 people come, OK?

Thanks and byes

Pause

Oh no, I forget!

Jan: Oh no, not you! Our teaching tonight, we were talking about forgetfulness, I thought it was just us lot here!

No, I forget, one very shy, one, very, very shy.

Jan: OK, we'll be really loving and kind, yeah, thank you.

I help too.

Jan: You're gonna help too, you are gonna help from your side? (Yes) Lovely, thank you Cho.

Lilian: It's a rescue, is it?

No, not necessarily, just one to talk.

Lilian: That'll be nice.

Pause

Oh no!

Jan: Have you forgotten something else?

I forget say ciao.

Giggles

All: Ciao Cho.

Mark: I think Cho is pretending to forget to make us feel better.

You're funny...

Next, our shy guest arrived via Eileen—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9154759/2018_06_11+Shy+one+via+Eileen.mp3

Lilian: Hello. Are you the shy person? If you are, don't worry, there're quite a few of us here who are quite shy. We'd love to have a chat with you.

Why?

Lilian: Well, we're just a little group of people, did you know that? We love to have a chat together and listen to people from Spirit, and we've just had one we call our teacher, telling us future things that will happen on the planet. Can you tell us when it was when you were living on the planet Earth? (No) You don't remember? Was it in England? What can you remember? Did you have pets?

I had a horse.

Lilian: What did you call the horse?

Betty.

Lilian: Did you love ridding? (Yes) Can you still ride in Spirit, or do you just chatter to the horses and not ride them?

I like horses to be just with me—no one else, because I remember a little bit, when I was where you are, I had a mother who was very strict and she used to shout at me.

Lilian: She was domineering?

Yes, so when I had my horse, I spoke to her.

Lilian: Yes, that would be lovely, wouldn't it? Just to have something peaceful...

I try to come back sometimes, but I can only come so far and then I want to go back.

Lilian: Well, you'll go back alright, but it's nice to have a chat, I must say.

Sarah: You're doing very well this time.

This is important for me, with all of you people, but you're not noisy, are you?

Di: Sometimes...

Sometimes—I wouldn't stay if you were noisy. I don't like noise.

Lilian: I understand that. You were an only child, were you?

I was.

Lilian: Yeah, I was too, so...

Did you have a horse?

Lilian: No, I wasn't lucky enough to have a horse. I had a dog and a cat, and a rabbit, a few ducks...

That's all right—I don't know about ducks.

Lilian: Yeah, you do get used to the quiet, I haven't thought about it much, but you're right.

But, I'm told, I have to overcome this.

Lilian: Yes, you will.

Jan: Are you shy in Spirit, as well?

Yes, and I have to overcome it, and I'm told I either have to have another life, or I have to speak with children or some people who are talkative; but, I have to overcome it.

Lilian: Yes, I'm sure you will, you are not doing too bad now.

Jan: Do you have to make the decision whether you're going to come back to Earth? (I do) What do you think?

Lilian: Are you not quite ready, or you'd rather not?

I don't want to yet.

Jan: So that's why they've said, to stay where you are, you've got to be more communicative, is that right?

That's why I chose to come here. Although there's a lot of people, you're very quiet.

Di: We're being quiet because we know you're a bit shy.

Thank you.

Sarah: We also feel we can't hear what you're saying...

Sara: And I think we've all felt a bit shy at times in our lives, all of us, if not still sometimes. (Yes) So we all understand it.

But I've been told, if you are too shy, you are closing people out, and you can't do that.

Jan: Are you better in smaller—one-to-one, like Betty was, your best friend? Are you better? (Yes) Have you got somebody in Spirit like that, who you can talk to regularly?

Yes, somebody called Michael, who is trying to help me, because he knows I don't want another life, not yet.

Jan: You are very welcome to come, if you have a word with Cho, our little gatekeeper who is my friend—you can come and speak to us whenever you want.

He makes me laugh!

Jan: He's really cheeky, isn't he? He was pretending he kept forgetting things. I think he just likes to come and say 'hello' again. He says: "I must tell you, I've just forgotten, yes..." —he's cheeky. With somebody like Cho, you can't be shy around, can you? (No) He'd be good, wouldn't he?

Yes, he would.

Sara: And children are very good, because they're so open and they don't judge, they're always very innocent and I think that's helpful.

Yes, well, if I make any decision I will come back and tell you.

Lilian: ...because we all do, we all learn from chattering with other people, listening to their views.

Jan: I've got a picture of Betty, does she have a white blaze and only 3 white socks?

Yeah, can you see her?

Jan then picked up clairvoyance about the horse, which she spent much time with and loved...

...but they want me not to be with her so much, because they say I become...

Jan: Isolated?

Insular.

Lilian: Strange ... I don't think it occurred to me, I don't know about the others, that you could become isolated in Spirit; but why not?...

Well, I understand I shouldn't be, but sometimes with people, it takes a little longer and because I grew up feeling this way, it's part of me.

Jan: Of course it is; we don't change just because we've gone to Spirit, do we?

No, but can I say something before I go?

Sarah: Of course... as much as you like.

I like all of you!

Sara: We all like you too!

Thank you.

Paul: I've always thought there's something endearing about shy people, even though I agree, it can be a bit insular, but they're generally highly sensitive Souls, which is good.

Lilian: And peaceful. Can you tell us your name so we'll know when you come next time?

My name is Mary.

General comments about it being a lovely name

Sarah: You're welcome back as many times as you want to come Mary.

Thank you, but Cho's calling me.

Sara: You did very well.

I'm surprised I stayed so long.

Sara: You've spoken to lots of people.

Jan: Well done, well done Mary. (Thank you) Please come and see us again.

Mark: You didn't seem shy, you seemed quite talkative to me.

Jan: That's because we're a nice bunch, isn't it Mary?

A nice bunch.

Jan picked up more clairvoyance about Betty the horse, as we said our farewells to Mary

Note: Some things don't change when we return home to Spirit and Mary's shyness is an example of this. So it is important to work on our challenges while we are on this wonderful planet of learning, so we don't take them with us.

Then our second guest arrived, speaking through Sarah—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9154757/2018_06_11+one+via+Sarah.mp3

Lilian: You come to have a chat? Can we help you?

I'm just waiting.

Lilian: ...Just waiting for?

I'm waiting for my friend.

Lilian: I see. You know she's coming? Or he?

He's coming. Just waiting a little while.

There was then a few moments while things were being organised from Spirit.

Yes, sorry about that. He wanted to speak, but he wasn't allowed. He just wanted to give me some information. He wanted to come this evening, but he was not allowed. So, I have come for him.

Lillian: I see. Is he just a friend or a relative?

He is a friend, a friend from Spirit.

Jan: Is he doctor Klaus?

No. He did not do so well on this Earth plane when he was here and he very much regrets what he did. He just wanted me to see what it was like here now, and he is able to tap into me and see through my eyes, but he is not allowed to come just yet.

Lilian: He's not quite ready.

This is just another step in his healing.

Di: Well you are very welcome anyway.

We have worked together for some time in Spirit and I said I would come for him. I like to help him. He is so interested to see how relaxed you all are. He lived through a very tense time and he took some, shall we say,

'wrong' pathways. He is amazed at the whole planet—the tension has decreased and the feeling of Love is far greater. This is an inspiration to him, because he will in time return and the fear of returning to a fearful place is quite daunting for him. But now, he can see that not all is war and strife.

Lilian: No, far from it. Maybe, it may help if he thinks, when he does come back, it is to learn lessons, life lessons, and some we like and some we don't. So, if we can learn those lessons that we need to, it's a help to us spiritually; perhaps he could think of it that way—it will help him to grow.

Yes, I think, he may be aware of that, but of course when he returns as a human, he may well have again forgotten.

Lilian: Yes, he may have.

Yes, but this has been most helpful and I can see a smile on his face.

Natalie: Could you tell us his name?

Yes, his name is John. (Thank you)

Lilian: We have been told that sometimes, when a baby cries quite a bit when they come back, perhaps a mother one think, 'I wish they would shut up and so on'. They are sorry they've come back, but of course, they have to stay and then they would forget all about that. But just when they are very tiny, they do remember Spirit, (Yes) more vividly. (Yes) He probably knows all that.

Yes, I believe much more is known when you are in Spirit and so much is again forgotten when you return to the Earth plane. But thank you for this time and I can hear him being grateful for this experience.

Lilian: Well, I'm sure he's very glad you came.

And I am also grateful to you for allowing me to come. Thank you.

All: Thank you.

Notes:

Decline of Earth religions: Salumet first mentioned the fall of the papal religion and others on 28/07/1997 (see website) and this topic was returned to on 20/09/2010:

I have listened to your words about decline in the papal religion—and, yes, some time past I told you that this would be so—but the reason I have come to you this time, is to say, that at this moment in time, in all of your Earthly world, there is much unrest in all forms of religion. In many cases, it is unspoken, but it is there for all to see. At last, your young people are beginning to think for themselves. No longer will they accept the blind faith of their parents and elders. The time is coming for all religions to look at themselves honestly and squarely, and to allow those followers of any particular religion to say what they feel. It is an important step in the unification of all Earthly life. I, of course, have to say to you that we are speaking of a time that is to come. But I say to you: the first steps have already been taken. For this, my dear friends, I would say to you—rejoice!—because, at last, the truth of all 'love and existence' will belong to all peoples.

And this key point was given earlier on in the teachings: 28/07/1997:

...That dear friend, is where your religions in your world have fallen down, because they have revered single men, as if they were special gods. No one man has all knowledge. Each individual must find a pathway which is right for him. Remember my words, 'Judge not.' Judge no other man and you will truly find yourself. Until mankind reaches this understanding, there will always be saviours, holy people, gods, that men will revere. The question about religion on other planets was sent by a musician, Marvin B Naylor, who has written songs inspired by Salumet and Bonniols words. Here's a link to his website:

<https://marvinbnaylormusic.bandcamp.com/>

Pyramids made by extra-terrestrials:

Salumet has repeated that some of the pyramids were built by travellers from other planets (extra-terrestrials) for many years (see 05/05/2003) and there is a growing consensus with this: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aQq5dkOVTk4>

Near death experiences (NDE):

NDEs give us a glimpse of what happens when we die and more information can be found here:

<http://www.salumetandfriends.org/death-returning-home/>

Advancements in medicine/new discoveries:

Salumet has given us predictions regarding medical breakthroughs and discoveries in the oceans and skies for a number of years now. Many new stars have indeed been discovered with the aid of ever-advancing technology and new medical breakthroughs are announced frequently, often assisted by these improving technologies. A new form of energy from the oceans will come, and now we have 2 new medical breakthroughs hinted at by Salumet. There seems to be so much to look forward to at this time in history, compared to darker ages. This is the true news, which we are being encouraged to beam our attention upon and feed our thoughts with, which will help expand our minds and enlighten our planet, rather than dwelling on the problems. The future gets a little brighter with each new step, though we sometimes forget these things, with our foggy human memories, but the future indeed is bright. So, as Salumet repeated this evening: Let go of all fear, because there is nothing to fear.

SALUMET – 23rd July 2018

After sending out healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9271020/2018_07_23.salumet+wav.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

To join with you once again brings us great joy. Paul: Wonderful to have you back!

I wish to speak with you all, my dear friends, about a question often discussed amongst you as human beings; and most of these questions begin, my dear friends, with one small word...

Sabine: 'Why'...

'Why', yes that is correct. What I wish to talk to you all about, is the people who cannot understand why some people pray and ask for healing and these things come to pass, whilst another who prays fervently, or so they think, does not get the answer that they would wish to receive. Firstly as you all know, God is not of humankind, even although we say you are part of God, you have to remember that the word 'God', means a whole different issue, and talking of what God is about. God as you know it, is an all-encompassing word for Love, complete Love, and it is not someone who points a finger and says, "I will cure that one but not that one." So you see in humans minds it becomes very complex.

Agreed

And what I wish to say to you, my dear friends, is that you have to be accepting, accepting that the Great Creator knows what is best for all of us; it may not be what you wish, but it is what is best. Would anyone like to ask a question?

Paul: I was just thinking that I can understand that... (Paul then forgets what he was about to say)

Yes, the energy tonight is quite different.

Paul: Maybe it's affected by the temperature, the heat. (It was another really hot evening)

It is more likely that you as human beings are not the best receivers this evening—it is simple, but I understand what you are saying.

Paul: I was trying to think of it like connecting it to the power of our thoughts, (yes) so, sometimes I think I struggle a bit—I totally feel that God, or the purest Love, Source, would know what is best for all of us; (yes) there are times when you don't always know when to engage your thinking to try to change a situation or heal something. There are certain times when maybe you should sit back and allow things to happen, because it's part of the best thing that can happen to you.

Yes, and of course with many people, they do not have the belief, or the 'knowing', as I prefer to say, in what you believe. Your knowing is great amongst this group of people, but it has taken many of your years to reach that stage, but for many their understanding is still in a very immature state. But what I wish to say to you, my dear friends, is that do not dwell on what occurs with yourselves; if you have asked in Love for help, we will do all we can to help you, even if it is not in the way that you wish. But let me say to you all that no-one is never left alone; there will always be help for each and every soul who asks for that help.

Paul: And I guess there is a lot of growth in the sort of striving towards things—life needs to be a bit of a challenge, doesn't it? It can't be too...we can't get everything we want—that wouldn't be good.

Well not everything that you desire, but let us say that we are wiser when it comes to decisions of what is best for the soul.

Graham: What about those that because of their background and the environment, culture, whatever that they were born into, they're not actually aware of the fact that they can ask for help? I guess they receive that help anyway, even though they perhaps haven't got to a stage where they can ask directly?

No, I would say to you, my dear friend that every human being upon this planet has the ability and it is used often, of saying, 'God help me'. Even if those words are not said in the way that you may say them, I can assure you that we hear every moment of time someone call to God, and in the next breath say they do not believe in anything. How can each individual deny what is theirs? After all, you are part of the Great Divine, (yes) you are part of Love and Love will never be extinguished.

Sarah: But there are some people who just don't want to believe—you can say all you like, but if they're not ready to accept what you say...

Yes, that is the thing, but we see all the pictures in your world and people often say they do not believe in anything and yet in times of troubles, for example, shall we say if someone whom they love is in distress, they, in their own way, quiet way, will ask someone for help.

Agreed

You understand?

Sarah: I do; very often it's times of trouble that people turn to...

Di: ...it's when people are afraid.

Fear, yes that is a great subject, is it not? Love and fear—it engulfs you at times I feel, when what would be better is just to offer yourselves up that the best may be given for your best use.

Agreed

Sarah: The same when you're asking for help for somebody else—what's best for them, not what you think is best for them. (Yes)

Di: That's a very hard thing to do.

Sarah: But you may be wrong in what you're asking for that person, that's the trouble.

And of course, as the gentleman was saying, it depends a lot on situations, upbringing, but every single human being that abides in this world, has the deep inner knowledge of the Great Creator, and sometimes it takes a lifetime of denial, and for that soul to come home before they discover the beauty of Love. So, I say to you, dear friends, do not despair if all that you ask for is not given in the way that you would desire; instead, thank the Great Divine, for all the beautiful Love that surrounds each and every one of you.

Have you any other questions about this?

Sarah: I was just going to say that of course every person has a Guardian Angel around them, (Yes) so they're being helped as much as they can, if they can just accept it. (Yes)

Sara: There is an expression I like, which is: 'Life provides,' and I always feel that when someone turns their back on me, another one always comes forward; (Yes) a door closes, another opens and that is very comforting and I'm always very grateful for that.

Yes, life never stands still, life is rich and full and beautiful, even to those people who you may consider suffering at this time; deep within, how many times have you come across a person with so many problems, but such a beautiful Spirit?

Agreed

I am sure most of you probably have.

Agreed

So I just wanted you to rethink this discussion, because we have had it before, (Agreed) in a much simpler manner, but what it comes down to is that you are never alone, you are always loved and there are those people as well as Angels, who wish to do their very best for you. But of course, as you well know, you cannot interfere in another's life—that is a hard lesson to learn.

Di: Yes, a lot of people do say to me that they're so lonely and it is really difficult to reply to that by saying you're never alone, because they're not very receptive to that, because they actually think they need to be with another physical being to not be lonely.

But as I have said before, whether they feel it or not, they are never alone and the Spirit knows this. Again, we are touching on the human form, the human thinking and the spiritual being that each and every one of you are. So, those people who feel lonely may well have, as they feel, a very good reason, but there comes a time in their lives, when a little knowledge or something triggers their deep-seated beliefs—things that they have denied before, and they will be helped. You understand?

Di: Yes, thank you.

Sabine: I was trying to say that to one of my friends who feels very lonely; both parents and 3 siblings have passed on to Spirit, but I keep on telling her they're right there, they're right next to her, (Yes) and she just needs to reach out to them and speak to them, because they're just right there, (yes) and she wants to believe me, but...

Yes, she finds it difficult, but of course you can only sow the seeds, and again that is something I have told you before, to sow one seed to one human being on this earth, my dear friends, you have achieved a lot. It may only be a smile, a nod, any everyday thing can be enough to give upliftment to people.

Graham: I'm always amazed at how powerful smiles are, because there are times you meet people, perhaps in the street or where you are in such a position, and I'm quite a big person and there's a little lady or something and she may look nervous for a moment, because I'm walking quite quickly towards her and then I give her a smile and you can see the relief and relaxation and they smile back, which is lovely!

And then it becomes natural to both of you, (Yes) and probably it is like the pebbles in the sea that carry on creating the little waves; you give Love to one and it continues on its way. Always remember that, my dear friends, we know you live in an age of upset and countries-against-countries, but as long as you give out Love and healing to all of those people, you do not know what changes you have begun.

Sarah: That's good and we were just talking earlier about 2 people who've done some really awful things to other people and there is a chance that they might suffer the death penalty, but what's encouraging is that so many people in this country anyway, even though they've done such awful things, they don't think they should be killed. So, in that sense that's good.

Yes, mankind has a lot still to learn, but as long as good people like yourselves spread the word, but that does not mean that you have to constantly repeat, it only means to sow the seed and allow that person to blossom all by themselves; that would be a greater satisfaction to them.

Sabine: And to us as well, to see their blossoming.

Of course, yes, but because you are the good people sending out Love, you will automatically receive that Love back in some way.

Paul: Love, giving out Love, it is the most powerful magic, isn't it? (Yes) it sort of makes people grow, or animals grow, they become, they grow their consciousness, I think it was said with pets and animals, (yes) the more we love them... They become part of your soul, of course they do, and you all evolve from a Beautiful Love; you do, I cannot express to you the Love that you will feel when you cross to our world.

Paul: Love is the medium through which we grow really?

Yes, without love you are nothing, but I will say, if you really believe the Truth that you are never without Love, you ARE LOVE, Love is a feeling—you need no words, you need no expressions, all you need is that feeling of giving—that is True Love.

Sarah: We've talked about it before that various people have felt that tremendous Love that all-encompassing, overwhelming Love. (Yes) When we go over to the other side, is that similar, or is it much more intense when we go over?

A great number of people, as they are passing to this world, feel that sense of overwhelming Love. I am sure you must have read or known of people who have thought they were dying and experienced the greatest Love they have ever felt, and that is Spirit being there to greet them. If you cross more naturally without any doubts, it may take a little bit longer for you, only in as much as you're so busy finding things about this new life that you forget to just be open to what is around you. But when you do, the only word, a human word, I can use is 'Magical'... 'Beautiful'...

Mark: I guess Eileen experiences a lot of Love when she's stepped to the side for you to come in, because she often says she doesn't want to come back?

Yes, this one has had that opportunity; it can be overwhelming sometimes, because the feeling of deep and pure Love, it needs no other, it expresses itself in a way that you have to experience.

Graham: I suppose as human beings, we are attracted to love, and that can manifest itself sometimes in strange ways, like at the moment on our planet, there's a worry about gang cultures, where groups of young people particularly, get caught up with each other and end up becoming a gang of some kind, and perhaps perpetrate anti-social behaviours, drugs and things. (Yes) But in a way that is another expression of love, because they look upon their gang members as a type of family, I suppose.

There is not one person alive who has not experienced Love, but there is a slight difference between human love and Spiritual Love. You understand? (Yes) But yes, no one person is full of negativity; the most lost person in your world, still perhaps loves his mother, his father, a cousin, an aunt, it does not matter who, but they have that spark of Love.

Sarah: Even these people that do such cruel things to others?

Yes, but that human love, that feeling of human love, can then grow into a deeper Spiritual Love. (Yes) And again, my dear friends, I am sure you have read or seen your 'television boxes', as you call them, where people have changed their whole lives with the power of Love from someone else, (Agreed) or from their own souls' growth. It is a powerful—again it is a small word 'Love', in your vocabulary, but is the most powerful, the most powerful thing you have. Graham: It is incredible when somebody has managed to turn their life around from one of being involved with gangs, (Yes) or human trafficking, or very negative things—turned it around and gone in completely the opposite way; and then they tell their story, (yes) and their story can be very powerful and it makes you emotional sometimes, just listening to their incredible story, and again, the Power of Love.

Sarah: Sometimes I think some of these people, they do these things and then they change and that's meant to be, so that they can then pass the word on to others, who maybe wouldn't change, so...

Yes, that is always a reason to change, but there are many reasons, there is no one solution to all things. But once you go past that negative energy, which is what they have—their energy has become dulled, they are misled a lot of the time by other people who have stronger voices. (Agreed) So you see how difficult it is to pass judgement on any one person; but that is not to say they will not see the error of their ways, the error of their thinking; when they come to Spirit, all will be before them, and this applies to everyone.

Sarah: Yes, I don't think any of us have had a perfect life, we've all made mistakes along the way. (Agreed) Yeah, there are varying degrees of goodness, there are varying degrees of negativity, shall we say.

Graham: When somebody looks back at their life and they see the error of their ways, how is it that they can see themselves more truly as they really are, when they've died, than when they were on this planet? Is it because they are surrounded by powerful Love?

They are surrounded by Love, they are never left alone and before them, I believe people on your Earth have said that they see their lives flash before them; (Agreed) that is true, perhaps not in the way you would understand; but it is the knowing, a knowing that has to be looked upon, and in that instant, they either neglect to change what they feel, or they suddenly become—and I will say, many, many are so upset that they cannot look at what they have done.

Sara: I suppose they feel, they've become aware of the pain that has been given, the emotional pain perhaps, or whatever it is that's been caused?

They are shown the pain that they have given to others.

Sara: Inflicted, yeah.

Yes, you cannot judge and you cannot change what a person is—you cannot do that; you can only give Love, (Yes) and you must leave the rest to Spirit. (Agreed)

Paul: In giving Love, is it literally, is Love literally a blending, because you're giving...

Love is an energy.

Paul: And you're giving out your energy.

When you speak your words of healing for others, as you do within this room, the energy slowly changes within the room, as you have changed within the room. And to give those prayers for Love and healing, you have lifted your Spirits, you have lifted this room. It is a complex matter, not so easy to explain, but as I say, human physical love and spiritual Love are slightly different.

Sara: And the happiest people are the ones who give their thoughts and perform their deeds for others, but obviously keeping in balance.

Yes, provided they are not hurting other people. Sometimes we see an overcompensation, (yes) where people are so busy helping others that they, for example, may be neglecting their own family; there is a perfect balance, not always easy to find. (Agreed)

Sarah: I do remember you telling us last time that if you had made a mistake, or if you are sorry for what you've done, you should deal with that before you go over.

Yes, I still uphold those words; if there are any issues, they should be resolved whilst you are in the human form; it is so much easier, so less painful for whoever is involved in this. Yes, so you are correct.

Sara: But if a soul has tried to make amends for something, but the other person is not willing to allow that, does the other person still have to carry karma for an upset, if they tried genuinely to put it right?

Karma is only there if you have done something wrong. (Right) There is a little too much spoken about Karma. Karma is just resolving issues that have affected people. So, I would say, if someone has tried to make amends, then that is all they can do; you cannot make someone else do what you wish.

Sara: No, you can only offer. (You can offer...) You can offer more than once, but you can't keep offering.

But what you can do, if two people are not, let's say, happy together, they must just leave one another, until such time as they feel it is right to say something.

Sara: That's very helpful, thank you.

But, just to give out Love, it is still the best way forward.

Sara: And in your thoughts as well, privately you can send Love.

Yes, as long as you, if you are sorry for something that you have done, you can always speak from the heart, from the soul, and then just leave things, whatever the problem may be; but each individual knows that. (Yes.) Yes, it's when we hear so often people say, 'I do not know what to do.' I am sorry for them: Yes, they do know what to do, each and every one of you knows what is right and what is wrong.

Sarah: I think, as you say, I believe and have thought that for a while, everybody knows what's right and wrong, and I do think we've been extremely lucky that we've had your teaching and it's helped us to go on the right path, or try to go on the right path; but there are some people who haven't had that knowledge, and for them, it must be actually quite difficult for them to...

Those people have inner-knowledge.

Sarah: They have, yes...

Yes, that is making excuses, if you will forgive me.

Sarah: Thinking how much my thinking has changed (Yes) since I've been to the group, so, if I hadn't been to the group, I'd probably be thinking the same way as I did before.

But that is all that is needed, is that you can analyse your feelings, your Love, why you become cross with other people; all of these things, you have the ability and the power to change.

Sara: Is stubbornness something that begins in childhood do you think, or is it connected to pride?

Is what connected to pride?

Sara: Stubbornness.

It is a human trait; remember you are human as well as Spirit and as I try to lead you further towards the spiritual aspect, you are still remaining human beings, with all the faults that exist in the world. So, no, you are not perfect, none of you are perfect, and even when you come to Spirit, you will not immediately be perfect. You understand? (Mm) So, you have to deal, you can deal with any queries that you may have from a human aspect and then change it to a spiritual aspect, where you can try to erase what the problems are, because you have that ability with your mind, even whilst upon this Earth. So, no, try not to make too many excuses, as I say, but just to get on and live life to the fullest.

Paul: It's like our inner knowledge, our inner-selves are perhaps, could we say 'perfect'?

Your inner-voice is perfect, because that is the Spirit speaking.

Sarah: If our Spirit is perfect, then, a long time ago, you gave us the example of how we were like a rough diamond in Spirit, and you take a little bit off it and you polish it up, (Yes) and that's what we're trying to do; so that rough diamond is not perfect in Spirit?

It has been influenced by the human life; when you return to Spirit, that rough diamond is seeking its place within the whole, but it has to be polished, it has to be refined, that is why it is good if you can refine yourselves in your everyday lives on Earth.

Sarah: I was under the impression that that rough diamond that you talked about, in Spirit was just us, one person.

One aspect, you are speaking of one aspect of a whole diamond—that one aspect is a life that you have lived here.

Sarah: But the rest of it, that is in Spirit...

You will join up with them.

Sarah: But that's not just, if I can say, that's not just 'me', that's other people as well, other Spirits as well? I was under the impression that that was my Spirit and I just took a little bit off it, and the whole idea was to polish the whole of me up. Am I wrong in that?

That is what you are, each lifetime that you lead, you are learning more and more and polishing the diamond, if you like. I only used the diamond as an example for you. (Yes) If you forget about the diamond for now, each little piece comes back to Earth for another life, in order that that diamond may be shone more and more and more, until such time it is so beautiful that it moves forward.

Sarah: So, we will eventually get the whole thing polished up?

Giggles

Well, I cannot give you time, but let me say I cannot see it.

Paul: Because you're still learning...

We are all learning. No-one will be the Great Creator, only the Great Creator, and we are all little 'chips', call it a piece of a diamond, call it what you will, but we are all striving to go Home.

Paul: So, as far as we know, it's a never-ending journey?

As far as I know, I see no end.

Sarah: Yes, I remember you saying, we keep searching, but we never get there. (Yes)

Paul: But, why would you want to end, it's a...

Yes, that is very true.

Sara: It's always interesting.

That is why it gives us so much pleasure, my dear friends, to come back to people such as yourselves, who will listen to the Truth and then go forward with the Truth, not only the Truth for themselves, but for everything and all people in this world.

Graham: Would it be true to say that, as we progress throughout our many lifetimes and we do become more evolved, we do become happier and happier and happier as we go into our futures?

You should do.

Graham: Yes, that makes sense.

That would be the aim, for spiritual Love to take a stronger hold and you would look at things differently.

Sara: I would have thought humbler as well, humbler and humbler, (Yes) the more we evolve, (yes) and more open-minded therefore, less judgemental and I think, when we appreciate all the—as if we are all an orchestra and everyone has something to contribute to the whole sound or the whole harmony—well, we won't have harmony unless we appreciate what everyone has to offer.

You will never in one lifetime embrace all the beauty and the thoughts; you become part of, for example, trees, you become part of the sea, you become part of everything, and nothing is individualised.

Sara: Yeah, I see, you blend...

You are seeking, yes, you are seeking to blend with every other thing, to become whole, and that is something that takes a long time.

Sarah: I bet it does.

Giggles

And for dear lady's beautiful diamond, just keep on polishing!

Laughter

Sarah: I'll do my best! There is one person that I know who does his best to fall out with everybody—very nice people, and he falls out with everybody—does his best to make things difficult for everybody. Is that his brain that's not working properly?

Giggles

Well, I see that my talk this evening... let us say, you should feel pity for this gentleman.

Sarah: I do, I do, and I do try and send him Love, but...

Sara: You've got curiosity, as well, about why...

You must allow him to lead his life; it may not be what you want, it may not be the way he likes to live his life, but it is his pathway to find out for himself, why he is like that. You may not know his history, (That's true.) that's why you cannot judge.

Sarah: No, I'm not judging him, but I do actually feel very sorry for him and I feel sorry for his family as well, but I just wondered what would make somebody want to fall out with everybody—but as you say, we don't know the background.

No, and in showing that 'unpleasantness', shall we call it, it may make other people realise that they can be happier. So, in a way, he is doing some justice. (service?)

Sarah: That's true, I hadn't thought about it like that before.

So, always think, when you are discussing, always think about the other side of the picture.

Sarah: That's helpful, thank you.

Natalie: Going back to lifetimes and having to keep coming back, what would the collective number of everyone in this room, what would their lifetimes be, out of interest?

Graham: I don't think he can answer that.

Sarah: Hundreds I should think!

Giggles

Yes, it is not a question I am used to. How many times have you all been back, is that your question?

Natalie: Yes.

It varies, I cannot give you a straightforward answer, because some of you have been around longer, others a shorter time. It does not make you think that because you have done many more lifetimes that you will stop coming back quicker—it does not work that way, it does not; but I can tell you, I think that the majority of you will be back.

Mark: We'll be back again?

Giggles

You'll be back again, yes.

Mark: For more revision!

So, it's important to live a life where you feel quite contented that what you have done has been to the best of your ability; you cannot do more than that. And sometimes you will have insight into some of those past-lives perhaps, but I would just say to all, my dear friends, thank you for listening me once again. I know I repeat myself and...

Sabine: And we need that.

Agreed

Yes, I only do it when I feel, somehow it has all been a little forgotten.

Sarah: I think when you repeat yourself, there are obviously things we do remember that you've said before, (Yes) but always, we can learn something new from what questions are asked, and we learn something else...

Yes, sometimes as time goes on, the answer you think you have, changes slightly and you think: "Oh, I did not think of that before." So, it is still useful.

Sarah: Yes, absolutely, and there are obviously things we've forgotten as well.

Di: And for some of us, it's the first time of hearing.

Natalie: It's quite uplifting as well to hear the words.

Yes, well my dear friends, unless you have another question, I will take my leave.

Serena: Can I just ask, with regard to us coming back, it's something we choose to do, (Yes) although, it's something we need to do, but it is still a choice?

You are left until you can make the choice for yourself, but all I can say is, there is Love behind it, reminding the Spirit of what is necessary; but yes, you do choose to come back, no one forces you. Some people have the idea that you have no choice. When first you come back to Spirit, you still have your freewill and that does not change for quite some time. You may want to live quite a number of 'years', shall we say, getting to know something in Spirit, helping with children, with animals, associating with other people, there is so much to do in our world that you are not aware of; but yes, you always make the choice.

Serena: So, however difficult life seems, it is the choice we've made and we knew we were going to have those obstacles?

You don't always necessarily know every obstacle, because after all, an obstacle can be created by another person; this is why it is difficult—you can't make judgements, because so many of you are saying, 'oh well, it's karma', or this and that. It is not always karma, karma is just giving a response to what has already happened.

Sarah: And you also told us that when we come back, we choose our parents, not for who they are, but for the opportunities they give us in this lifetime that we need.

Correct, yes, that is true. Yes, so many people feel, well, I have re-said this all before, 'I would not have not chosen that lifetime.' But yes, you did choose that lifetime. No-one is compelled to return to the planet without first agreeing that is what they want to do. So...

Sara: If a person were very masterful of their own selves and thought they might not have to come back, would they actually know that, or have an inkling about it, or would they not know at all?

The knowing would be there.

Sara: It would be there before passing? Or not before they passed?

I see, you are asking if they know before they pass what?

Sara: Would they have any idea about their own evolution? Would they know that before going to Spirit?

You may have an overall view of life, but it would be very quick, just to assist in your passing, but generally, no.

Sara: I would imagine you wouldn't have any idea.

No, it is only once you have been in Spirit for a while that you then begin to think and see. Firstly, you have an overview of your life that you have come from, and then as time continues, you begin to see parts of where you should be going to.

Paul: And you can liaise with, well it all connects with others, like people in this room, some have had previous lives together...

No, the decision is made by those beings, beings who have probably never lived upon the Earth. They are not advised by other Spirits what they should do. That choice is entirely theirs. And now, I am going to take my leave.

General thanks for wonderful evening

Yes, the energy has been a little unstable this time, but I hope you have heard my words.

Enthusiastic agreement

Sarah: Did you say why the energy was unstable, I don't always hear everything?

I don't think the instrument is quite in tune with me this time; it is nothing to be concerned about, but happens, not often, and I just felt the disconnection a few times, but, she is OK and as I leave her, I am OK.

Giggles

Di: That's good to hear!

Thanks

I am becoming very humanised, the longer I speak with you.

Laughter.

Graham: I'm not sure if that's good or bad!

Sara: Poor you!

Laughter

Serena: You must be spending time with Cho.

Cho, yes, I do not really associate with Cho too much.

Serena: No, I just meant you both put a bit of humour in...

Humour, yes, why not? When you return to this plane, it is surprising what you pick up. You become aware of words you were never aware of, and feelings. But, as always, my dear friends, I will take my leave and look forward to our next coming together.

Thanks and farewells

Notes:

Accept that The Great Creator knows what's best for all of us: There is a bigger picture when it comes to the Soul's growth and our guides and Angels help us on our journeys throughout our many chosen lifetimes.

The Great Creator:

The Great Creator has been discussed many times, and our striving to return 'Home', with the Great Creator as our 'final destination' if you like. A similar question about the 'end game' was posed last year, to which Salumet replied: Of course we become much more refined as time—we will use the word 'time', but again, it is a word that cannot be explained fully. As time continues, let us say, the Spirit becomes more and more attuned to what life is all about, and I will say to you only this, that life itself is meant for returning to the Great Creator, that is the purpose of ALL LIFE, in ALL SPACES, to become part of that Great Creator from which we came. 05/06/2017

And as Salumet indicates, it's a never-ending journey—like the song: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Gf1WTRVEZxk>

Near death experiences (NDEs):

Salumet mentions the tremendous Love that awaits those who cross to Spirit, and many NDEs have described this, such as Mellen-Thomas Benedict: <https://www.neardeath.com/reincarnation/experiences/mellen-thomas-benedict.html>

And Carl Jung:

<https://carljungdepthpsychologysite.blog/2018/02/03/carl-jungs-near-death-experience/#.W1xa8slTXIU>

Sowing seeds of Love: As Salumet indicates, even helping just one other person in a lifetime is good, and even a smile to a stranger can be deeply touching and ripple out.

SALUMET – 13th August 2018

After healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9328245/2018_08_13+1salumet.mp3

Lilian: Welcome Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, we are pleased to join with you this time. We welcome the lady who has not been in my presence before.

Claire: Thank you.

I will say just one thing to her, that as much as she desires to know more, her brain and thinking is a little too active. You need to, my dear friend, just slow yourself down a little; whatever you seek will come to you in time.

Claire: Thank you.

Now my dear friends, I wish to take this evening's opportunity, to remind all of you, no matter your circumstance, to live in the moment, to live in the here and now; and although some of you feel that you already do, let me assure you that you are not quite there. We know that your lives are quite diverse and that is good to have in a group such as this; it has given you the opportunity over the years, to come to realise that you are all individual; but I am here this evening to tell you all, live in the moment; and I know some of you will be saying, 'but how can we? Life is so busy.' Yes, but you are missing out on life as it should be. Every sacred moment counts. You can achieve whatever you wish and you can have the health that you desire, but do not rush, my dear friends, into something far ahead, to forgo and leave behind what you should be learning. Do you understand my words?

Lilian: Yes, hard to stick by them all the time, (Yes) but yes, I'll try and do it more and think about it more.

That is all that we wish for you, that you attempt to live in this manner.

Sarah: It is difficult, because you need to do some sort of planning in life.

Why? Why do you? Does not each day follow the last one? (Agreed) Does not each day follow forward and become the next day? (Yes) Does life not look after you in that way?

Sarah: Yes it does, but—if you're only living in the day...

...You are enjoying life, if you live in the day.

Sarah: You are, I agree, but you...for example, I was thinking of me going out to Australia—there are certain things that you need to organise, you can't just live in that day—I suppose the day you're living in, you're doing things for the next day.

You should be living life, each second of the time. Your move to another country, of course, it is part of living, I am not saying that, but you can deal with each step of life as it comes to you, you can enjoy each step of life, or you can deal with the problems of life. If you are ahead with your thinking, think of how many days and hours and minutes that you have lost, never to be recaptured. I am not saying, do not think of other things—that is not what I am telling you; but you find it difficult, I feel from you all—how can you possibly just live in one moment, in one minute?

Jan: I suppose, if you have your dreams and aspirations, and they should be put to one side—not removing them, but I think what you're asking us to do is that particular day is to be conscious of every minute (Yes) of that day (Yes) and not worry about tomorrow, because tomorrow doesn't exist, has not existed, so it's just to work towards your goals that day, with a very open conscious mind.

Yes, you have captured my words very well, I am not asking you to be so insular that you do not think ahead at all, that is not what I am telling you, but I am saying, savour every second of the life that you have here and now.

Sarah: Yes, so whilst you're, for example, Jan's going on holiday, so it's no good waiting till the day she goes on holiday to buy the ticket to go on holiday, she would have to do that in advance. (Yes!) So while she is buying the ticket, she's enjoying buying the ticket. (Yes) I can understand that.

Make every moment count. (Yes)

Di: Enjoy where we are, doesn't mean don't look ahead, (Yes) enjoy where we are, but don't just look ahead, enjoy...

Yes, but be conscious of the here and now.

Sarah: Yes, okay, I can accept that, yes.

Are you happy with that? (Yes) Thank you my dear friend. I am sorry I interrupted the lady.

Jan: When we live in—I forgot what I was going to say now, isn't that dreadful? Dear oh dear... very human.

Sarah: Enjoy that moment!

Commented [p1]:

Giggles

Jan: Yeah, enjoy the moment of forgetting...

Do you not feel the laughter and the Love that is now in this room, at this moment? (Yes) You do, that is what I am trying to help you achieve.

Jan: Yes. I know what I was going to say, you used to tell me for years and years that I was very fearful and when you live in the moment, the fear disappears, (Yes) because there's nothing to be fearful of.

Of course, and each step as you take it, one minute ago, one second ago, is the past. You leave the past behind you and you move forward.

Jan: And there's no harm though surely in learning from those past moments, because I am the world's biggest procrastinator, I'm dreadful, I'll put things off that I should be doing that day, so...

But do you not see that perhaps, that is part of your human make up?

Jan: Yes, which is different to my spiritual mind, yes.

Yes, you understand that? (Yes, I do) Good.

Jan: But I have learned that it's not worth beating yourself up over it, because there's no point whatsoever—it's happened it's gone you've just got to...

Yes, and so many people are still living in time gone by, (Yes) when they should have released those burdens, to move forward. Yes, does anyone have a question?

Sabine: Well, I was doing a bit of reading earlier on different transcripts, because I was thinking of a question, but then my question got answered by all my reading, and then I came across something that you've said, and I would like to know if you could help me with some examples on how I can achieve that. You were saying: "Strive forward to achieve evermore spiritual consciousness in your daily lives, in order for those spiritual eyes to be awakened." And I was just wondering, what could I...

Your spiritual eyes are already awakened. (Right) You are expecting some kind of, shall we say 'miracle', I don't know another apt word to use. But when people speak of their spiritual eye opening, they have a vision of an eye, which wakens up. That is fine if it helps you to understand; but from the moment you are conceived and you are born into this human world, your spiritual 'eye', I say reservedly, is beginning to open and is already open.

Jan: Yeah, that makes perfect sense to me.

You understand? And you grow from that moment on, and it is only when you recognise, or think you recognise that this has happened, that you feel yourselves to be more spiritual. (Okay) All throughout life on this Earth, is teaching you about spiritual things, spiritual beings, all of that, and you just go with it, you go with the moment, until such time you realise another thing is happening, and you know more than you did the day before. There is no special circumstance that you can create for this. (Okay) Is that helpful to you?

Sabine: Yeah, so just embrace... (Embrace it, yes) every moment...

But I can assure you, my dear friend, your eyes are wide open, spiritually.

Sabine: Thank you.

And this is what happens within this room, you see the results through the actions of yourself and others, you see actions of Love towards others, and what is that if it is not the beauty of the 'spiritual eye'. You understand?

Agreed

If you have doubts, please ask me.

Jan: It's the most natural thing ever, isn't it? (Yes) It's an awakening, you waken to a little more everyday as you work towards (yes) being in spirit again.

Remember that you are already spiritual beings; that will never change, no matter how many lives you lead, that will never change. And it is up to you as human beings, given and helped with this lifetime, to try to expand that knowledge. And how do you expand that knowledge? Just by being yourselves. There is no secret formula. I am sure you must feel it as you come together in unison on these meetings, just how much you must have grown since first we began to speak, do you agree?

Agreed

Paul: Sometimes it's detectable in people's voices, the way they sound, compared to listening to some of the earlier recording s, I think my voice was sort of higher and... (Yes) it's relaxed a bit.

Sarah: It also deepens with age as well, you know as you get older your voice deepens a bit.

Commented [p2]:

Di: I think there's a lot of reassurance from these meeting and I do think that maybe it makes you feel a bit quieter and calmer about life in general, really.

Spirit, Spirit is quiet, Spirit is loving, Spirit is all-knowing, not 'belief', but 'knowing'; and you should remember these aspects of Spirit, because you have all gone through many things in life, which you may at times not have thanked the Great Creator for, but which have been a learning curve for you all. Remember always, because you are part of that Great Spirit, remember this always, and you will not stray far from the path of learning. Are you happy with the words this evening?

Agreed

It gives you time to think again about what we have spoken of before. Does the new lady have any question?

Claire: I don't think so this time... apart from learning to slow my brain down, I don't quite know how to do that.

You have to find the quiet place. You will not slow your mind down whilst your body is active, unless you have had years of practice.

Claire: No, I haven't.

No. What you must do is sit in the quietness and allow that Spirit within you, or about you, whichever way you like to say it, allow the Spirit to come forward. (Okay) Because at the moment, you are Spirit, but you are inhabiting a human frame, so you must practice and you must learn to quieten the mind, and then you can receive all kinds of knowledge and help.

Claire: Okay, thank you.

But, I will try to help you.

Claire: Thank you.

Are there more questions this time?

Lilian: Could I ask one on behalf of my granddaughter, not that she knows I'm mentioning her. Is there a free will stopping her from, I'll say, getting better, going forward? She does have umpteen problems—it's my daughter's daughter, Kathrine.

Your granddaughter? (Yes) Yes, we have spoken before of this young lady. Life for many people is not always comfortable, and life for many people is surprising and worrying, and always deep within the Spirit is a desire for going Home, to be safe, to be sound; and it is all too easy to say, does it come from a past life? Is it perhaps something she should achieve? What I will say to you, my dear friend, is this young lady needs a few more Earth years, before she becomes, how you would call, a little more settled. (Yeah) She needs more years, because, from a small child she has struggled. (Yes, she has) She has struggled whilst on this Earth, but it is part of her learning.

Lilian: Yeah, so that's probably why she chose my daughter as a mother to help her.

Yes, you all choose your parents, again I have told you, it is not because of the personality of the parents, but the opportunities that can arise for you to grow in Spirit.

Lilian: Yes, that's interesting, thank you.

But you must, and the mother, I will say, although becomes distressed at times, that mother accepted the situation of a difficult life, which we have no need of going into.

Lilian: Yes, you've already talked about her difficult life.

Yes, but you, as a grandmother can be a listener for this one. (Yes, right) Do not force conversation from her, she will accommodate you when she is ready. But you must give her more time.

Lilian: Right, thank you.

Sarah: When you said she's always struggled in this lifetime, was she one of those that once she'd decided she was going to come back, then when she got here, she found it difficult in the beginning and wanted to go back again?

Yes, that happens with quite a few; the decision is agreed upon and they wish to return, and remember, there is no pushing them forward, it comes from free will, (Yes) and as they come, they realise that they have lost the comfort and safety of Spirit, and it leaves, not negativity, but an unease that stays with them, or some of them at least. (Yes) Yes, you are correct.

Jan: I can imagine that with the young lady you are talking about, that makes a great deal of sense.

It is always, when it is a close union in families, that you want to help, you want to do the best for that person. But sometimes, the best thing that you can do, is to step backwards and allow them to live the life they've come to.

Jan: That's definitely been one of my lessons, because I have the other granddaughter to Lilian, both of the granddaughters seem to have come with many problems this time that they have to sort out. Yes, I've learned just recently that I can't—well, my daughter affects my living in my moment, because I worry about her too much.

You must not allow that to happen.

Jan: And that's what I've learned just recently, I have to step back and allow her to find out for herself, (Yes) because she seems to repeat the same pattern.

She is repeating a pattern...

Jan: ...All the time, (Yes) because her negativity—she almost creates her own reality with her negativity I believe.

That is exactly what she is doing, in the same way that you all create your own negativity, or hopefulness, or Love, no matter what, you are responsible, each and every one of you, for what happens in your life. And your life actions can be transmuted; remember, it is not always set in stone, I think you say?

Agreed

Di: So, if we feel like we should be helping people then, should we just make that known to the person and then take a step back, so that they approach us rather than the other way around?

If you are out to help other people, there is no need to tell them, you can carry on and help in whatever way you desire.

Jan: They'll always come back to you, because they know the Love, (Yes) they always come back towards the Love.

They should feel it.

Di: I was just thinking about my family, my brother and sister and their children in particular, because they've had a really bad—well, I think it's quite a few years really; we've only recently got involved, but it's like walking on egg shells, (Yes) I feel I should just be available rather than sticking my nose in really, if that makes sense?

Yes. Remember, you are all responsible for your own lives, and remember also, this is only one life and what you are doing, or trying to achieve, is for the bigger picture. Try to focus on that, my dear friends, and you will feel that life, I am not saying it will be worry free, it probably will not be, because you are human beings; but, you can strive to be the best you can.

Sarah: I always remember Salumet, you saying that negative thought attracts negative, and I remember, I used to cycle back from work through a dark woody bit and I always got very frightened going through there, and after you said about negative attract negative, I was never frightened again, I just went through. So, those words stayed very much with me and (Yes) that's part of it, isn't it? (Yes) If you're not frightened, if you just listen to what your body's saying, or your insides are saying, and just go with that.

And what you have done is created a safety for yourself, and those who come to you, those Angels, those helpers, you have given them the opportunity to come closer to you. You understand?

Jan: It's creating your own reality, isn't it? (Yes) The negativity—if that's what you expect, that's what you get, it's as simple as that, I think.

Now, I feel I have rekindled your thinking again.

Agreed

Lilian: Yes, you certainly help us.

Yes. I hope that I have helped in some way for you, my dear friends, because without you all, you have not realised just how much good work you have done as a group, and for this, we are always thankful to you.

Serena: I find myself sometimes, trying to visualise what I like for a person, and then I realise it's not my life! (Yes) It's their's!

Yes, you have spoken very wise words, my dear friend, of course it is not your life and you must, however hard it may be, you must allow others to live theirs. And it's the realisation that you can change actions in your life; that empowers you to go forward.

But I will leave you now with the words I started with, about living in THE MOMENT. Please do think upon these words this time.

Lilian: Yes, I'm sure we will.

And I am sure you will feel the Love that comes to you.

Paul: And, being in the moment, allows us a bit more spontaneity, and we may actually be able to help out other people more by...

Without realising... (Without realising it, yes!) of course you will, and can.

Paul: Having a good—setting up that vibration, it's a bit like happiness, it...

It reverberates throughout the whole of the Cosmos, yes.

Jan: We shine brighter!

You can make it shine as brightly as you wish, yes.

Sarah: But, if we are all trying to make things better, so on the one side we are making things better, but you've said to us there is always a balance, so does that mean that some people...

And the balance is being that you are a human being, you are living in a world which is not an easy one at times, but which we have spoken of, that we try to create a better world, but you always have balance in this planet.

Sarah: So, does that mean if one lot are getting better, another lot are getting worse?

No, that is too simple, we will speak on this another time. (Okay, yes, thank you)

So, my dear friends, I will take my leave at this time. I wish you well in your thinking and I will be interested at some point, to see what you have gained from this evening.

Thanks

Eileen then began to receive clairvoyance, with the name Andrea, in a school playground, around 7 years of age or younger, and she had the nickname 'Bunny'. This was a message for Claire. There was a question mark over Claire's head, which she was able to explain. There was also a key in an old door, which may symbolise the need to open up the mind. There was also mention of her son, who could see things, specifically his granddad, though there was also some fear and so the need for him to be reassured that all is well, and it would be good to acknowledge / say hello to granddad the next time he appears.

Next, Eileen was getting 'Madeira', though wasn't sure if this referred to the cake, the wine, or the island, or possibly all 3.

Note:

Salumet has spoken about living in the 'Now' previously - 1998/12/07: Remember, past, present, future belong together, but you are living in the moment with this one aspect of your soul, which is seeking growth. That is the purpose of life and that is what you should concentrate your efforts upon. I fear sometimes, human beings, because of dissatisfaction within their daily living, seek the excitement of finding past lives. It has almost become in your world, an exercise of pleasure; this it should not be. So I would say to you, my dear friends, live for the moment. There is no reason why anyone within this room, should be seeking knowledge of past lifetimes. It will never be given purely for an interest factor.

Les: There would be no point in so doing, would there?

It is, if I may say so, it is wasting time and energy.

...You can in a little way, rectify what has happened in past times, because after all, you have come to, in some cases, rectify previous lives. But it is living in the moment, which is important. The seeking of spiritual strength is what is important.

SALUMET – 1st October 2018

After our healing prayers, our beloved teacher Salumet joined us—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9455238/2018_10_01+salumet.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening Salumet.

As always it gives much pleasure to hear you speak of all things happening in your world at this present time. I wish to say to you all, not far into this future, there is much more widespread interest, not only in medicine, but in the journey of the Soul. You will find that all people in this world, will be seeking, not only as individuals, but as groups of spiritual people—it will become known to you very soon. I would wish that you all look forward to this, because the unity that it will form, will be something quite spectacular in your world.

Jan: Wonderful!

Sarah: Good to hear! Thank you.

You have I know, already spoken about medical matters that have occurred and of which I prepared you for.

Agreed

Now, my dear friends, I would like you to brace yourselves for the knowledge that Spirit is bringing to your world, very, very soon.

Lilian: And you did mention children as well that would be coming at some time. (See notes)

Yes, that is a slower process, children, but children will always be important to the voice of Spirit; they are the generations to come, they will be what we will call: 'The Spirit of Children', to bring news, to bring much that is needed to this world. I am not saying that your world will be a perfect place—I wish that I could—but, as far as making strides forward, it is a time to look out for. So, my dear friends, do not despair, because I know some of you still do, about your world in general; and it is understandable, because it brings great fear to many. So I say to you all, remember the words that have already been given to you, live your lives without fear, and from that fear grows hope, hope which will change the world.

If you have any questions, I would like to take them now.

Graham: These groups that you describe, will they be in touch with each other, through the internet, or will they all be separate?

They will begin as separate groups, of course, as you would in any locality in your world, it begins somewhere; but as time transpires into other things then it will become known, further afield. Yes, there has to be that unity at some point, where it becomes a universal knowledge.

Jan: Is this the start of the end Salumet, for example, of the Catholic faith? Will this have an impact?

Yes, it will have an impact on all things religious, as I have previously told you, but of course, being human, you still do not yet have what we call 'spiritual patience'. So, allowing for the patience, yes, you will see great strides in that area.

Jan: I think we can already see—(Yes) there's a feeling things are changing anyway, like you told us.

They have tried to change what has been spoken of, but they are not succeeding—that is what you must remember; and of course they will hold on to their beliefs as much as they can, but the Truth has to BE, the Truth cannot be kept down.

Agreed

Sabine: That's good for any religions, isn't it, not only the Catholic? (Yes) The Muslims and all the others.

They have served their purpose we feel for the world, and do not doubt that they have helped at some stages—the people have needed these beliefs, (Agreed) but now is the time to be free of them, to allow each and every one to find that Spirit that you ARE, but whilst you are upon the Earth—the time is coming.

Jan: Exciting times! (Agreed)

Ben: Will there be a singular event to help accelerate that process, or is it more of a gradual thing?

It will be more of a gradual happening. Yes, it has to be done thoroughly, shall I say, I believe you would use that word to describe something that has to sink in very, very slowly; and then Trust and Hope and Faith and all these other words that you use, will be accomplished.

Jan: Are we impatient within this room as well Salumet? Are we all impatient?

Graham: I'm sure we are—I am!

Well, I think you have had your answer.

Chuckles

Yes, I am filled so much with Love for you people, who put forward the Truth. We cannot ask more of you, and of course, you are all individuals, at your own individual growth. So, yes, a few may be a little more patient than others.

Graham: Salumet, I wanted to ask your permission about something, and that is, I'm trying to summarise your teachings, which go right back to 1994, and I started it as an exercise, and I've gone through the things that you said about all the many and varied topics, and I've tried to put together all the bits and pieces that you've said about things. And I've noticed that as you've progressed with us, you've kind of taken a spiral approach, where you visit topics again and again, but each time you take things a little bit further, (Yes) and I can see that—it's wonderful. But what I wanted to do, is to try and summarise your teachings—I think I'm going to need some support from your side; not everything I understand, but if you're happy for me to try, I'd like to give it my best shot.

You already are having help, (Thank you) let us make that clear. Anything which puts forward the Truth, can only be right as far as Spirit is concerned. You are doing a great 'job', I believe you would say, great job? (Agreed) Yes, and of course, we give you our blessing to work on those words; and yes, I have revisited many topics, on many occasions, but I do not try to put you down by saying that you need to be reminded often.

Sarah: ... but we do!

...but it helps, and each time that we revisit a topic, as the gentleman has said, I try to bring just a little more; and as children do, their knowledge and education is slowly, slowly, until it is understood. And after all, you are children of Spirit.

Graham: Yes, you have said that the knowledge is really only part of it, isn't it, because we have to develop in spirituality, they go in tandem, (Yes) our spirituality, our inner-knowing grows with the knowledge and vice-a-versa, they go together?

Yes that is true, they do, yes.

Sarah: The other good thing Salumet, about you repeating things, is yes, it does remind us, but for new people who have joined the group, or for those new people that are reading the transcripts, it's always good to have those little bits of extra knowledge given to them. So it's helpful in that respect, as well.

I would have to say that each one of you has, over time, spoken deeply about, not what we believe, but what we know. I know in your world at this time, there are many who do not believe, but I also know that people such as yourself, who are dedicated to Spirit and Truth, continue and gently, to just drop something that makes these nonbelievers think a little.

Sarah: And even when you say something to some people, they latch onto you sometimes, because they've been seeking and have at last found someone who can give them some of the answers that they want; so that's good as well.

Yes, of course. Most people, given the opportunity, will always be able, because I know you know I have said that each and every person on this planet, is given the opportunity to find out more about the Truth. It may not be directly through them, but it may come, as the lady has said, through a word or two that is spoken to them. It is almost, I can say, like a light shines from within, and the knowledge, the recognition, is wonderful to them when this happens.

Paul: One of our readers asked a question: Her name is Brooks Powell and she wanted to know more about Conglomerate Beings. She mentioned Abraham being one and a few others, and she wondered if there are many Conglomerate Beings like yourself?

I would say that the answer to your question—I understand, and we do use the Conglomerates, in the way that I have been part of a Conglomerate; there are others, but there are not many—this, again we move to an area which has never been discussed. Conglomerates consist of learned beings, who are far from what you see now. It is fortunate that we are able to descend to the level you are at. It is not easy, it is wonderful to see when it occurs, but it is not something that is overwhelming, because beings come from a long area away from what you would recognise. We are not human beings as such, we are Spirit of Knowledge, of Love, of Light. But yes, there are Conglomerates, but not many as people would expect.

Paul: So we're very privileged to have YOU.

Well, I feel humbled by those words, but they are unnecessary. When I decided that—not decided, but 'conditioned', to come to speak with you, it was because the world seemed to be rather in a state of fear. We felt many attempts had been tried, but I came to you, and I believe I am right in saying, I came to you saying, if you could not accept my words, then do not. (Agreed) I still say that to you and it is not a case of Faith or Belief, but it is the Knowing of TRUTH.

Lilian: And it's strange how, I guess the majority of us have found it so easy to accept.

We chose wisely, did we not?

Giggles

Yes.

Lilian: I wonder if you could help me. Last week when we were sitting, someone came through Eileen and had a little talk, (Sandra) and she began to wonder if it was an Angel. Can you comment on that?

I will answer that question. (Thank you.) She was not an Angel, but she was feeling the presence of one; so she was aware of how the Angels are, but she herself was not being used by an Angel—only the awareness. But the lady still found it very interesting we know, because her thoughts have wandered for a few days, wondering the reality of that occasion. It is no different than when someone overshadows you and you can feel their bodily features; this is what was happening with this lady, except it was an Angel behind her.

Jan: On the same occasion Salumet, a number of us in the room here, when Sarah nearly had somebody come through her to speak—didn't you Sarah? (Agreed) Somebody was around—but Sarah's features seemed to disappear, (Yes) as if somebody overshadowed, or cloaked her?

That is when you are overshadowed that Spirit will inhabit the body for a very short time. But this is nothing to be afraid of ...

Jan: ... no, it was very interesting. (Yes)

Sarah: I was I think slightly out of it, I didn't realise that I was being overshadowed, it was only when the others said to me my features had gone and my face had elongated.

Yes, it is a trance of the light form that you are overshadowed and you feel relaxed and we pick our time to do so. It is no different than someone speaking—we use the voices of you as humans, but sometimes it is a little closer, and therefore you find you are able to feel more and feeling is very important.

Sarah: The thing is actually, I didn't feel anybody, I just ...

No, but the others noticed.

Sarah: Yes, I did feel slightly 'away'.

(Jan mentioned that 3 ladies in the room observed it)

Sarah: So, when I was overshadowed, what is the advantage of that?

It just means that you are receiving Spirit much more closely. You are allowing yourself to be taken a little more deeply and therefore your features, your bodily functions, everything is being used, in the same way as we use and I am doing at the moment, using the body of this instrument. (Eileen) But with her, she is put to one side, whilst I speak to you.

Sarah: It's a shame it's only just happening now, because I shall be leaving the group soon to go to Australia, so I hope that maybe I'll find a group out there where I can continue.

Yes, you must continue if you can. We like to find people who are ready to accept—and let me say, not everyone is ready—they become a little fearful, where they do not like the sensation of being used in this way.

Jan: On the topic of fear, Salumet, it may just be my own growth and my own perception, but generally I don't think the planet has as much fear surrounding it, as say, 10, 15, 20 years ago. Would I be correct in feeling that?

You feel the planet was more fearful then? (Yes...) When we speak of the planets—let us go a little wider than the Earth planet, because you know you are all intertwined. (Agreed) Yes, and what affects others, has an effect upon you on this Earth. (Yes) Yes, there is a lot spoken, I fear, about the subject of fear; and the Earth planet has not always been a peaceful, loving one, in times gone by. (Agreed) And I will say to you, I see that there is a difference, in you said 15 of your years, there has been a change, only because the perception of people has changed, therefore there is slightly less fear.

Jan: Yeah, I think it's a tangible feeling.

You are quite right with the feeling; it is not enough to say the planet is not fearful, because it is.

Sabine: There are many places where it is fearful to live.

Yes, that is true. This is a beautiful planet, although it is a planet of learning—but always find the beauty.

Lilian: Yes, there's a lot of that! (Yes)

Jan: I think in general, my feeling is, especially in meditation, or just going within, is, man-towards-man, the fear is not as great as it used to be—we're not as fearful of one another as we used to be. I know there are still hotspots on this planet that are still war-torn etc. but I just feel that we are working in the right direction and not being as fearful and mistrusting of each other, as we once were.

Yes, I understand. know there are always elements, even in the tragic circumstances, which are working upon your planet at this moment; there are always groups who are more loving, who wish to change, and gradually will come together to get that change. So yes, you are correct in part, when you say man-to-man there would be less fear, but you can always say that if you have two nonbelievers, or people who believe too much, shall I say? You have to wonder why, face-to-face, they are angry and disbelieving and full of hatred. But it is all part of being on this planet. This planet has never been a quiet, peaceful place. (Agreed) So you have to take it back, you have to take it back, even when the planet was inhabited by these large creatures, when the planet was in an Ice-Age. You have to wonder why have all of these things happened. They have happened, my dear friends, because it is one little step forward.

Jan: While you've just been talking, it's not an ego thing, I've been wondering whether or not, it isn't the fact that it's what I feel is happening, maybe it's more to do with how 'I' feel.

You have to, you have to tame your own Soul, your Spirit first.

Jan: ...because that's my responsibility, first and foremost, is my Spirit.

Each and every one of you are responsible for what you think, what you say, what you do, and how you respond to other people. That is your responsibility and yours alone.

Jan: So, I'm wondering if that feeling that I described, when I said I had this feeling that it wasn't as fearful, is whether or not that's just my...

Do not dismiss your feelings, do not dismiss them. You can question them at times, but not to dismiss them.

Jan: So I own that. (Yes) That's a good feeling to me and I'm going to own that feeling.

And that can to changed and given to another.

Jan: Yes, and I'd like to own that feeling and that's my hope and my moving forward, (Yes) for the rest of the planet.

That is a good way to do it, yes.

Now, my friends, it has been good to join with you again. I hope some of your questions have been answered, and as I take my leave of you, I look forward to coming together next time.

Thanks

And remember my words on the changes that are coming.

Agreed

As always, I will always try to protect you as much as I can. (Thanks) And until we come together again, I leave you cloaked in my Love.

Thanks + farewells

Notes:

Journey of the Soul:

Salumet predicts widespread growth as people seek beyond earthly religions, which have served their time and are fast becoming obsolete. (see 19/10/1998)

Conglomerate Beings:

There are few conglomerate beings, and full-trance mediums like Eileen, are also rare, so this is perhaps the perfect pairing for the pure transmission of higher spiritual knowledge.

Special children:

The children Lilian refers to are children being born into every country over the next few years, in order to help achieve peace (see 17/10/2016)

SALUMET – 19th November 2018

After our healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9591740/2018_11_19+salumet.mp3

Sabine: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening Salumet.

As always my dear friends, we are happy to join with you on this evening especially, because we have one who is about to leave us; (Sarah) but remember that it is not a goodbye, but just a parting of the way for a very short period.

Agreed

Once connection is made with us, we do not abandon those who work so well, and for this, we thank the lady and know that her spiritual growth will continue.

Sarah: Thank you.

So, it is a great pleasure for us to see how much energy is within this very full room; and it makes us feel when we listen to you, just how much you have all grown, how much you have grown in your understanding of Spirit. We take the thanks that the lady and the gentleman (Graham and Sara) have given, and we thank you for allowing this condition (Graham is suffering from a very bad back) to make you grow stronger—because that is what it does. When any condition is adverse, then it takes a greater will, spiritual will, to go forward; but you have been prime examples of this, and as someone has said this time, it is most common when it comes to problems in the body that you as human beings will suffer because of it; but always the question lies open, ‘why do some suffer and why do others not?’ We do not look at it like that, you are all loved, you are all part of the Great Spirit, and when you start to think: ‘why me?’, that is not quite correct. My dear friends, be thankful that that Great Creator has allowed you to experience whatever it is you are going through at this particular time.

Yes, I want to say to you, my dear friends, I will be with you only one more time before your holiday season begins. I feel that the time is coming for you all to take a bigger part in your own expansion, to grow, to wonder, to change and above all, to continue to love others, which is in fact what you do each day; whether it be for a stranger, or a person that you know, my dear friends, you all have that Love and capability, and I feel our journey through many years have contributed to these happenings. So, continue, continue and continue to grow. I am only staying with you for a short time this evening, so if there are any questions, please ask them now.

Sabine: I have a question in regards of the energetic portals? (Yes) There are some astrologists who are talking about them—I’m not quite sure of what they are—then some people are saying they’re true and some are saying they are false; they said there were 2 this month, one on the 11th and one on the 22nd, next Thursday. Can you comment about those energetic portals?

Those energies are only a small part of the Universes. It is only that as human beings you have to place a name with these happenings. Let me just explain to you, my dear friend, that it is all part of the Universe, it is nothing unusual and it is happening all of the time, even if you as humans are not aware of it. So, I would only kindly suggest that you do not worry about all of these things, and as in your world, you know, there are always agreements and disagreements about many subjects. (Yes) I would say, just think of the wonder of it all, think of the place within the many worlds that you are aware of, and just to let it be. (Yes, thank you) I hope that helps you.

Sabine: Yes, it sounded like they were sort of saying you need to open yourself and be connected and all that, (Yes) but everybody is anyway, (You are, yes.) living on the same planet, it doesn’t matter...

There will always be many happenings in your world, or outside of your world that take place, that need no explanation; you do not need it to grow spiritually, it is used only for some kind of recognition.

Human beings are always looking for new beginnings, instead of allowing the knowledge of what they have today to be honoured. (Thank you) You understand? (Agreed) Yes, you as human beings, have very small human brains and sometimes happenings in the bigger scheme of life, seem to be very confusing, I say, and I am probably repeating myself again, just allow these happenings to happen naturally, allow yourselves to grow, know the wonder of Spirit, not of the Universes, because there are many; (Yeah) take control of your own Spirits and it will take you and guide you to many, many forms of life.

Jan: Just go with the flow.

I believe that is an earthly expression, (yes) yes, but it is a very true one. Why complicate matters when you can have acceptance? It is like the form of Love—you would not expect a deep explanation for something that happens so naturally—no. Are there more questions please?

Serena: Could you explain when we ask for healing what actually happens and how it differs, if we ask in the room, and if we try and do healing ourselves at a distance for people?

Absent healing, I believe you call it? (Yes) Yes, we need to talk a little about energies, because that is what is happening. As the thought is made to exist, the energy which surrounds it is carried to those who can help. Remember that all things are energy—that is the key word here. That energy is affiliated to other energies around you, in the same way as you have radio waves that you never see, but can still create noise, so too can the healing energies that you send or give to another. And you have to think, how does it happen? All I can say is that you allow the energies to do what they have to do, and it is up to the Great Creator to decide—and not in the way mankind speaks of it, but to decide who will be helped and who needs to learn just a little more. It is not a judgment, never a judgment; so, what you have to do, is accept whatever comes.

Serena: So when you say ‘learn more’, this is learn more through the pain or the illness or...

Yes, it is still an energy, whether you are of what you call, good health, or have complaints, it is all energy, and that is why you are able to control it, because with your spiritual mind, you can transmute any energy that is available to you. It is not an easy one to describe, because it is something we have never really discussed in full; but again, I say to you, why do you try to dissect it, why can you not just allow it to happen and know that you are part of that healing service?

Serena: So when we’re here and we ask for healing in this room, (Yes) it is again another form of healing, the absent healing, but, how does it differ from us asking here? Who’s doing the healing here, is it us or is it people in Spirit?

It is both, it needs to be asked from here, because you are dealing with a human being. If it was spiritual contact, that is something quite different, and contact with the human on the Earth is quite different, the energies are the same, but used differently—that’s what you have to remember. All energy comes from the same Source, but in the same way, as let’s say, the table within this room is a much denser energy, but it is still the same energy of Creation. It is all to do with the transmuting of different energies; but at the end of the day, if you wish to have a healing, you have to accept that the main healer is the Great Creator.

Graham: You have mentioned on a number of occasions that healing can happen when the Spirit is touched.

The Spirit has to be touched—that is the whole idea of spiritual healing. Yes, if the Spirit is not touched, then the conditions can continue.

Graham: And the Great Creative Force decides that?

It depends on the energies; again, we are talking difficult subjects when we speak about energy. (Yes) Yes, but once the Spirit is touched, then, when you ask for healing for someone, those energies are ready and willing to be used. Do not forget that energy, in a sense, has mind, has feeling, has all the things that you, as human beings, have, because you are the same energy. It is probably very difficult for you to accept the workings of healing energy.

Jan: So, you can ask for somebody, but the energy can only help if that person is willing to help themselves?

That is part of it—that is why we say, when the Spirit is touched, there will be a healing.

Sara: When you say, ‘the Spirit is touched’, could we liken that to a sort of awareness of the unity of life and a feeling of oneness?

When you have the feeling of oneness, you are allowing the energy to be refined, which of course, puts you on a different level. Yes, it is complicated, there is no simple explanation that I can give you that would explain all the factors of healing.

Sara: Yes, so there are a few things that need to be in place for the Spirit to be touched?

Yes, but if you realise how people are attracted to Spirit, then it is not so strange that they would be touched by the healing energies. There are no mistakes, there are no accidents, and if someone comes for healing, or whatever kind, then they are ready to receive that energy.

Paul: Perhaps another word for 'touched', might be moved?

That kind of implies, when you are being moved, it is more of a physical attribute. So, no, I would not quite agree with you on that one. But to be touched, means to be touched spiritually.

Sabine: And not emotionally.

Not emotionally, thank you, yes.

Graham: Yes, that has helped a lot actually. That has been a difficult subject to understand, but that's made it a lot clearer, thank you.

Yes, it is just, you have to think, it is like when you pass to Spirit, your energy changes, and although you are the same person, you are not the same person. Can you understand that?

Agreed

I'm not sure you all do, but that is what happens. It is basically the use and energy transmuting itself, for the right cause and the right purpose.

Lilian: The energy, as we pass, will be a little bit more pure?

As you move closer into Spirit, it refines, yes, becomes more pure, yes. Not too much to begin with, because you do not alter that much, you still have thinking, which needs to be dealt with, and it takes a little time, depending on how you have lived your lives, yes. So, when it is your turn, any of you, and I'm not saying who, do not expect miracles, because that is not what happens. You are already a miracle, you are already here upon this Earth. But I hope it has helped you to think just a little more about energies.

Agreed

Yes, and of course, to finish the question the lady put about absent healing, you have to remember that Thought and Action are instantaneous.

Jan: Yes, we don't have to be in this particular room, to send healing thoughts (No) or love, at all, it can happen anywhere.

Just one thought is enough to create what you are wishing for. That is the part that the human being has lost and needs to regain at some point. That is why, when your senses are heightened that you can look at another human being and feel and see their pain; that is the spiritual aspect of yourselves that is at work. You understand?

Jan: Yes, the difficulty is when you recognise that in somebody and that person closes themselves off in such a way that nothing can help them, it seems.

But you have to respect their wishes; you cannot live another's life, and it is up to you then, to say I have done my very best and now I will go.

Jan: Mm, not so easy when it's family, but yes, you do have to withdraw and protect yourself.

As you all must do. You are all responsible for your own selves; that is why you are here, to grow, to love others and to recognise that Spirit that you ARE, here and now.

Sarah: Also, when you're asking for help for somebody and you're thinking of however it should be that's maybe not what should happen, so maybe that's why it doesn't work either?

No, you cannot wish for what you want, you have to offer—that is not the correct word I wish to use, but you give that person to the healing energies of Spirit and you allow Spirit to decide what can be done with those energies.

Jan: That makes total sense, putting it that way.

Yes, this is always the problem, trying to explain in simple terms, what in fact is something not so easy to discuss. But, my dear friends, you have no reason to worry, continue to give your love to others, those who are well and those who are not so well. Every single human being, at some time in life, will feel the point, where they wished they knew just a little more, and that is up to each and every one of you. And now, my dear friends, it is time that I left you. I always feel that when we come together that your energies have grown so much.

Thank that Great Creator that you know.

Give thanks for all that you have, all that you know, and all that you know you must know.

Until I come next time, I leave you, leave you cloaked in that energy of Love, which is also the energy of healing.

All: Thanks.

Paul: Our love goes with you.

After Salumet withdrew, Eileen was shown a white house, outlined in blue. She also had the name 'Jeremy', with a long beard and salt and pepper hair, who Sarah recognised as one of her relations. Eileen sensed this gentleman was now in Spirit. Eileen liked his sense of humour.

Notes:

Healing when the Spirit is touched:

17/10/1994: Why do you suppose there are cures, as you say, and some are not cured? The problem lies within. If the spirit part of you is touched and that is what spiritual healing is all about, then there is a cure.

26/04/2010: When the spirit is touched, all healings take place. Remember my friend that you will never be able to use your Earthly word 'cure' people, because some conditions are 'meant to be'. It is part of peoples' pathways to have certain conditions, but when the spirit is touched, then the best of health for that person will be attained.

...Almost like a light comes within the human being, and they know which pathway to follow. Like we were speaking of treatments, they will be guided and helped to the right people at the right time.

Paul: So it's almost like a little enlightenment suddenly occurs.

Yes, perhaps that might be a good word to use for understanding. Yes, the spirit is touched—enlightenment takes place. I am sure each one of you in this room knows of someone who is never better, no matter what is happening, or whoever they see, and that is because the spirit is not ready. I am sure you are aware of someone like that.

The Healer:

27/01/2003: There should be no thoughts of the healer. The healer is but an instrument, a channel that comes from that Great Creative Force. All that a healer offers is either their mouth, their words or their hands. The healer should have no participation and does not have any participation in the healing; that is between the person and God, if you like, or as I prefer: Creative Force.

SALUMET – 17th December 2018

This was the last meeting of the year, which usually involves visits from children in Spirit, gathered around Eileen's Christmas tree, but this year, Salumet guided us on a wonderful healing meditation, before answering a few questions—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9673127/2018_12_17_sali+mp3.mp3

Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

You may be wondering, my dear friends, why there is no tree this time.

Sabine: We were just talking about it before you came in.

Yes. I wanted to speak with you before the end of this year. The children will try, in your own homes, over your holiday time, to make contact with you. So I say to you, my dear friends, be aware at all times that they may be able to move or touch you.

Sabine: Lovely.

Serena: Could somebody have come to me in a dream last night?

People are always used 'in dreams'—they are not dreams most of the time, but communication.

Serena: I just had a little boy who I didn't recognise. (Yes) It was a very strange dream.

Yes, do not always think of it as an ordinary 'dream'. When individuals wish to communicate, they take every opportunity they can. This one was attracted to you, to your light, your spiritual light and he feels that compassion and Love which you feel for others.

Serena: Oh, that's great. In my dream, I went into the bedroom and he was in the bed; (Yes) and he just made himself at home.

Is that not what small children do on the Earth plane?

Agreed

He considers you to be not just a friend, but a mother-figure. So please, please, my dear friend, if he comes to you, talk to him. (Yeah) Yes, you will know the difference between the dream state and the actual visitation.

Serena: Well, it was such a vivid dream, I had to write it down, and I haven't written a dream down for years.

Yes, that is why, that is why it is not what you call dream, it is a visitation of a child to someone he has found comfort with. (Oh, lovely) So you see, all of you may have this contact if you are open to it.

Sara: Yes, I had a visitation from my Mother, not too long ago, but I'm absolutely sure it was a proper visitation, because, like Serena said, it was just so vivid, (Yes) and the hug—I cried with happiness, I woke up crying and the hug was so real, it just didn't feel like a dream.

And why would your mother not wish to hug you? (Yes, of course) If conditions are right, we in Spirit will take all of the opportunities we need. So you are blessed, both of you, to have had this experience. But it happens to all of you, it is just that most of the time, you do not remember. Yes?

Agreed

Sabine: We'll pay more attention to it.

Yes. What I would like to do this evening, and say to you, is something I have not done with you before.

So my dear friends, I hope you can accept my words, and it is up to you, with your own free will, whether you attempt this or not.

Salumet then guided us on a meditation:

Firstly, I want you to close your eyes and take a sigh, deep breath, and try to relax. If you cannot, it matters not. But for those of you who can, please continue to listen to what I am telling you.

In the state of quietness and calm, I want you to let your Spirit be free, and the first thing that you can do is to quietly feel the sound of that most important organ in your physical body: the heart. I want you to feel what your heart is telling you. I am going to give you a few moments to do this; listen to what you are being told, and if anyone wishes to tell us what they feel, then that would indeed be quite wonderful.

Pause—approx. 30 seconds

Do not be afraid to let the Spirit go; you are well protected. What are you feeling? Where is the physical body?

Short pause

These things we are doing this evening are for all of you to move forward, and as always, some of you may be able to, others may not, but it is entirely up to each individual. Are you listening to the heart?

Yes?

Paul: Yes, you begin to lose your individuality, (yes) and feel just connected...

You must let that go. Yes. And what does that feel like?

Paul: Very peaceful, like part of a big ring. (Of energy)

Yes. Does anyone else feel that?

Lilian: I feel mine (Heart) might be saying: “steady down”, (Yes) or something like that, I know what it means, but difficult to explain.

What I wish you to do, my dear friends, if you feel the closeness, and the knowledge of the heart, use another important organ within the body; choose whatever you wish and listen to that organ talking to you. This I tell you is a very good way to do self-healing. If you can achieve this quietness, this giving up of the Spirit then you would be, indeed, very well in your physical lives.

Sabine: I feel like I’m outside of my body, and kind of looking at it with so much Love.

Yes, you must love your body, every single part. You must love your body. Without accepting and knowing that Love, you are missing so much, and the time has come, going into another one of your earthly years, to allow yourself, to know yourself and to listen more clearly to what Spirit is saying.

Can you feel the peace?

Agreed

Is anyone struggling? No. If only you could see, my dear friends, what’s around you at this moment in time, the beauty and the glory of all things: LISTEN and FEEL—two very important words: listen and feel. Can you feel yourself become lighter and lighter. (Yes) Does anyone wish to communicate with the rest of us in what they are feeling?

Sara: I feel that I’m being asked just to share the joy. (Yes—and will you?) I will.

Yes, in accepting that offer, you are allowing the Spirit to grow and you are capable of this ‘exercise’, shall we call it, any time, any place, anywhere. You can do it, and you can make yourselves closer to Spirit than perhaps you are at this time and space.

Jan: I’m cloaked in purple—that’s all I can see.

Yes, that is the cloak of protection; have you never been aware of it previously?

Jan: I have, here, yes.

Just know that you are safe in the hands of Spirit, no harm can come to you whilst we come together.

Jan: I’ve been asking myself just recently whether or not there is something wrong with my heart physically, because I’ve been having symptoms that I’ve been ignoring.

And what has your answer been? Have you asked?

Jan: I have asked when I’m on my own, and I believe the answer’s come back to me that everything’s fine.

Yes, let’s say stress does not help. (No) And you understand that word well. (Yes) Yes, but when you speak to any organ within your body, you must get to the state of peace and calmness and feel that protection at all times, because what you are doing, in fact, is allowing the Spirit and the physical body to separate, and you all understand that. (Yes) So all I am asking you to do in the forthcoming new year of your time on Earth, is to listen more closely to what you know is right for yourself; don’t worry about others, but focus upon yourself and that beautiful Spirit that you are. I will leave it with you, my dear friends, and you do have freewill to either continue on this pathway, or to stay where you are. Do you understand?

Agreed

We ask the Great Creator that we feel the Love, we feel the Love of others and we know the wonder of Spirit. We ask the Great Creator and give thanks for all that we have been given, and I too ask the Great Creator for a blessing for all that you, my dear friends, have given to me.

And, with those words, I would like you to join with your bodies, feel happy and contented and I will just answer a few questions this time, before the evening continues. I wish you all much Love, kindness and hope for your coming new year.

Thank you

Paul: And I chose the path of growth.

Agreed

Jan: You’re not saying goodbye are you Salumet?

No, I am not saying goodbye—I will come as often as I can, but we have spent many years talking together and I feel it is important that you as my dear friends and helpers, gain the best that you can from my visits. We have spoken on many, many subjects and I have to say that my choice of people have been wonderful—but I am not leaving you just yet.

Paul: Oh, Thank you.

Now, is there any questions this time?

Pause

Question seems very unimportant, don't they, when you have experienced the Love which you and I hope you did feel?

Agreed

Di: We feel too peaceful to think of a question now.

Yes, you have used the correct words that I would have wished to have heard.

Paul: I have a fairly unimportant question: It was a few months ago, another speaker said that they knew you in Spirit as 'Starlight 5', I know that as a conglomerate, maybe different aspects maybe show up in different realms, but I wonder if you could share any other names that you sometimes go by?

Yes, no, I do not wish to disclose names, because it is unimportant and when you were given that name, it was felt that it was necessary just for that one time. (Right) It is not important what name I use at any time, I come as you know, on a 'spiritual mission' and that is the way I wish to leave it.

Lilian: We're glad you chose this little group. (Yes!) So when we pass to Spirit, will we feel you around, or part of you?

Only if you so desire, but it is not something that would normally happen. (I see) You already have your guides in Spirit, you have your loved ones from past times—they are all waiting, ready for you. (Yes, I see) So there is no need for us, especially as a conglomerate of beings, to do that work. You understand? (Yes) But if the desire was strong enough, then you would be shown, I will not say what, because I do not wish to place thoughts into your mind.

Lilian: I see. Thank you.

But of course we feel very glad that you would even suppose that we would meet.

Yes, I'm sorry sir, I hope my reply was enough for you, but it isn't really important.

Paul: No it's not important, I guess it's just one of those questions of interest, but not importance, yeah,

(Yes) I understand. No that's fine. The other thing I wondered about, you've said in the past about this new energy that would be discovered from the oceans at some point. (Yes) I did try to Google a little bit on the internet, but I couldn't find anything yet. Is it something still that is to come?

It is to come. (Right) Yes, I will use your earthy phrase again: patience. (Right) These things cannot be accomplished in an instant, but I assure you, it will happen, and in fact, they are discovering things already, although it has not been made public, but yes, it will happen.

Paul: Right, good thank you. I'm sure it will, it's just a question of time.

Yes, and remember, we have no dictation of time in the same way as you do.

Paul: Yes, that always makes it tricky.

Graham: I know that there's been a lot of excitement in certain circles amongst engineers and scientist about creating a sun on our planet, (Yes) and creating nuclear fusion, which is a safer form of nuclear energy and the raw materials for that would be hydrogen from the oceans—different isotopes...

Yes, you are well read sir, and I am pleased to say that the nuclear side of those discoveries is as nuclear power should have been used earlier on, for the good of mankind; and as you all know, it has been abused, like many other things in your world. But you are quite correct, there is excitement in your world at this moment.

Graham: Yes, the engineering difficulties are overwhelming, because they need temperatures of a hundred million Celsius, up against conditions where the temperature is close to absolute zero, to produce something known as superconductivity, so that an incredible electrical current can create a magnetic field strong enough to hold the ingredients at the temperature of hundred million Celsius, and these are overwhelming problems...

I only have to say, again one of your earthly sayings: all things are possible. (Yes) Especially when they are in collaboration with Spirit and that is all I need to say. (Yes) All things are possible.

Graham: There is a lovely collaboration between countries over this project.

Yes, that is where goodness and senses come into play, (Yes) when countries can come together for the betterment of all. (Yes, wonderful) Yes. I will take one more question this time.

Pause

Oh my dear friends, your silence is so loud.

Jan: Well, I'm still where you put me. (Yes)

Graham: I was going to ask a question quite different, about how we are on this planet to evolve spiritually and the way that we do, where the conditions are that in our younger lives, in our teens, or twenties, we often make the biggest decisions in our life, like choice of partner, jobs, things which are really profound, whether to have children, families, things like that; and quite often, because we are so young, we often get it wrong, but then you have said there's no such thing as 'accidents', like making a wrong choice of partner for instance, and then ending in divorce, and all the ripples that go out from that. It seems almost that that situation, where we are so inexperienced and perhaps so unable to make big decisions, is when we make them! I think you understand what I am saying?

Yes, if you take it from a spiritual viewpoint, if you speak about energy which we all are, in young people in your world, it is almost like the apex of energy, which either goes 'good' or 'bad', as you call it; I do not call it 'bad', because all of these happenings create experience for growth and spirituality. (Yes) So for us, we do not see this as a problem, not like you would on the Earth plane.

Graham: No, I understand that, but it is just I thought...

But yes, I entirely agree, from a physical point of view, it does not always make sense to you, but those who have experienced difficulties, sometimes come through, how do you say, to the other side, with a greater knowledge of people, greater knowledge for many, many things. So for that, it is a 'good happening' if you like. (Yes) But, I understand your question.

Graham: There is a saying that if we could lead our lives backwards, but that would be cheating!

Yes, wouldn't it? It wouldn't happen. Giggle

Graham: No, of course not. Thank you for those words—that's wonderful.

Lilian: Yes, thank you for an interesting evening.

As I take my leave this time, I want to wish all of you, I am going to say, much Spiritual Love, because Spiritual Love comes not only from you as individuals, but from all of those who have loved you in past times, and those small people, who are to come, perhaps within your lifetimes. So I say to you all, my dear friends, I give thanks for our meetings, it brings me great joy and those with whom I work. I am always so pleased to see that you heed my words and mostly accept what I tell you. I will take my leave, I cloak you all in Love and until we meet once more, I leave you.

Thank you.

Paul: Our Love goes with you back to your Home.

Yes, we do not actually celebrate with bright lights.

Chuckles

May the Great Creator bless you all.

Paul: You are the bright lights!

Sara: Yes, you have enough light.

Paul: You don't need extra light.

Next, a young child called Natalie came for a light-hearted chat, via Eileen, who helped bring a sense of fun and laughter, before the meeting came to a close, with tea and biscuits as usual—audio link:

14th January 2019

This was the first meeting of the New Year and it began with clairvoyance via Eileen, from Jan's grandmother in Spirit, demonstrating that they are around and aware of what is going on.

Cho then spoke, giving an exercise for everyone to practise—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9777543/2019_01_14+Cho+exercise.mp3

Hello!

All: Hello Cho.

Jan: Thank you for coming to see us.

I pleased.

Jan: Missed you.

Thank you.

Jan: Do you have many for us tonight?

Lots and lots of people tonight.

Jan: Lots of people in the room?

Yes, and wanna help use you.

Jan: They want to help to use us—yes, we need some help with that Cho, don't we?

You need to try all the time.

Jan: Yeah, we do. Are there any big plans for us? Do you know who they are going to try and use next?

I do, yes; you want me say?

Jan: You can, yes, as long as it's allowed, you fire away.

I only do what allowed—I good.

Chuckles

You know, I very, very good.

Agreed

I think you choose a partner and I think you give them some information, not from you, from Spirit. So, someone will use one of you. Understand?

*Jan clarified the exercise and then briefly asked if Cho had been helping with Graham's bad back. Cho confirmed his help for Graham and assured that he tries to help all of us. This turned into an amusing, light-hearted chat. Cho added that they try to help when they can, but: You must all try help yourselves first, then we can help you more.

Agreed

*Jan then mentioned that she'd felt the children, around her home during the festive season. Serena mentioned a particularly vivid dream she'd had about a boy, to which Cho responded: He love you—we told you, he love you.

Serena also asked: How would we know if you're around and how can we have a prompt if you're around, if we're forgetting to ask for help?

Well, you want me tell you? (Please.) You would like a little nudge, or something like that? (Yes!) I could touch your shoulder, or whatever you like.

Serena: Yeah, that would be great.

So, if you think I not around you, you ask me just to give you little prod.

Serena: Okay, fantastic, that'll be great, thank you.

Claire: A little hair pull.

Chuckles

He love you very much that boy.

Serena: Ah, great—I need to take him out of his school uniform, I think—put play clothes on...

Yeah, if only you could see ones who come round; it's not only ones you know. Anyway, I leaving know. I listening, so, who's going to be in charge, the lady? Lady, you in charge. (Lilian didn't hear at first, but Jan agreed to take charge, reiterating that it was the person on their right to focus on and to see what they could pick up from Spirit, encouraging sitters to breathe and relax as Salumet had explained last time)

Sitters voiced impressions and everyone got something that seemed to connect well with the other person. Eileen then returned to say that Cho said: "Good work".

Graham then took us on a meditative journey, before we closed—audio link:

SALUMET — 21st January 2019

After healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9777536/21_01_2019+Salumet.mp3

Graham: Hello Salumet—welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is good to be with you once more. There is much to do in this coming year of your earthly lives. We always wish to encourage each one of you, my dear friends, to join together as you do here, but allow other people to know and understand all that you have learned. I would like to say to you, not only will your own spirit develop in this coming year, but there will be many reforms throughout your world; not only your world, but as I said recently, in all, in all of existence. I would like to say to you at this time, much work is needed in your world, as you well know, but we do not wish despair, but as I have told you on many occasions, we want you to be uplifting for all people. You can start, my dear friends, if possible to help the young people and the children of this earthly world, to try to inspire them to goodness and to thinking of others; to help them to understand the beauty that surrounds them and the people that surround them at all times. I have told you that the children who will be coming soon will bring a great change to your earthly world. There will be seen in these children a beauty and a strength not yet seen, and after all, they will be the ones to continue to help with the expansion of all knowledge. So take note, my dear friends that you must take any opportunity to help young people, to listen to them, and to speak to them only the Truth of the Spirit. It is indeed a heavy burden for those of you who at times feel despair of your world, but again I say, do not despair, allow the Love that you feel at times when you are together, allow that strength and Love to support you and uplift you all of your lives. It may seem a simple task as I say, but indeed it is not, and we in Spirit, my dear friends, are giving you a challenge for this new year. I know that each and every one of you will uphold the knowledge that you have been given and I know that for each one of you, there are such great blessings ahead. And with those words, I will leave it for you to think about and to discuss with each other throughout the coming months. There will be signs of course, when these beautiful creatures come to your world as children, because believe me, they are angels in disguise; that is one of your early sayings, I know. (Agreed) And it is true there are many on your Earth who indeed are doing the work of the blessed angels. So now, I leave you with those thoughts and if you have any questions to ask of me, please do so now.

Graham: Do these children that are coming, do they have history on this planet, or are they from deep Spirit? Some of them will be from deep Spirit. (Yes) As I say, they are angelic beings, so, of course, they would come from a little distance (Yes) But all of that has been arranged with them—as you well know, there is nothing done by chance; but the object of this work is that you, as human beings now, recognise these gifts that they will bring to the world and to encourage and help in any way.

Graham: What is going to be wonderful is the fact they are going to raise the vibration of this planet, so that spiritual phenomena will be easier for all of us to accomplish in the future.

That is one gift, the other of course is to bring peace to all, (Yes) and of course we know it will not happen in an instant, it is something to work for and to encourage.

Claire: Can I just ask, it might be a daft question, are these children going to be born onto the planet, or is this going to appear within children that are already here, living?

Most will be born into the planet in time to come. It has not started yet, but, what we hope is that older children already here will be influenced by their younger siblings. It is something to look to, because the Love these children bring—I call them children, but as I have just said, they are spiritual beings who wish to help this planet. Is that helpful for you?

Claire: Yes thank you.

Mark: Often, when we have very good people on the planet, they end up being martyrs.

Yes that has happened throughout existence in your world, and even now there are children in places of horror who are standing up to the oppressors; you do not always know of it, but it is already happening in a very slow manner; yes.

Mark: It makes a powerful impact when we hear about these martyrs.

Yes, it always encourages people to think for themselves, because the martyrdom of one person is a spiritual act; I know that seems contradictory, but it is not. Every martyr has left behind an element of good. It is not always easy for the human being to understand the workings of Spirit, but let me tell you that Spirit works continuously, you are never left alone, even if it would appear to be sometimes that you are alone. So remember that also, my dear friends, that you are always looked after, you are uplifted when you are feeling down, you are helped to understand and to give Love to this world, because, you may not realise it, but all of the people who come together for good, are making the world better. You understand?

Agreed

Paul: And this is going to be it sounds like, a very well-coordinated influx of those angelic beings.

Yes, there are more this time, there has always been intervention from our world in times of stress. Your world has been a troublesome one at times and it is only because a lot of the knowledge that you had has disappeared; the knowledge of understanding, the knowledge of Love, the knowledge of Spirit.

Paul: And these ones, you said previously I think, that they are going to become many of them, world leaders, so they can give...

There will always be positions of power when these children become adults. (So they will have...) It is only one small way to help the world, yes.

Paul: But they'll be able to have a 'bigger voice' if you like. (Yes) We can't reach that many people, you know, we can reach a few with the internet and everything, but...

My dear friend, many of your years ago, I said, if you touch but one person's soul you have done your work.

(Agreed) Imagine if each one of you made a change in another's life for the good, how quickly that would spread to all of the world.

Paul: It ripples out, doesn't it?

Yes. So remember this too that you are not alone and we are always ready to be by your side at any time.

Sabine: Yeah, and we have set in motion, Paul and I to go on a boat and be able to talk about the words that you have taught us (Yes) for a week, so it would be lovely to go and do that.

Yes, I think we have discussed places of peace and tranquillity being good for the Spirit, whether it is water or forests, no matter where, in an empty room, as long as there is Love and quietness, you will always find the deep meaning of what has been said to you.

Jan: Am I right in remembering Salumet that the millennium generation will also be the start of...

Yes, they have been one part of it, but the coming children, (Are rather more...) yes, I am struggling for the word to describe it to you.

Jan: Yeah, we don't want to say 'special', but (Yes) for sake of our own language it does make sense that they're a little bit more selected, (Yes) but the millennial children on mass were to bring more peace and understanding.

Yes, they are, if you look to millennium children, they are more aware of Spirit.

Jan: They are! The ones I know who are now 19 (Yes) are definitely far more spiritually aware.

And the awareness of Spirit is most important, without the knowledge you cannot move forward; you can say, 'oh I know such and such', I believe that is your expression, but you have to experience moving forward, encompassing not only our world but others, which you well know, all of you. So, think on my words this time my dear friends, and know that you need but only call my name for support.

All: Thank you.

Paul: Wonderful message to start the year, the new year.

Jan: Some of us in this room may be too old in our earthly years to see this happen, these angelic beings. We will watch from Spirit with great excitement, but, am I right that some of us may not be here?

You may not of course, but it matters not, because you have played your part and you will be aware once you return home to Spirit of all that is going on, (Yes) even more so than now with all of your connective, I do not know what you call them, telephones...

Sabine: Computers...

... yes, your technology yes, yes—even that has played a part.

Jan: It has, but we are learning very quickly that we have to whittle out the untruths.

Yes that is quite correct. So my dear friends, for this time, I will take my leave and I hope that each time I come in this one of your new years, I will bring something of interest for you.

All: Thank you.

Sabine: We have been enjoying your meditation that you provided us with last time you were here and it's been wonderful to do it over and over again on a daily basis.

Yes, you are all capable of so much, my dear friends, do not feel you can only do these things when I am here, you are able to do, I know you will say we cannot, but you can, you can do and think of everything that I have said to you. But it is up to you as individuals to move forward and to expand your souls. (Yes)

Paul: It's interesting what you said about this year, we'll be, I can't remember your words exactly, but expanding, but also the planet will be and the whole of existence—it's all so connected up.

Yes, yes, that is the bigger picture, it causes many struggles with some of the humans in your world. That is why I have always played the part of being very simple, using simple dialogue and just to allow you to think for yourselves. It is all very well to say someone is spiritual, but it should apply to all of you, you are all spiritual beings. So, cultivate it my friends, cultivate it.

Paul: We're all part the whole, of everything, so I guess everything is expanding at once.

Yes, and if you are keeping up with your meditations, the unity of all things becomes part of you and vice versa, if that makes sense to you, you'll become as a whole. Yes. (Yes) Now, I will take my leave this time and I am sure that we will come together very soon.

All: Thank you Salumet.

Notes:

Millennium children: 20/01/2014: So much has been said and written about what you call 'millennium children'—that they have come with special spiritual gifts and so forth. I would like to say that at this time in your Earthly evolution—that all people, not only millennium children, take great pleasure in coming to this world at this time...

18/01/2016: Children are indeed the future of this planet, and yes it would be wise to try to guide and steer them in the right direction. It is not always easy, because they are surrounded by so much negativity, but if every individual parent were to take on board that job for a child, there would be great changes made upon your Earth...

Children of Peace: 17/10/2016: Throughout the world these children will appear. They will become known for their peace and their skills of being able to talk and calm. Let there be no mistake that this is a great gift from Spirit, but I wanted all of you, my dear friends, to know of this knowledge now... There will be in every country throughout your world one of these children...

SALUMET – 18th February 2019

Eileen had a tickly throat, but Salumet was able to come through and Sarah, joined us again, via Skype, from

Australia—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9857631/2019_02_18+salumet.mp3

Lilian: Hello Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Paul: I expect you know, we've got Sarah joining us from Australia.

I do. She is well aware of what happens in this group. (Yes) So, I say only to her, as I say to all of you, it is good to be with you all once more.

All: Thank you.

Di: It's good to have you again, as well.

I had to convince the instrument, (Eileen) that all would be well this time. She was afraid that it would be too disruptive; but as you well know, we work well to try to keep it all very soft and gentle, in order not to disturb the instrument too much.

Paul: Thank you, yes, she did say she's had a sore throat.

No, the throat is okay, but it does seem in this life that the throat must be a weak area for her.

Di: She thought that. (Yes) Thank you for confirming that.

Yes. I wish to say to you all, my dear friends, that I have spoken much in previous weeks of the work that children will bring to this planet, (Yes) how much there is to achieve; and there is much I am sure you would wish to know, but what I say to you is this: not only will it involve young children coming through the earthy years, but even now, there are older ones, who are beginning to think and feel differently from past generations. Influenced of course by Spirit, these older children will be beacons of Light, for the younger ones to come.

Lilian: Yes, I wondered, were there some people here already, I guess in all times.

In every age there have been people, not particularly children, but individuals, who have created much good within your world; (Yes) and this, you have to capitalize upon. But, what I am speaking of now is almost like a new beginning for your world. But you have to gather up within yourselves the knowledge that is given to you, and to begin to recognize 'good' when it is there, in front of you.

Paul: It really does feel, it has felt for a while now that somehow, the old systems are no longer working very well and that the time is ripe for us to finally, sort of stop being so concerned about money and material wealth and turn to the truth about Spirit and loving each other.

Yes. I have said before, it is the Love of all of these things that are wrong, not in itself is it wrong; (No) because you can have lots of money, but be a very good person for this Earth. (Yes) Good people do not need to be shown to be good, they show good by their actions, actions that help another, actions that will help people away from those lives of crime and punishment, which is so rife on your planet even now. You have travelled thousands of Earth years, many men have taken arms against another, and it has all been part of the Earth's evolution to some degree. But to a larger degree in times gone by, it was heartbreaking for those of us in Spirit to see man against man, and this is now what we are trying to change.

Sabine: Yeah, but it doesn't seem to be stopping.

You must never lose faith that all things can be for good; it does not happen overnight, but gradually, and when men begin to understand.

Di: There are less wars than there used to be.

Yes, but with such powerful weapons... yes.

I just wish to say to you, my dear friends, that each individual step, one smile, one act of kindness, grows to be much wider and bigger and better each time it happens. We, in Spirit feel the doubt of many individuals upon your planet. We feel the sadness and we feel the joy, and this my dear friends, is something I would like you to dwell on just a little more; always look for the goodness. And we hear so often, like the lady has said, 'it never seems to change'. I can assure you, it does change. It does change, but slowly.

Paul: If we do feel sad about something, we need to sort of not stay in that state for too long I guess, because it is a negative emotion.

You will always experience some negativity, by the mere fact of being alive on this planet, is enough to cause negativity; but it is how you deal with negativity, how you feel the goodness that comes from negativity, because there always is a brighter light as well as a darkness.

Paul: Ah yes, you need the both.

Yes. Yes, you do—without the one, there is not the other. It is all down to you my dear friends, decisions, whatever you do in this life, you have a very great responsibility, not only to others, but to yourselves, as spiritual beings. But you know all of this, we have discussed it many times, but what we are finding is that you need to be constantly reminded.

Paul: Yes, it's a shame, we are not quite able to ... we need to look in the mirror and keep reminding ourselves I think...

Yes, and each other. (Yes) Remind yourself and each other.

Now, do you have any questions for me this time?

Paul: I was just pondering one earlier today, about—I know we've talked quite a lot about Time and how it doesn't exist, certainly not in the same way in Spirit, as it does on Earth. But there are obviously those in Spirit, like Emma Hardinge Britten, who come to the Earth quite often to work with the downtrodden women for example, in various Middle Eastern and African countries mainly, I think. When they are working with these women on Earth, I suppose they come each day to be with certain groups of women perhaps. I guess in Spirit it's almost irrelevant 'Time', you don't need to know, (No) what day of the week it is or anything, but I suspect those that continue to come back to the Earth, do maybe have a little understanding of Earth-time at least, would they?

Yes, of course, we are more aware of your time than you are of spiritual time. A lot of people return to the planet to help others, because, for example, the lady you have mentioned always felt that her work was not complete. That is why she chose to come back, to help those women still on the Earth planet; there are many reasons for it. 'Why', we hear so often, do we need to come back at all? But remember there are many love-bonds still, for quite a number of your years, your time. You understand what I am trying to tell you?

Paul: Yes, so for example, George, who passed away a few years ago, he probably pops back?

It is when the interest is still there; when the Spirit does not need to be quite so refined, it is happy to help others, in a less loving situation. And of course, to return back to Earth, is not an easy thing to accomplish.

Paul: Right, so Emma, for example, is it a bit like—I know it's difficult for you to come down into these vibrations.

Yes, there are many vibrational levels in the Spirit world, the closest to your planet, of course, being when you first cross over to our world. It is almost like stepping into another room, but you are still aware of all that surrounds you. That is why you have rescues, because people cannot always accept that they have left the Earth planet; that they must move forward, on a higher vibration. But in saying that, the higher vibration is a very small leap. You understand?

Paul: Well, I guess once they've got rid of their earthly problems, yes.

They will not... that does not happen quickly, because, after all, you leave behind loved ones, and each generation is another state for loved ones, and people are not too happy to move so quickly away from the loved ones that they still remember.

Di: I quite often feel that my father is around me, because I was very young when he passed away.

Yes, and so he wishes to see you blossom, in a sense.

Di: And also, when I've been in difficult situations, I feel he's helping me still.

You all have Guardian Angels; some of these Angels are the loved ones that you knew whilst on Earth.

Paul: There have been a few movies about life after death, but unfortunately, I don't think any of them get it quite right, because they always seem to have some kind of dark place that naughty people are pulled to.

I know some are in dark places, but it's not...

I know, you mean the exaggeration of what they are telling, the story...

Paul: Yes, as if they have no choice, but actually there is choice.

There always is choice; there is always Love to surround these people.

Di: They make it as if a dark place is a bad place to be, but a dark place is for thinking and comfort and rest as well.

A dark place is made by your own energy—that's what you have to remember. You are faced with whatever has happened in your earthly lives. That is why it is sometimes you have to return, to redress the matter, but no-one forces you, no-one tells you, you are evil or bad.

Paul: So it really is, or it could be like 'Heaven', though it depends on what your idea is, your concept of Heaven. I know that you have to face what you've done and everything, but there must to a wonderful feeling of all the meetings, the unifications you get with loved ones and choices, there must be some fantastic choices available that you just don't have on Earth?

It is, my dear friend, like 'coming Home'; it is more like coming home to Spirit, than it is to be born into this planet, this Earth, full of people who are so diverse, so different—you know?

Paul: Yes, yeah—I think probably, when you feel as united, like in this room sometimes, when we feel very united, even that, it will be much better than that I guess, when we are with our loved ones in Spirit.

Yes, I am sure you know, most of you, the feeling, the feeling that you feel, when you've done rescue work, and their faces begin to light up with love and recognition. For those of you who have never experienced it, ask someone who has done rescue work how it feels; and sometimes they will find it too difficult to put into words.

Sabine: One of the last rescues I did, it was this little baby girl that came and collected this young woman, and she wanted to pick her up and she picked up this baby and the Love that was there (Yes) was so strong and they ran away really quickly, but they were there just there for a split second and it really lifted me up with so much Love.

Yes, you are left with the remnants of pure Love, and of course, small children always invoke in older people that true unselfish Love. But 'Time' is a difficult subject; I have always told you, it is one of the most difficult to explain, our spiritual time. But, imagine when you go to your beds this evening, and you sleep for so many hours, how quickly that time has gone. (Agreed) I'm sure you have often wondered, where is the time gone?

Paul: Yes, and I remember when I was doing one of my longer travels, for about 10 months or something, I was travelling around the world, and after a while, you very quickly get to the point where you don't need to know what day it is, and I realised, it doesn't really matter whether it's Tuesday or Wednesday, or Thursday, it doesn't matter anymore. And then one day I was trying to remember what month it is and I thought, ‘wow’, I don’t even know what month I’m in (Yes)—and I guess, it doesn’t matter in Spirit?

That is like a true blending with Spirit—we call it ‘Mind’, but you know Mind belongs to Spirit. But the human brain is capable of forgetting much and sometimes it cannot even explain what the feelings and the love that are felt when these things take place.

Paul: Yes, I don’t...

You will never fully understand Time, yes.

Lilian: Could I ask a tiny one please?

Yes, of course.

Lilian: Thank you. I’d forgotten about it, but luckily I’ve remembered, so...

We were just explaining how the brain forgets.

Lilian: Yes! (Chuckles) A friend of mine, she has been to the group a couple of times and she’s very into Spiritualism—she does a lot for the Spiritualist church and so on, but a little while back, not very far back, her and 3 other ladies decided to start a small group on their own. Now, that was quite unusual I feel in itself, because there are groups that you can sit in, with the church—like circles. Anyway, during one of these little ‘sit-togethers’—they know how to connect to Spirit, and so on, all 4 of them together, suddenly felt they were ‘holding the world’. Now, they all felt this together; it felt very heavy and through one of the ladies came a voice, saying they were here to help the world. A few other things went with it and she described a few, but she wondered what that was about and how would they be helping the world?

It was the unity of 4 blessed Souls together. Probably, in Spirit, from Spirit, they had been waiting for this union, (I see.) and because they have been involved in what you call ‘church work’, which you do not need to do to unite with Spirit, but that is everyone’s choice. These are 4 individuals, who came to work together, when the time was right, and Spirit was there, waiting for them. Of course, they would experience some phenomenon, because the power of those 4 together at that time was meant to be. To save the world takes more than 4 pairs of hands, (Yes.) but it is only that they have been shown this, to show that they are part of a wider picture, that each and every one of you are here to help to save this world. You understand? (Yes) So, I would suggest, if they have not had communication individually, that they realise that they are a unit of energy when they come together. They are, as you have said, a small group of people, who wish to help, to find Love and to bring peace to the world, as all of you wish to do now. (Agreed) Each one who comes before Spirit, and lays open their Soul, will be given the help that they need. So, I would say to them, accept the gift that came to them in that vision, because that is what it was, a small vision of what can be achieved, and if they so desire and wish, they can be shown so much more.

Lilian: That will be interesting. The lady I know, who asked me to ask this question, she is the kindest and most helpful person...

She is a pure Soul. They all have their attributes, but the lady in question, is a pure Soul, who has returned to this planet to help others; she gives much of her time to helping others.

Lilian: Yes—yes, thank you; I can pass that on to her.

I will take one more question this time please.

Serena: Could you say a little bit more about mind, in relation to the brain?

Mind, yes—only as human beings, even when you have strong beliefs of something; people become confused about the mind, but the mind is the indestructible part of the body; the mind is the part that lives on, because Mind is Spirit.

Serena: I was going to say, some people may call that Spirit.

It is Spirit. The brain will die, as will the rest of the body, when the time comes, but the Mind will live with all the memories that have gone previously. The Mind is the part of the Soul, which continues on for all eternity. But because people cannot quite understand it, they dismiss it as hallucinations, they dismiss it as a figment of the imagination; but let me tell you, my dear friends, the Mind is the most powerful thing, as you have heard me say before, that you will ever possess. The Mind, as it moves through Spirit, and it does, it continues, it becomes to be greater, purer and more loved than anything you would ever know. Has that helped you just a little? (Mm) What is it you would wish to know?

Serena: Who me? (Yes) Really, it’s in relation to anybody that might be reading the transcript and not know.

Yes. Thank you for the question. It is a very powerful ‘gift’ that you each have and possess, yes.

Paul: Is it the same as Spirit really, our Mind?

It is—it is pure Spirit, it is pure Spirit. It becomes more and more refined, as you move through the levels of Spirit, yes.

Paul: And you can probably... it’s like the thoughts are like the emanations of the Mind?

They can be. When the Mind is accompanied by the brain of the physical body, it can at times become confused, but that is a deeper subject that has never been discussed with you before; and we shall see as we move forward, whether I can bring some understanding of it to you all.

Di: When I'm trying to meditate Salumet, I really struggle to just use my Mind, because my brain keeps trying to interrupt. I don't know if it's supposed to work a little bit with the Mind, or if it's supposed to be completely not there, like you've got no feeling of your body, when you're meditating?

Yes, the Mind will always try to influence the brain—does not always succeed, but you cannot destroy the Mind, because it is Spirit and you cannot destroy Spirit; but you can destroy the brain and the body, as I have said.

Sabine: You have said, one of the things we can say to ourselves is: I AM WHOLE, IN MY BODY, MIND AND SPIRIT.

(Yes) So, we're separating the Mind and the Spirit, but you've said they are the same?

They are not the same in that respect. Yes, they are a unit, they are united together whilst you have a body, but once the Mind is free, and the body has gone, then the Mind then begins to function as pure Spirit. You understand?

Sabine: Not completely.

Not completely, no—it is not an easy subject to accept.

Serena: Is it along the lines of, when you're born you forget your past lives—something happens to divide the 2?

Yes, for most people, they forget past lives, only in order that they will fully complete the life in front of them. But the Mind activates the body, the Mind activates the brain—without the Mind, there would be no brain or body.

Di: So, is it alright if I feel as if my ... I can't really explain it, when I'm meditating and I feel as if I'm going within, and then it's as if my brain is trying to evaluate the meditation.

As it may well be. Yes, it is because you are not really and truly completely relaxed and it causes, a bit like a radio, if you 'fiddle', I think the word is, 'fiddle'? (Yes...) It becomes confused.

Di: Yes, it's a really good way of putting it actually.

Sarah: Could I just ask a question Salumet, on the Mind? (Yes) I'm not hearing everything, so it may have been answered, but when you come back, is your mind like a sort of open channel to Spirit, or do you bring part of that mind back with you, when you return to Earth?

Yes, because it is pure Spirit, it would be part of the Mind, because the Mind holds all memories. So, the answer to that question is that the proper part of the Soul—let's call it 'Soul', when it is in Spirit, part of that would be activated for you to return to the world. Do you understand? (Agreed + thanks)

Okay, right, I feel there is enough here for you to be thinking of, until we meet again, as always, I gather you with Love and leave you cloaked within my Love and Light.

(Thanks and farewells)

There then followed clairvoyance through Eileen, about a young dog and a lady called Miriam, who Eileen felt would become a good friend to Sarah in Australia.

We then practiced Cho's exercise, with each sitter voicing their impressions. Towards the end of the evening, Sabine saw a large ferry, with the name 'Enterprise', which triggered a rescue, involving a crewman from MS Herald of Free Enterprise ferry, which capsized leaving Zeebrugge in Belgium in 1987—audio link:

Notes:

Mind versus Brain: Further insights from Salumet- 17/04/2006: Yes, you will never fully understand the workings of the mind, because after all, the mind is spirit. Therefore there must be limitations in your understanding.

Sarah: So only when we return to spirit will we fully understand it?

Fully understand, but of course as we continue forward in our knowledge, your understanding will become a little greater, of course it will. But to fully understand the mind, you must belong in spirit. And even then, I would have to say, it would take some considerable time, for the understanding, because you see, it is a natural part of your spirit to use the mind, without fully understanding the mechanics of it.

George: Yes, at least we are becoming more and more aware, that 'mind' is so much exterior to the physical brain.

Oh, of course, it is I would say, almost separate. There is a union of course, but the mind exists on its own merits, it does not need a physical body to function.

George: I know that in the past many have credited the physical brain with far too much.

Yes of course, but it is their lack of knowledge, which brings forth these kinds of words. They do not understand, they only see a physical being and nothing else. So of course their thinking is dulled.

SALUMET – 25th March 2019

After healing prayers, Salumet gave a simple and yet undoubtedly highly profound exercise to practice, when sending healing prayers —audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9950627/2019_03_25+Salumet1.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet and welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening Salumet.

Always, it is a good to be with you once more.

Lilian: Well, it's certainly good to have you. (Agreed)

I wish to say welcome to our long-time friend, (Jean—Graham's mother) and she can be assured of upliftment at this time and I wish to say to all of you, my dear friends, that it brings so much joy, so much happiness when we hear your thoughts and your prayers of healing. It is difficult to explain the reaction of those involved with the people that you care about; so you see, it is not just words for help, but it is an extension of the Love of the Great Creator. It is almost like, I believe you would call it 'fireworks' that explode with Love at these times. It would be good for all of you to think about deeply when you are sending thoughts of healing, and try to feel what it is that is deep within yourselves, because I want you to know, my dear friends, that each time there are words of healing, thoughts of help, no matter what, that you as individuals also receive that help of healing. So imagine how it must spread throughout all of eternity, when these healing thoughts are sent. Next time you wish to send thoughts for anyone, include yourselves in the reaction of the words—do you understand?

Agreed

It is time, my dear friends that you learn to expand as Spirits, to allow that side of your being to come forward, to allow that part of you that is eternal, to pass that to others; and I know you will be saying, but we have always done that—indeed you have, but there is an even more powerful part of you that needs to be explored. Do you have any questions this time?

Graham: What about somebody who's not well, but nobody knows that they're not well, so therefore they don't ask healing prayers for them? Spirit world obviously knows that that person is not well, (Yes) so, when we do ask for somebody, presumably that is an extra amount of energy that that person would receive, (Yes) above and beyond what they would get from Spirit world alone?

Yes, no request for help is ever denied, but as it is with what you call 'group healing', and that is what you do here, (Yes) the energy is lifted that much further. So yes, you are correct in that assumption.

Graham: Yes, because there are so many lonely people around that are not well and nobody knows—it's sad, that happens, but we all know it does.

We need the interaction with you very good people on Earth; we can do so much, (Yes) but we need the input of Love from you also. Does that answer your question?

Graham: Yes, that's what I expected you to say. (Yes)

Paul: Sometimes I think Les used to do it in the early days, offer prayer to 'wherever it is most needed'; perhaps some of those prayers reach people that are not aware that they are ill?

If you are healing individually, of course it is a great Love that you send to anyone who is unwell, but of course, there are many factors to healing, there are many factors to sending good thoughts and even thoughts which are not quite so good; so remember that, that there are always complicated issues afoot. You understand? (Pause) No.

Paul: There are complicated issues, yeah, I sort of understand that it is always a little bit tricky with words.

Yes, but if you use general words like 'to all who are concerned' it will always reach that person.

Paul: Because there are Angels of thought, directing our thoughts?

Yes, that is part of 'complications', rather than a very simple answer. The workings of Spirit and those of you on the Earth has never been, what shall we say, simple; there have always been more complex issues; but, do not dwell on it too much, but just continue, because what is healing after all, if it is not Love?

Paul: Right, yeah, maybe we don't need to know the complexities of it, (No, you do not) but it's inspired me to go further with our healing prayers.

Yes, I would like you to take great notice of what you are feeling at that particular time—you may be surprised.

Paul: And that can perhaps strengthen the thought?

It can, it depends on how strong your particular thought is; you know very well, as I have said to you long time passed, that your thought is the most powerful thing that you will ever possess, and that carries back Home to Spirit.

Lilian: And possibly the first thought, when someone tells you that they're not feeling well, we call it sympathy and so on, but that thought would be the most powerful, (Yes) the first one?

And because it comes to you naturally, to wish that Love for another. Do not think Love as human love, people become confused between the two; spiritual Love is all consuming, spiritual Love knows no boundaries. So you see, spiritual Love from Spirit is even more powerful, when it unites with you as humans.

Dj: When I'm sending that Love out, I always see it as a real brightness rather than if I'm thinking of some love on a more personal human level; it always seems to be—there's a lot more energy in it, (Yes) than just the physical love between two people.

If you focus on Spiritual energy, you are on the right pathway to know what you as a human being, but also as Spirit, you begin to understand what it is about—yes, Energy.

Graham: Sometimes, when we feel very close to somebody, or somebody who is part of our family or close friend or something, I think perhaps sometimes some emotion creeps in; I don't know if it is necessarily a bad thing when we allow our emotions to...we are very emotional.

Dj: It's a human thing.

I understand what you say, and sometimes, human emotions can become awkward and in the way of true Love, (yes) true Spiritual Love. And, but that is part of your own human being, you know, but what you should do is try to recognise spiritual healing, Spiritual Love as opposed to personal love. (Yes) It is not easy, most people assume it is all the same, but it is not. Does that help you?

Graham: Yes, thank you. There was the Christchurch (New Zealand) incident—I think there was an overwhelming wave of Love towards the man who did it as well as the victims, (Yes) which was something to behold I think, across the planet; it must have been super-concentrated Love Energy, directed towards Christchurch.

Yes, that is what happens when we use the connection of Spirit and human together, because after all, you are human and you are Spirit, and sometimes one part of you takes a greater hold than the other. That is why you must become aware of what is happening; but please, do try, my dear friends, to recognise what is happening within you, when healing is sent to another. Next time I come to speak with you, I will be interested to hear, although I already know, what has happened with you.

Paul: Right, that should be an interesting...

Do not try too hard, just allow that Spirit to rise, to let it flow over the whole of your human being as well as Spirit, and you may be surprised.

Serena: So when more than one person get together in the act of healing, that is magnified, isn't it? (Yes) So, various organisations will send out healing: 3, 6, 9, 12... could anybody just join in and add to that, already magnified...

Of course, if the thought is pure and to help of course, the more people you have, the better. That is why in your traditional religions, when you have buildings where people gather, congregate, and the energy is raised so much that it is able almost to be touched when you walk in; it matters not what that religion is, what is happening in those places is that there is a unity of purpose, a unity to help others. And most religions, no matter what it is, each have their own way of showing Love.

So my dear friends, I am going to leave it with you this time.

Serena: Could I just ask a question before you go? (Yes) We've been told that everybody dies at exactly the right moment for their death, but, increasingly I hear of older people who seem to be kept alive, I'm not going to say 'against their will', because I don't know what their will is, but to all intents and purposes, they're not actually 'living'?

No, it would be much better if they would let them go; and, influence would come from Spirit to help them if that is the right time.

Serena: From their Spirit or from Spirit in general?

For all, each individual, there is a time when you cannot hold on to life any longer; they may try, but no matter what the problem may be, there is a time when they must return Home. Yes, your doctors have the capability of 'holding' people, and I say 'holding', because generally the Spirit is not there within that physical body.

Serena: Yeah, they seem to be keeping the functions alive...

Yes, because they have the will to try to help to, they feel they are doing what they were meant to do, as all doctors and people who work in these establishments wish for. Do not worry, they are safe, they are well in Spirit; so you could have someone who's body is still here with functions that seem to be alive, but they are not, they are most of the way with us in Spirit.

Graham: Would that mean that their silver cord was still intact?

Yes, only when the cord is severed, does the Spirit leave.

Serena: Is that the same for people who are kept in a coma where their organs are viable?

Yes, yes they would still be attached; Spirit and the human form are intertwined, as you well know, but the time of severance is when they can no longer be kept here upon the Earth. Do not worry about people in comas, they are watched very carefully from our side of life.

Thanks

Now, I will leave this time and allow this instrument to return back to you; and until we meet next time, I leave you cloaked in Love, not healing Love, but just Love.

All: Thank you, our Love goes with you.

Then, another was speaking via Eileen, with the gift of a puppy for Lilian—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9950644/2019_03_25+young+boy+with+puppy+for+Lil+via+Eileen.mp3

Lilian: Hello.

Hello.

All: Hello.

Lilian: Can you tell us your name please?

Why?

Lilian: Molly?

I'm a boy, not Molly...

Lilian: Oh, I'm sorry, I'm slightly deaf.

Ah!!

Lilian: Yes, it's a nuisance.

Cho said I could come for 5 minutes.

Lilian: That was good of him.

He said you are a nice lady. Would you like a puppy?

Lilian: I'd love one.

A white one. (Yes.) I've got one.

Lilian: Have you? (Yes.) What do you call the puppy?

Puppy!

Lilian: Just Puppy. (Just Puppy.) Why not?

I didn't give it a name. I couldn't think of a nice name.

Lilian: Snowy?

That's nice—Snowy, yes, I'll call him Snowy.

Lilian: Yes, they are great company. (Yeah) Do you take him for walks?

I've got him with me; he's sitting here with you. Can't you see him? Can you not see him?

Lilian: No—feel him, but not see him. (Ah!) My last dog was called Bob.

I like Bob—I like Bob better.

Di: That's why I had the name 'Robert'.

Who said that?

Lilian: A friend who is sitting in the same room as me.

Oh, I didn't know you had friends. (Yes.) Anyway ...

Serena: Can you see any lights? (Lights?) Yes, sometimes when people come through, they say they see us as a light.

No—you must all be switched off.

Chuckles

Di: You're funny!

I am quite funny. (Agreed) I like it when people laugh.

Lilian: It's nice, isn't it? (Yeah.) What else do you do?

I like animals too. Cho said you liked animals.

Lilian: Yes, very much—a bit too much sometimes—they seem to stray to me.

They're all here—they're waiting for you.

Lilian: It probably won't be long before I see them.

Argh! You mustn't say that! I don't think they're ready for you.

Lilian: Oh, I see, I'll wait till they're ready.

Okay—it's nothing to do with me—I'm only allowed to come here for 5 minutes.

Di: With your puppy.

I wanted to give this lady Puppy, because she loves dogs and cats and ...

Lilian: ...any sort of animal actually.

Not elephants?!

Lilian: I think they're beautiful, but I think they should be wild.

Yeah, you shouldn't sit on them, should you?

Lilian: No, it's not natural, is it?

What would you have, lady, what would you have?

Lilian: What, out of any animal?

A pet, yes—what would you have?

Lilian: I think a cat is an easy one—they're easy to look after and so on; and dogs—you do have to walk dogs, they like to go for walks.

How about something like an alligator?

Chuckles

Lilian: people do have them as pets, but...

...most people don't like them. I feel sorry for them.

Lilian: I think they should be in their natural habitat.

Di: I think we're all a bit afraid of them.

Lilian: Some people do have them in their home, (I know.) which doesn't seem right.

Mm, so you don't know which animal you would have—only a cat or a dog?

Lilian: Yes, I must confess, I just like all animals. It's nice to see the ones in other countries, because we've got television and so one.

What about an owl?

Lilian: Yeah, they're beautiful.

Yeah, when you're awake at night, you can go, 't'wit-t'woo'! 't'wit-t'woo'!

Lilian: Yes, they are nice.

Some people find them quite scary.

Lilian: There have been stories made about them, in years gone by.

Di: Some people think they are ghosts, because they're white and shiny in the night—barn owls.

Barn owls—anyway, I'm going to leave my little dog with you.

Lilian: Well that will be nice, I'll look after him.

And you can call him whatever you like. (Thank you.) Yeah, and you'll look after him.

Lilian: Is it a boy or a girl?

It's a boy, I think, yes, it's a boy.

Lilian: Well, thank you.

You will look after him, won't you, (Yes) because I'll be coming back to check. (Right.)

Di: It's very kind of you to leave your dog.

It's a present for the lady.

Lilian: Well, it's nice to have met you.

Yes, nice to have met you too. Cho's saying, 'Come on, come on', because I don't want to go.

Lilian: Well, you can come again.

Thank you very much. Bye!

All: Bye!

Finally, Sara took us on a meditative journey—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/9950633/2019_03_25+sara+med+journey.mp3

Notes:

Healing Prayers: Salumet has given teachings about this before:

11/07/1994: I want to say to you all about the power of prayer. It is only through your meditations and prayer that you begin to open up spiritually. I know some people dispute this, but it is an eternal truth. And so, I say to you all, please use the power of your prayers. I will teach you all the proper way of prayer another time.

22/08/1994: So often we hear your pleas, your cries for help, your distress, your sorrow. But that is not true prayer.

*... Firstly, let me say prayer should be a very individual thing. You cannot, you cannot encompass it into a sentence or whatever—it needs to be individualised. Prayer should be—I don't want to say honour, but it should be the asking of the knowledge, for the love of that light, that power that you call God. In searching for that love, then you have all other things—Love, wisdom, knowledge; all these things will come. Therefore prayer should be an offering, if you like, of yourself to that higher power, to be used for the good and the betterment of others.*

...Prayer, therefore, is ultimately the offering of yourselves to that higher power, to be used for the good of mankind. Use it for the betterment of others, ask for help if you like, but firstly, firstly offer yourselves for good—that is prayer. Please bare it in mind always, when you speak to that higher power. I don't mean by that, that there should be any reverence, like there has been in the past to idols, to false Gods or other people. That is not what I am speaking about.

13/10/1997: But what is more important, is realisation, of the power of your prayer and what you can achieve from them. All too often your prayers, and now I speak generally about mankind, and not about any of you individually: Mankind in general, speaks to a higher source of power. All of you know and understand and I have tried to teach you, at least I hope I have given you a little insight, into the power that you all have.

Les: You've certainly given us that.

*So what I would wish all of you to know and understand is this: That each individual here, comes from that same source of power. Therefore your ability is inherent, to achieve that prayer, which you speak inwards. But because of your human failings, or your denser 'power,' if you'd like to say it that way. You are speaking words to us to help, are you not? (Agreed) And of course, because of our extended knowledge, that is what we try to achieve for you. But it is the power of your word, which makes it happen. I want you all dear friends, to realise, whatever you so desire, you have the power to achieve. Therefore, I want you when next you use your words of prayer, to know that that power is within you. After all, each of us are sparks from the same source.*

14/02/2000: Prayer should never be intermittent, prayer should be complete trust and the giving and the empowerment back to that Divine Force, which each one of you calls God. If only my dear friends, in your prayers for others, you would not use such negative words. For example the words 'if you can'. This we hear so often from you: 'Can you help, can you help if you can'. Can any one of you explain to me why these words should be used, because in using them my dear friends, you attract negativity, because by using the word 'if', it implies that it is not possible and when you are offering yourselves and help for others to that Divine Creation, you should be absolutely certain that all things are possible. Do you understand how restricting words can be? (Yes) It is better that you use from your heart the feelings of Love towards another, that you place that love back to the Divine Energy so that all can be made whole.

07/08/2000:

George: Recently, in an American hospital, an experiment was carried out. 50% of heart patients were prayed for and 50% were not. The ones who were prayed for fared statistically better. I think you will say that this is not the way to use prayer, but nevertheless it will no doubt prove the value of prayer to some people. Have you any comment on this?

Yes, if only one were helped even by earthly experiment, then I can only say to you, this is good. You, of course, may not be surprised by these results; it is just a pity that so many were excluded. Of course, again we return to the power of thought which is indeed the beginning of prayer. We have discussed prayer to some degree in past times and each one of you I hope by now fully understands that your thoughts for another person are never disregarded. But of course collective prayer is a little more powerful, shall we say, to use your everyday words, but the same effect is achieved by many of those within your world who you call healers. Their prayers are sent to us so often for the safe and wellbeing of others. But prayer is there for each and every one to use...

SALUMET – 15th April 2019

We began as usual with healing prayers and Salumet then spoke, asking us to give feedback on the exercise given on 25/03/2019, when he said: Next time you wish to send thoughts for anyone, include yourselves in the reaction of the words—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/10004621/2019_04_15+salu.mp3

Lilian: Good evening Salumet, and you are very welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening Salumet.

Once again we have listened to your thoughts for healing. Do you remember my words from last time?

All: Yes.

Well, I will be interested for you all to speak individually about this.

Mark: Shall I start then? (Agreed) I didn't really feel I did very well with it, but it really made me realise how my concentration is so bad, but if I did get a bit deeper, I felt like it was very, almost nourishing and bringing you much closer to the person; I could see that my attention kind of wonders away too much—superficial thoughts take my attention away.

But you felt the connection?

Mark: Yes I did, (Yes) I felt it was very beneficial, it felt very nice.

Yes, do not be too concerned that you may not always be focused, we are still able to use all of your energy, so...

Claire: I sometimes feel a bit dizzy when I'm really concentrating.

Yes, if you are too focused then that is the effect on the physical that you will have. Try not to be so intense, but just to let that feeling grow within you, gently and slowly, yes.

Di: I remember that you said, don't try too hard, just let it come naturally and I found it a lot easier to do that instead of trying to make something happen; more 'go with the flow'.

Yes, I am aware of that statement and yes, it is quite a good one for a human being to follow, yes.

Paul: When I was doing it, I was aware, after a while, you sort of get into that stage where I usually hear some ringing sort of sounds, and it seems to get more like that as I'm sending out the healing, it feels almost like an energy build-up, or something, feels like the connection is getting stronger...

Yes, is the connection stronger with yourself or for the one that you have asked for?

Paul: As I was trying to be a bit more aware of what was happening in myself, I was certainly aware of sometimes it would be around my head, sometimes more the chest area...

So you felt the expansion, if you like, of your own energy.

Paul: Yes, it did feel like that, yeah, like energy building up inside of me as I was. (Yes) Like some kind of interconnection of energy, yeah.

Rather than just a physical thinking thought, you felt that connection with the person in need, yes?

Paul: Yes, I think so, I can't say I felt it clearly or anything, it was a vague build-up of the energies, almost like my chakras were going brighter or something, yeah.

Thank you.

Sabine: The way I was doing it before you came to talk about this, I was more tapping into my inner Love to go and give it to somebody else, which felt nice, but when you spoke about tapping more into Spiritual Love, I went to experience that and felt that it was kind of a shower of light coming down and helping me to sort of lift up and stand up a little more. (Yes) It was an all-uplifting experience that I was doing/having. I was really wondering how far could I go with it, and I even sent a bubble of healing Love to somebody I really dislike that I had lots of problems with in the past and the shower of Love was just as beautiful as for anybody else and I felt that was really nice that I was able to be a part of it, (Yes) not putting myself in it, but just the thought of really sending true Love to that person.

So you felt there was a true Spiritual Connection.

Sabine: Yes.

Yes, thank you.

Graham: I felt as though I was connecting with the people I was asking for without any judgment and found it increasingly easy to just, (Yes) to ask for all types of people and the things that happen in the world, just feel a deeper level of connection of Love with them—no judgment, it just seemed natural and quicker to get there.

Yes, there should never be any judgement made to someone who is receiving your Love and your healing.

(Yes) Yes. Thank you.

Serena: I just felt I more or less forgot what I was supposed to be doing, but I try and send out the light anyway, but mainly I focus on just trying to be more centred and breathing and sending Love out in a more general way, to transmute, if that makes sense, rather than to specific people.

Yes, it is wonderful when you can connect to all of life, of course, rather than to be isolated with just one or two people; so yes—good.

Sara: Like Serena, I've been doing this for quite a number of years really, sending light and Love, but I did notice when Graham and I, the first time we practiced it, I did feel an increase definitely, and I think just the energy really.

Yes, you have mentioned, as others have within this room, the word 'energy' and that, my dear friends, is the key factor. Energy is everything.

Sara: And I think whenever I focus on, not just this, but anything, if I bring my whole being to focus on it, then it is always more powerful what I'm doing, (Yes) whether its music or even reading I think, digesting things sometimes, absorbing information.

Each of you are your own best guidance; always be aware of your Spiritual Love and feelings that are different from those of the physical; if you can differentiate between the two, you have come a long way to understanding your own Spirit. I have not heard from the Lady yet.

Sabine: Natalie and Lilian.

Yes, I speak of the Lady to my left.

Lilian: Ah, me. I must confess, at times, I have problems with the hearing, so I didn't get all that was going on, and I really don't remember a lot about it, and that's being very honest.

Yes, you are a kind human being, always have been and always will be, so although you did not fully understand, you are able to give out much energy without too much thought. So I say to you, just to continue in the way that you have for many of your Earth years. (Thank you.)

And, may I hear from the other lady please.

Natalie: I wasn't here for that one—I'm not too sure, what I was meant to be doing.

There is still time to try, because I would like you all, my dear friends, to continue with this; not every time of course, you must do what makes you feel comfortable, shall we say.

(Lilian and Natalie both said they would read/re-read the relevant transcript—25/03/2019)

But the important word used these evening, is not connection, not Love, but feeling the change of Energy. If you feel that exchanges of energies, you are on the right pathway to understanding what asking for healing means. So thank you my dear friends, for that little exercise which can only but help you to expand the senses that you already have.

Sabine: Thank you for giving it to us.

Lilian: Talking of energies, can I just ask a question for my daughter? (Yes.) She's been puzzled why the shape of a pyramid has this energy within it and around it—why that shape?

Why the shape? There are many shapes of course, which have stronger energies; you can take a complete circle, which testifies to no beginning, no end. That of course would have energy of an extra type. The triangle meets from point-to-point and the shape then creates an energy which is very fulfilling, which is very healing and which has many properties to it. It is not the only shape—that is the best that I can tell you at this time.

Lilian: And I know we've spoken about the circles that come in the fields. (Crop Circles)

Yes and you also of course on the planet have many, what you term 'lay-lines', which are just lines, but still have powerful energy.

Lilian: Is there a reason that the lay-lines are there?

Of course, they are supporting the planet Earth, as they support many other planets. (Yes.) Yes, it is a support system of energy.

Lilian: That's interesting.

I hope that will satisfy your daughter, there is no need to go into technical details, but just to know that it does exist, that it can help in many, many ways.

Lilian: Thank you—it was just a subject we got on and did go on and on—it was interesting.

That is why it is good to speak amongst yourselves, to give each of you, your own experience, to allow the other person to think and to wonder and to know.

Paul: Would it be useful, do you think it would benefit people to build pyramids in their gardens, and meditate in them?

Of course, whatever builds the energy, whatever is healing, can only be good for you and for your planet.

That is why there are so many around your world. As I say, the pyramid is not the only shape, you take the circles, you take the straight lines and you would be amazed at how much energy this earthly planet has.

Mark: Is it partly to do with balance and focusing of the energy?

Balance of course and what was the question?

Mark: And focusing the energy as well.

Yes, there are many reasons why—they are also very creative and throughout your history, much has been learned from pyramids and there is much under the waters of your planet, which will eventually be recognised as 'energy healers' and 'energy spots'.

Mark: Yes, because they have water flowing under the Bosnian pyramids.

Yes, there's always a connection—water is a very strong element.

Mark: And the pyramid somehow harnesses that energy.

Yes, because it is creative, it is used for creative work, or, how shall we say, they have been placed on the Earth for mankind to come to know about them. And it has taken so long before they have been truly recognised for what they are.

Mark: They also had in the Bosnian pyramid stones and crystals, specially positioned.

That is what I am trying to say to you, my dear friend, it is not just the pyramid, if you are to add crystals; there are crystals throughout your world being used this very day, for good. I am sure you are all aware of crystal energies, are you not?

Agreed

Yes.

Sara: Some people have a sensitivity to crystals, don't they, the energy—a friend of mine feels the energy very strongly and she uses them a lot for healing.

Yes, and that energy will be attracting the energy within your human body, that is why really, I would suggest to you that you choose your own crystals, because the energies combine to make it even more powerful, and your own body energy is made stronger. But like all things in your earthly world, there are many questions and many answers.

Lilian: Yes, I've often wondered why, if I'm in the garden, (Yes) and a big stone, small stone, it really doesn't matter, but, I pick it up and you can see such colours in there all blending around and I wondered why the different colours.

It is the wonder of existence... you should blend with all of these energies, at some time, if you possibly can—yes.

Lilian: So if you held it long enough, you would begin to feel...

You will begin to feel part of that energy, in the same way, the energy of whatever you are holding, transfers itself into your physical body—that is why healings exist.

Lilian: That's interesting.

Sabine: Like the other day, I had a little stone that had been picked at some point and been kept in a drawer some place and suddenly I had it in my hand and all I wanted to do was to drop it on the ground, which I did and I could feel this little bit of stone thanking me for giving it back to the Earth, (Yes) and be connected again with the elements, versus being stuck in a box in a drawer. (Yes) It was amazing to feel that connection with that little stone.

Yes, you firstly felt a very strong connection, but I would like you, my dear friends, to think a little more on your world, your energy points, whether it be your pyramids, whether it be crystals, whether it be lines, whether it just be the touch of another human being, you are all made of Energy, it is very powerful.

Graham: Just going back to lay-lines, presumably when our planet first formed, there were no lay-lines, but, they must have grown since then. I just wondered what...

Well, when you say, 'no lay-lines', there was energy, (Yes) so, they of course developed at that early stage, into stronger energy and called 'lay-lines'. To me, the names mean very little, all things are Energy.

Graham: Was life itself upon this planet responsible for creating those lay-lines, or did they pre...

No, they have always been.

Graham: Do they ever more or are they fixed?

They can of course move, because of the situation where they are; they are energy underneath what you call physical Earth.

So there is slight movement, but I would say nothing overly powerful—gentle movement, yes.

Lilian: So would the elementals be attracted to these lay-lines?

They of course would be, as we all are. When we speak of energy, you have to begin to think of it as a whole, not as separate issues. Focus on all energy together and then you will feel the power of that energy. You understand?

Lilian: Yes, thank you.

Paul: Do they run fairly straight or are they more like rivers that bend, lay-lines?

Like all energy, it can be transmuted, so in that case, of course they could change or alter, but the energy does not change. Do you understand? No?

Paul: I was thinking, so they don't have to be straight lines, (No) they can be curved.

No, like the bend of a river, it is always continuous. I feel the puzzlement in the room, but I will let you stop and think about this, I...

Claire: I kind of see them like a big spider's web—we're just one planet in the whole lay-line system, is that wrong?

The whole of you Earth has lay-lines, yes of course, how you perceive that to be, how it affects you is quite an individual thing. It does not matter, it really does not matter; they exist because all things are energy; if you wish to call them lay-lines, if you wish to call it a pyramid, so be it, it matters not, it is the recognition that the energy is there, that is what is important.

Paul: Going back briefly to building a pyramid in a garden situation, (Yes) would it matter much what material is used to build it, or is it more about the shape?

The shape for pyramids, yes and of course you are standing it onto ground, the Earth of the planet, which is an extra boost of energy. (Right...) So I would say if you wish to do this in a garden, to choose the right place, the place that gives you the feeling of the energy that is there, and then to build the pyramid on top.

Paul: Right, would putting a bit on concrete down on the base, interfere with that Earth energy?

Not really, not really. If you imagine every single thing on this planet that exists is energy, all you are doing is combining those energies. If it is wrong, it will not last; as I say, all things are transmutable when it comes to energy.

Paul: Thank you.

Sarah: Going back to crystals Salumet, is there so much energy in those crystals, because they've been so compressed under the Earth's weight that's made these crystals?

Yes of course, of course that is a reason; that is why it is best for you to choose your own crystal, because the energy within the crystal and the energy within you as a human being would be different; but yes, and sometimes crystals are more powerful where they come from, the Earth—yes it does make a slight difference, but nothing that I would tell you about.

Sarah: Right, okay, thank you.

Mark: I would imagine something energetically important happens when a meteorite comes down and hits the Earth?

Yes, you have to remember my dear friend, you are one small planet; I will repeat myself, you are one small planet in many universes. There will always be energy, because that is what you are—you are energy. The comets, or the stars, or whatever you wish to call them, it is all energy; there may be different degrees, but that is all.

Mark: And that's the basis of astrology as well, isn't it?

Yes, yes.

Graham: You once mentioned something called 'Cosmic Energy', (Yes.) which our cosmic brothers use for transport around.

Yes, because they have realised that the energy which is all around us can be used; it can be used for travel, it can be used to maintain the energy of each other, which is another subject; but I think for now, you have enough to think about.

Graham: Yes, thank you for all that information.

And I will take my leave of you now and...

Sabine: Before you go, sorry, your instrument had asked a question for something for you to respond to if you could. The other day, she was wondering when she went to a funeral at a crematorium nearby and she felt that the energy over there was completely off, she didn't feel good in there, even though before she went there and felt good in there on previous occasions and she was wondering if you could comment on that?

I see, yes, I know the problem there was that before that particular occasion, there had been people attending a funeral who had very negative vibes, very negative, and that negativity was enough for the lady to feel and to feel that the whole of the room was in some kind of negativity. But, it would have lifted afterwards, it would not have lasted, because you would have had angelic beings move in to clear the situation. These places are places of sorrow and sadness for many and it does change atmosphere, but what she felt that day, please tell her it is fleeting. (Right) I hope that helps. (Yes, thank you for her.) But as I say, I will take my leave, I wish you all a very good holiday, you call them and hopefully we shall meet again very soon. My Love goes with each and every one of you.

All: Thanks and our Love goes with you.

Notes:

Healing Prayers: Salumet gave us the exercise during his previous visit—see: 25/03/2019

Pyramids: Salumet has spoken much on pyramids and slowly but surely, the truth about them is becoming more widely accepted. Russia has been building pyramids for many years and as George's notes mentioned in 2006: re Russian pyramid work: Internet: If you do a Google search on Prof V Krasnoholovets, it will produce an 8-page document entitled: 'The Great Pyramid as an Aether Wind Trapping Site'. A search on: Russian Pyramids produces other useful information.

Pyramid effects that have been observed:

1. Water does not freeze.
2. Razor blades are sharpened, (compared to ultrasound polishing).
3. The vertical column extending above and detected by radar was 2 Km.
4. Salinity of water decreased.
5. Altered resistance of carbon materials.
6. Effects on animals and disease incidence.
7. Human aura is brightened
8. Foods stay fresh longer.
9. Domestic pets thrive well in situ.
10. Patient's burn areas heal faster.
11. Meditation enhanced.
12. Plants grow faster in early phase.
13. Structural changes in materials.
14. Can cause nausea in too much pyramid environment. Compare crop circles!
15. Seeds ... crop yields increased. Compare crop circle wheat!
16. Immune systems are enhanced.

17. Pathogenic strengths of viruses and bacteria reduced.

18. Radioactivity decreased.

19. Crystalline materials kept in pyramid, then transferred to surround jails, reduce crime.

Many around the world, besides Russia, are building and researching pyramids and it is only a matter of time before they become part of our lives. Paul and Sabine will be building a pyramid in their garden soon—we will keep you posted!

SALUMET – 10th June 2019

We began as usual with healing prayers, before Salumet joined us—audio link:

Sabine: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, it is good to join with you all once again.

Paul: Wonderful to have you back.

Thank you. I would like to begin this time by telling you all that there will be strides made in discovering what lies beneath your oceans. I have mentioned in the past that much can be taken from the seas—all areas of water will be included; and as humans that interest will grow slowly, but also steadily, and mankind should be able to benefit from this knowledge.

Paul: And this is paving the way to a new form of energy, is it?

Yes, but there will be other offshoots from this.

Paul: And the beginnings of this will take place this year, do you think?

I would say rather your next coming year before it is made public, but there are those in your world who are already aware of what can be achieved. So, my dear friends, keep this knowledge in mind. (Agreed) Also, from the beginning of your new month to come, there will be fresh sighting of terrestrials, because it has been fairly quiet for you I feel in the past few years.

Paul: Yes, I was thinking, in the past there were lots of sightings, (Yes) but nobody had the sophisticated phones we have now, to capture the images. (Yes)

Claire: Can I ask if it has anything to do with the new crop circle that's just has been discovered.

Yes all of the sightings that have been before, will return in greater numbers.

Mark: So, will be quite a few in Wiltshire?

In Wiltshire? Let me see.

Sarah: Is this confined to the UK Salumet, or is it going to be a worldwide thing?

I will say to you, it will begin as it has done previously, but yes, that knowledge is worldwide and will continue to be worldwide, because all of humankind should know and understand what is happening.

Sarah: Thank you.

Can we have the question from the gentleman once more?

Mark: I was wondering if there will be some sightings in Wiltshire, because there often have been in the past.

Yes, there are definitely areas where it is much more prevalent, and yes, you have named one of these.

Mark: So, Silbury Hill—they sometimes see them around there.

Yes all of the things that have been discussed, you will be moving a little more forward in the knowledge of their existence.

Paul: Mm, that's always exciting for us I think to hear that, and so next month we should get some more sightings.

Yes, the beginning of your next month. (July) Yes, so be vigilant my dear friends, be aware of the words I have spoken, and I know you do not need the proof, because you are beings of Spirit, but there are so many who do need to have proof.

Mark: And it does uplift us, well it uplifts me anyway, to hear these things as well. (Yes.)

Paul: Do you think we are making much headway with the governments being able to openly acknowledge them?

That may take a little longer, yes, there is still a majority of rulers who wish to deny any sightings whatsoever; and in fact, in some countries people are scolded for the knowledge they give. So, my dear friends, be pleased that you belong in a free society. (Agreed) Yes, do you have any questions this time?

Natalie: I have a question: In the past, Salumet, you said UFO's and aliens will come forward more, (Yes) and make themselves known to us. (Yes) So, next month is that more significant, as in that's going to be the start of it?

It is the beginning of letting you know of their existence, yes it is. When I gave you that information, much had already occurred in your world, but now the time has been reached, when mankind really must open up, not only to other beings, but of course to their own Spiritual energies.

Natalie: Exciting—thank you.

Paul: We can spread the word on Facebook to keep an eye out in July—from early July.

Yes, yes, we will try to encourage people to be honest and of course, as you know full well, there are always those who wish to be disruptive, who wish to make some fun of what is quite a serious topic. So you must begin to find out those people who are not genuine.

Agreed

Sarah: And also, I think some people behave like that because they're ignorant, they just don't know...(They are afraid.) ...they're not willing to take in the information, so they need some help to be more open-minded.

Yes, but they cannot keep it down for too long, because Truth will always come out and those who are believers will help to go forward and help these people, whether it is fear, or whether it is just to be disruptive, we hope that they can be influenced for good.

Paul: Thank you for that information, it does feel that we are really getting somewhere.

Yes, of course, as I have always said to you, the word is 'patience'. It is natural for you humans, I know to be a little excitable, but really, you must go slowly.

Graham: I was going to ask, because you have said in the past that through meditation we can access the knowledge that is deep within us, (Yes) and when we return to Spirit world, that accessibility gets an awful lot easier, (Yes) because, yeah, it's just easier. My question was: do people meditate in Spirit world the same way as here or is it not necessary?

It is not necessary, they already have returned to all of the gifts that they have. There is no need to think about anything, it is natural. (It just comes...) It just comes to them, yes.

Graham: Yes, that's interesting, yes.

Whether you believe it or not, and there are so many still who do not believe, whether they believe or not, it will happen. In the same way as those people you help with your healing and with your rescues, they just need a little guidance.

Graham: Yes thank you, I don't think that question has ever been addressed about meditation in Spirit world—yes thank you for that.

Yes, that is not to say they are not continually learning, but basically all of those gifts are with them as soon as they come Home to Spirit.

Graham: I suppose in Spirit world people go to places of quiet contemplation.

Yes, there are many temples and religious places, if that's what people desire, but that remains only for a short time. But, if that is their desire then that is what it must be.

Graham: Right, okay, yes, thank you.

Sarah: I was thinking about Hitler and you saying how he was going to have a long time in his own darkness and I was wondering, could another aspect of him come back to this planet, whilst he is in that darkness?

No, the plain and truthful answer is no, he would not return whilst he remained in that negative state, firstly he...

Sarah: Not even another aspect of him?

No, not while there is an aspect that is in that state—that would not happen.

Sarah: I'm sorry I think that time lapse is quite strange this evening with the computer, so sorry to interrupt you. (Sarah joins us via Skype)

No, don't worry my dear friend—that is okay.

Sarah: Anyway, thank you for your answer.

I would just like to say about people like the gentleman you have mentioned, when you speak of aspects of Spirit, yes there are many aspects, but to be a whole, to be whole in Spirit, you must forgive yourself also, as well as being helped by others. This gentleman has so much to give back that it will take quite a long time for him to realise what harm he has done to other human beings. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

Serena: Could I ask about the crop circles and how for people who can't get there, can they benefit from them? Because I understand there is something coded in the geometrics...

Yes, if you... this is a perfectly good way, is to meditate deeply and to see in the mind's eye the crop circle and you will find that the energies will start to blend and you should be able to be aware of them without actually physically being there. It is a case of the Spirit and the knowledge of the Spirit that allows this to happen. Is that helpful to you?

Serena: Yes, thank you.

It is good to be able to answer a few of your questions, because my dear friends, although we have been together for some earthly time, you do tend to forget sometimes what I have said and it is always good to be able to reiterate the words. Are there more questions please?

Serena: Is there anything else you could tell us about colour? We've had a couple of meditations and things on colour and is there anything else you could relay?

In what aspect to the colours? Colour is just energies that have... if we talk about block colour, one colour that is easy to visualise. Visualisation and meditation will bring you all the colours that are available, but what I will say about colours is that when you return Home to Spirit, the colours are so much more beautiful, there will be colours that you are not aware of on the Earth plane. And all of these colours have some significance with the energy of your bodies; and I am sure and I have heard you discuss what each colour does. So there really is no new information on colour, only that if you wish to explore it further, then please do meditate when you can, and the colours will naturally be drawn to you, the colours that are needed, if you are using them for healing or whatever. You should be able to blend with all colours, you understand?

Di: I was just looking at all the trees when I was in the park earlier, Salumet, all the different shades of green, (Yes) thinking how amazing they look, so to think that there is more beautiful colours in Spirit than that, because it is so beautiful.

It is, and have you wondered why there is so much greenery on your planet?

Di: Because it's a healing colour.

It is a healing colour. So therefore the more you can absorb, and that is what you do, my dear friends, when you step outside and you see a beautiful tree full of greenery, then you can take it within yourselves, you can breathe in the energy. So, there is much to say about colours on the Earth and it is wise that, as I know you do, think about these things.

Sarah: There was one that came through last week Salumet, through me, who said that our bond in our group, the joining colour was yellow, is that correct?

Yes, I would say yellow was used mainly as friendship, it is a colour of friendship, yes. So that is why you would have the bond within the group.

Sarah: Ah yes, thank you.

And do you realise, and I know I have spoken of this quite some time ago that each day, my dear friends, you chose colours which resonate with your Spirit. So, if you wear lots of green colours and blue is another healing colour, you are taking in those energies automatically, without even the thought of them.

Paul: It's no coincidence I don't think, that as the planet's evolving, I think men's clothing has changed a bit in my lifetime. For a while it was all greys and blacks and dark blues, (Yes) but now, men are beginning to wear bright pinks and more colour/brighter colours.

Yes, that is true. Make yourselves more colourful, yes. It's the same if you...

Sarah: ...it's just been a phase in the UK, because if you look back into the 1700's, the men wore quite flamboyant clothes.

Paul: Oh yeah, that's true actually.

Colour has always existed on your planet, so it is not too amazing to see that women and men both choose colours that their energy pulls to them. Yes, I hope... but you will never see brighter colours than what you will see when you return home to Spirit; the beauty is wonderful and even the water, the waterfalls in our world are just full of colour, healing colour, yes.

Sabine: Something to look forward to.

Sara: And I expect the same goes for sound. I should imagine the sounds are very much more beautiful?

Everything is more beautiful, because the energy is spiritual energy and not physical human energy; so the eyes that see here are very dim to what they will be when you return home.

Sabine: When the weather permits, we go and meditate outside, (Yes) and there is this one bird, and I only hear it when I go deeper in meditation, and I try to keep a mental note to try to look after that bird afterwards—I never hear it any other time than that one.

No, because it is one of your helpers. (Right.) It is a bird helper, who has transmuted from a helper in Spirit; so the bird will always be with you in deep meditation. Do not try too hard to find what it is all about; accept it, and my dear friend, you will grow and grow and grow, because you are having angelic help.

Sabine: Oh thank you, yeah. Like the other day as well, Paul was up a very tall tree and getting to a place where it was getting a bit uncomfortable, I could feel it, but then suddenly, all the birds around started to gather around him, above his head and turned around in circle, (Yes) all the way until he stepped down a couple of steps and where he felt secure and they all dashed away, just like... (Yes) It was amazing, really amazing.

Yes, and it is very apt that you are beginning to recognise all of these happenings, because you are Spirit my dear friends, and I can see you evolving, the more that we talk, the more that we meet in this group, because I know you are passing on spiritual knowledge, which can only grow in others. But you are all well protected if you so desire, but you have to have the desire to experience these many things.

Sara: I was going to ask about mediumship, Salumet, because Graham and I have wondered whether to try at home, would we be protected?

You would need to protect yourselves, you are protected here, because it is something that is and has been said for many years, so we naturally give protection to you when in this room, but be careful when you begin to do this, that you do not open a door and leave it open; you must protect yourselves first, that is not to say that everything is not good, it is just a precaution, because in Spirit, we also have excitable people, who do their best to come forward, you understand? (Yes) So yes of course, if that is what you wish to do, then any meditation and development of—I do not like to say development of ‘mediumship’, because you are all, already mediums. After all, what is a medium? Only someone who can make connection with Spirit. So, you understand, you are already mediums, it just needs to be helped along the way to become more accurate, you understand? (Yes)

Graham: We wanted to try some mind projection exercises, because mind projection is where two minds link, (Yes) as I understand it, (Yes) and we had the idea about sending colours to each other.

Yes that is perfectly good.

Graham: But the problem is that I personally, I cannot see colours in my mind very easily. I have asked for help with that and try to do exercises in meditation, I have just started on that.

Right, you just have to keep going forward, it will come, but again, here comes my favourite word for you humans: ‘patience’. (Yes, I know) It will not happen overnight, unless you have come to this lifetime with you gifts ready to be used, and that happens often.

Graham: I didn’t realise that I was different from other people, because everybody I speak to, I say, ‘can you see red in your mind?’ And they say, ‘yes’, that’s easy. (Yes.) I can’t, I just see dark grey or black, I can’t see any colours in my mind. So, I realise that I have something I’ve got to work on. (Yes) Okay, thank you.

It just takes time. Even if you cannot see it in your mind, just take an article like, what shall we say, something bright, like an orange, it may be a fleeting thing, but you could concentrate on things like that, you don’t have to have a full blown vision of it in your mind to begin with.

Graham: I know that Bonniol, when he came and gave us advice about mind projection, said that part of the process is to be able to actually see in crystal clarity in your mind what you want to project.

Yes, oh yes well, of course the mind is everything, as you know, once you take command of your mind, you, well, all spiritual aspects of yourself come to the surface.

Graham: Yes, would it also be relevant to try and send words, like you could name the colours like green, would that be relevant (Yes) for mind projection as well?

Anything can be projected.

Graham: So that could be a lovely exercise. (Yes) Thank you, that’s really good.

Good. Now my dear friends, I feel we’ve spoken and connected once again, I would just like to end by saying, there is much upheaval again in your world, but once again I say to you, it is transient, do not let it make you live in fear, accept what is happening around your world and do the best that you can to help others.

Sabine: Yes, the world needs a big change, (Yes) and it’s on the way.

You only need, and that is a word, this word can be used for mind projection that is LOVE and PEACE; project those two words every day of your waking hours and you would see quite some difference.

Sabine: Will do.

Now my dear friends, I take my leave, I’m grateful for your presence and your Love, which is felt by many in Spirit, all the help and goodness you bring. So, until we meet next time, I will say goodbye.

All: Good bye Salumet, our Love goes with you.

Salumet on UFO’s and Crop Circles:* So, from early July 2019, there will be lots more UFO sightings for our governments and media puppets to deny.

New discoveries from beneath the oceans:* So, in 2020, we can look forward to this knowledge being made public. Salumet mentioned this new form of energy back in 2005:

15/08/2005: ...the depletion of oil supplies in your world will of course be replaced by other energy. And if you remember quite some time ago in your time, I told you that they would look to the seas of your world for energy. That is something to come...

Mind Projection:* Salumet has suggested previously that we try sending colours or simple shapes to each other as a way to practice Mind Projection. It is mentioned in relation to Astral Projection here: (26/02/2007): Astral projection is a solitary endeavour. Mind projection requires another mind... There is no point in having mind projection if it is not taken up and received, but the spirit can make astral projections by itself and travel throughout all of eternity as a solitary unit.

George: Yes, so could one say that astral projection is like the first part or the outset of mind projection?

Yes, I would suggest to you that that is a rather clever way of looking at these two things. Mind projection is on a much more spiritual level, although all of you can do it when it is created and used properly. Mind projection is what is used in our world all of the time; there is no need for words. It is a mind-energy and it becomes much more refined as you move forward in our world.

George: I take your point about it being more spiritual and that connects with it being shared (yes); not only perhaps being shared by the two people principally involved but also shared by the ‘support’ groups, if I could use that word.

Yes, there will always be those in spirit aware of any thoughts. There are those who are called thought-keepers, but I believe you know all of this. But, as I have tried to tell you in times past, you have to begin somewhere with mind projection because, remember my dear friends, you are spirit; you must always remind yourselves ‘you are not human, you are spirit clothed in human garb’ and if you constantly remind yourselves, mind projection should become much easier for you. It is the human element of man which holds him back—he is afraid in his own limited way of what is available to him...

Upheaval in world: Salumet has emphasised many times the importance of remaining positive during difficult times:

(19/05/2008): Again, we hear your healing thoughts, we hear you talk of the many disasters in your world. I would like to remind you my dear friends, not always to dwell upon those happenings in your world that create so much disturbance. I would wish you daily to remind yourselves of the beauty and the love which surrounds you all. Even in your darkest moments, seek out the beauty and the light of earthly life. Each one of you, my dear friends, is blessed in this way. That is not to say your lives at times can seem harsh and cruel, but it is your individual responsibility to maintain that aura of light, that love which is round and about you at all times. Seek always the beauty of life.

George: Yes you are quite right, of course. The love and the beauty are always there, come what may.

But because you are human, you sometimes allow those unhappy times to over-cloud the joy and the beauty. I am not saying it is easy, but nothing that is gained for good is so easy. So, just remember my words my dear friends, remember my words daily in order that you may help yourselves. Again, it is a gentle reminder of what you are seeking towards: searching, finding—it is an ever, never-ending trail. Even when you come home to us, this journey is ever onwards to seek the brightness in your lives. Not always is this recognized but I tell you my dear friends that the continuance of life is ever-seeking, ever-looking for love. That is what is important to you, or should be, and that is why I ask you now to think about it and to put those thoughts into action...

George: Yes, and I think, now we see the return to spirit as, shall I say unexceptional, but it is just the trauma involving so many sometimes that ... we see the strife of it and, as you say, because we are human, we feel for those people. (referring to Burma cyclone + Chine earthquake)

You extend your love to all of these people and of course that is as it should be but what you should not do is dwell upon it, but send out your love for these people and we will then do our work in helping them. If you cannot change a situation, you must look it fully as it is, as it is happening and then you must continue onwards. Have the recognition, but do not hold on...

Rod: I think we have got such an efficient media system that any time you put the television on, it is there and they are very, very efficient at putting all the doom and gloom...

Yes. It is impossible in your world today not to know what is happening in all parts of your world, and that is not a bad thing, but I am saying only that you must offer your love, your help, your support and then focus on all that is good in your world. It would seem too often that your media, as you call it, dwell too often on what you call disasters and do not focus enough on what is good in your world. (Also see 11/05/2015)

SALUMET —12th August 2019

This was a small gathering, so we were delighted to have our wonderful teacher, Salumet speak. The link seemed a little wobbly at first, but strengthened quickly—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/10229754/2019_08_12+Salumet.mp3

Paul: Welcome Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Paul: Sorry we're small in numbers tonight.

Yes, I have been trying to work with the energy this time. I am happy, my dear friends, to join with you once again.

Paul: Thank you, it's always wonderful to have you, thank you for making the effort when there are not so many of us; does it make it more difficult for you to come tonight?

Yes, a little, but nevertheless, I am with you now. I was interested to hear you discuss the matter of TIME, because this time, I wish to tell you that my visits with you will become a little longer.

Paul: Ah, that's good!

...longer in time, before I come.

All: Arhhh!/Oohhhh!

Paul: Ah, I see, longer intervals, (Yes) between visits, yes, you've said before that you're gradually... (Yes) is it a bit like weaning us off a little bit?

I think that is an appropriate word, because the time is coming, after many, many years that there is not too much more that I am willing to give. (Yes) So, that is my first comment for you this evening. But, as always, I will always know what is happening with all of you—we are not separated just yet. (Thank you) I have said to you that this earthly year would be helpful for all of you to develop your spiritual gifts and I believe you will say to me that this is so; you have all developed greatly, whether you recognise it or not, these past months. Do you agree?

Paul: Yeah, it's very difficult to measure spiritual growth.

Yes, but I am here to tell you that you have grown much.

Mark: Thank you.

Di: I do feel as if I'm able to meditate more easily and as if spirit is part of my life every day now, rather than just coming to these meetings. (Yes) I feel as if I'm more complete really.

It is an on-growing growth for you my dear friend, as it is for all of you.

Yes, so I hope that you understand that the reason for my not so frequent visits, is one to help you all develop in different ways, whilst at the same time trying to guide you further—at least a little further.

All: Thank you.

Di: It's been a privilege to be hear and listen to you.

Thank you. Yes, we have become united in a way that is not always possible with people on the Earth, but in coming to this group of people over the years, has been for us a great 'blessing', shall I say—yes, I will use that word, 'blessing'.

Paul: That seems exactly how we feel—it's such a blessing to have you, sort of help us to... Mark was saying, (earlier) authenticating certain things, (Yes) we weren't sure about before.

Yes, you have...that is why I say you have grown so much, with your words, your actions, you have shown other people not so well informed, of what the Truth of Spirit really is. You cannot know, my dear friends, how wonderful it is to see the Lights of Thought in your world grow brighter. It is indeed for us especially, those who have managed to work with you, indeed a great blessing.

Now, whilst we have good energy, do we have any questions this time?

Paul: I've got a question from Emily, who used to come to the group—Sarah's daughter. (Yes) She's reading a book called, 'The medical medium', by Antony William. He has spirit with him who is always there, working with him to diagnose people and assist with food choices in healing. Spirit says he's never walked the earth, but he's not a guide, he just says he's a word, 'Compassion', which is the tip of God, who is Love. She wonders if you know of this and if you also resonate with a word?

We all resonate with that one word, 'Love'. All of existence is Love and your Bibles and your books teach that God is Love. There is no doubt that Love is an expanse of Spirit; it is a word that we all use and sometimes we use the word too lightly. Love is something that you feel, it is not there to be touched or to be felt with any kind of limitation. So yes, I would say to her, I would agree with the word of Love. Compassion, he uses, is because he is helping people and after all, we all have compassion, if only at certain times in your existence. Compassion too, is also lacking in some people, because it is a word that is misused, misused in the sense that people do not understand what true compassion means. What was the other part of the question please?

Paul: I think she was wondering about—it says that he's never walked the earth, and he's not a guide, I wondered if she wanted to know if that person helping Antony William, perhaps they are a bit like you, who hasn't walked the Earth?

Yes, I do not know the answer to that straight away, but I will find out. There are of course many people who tread this earthly planet; (Yes) yes, whether they have walked the planet is another matter, but I will find out and let the lady know.

Paul: If they haven't walked the planet, could we assume that they are from a more angelic realm?

There is no mention of that in her words, but it is possible that the spirit has decided to return in this way, perhaps to experience whatever—compassion and love for others. But I would have to, as I say, look to this when I return home. (Thank you) I am surprised that she uses it singularly. Normally in these cases, in cases such as myself, we are a conglomerate, it has never worked with just one person. Of course, there are people who come to earth to help others; there are many good spiritual doctors who do this work. So, I am a little surprised that there is no mention of this, but I will let you know. (Thank you.) I hope that helps the lady.

Paul: I'm sure it does, thank you. Any other questions?

Mark: I have one about pyramids, I wondered if the original pyramid entrances were from underground to maintain the pyramid shape?

Yes, I believe I am correct in saying that these openings were not at the very beginning, but came at a later stage when all things were thought about; but they had a great deal to do with the support, as you say, of the shank of the pyramid; yes indeed, they have been there for a great, great length of time—yes.

Mark: So the entrance would have been from underground tunnels. (Yes.) And I wondered about the floor as well, whether that was earth, or whether they put down a...

There was a material not known, and I don't know if we have discussed this, a material for the floor, the earth, call it what you will, that is not commonly known about—yes.

Mark: So presumably the earth would be probably better than putting down something made up as a floor?

It was mixed with this other solution which is not known to man at this present time, yes. They are wonders of the world are they not?

Mark: They are, they are and I wondered also about, looking at the dimensions of the pyramids, some are a lot wider at the base, like the Bosnian one is very wide and comes in at more of an angle, so it doesn't go as upright as the Great Pyramid, and I wondered about that, whether they made them wider to encompass what was going on underneath?

Yes of course, they needed space to work, so the areas where they have wider openings was for a reason, very good reason, to harbour whatever they needed to use from space. So yes, you are correct, there are some areas which are much wider than others. Does that help you? No?

Mark: Well. I'm trying to build one at the moment, and I'm just trying to make it as good as I can really. I'm making mine out of wood, I don't know if that would be a reasonable material to build out of?

Yes, well I would suggest that you try other ways as well, if you can, if you are so interested, but my dear friend, all of these things are long passed, you gain knowledge from what is left upon this Earth, but you need to accept it and think that the universe and those people who came from afar, worked many ways with many uses not known to the modern man of today. So, I say to you my dear friend, do whatever you feel you need to do, allow yourself to be influenced from Spirit and you will choose the right pattern and pathway. You understand?

Mark: Yes, thank you.

Yes. Now, are there more questions?

Ben: I thought of one actually, if you don't mind. I was thinking about my Mum recently, Sally, who passed away just over 3 years ago. (Yes.) And, like George from the group here, she suffered with a cancer at the end of her life and was very ill, and I understand that when you do pass to Spirit, if you've suffered from a very long illness you very often go into what has been described as a Spirit hospital, (Yes.) to recover, and that can take some time before that Spirit is then strong enough to maybe show a sign or make contact with us back here in this Earth; but then I was a bit confused, because we're also told that 'time' in Spirit doesn't really exist, so I was just wondering... I'm not really sure where the question is leading, but I was just wondering how that works really?

Yes, 'time' is one of the hardest things for you as Earth people to accept. Time goes forward and time goes backwards, it is integrated. Yes, if you have someone who has suffered with long illness, they do come to Spirit hospitals, where that Spirit energy is given to them for as long as they need; time does not come into this, because in Spirit, there is no time as such. So I feel your question is: how long should it take for a human being passed to Spirit, (to) come back? Let me say to you my dear friend, some Spirits do not wish to make contact for quite a long time; it's not only to do with whether they have had illness, but sometimes it is just that they do not want to do and return. But, I feel as I speak to you, your mother, I believe you said, must have made some contact with you, but has not been felt by you. That is true is it not? (Yeah, probably.) I feel sometimes you block, when she is around you, mainly because you are not sure, or you're not quite sure of who it is.

Ben: Yeah, I was thinking the other day actually, that I hadn't dreamed of her—I imagined I might have done, but then I did have a dream at the weekend, where she was there.

Yes, it takes time, everyone wants it to happen immediately in Earth time, but, as I say, 'time' is not the same in Spirit, so what to you may seem like forever, is but a blink of the eye.

Ben: We had agreed on a code word, so I know that's admitting doubts—there isn't any, but we always joked that we had a word she would use, or a sign...

Yes, lots people do this; hold onto that word or sign and it will happen—just give her a little more 'time'.

Ben: OK—if you could have a quiet word as well?

Chuckles

I'm not really involved with that, but I understand how you feel.

Ben: Thank you, that's very helpful.

Yes—she will come, she will come.

Serena: I thought she had been back at least once here?

Ben: I think Eileen's had some clairvoyance, hasn't she? I was thinking of something more 'dramatic'.

Yes, that is not the same as wishing for it. Most people want to feel or touch, or see even, but it is just time. I can tell you, she is still in the Spirit hospital, nearing the end of what we call her treatment, which is beautiful, beautiful energy. Ben: That's nice to know, thank you.

Yes, so be a little more patient and your experience will come.

Ben: OK, thank you—thanks very much.

Yes. I feel for this time, I have spoken enough. Thank you for being so patient for me to speak.

Paul: Thank you for coming, I know we all, we hope that you will continue to come, even though we fully understand the reasons for less frequent visits.

Yes, I will of course still be coming, it will just be a longer period of 'time'—that is all it is, it is a spreading out of 'time' as we have just said does not exist and yet it is a word we constantly use.

Giggles

Paul: But you've given so many words over the years, so many teachings, we've got so much to continue to work with.

Yes, you will never fully understand, it is, I almost regret using the word 'impossible', but it is more and more difficult to give you information that you could fully understand, and of course, when first I came to you, I said, you know I only wanted to give the Truth, the Truth of Spirit.

Di: I think we have so much more than most people in this world, don't we?

Agreed

Yes, so for now my dear friends, I leave you cloaked in my Love—that most important word. But, you know, there does come a time when any word is unnecessary, when you exist in 'non-time', then that is the greatest gift of all.

THANKS

Notes:

1. Salumet visiting less often:

Salumet has stated previously that visits are becoming less frequent. NB: He doesn't say 'stopping', just longer intervals between visits:

I have shown you mind connection that comes far from your earthly world. You have communications where we have told you a little of life in our world. I have declared to you truths for this world and also denials of words which have been spoken. All of these things are indeed good for your growth, but there comes a time when we have to have fewer words and more action. You understand what I am saying to you?

18/02/2008

Yes—sometimes I have been aware of just a little disappointment that I am not with you so often.

Lilian: That's true!

But you know, all children are weaned, and basically that is what is happening to you all. That the time is coming that you must stand firm on your own two feet, without the knowledge that I will always be with you to help. So that is the purpose of my withdrawing so often now.

26/04/2016

2. Grief: Whether it is for humans or pets, Salumet suggests we don't need to grieve so much:

Les: Thanks...we do hope that in time this whole planet will learn to not mourn, but be joyful when death occurs.

I would like to say only this to you: If only you could feel the vibrations of grief that exudes from your world, when occasions such as we speak of occur, you would be shocked by them. The whole energy pattern which surrounds your planet, is affected by such grief. It affects not only the vibrations of your Earth, but those who wait for those who come to us. It is difficult to surround the planet with love, when so much grief abounds. (Agreed) That is why I ask you dear friends, in your individual thoughts hopes and desires, that you replace grief with LOVE, with loving thoughts for all those who are in need.

01/09/1997

As always, we thank you my dear friends, for all the love and help that you ask for others. I would like just to say to also remember those who are left behind on your Earth plane. They truly are the ones who suffer. Those who come to our world quickly recognise what a beautiful and wonderful situation they have found themselves in—they have returned to knowledge and to all of those who love them so. But they are also drawn back to this Earth plane, to those who are suffering at their loss—no matter how many times you tell them that their loved ones are safe and well, still so many mourn and mourn for much too long. So therefore it is imperative that you, my dear friends, remember to ask for them also in your prayers. If only you could hear the cries of those left behind, you would understand how much and how much more that they are the ones to suffer; and yet it is a mourning which is unnecessary, because I can reassure you, each one of you, that when you return home, there is so much light, so much love, so much happiness.

23/02/2015

3. Spirit Hospitals:

The power of thought is all-invading. When you leave these bodies, if you leave with disease and a sick mind, shall we say, then of course you take it with you for some time. You must of course, know of our 'spirit hospitals,' where people go to recuperate. They do not possess a physical body, so of course it is a sickness of spirit that is being treated. I do not always think that you understand these things fully. I sometimes see thoughts of people who think: 'All right, you have a counter-part of your physical being and so within our hospitals it is still that physical being.' That is not so. It is the SPIRIT that is being helped.

31/10/1994

But you have to have that power of thought, it has to be used. It will not trigger-off by itself. I have spoken briefly upon the spirit body. I have told you briefly, that some of the illnesses upon your Earth plane are illnesses within the spirit body. It is a mistaken idea amongst many of you upon this earthly plane. You have to realise that when we speak of spirit, the energies are intermingled. You are not separate units in that respect. Can you see? (Yes) That is why we have our hospitals in our side of life.

After all, you could say, 'Why do we need them?' You know the physical body has been disposed of, so why are you not immediately well and happy? Because the spirit suffers when your physical body is in pain—you cannot separate the two. I know this is something spoken upon much, upon your Earth plane and so many wrong words are used. If the spirit is in pain, then you have physical illness. There has to be the balance with all of you—your thoughts, your mind and the body.

06/11/1995

...But I wish to tell you this time my dear friends, about those Angels of Thought who work within our world, who help many people. Their work in our world, includes work within what we call hospitals—that is your earthly word for those places of healing within our world. I believe we have spoken briefly about the many colours, about the openness of these healing places. But what we have not discussed, is the work of those beings within these healing places, who are there to help all who are in need. The Angels of Thought, my dear friends, have worked and take 'control' if I may use that word, in these healing places. They are responsible for the thoughts, which emanate from the people who are within these places of healing, because remember, when you depart from this earthly plane, when you are unaware of your passing, when you are in one of our healing hospitals, still the Spirit is thinking. Do you understand? (Yes) The Spirit is unaware, but is still able to think, much in the same way as when clothed in the physical body, the Spirit is still active. This, when in Spirit, is just another dimension of the spiritual body.

14/05/2001

4.Time: Salumet has said that this is a difficult topic for us to comprehend whilst physical.

Time is a complicated matter. But I will say, there are those of you who can see what is ahead, not because it is the future, but because it is there, it is past, it is the present, it is the future. It is one whole, a never-ending cycle of events.

04/07/94

You are on a never-ending cycle. If there is no beginning and no end, then you see, all must join together.

28/11/94

You are part of linear time, so therefore you could not fully understand past, present and future in its true state.

SALUMET – 18th November 2019

We began as usual with healing prayers, before the conglomerate being, who we call Salumet, spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/10418183/2019_11_18+Salumet1.mp3

Graham: Good evening Salumet—welcome

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, it is good to join with you all again my dear friends.

Dj: Thank you, it's good to have you back again. Agreed

This will be my last connection to you until your new year. (Agreed) I hope you understand why it is necessary to pull away just a little; I want you, my dear friends, to realise and understand the growth that has taken place within yourselves. It is good that you spread the truth of Spirit, and for this, we are always grateful to you, because without your help, it would not be possible for us to deal with so many things. I hope that this past year has brought to you a greater understanding of yourselves, that you now know and understand what you are becoming; when I say 'closer to Spirit', I don't mean it in the way that you would, you're not coming here. (Giggles) But by being closer you are recognising your true self. That is why we've had on many occasions, instances of recognising your own abilities; I hope my dear friends that you have felt this also, for I can assure you, our view of you all, no matter the number, we are so pleased with what you have achieved.

Paul: It feels like everything's falling into place. Graham seems to be reorganizing all the words to hopefully reach more people. I think we all feel the growth, I'm sure we all feel the growth inside us. (Agreed) We just want to put it out there as much as we can as well—inside and outside.

Yes, there is a lot of information in your world, but of course with Earth and the inhabitants of Earth, having such strong freewill, they do not always make it easy for themselves. So, I would wish you to completely understand that as part of this Earth planet, how great the work is that you have done and are still doing.

Paul: I suppose, we can't know where it all ripples out to, (No) but all I know is it's a very pure 'loving ripple', a pure concentration of Truth.

Yes, and of course, it is the responsibility of each one of you to maintain the knowledge and to live life by those words of truth.

Sara: That's the greater work, really.

Yes, you have to expand, you have to allow the energy that you have become, to expand and grow, to change and allow all to know that this is happening.

Paul: Yes, we need to like, 'embody' the teachings, in our daily lives I suppose—embody our spiritual essence.

Sara: I think it helps others to be more convinced if we are living the teachings.

Yes, you are examples to others, that is the purpose of these groups, as well as what we began with was rescue work, and that is good that this should be done, but also, as important, is that you, as a group and individually also, allow yourselves to transmute from human beings, into the precious Spirit that you are. I cannot say enough, or thank you enough on behalf of Spirit, because you already know that you have been part of something of good. Would you wish to ask of me any questions that you have this time?

Graham: I was wondering if I could ask a question about leadership (Yes) in our world. As I understand, when I've read books and so on, that when people become more evolved spiritually, through their many lifetimes, eventually they get to the stage where they leave materialism behind, the seeking of power behind, all these things are no longer of any interest as they shed these layers; (Yes) but, I can see a bit of a problem with that in the sense that our planet needs people who are spiritually evolved to lead, but those people that do become leaders are probably not quite so evolved.

But how can you tell that?

Graham: Well, we're not allowed to judge, I know. (No) But...

But you cannot say whether another human being is more evolved than another. Not by knowing, not by seeing, but perhaps by expanding your own energy and knowledge, maybe just then you could make some reasoning of it; but you see, what I am saying to you, that you have to fully understand your own selves as Spirit and how much you, as individuals have grown. Do you understand?

Graham: Yes, I think so, yes.

I hope it helps.

Sara: I suppose it may be true that some people may not seek power, but are given it, it may be offered to them—they're not consciously seeking it.

Of course, that is the problem with all of life, that sometimes your freewill and perhaps the freewill of another person, could perhaps 'clash', I believe that would be a word you use; but the responsibility lies with you as an individual, it is then your responsibility to use your freewill for the good of others. Whether it is in a position of power or not, there are many types of human beings in this your world. It may be that the person who is not particularly liked by others, is a Spirit that would shine freely in another area of life. So, no, you cannot judge another, I still say to you that is not the way to go.

Graham: Yes, it's been a very difficult one for us to grasp, but I think we're getting there slowly.

I feel this is what is happening, that we have to take things more slowly and that you have to exude your lives in fact, not just yourself but life as a whole, you have to live it as you would if you were here in Spirit. Does that make sense to you?

Paul: I think so, it does...

You will never be angels—even when you come to Spirit, you will not change that much to begin with.

DJ: It's quite difficult Salmet when you're trying to help somebody and you give some advice and they see it as a judgment, I find that very difficult to put things to people and I'm honestly not judging, I'm just trying to help them to have a better way in life, but they take it as a criticism and think you're making judgments. If you've got any advice on that?

Yes, it is because they are not ready for that advice. (So, it's best to just to...) You can say what you feel of course, you must always have an open heart, but you cannot—in a way it is judging another, in saying they do not appreciate or understand your words. You understand?

Di: Yeah, it's because you kind of see people heading for disaster and it's...

Yes, but it may be part of their life plan, you cannot say, cause each of you have come to this planet to work, whether you recognise it or not, and as people, as a group of people, you are doing good, every week in this group, but more than that, every minute of your lives should be exuding goodness and Love and help where needed without criticism.

Di: I guess it's best just to pray for people like that.

Yes, yeah not everyone is ready even yet for the truth; we still have quite a long way to go, although in your world, there is an expansion of knowledge and understanding of spiritual matters.

Di: Thank you Salumet.

Graham: I actually feel that there is an acceleration, I don't know, but I think the world was stuck for a long, long time, but now, particularly now I feel as though people are talking in different ways, it almost seems to be accelerating.

I will say to you my dear friend, look to the babies and the small children of your world at this time, and yes, acceleration is a word that is very useful to them, because they have come with a purpose.

Paul: Yes, it was very exciting to hear about the children to come (Yes) as well as the ones that are already here.

Yes, there's always been on the Earth planet people fighting against one another and the lack of understanding to another; there has always been those problems, but all we can do is to show by example what good people and good lives that you lead; I cannot put it to you any simpler than that.

Paul: Leading by example is the best teacher of all probably than words...

And we are always awaiting your prayers for others, because each time you send those thoughts out, that energy is transmuted for the good. You understand what I am saying? (Agreed)

Good.

Paul: Yes, we had the exercise you gave us, I think it was this year on being aware of the energy as we send out our prayers to others, (Yes) and I think it's good to continue with that—to feel that energy.

Yes, it is up to each individual to find his or her own way through life. So many people call us and ask: 'What is life meant to be?' 'Why are we here?' Those are questions that they should be asking of themselves, because you know the answers; you do know why you have come, even if it is not obvious or available to you.

Sabine: That's the thing, if it's not available to you, it makes you feel a bit stuck—where is the information? (Yes)

Sarah: We have a saying, "Life is what you make it", and I think that's true...

It is a very good saying.

Paul: I've been thinking a little bit about, it's a bit over 3 years now, since George passed to Spirit, and he never quite finished his last book on the ETHER. We feel it needs to be finished and published, but I'm not sure if any of us quite have that particular expertise that George had. It's just the conclusion that was left unfinished, I think sometimes he'd ask you for a final say, a final bit of input. I don't know if you'd be happy to perhaps help with the conclusion to the book, or maybe we can find a way of getting George to finish it from your side?

I will see for you what he wishes to do; I cannot answer without first speaking with him. I would probably say that he would find it not so important now, because he has different knowledge; so it may be that he would not want it finished in any way, but I will find out for you and someone, even perhaps George, as you call him, will bring that information to you.

Paul: Thank you very much that would be wonderful—thank you.

You have to remember of course that when you come to Spirit that all of the things that you think and worry about no longer matter; when you come to Spirit, they do not have the same importance as when you are on Earth.

Paul: No, I can understand that...

Yes, you understand, so whatever his answer, it will be what he wishes.

Paul: Anyway, we are happy to finish it, if he wishes it published...

I'm sure within a short time, he will probably come to you, come close and explain what he wants; if not, there will always be someone willing to speak for him.

Graham: It's a good book, he put an awful lot of effort into it and he got so, so close, but he just wasn't well enough to finish it, so it would be nice to do something for him if we could.

Yes, of course he was inspired a lot of the time, but I know that you all know that. (Agreed) But when you come to Spirit, all of your ways of thinking gradually change; but he has only been with us quite a short time in your timing. Again, you know that 'Time' is a little difficult to convey to anyone—it is not an easy topic.

Paul: You just don't have time at all in Spirit, it seems. (Yes) A lot of people try to raise questions about that. People find it very hard, (Yes) the concept of no time.

It is complex and I would say to you all that there comes a time of acceptance and tolerance and you just allow that type of knowledge to await you for when you are ready for it—you understand?

Paul: Yes, I understand that. We can't possibly grasp everything with our human, (No) we have to accept that there are certain things that are a little bit beyond us at the moment, and 'Time' is one of them. Someone else was asking about freewill and I think you've answered this one before, but I couldn't find it in the transcripts, but this idea that because Time, Past, Present and Future are all One, the past and the future...(It's all connected...) Yes, and that's why some Seers are able to see the future, because it's already happened. (Yes) But then some people say, so how does freewill work, if it's already happened, if my future has already happened, how can I, where's my freewill gone, to choose not to have that?

Your freewill has already taken place. If they can see into the future, then they have exerted their freewill. You understand?

Paul: Right! Yes!

Their freewill has been used up, if I can put it that simply.

Graham: Yes, that does make sense. (Agreed)

Paul: Yeah, that had confused me a bit, thank you!

So, do you understand what I am telling you now?

Paul: I do—the penny's dropped, as they say!

Sarah: I remember you telling, Mark that he was going to have a boy and then he had a girl and there was something...maybe it was better for him to have a girl, I can't remember what it was.

Paul: Well, Salumet didn't say, it was another that 'saw' the boy, I think and the boy did come, of course, but they didn't see that there was a girl prior to the boy—I think it was something like that?

Sara: Probably just a timing issue. (Agreed)

Yes, I understand what you are saying, but rarely, very rarely, the sex of a baby is noted; but because of freewill, even babies in the womb can change their minds. That is why you get this kind of mix up; I think that is the easy way to explain it.

Sarah: Could that be also Salumet, there are some babies that are born neither male nor female, (Yes...) is that because they've changed their mind in the womb?

It could be that one does and one doesn't, therefore there is confusion at the joining, the union; there can be more than one reason; but that is a timing issue. (Yes) Yes, but life for you human beings on Earth can be very complex and I know sometimes and I know of you in this room, who spend time thinking and wondering and still do not come up with an answer. (Chuckles) Yes, but I just ask that you all continue to think and work, to Love one another and even strangers in a kindly way; you will benefit from those thoughts, those deeds.

Now, have you any more questions before I leave you? (Pause) No? You know everything? (Chuckles)

Paul: I've been pondering/brewing up a—I feel there might be a book inside me at some point; I've thought about all the wonderful messages we've had about dying and death and the Spirit realm. It's such a wonderful place and yet there's so much fear in the world about it. (Yes) I've thought about a book about dying, which isn't dying at all, it's going Home, of course. Do you think that could be something I should tackle?

If you have the feeling and you feel inspired by someone to write, then of course I would encourage it. All I would say is that the more simple the explanation, the more readable it becomes. (Yes) For examples of people who have gone and perhaps even returned to give their Love and some messages; sometimes these books are more complicated and...but if you feel inspired, then I suggest you take that up.

Paul: Mm, thank you that's good advice, yes.

And obviously to ask if there is anyone there who wishes to help you with this project; you can never have too much knowledge.

Paul: No, that's right, there's so much help available.

Yes, there are many books, but fresh thinking always brings a little more.

Paul: Yes, I think that's an area that could be—could be a fun book to tackle, in a different sort of light.

Yes, and your own experiences are useful for other people, but you will always still have those people who are not ready to listen; it is something we try to help with all of the time.

Di: I think it's better in that case, if we just pray and someone from Spirit maybe helps the people we're trying to help.

Yes, you should be able to use your own decisions, whether that person is ready for the knowledge or not.

Di: Thank you yes, that's really helpful.

Now, as always, my dear friends, it gladdens us to see how much good work you do, and I know that sometimes it must feel as if you want a lot more information, but your world is complex and in the same way the human being is complex, and that's why your freewill is often questioned. Sometimes there is no one straight answer to your question. So, I say to you, look inwards, continue to meditate and I look forward, as always, to see you next time and see what has happened between now and then. So, my dear friends, I leave you with all of my Love. (General thanks)

Paul: And the best of our Love goes with you Salumet, back to your home.

Yes. I will be happy to join with you after your winter celebrations. (More thanks + farewells)

Notes:

Prayer exercise: Salumet gave an exercise on 25/03/2019 when he said: Next time you wish to send thoughts for anyone, include yourselves in the reaction of the words. The following week we shared our thoughts about this exercise and it was generally felt that it helped us become more aware of the changes in the energy when sending healing prayers/thoughts. This evening Salumet added: ...we are always awaiting your prayers for others, because each time you send those thoughts out, that energy is transmuted for the good.

So, it would seem that healing prayers are an effective way to change/transmute energy. Perhaps the humble prayer is actually true and powerful alchemy/magic, transmuting negativity, not into gold, but into something much better: purer forms of Love.

The children to come and those already here:

Children of Peace: 17/10/2016: Throughout the world these children will appear. They will become known for their peace and their skills of being able to talk and calm. Let there be no mistake that this is a great gift from Spirit, but I wanted all of you, my dear friends, to know of this knowledge now... There will be in every country throughout your world one of these children...

21/01/2019: You can start, my dear friends, if possible, to help the young people and the children of this earthly world, to try to inspire them to goodness and to thinking of others; to help them to understand the beauty that surrounds them and the people that surround them at all times. I have told you that the children who will be coming soon will bring a great change to your earthly world. There will be seen in these children a beauty and a strength not yet seen, and after all, they will be the ones to continue to help with the expansion of all knowledge. So, take note, my dear friends that you must take any opportunity to help young people, to listen to them, and to speak to them only the Truth of the Spirit. It is indeed a heavy burden for those of you who at times feel despair of your world, but again I say, do not despair, allow the Love that you feel at times when you are together, allow that strength and Love to support you and uplift you all of your lives. It may seem a simple task as I say, but indeed it is not, and we in Spirit, my dear friends, are giving you a challenge for this new year. I know that each and every one of you will uphold the knowledge that you have been given and I know that for each one of you, there are such great blessings ahead...

SALUMET ~ 13th January 2020

We began as usual with healing prayers, before Salumet joined us for the first time this year—audio link:

Graham: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Paul: Great to have you back.

I am always happy to join with you beacons of Light. The light that you give grows brighter each time I come, and for that, you know we are always grateful. Times in your world seem hard to most of you at this moment in time, but what I want you to recognise is that this Earth is growing in many ways. You speak of fires and other disasters; to you they are my dear friends, but try to see it from the fuller picture. There have always been since the Earth began, what you call, 'many disasters' and all quite natural for the world that you live in. What you must do is to continue what you are already doing, thoughts to those who can help you, thoughts to the Angels who do such great work and will come to your aid at any given time.

I will speak with you, but first, I would like to welcome the new face within this group.

Eve: Thank you.

It is always nice and good to know that people are constantly looking for the truth, and all of you my dear friends, are able to take that truth and to pass it to others when you can—therefore I thank you once more. Now if you have any questions for me this time, please do so.

Paul: I've got a few, but if anyone else has any, (Pause) if not I can start. One reader mentioned they've read on the internet, they think it is the energy you mentioned previously: A company called IBM has discovered a way to make a new battery from seawater that seems to be far better than the lithium batteries that exist; we were wondering if this is the one that you talked about, or is this a different one?

I will tell you that this instrument I am using was having a conversation with the gentleman across the room about energy and such in the seas, but I would like to say, any new interest in the seas can only be good. I have said that much energy can be taken, it is one of the elements in your world which can be used and used for progression in the world of energies. So, my question, or answer I mean to you, is that yes, all of these things are possible; but like many things, it takes mankind a little while to put all of the facts together and to begin to use what is appropriate for the time.

Paul: Good, so perhaps it's all connected anyway.

Yes, there is much to be discovered, (There is more to come) more to come, yes.

Paul: Well, that's very exciting and this is a good start anyway.

It is one of the positive aspects of your lives that you can begin to focus upon. I know at this time many people are concerned about the happenings in your world, but I say to you positively, my dear friends, do not be afraid, look upon it as new beginnings all around the world, even although there are so many what you call 'atrocities'.

Paul: Yes, we know I think you've said these things are transient.

Yes, you must send Love to all, you must send your Love to all things upon the planet; it is not the only planet which is going through some trauma, but you must always be hopeful, you must always be positive, because if only you could see the brightness of your spiritual lights, I have said this on many occasions, but I feel I need to reiterate it, you must always think brightly with good thoughts and know, not just hope, KNOW that all can be well.

Paul: And it certainly does seem to bring out a lot of goodness, a lot of giving in humanity.

That is the positive outcome of all of these troubles, that if you are positive, then, all things become positive.

Paul: And perhaps there's some learning about how we interact with nature in the future, how we live more harmoniously.

Mankind will always find it difficult, because he wants to dominate nature; nature is a strength on its own, it includes all the animals and the people upon the planet, not only the few who wish it to be better, you understand? (Agreed)

Paul: Yes, we've got a long way to go.

Yes, I have never promised you that it would be 'okay', that is your word, straight-away, that is not the case, it takes time, it takes dedication of every spiritual being to get things working in full harmony.

Paul: Yes, at some point anyway, we've got potential to live with much cleaner energy, much cleaner fuels... Yes, and I hope you have understood when I have told you that many children coming will bring that new Love, that new energy, and I believe that already that has started.

Paul: Right, I was thinking it's about around the time, 4 years we've talked about (yes) that some—1 or 2 may already be born.

Yes, yes you will always have different age groups, but I speak of children on the whole, and tell you that their loving energy can bring many changes.

Paul: I think already we've seen a few examples, (Yes) There's a young Swedish girl (Greta Thunberg) who's making quite powerful passionate speeches about the environment and the planet, maybe she's a little bit young, but...

That young lady is a very special Spirit I can tell you. Her spiritual energy really does not belong on the Earth.

All: Wonderful!

But she is here to help to uphold, to uplift and to be of example to others.

Paul: Right, I'm sure she's already had a huge impact and if others like her can...

And do you not ask the question, if she is able to do it as a young human being, now, why cannot there be many more?

Paul: There's definitely a powerful ripple around that one, I think.

The Love that emanates from that young woman is boosted often by those who come from Spirit; she is almost like, how you would say, 'a battery being charged' and then gives off the energy which that has.

Sarah: And she must be very well protected I would imagine.

She is a special human being, but we need to have some who you would call 'Leaders'.

Paul: Right, and they're the ones that are just about being born, some of them now?

Yes, there will be a different aspect of living when these children come to Earth.

Sarah: She talks a lot about climate change, and you did say to us we needn't worry about it, it was a natural thing, (Yes) but if you take for example Australia, I think it's probably coming round a little bit now, to all the coal industry, so that is effecting the climate, is it not, using coal?

There has always been matters of Cause and Effect within your world, remember that first and foremost. These things are not new, there have always been what you term 'disasters', what we in the Spirit world, would call 'change'. We do not look upon these things as disasters, because always there comes good from these occasions—always; mankind suddenly stops and wonders what is happening. Of course, the climate changes, I have never denied that, but you mustn't blame everything in one direction, you must look always to the larger...

Sarah: So, the climate change is partly human activity, but also natural?

Yes, yes, there is always balance in your world, or that is what you should strive for, and of course we must say mankind has not always been wise in the choice that they have chosen, therefore that is why you have droughts and fires and all of these things, but always keep an open mind my dear friends, always be assured that Spirit is constantly working for and with you.

Paul: Yeah, I think it's sort of irrefutable that humans have had some effect, (Yes) even visiting cities, they're a few degrees warmer, the polluted cities are often, because of the haze of pollution around them.

Yes, but try not to judge, my dear friends, because you do not have the full picture, therefore, when you condemn something you bring to it that negative aspect, yes.

Mark: So, it's perhaps better to be positive about the initiatives that are being taken, (yes) like try to encourage public transport usage, and countries that are trying to tackle the problem in a proactive way.

Yes, you will always have people come together to try to make things better—that is the positive aspects of all of this. And I know when you are living in this world, on this Earth, that it is not always easy. But if your mind, and when I speak of your Mind I speak of Spirit, when the MIND is in the right place then all else will follow. You understand?

Agreed

Sara: So, we give credence to the good positive changes?

Yes, which have been brought around by the ‘tragedies’, as you call it.

Sara: And I find that I don’t particularly want to tune into too many atrocities, but what I like to do is send Love to the planet or to leaders, (yes) ask for guidance, you know, for them, because I don’t consider myself a politician, and I wouldn’t want to be, but I do try to just keep myself buoyed up with the work that I want to do and I just pray or ask for help. (That’s all you can do.) Yes, because it depresses otherwise, if you tune in...

Yes, if you focus for too long on negativity then that’s what will transmute, yes you are doing the right thing my dear friends, by being positive, by asking for help from Spirit—we already are always helping, always have and always will, if not on this planet, then somewhere else, but that is a much, much bigger picture which I don’t feel you are ready for.

Paul: And you’ve said about ‘People Power’ in the past, (Yes) some of these what we call ‘tragedies’, bring people together, and that’s the next step is it, come together so that we all become a part of the solution?

Yes, without that tragedy you do not get the build-up of the positive, which is the people who change things, the politicians, as the lady says, but the ordinary human being has as much power as governments, if they so desire, just by using their MIND.

Paul: Wow, that’s a huge thought.

Yes, I always seem to be asking you to think about something, but I would be worried if I had to come to you and say there is nothing to do.

(Chuckles)

I can tell you now, that won’t happen.

Graham: One of the changes that’s occurring on our world at the moment, which is being observed in countries like Japan and Germany and possibly even in this country, is that the population is now beginning to go down; (Yes) and you did say a few years ago that in the next 1000 years there would be tremendous changes for the good (Yes) and I just wondered if depopulation, as there are probably so many of us on the planet at the moment, it is a little bit of a stress on the planet—I wonder if this is something that will progress into the future?

If it is necessary for the betterment of the human race, then of course it will occur and I can say to you, yes, populations will, because the places upon your Earth who are, ‘overrun’ is the wrong word, and I am struggling to find your word...

Di: Full up?

Paul: Bulging?

Sarah: Overpopulated?

Yes well, I’ll let you choose the word—all the people and the problems have come about by ‘overbreeding’, is that the word? (Agreed) So yes, it has been a result of people starving, no water, all of these ‘atrocities’, as you call them.

Sarah: And war as well, that often decreases the population.

Yes, you have famines, you have disease, you have death, all of these things work to keep population down.

Graham: But it seems that if our population does just go down naturally, as in what we call, perhaps rather unfairly, third world countries, it seems that children are almost an asset, that there are many children that can work and support the family unit, whereas in the so-called first world countries, it’s not necessary to have so many children and it seems into the future, a gentle process of depopulation, which will help the world enormously I think in the future.

It will come to all peoples, people develop and grow at their own pace and yes, the small children in these countries do seem to ‘suffer’, although I do not like to use that word, they are growing spiritually, do you understand? (Affirmed) This is always a difficult topic, when people are ‘dying’, as you say, that things are ‘wrong’ somewhere. You must allow for some evolution of the planet to be natural, but it is always difficult when children are involved. I find that most human beings become rather ‘depleted in their senses’, shall I say, when it involves small children. Small children ARE SPIRIT, remember that—they are Spirit and they have a knowledge, perhaps forgotten by some, but most children still have some memory of coming from Spirit. So, remember those words when next you feel so sad about those children.

Di: I think it's very helpful that we know that those children chose those lives themselves as well, (Yes) for that experience; I think that's very helpful to not get so overly emotionally involved.

Yes well, the human being is built with emotions, not always good, but those same emotions help them to help others. (Yes) Yes, now...

Sarah: But when there's natural disaster, that's one thing, but quite a lot of the starvation in the world is caused by governments being greedy and having stuff for themselves and not passing it on to the people in their countries.

Yes, no matter the causes, you must know that the truth is Cause and Effect, in many places; and I know you all understand what I am saying. Cause and Effect will always exist while there are imbalances. So, you must remember that also, yes.

Paul: And sometimes it goes back generations, (Yes) or to other incarnations...

It may be a country, it may be an individual, but Cause and Effect always has to be answered for. Now...

Paul: Have you got time for one more question?

I will take one more, thank you.

Paul: I apologise if it's already been asked once before, but some people say sleeping in different directions at night, some people say head in the south is best. I don't know if you're able to say if it's important, which direction we sleep at night?

I have spoken and understood all of these things. I would say yes, it is all to do with energy lines and how acquainted you are with them of course. But what is more important is that each individual—let's take sleeping, sleeps in the way that is best for them. So, I would not be too concerned that you are not sleeping in the right direction; the fact that you can sleep and return to Spirit is much more important. (Okay) But yes, I understand your question and I know some people are very passionate about these things, but don't be concerned, because your Spirit, which after all is what the human being houses, will always find enough sleep to continue.

Paul: We do move a lot in our sleep anyway, (yes) so I guess we'd wriggle into a better...

You go to the position that is best for yourselves, yes.

Paul: That clarifies—so we probably don't need to move our bed—that's good.

If it makes you feel that is the correct thing, then there is no harm, but all I say is that the Spirit will rest wherever. (Thank you)

Graham: Is there any advantage in sleeping in a pyramid?

Yes, again, we've spoken of this on a few occasions and it is all to do with energy that forms within these shapes. (Okay, thank you)

Now, if you are happy, I have enjoyed my time with you. (Enthusiastic agreement + thanks) I hope I have clarified some points for you. (Agreed)

Paul: Definitely, it's always something to treasure when you come.

Mark: You're a great teacher—we're very lucky to have you, thank you.

Sabine: Very grateful.

Graham: We always feel very reassured.

I am very happy that you have all grown so much. As I say, you do not see each other's light, and it does shine brightly. Continue your good works, that is all I have to say to you. Remember that I am always with you at all times, I always will try to help and encourage you. So, until we meet once more, I will take my leave.

(Love and thanks)

Notes:

1. New energy from the seas:

Salumet has said that a new energy will be discovered from our oceans and stated last year (10/06/2020) that this will become public knowledge in 2020. One of our readers (Thanks to David in Tasmania!) sent these links and Salumet was asked about them this evening. It seems this may be connected, Salumet indicates still more to come, so definitely we seem to be on the cusp of some wonderful new discoveries:

Here's a 3 minute U-tube Video on it:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UEQuAF6FUW0>

2. Planetary 'disasters': Salumet has spoken much on this topic previously: 19/05/2008: Again, we hear your healing thoughts, we hear you talk of the many disasters in your world. I would like to remind you my dear friends, not always to dwell upon those happenings in your world that create so much disturbance. I would wish you daily to remind yourselves of the beauty and the love which surrounds you all. Even in your darkest moments, seek out the beauty and the light of earthly life. Each one of you, my dear friends, is blessed in this way. That is not to say your lives at times can seem harsh and cruel, but it is your individual responsibility to maintain that aura of light, that Love which is round and about you at all times. Seek always the beauty of life.

(Further transcripts on this include: 1/08/1994, 18/11/1996, 12/12/2005, 11/05/2015)

3. Special children to come: These were first mentioned on 17/10/2016, but Salumet has always urged us to listen to and give as much Love and Truth to children as we can. Salumet refers to Greta Thunberg, saying: That young lady is a very special Spirit I can tell you. Her spiritual energy really does not belong on the Earth.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0ZsHtpk0XII>

Cause and Effect: Salumet has spoken about Cause and Effect many times, which is also known as Karma: Yes, 'Cause and Effect,' that is karma and what should happen is that when you return to Spirit, that karmic debt should be cleared, but sometimes it is brought back with people into another lifetime, because they do not allow it to be made free. (21/09/2009)

Much more on Karma was said on 8/09/2003. These may also be of interest: 27/05/2002 – National Karma, 16/11/2009 – more on past lives and karma, 19/09/1994, 1/10/2001, 17/12/2001, 27/01/2003, 22/08/2004, 21/08/2006...

SALUMET – 24th February 2020

After healing prayers, Salumet spoke for just over 50 minutes—audio link:

Sabine: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is good to join with you all once again.

Paul: Always wonderful to have you back talking with us.

I am always happy to listen to what you are doing and saying, and very much take it onboard of all the worries that you have; but before we go any further, I wish to say to you all, do not despair about your world, the Earth planet has always suffered many setbacks and complications. There is much fear in your world at this particular time, but I say to you, my dear friends, uphold the faith that you have in all that is good and the wonderment of this world will always begin to shine through for you. You understand what I am saying to you?

Agreed

Never allow yourselves to become so despondent that it affects the way you live in this world. I am not here to tell you that everything in the world will be gentle and good and an earthly word 'rosy'.

Chuckle

It never will be, because if it was, you would not still be here. So, my dear friends, look forward, give upliftment to all those people who need uplifting, and that includes yourselves, after all, are you not only human as well as Spirit?

Agreed

So, take the time my dear friends to, as I say, give upliftment.

Before I leave you this evening, I will send with each of you the feeling of joy and happiness and the feeling that you can create the most beautiful peace throughout your world; and you can my dear friends, if only you will dedicate yourselves to this task. I hope by now, you have realised that what I have given to you, always is a fact, even if it is not immediate, it is always the Truth; (Agreed) and for this, I thank you all, because in listening and dealing with my words, you are creating a beautiful light, beautiful light. So, I say to you, just be quiet at times of troubles, allow yourselves to go inwards and all of your problems will not seem so bad. (Thank you.)

If you have any questions this time, please ask them now.

Sara: I have one question: Recently, a friend was talking with me about the Rainbow Body, which I think is something the Tibetans, traditionally know something about, and I just wondered, is there a good purpose behind this rainbow body, a way of exiting the physical body, and how common is it in fact on this planet? Do you understand the term rainbow body?

I know of what you speak, I cannot say more than it is a form that has been developed by many of the people who come to the Earth plane. The word 'rainbow' should give you the clue to the answer, because as you know, pure energy is full of many colours and it is a way of utilising these colours for whatever purpose they wish it to be used for. So, I would not say it was widely spoken of, but it depends on individuals and what they are looking for in this life, to help them to go to other places or in fact to help them to pass. (Ah, right.) There is nothing complicated about this, but what you need to know is that it is quite natural to be able to use the beauty of Light and colour and Energy. Is that helpful for you?

Sara: Yes, definitely, thank you.

(Pause)

Come my friends, you have become silent.

Giggles

Graham: I saw something yesterday, which made me think; we were at the Kennet and Avon canal and we were looking at these giant wooden locks, these doors that allow the water to go through, and it just struck me that this enormous lock-gate, which probably weighed about the same as 4 cars, could actually easily be moved because it was in perfect balance; and that got me thinking, when we are in perfect balance how much more we can achieve, because with this lock-gate, you just had to press on it gently and patiently and it suddenly started to move, (Yes) and I thought it was a nice thing to think about in life as a whole, that when we are in balance we achieve so much.

All around you in the world, are signals that are there to help you to grow and you have just named but one thing; there are many signs within your world, which help you to take a step forward, or to create a thought that is useful. Yes, and I commend you my dear friend for noticing such things. (Yes.) Yes, too often in your world, people are in too much of a hurry, they do not take the time to even know themselves, let alone to notice the signals on this planet. It is available to each and every one of you, all of these things, yes.

Graham: Well, I shall be looking for the signals, then, yes.

And yes, if you equate these signals, to your own self, you indeed would become a very balanced and easy person—a perfect almost human being.

Graham: I think nature itself holds so many of these signals, when you see the way that nature works, (Yes) you think, 'oh-my-Goodness', I can take something with that.

The Great Creator would never make any silly mistakes in the creation of the worlds that you know of. (No.) It is a great lesson and one that I am pleased that you have raised. (Yes, thank you.) Yes.

Sarah: On the other side of that Salumet, you've said about the fear around the world, and I've been thinking about this virus that is attacking people, the coronavirus they call it, it was supposed to have originated in China, I don't know if it was fish or animals or what it was, but the Chinese don't look after their animals very well, their Animal Rights is not very good at all and I wonder if it was because of the way they were treating their livestock that caused this problem I don't know if you've got anything you could say on that?

Yes, any unbalance on the planet is caused by abuse of some kind, whether it be animal, human or some outward indications, but yes, it is always imperfect balance that causes all of these interactions within your world. It is quite simple when we look at it, but to you, who still live upon the Earth, in this world, there are many things that can go wrong, because of the way thought is misused, the way actions are misused and in fact anything that creates unbalance. So yes, I would say to you, my dear friend, that was the start of the problems, a misuse of animals. After all, when you create negativity anywhere, it will have to have its outcome. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

Di: I'm finding that with some of my friends and acquaintances really Salumet, the ones that seem to have a very negative outlook on life, seem to be far more ill with illness than people that think they're going to get better. (Yes.) You know what I'm trying to say?

I do know my dear friend, of course I understand, any negativity can only be harmful, and unfortunately, in the Earth plane, people feel they know better than what is right for them; but yes, any negativity or imbalance is not good for the Soul or the body.

Di: It's quite hard when people don't seem to really believe in a Soul or Spirit, they think that there is just human life, so it's hard to help them really.

Yes, I would not be too concerned about those people; some of them would have chosen that life, that not knowing anything, because they do not want to; but, I would say to you, this is their opportunity to grow and to understand, and all you can do, my dear friend, is to pray for them.

Di: Okay, thank you very much.

Send good thoughts, balanced thoughts.

Di: I've sent them the links to your website now as well.

Right, of course.

Di: It might help. (Yes.)

Paul: I was chewing over a question about, looking at Earth's history and various empires, like the Roman empire and the British empire, and they all seemed to come and try to dominate the world, (Yes.) and then, they sort of, from what I understood from history lessons, they sort of fell apart from within, (Yes.) it wasn't another force fighting them, they fell apart themselves and I wondered if...

It was their own greed, their own negative thoughts, yes, there have been many times throughout the world, your Earth planet, when nations have fought against nations, always thinking that they knew best, instead of living in harmony and peace and sharing and caring; they decided they would be the power of all other peoples; and again, it is a negative thought. So, when you have unions of negative thoughts, that is the power that becomes the most powerful, do you understand? And that is the cause for the downfall.

Paul: Right, it's not based on Love, so it's not based on truth, (No.) so it hasn't got any foundation.

No, it is a power struggle, that is what it is. And that is what I have to say is happening in the world at this particular time, there are too many leaders, too many people who want power, who are not doing the best for other people.

Mark: Yes, I think a lot of these leaders don't sleep enough. Often leaders boast that they only need 2 or 3 hours sleep and I've been reading a book that says that's not true, you do need the sleep to stay in balance, you need sort of between 6 and 8 hours.

Yes, because the body is made to rest, it is not—although you are Spirit and human body, you still need the balance, and sleep is part of the balance, so that is why they create problems for themselves; you start off with sleepless nights, then you become irritable, then you become unkind to another—it all has a problem with growing and not allowing Love and kindness to enter your lives.

I believe you have begun to recognise some of my words about what is found in your seas. (Agreed) Yes.

Natalie: There was a castle that was discovered under the sea.

Yes, there is much more to be discovered, so look towards your seas and waterways, there is much history there, because I know, as a group, you are most interested in the history of your world.

Sabine: We've been reading a book by Lobsang Rampa and he was talking about some form of people that were very tall and I think they were a purple colour and they were in Antarctica, under the ice (Yes.) and they will be shown at some point when the ice is melting, they will be revealed.

Yes, there is so much for you to know and understand, but how much you need to know to allow you to be a good human being is minimal, and I know as a group, you have been very good at expanding the knowledge of Love and Truth, and for this my dear friends, I can only say how much you have helped in your own way.

Sabine: It does feel good to do it as well.

Yes, it will because it is what you are truly meant to be doing.

Sabine: That's why it's sort of 'hard' to feel when you hear some of our leaders going completely the opposite way, (Yes.) not going towards the help towards other people, it sort of hurts and feels not very nice inside.

Yes, but try not to judge too harshly, I know I say it often, but if you can express your dissatisfaction in a loving way, so much more can be attained.

Dj: I think that is one of the hardest lessons, to get that balance as a human being.

The hardest lesson for any human being, my dear friend, is to love yourselves, because when you have achieved that, then you can help many people, sometimes even without the use of words, sometimes just with a look or an understanding thought.

Paul: And I think it is a bit like these old empires, these people, politician if you like, 'leaders' that haven't got a foundation of love behind them, they'll be so transient, they'll come and go and I wonder if they even need much resistance, because they'll fall over themselves.

Yes, the realisation will come to them eventually, so that's why I say to the lady, don't worry if people don't understand what they are doing because, eventually the realisation comes and that is when a life will suddenly take change upon itself and that Soul will begin to understand what this life is all about.

Graham: At a deeper level, would it be to say that everybody on this planet without exception, with the knowledge and everything that they have, and their level of experience through their many lifetimes, are actually doing the best they can?

Yes, they should with different lifetimes, becoming purer, be becoming lighter, should becoming more aware of the Truth and the Light around, even in the midst of darkness. Does that make sense to you? (It does.) If you are in the midst of darkness, you have the power to dispel that negative area and to become bright and loving and true.

Graham: I was thinking that if you could think that everybody on the planet is doing the best they can with their knowledge and so on, in a way, that helps to remove judgment.

Yes, it helps, but we find that judgment is one of the harder things to do for you as human beings, you do not find it easy to be non-judgmental. (Agreed) You try very hard.

Dj: We don't even realise we are being judgmental sometimes.

This can be a problem, but yes...

Paul: When you see politicians going to war, we know that killing is wrong, (Yes.) so we have to try and acknowledge that...

You have to try to influence with the thought patterns, that's the only way they will change, they may even deny knowing some 'good', if they have set their mind on being strong and powerful and forceful, then they are negating, and life becomes harder for them.

Natalie: Is that the same, would you say, for serial killers? Because I watched this documentary on Ted Bundy, (Yes) and he killed many women and explained it like he wasn't mentally ill, it just overcame him, this feeling like he had to go kill people; (Yes) so was there a choice there? He could have...

But, although he thinks he had no mental illness, I can assure you that there was, there were problems, yes. Yes, you know you can never explain as a human being, what is in another's mind, you never can and you never will.

Sara: I think there are many levels and degrees of what I call mental illness, I think there's so many degrees of it.

What is mental illness?

Sara: Just lack of balance within.

It is a word that is used for 'dis-ease'; I have spoken to you many—quite a long time ago, I believe, in your time, when I said all disease is caused by 'dis-ease', and I feel that speaks for everything in your world. It is 'dis-ease'?

Sarah: And even for these children who are born with what's termed today 'Asperger's', or those sorts of diseases, is that also 'dis-ease', or is that just another way of looking at life?

With people who come to this life with a problem already, it is usually a wish for that to happen and that it why you find they do not have a full lifespan. You understand?

Sarah: You mean they don't live to a long old age?

Some of them do not...

Sarah: I don't quite understand what you mean.

Sometimes it is that they have chosen parents who would be prone for that condition to happen. You cannot just put it on a straight line, people come to this Earth for many reasons, some come with illness as you call it, I would rather call it, 'they come with an exceptional gift.' (Right) But they have chosen to do that, but that does not apply to everyone; for the majority of people, it is a 'dis-ease', when they come to this world that they need to try to fix for themselves.

Sarah: Yes, okay, thank you.

Ben: Can I just ask as well, there is one aspect that I always struggle with a little bit, which is, my understanding is we all come to the Earth to live our chosen experience and to learn, develop and grow, and my understanding is that we get to a point where we've evolved, such that we don't necessarily need to come back to the Earth again to have further experiences. So, therefore won't there come a point where all of those in Spirit at the moment and all of those on Earth as we are now, will evolve to point where we don't need to come back and will that then be the end of the Earth as we know it? What is the end?

I understand your question, my dear friend. You will never know the end of evolvement. (Okay) We are speaking deep matters here, and something that I would not discuss, because you would not understand. What happens when you come here, you come to learn, yes? (Agreed) Some people do learn, some do not and return to Spirit, shall we say, 'empty handed'. When you speak of returning, that decision is made by the Soul itself, it is never pressurized into doing what it does not want to do, because when first you come back Home, and I call it 'Home' because that is your true spiritual Home; when you come Home, that choice belongs to you. But what seems appropriate to me is that first the Soul or the Spirit has to find themselves, before any major consideration of returning to Earth is made. It is not automatic, and you can remain in any stage of evolution, and it is slightly different from the evolution of the worlds and the stars and the planets, it is not the same thing, it is a growth of Spirit.

Ben: But normally, with a development or a growth, there's always an 'end goal' or an achievement, isn't there—we're used to passing exams...

There is a moving on, yes, it is a moving on from one level of, we call it 'Spirit' only for the use and understanding of the word. But yes, if you have felt that you've attained the level that you wanted to on Earth, then of course you can move forward; if you move forward you do not come back. (Okay) You seem confused.

Ben: I think you were right when you said that I wouldn't necessarily understand in my human mind.

No—let us go to the beginning, when you have lived a life on Earth, and if I speak of the people within this room now, you have all lived in a past time, not once but many times. So, people want to know how long do you have to do this, before you can move on. That is entirely up to the Soul. You may stay on one level—let us assume that you have just passed—you would wish to stay behind to greet others, would you not, if you are a group Soul? (Agreed) Whether it be children or family, whoever you've had connection to. So that decision belongs to the Spirit or the Soul. But when you reach the point where there is no need or you cannot learn any more from that experience, you can move on—I mean move forward; and then you become lighter as a being—you become lighter and lighter and eventually, you will be united into that Group Soul, in the same way that animals do, but very much sooner than you would do.

Ben: So, will there ever be a time when everybody's reached that point?

Not altogether, no; there may be the destruction or the withering of the planet Earth, but that does not stop us being 'at Home'.

Ben: Okay, thank you.

Does that help you?

Ben: I think it does, yes, thank you.

If you are not sure, please speak now and I will try to clarify it for you.

Ben: I think the struggle for me is just to accept the infinite of everything really.

Yes, I believe if you spoke to each one here individually, they would not be able to explain eternity. It's a complicated thing to understand.

Serena: If we take 'time' out of it and just look at things that we do as experiences, (Yes) it's our choice to just keep experiencing, but not necessarily thinking I will grow if I do that; it might just be, 'Oh, I wonder what it would be like if...'

Yes, but you have to have reached a point, a degree of Love within yourself, to become that lighter being and to move forward. You may not necessarily see it as you say, as an 'opportunity' shall I say, it will happen naturally.

Ben: So, can some Soul's then take a step backwards as well, because we've spoken about Hitler before in the past, and that he still is in a self-imposed darkness, because of what he did?

Yes, and he is the one who remains in that state until he is ready to recognise what has happened in the life that he has led.

Ben: So, when you talk about getting lighter, is it possible to get heavier, or darker?

No, you would not get darker once you are in the Spirit realm; but what happens in the Spirit realm, if you have committed, shall we call them 'crimes', for your understanding, if he had committed so many crimes, he could not become worse, and he has to recognise then what he has done and how many people have been affected by him. When he is ready for that there are beings ready to help him, but he has to take that first step. So, what people on Earth call 'hell', is in fact the hell of their own thinking.

Ben: Somebody suggested to me once that he may have chosen in Spirit, the role of Hitler on Earth, to create opportunities for other forms of growth for other Spirits in their experiences on Earth. So, for example, he would have created an opportunity for people to have been persecuted and to experience what that's like as part of their growth...

That would never happen. (No, okay.) I will tell you now, that way of thinking would never happen in Spirit. He would remain in his own darkness, until he was ready to be forgiven by all of those who have been harmed. You have to be careful when you speak about what people do for their own benefit, or for the other's benefit; when you come to Spirit, you are responsible for yourself, in the same way as you are responsible here on Earth. You cannot change that; and not everyone was born to come and be 'evil'; and let me tell you, I don't like the word 'evil', but for the understanding of human beings, that is the best word to use. We know and understand in higher realms, that you have to understand yourself very well first, before you can become the person that you should be.

Sarah: You have said to us in the past about people who do 'bad' things, or what we consider to be bad things here on Earth, as being misguided, (Yes) maybe that's how they have become the way they are, these, as you say, 'evil' people, they're just misguided, they've gone down the wrong path and listened to the wrong people.

Yes, of course, that is what happens quite a lot in your world, that people...you all have choices, you all have your own thinking, your freewill; it is up to you whether you take the pathway for good or the pathway for not-so-good. No-one forces you and whilst you are living as a human being, that is your responsibility. But certainly there is a period of time, when you first return home to Spirit, where you can see what has happened in your lifetime, almost like people have described it, like watching a film—you will find everything and you will know instantly whether that was good or bad move. You cannot deny when you are in Spirit, what has happened in your life.

Now, has that helped you? The only other thing I will say to the gentleman please, when you are speaking of Hitler, was that he would be in a place with like-minded people, so there would be no reason for him to try to encourage them otherwise, because they are all in the same darkness with their thoughts.

Ben: So, where he is now, they are together?

You will all...this applies to each and every one of you, you will be drawn to where you belong, with like-minded people, with those Spirits or Angels, or whatever, whatever help is needed, that is where you will be. And yes, that is where the word 'hell' has come from, it is not 'hell' as it has been described, but it is an understanding of dark thoughts. And they would not be allowed to be in contact with say someone who has led an ordinary life or a good life, shall we say.

Ben: So, if there's a concentration of darkness when they're all together, how do they get out of that, because is there any influence on them to consider what they've done?

They are influenced all the time, there are 'Angels' I call them, Angels in that world who are trying to help them all the time. The offer is there for them to change, but again it is their freewill, whether they accept or not. Once they have accepted what they have done, they then move forward into, you have heard it so often, 'move into the light'. That is virtually what it is, it is moving on from 'not so good' to 'better'; there are stages of understanding. Does that help you?

Ben: Mm, thank you.

Paul: That's one of the big differences I suppose between Spirit realm and the Earth, where we come up against a real mixture of people, whereas in Spirit like-attracts-like, sort of thing—people of similar minds. Yes, it could not be any other way, it has to be, and let me say when we have been speaking of evil thoughts and all of that, most people who return home to Spirit are good and decent people, but as you know in your world now, there are always those who wish to do harm to others, and we know from teachings of teachers, that you do not harm one person ever, it is not acceptable.

Mark: Because the problem we have here is, when we put the sort of 'naughty, bad people' all together in prison, we don't really give them much opportunity to grow in there, I don't think we do enough to help them (Yes) to change, to influence them for good really.

Yes, but as long there are people who are trying to influence, that again is up to the individual person, whether they accept it or not. You can try to help someone, but if they are not ready for that knowledge there is nothing you can do, but you have done your best to try to help them with good thoughts. Do you understand? (Yes.) It's not an easy subject and people always think why this or why that.

Di: It's not easy to send loving thoughts to those people who do all these bad things.

Yes, we understand this too, because you are human, but that is why I've said to you, you must love yourselves first, and when you love yourself you have no thoughts of—what is the word I'm looking for, you do not wish to be doing anything that is not right.

Di: That's right, so you don't want to think bad things about the bad people, you want to send good thoughts to them as well.

Yes, but we understand, we understand in Spirit that all of these things are not easy.

Sabine: How does it happen when somebody's sort of having bad thoughts or thoughts about something they do not really want to happen, like an accident or something like that, and by thinking it so much, they're actually creating the action; so somebody is going to take the action in order to hurt them; (Yes) but then that person probably wouldn't have done it if it wasn't 'called', or I'm not quite sure how that works out?

But that is, again I repeat myself when I say, it is up to the individual with the separate thoughts to understand himself.

Sabine: Yeah, the one that 'called it', has to change his/her thought patterns. (Yes) But then the one that created the action, in order to go in harmony with what was being put there, the negative activity—for example, somebody is afraid of having an accident and then being so afraid of it actually had created one and somebody crashed into them...

Yes, there always will be these problems on the Earth, because again, we get to some deep, deep studies, when we are thinking about what people are thinking and what they are doing. As it stands, I feel that everyone should be responsible for their own thoughts, whether they are the right or wronged ones, they are still responsible for whatever is happening in their lives. You can create, and I have said it many times, your thoughts can create itself and cause things to happen, but that makes you responsible for the action.

Sabine: Right, even for the other one that didn't mean to (Yes) but happened to be there.

Yes, it is a complicated subject and perhaps one we can talk about another time, but I feel for this time we have spoken enough.

Sara: These incidents do create learning, don't they? On different levels in different ways, people think about what's happened and then sometimes ask questions on a deeper level about why it happened; so, I can see it all creates learning, doesn't it, (Yes) all of our incidents that we have.

It's very difficult for the human mind, the brain, to understand some of the things we are saying to you, but what I wish to leave you with, my dear friends, is start to become more aware of yourselves, what you are as a human being and what you are as a spiritual being, and only when the 2 are aligned, will there be peace and harmony with you. That is the basis of living, that is where you learn your lessons, when your knowledge of yourself is so deep and so good.

I hope you understood my words, because I know it is difficult to take in at times and makes you wonder, but in that wonderment, you will find the Truth and that is what I've always wished and try to do with you.

General thanks

Sara: Thank you so much, it was really very, very interesting.

Graham: Lots to think about.

Paul: More food for thought.

Sabine: Rereading, relistening and let it all sink in.

You can only do your best; if you feel an action is done with a good heart, then it cannot be far away from the truth. So, as I take my leave, I am so pleased to have joined with you again, my dear friends and until we meet next time, I leave you all cloaked in my Love and understanding of Truth and I hope that you leave this place this evening feeling a little more uplifted.

Love and thanks

Notes:

Book about sleep referred to by Mark: 'Why We Sleep: Unlocking the Power of Sleep and Dreams'. by Matthew Walker. The book explores sleep, explaining how we can harness its transformative power. Margaret Thatcher famously got by on 4 hours sleep, but this book suggests that this is unhealthy in many ways.

Sara's question on the Rainbow body: This Tibetan technique connects with a question George asked on 29/01/1996:

George: It has been documented in Sanskrit writings, that certain Holy men are sufficiently in tune with their spirit-selves, to know their time of departure from this life, and can actually use spontaneous combustion, through a method of contemplating the solar plexus and they will use it as a method of disposing of their body at the appropriate time of death. I'm not sure if this is a particularly useful thing to do, would you have any comment on that for us and could you say if those writings are correct?

Yes, my friend I will speak. I did tell you when we spoke upon this matter, that this combustion, this name you have given to this burning, this action is not understood by those of you on this Earth plane as yet. I told you then and I will tell you now, that it is only a change of energies within the body, which makes this happen. When you speak of these men, who I must say have gained such insight and knowledge about themselves, then they would be capable of changing energy patterns within their own bodies. We have spoken briefly I believe, about how these people can leave their physical bodies behind, have we not?

Les: We have indeed.

We have spoken about many things. I have to say to you, I do not think that to leave the physical body in this matter, in this manner, is very good or wise. I do understand the reason why they do it—they think they are sacrificing themselves, that they can leave the physical being more quickly and more neatly, by reducing it to ash, because you see, in ash they see purity. You understand?

Les: Yes, the purification of the fire.

Yes, yes, but I would not totally agree with them, but I do understand why. Providing they do not hurt others with their ideas, then it cannot be wrong for them.

Levels in Spirit realm: Salumet has spoken about this previously: 19/02/2001

You know that when you leave these physical bodies, when you come to our side of life, you will gravitate to that plane of existence which is suited to you spiritually. It will belong to the vibration from which you come that you will go to it.

22/01/2007:

...when you come to our world, you will automatically gravitate to how you have lived your lives and what you bring with you. And, much as I dislike saying it to you, there are many who come to our world bathed in darkness. Until such time as they recognize within that they no longer wish to be that way, only then can the Love which we give to them in our world be felt...

Salumet has also explained previously that there is no 'Hell': 15/07/2013

I am here to tell him: there is no such thing as 'hell', in the sense that he recognises it. No one person remains separated from the Love of that Great Spirit for all time. Everyone who passes into Spirit is cared for and loved—even those who have wronged themselves in any lifetime, are never forgotten...No one punishes you except yourself.

SALUMET – 23rd August 2021

After healing prayers, Cho spoke very briefly:

Hello!

All: Hello Cho!

I not stay long. Just to wish the others welcome back.

General thanks

Paul: Yes, it's lovely to have a much fuller house this time.

Yes. I know you await many answers, but your dear friend will be with you soon. So, ciao!

All: Ciao Cho.

Salumet then began—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11562775/2021_08_23+Salumet.mp3

Graham: Good evening Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Before we begin, I wish, my dear friends, a blessing of Love and upliftment. We all know of the unhappiness and stress suffered by many; I say to you, my dear friends, that there is Light, but of course, there is also so much darkness at this moment. So, 'why', is the question that so many of you have been giving out to us in Spirit—'why are so many negatives happening in our world?' Would you agree, that is one of your questions?

Agreed

Firstly, I wish you to remember that the planet Earth has existed for a long time, a long time in your way of thinking, but in fact, all things move much more quickly from our side of life. The planet has been through many troublesome eras, where many people have passed to Spirit, have gone from so many incidents of illness, and within the animal kingdoms also. You know my dear friends, we have spoken of the extinction of some animals over time. (Yes) This also applies to the people of the planet. So, a lot of it is how we may view it, something that happens, I cannot say on a regular basis, because that implies that it is for NOW, and it is not; it has happened for eons of time—not only the Earth planet, but all other universes. I have told you, my dear friends that you are not a single unit, without these beautiful universes—and they are beautiful. And I know you probably will think: 'But why so much, why so soon and why does it need to happen?' Of course, evolution has to continue, whether you agree with it or not, and I would like you all, my dear friends, to consider that the Earth has gone through many changes and is still going through many changes. Many people have died in your world, as in all of the others. At this moment in time, my dear friends, I can say to you, this is another of those times—the era of people not understanding what is happening. We will halt for a moment and allow you some questions.

Pause

No questions?

Nevertheless, I know it is difficult to intake all of the facts and the figures life brings to you. But let me reassure you, my dear friends, there will be a betterment of judgement amongst the leaders of your world. All of these, what you call, 'dreadful things', will alter, will change, will make mankind who are on the planet at this moment, stop to think.

Paul: And that's the main thing—if it helps people become less materialistic and take time to consider why we are here, then we can understand that.

Yes, you will never fully understand what is happening, because of the outcomes of many things. It has changed your outlook on life. Some people have become more negative as time continues, whilst others can see new beginnings. I would wish you to hold that in your minds: New beginnings.

Di: Will our leaders, a lot of whom have been in denial for the last 2-3 years, probably longer, especially with these troubles, will something help them?

It will subside, yes of course. It may be quite a few years before this happens, but in that time, you individuals of goodness and kindness will come forward, not only on Earth, but in the many Universes.

(Salumet's voice falters briefly, like an interruption to the energy flow)

I need to have one moment please.

Paul: Yes of course.

There are irregularities in all of the universes. I believe we touched on the subject when last we met.

(Agreed) Yes, I want you to understand, you are not just one unit, you are a whole universe, who is being guided by many people; but the outer universes also are struggling to cope. It may not be in the same way, but it is true that it has caused much confusion.

Paul: Well, it's even more important that we follow our hearts, as Cho said last time, and keep bright Spirits.

Yes. There are people alive on your earth planet this moment, who will bring knowledge when the time is right, and I do say, my dear friend, that time is not quite here. But I do want you to feel uplifted and hopeful for the future. Remember the words, 'New Beginnings'; those words should uplift and hold you tightly.

Paul: So this is more of a pivotal time than some of the other so-called 'catastrophes' (Yes) that we've had over the last few decades?

It is, but you will succeed in the end. Spirit are working 'tirelessly' I might say, as are all the beings upon the planet, who can change many things, many, many things. You have to believe in those people, as well as the new generations of beings coming forward into the world.

Sarah: When you said, 'in the future', are we talking about those millennium children, who will be coming of age and able to help us?

Yes, you are speaking about those children and they are the fore-runners of more to come, not only children, but being able to change energy. Each individual will find—again I use 'New beginnings'. It is important to keep these words in mind. But yes, the millennium children have come into their own at this time. Try to, my dear friends, as you go through each day, to realise how much goodness there is still in this world. To know that you are not alone, to know that we in Spirit are still working to help each and every one of you.

Sabine: We can also feel some people are spiritually awakening, (Yes) and it's nice to see more and more of us sending Love to the planet and the cosmos.

Yes, you must extend your Love a little further. They too, other universes, have help available to them also, but imagine it only as a shake up for your world.

Paul: Yes, it's all done with Love.

All the help you have would surprise you and the fact that so many people have goodness of the Creator within them. It may not always be showing at the moment, but I assure you, my dear friends, it is all about and surrounds you, surrounds you at every minute of every day. So, I say to you, try not to be too concerned, but to give out Love and Unity and Knowledge, whatever you possess, make sure that it is relayed to others in the world, whether it be by prayer, or understanding, or the spoken word.

Paul: It's sort of trying to do all the things you've been telling us to do (Yes.) for a long time.

And when people do not listen, this is the outcome of the world rebelling. But it is part of evolution, be in no doubt about that, and you cannot stop that.

Paul: And you mentioned the animals being caught up in it as well?

Yes, animals that have become extinct, like the dinosaurs of the world. (Oh I see.) People should look to what has happened on this Earth before; it has never always been clear, but I say to you, each era brings something different—new knowledge, new understanding and that my dear friends is what you have to do: GAIN NEW UNDERSTANDING.

Paul: So this is, as you say, new shoots, it's the birth of a new Era.

It is New Beginnings. And I know many people will say to you, 'but why'? Don't be worried by 'why', just give out Love, it is the strongest gift that you have. And we in Spirit know the power of the Love that you send; not only you, but other groups around the world and in the universes. Do we have any questions?

Graham: I think that a lot of people through all that has been happening are realising more and more, how much we are all connected and what happens in one country affects everybody else, (Yes.) that understanding is now becoming much stronger and widespread, and we are so interconnected not only with each other, but with the planet as a whole and with animals and plants and I think that is perhaps part of this new beginning.

Yes, you are after all, all part of the Great Creator, you cannot have one piece separated from the other.

You have to see that unity that you have described. (Yes.) Yes, it is powerful my dear friends, powerful.

But people have to realise how to use it all for the good, and lots of people will come through these situations, thinking more of the Love for their fellow Man, and I know that is difficult to understand, but it is the Truth.

Mark: I was listening to a women on the radio, she's an Afghan women living in the UK at the moment, and she was saying that she's going to fly to Afghanistan in the next week or two and campaign for women's rights out there, and I thought, what a powerful thing to do! To completely buck the trend of people trying to escape in terror and go and face the challenge head on; and it's almost like our culture has had to go through this evolution of struggling and fighting for a cause before they do evolve.

Yes, your words are clear and yes, it is true that it is much of a struggle for most of the people, but like I said earlier in our talk, there are so many people waiting, who are good, who can rebuild, who can help others to understand, and yes, you are right, it is a powerful thing to do for a single human being. That single human being needs it all to grow, grow in knowledge and grow in strength. (Yeah.) Yes.

Graham: There's been a lot of controversy about vaccines and a lot people are saying that we can't be vaccinating ourselves forever, but somehow we are going to have to find our way through. Is there anything you can say about that?

You have had vaccines for quite some time (Yes.) and I say, if it is meant to be, then Spirit will 'back you up', I think you would say. (Right.) Yes, and it has saved many lives, but again that has been part of the evolutionary move of your world. (Yes.) And remember, when people are fearful of doctors and medical people, that they come from Spirit also. Spirit urge these medical people to do the very best they can in the name of Love. And I say to you, do not forget your free will, you must always keep your free will, it may not agree with your neighbour, but who is your neighbour to doubt you or themselves, but only to judge for themselves what is standing before them.

Sara: Yes, I think it's been an opportunity to respect one another's decisions.

You cannot respect yourself, you cannot respect yourself if you do not respect others first.

Agreed

It is no mean feat, I think, to look at yourselves so clearly, that you can see all of the faults of the human being, to feel the Love of the Creator, in every moment of every day, helping, impressing other people.

You understand?

Agreed (Yes)

Natalie: When you say about different universes, and everything is effected elsewhere, (Yes) is it a case of what we've been going through here, is planet Earth rebalancing itself and its energy through this virus?

Yes, you said that very well. Of course you have to have unity at some point, and sometimes all of these things happen and you have to give the world a little shake, (Agreed) yes, and you have to allow people to develop the thought for themselves. Would it not be so easy to step in as Spirit and say, stop all these things happening? Where would it bring us too?

Sabine: We wouldn't learn. (Yes.)

Sarah: Though I do think, going back to the vaccine, that some of the decisions are made out of fear—fear of the unknown of whether the vaccine is going to work...

Yes, but that is their entitlement to be fearful, if that is what they feel. It is better to express what you FEEL, than to try to find, not excuses, but to try to find reasoning for all of the happenings that have taken place. Yes, do you understand? No?

Sarah: Yes, I think I do understand, yes, thank you.

Sara: Yes, you mean to make your own choice, it's better to (Yes) follow your own heart.

It is better to make your choice, because then who is responsible?

Sara: Exactly, yes, we learn.

You learn as you go along, as you grow, as your understanding grows. If you are not ready for accepting something, then deny it.

Sara: It's the same with parenting, you have to stand back and allow them to make their choices, (Yes) and sometimes it's quite painful for parents, but you still have to stand back and let them make their choices, from which they learn.

But always remember that you are only keepers of children as they grow. There comes a time when you say, 'I have shown you all I can, now you must learn.'

Agreed

Sara: Yes, you can guide if they will be guided, you can suggest things, and that's right, they then make their choice.

I would say to you all, be grateful that you have this thing called MIND; I have not used it for a while, but your mind is your most powerful thing, because it belongs to Spirit. Other thoughts are left behind on Earth that you have used perhaps throughout a lifetime, but when it comes to knowing yourself, you have to be free and given that choice. Do you understand?

Agreed

You sound doubtful, but that is OK, because that is also a learning path—to not understand and then to find the answers.

Paul: Yeah, I think there are lots of choices presented and we have to be responsible for our decisions.

Each individual knows what is right for them, whether you agree with that sentiment or not, it is true.

Each and every one of you in this room deep down know what is right for them, and we in Spirit do our utmost to guide you through the time that you spend here on this planet.

Sabine: We are very grateful for that.

Thank you. Now, I hope I have helped to make things a little clearer and perhaps it is not what you wanted to hear, but I say to you my dear friends, I bring to you all the Love that you have shown to others and that one tiny thought, grows, grows and expands until all recognise what they are doing. So I say to you this time, I am so pleased to join with you, and we will continue to dissect this place called Earth.

Knowing chuckles and thanks.

Di: Thank you for the positivity for the New Beginning. (Agreed) It's very difficult to be positive.

I know and that is why I have said it a few times through this meeting; remember it, it is worth remembering.

Agreed

Paul: All your words are worth remembering Salumet, thank you.

And I am so pleased to join with you again. (Agreed) I hope your hearts are singing.

Sabine: Yes they are! (Agreed)

Paul: To say we've missed you, doesn't justify it at all...

But it is only because you have not been with me, I have been with you most of the time.

Sabine: Yes, I could feel it at times. (Agreed) Yes.

Paul: It's certainly interesting to see the way all the different countries around the world are dealing with it slightly differently. (Yes) It's definitely a learning experience for this planet.

And for the leaders that you choose. Of course you must learn to choose wisely and that is not always possible.

Paul: We're working on that one!

Good!

Sarah: It's not always possible to choose the leader of some countries, some leaders choose themselves.

(Yes) The people don't have a word to say about it.

Yes, no-one ever said that it wasn't complex this world—it is at times, but just stop and think how it has grown in Love and respect for others—because it has happened. All is not doom and gloom, and the moment you think that way, then that gives it the power to grow also. That's why it's important to keep that Love and let it grow and grow and grow, and give out your Love to the other universes.

Paul: Yes, we must remember that, because we are really responsible, we will literally create the doom and gloom around us, (Yes) if that's what we're putting out. So we mustn't...

It has been so for some time and as I said, it will continue, but only to find the ending is pretty good!

Paul: I know the ending is fantastic, in Spirit, but even on the Earth, it has its moments, even with Covid, there's been wonderful times.

It's only one virus of many, many, many. They do have devastating effects, you would like to think, but from my way of thinking, it is only another lesson to be learned.

Agreed

Graham: Yes, that makes sense.

Yes, so take responsibility each one of you, for yourselves and then you can move forward to help others.

Sabine: Yes—and for our thoughts.

Remember that even just a smile to another lonely unhappy person, is giving you the strength to grow.

Agreed

Now my dear friends, I must leave you and until we come together again, I say thank you.

General thanks

Paul's summary:

So, this virus connects with planetary evolution, guiding us towards a new era, via this 'little shake' of the world, and it is part of a bigger picture, involving multiple universes.

The changes on Earth, with the help of the waves of Love from Spirit and the millennium children etc. will be far-reaching—socio-political-environmental and most of all Spiritual, and in time, we will be able to recognise and celebrate these NEW BEGINNINGS.

SALUMET – 25th October 2021

After healing prayers, Cho spoke very briefly, asking us to lower the light a little, for the benefit of our expected guest. Salumet then followed: (There was unexpected interference with both recorders this time—perhaps the energy within the room was different—both versions included) Audio link 1 (some sound distortion)

Paul: Welcome Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

My heart is gladdened to be with you once more.

Paul: We feel very glad as well, our hearts are full to have you here—thank you.

So much is happening in your world at this time; (Agreed) so many are unhappy and confused. I wish to say to you, my dear friends, do not be downcast in your outlook; we in Spirit are working to make sure that all of what's light, is bright. You have to, my dear friends, allow yourselves time and understanding, to be able to at least try to understand what is happening. I will say to you that this is not a quick happening, you must be patient for some time, but eventually life will be much better for you. Yes, but remember our differences in Time, when I say something will be longer than usual, you'll understand that our Time is entirely different to yours. (Agreed) I wish you, my dear friends, to try to understand that whatever happens, is just part of a bigger cause. You would not perhaps understand that your life on earth, could be so interconnected with so many other planets, so many other galaxies, and I say to you at this time, at this time, all is confusion for you. Allow your minds to rest sometimes and perhaps a little understanding will come to you. You will never fully understand what is happening with these viruses and illnesses, but I can say to you, the worlds will turn out to be a better place—no matter how long it has to wait, it will happen.

So much is going on with the planets in this universe, it is almost like it is in a jar of ice and is being rattled and rattled and rattled, until you wonder where you are. But remember that Spirit are here to help you, Spirit will always come close to you; so please, my dear friends, remember this.

If you have any questions for me this time, then I am happy to try to elaborate for you a little.

Sarah: I've just been thinking about, well really Covid made me think a little bit more, but you said to us, I can't remember how long ago it was, that in 5 years, we would be able to deal with all known diseases, and I'm just wondering if we're on course, if we're getting there?

Yes, thank you for that question. Yes, I did use those words, and if you look towards your newspapers and your machines who bring you news, you will see already great strides have taken place in the medical world. You have to look to find what is happening, but I assure you, here and now, that 'medicine' as you call it, is taking great steps, great steps forward for mankind to try to understand. But yes, many of these medical happenings are quite amazing by earthly standards, so keep this in mind. (Thank you.) I hope that helps you a little.

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

I also wish to say to you, remember that earthly man has lived with all of these conditions for thousands of years; and yes they are disruptive, but eventually, settle down, to allow mankind to understand fully what is happening around them. Remember, my dear friends that you are a very young planet, and you have many questions still, but I say to you, do not be afraid, because fear, as I have told you often, allows negative thoughts to come in and create havoc sometimes. So, try to be positive, speak of your fears, try to understand what is happening around you, and as always, in times gone by, there have been what you call 'disasters'—we in Spirit, do not look upon these things as disasters, we look upon these things as moving forward. And I know they are harsh words for you to take, but it is true.

Paul: Because as well, even if it results in some people 'dying', as we call it, that's returning Home, to a place, better in so many ways than the Earth.

Yes, but you must believe that things can change for what you would call, 'the better'. (Agreed)

And yes, many people have passed to Spirit, but this has happened throughout the whole existence of your planet. You may not know of them, or you may not want to know, but I say, do not be afraid for the ones who have gone, because of course, they are going to a place of Love and security.

Paul: Yes, and you've given us so much hope anyway; you've mentioned the children (21/01/2019—children of peace) that would be born and presumably, many of them are already young babies now, physically on the Earth and you've mentioned that at some point we're going to get a better form of energy from the oceans, (Yes) so we've got lots of things to come.

Yes, it is fear that keeps you bound, fear of everyday life, fear of people, what you call 'dying', when really you should feel joyous for them, (Yes) because they are in a better place.

Di: I think we feel the anguish, because of the way that some people live on this earth, rather than the way that they die.

Yes, there always has been positive and negative happenings, whether it be from individuals or groups, it matters not, but yes, there is so much fear, and it is understandable, we fully understand the great concern that you have.

Di: It's hard to see why some people suffer on this earth.

Yes, but try to think of it as that suffering as a positive for them, that when they reach Spirit, they will be FREE of all of these things. It is not easy for you and we understand this fully, but please try.

Paul: Is there anything you can say, it may be beyond us, but you mentioned this real connection with other planets.

Yes, many...

Paul: Many other planets...there's obviously on some level interaction going on between our planet and the others. (yes) Is it possible for you to convey anything that we might be able to understand?

I see your question, but it would not be of great benefit to try to dissect what is happening in the other planets; and remember, they are more advanced sometimes than you on earth are, so their understanding is different.

Paul: Are they sending Love to us?

At this particular moment, each planet is deal with this, let's call it 'an upset in everyday living'.

Paul: Right, so they also are struggling on some level.

Yes, it is not a one-planet happening, it is a connected planet that is dealing with all of these problems.

Paul: Not necessarily a virus, it could be something else?

The virus exists, it is life after all—don't forget this; human beings are not the only units of life that exist. You understand?

Paul: Yes, the virus has every right to exist like we have.

Yes, they are part of this planet, yes.

Mark: It's taught us a lot, having the virus, and a lot of people are hoping that good changes will be brought about from the lessons of the virus.

Yes, it already has given you lessons to dissect and live up to. How much Love has been shown to those who have been ill? This would not have happened before the virus was making itself known. These conditions have given you as human beings the opportunity to grow and to thrive. And when things settle, which they will, you will in some strange way be happy and content that you have survived these conditions.

Graham: We are learning that we are very connected and that what happens in one country is important in every other country, (Yes) and I think this connectedness is getting better understood than it was in the past that we are all in one place.

And you are all connected to other planets in the same way. (Yes) If you take the wider picture, it is not just the Earth planet, but all the other planets which are part of this universe, yes.

Mark: Part of it seems to be a lesson about, we've been destroying the planet; (Yes) the systems that work on our planet have gone out of control really and the individual doesn't really have enough power—well it doesn't feel as if he has enough power to make a difference.

All of these what you would term 'problems', are actually opportunities to grow, opportunities for mankind to come together, to live together and look at each other in a more harmonious way.

Graham: There's a lot of pressure at the moment on world leaders to help tackle the problem of climate change. (Yes) There's a big meeting coming up in Scotland and a lot of hope is being set on this, that countries will do good pledges and stand by them. (Yes) In a way the risks are very great at the moment, because scientists are saying that if there is a significant rise in temperatures, which they are predicting, it'll affect everything so deeply.

It will, and earthlings have been warned for many, many years of your time. (Yes) Now is the opportunity being given to all of you to do your part. And it isn't just our leaders or scientists or all of these different peoples, it is you as individuals have the responsibility to do the best you can for this planet. (Agreed) But you have to have positive, positive thinking at all times, and this is the problem at the moment, that so many people feel that there is no way out, and that is not true.

Graham: It's certainly making us think on a personal level, because we are so wasteful in this country and then there are other countries where people are so desperate for food and resources.

Yes, you should always look for the balance in life, if you do that you will not go far wrong. But then, once you have adapted the way of thinking that is correct, you have to then look to others close by and it becomes like a chain of people joining together for good.

Paul: Yes, it needs to build up momentum and people gathering together can then make... one thought could become like a domino effect, or something. (Yes) It can gradually change the world.

The world can change for good, that is sure, yes, there is no doubt about that, but you have to Love one another, you have to accept that you are not a single unit, but like you have just said, like a chain-effect, that ripples through everything and everybody.

Paul: One idea, as we say, if it 'goes viral', it spreads on the internet like a virus (Yes) in a good way—not that viruses are not good, if they help to change, then it's all good.

Yes, be aware that viruses have probably been on this planet before you people as human beings. And in that respect, they need to be respected for that alone.

Paul: Are they evolving?

Of course, every living thing is evolving, more so at the moment because of the contrast in the way that we all live, not only on Earth but elsewhere. So don't feel my friends that you are the only ones who have difficult times ahead, because as you know, Spirit does not view these times as 'not good', but they are good, because as you have said, all things teach, and there is much to come, in the many of your years that are to come.

Di: We should look at the viruses, the way they change and adapt to survive, (Yes) and that's a good example really—they were here before us and they're still here.

Yes, they are happy to give the information which it already has done, to many scientists and people who can use the knowledge. So, I would say to you all, my dear friends, give thanks to those viruses.

(Agreed)

Mark: They're helping to keep us in balance. (They are.) So, would it be the case, if a planet is out of balance, like we have become—we've been destroying the planet, that presumably affects the other planets and the solar system and it has to be corrected.

Yes, and each planet will do the work that another needs, to bring back balance. Yes. So, again, I return to: be positive, not negative and give thanks for the knowledge that you have.

Paul: Keep sending out Love where we feel it's needed.

Yes, if you look at each other, you will find that you're all in agreement about this world and what is needed to be done. You are in a strange way united, and that is something to respect.

Paul: We shouldn't kind of judge these people that are, unfortunately, sort of being destructive with what they do, we just send them Love, like you would a naughty child or something?

You send Love to everyone, not only those close to you, but to the wider picture of the planets. Yes, you must extend that feeling of Love to everyone, yes. Have I helped you a little my friends?

Agreed/thanks

Paul: And there's no point in giving any kind of time scale, because, I guess the virus situation will take as long as it needs to?

Yes, and you do not wish to compete with the viruses, the scientists are working and they will do all that they can, and the part that each of you play is already known to you, whether you know it or not—you know instinctively what has to be done, but the fear holds you back. Do you understand?

All: Yes.

Well, my friends, I think for this time, we will say thank you, thank you and be grateful for all that is good in this world and in others. We will speak again on other things, but for this time, I feel you have had enough to be thinking upon.

All: Thank you.

Paul: As always, our Love goes with you.

Yes, I leave you with all my Love and a little knowledge.

All: Thank you.

Notes:

Sarah's question made reference to something Salumet had spoken about previously:

25/11/2013:

...in the medical world there will be great advances; advances as yet, as I have said, not known to you. But within the next five years of your Earthly time, they will be forthcoming and disease as you know of it now, can be obliterated.

Salumet has also emphasised previously that we are living on a young planet:

22/08/1994:

Earth is a very, very young planet, as far as spiritual growth goes.

And finally, a quick recap of some of Salumet's words this time:

...allow yourselves time and understanding, to be able to at least try to understand what is happening.

... Spirit are here to help you, Spirit will always come close to you;

...give thanks to those viruses.

...be positive, not negative and give thanks for the knowledge that you have.

The world can change for good, that is sure, yes, there is no doubt about that, but you have to Love one another, you have to accept that you are not a single unit, but like you have just said, like a chain-effect, that ripples through everything and everybody...

SALUMET – 13th December 2021

After healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11711418/2021_12_13+sal.mp3

Sabine: Good evening Salumet.

Paul: Yes, a very warm welcome to you.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Our hearts are warmed by your presence this time.

Paul: We're very, very pleased to be gathered again.

Your loving, healing thoughts are always welcomed, especially in these times, not only on the Earth, but in other planets. Yes—if I might suggest to you: In your healing moments that you ask for help to transmute the density of energy that surrounds you and every other planet at this moment.

Agreed

The more you ask, the more help we can give.

Paul: We will definitely do that. Does it make it harder for you to come through, when the Earth is like that?

When the density is as it is, so heavy at the moment, yes, it is a case of being a little more difficult, but it would never stop us making contact with you; we would always find a way.

General thanks

Di: We must all remember to ask for help for ourselves as well as for others; we often think to give help for others, but forget to ask for ourselves, don't we?

Yes, if you do not feel the difference yourselves, then of course, it is not that it is useful, but just more difficult. So firstly, my dear friends, you need to realise that you ARE LIGHT BEINGS. Yes, you are, as I have told you in the past, you are the givers of healing and light and we must at this time, work with it and not allow it to overshadow you. The only hopeful message I can give you this evening, is for you to deal with the density and also to up your amount of healing for not only earth beings, but for all planets and kinds of beings.

Agreed

Paul: Yes, we forgot in our healing prayers this evening, but we normally do include the other planets and Universes.

Sara: I send it every day to other Universes, peace and love and love and light to our cosmic brothers.

Yes, it is a lesson that we are all willing to learn: Tolerance, this condition which exists at the moment on your planet, and you know well that it is affecting everyone, but it is also affecting those other planets with whom you have no contact. So, it is imperative that you keep your feeling of Love and Goodness, and most of all hope that good, will overtake what is unnecessary in your lives. Do you understand what I am saying to you?

Agreed

Do any of you wish to question what I am saying? (Pause) No questions?

Paul: I think for me, part of it is, because I understand, I don't think I have a particular fear of 'Death' anymore, thanks to our knowledge about what happens when you die; even though obviously I don't seek it out at all, I want to do as much as I can (yes) while I am alive, but not having the fear of dying, means that all of these things, challenges and everything on the earth, we can't fear them, even if people die, and that's sad, each individual case, but we have to, at the end of the day, it's not so sad, because they're so well looked after and cared for, when we die—there is no death—so it's not really sad at all, just for the ones that are still here and don't fully understand that death is not the end. So, in understanding that, it makes all of our journeys...and anyway, everything is for such a reason of growth—we are all growing through all of this, so there's purpose to everything—GOOD PURPOSE, (yes) so, I think that helps to...
...to be able to encourage other people that death is not the end, that is the purpose of why we come to you as human beings, because you are able, in their own language, to describe to them the beauty of Spirit and let me assure you, my dear friends, that Spirit are working for the best at all times and very much ask that you continue with your healing thoughts, for every decent, good thought that you send out, you can be aware that it spreads as a loving pool and grows and grows. Keep these things in mind, because, because of the situation at the moment, and it is only short-lived in terms of existence—try to focus on that and let others see how well you cope with it all.

Di: There's a lot of very fearful people around at the moment Salumet, (Yes) so if we're not fearful ourselves, I think they find that a comfort, (yes) especially when we say that where we go after this world, is such a lovely experience. I think people do find it a comfort when they're more fearful of dying than they normally are.

Yes, definitely, you are beings of example, this we know, those of us who love you, those of us who come from Spirit to help you, to help not only the ordinary human being, but all those beings who have come for a particular task, beings who are filled with so much Love, at some times, their Light is so bright, that you as human beings, would not be equal to them. You understand? (Agreed) There is too much fear at the moment.

Paul: The fear is disproportionate—there shouldn't be fear anyway, but there are things happening on the earth, but the worst thing is the fear and then the density that is created.

Yes, if you could only see that only one of your thoughts can create this power of movement and spreading wider, if only you could direct your thoughts that it is getting smaller rather than bigger, that would be such a good help for all of you to focus upon.

Agreed

Paul: Sometimes I try and direct it towards world leaders, (Yes) or towards media outlets, but perhaps to direct it more generally to the density itself...

Yes, whichever way you decide to use or change or dilute, it is a personal way to deal with it, but just be YOU, allow your LOVE to SHINE THROUGH, because you are beings of LIGHT. And I feel the more you learn and the more you become spiritual beings rather than earthly beings, the better life will become.

Sabine: Yes, and I've been practising that lately in the shop; in morning meditation I've been saying: "Today I let my Spirit come forward". And it's just amazing how the day is so different, (Yes) and it's just so full of light ad so easy to talk to people, so just say the words they needed to hear or to just grab the right medicine they needed to have; (Yes) It's...I would say it's 'magic', it's not, it's the way it should be.

Yes, it should be the way of life, (yes) of course it should be, but it is good that you see it, and don't forget that even people who do not believe in the afterlife, they are impressed by other human beings who know nothing at all; there is just a spark of knowledge, a spark of Light, which awaits everyone.

Sabine: Yes, was thinking of the words you said a few years ago, you were saying that we were 99.9% Spirit and 0.1% human and I found it absolutely amazing that as soon as we are born, other humans make us believe in this 0.1%, and then when you become a bit older, you spend a lot of time trying to move back to the 99.9%, because of the way we've been 'educated' and told how we should live.

But you should not even use percentages, because you truly are 100% Spirit, it is whether you 'expose' that side, if I may use those words, (yes) whether you expose it to allow others to see the beauty and Light that emanates from you.

Yes, I am pleased, my dear friends, to find that each and every one of you here, have the right words to say to others if need be. And remember what is happening amongst all the fear, is that people have come together, have recognised that together much can be done.

Paul: One thing from reading the transcripts over the years, I noticed how often it comes up that you say, you keep your words SIMPLE, and how sometimes you've said people use too many words, (Yes) too complicated, and it strikes me that the more simple you can make something, the clearer it is. There's a quote from Einstein that you can explain anything to a 6 year old; if you can't explain it to a 6 year old, you don't fully understand it yourself. (Yes) So, it's like if you can simplify it, it's the essence of the thing, you have a fuller understanding.

There is only one word in your language which encompasses all, and that is Love. You do not need words, flowery words, to embellish what is a simple truth, all you need is Love; it is not even a word, it is a sense and a feeling.

Sara: And I've found music helpful too, because it's a vibration (Yes) of harmony, joy and beauty (yes) So, I like to use that as well, as a way of uplifting.

Yes, the best way for any of you to grow and expose the spiritual side of you more, is just to find what suits you, like our dear lady is saying, if music is what does it for you, uplifts you, calls on you to listen to wiser voice, voices from Spirit, then that is the way you must go.

Paul: Follow what brings you the most joy and upliftment...

Graham: I find smiling is really powerful, (Yes) because you just feel something extend towards that person and it's amazing the affect it can have. Sometimes people give you a second look, because they couldn't believe the first look, (yes) and then they realise you really are smiling at them and they change!

Everything about them seems to dissolve and melt into a loving energy as well—it's wonderful to see it!

Well, that is why it is good to recognise these things, because what you are doing is loving that person, even though you do not really know them, but you have brightened their day and that is something to be proud of. (Agreed) Not that I am encouraging you to be proud, but you understand my words.

Graham: Their reaction is your reward.

Yes it is.

Have you any more questions?

Martin: I was wondering if you have any advice for when we feel run down in our bodies and it's difficult to feel positive. Obviously we have awareness generally that we should be positive, but occasionally we get ill, for example, then you sometimes find it really hard to feel good, and I wondered if you have any tips on what we could do in our heads at that time, to help with our own healing to feel better?

Perhaps you can realise that we are always waiting to help whoever is in need. I would say to you, my dear friend, in your hours of prayer, if that is what you wish to call it, in hours of connection, then ask to have the knowledge to heal yourself. You have wonderful people who have come to the earth to teach you about medicine, about Love, about so many aspects of living; I would say for you, to have a little, I believe what you call a Mantra, and ask Spirit to help you in the best way, or in the way that is best for you. (Thank you) I hope that is helpful to you. Do you understand? (Yes)

Well, my dear friends, this is quite a short occasion for us to meet before your festivities begin. I know there are problems with people and their fears, I say to you, concentrate on the Love that surrounds you and as the gentleman has said: Smile! It was given to you for a reason and you can help so many other people.

Now I thank you for joining with me this time, and I want you to know that whenever you need to, you may call upon me to try to help.

(Thanks) I also thank you for inviting along some children and I hope they give you some pleasure and some Light.

General thanks

Paul: And our Love goes with you at this time of year and hopefully the next time you come, we'll have dispersed some of the dark density around.

Well, you have the opportunity to use what you have, to help.

Paul: With the help of all the readers and listeners, (Yes) people will certainly help spread that word out.

Yes, and yes you were correct to talk about simple language, it is so much easier for people to know that things are not difficult, even in the form of words that you use.

So, my dear friends, until we meet again next time, I surround you all with Love and smiles.

I leave my Love with all of you.

Paul: And our Love and smiles ripple out with you.

Thanks and farewells

Notes:

Here's Salumet's earlier words about percentages: (15th November 2010)

If you take all of existence, mankind, as you are upon this planet is basically 99.9% non-material. You, my dear friends, are made from all existence—that Love, that powerful 'being' that is called the universal power. All universes, all beings, everything which exists is made from that energy—that loving energy...

Salumet's words relating to Mantras: (7th November 2016)

Yes, "I am WHOLE", because it is not just the body, it is the mind; so, "I am whole in body, mind and spirit", that is the better way to convey the message; and the more you say those words, the more you feel the strength in the body—the workings of the body, because it is a marvellous contraption that you have been gifted with—I know you would agree with that. So, my dear friends think upon these words and put them to some action.

Salumet has spoken much about what happens when you die and how there is nothing to fear—see link:

<http://www.salumetandfriends.org/death-returning-home/>

And finally, as Salumet said tonight: "All you need is Love", and back in 1967, John Lennon was inspired to write a song using those very words: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RAcwu3JVwdI>

There is a nice story behind the writing of this masterpiece: All you need is Love':

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IwfzqgYaAvc>

And finally, some holiday Home work:

Salumet/Spirit need us in this Healing mission—please share, share, share these direct quotes from this transcript. Thank YOU :-)

In your healing moments, ask for help to transmute the density of energy that surrounds you and every other planet at this moment.

The more you ask, the more help we can give.

...keep your feeling of Love and Goodness, and most of all hope that good, will overtake what is unnecessary in your lives.

If you could only see that only one of your thoughts can create this power of movement and spreading wider, if only you could direct your thoughts that it is getting smaller rather than bigger...

...for every decent, good thought that you send out, you can be aware that it spreads as a loving pool and grows and GROWS...

SALUMET - 24th January 2022

We are usually given the heads up by our gatekeeper Cho, the week before Salumet speaks, but to our delight, Salumet made a surprise visit—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11760958/2022_01_24+Sal.mp3

Paul: Good evening, you're very welcome to speak if you wish to.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is good to join with you once again.

Paul: It's very good to have you back, we weren't expecting you, thank you.

I understand, but I felt it would be of great use to speak with you all now.

Paul: Wonderful, thank you.

I was listening to you speak about illnesses in people and also yourselves. (Yes) I would like you, my dear friends, to remember all of the dear children in this world, after all, they will be the ones who make the future of this planet.

Agreed

I have told you that these children will grow and Spirit will surge at a great pace when they are ready to join the earth planet.

There is so much discontent in your world today and we know from Spirit, that there is much unhappiness and bewilderment amongst the people. I say only a few words to you, my dear friends, and that is to hold on to the knowledge that we in Spirit have tried to bring to you: BELIEVE that ALL GOOD, is the way forward.

It is difficult, we know, to believe that everything will be FINE, but IT WILL BE. No matter how dark your days or years may be, remember that Spirit is always alive. I wish to thank you all for the good work that you do, you all are teaching angels, you are all bringers of Good News and we thank you and hope that you will continue along this pathway.

Paul: I'm sure we will, it's a great honour, I just wish we could get more people to listen. (Chuckles) We've got the websites, we don't know how many people read them, we hope lots are gradually finding their way to them.

Yes, I feel your ingredients must be placed with a little patience also.

Paul: Yes, hopefully we've got plenty of years to continue to spread this wonderful knowledge that you've given us.

Yes, you must be positive about these things, even when all seems dark, no matter how far you go in your world, remember that we are always, always with you.

Paul: I think these dark times, are the times when you really need it the most, (Yes) and you really grow, yes. And absolutely it seems like it's one thing after another, on planet Earth, when one 'catastrophe' finishes, gradually there's talk of other things brewing, and I guess it's going to be like that for a long time, but we just have to, as you say...

You have to FIGHT DOWN FEAR. Remember that fear can be very successful in people who are unsure of themselves, or unsure of what life is about and although it is most worrying for you all, I ask you, my dear friends, that you remain strong and look to the future with LOVE and BRIGHTNESS.

And remember also, it is not just the earthly planet, it is those who surround them, the nearest planets to you.

Paul: I fully accept that and feel it's in ALL of our interests, to understand and project that GOOD. It can be a beautiful future for us. It's a Belief of a Knowing that this goodness is coming; we have to be patient, but it's coming, even if it doesn't happen in our lifetimes, it's still coming!

Yes, yes, try to remember, it is not just one day, one year...

Paul: ...or one lifetime.

...or one lifetime, it is many sometimes—but I had to come this evening, just to let you know that you have our support and our Love.

General thanks

Di: It's not the fear I struggle with so much Salumet, it's the anger I feel when I see people being so cruel and horrible, (Yes) and then I find it difficult to think lovingly about those perpetrators.
But you must bring forward that deep Love, which you have for humanity, and you DO have that Love. Do not allow fear to disrupt the Love you have for others. I do not say it is easy, it is not, but I know and I trust you all to continue within the Love and Light of Spirit.

Agreed

Graham: Salumet, I wonder if I could ask a question? (Yes) At the moment, my wife and I are reading an author called David Hawkin, who's a very influential author in the world at the moment, and he's produced a map of consciousness, which goes from one to a thousand. A thousand would be Jesus and the average level of consciousness on this planet is about two hundred. This scale has been put together by using Kinesiology—the kinesiology approach to all sorts of things which concern our planet at this time. I was wondering if this was a useful tool for mankind at the moment?

I understand. Anything that helps mankind can only be good at this moment in time. Whether the data or the facts are as good as they seem, we will leave it to your attendance in the coming years. But yes, consciousness, how can you measure consciousness, (Yes) when it is able to transmute at will? But, if the gentleman is sure that he is on the right pathway, then I say to him, 'continue'. Anything that brings happiness, or lessens fear, can only be good for the planet. (Yes) You understand?

Graham: He's written about twenty books, he's died now, but his teachings are just so uplifting and they're so in parallel to (Yes) what you've taught, it's wonderful.

Sara: It's very much in line, yes.

Graham: He's talking about Unconditional Love...

...which we all know is to be the one thing that all of you possess, but not all of you use. (Yes) I say the gentleman has written from the heart and that is all I can say about it.

Graham: Yes, he's given people many tools to help raise their consciousness, like on the subject of Unconditional Love, (Yes) he's said that many of us are held back by our fears, which is what you're talking about, (Yes) and one of the ways, when you approach and you raise your consciousness through your lifetimes, you get better and better at re-contextualising all things, from a negative to a positive, by simply looking at the situation with different levels of consciousness, will give you a totally different feeling, but as you get into those higher levels of consciousness, then re-contextualising into Unconditional Love type thinking, is so powerful, (Yes) and it just fits in so well, with what you've been teaching us.

Yes, once you have this knowledge, this ability to extend your own lives and understanding, then we begin to see that there is more to life than living a life on earth, (Yes) or travelling to another planet, which in your case here, is not quite so good, but you are pointing in the right direction. (Yes) You understand? (Yes) Yes.

Sara: I believe he reached a point where he was not fighting with anyone or anything and he accepted everything that he saw as perfect, in its stage or evolution and everybody being at their own level of consciousness. I felt that he must have reached an incredible/beautiful place, where he didn't see the need to change anything, but just to be giving and loving of himself, to whoever was in front of him.

You are speaking to a being, who understands fully what is being said. Remember that what you see and what you feel, is from your thinking, your Love. And there are many, many levels of consciousness. I would perhaps, not use the word 'disagree', but I would say there are so many levels that you may never know about consciously. You understand what I am saying?

Agreed

Yes, it is wonderful when you reach a level of understanding, which puts forward to you and all of the Universes, this sacred, sacred way of thinking.

Now, I am so pleased, my dear friends, to have joined with you this time. But I feel for now, we must say goodbye, until we meet once again.

Paul: It was a lovely surprise.

General thanks

Graham: An absolute joy!

Paul: Our love goes with you, as always.

Notes:

1. Graham's question refers to author David R Hawkins, who was a deep-thinking Psychiatrist in his working life, who explored consciousness and enlightenment. He wrote 'Power Vs Force', and many other books.

2. Salumet reminds us to remember the children, who of course are the future.

Much has been spoken about children, here are a few snippets:

Millennium children: 20/01/2014:

So much has been said and written about what you call 'millennium children'—that they have come with special spiritual gifts and so forth. I would like to say that at this time in your earthly evolution—that all people, not only millennium children, take great pleasure in coming to this world at this time. Because we have amongst them so many wise souls, these children will grow and provide the knowledge and the wisdom of spirit. They feel honoured that they have been given this opportunity.

Indigo children 10/03/2014:

I have spoken of Indigo children. I do not consider them particularly special—only that they are expressing more spirituality when they come to this Earth. Let us refer back to my question for you this evening, about why you choose your parents. These souls who come to Earth with difficulties are souls who wish to use those bodies to gain the insight that they need—the lessons in earthly life that they need. But they are not any different from another soul who comes to work out their own pathways—only different in as much as the earthly body is different. Do you follow me? (Yes) So I would personally refrain from saying special children. They are children who have come at a particular time for particular work (thank you) I hope that helps your understanding.

Children of Peace: 17/10/2016:

Throughout the world these children will appear. They will become known for their peace and their skills of being able to talk and calm. Let there be no mistake that this is a great gift from Spirit, but I wanted all of you, my dear friends, to know of this knowledge now... There will be in every country throughout your world one of these children...

21/01/2019:

You can start, my dear friends, if possible to help the young people and the children of this earthly world, to try to inspire them to goodness and to thinking of others; to help them to understand the beauty that surrounds them and the people that surround them at all times. I have told you that the children who will be coming soon will bring a great change to your earthly world. There will be seen in these children a beauty and a strength not yet seen, and after all, they will be the ones to continue to help with the expansion of all knowledge. So take note, my dear friends that you must take any opportunity to help young people, to listen to them, and to speak to them only the Truth of the Spirit. It is indeed a heavy burden for those of you who at times feel despair of your world, but again I say, do not despair, allow the Love that you feel at times when you are together, allow that strength and Love to support you and uplift you all of your lives. It may seem a simple task as I say, but indeed it is not, and we in Spirit, my dear friends, are giving you a challenge for this New Year.

And finally, as Salumet reminds us this time:

Look to the future with LOVE and BRIGHTNESS.

SALUMET - 4th April 2022

After healing prayers, Eileen was shown a blue planet, and given just 2 words: 'New Age'.

Our dear friend Cho then spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11843008/2022_04_04+Cho.mp3

Hello!

All: Hello Cho!

I won't stay long.

Paul: It's always good to hear you anyway.

Busy, busy, busy.

Paul: That's good to be busy—not too busy, but a little bit busy is alright.

Yeah—too many tears, too many tears. I come here to give you all happiness.

(Paul thought Cho referred to a funeral last week, but he was referring to the world.)

Your world is crying—yes, the whole of your world is crying.

Sabine: So much injustice.

Paul: Yes, we're still a young planet it seems—haven't evolved enough yet.

No... Where is everybody? I just realised.

Chuckles

Eve: A bit quiet tonight.

Paul: Yes, a little bit of illness, a little bit of holiday...

I come sort them out.

Chuckles

Sabine: Yeah, you do that.

Paul: Hopefully they'll be back next week.

I glad to be with you my friends—very, very glad to be with you.

Sabine: I think I felt you when we were in Scotland last week.

You felt me?

Sabine: Yeah, you were popping in at some point.

Oh, I was with you at times, I can tell you.

Sabine: Yeah, well I did feel you.

My little chicks must be looked after.

Thanks

How can we help you expand if you don't listen?

Sabine: That's true. (Yeah)

Paul: We've got to bring a bit more cheer into the world then?

Well, someone has to. Yes, of course, your love and your good wishes are most important, not only for yourselves, but for everyone—all who are involved.

Paul: Yes, it's almost like we've got to bring the Spirit of Christmas back or something, because on the TV, there's not much 'good' happening, but there is lots of 'good', but we don't always hear about it.

That's true, that's true. I come knocking on your door. There's many knocking on your doors, this evening there are many here, so if you feel them, please say what they want you to.

Agreed

That means I'm gonna be busy.

Paul: Good, it's a chance for a bit more development and practice.

You think I need developing?

Chuckles

Paul: No, we do definitely!

This is my cheeky friend!

Chuckles

What will I do with him?

Sabine: You see, you miss him, you even go with him on holiday.

I always follow you my dear, yes, I follow all of you—try to look after and help you.

Sabine: I know you do, and we're very grateful.

Agreed

You don't have to be grateful, no, no, don't be grateful, it's given to you with Love, so you don't have to be grateful.

What am I going to do with this voice they keep giving me? One minute “uh” (high sound), one minute “aw” (low sound) –referring to Eileen’s croaky voice.

Chuckles

Paul: It sounds clear anyway, we understand very clearly.

Yes, much better than when I came to you at first.

Agreed.

Sabine: We just read that transcript actually.

I better watch my words then tonight.

Sabine: As I was reading aloud, I had to pretend I was you.

Pretend you was me?

Chuckles

Oh, who would pretend to be me? I can hear that lady (Sarah) giggling.

Very quiet in here tonight. What are all those people doing?

Paul: Ummm.

Umm? He say “Umm”What’s that mean? “Ummm”?

Laughter

It’s a good noise.

Paul: Yeah, and you always make us giggle.

Eve: You cheer us up Cho.

Yeah, I always try to cheer you up, you’re very special to me, all of you—very, very special. Not every day, but most of the time.

Chuckles.

Sabine: Yes, sometimes we’re cheeky too!

Yes, you keep that boy in order, don’t you?

Sabine: Absolutely!

Chuckles

I know, I see sometimes.

Paul: I know, I don’t get away with so much these days...

You shouldn’t either—I only joking with you. Anyway, I go now, because there are lots of people in the room, so if you feel anything, please say to the others. It doesn’t have to be anything special, even though I know you are very special yourselves. (More giggles from Sarah) She giggling again! I like her!

Sarah: No more special than everybody else, Cho.

Sabine: Umm—Salumet....

“Ummm”, you can do that, it feels good!

More chuckles

Good to hear some laughter. Right, I’ll leave you now my good friends, and be back soon.

Thanks

Who knows, I might even have another voice!

All: Ooooh!

Ooooh? What language is that?

Sarah: Sounds Scottish to me.

Oooh, a lady friend be after you....

(More “Oooohs”)

Thanks and farewells

Eileen then had some clairvoyance for Eve, about a love bond/connection with her grandmother or mother, who liked to sow.

Eileen also saw that Natalie was thinking about getting a second cat, and said she was a ‘cat mommy,’ and that she would have a strong bond with this cat.

She also saw that Sarah had a secret admirer...

We then sat in silence for some time, before, to our delight, Salumet briefly spoke—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11843006/2022_04_04+salumet+1.mp3

Sabine: Good evening

Paul: Oh, good evening and welcome, you're very welcome to speak if you wish to.

Good evening.

Paul: Ah good evening, is that Salumet?

It is.

Paul: Ah, wonderful to have you here.

Eve: Thanks for coming.

I come this time, just to tell you that I will come to you soon, to have a conversation.

General thanks

I come also this time to bring to each one of you, Love, Upliftment, Joy and Happiness, my dear friends.

Paul: Ah, thank you, just what we need in the world at the moment.

Yes, many are working tirelessly in your world at this particular time—but for now, I just wanted you to know and to FEEL SAFE, WITHIN THE LOVE that extends to you.

Paul: Thank you—we do and we know we will come through.

Yes, but I will join you at another time, so that we may converse on matters that trouble you.

General thanks

Paul: Yes, there will be lots of questions and it will be lovely to converse, thank you.

I leave you now my dear friends, hopefully with the upliftment that I bring to all of you.

Paul: Yes, I think we always feel it when you come, so thank you and our love goes with you.

Sabine: Thank you for your gifts.

Paul: Yeah, makes me feel tingly all over.

Notes:

Salumet teaches us not to be fearful, and that we can always uplift/expand our thoughts, knowing/accepting that all is evolving towards Love and Truth.

So, as Salumet reminded us before (24/01/2022), regardless of what appears to be happening in the world, we can continue to: Look to the future with

LOVE and BRIGHTNESS.

SALUMET - 6th June 2022

Though numbers were a little low, the conglomerate being known to us as Salumet, spoke, as always, via Eileen, in full trance—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11902232/2022_06%2906+salumet.mp3

Good evening.

Paul: Good evening—welcome—wonderful to have you back.

Yes—there is so much to do at this time. I need not tell you how busy we have been in Spirit. We have been all around your planet, we have joined with those who are suffering at this time. But I want to say to you, my dear friends that the Love has also grown, as well as the negative areas in your world.

Paul: That's very good to hear.

Yes, I wanted to come this evening, to give thanks to all of you Spirit-workers, and there are many—more than you possibly realise; we give thanks to you all, because without your help, it would be a harder task. Therefore my dear friends, please accept the Love and the blessings that come to all of you this evening.

All: Thank you.

We know that the more positivity you create, the better it is, for not only you, but the planets also.

Paul: Yes, you've said it's all connected.

Yes, everything is connected, whether good or bad. It's like what you term, 'tossing the coin', sometimes it is not good and other times life is joyous. We at this moment in time, are doing all we can to bring peace to your world. Some people ask, why it is not possible for Spirit to come in and put an end to all things, but as well you know, we cannot interfere with the lives that are here now. So take those few words, keep them close to your heart and you will see negativity disintegrate. It is not difficult to send Love to all the others in your world, it is easy my dear friends; just think of that beautiful word within you, that will bring peace and enlightenment to you all. (Agreed)

It is difficult times, but the earth planet has gone through many difficult times and as you said previously, it all has meaning, but not the kind of meaning we can express to you with understanding. So I say only to you, are there any questions before I go this time? I want you to know too, that we are always close by. So know that whenever you call our names, we are there with you.

All: Thank you.

Paul: I think one thing that has helped a lot of people, is when you reassured us in 1994 that there will be no nuclear holocaust, (Yes) and I think some people have been reminded of that. It might be a good chance to just remind people again perhaps. As you say, we've been through lots of conflicts before...

Yes. Earth is a complicated planet sometimes.

Eve: We never seem to learn from past mistakes, do we?

Yes, that is one of the problems, but I can tell you, you WILL move forward, you WILL move forward. Do not be afraid of your future, because we stand close by.

Paul: And Spirit can't interfere too much, because we have to go through, (Yes) in order to learn. (Yes)

Eve: We have to keep learning and learning.

Yes, I feel and fear that some people feel that we have what you term, a 'magic wand.' Know it is part of your life's travels, what you are experiencing once again. But I say to you, my dear friends, keep that positive attitude and we can grow quickly and end the many things that are making the Earth people so unhappy.

Mark: I think one thing we have to learn, is to not be so easily influenced by our media on mass. It's like, this latest war, which is really between America and Russia, people have easily been influenced to feel that it's right to contribute to it and keep it going, (Yes) but it takes time for people to realise, I think.

Yes, people must come to the realisation for themselves. We can influence a little, in different ways, but we cannot change what is going on—that is for mankind to understand. Yes, but you are correct in saying that mankind has to see for himself, what is good and what is, I will use your word 'evil', for the time being, because that is what lots of your people are thinking.

Eve: So long as we don't destroy ourselves in the process.

You must not even entertain those thoughts. You must not give way to thinking like that, because it takes hold of your very being and then it is even more difficult to be able to help. Do you understand?
(Yes) Thank you.

Now my dear friends, I needed to come this time, to help to uplift you, as much as we can, to also thank you for your good work that you give to others. You will be blessed many times for this. It may not be in this lifetime, but it will come to you.

General thanks

Eve: It's always good to get your upliftment, thank you.

I hope that by the end of your evening, you will feel the power of spiritual upliftment within you.

Paul: Thank you. There are a couple more questions, but should we save that for another evening, when there's more people here?

Yes, if you would, that would be good for them, to actually hear words of encouragement. So yes, I will come shortly, to answer some of your questions.

General thanks

Paul: We will continue to do what we do...

Sabine: Share the Love.

Eve: Be positive.

Paul: And try to turn people away from all the fear, because there's nothing to fear.

No—it is difficult we know and we fully understand, but just remember:

YOU ARE NEVER ALONE.

Remember that always, we are here to help and try to make a difference in your lives.
So now I will take my leave. I thank you my dear friends for all that you do.

More thanks/farewells

Notes:

Salumet on interconnectivity

25th October 2021

I wish you, my dear friends, to try to understand that whatever happens, is just part of a bigger cause. You would not perhaps understand that your life on earth, could be so interconnected with so many other planets, so many other galaxies, and I say to you at this time, at this time, all is confusion for you. Allow your minds to rest sometimes and perhaps a little understanding will come to you. You will never fully understand what is happening with these viruses and illnesses, but I can say to you, the worlds will turn out to be a better place—no matter how long it has to wait, it will happen.

So much is going on with the planets in this universe, it is almost like it is in a jar of ice and is being rattled and rattled and rattled, until you wonder where you are. But remember that Spirit are here to help you, Spirit will always come close to you; so please, my dear friends, remember this.

23rd May 2011:

Yes, the stresses of your planet, as you call it, come from within and without. You are not a singular unit in all of these universes. Every planet is connected to the other. You cannot separate this Earth planet from any other, and say that you are special in any way, because you do not know the wider picture of life. It remains difficult for the human being to fully understand the working of the Great Creative Force.

George: And we are so grateful to you for introducing us to other planets and other planetary beings, and this helps in our realisation of our part in a much greater system.

Yes, until that realisation comes, you will always struggle with what is happening on the Earth planet—yes; but firstly look inwards, find yourselves within, and you become that greater part of the universe. When that happens, your understanding of your neighbours—your neighbouring countries—your neighbouring planets—neighbouring universes, will all become much clearer for you.

George: We have the understanding that the universe is infinite—our universe that is—so any other universes would have to be equally infinite, but I guess on a different wavelength or a different vibration. Does that make sense?

Partly—your universe is connected to all other universes and you all vibrate, yes, at slightly different rates, depending upon the universe. We are going much further than we have to this point. I want you to understand, my dear friend, that all-of-existence is inter-connected—is a mass of energy, which pulsates as I have said, in many different ways.

George: The different universes are inter-connected themselves?

Yes—yes. All—all life is connected—you cannot separate them, but at the same time it is a different rate of energy. This is further than we have ever gone and I do not think, at this particular time, your understanding could encompass the details of it.

...existence is simple—existence is love—existence is unity—existence is ‘going within’.

SALUMET - 25th July 2022

After healing prayers, Salumet spoke—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11951075/2022_07_25+sal.mp3

Paul: Good evening Salumet, welcome.

Good evening.

Paul: Lovely to have you back.

I also, I am pleased to join with you again.

Di: Thank you for coming.

I know that all of you, my dear friends, have been waiting to be able to speak with me on matters that are happening in your world at this time. Firstly, let me say thank you my dear friends, for all the Love and Joy you give to many others. Each one here has had the opportunity to show what Love can do for the Spirit; and it is good for you to know how much of Spirit is with you on all of these occasions that you are so worried about.

I want to say, happiness does not come easily to all human beings, but I do want to thank you for everything that you have spoken about and given Love to people who are basically strangers to you. But I am sure that by now, each of you can feel the strength and the upliftment of Spirit, whenever you call upon it. (Agreed). So, therefore I take this opportunity to say thank you, my dear friends, for all the Love and the work that you do, because as I have already said to you, without you, it would be more difficult to keep this contact.

Paul: You've given us so much clarity, understanding and knowledge, it's a pleasure to try and share it. (Yes)

Sabine: And it uplifts us as well. (Agreed)

Yes, I want to speak, just a little, about your situation on your planet at this moment. (Thanks) Do not be afraid, my dear friends, do not allow circumstances to make you feel unhappy or worried, or any of the negative emotions that come to you. It is not only the Planet Earth who is what you may call 'troubled' at this time; there are many universes my dear friend, I believe we have discussed this a little. There are so many galaxies, so many universes, so many more people that you would not recognise, who come from other times. All of them at this particular moment in time, are suffering in some way or another, because it is time to do so. Remember these words: IT IS time to do so.

Paul: We were talking about suffering being like a path, a passageway to enlightenment.

Yes, so in knowing that fact, you should be able to say to yourselves, it is all in order and Spirit will see us through. So, remember those words, my dear friends.

Thanks

Paul: We know that there's light at the end of this tunnel, and then...

But you are just one small pinprick in the sand. (Yeah) Try to remember also, it is not all to do with Planet Earth. There are so many planets who are going through the same kind of situations.

Paul: We're just a tiny little planet, amongst much bigger ones, I'm sure.

But I heard you speak earlier about people passing to Spirit, and I want to say, who is it that wishes to say, 'they were too young', or something else, because in the time of passing, it is because you have completed the work that you chose to do. You understand? (Agreed) So, never feel sorry for anyone who is coming Home to join with the Greater Union of Planets and Spirit.

Di: I've just been to my auntie's funeral, Salumet, and I felt a real upliftment there, because I knew that she's gone where she wants, but it's the grief of the people left behind. (Yes) I did my best to say where she'd gone and that she was well—I do think it helped a little bit, but it's natural to grieve, isn't it, as a human being?

As a human being, you have what you call tear ducts! (Giggle) Have you ever imagined what they are for?

Di: Releasing...

Yes, there is no trouble in tears, if it releases anxiety and everything else that you speak about, that can only be a good thing.

Have you anything to ask of me?

Sarah: I was just thinking, it's people's time to go back, but I was thinking those awful—well, I shouldn't be saying 'awful' from what you've said Salumet, but the shooting of those children in that school in America, well there have been several around the world, but it's those children's time to go as well, Salumet, even though it's not their choice on this planet, but maybe it was their choice before they came here?

It was part of their journey that they chose, yes, but because they are small human beings and you do have great affection for your young people, we know, but try to learn some lessons from all of these things, because when you 'DIE', as you say, you are going to a very good place, a place that we all wish to gather to; but even in the desire to go, you must not go, because it is part of your plan. (This refers to desiring to go before our planned time) Do you understand? (Yes.) Does that help you?

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

Paul: I've got a few questions from different people—have you got time to take a few?

We'll continue and I will let you know.

(The questions were written down, and a flashlight was needed to read them)

Paul: Some scientists in Japan, Osaka University are close to obtaining solar energy from Sea water, through some kind of chemical process, which collects hydrogen peroxide, which should overcome the limitations of solar only being available during the daytime, when the sun's out, but this would in effect, prolong being able to use the power from solar energy constantly, 24 hours a day. You mentioned once that energy would come from the sea and I wondered if this has anything to do with that?

You have just answered your own question. I told you, did I not, that many answers would occur from the seas, the waters of the world—not only waters of Planet Earth, but all of the others surrounding. Water is like a jewel in a crown. So, yes, what these scientists are doing is helping to make life easier and become more knowledgeable themselves, about what is available.

Paul: So, this could be very important times...

It could be, but I feel, or not 'feel,' but I can tell you, it will be a great deal of time, before there is a rich reward.

Paul: Ah, yes, so it's early days, (Early days) and we might have to rely on fossil fuels...

...for a while longer, yes. There is much to be learned, from not only the seas, but the different planets.

Paul: Another question, if you could take another one: Serena, who used to come here, put a question: She's been researching an old civilisation called the Tartarians, not in the too distant past. These Tartarians, it seems they built buildings, often with copper domes on the tops of buildings and you can even see them in many cities, like Cambridge, especially around churches and there's speculation that these copper domes helped gather energy somehow from the ether, storing it up and producing lighting and perhaps heating, not so long ago even. Could it be that these Tartarians, were able to extract energy from the earth, perhaps from the ley-lines? Is this another example of lost knowledge?

Yes, I see, there have been so many civilisations connected with the Earth Planet—situations which you have no knowledge of still and I am not here to tell you why, because that is part of your evolution, you understand? But there is much on planet Earth to be discovered, which will be of great use to many people here at this time and in the coming time too.

You are speaking about a civilisation who had great knowledge—people have differing names for them, but it is something for mankind to discover, not for Spirit to give the answers to it, do you understand?

(Yes) That is part of their evolution, to discover and to become aware.

Paul: Mm, a bit more detective work...

Yes, you would not like to have too much information all of the time now, would you? (No) I think you mean 'yes', but that is not likely to happen!

Laughter

Di: It's not the right time to have that information. (Yes, yes)

Paul: There's so much knowledge available, it would be bewildering probably...

And so many civilisations that have existed on this planet that you will never find out about, in near time. I hope that helps a little—but it is good for humankind to try to discover for themselves...

(At that point the flashlight shined a little too bright for Salumet as Paul was trying to read another question)

Yes, please continue.

Paul: There's one other question from a reader if you can take one more. This is a subject that's come up already, but it might be a new slant on it: I think Tony's first wife passed to Spirit 37 years ago and his son passed to Spirit 5 years ago and there are several other sons that have all had children and grandchildren over the years and he was wondering whether his wife who passed 37 years ago could easily have reincarnated into one of the children. He's not suggesting that's happened, but it's the possibility and he also wonders whether the son who only passed 5 years ago, whether that might be too soon, if they did wish to reincarnate into the family, if you like, into one of the other son's children? And he also wondered about when he departs at some point, from this world, because he's quite elderly now and if his first wife's already reincarnated, would he still be able to communicate? He answers his own question in a way, he thinks, 'yes', they would, through astral travel at night/during sleep-state.

Yes, what he's saying to you, indeed happens all of the time, when people want to reincarnate back, instead of going forward; but that is their wish, that is their free will still being used. So, yes, you could have an elderly parent come back as a young child. It happens all the time, but I have to say, it belongs to the person, not anyone else, they must make the decisions for themselves.

Paul: Yes, I understand, so they are central, they won't come back necessarily...

It's not automatically...

Paul: ...just because there was a marriage of Love...

Yes, and of course, too, man and woman do like to wait for each other, especially when there has been a very strong Love bond.

Paul: They do like to wait for each other?

Yes, they can if they wish, or they can move forward, but normally there would have been some kind of, I will use the word 'contract' lightly, for doing this, before they came. Yes. Has that helped a little?

Paul: Yes, that clarifies, thank you.

Sarah: When we go into Spirit, if we haven't finished what we came here to do here, can we still move on instead?

No, you cannot move on until you have decided that what you need to do is imminent. It may take 100's of your years even, it may take just one week of your time, but again, it is up to each individual what happens—nobody is forced to do anything they do not want to do.

Sarah: Ah okay, when you said the decision to move forward. I thought we had to come back to finish what we haven't done.

No, no, I would like to dispel that whilst I am here. NO ONE IS FORCED TO DO ANYTHING THEY ARE NOT READY TO DO. It may take them another 2000 years in Spirit before they decide to come back for whatever reason. So yes, does that help you?

Sarah: Yes, thank you Salumet.

Paul: There's no hurry, because there's no 'time'.

Yes, 'time' belongs to your planets, not to Spirit.

Natalie: Could I ask a quick question? (Yes.) I'm not sure if you can answer it, but it's been a bit of a funny year for me and I believe something happened. I was reading on soul-mates and connections and one thing caught my eye, which was: if you do meet your soul-mate, nothing kind of gets in the way and it just pulls you kind of, there's no stopping it, regardless of your situation. I was just wondering if you could confirm if that's what's happened?

With you? (Yeah.) No, you cannot put blame to any other person, each of you are individual in so many ways, each of you have free will, which we have been discussing. The majority of people coming to Spirit know what they are coming to and what they went to. If there is any blockage, I'll call it, or any other disturbance, that is to do with the individual Spirit. Even if you feel it is a soul-mate, that cannot stop you doing what you have to do. (Okay.) But I know what you're speaking of and many people, there are many questions to be posed about soul-mates; people have so many viewpoints, but just know this, that as a Spirit, you are a being of Love, you are a being able to match in time, anything else other than Love. So, I would say to you, my dear friend, it is time for you to move forward, and to, I won't say neglect or ignore, but I would say be focussed on what you wish to do in this lifetime now. (Thank you.) Ask for help from Spirit and it will be given, you understand? (Yes, thank you.)

Yes, now I feel I must leave you now, but my dear friends, I have been so happy to re-join with you once more, I hope any question you have may be answered honestly and truthfully and I desire that the Love you hold from Spirit that it will always be with you at all times.

All: Thank you and our Love goes with you.

Yes.

Paul: We are so grateful for your visits.

I hope it has lifted your thinking, (It always does.) because too many people become afraid, and what is being afraid, if it is not just fear allowed to take hold? We do all we can to help you my dear friends.

Di: It's nice to know that you're always with us.

Yes, you can speak to me at any time, you know, but there is much to be done at this time, but remember, it CAN be done and you ARE Beings of Light, Great Light in the realms of the universe.

Paul: There is still a lot of fear around, and we need to get our brooms to sweep it all away.

Yes, you are doing well, I am so happy that you are able to understand, but there is no point in going over things that had happened, you must look forward, you must choose your lives in time to come and then things will become clearer for you. So, until we come together again, I will say thank you my dear friends.

Thank you + good byes.

3. Salumet has spoken much previously about soul-mates: 12/11/2001:

The soul-mates were created together for all time, from the beginning of what you know as time, and that subject is much too complicated for us to discuss here. I could speak of molecular energy, I could speak of all kinds of energy, but I feel that, for you, would confuse the issue. Soul-mates were created together. They vibrate on the same electromagnetic wavelength. They are counterparts of one another. That is the simplicity of the soul-mates; that they are energy which is vibrating on the same energy line. Do you understand? It is an issue of words again.

That is why true soul mates do not meet in incarnations except very rarely: there is no need when they incarnate at the same frequencies.

Now we come to twin-souls. This indeed should be the term you use instead of your soul-mates, which is used most often in your world, because twin-souls meet many, many times in different incarnations and their purpose is in recognition, in coming together to try to form and create and blend into one energy; that is the purpose of their coming together. All of you in this room are twin-souls. You have met in other times, in other lifetimes.

For further information see: <https://www.salumet.org/87-twin-souls>

And finally, a Salumet exercise for self-development 2018/01/08:

For the past few years, we have been encouraging all of you to look deeper into your soul, to find that part of you that is eternal, to recognise in others your own weaknesses—where there is fault, look only to yourself. I would like you to think about this a little more deeply, and you will find just how much you have grown. How many times have you stopped in your tracks and said, 'I must not do this, or I must do that'? It is that Soul within which is guiding you all. Few words, but a very deep thought, and I would like you my dear friends, that you discover within yourself that little piece of the Creator which will continue to ever move forward. Never allow life to become static, allow thinking to be filled with Love and, when I say Love, I mean Spiritual Love, the kind of Love that overflows all things, you understand?

10th October 2022

This was not a Salumet, but another spoke through Eileen, with much Love and wisdom from deeper spirit, describing themselves as a Messenger of Love—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12028744/2022_10_10+Messenger+of+love+via+Eileen.mp3

I wish to speak.

Paul: Yes, you're very welcome.

I am to tell you Salumet will be with you on your next gathering together.

All: Thanks! Wonderful! Good news! ...

I have been listening to your prayers for others and I wish to say, thank you, thank you so much for all of your help.

Paul: It's the least we can do—we want to do as much as we can.

You can, you can by JUST BEING STILL. You can by JUST BEING SILENT, you CAN by BEING AWARE of what is around you.

Paul: Is that because when we are still, we vibrate...

On a different level.

Paul: ...and that ripples out and effects the planet and everything.

Yes, you must try to understand the power that emanates from all of you, when you are sending LOVE. I have to say sometimes, human beings are more concerned with how they work, how they meditate, instead of just BEING LOVE. It is something we can all improve on.

Paul: We overcomplicate things. *(Yes, yes)*but focusing on just BEING LOVE...

You ARE LOVE! When you are in that state, you are PURE LOVE, you are joining with those of us in Spirit; but sometimes you seem to be so baffled by all that takes place.

Paul: I think this is a powerful message, if we could focus on that (Yes) maybe we don't need to try to pursue people about things—it will naturally happen...

By making contact with a person such as yourselves, you are already touching the Soul. So therefore there is no need to continue to wonder what is happening—why is this and why is that? JUST LEARN TO BE!

(Pause)

I hope you know what I am talking about.

Paul: Yes, I think so, I can't quite articulate it myself perhaps, but I do feel I understand and it's a powerful message. We've had words like this before, but each time, I think we understand it a little bit further.

Yes, that is true, very, very true. So my message that I bring to you, is this: THAT YOU LEARN TO BE YOUR TRUE SPIRITUAL SELVES, WHILST HERE ON EARTH.

We are all simple beings, beings of Love that shine forth from so many, and so many are still learning, still learning—IN ALL THE MANY EONS OF TIME, WE ARE STILL LEARNING.

Paul: Yeah, it is incredible, it's a never-ending journey it seems; but to be still and focus on Love, that's probably the most direct way we can change ourselves and perhaps the world.

Sara: It's our highest offering, isn't it, just to be LOVE.

It is not easy, to just BE LOVE and I don't wish you to feel that it IS easy; it takes much time, much time, and I am a Messenger of LOVE this evening. So I bring to you all, what you assume to be LOVE and I do not say that lightly to you, because you are all ambassadors of Love. But be yourself, know yourself, love others and you will come forward and you will become PURE LOVE.

Now that my mission is over, I'm about to leave you and I offer you my deepest thanks and also my greatest Love.

Deep thanks expressed

Paul: We really feel it and you feel like an old friend, I don't know if you have been before, but it's a lovely energy within the room.

I have not been to speak to you before, but I am aware of every being within the room and also those that you have touched in the past and I would also say to you, be aware of the goodness that comes to you through Salumet. (Agreed) You understand now?

Paul: Yes, Salumet has given us so much wisdom and teachings.

But it's teachings which you have to develop; you cannot stay still, you have to expand as well.

Paul: Yes, we need to put the teachings into practice and live them more fully.

All of you have that capability, all of you here have the dedication, you want to help others, you want to know more about that spiritual being that is yourself. All these things are possible and I am deeply honoured to have spoken with you this night.

Paul: We are so honoured and blessed to have you, reminding us, and we do need much reminding; but that's a lovely and simple message you've given us tonight, thank you.

I say farewell to you and Love be with you at all times.

Thanks and farewells

SALUMET - 24th October 2022

As anticipated, Salumet spoke this evening—audio

link:http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12033653/2022_10_24+salumet.mp3

Sabine: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Each time I join with you, my dear friends, your energies are so much stronger.

Paul: That's good to know! (Agreed)

Not only are the energies stronger, but as individuals, you feel this powerful Love, which encompasses you all. (Thank you) I know sometimes little doubts creep in, but there is no need for any doubt, because your Spirit is strong and I wish to say to you all, allow that strength of Spirit to grow; allow each spiritual thought that you have, allow it to double in size and I ask, my dear friends, that you allow the Love of all that is good, to grow within you.

We feel at this time, that it is appropriate for you all, to stretch your wings a little higher, to become those individual users of Love and Energy. We know some of you are still a little afraid of going deeper within yourselves and this, my dear friends, I ask you to cultivate more readily, to be assured that what you feel is really LOVE from Spirit; therefore, there is no room for any doubts. I know you feel this strength of Love, is that not so? (Agreed)

I believe you were able to feel it a little more, just the last time I was with you.

Paul: Yes, that was a beautiful person came through, yeah.

I would say to you, my dear friends that it is time to break forth and allow the Love of Spirit to lift you up even higher; to know for yourselves the power within and to know that what we as Spirit bring to you, is indeed the Truth. I used those words to you many, many years ago—Truth. But the choice is still yours, whether you believe in something or not, it is still there.

Now, my dear friends, do you have any questions this time?

Sabine: I do have a question in regards of, I know that what's going on in the religions probably started from the Truth somewhere and I'm talking about the Holy Spirit. I'm not sure what it really is. Some people say it kind of 'falls' on them and they become enlightened and I'm trying to understand what the process is?

When you are ready, you will know what it means, because it is True Love which emanates from you. You will have no need of explanations, because YOU ARE the explanation, YOU ARE Love. And it is difficult to understand, I know, but when people speak of Spirit, they are speaking of their Higher Selves, the Higher Self that would enter into the land of Spirit, where as human beings, you would be amazed at the Love that lies within you. Do you understand so far?

Sabine: Yes, I guess so.

Di: So, the Holy Spirit, is our Spirit?

You are all Holy Spirits, some to greater degree than others, but you are still Holy Spirit. If you must use the word 'Holy', so be it—to us, it is that part of Spirit which belongs to the whole, but which very few people realise whilst upon the Earth.

Sabine: That makes more sense now, thank you.

It is a growth, you understand? (Yes) You will know when you have moved forward in Spirit, you will know that your understanding is good, and you will know that that is what is meant for you at that particular time of life.

(Thank you.) Do not be too worried about the use of the words, it is what you feel that counts. Are you sure you understand?

Sabine: I think so. (Good.)

Martin: I have a question, I was looking back at the teachings from the past about illness, I was specifically wondering about mental illness, which I assume is part of it, but it seems such a sort of insidious creeping thing that can affect anyone, I wondered if you had any advice for avoiding it ourselves, also for helping others overcome the difficulties?

Yes, it is a dizzying topic, is it not, especially in your world this day? Mental health—you know full well that you have a brain, which belongs to the physical and you have a brain that belongs to Spirit. What I wish to say to you is, you must not confuse one with the other. There is such a condition as mental health—but you all know that also; but you ask how can you prevent it, or help you with it? You can help yourselves, you can help yourselves by meditating daily. You can meditate for as long or as short as you so desire. You will never eradicate mental illness, whilst you are alive on earth, because it is a human condition that has been brought on by you as human beings. You understand that? (Agreed) Yes, you must go to listen to the thoughts and the feelings of people who suffer in this way. I cannot tell you that a magic wand will wave and all mental health will disappear. Whilst you survive on the earth planet, there will always be a degree of unrest or dissatisfaction. You understand? (Yes) I feel you do not, but let me say that all you can do is be in touch with the Great Creator every day of your waking hours and ask for help. In that way, whoever is suffering and whoever is trying to help, will feel the power of the Love—that is the way forward for mental illness.

Martin: Thank you.

Sara: I can vouch for that too, with someone I know who's had very severe mental illness, but because she believes in the Great Creator and because she does try to meditate, she's really helped herself a lot.

Yes, again it is the power in your own hand and thoughts. The human being creates many things, which are unnecessary for their lives, and I would say only this, my dear friends, anything that is said and done in the name of Love, will always be a benefit to you. There are also so many reasons why mental health captivates the human—too many to go into here, but I would say, continue to give help in your words, give help in listening, give help in taking time with people in distress.

Graham: I've noticed that some friends that suffer from mental health issues, seem to need to do an overwhelming need to do a lot of talking and I guess that's perhaps part of their healing, (Yes) just listening to them?

Yes, you must allow this energy to leave the body, by word or sense or feel, but you cannot have it laying stagnant.

Di: We must find the time to give to these people (Yes) and that's one of the hardest things for us humans to do really.

One of the hardest things, I would say, is to take care of yourselves, before you try to take care of others, because the Love and the energy which you feel within yourselves, transmutes into what they need.

Di: So again, it's back to making sure we have that time to meditate every day, heal ourselves first.

It is the biggest piece of advice that I can give to you, my dear friends, but you know this, because we have been together for so long, and always I seem to repeat the same things, but I am happy to do that, because you will be going into the world to spread the word of Love from Spirit. To help and Love is a great blessing.

Paul: It's a wonderful thought—so, the more we heal ourselves, the more others are healed around us?

Yes, you only have to look at your everyday lives—a gentle smile, a touch, a few minutes to speak to someone who is unhappy—all these things are simple, but so powerful; and this is what I now, my dear friends, I would like you to cultivate in your daily lives. Make yourselves pure and others will follow.

Paul: Is this how we, as you said earlier, 'reach higher'?

Yes, you will grow from these activities. It will become more natural to you and you will be able to teach others by your actions.

Paul: I have one more question?

I will take one more.

Paul: Two of us were talking earlier about 2 people who say they've got a 'negative entity' attached to them. I don't think we've asked a question about this before. I was trying to think, is this like a person who needs a rescue, and hasn't moved on, so they've kind of grabbed hold of someone and they need to move on, or is the entity actually coming to the earth?

It is not always an 'entity', it sometimes can be the way that the human being is that they do not find Love and joy in life and the darkness surrounds them. You must be careful not to place every piece of 'trusting' to be right—sometimes it is the human being that has created the darkness and it need not necessarily be an entity. But again, talking to that person would be a wonderful upliftment for them, but like all things in life, it is wonderful to show people how good things are in their lives.

Paul: Yes, and presumably would that be the way, because if there were a darkness around them, or an entity, the antidote is always Love and Light?

Yes, it is not as simple as that, as I put into words, but you have to firstly check that it is not a physical illness, because the two remain very close; you must be sure it is not a physical illness that needs help on the earth, you understand?

Paul: Yes, that's another explanation, and if it was something...

You would be guided if it was a spiritual darkness—help is there within you to give. If it is a physical illness, then there is enough knowledge on your earth at this time to help others and they should recover quite nicely. Does that help?

Paul: Yes, thank you.

Now, my dear friends, it has been good to be with you. There is so much we have spoken of and so very little more that I probably can bring to you, because you cannot understand the more complex of life. So I say to you, thank you for your time and I hope that when I come to you next time, you will have practised some of the things that we have spoken of. (Agreed) But, as far as we are concerned from here in Spirit, you are approaching the next step of life.

General thanks for all that is given.

Now, my dear friends, until we meet once again, I leave you with my Love and Joy.

Thanks and Love

Graham then took us on a meditative journey of Love—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12033656/2022_10_24+Graham+med.mp3

This is an exercise to help expand your love—it follows on to what Salumet was saying.

I want you to take a distant view of the Earth; so you are up above the Earth and you are looking down at this beautiful blue planet; there it is, in it's perfection, in front of you. And that is the key word, PERFECTION, because everything that manifests on our planet at the moment is part of a greater plan, and that plan, is perfect.

As you focus your Love towards the planet, you will become more attuned to all the people on the planet at the moment, all the different things that are going on, the emotions, the hurts, the angers, the forgiveness, the reconciliations, the moving forward—all these things are perfect, because it is part of our growth.

So now try to think about focussing your Love, it may help to hold the planet in your hands; so mentally, extend your hands forward and hold the planet in a loving gesture between your hands.

Your planet is a ball of Love, manifesting in all strange ways, that is not for us to understand. Sometimes what people do is obvious, other times what people do is not so, it's more hidden, but ultimately we are all on a spiritual journey of Love.

As you hold the planet in your loving caress, bring the planet toward your heart, extend your Love into the planet, feel your heart reaching out, feel that bridge of Love between you and this beautiful planet.

The energy may feel like warmth, it may feel like a colour, a feeling; this is your planet, you are part of it and it is part of you. As you do this exercise, you feel the vibration of the planet start to rise. Inevitably we are drawn towards God's Light, inevitably our planet is rising in it's vibration, as we all seek that light. We will spend a minute now to feel that energy, that loving energy towards our planet and everybody that's in it. (Pause)

And now having completed that exercise, once again, stand back and look at our planet. You've held it to your heart, it's a powerful experience. Perhaps a little exercise every time you feel things are a little dark here or there. This is a planet of Love, it is perfect, everything manifesting is perfect, it is all part of God's plan—we can't judge anything, but we extend our Love.

Notes:

A common theme of recent meetings has been to encourage us to go deeper into ourselves and into Love: 2022/10/10: ...human beings are more concerned with how they work, how they meditate, instead of just BEING LOVE. You ARE LOVE! When you are in that state, you are PURE LOVE, you are joining with those of us in Spirit

2022/09/12: A deep meditation, leaving us bathing in great peace—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/11993531/2022_09_12.mp3+Med+journey+one+via+Eileen.mp3

And Salumet adds this time (2022/10/24): Allow that strength of Spirit to grow; allow each spiritual thought that you have, allow it to double in size and I ask, my dear friends, that you allow the Love of all that is good, to grow within you. We feel at this time, that it is appropriate for you all, to stretch your wings a little higher, to become those individual users of Love and Energy...

SALUMET - 19th December 2022

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12090701/salumet+2022_12_19.mp3

Paul: Welcome Salumet, lovely to have you back, with a full room of people.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, I am happy to join with you once more.

Paul: We're very happy to have you back on this quite special time of year, around the Equinox and heading towards our festive celebrations.

Yes, as well as your earthly troubles, there is also so much joy within people, joy that will not be kept down, that is there, ready to help each one of you. Even though you do not always hear this voice, I can tell you, my dear friends, that we are aware of all that you say and do. You have been told how you have grown in such a short time, a time of worry and a time of joy—both seem to go together. So, I say to you, my dear friends, be aware of the Spirit within you, be aware of the Love and the strength that binds you closer together. One thing I would wish to say to you is that you must always be aware of those who are around you, because they are there for good reason, to help you, to Love you, to uplift you. I know that when you are on the earth plane, so many daily thoughts and feelings pull at your heart strings and I say to you, allow these feelings to happen, whether they be of joy or whether they be of distress of some kind; recognise them and allow them to work for you. I wish to say thank you to all of you within this room. You have worked hard throughout this past year, when there have been so many problems, and that strength, my dear friends, comes from within.

Are there any questions that you wish to discuss with me?

Graham: I was wondering if I could ask one about enlightenment. I've been reading a book by somebody who claims to have achieved enlightenment, as a phenomenon that happened as a result of being an advanced spiritual student, where he no longer was separate from everything, but became everything. In our physical living we live a life of duality, where we see things, observe things; so, we are the seer and we see things, so there is a split, but this guy claims to have achieved the state of enlightenment, where he is really at one with everything—there's no separateness anymore., even to the point where the past, present, future are combined. Apparently, it only happens one in many millions of lifetimes. I wonder if this is a real phenomenon? it does sound very interesting.

You are already living in the past, the present and the future—that is not unusual. It is something that you achieve, and I know what is being said seems magnificent, but to be able to separate all things, is something that we know nothing of, not in the sense that the gentleman is talking about. You can, to some degree, and it does depend on what your meaning for 'upliftment' and 'separation' and all of these words that you use; how can you explain to someone who has never experienced complete joy, that that is what they are heading towards? (Yes) It is not easy and I say to you, each and every one of you, at some point up till now, have achieved enlightenment.

Graham: Gosh!

Yes, to achieve that, you have to belong to a realm of much greater power, where there is no need to tell yourself that you have experienced enlightenment. You understand? Because enlightenment is within each person from the onset of their birth, to grow and grow and grow. So, my request and my answer to your question, is that it is a wonderful experience, but it is not unique. (Thank you) Many people think they have reached enlightenment, when in fact they are only just beginning to understand what Spirit is about. Does that help you?

Graham: Yes, it does. Is this the state that we have to reach, in order to no longer need a future earthly lifetime, unless it's for a specific purpose?

I would say that there are many stages, many steps to—we will use the word 'enlightenment', but you have to have existed in some form, for many eons of time. (Yes) It is not something that is freely given to Spirit, you only move on when you are ready.

Graham: Is this something where we need an advanced teacher such as yourself to help us, because the human ego holds us back so much?

Yes, there are many who are like me, at this moment in time, helping to teach you all a little of what the Spirit really means, and yes, there are steps. If you take, for instance, the union that I have come from, it has taken so long, that you would never understand how it completely works—it is impossible for you to understand. But if the gentleman is happy to think he has reached enlightenment, he has many surprises in store! (Chuckles)

That is all I can tell you.

Graham: Thank you for that answer, there is much food for thought there. (Yes) These questions have been going round in my mind now for a considerable period of time.

But that is only good, because it makes you realise and think about the larger steps of Spirit. And again, I will say, it all begins for the human being, when they are born—from that day forward, you start to learn and things begin to change, even if you are unaware.

Graham: He does talk a lot about the importance of Unconditional Love at great length, which I find particularly wonderful—I love reading those words, (Yes), because he's saying, it's like the sure way to reaching higher spiritual growth and awareness.

It is the hub of all life, it is, and each and every one of you, can only try to achieve what is right for you, at this particular time in your existence; and unless you continue to try to secure...

Forgive me for one moment... (Pause)

Yes...we are as a 'friendly group', that is what I will call you, a friendly group. We are gradually becoming more and more aware, not only of the individual Spirit, but Spirits from all existence, and this is what the gentleman perhaps likes to feel, that he is part of the union of Spirit, when in fact we do not know or understand, because the Love is so great, that you will never fully understand—but there are always steps forward to gain that knowledge, if you so desire.

Graham: Yes, he describes it as the 'Presence'; (Yes) once you lock into the Presence, it's unbelievably powerful, but gentle and all-enveloping, all-loving—he uses many words.

Yes—you are aware, all of you here, how much Spirit can do and tries to help. Well, it is more than just one union, it is innumerable and if indeed you learn to have a teacher whilst upon the earth, I would say you are fortunate and it really does help, it really does help, but you must follow your own pathway.

Graham: Yes—thank you for that in-depth answer, thank you.

You have been here before at this point; that is what I wish to say to you. You are part of a bigger union and one day you may even become re-joined with them again. Take that piece of knowledge with you my friend, because it is important for your growth. (Thank you) I know, for example, that as a group, you have grown much, you have given your Love and your Heart and your Spirit to those who need of your help and knowledge—use it wisely when you can; and you all have that capability, all of you within this room. I hope that helps a little. It is difficult to explain, about something you have never achieved or wanted to achieve, but you know within your Soul, what is right and what is wrong.

Graham: What is wonderful Salumet, is that you have given us a goal, you've made us aware of these things...

It is endless, your goal is endless, and that is a hard concept to take in, but you can, if you so desire.

Di: It's taking the small steps—by becoming kinder, it makes everybody else kinder...

Yes, you are the stepladder for others.

Di: That's right, that's what I'm trying to say! (Giggles)

Yes, yes, you are quite correct.

Paul: I wonder if that word 'enlightenment' is a bit misleading, making you think there is an 'all-complete', but you are never complete, it's a never-ending journey.

Yes, you are quite correct, you see how your knowledge has grown from a few of your years, how much you have taken in and understand—that is growth, yes.

Mark: It should be a verb really: 'enlightening'.

Yes. Do you have any more questions?

Sarah: You told us that the other beings came to help us build the pyramids and maybe move the Stonehenge stones, and I wondered why they'd come? Was it just curiosity, or to help mankind?

You wish to know why it was built?

Sarah: No, why did these people from other planets came here? You told us that the pyramids were built for space travel...

Yes, because we are all of one energy. There are many planets, where others who have been estranged from their other planets, who come forward to help whenever needed. It is the history of existence, that is my words for that—it is the history of existence. (Thank you)

Paul: So is it like a natural thing, as we evolve...

No, they were built, I can tell you for good reason, for improvement, for all of the things that a society might need, but like in all of your history books in modern times, it is not always correct, it is not always straightforward.

Sabine: Have they been altered, in a way that they are no longer working in the way they were supposed to?

I can tell you a little only of that, that there were problems on many occasions on many planets that were not fulfilled, many problems, and you have to realise that the people of the other planets have been very much more advanced than you upon this small planet are. So, would it not be natural for a neighbour to help? (Agreed) Even though they may be different, in the same way as there is a difference in the countries of your world. (Agreed) But they will help if need be.

Paul: Because, as you said before, they're like our cosmic brothers, like family (Yes!) So, it would be natural for all to come together and form greater unions.

Yes, and of course that union is very important for the growth of all of the planets, all of existence. It's difficult to explain, because energy is expanding all of the time, yes.

Di: And our media fills most human beings with absolute fear and dread that we would be communicating with other life forms and things like that. I'm not sure that they know that they wouldn't come with any bad intentions. (No.) They're very fearful of any of that.

And I am sure, and I know there were many problems back as far as the pyramids, and of course in time, in existence that is a very short time, do you understand? (Agreed) The world and your world and all of the worlds are growing and expanding and doing all they can to exist, and that existence is to EXPAND the use of LOVE; do not forget—the word LOVE is the most important one in all of existence.

Graham: Spiritual truth is exactly relevant here as it is everywhere else, throughout all that there is, (Yes) and I should think there's no difference.

Yes, there comes a time when parts of the universes grow into one another, but we are getting into complicated places and statements. You cannot understand what you have no ideas about, but the UNION that is made between these planets is a noble and a true one.

Paul: And that's all to come.

You have a very long way to go, my dear friend. You are almost like a baby of existence.

(Chuckles)

Paul: And yet it seems like our ancestors did forge some nice unions with our cosmic brothers, building pyramids and maybe other temples and structures and things; but then I guess they returned to their own planets or somewhere else, I don't know, but they were here at various times in our history, but maybe we've needed to go it alone for a bit?

How would you explain in the future, what this planet you exist on, how did it exist, without help from others? You are always a step behind what is going on and it is very difficult to give you an answer that is understandable.

Paul: Perhaps they're still here, perhaps we are getting so much help...

I think I have to say, the best way you can cope with your existence, is to do it with PATIENCE and LOVE for your fellow Man. (Agreed) And where no 'Men' as you know it exist, then you give Love and allow that energy to grow—It is all about LOVE.

Paul: Keeping it simple.

Keeping it simple.

Paul: Love for ourselves as well, as we have been working on...

Love for another person.

Paul: And for others, yeah. (Yes)

Sara: And just working in our communities, patiently with people and I find individuals and then how they interact with each other, (Yes) helping the Love to expand within groups of people, so that all the little negativities get ironed away and you can create loving groups of people...

Yes, and then they all unite together to make one beautiful bubble.

Sara: Yes, and it feels like a family to them. And I just think in terms of individuals strengthening them, then groups—I feel it's a contribution anyway.

Yes, you have to remember that the simple beings that you are on this planet, is the normal for this planet at this time. Try not to be too concerned about what has gone and what is to come, I will repeat what I have done so many times, told you TO LIVE IN THE MOMENT. And you then, gently travel along life's pathway, as you would put it, along the pathway of existence, of knowledge, of LOVE.

Sara: And I think if we surrender ourselves to Spirit, to just help each day wherever we are, (Yes) I find people come, things happen, situations are there.

Yes, that's right, they are placed before you to do what you should, you are given the opportunity to change how things work, and it is then up to you to decide which way you want to go. Man always has a choice and that is his responsibility; but yes, we live in a world... (Pause)

I'm being told: "Your day will come."

Paul: Thank you. That is good advice to be in the now—we've had reminders about that recently.

And you must always remember, before I go, you are being taught by a conglomerate—people who have had different experiences, but come from the same energy group. Always remember that—there will be some who will surge forward and some who will fall back, whilst on this planet; but you do have the opportunity to move forward at all times.

So, my dear friends, it has been a great privilege to speak with you, I know it gets more difficult as we go forward, but I ask that you remember: YOU ARE ALL ENERGY OF LOVE.

You work tirelessly to help others who are ill, and I know you have seen the results. So, continue in any way you can, to continue to grow at all times—I will say, and take my leave.

All: Thank you and our Love goes with you.

Paul: Until we meet again.

Enlightenment:

Graham's question on enlightenment, is based on the author David R. Hawkins MD. Ph D.

Conglomerate beings

2000/02/29:

I told you that I was a conglomerate of beings... One aspect of my soul aspect is here with you—the aspect that is able to lower the vibration to be with you, to join with you. There are parts of my soul aspect, which would not be able to join with you in this manner. I do not want to complicate it for you, because it is complicated, but you are meeting with me and I am but one small aspect of the whole of the soul.

2000/07/10:

...I told you that I was a conglomerate of beings. I am not given information one-to-one, as you would say on this Earth, but the knowledge which I bring to you is, how shall I say, knowledge that has been obtained by many over many, many years of your time. That is why I used the word 'our' rather than 'I', or 'me', or 'mine' or 'my'.

Remember that what I bring to you is knowledge from a Source, not a knowledge of one being. That is what you must always remember, that what I bring to you is knowledge gained by time and beings of great knowledge; but for the benefit of you here on this planet it would have to seem as if I am one being.

2003/05/12:

When I say 'I', I do not speak as a single entity. I am speaking for that conglomerate of being that is all-knowing, all-growing and always evolving. When it was decided that we must come to you as a group for the purposes of information and growth, you were not chosen lightly. I told you that it had taken many, many years of time for me to come to you...

One aspect of the beings from whence I come to you has indeed trodden an earthly pathway, but to give you a name, a time, a place would be of little use to you, because that being was not one with recognition—but no matter, was indeed a great soul; but one aspect of this conglomerate of beings has indeed trodden an earthly pathway. Another aspect of this self has lived on other universes, on other planets. So, you see, the knowledge which I bring is indeed varied and wide.

2016/05/16:

You can see a conglomerate of being as a universe of Truth—the University of Truth, if you like...

2023/03/13-Salumet

As expected, after healing prayers, our teacher Salumet spoke for the first time this year. We also had a new guest this evening—audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12176677/2023_03_13.mp3

Sabine: Good evening Salumet and welcome.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

As always, we are pleased to join with you once again.

Paul: Thank you.

Firstly, I wish to thank the gentleman who visits us this time. He is a little lost at this moment in time. I have to say, he is searching for something he already has—whether he agrees with this or not, this is part of his problem. He becomes so overwhelmed with all that is good from Spirit and yet, he still seems to be very puzzled. Would you agree with me, my dear friend?

Brian: Yes.

You have been seeking for quite some time, and if you would allow us, we will also try to help you, help you to understand what life is all about. You would wish that it could all be speeded up, but the lesson of patience is a very good one.

Now, my dear friends, let me speak with you all. It is such joy when we come together, because, my dear friends, you listen quietly, to the words that I use, not only my words, but the conglomeration of words—but you know all about that. I wish to say to you, that as the year begins to become older in time, so there will be many changes happening within this group. Please do keep my words for what has been said this evening. Is there anything you wish to ask, before I speak again?

Pause

You have all become very quiet!

Chuckles

Yes, there is nothing to be afraid of, so let us have this conversation.

Sara: Could I ask Salumet about last week, I had a new experience in this group and I was very happy about it, but it took all of us a little by surprise, because it was quite a powerful and intense one. I wanted to ask whether you would be able to say, if it would have continued to be a rescue, had we not been so surprised, or whether it was enough just to release the fear that the Spirit had?

Yes, the energy that you had last time, was indeed quite strong and we had picked up your energy, saying that you wished to be used, but yes, you are correct, my dear friend, it was a little too much for that one time. But you must not—try not to be alone when these things happen, and I know you will be sensible.

Sara: Yes, I'm very happy to be used.

Yes, that is what it was all about, (Thank you) because your permission was given, we were rather overrun by Love and wishing to help you, but I would say to you, continue with the work, you have many around you who are here to help.

Sara: Yeah, thank you.

Are you happy with that answer?

Sara: Yes, very happy, thank you.

Paul: Any other questions anybody?

I have never known you so quiet—no questions?

Mark: I was wondering about, it occurred to me that when we experience any kind of pleasure, if we smile, if we have a massage, our brain releases endorphins, and that makes us feel good. Also, if we experience pain or stress, our brain releases endorphins, which is a chemical which uplifts us. I was wondering whether spiritual upliftment is the same, or whether the upliftment came in a different way, in a more energetic rather than a chemical way?

Yes, I understand what you are saying—yes, all of these powerful energies belong to the earth plane, if you can understand, so in a way they are different and yet they are not. It is not wise to try to discern whether one thing is better than another—it is better that you accept what is given to you by Spirit and you cannot have one thing without the Spirit helping you. So yes, the endorphins that you mention, are powerful tools to keep human beings happy, but you can go beyond this, into the Land of Spirit, shall we say, into the land of HOPE, without too much being questioned. Do you understand? (Um) No?

Mark: Well, my understanding was, when you talk about going to the 'Land of Hope', are we talking about...

When you are using endorphins, it belongs to the natural course of life—the human body. The human body, is just like a cloak, as you know, for the Spirit. So, I would say to you, embrace them both and have the understanding of what life is all about, which you can do at any time, there is nothing to stop you. In fact, I would say, you have all the power of Spirit behind you, when any of these things occur. I hope that will help you understand.

Mark: Thank you.

Sabine: Does that mean when you think about an event that made you really happy, you actually still feel like that, even though the endorphins aren't released anymore, is that what you're saying, that in the 'Spirit Land', we sort of feel it?

You are responsible for all your conditions health-wise and just physically. I would say to you, try to bring together the feelings of the physical world and the spiritual world—there is nothing any simpler than that. So, I say to you, do not worry too much, because when you speak of endorphins, you already have that capacity to smile and to live life to the fullest. After all, we in Spirit come to help you at all times of your lives. It may be for a short time there may be a space, but it is up to you to know and to accept. Does that make sense for you?

Sabine: Yeah, we come again to the same thing of the Power of Thoughts—thinking it's healthy and thinking it's all very well, (Yes) then it will be, and it is.

Yes. I will take one more question before I speak to you.

Graham: Could I ask a question about life reviews, because I've been reading about life reviews a little bit. I was wondering whether a life review, as something that happens soon after you've returned to Spirit world, is this a solitary thing, where you're on your own and you're spoken to by an advanced being, or is it something where friends or family or people that you're close to share with you—is this a shared experience of a solitary experience?

When first you come to our world, you retain the feeling of the human being that you have been upon the earth; (Yes) that is in order that you recognise loved ones and people that you have known whilst upon the earth. It is a natural happening and that is why it is done; but you do not need these overcoats of energy—you are who you are—Spirit, purely and wholly and carefully—all of it belongs to the Spirit world, and you know that you are Spirit through and through. (Yes) So, I would say to you, accept what happens on your next journey, look beyond what you have now and try to make sense of what is ahead of you. (Right) Does that help you? But you will never remain the same, once those loved ones have made contact with you.

Graham: I could imagine that, yes!

In fact, many people like to say they will have a party.

Smiles/chuckles

So, I would take their advice, take the Love that they bring to you, to try to help you, yes.

Graham: Yes, there's obviously a period of adjustment, there are many changes, I should imagine.

You spoke about levels earlier, that is a phrase used by many: 'We're on to level 2, level 3...' It does not quite make sense to me, because levels mean cutting themselves off from the whole, and that is not what you wish to do. (Agreed) Yes.

Graham: Yes, we are part of a huge...

You will never have full understanding of what is to come and what is to happen, but what I can tell you is, the Love and energy that you feel, will always stay with you, it will never come back to earth in that state of mind, you will continue to grow—at all stages you will grow, yes.

Graham: Yes, I do feel at times, very powerful, beautiful energies inside me—very excited and extremely happy—it feels almost unbearably happy sometimes. (Yes) I'm sure it's part of this group, but...

But that is very good for you to feel that, it means you are allowing the Spirit to flow through every part of your being and you can only go forward from there.

Graham: Yes, I could imagine that, yes, it's a wonderful feeling.

It is indeed, and I can only tell you that it gets better, without trying to explain the beauty of it all.

Graham: Yes, we have much to look forward to.

But do not wish away your own human lives.

Graham: No, of course not.

There is still joy, and happiness there and who knows, you may have returned to help many people and...

Graham: I find that you see beauty everywhere, more and more so, you see beauty, even in places that once would have been a negative place, but you feel that energy everywhere.

It is very good, is it not? (Yes) Yes, I will leave you with that feeling of happiness and joy, yes. (Thank you) I will take one more question.

Natalie: Could you confirm, I was told the other day I should use amethyst crystal, to sleep with it under my pillow, or near me, to block negative intuition. (Yes)—could you confirm whether that's true or not, please?

There is much controversy amongst all of these things and these beautiful stones have their own energy. Amethyst has been used by many on the earth-plane for many, many years; if it helps you, then I say use it, but do not forget that you have your own energy that can deal with these many problems. I want you to realise how powerful each and every one of you are, not only for yourselves, but in teaching others upon this earth-plane, yes. There are many ways of resting in the night time on earth—it could be a stone, it could be music, it could be communication. We have to leave something for you to do. Yes.

Natalie: Thank you.

I hope that helps—It will not harm you in any way, but I just want you to realise how powerful you are, without anything to hold you back.

Natalie: Okay, thank you.

Okay, I think on that, I will leave you for now.

Paul: It sounds like there's some changes you mentioned earlier for this group—things to look forward to, or just changes?

Well, we will come to that a little later in your year—yes, there are changes coming, yes.

I ask and I pray for you all, to help those in your world, who are suffering so much at this time. I have not forgotten them and here in Spirit, we have much help, extra help at the moment. So, take our blessings with you, wherever you may settle, until we meet again.

All: Thank you/our Love goes with you.

Life reviews:

Further information about life reviews, mentioned earlier:

1998/01/12: Ernest, a quest speaker:

Yes, that's the traumatic part of any passing, and that's why we have people such as myself, to stand by to offer help, if we're needed...

To help buffet you and surround you and help you over—probably the shock, because most people are shocked at what they haven't done.

Yes, it's not what they have done, it's what they haven't done and all their missed opportunities. It's a very big shock I tell you and of course it's very traumatic for many; there are many tears, because we do have tears—It's not all happiness to begin with...

And when that's done, I expect the party begins...

2023/05/15-Salumet

This evening, we were joyful to have Salumet, who'd clearly been around during our discussion—audio link:

http://www.salumetandfriends.org/app/download/12239682/2023_05_15+salumet.mp3

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I will not stay long this time. We have been engrossed in the unhappiness of others. It is a recurring thing for many, many people. There are many aspects to being unhappy. What would you believe to be the main cause of a person filled with unhappiness?

Sabine: Losing the connection to Source.

Yes, there are many reasons of course. I would say to you only this, my dear friends: Happiness must continue at all times, even although it is difficult for you and your families. God has created for us, the ability to smile, the ability to listen, the ability to help and comfort. So, I say to you my dear friends, chose whichever options you will, but each and every day, you must give thanks to that Great Creative Force, which is the engine for us all.

Do any of you have any specific ideas of how you can help? And I know that you do it with your healing thoughts, but is there anything else you feel should be integrated into your sense of living? Would anyone wish to speak?

Sara: I know what I like to do that works for me. I try to share with as many people as I can, the tips that work for me, which are meditation—giving thanks in that meditation for all the blessings, and doing what we can to help people every day, using our abilities, our gifts, if you like, and that brings us joy then—and taking opportunities really.

Yes, being only one person, you would imagine that it was too difficult to help someone singularly, but it is not. Again, I repeat: Smile, Feel and Touch your brother man—there are so many different ways.

Sabine: It's just being there, isn't it—there for the other?

Eve: Listening to their problems.

Yes, but sometimes it needs a little nudge from those who are around you at all times, yes. But we understand from here in Spirit, what it is all about. It is a loss of Love from the Great Creative Force and you must rebuild it, if you wish anyone to become more aware of the Love that surrounds you.

I could not help but come to you this evening, without any warning!

All: Lovely surprise/a joy!

Sara: And we can share your words too, (Yes) when they are transcribed, which will reach many at this time, because it is what people need to hear.

Not only will it benefit others, but it will benefit you yourselves—remember this also.

So, that is all I wish to say this time—and forgive me for the interruption.

All: You weren't interrupting/thanks

Now I will leave you to continue with your evening.

Sabine: And I'm sure good friend Lilian has reached you safely?

Yes—I will withdraw, I leave you with my Love.

We expressed our thanks and Love, as Salumet withdrew rather quickly, probably as the power dropped off.

As Eileen 'returned', she had a feeling of deep gratitude for us all. Everyone voiced their heartfelt gratitude for Eileen also, and all the pivotal work she's done over the many years.
We also send our gratitude and Love to dear Lilian, who recently made her special golden journey Home, where she'll be so very warmly and lovingly welcomed by so many.

Keep up the BRIGHT THOUGHTS:

You must send your Love to all things upon the planet; it is not the only planet which is going through some trauma, but you must always be hopeful, you must always be positive, because if only you could see the brightness of your spiritual lights, I have said this on many occasions, but I feel I need to reiterate it, you must always think brightly with good thoughts and know, not just hope, KNOW that all can be well.

Salumet 2020/01/13
