Les: It certainly has been doing that, no question about it. I know I know infinitely more now and feel infinitely more, than when you first began coming to us; and for that I'm profoundly grateful.

I do not want you to be grateful. After all I come only to bring you Love and to help you to gain a little more understanding and knowledge, because my dear friend, in doing so, you then become the emissaries of such knowledge. Do you not see? In doing this you go forward and you extend that knowledge, you extend your love and your wisdom and all that you desire for human kind.

Les: Yes we can understand that, that we can give to others what you have given to us.

It, my dear friends, should become natural to you after some time, it should not be a preconceived thought, that it should be given to others by the way that you conduct your lives. You understand?

Les: Yes we do and I think all of us now, are able to, as I have said many times, teach by example rather than by words.

That is what I would wish for you and I would say that in the main, that is what you try to achieve. I do not say each one of you can achieve it fully, nor would we expect you to whilst clothed in these bodies. But in saying this, your spirit has allowed the knowledge to come forward and it will be used wisely, I know.

Les: Going back to what you said about not judging, if we do presume to judge, I think we could say also that we are in effect, judging ourselves, in so-doing?

Is this not what I said last time? In seeing others, you see yourselves. In judging others, you are judging yourself. Can you not see this?

Les: Yes, it's something else for us to ponder on, as you would say.

Yes, this is always my desire that I bring you new thoughts that you may think upon each time I leave you, in order that you grow. I don't mean grow in the human sense, but that wisdom that is innate within you, but sometimes needs a little helping hand, that that knowledge and wisdom comes forth. That is what we are trying to achieve on this Earth planet.

Les: I think everybody here would agree that you have opened many doors and many aspects and we all do a great deal of thinking after these meetings I'm sure. Does anybody deny that?

George: No, I would say going forward in this way, is a great joy and pleasure.

Yes, because with spiritual knowledge, there comes love and indeed pleasure as you call it, because in your growing, you are extending that wisdom, all-encompassing love, which after all, is what we are all about. You understand?

Les: Yes, I think you've shown us all, a far greater depth of feeling and understanding, in what you have told us.

May I say one last thing about this: That when the emotions are quietened, then truly understanding begins. When you can control the emotion, the human emotion, the human element of the soul, then indeed the understanding spiritually becomes greater.

Les: Yes I must admit that I've been much better able to control many of my mental emotions, since you began teaching.

Yes, that is something that many of your peoples do not fully understand. Too often we hear remarks like, that person is hard, because they show no emotion. Let me say these tender emotions belong to your human form. The love emotion is the one that belongs to spirit. And I use the word 'emotion' here only in the context that that is the word you use to express so many feelings.

Les: Yes I would agree with what you say, because in the past I have been called callous and unfeeling. That should not concern you, because you know dear friend, that that is far from the truth.

Les: Quite. No, it didn't concern me, but of course it's not possible to explain to others, what you've just told us, that those human emotions have to be controlled, because they're of no value, to progress. It is natural that you have these human emotions, because you are human. But what you need to cultivate, is unconditional love for all mankind. And after all, love does not judge. Again as always I have to repeat these words to you, because they are important in the development of each one of you.

Les: Of course. We don't mind how often you repeat them.

I can assure you, that we will use many words, many times, on many occasions. But in doing so, I hope each time we speak these words that your understanding grows. It has grown much since we came together; I hope you feel it, but I do not think you fully understand just how much.

Les: No, probably we don't; it's been a gradual thing.

Yes, that would be our intention that knowledge and wisdom do not come to you so easily. Now do we have questions this time?

Les: Does anybody have a question? I always seem to monopolise—does somebody else please have a question?

George: Our understanding is very limited with respect to we humans. I think it helps to visualise things in a simple way sometimes. In thinking of spirit realms, I sometimes think of a ladder with many rungs. A few rungs up from the bottom, there is a balloon attached and that I think of as planet Earth. When we go into spirit, those who have had what I might call reasonable lives, perhaps go onto the rungs that are close to Earth. Those who have reached more enlightenment, progress further up the ladder and those who have done extremely poorly, perhaps go to the bottom rung and perhaps you would say, will take aeons of time to work their way up. Does that seem a sensible sort of rough visualisation?

Let me reply this time to you. It matters not what each one of you visualise in your own way, to bring you closer to spirit; if this visualisation brings you nearer to understanding, then so be it. I would not question your methods, because there is no one answer for each individual on this planet, because after all, you are individual and you will use your thoughts in your own individual way. So I would say to you sir, continue with your visualisation, it is as good as any I have heard described. If it suits you, then continue to use.

George: Thank you. Could I go on to refer to the between-worlds counselling, that has occurred here? (Yes) With that visualisation in mind, I would think that mostly we have had visits from souls, who are in the realms close to Earth, from those rungs on the ladder that are close to Earth. But would it be conceivable that one might have souls from the bottom of the ladder, brought along for counselling, or would that be impossible?

I believe we have spoken much, but I will try to answer your question more fully. Those who come to our world, each one is faced with all that has gone before. You know and understand that each soul goes to the destination most apt to it. Those who are lost, you cannot class I believe, as souls who have caused much havoc in your world. You know and fully recognise that those souls closest to this earthly plane, return and are returned to you, for help. But they can only be returned, if they are willing and they are ready spiritually to be helped—that is the knowledge that we have in our world. They are then returned and as you fully know, rescue takes place between our world and your own. Now those souls who you speak of as going further down your ladder, are those lost souls who are indeed lost and can for many aeons of time, remain in darkness spiritually. Only, and only when they are ready to be helped, would they possibly be returned to this planet for help. But it is most likely, that because of the condition of the soul that the help would be from our side of life. Does that answer your question?

George: Yes that does help, thank you. It's a point I had wondered about.

I do believe that our good friend could explain a little fully for you. But I do not wish to dwell on this for too long. Perhaps afterwards my dear friend, you can explain why we bring others to you, to be helped, more fully?

Les: Yes surely.

But those souls, who are indeed lost for aeons of time, we are speaking on something entirely different from those souls brought to you. They only will be returned, if we know it is time for them to be helped.

(Thanks expressed)

Les: Any other question?

Mark: Yes I've got a question. A while back we thought there was a visitation from Hitler, but later on we thought that it possibly wasn't, but I'm still not sure. Would it be possible to have this confirmed, or some information as to what was actually going on and why it happened?

George: Perhaps I could add that it did seem very, very genuine at the time and I did have that particular case in mind. (Re: previous question)

Yes, we have spoken have we not, about this? Did I not confirm for you, that someone who has gone, gone so wrong in their lifetime, shall we say—it would not be possible for them to return, in such a short space of time, unless they were truly repentant. Let me confirm for you, I know of the soul you speak of and I have to tell you, that still he remains lost.

Mark: And I think at the time, there was reported some clairvoyance that somebody saw a circle of people trying to get at this person and it was assumed at the time, that these were the Jewish people hating Hitler and that he was being protected. Okay it wasn't that, but—

Les: No, could I butt in Mark a moment please, before we take Salumet's time. I did explain the other time when we were speaking about it, that those who are so wishful, can presume and take the personality of another, without it being true. This is what I explained last time and this is what happened, which is why I put a question mark, against the name Hitler.

What I wish you to know—again we must return to the energy, the power of the energy, which is used in groups such as this; it is a doorway in. No one side or another has more power, but you have to remember this, that there are those in our world as we have spoken about previously this evening; their energy is so dark, so dense, that the soul craves for the light. Whether it be for the purity of children, whether it be the spiritual light within a group such as this, if the opportunity is there, they can seize that opportunity. And although you are well-guarded, as you obviously know, occasions such as this will happen, from time to time. No harm can come to the instrument or the medium as you call them, but because of the light available, they will seek the opportunity to use. We must speak once more about energy, because this is the area that you do not fully understand. It all has to do with the energy, which each soul has.

Les: Would I be right in saying Salumet, that even though I knew, or was pretty sure it wasn't the person it was claiming to be, nevertheless that soul would have been helped, to some degree?

Of course, in seeking and obtaining the light, they have lightened their own energy pattern.

Les: Because that runs parallel to something I said I believe last week, that though my physical reactions sometimes during a rescue, were not conducive to it being done, something impelled me to have compassion for that soul and deal with it.

That is how we would wish you to deal with it. Do not feel that you have to be negative about these occasions—that is not what we would desire. All souls who need help will get the help they need when they need it, even in controlled circumstances such as these meetings. You have to remember that there are many, many, many souls, who are seeking the light of your purer energies and they will move towards it. Do you understand?

Mark: Yes, that's a very nice explanation.

But if you are unsure, let us qualify it now and put it to an end.

Les: Yes that does confirm what I have said at various times in the past, that regardless of the circumstances of our own feelings, we have got to help.

Mark: Yes, somebody came in and they pretended to be somebody they weren't, but they received some healing through it (Yes) and although they slightly misled us, some good work went on.

Les: They didn't altogether mislead us Mark, let's be quite accurate, because I was suspicious, nevertheless they had to receive help. (Yes)

Let us compare, after all you know and understand that you do not change drastically, when you come to our side of life. You do not suddenly change and within those souls who come with us, you always have the mischievous ones, who have tended to be anyway, in their lifetime, and have the feeling that they wish to continue to do so—because of their freewill, it is difficult to stop them, if the thought is powerful enough. Again I must return to the power behind the thought. It is a vast topic—we will keep returning, until you begin to understand. Are you happy with that explanation?

Mark: Yes, thank you.

Les: I compare them to people who exist on this Earth, who confess to a murder, when they've never been near the place. (Yes) You have a parallel there you see, and they do it on the other side too. But again we can't question it, we've got to do the job we have set ourselves to do, to help them. (Yes)

Again, we return to my earlier words, do not judge; give out love, compassion and you will see change.

Les: Thank you very much for that explanation; that has cleared the air a lot.

If it has not, I wish to put it to rest this time and let us go forward.

Les: Everybody happy with the explanation? (Affirmed) No queries at all? We can put this subject to bed then? (Agreement + thanks)

I think this time we will leave it for you to think about this time. There is much once more for you to ponder, until we meet again.

Les: That's one thing that's very certain, you always leave us plenty to ponder. (Agreed) Thank you very much again, God be with you.

I hope the expansion of thought increases that love and compassion within you all, that peace and joy be yours each day of your living. And remember, I am with you all; I know and I receive your thoughts. Let me tell you dear friends that they have not gone unnoticed and I want to say, that your thanks is not necessary. But can I say to you all dear friends that my gratitude to you, is much, much more. I thank you for your patience in listening, but I know that we will remain together, for a long time to come. (Thanks + farewells)

There then followed another through Eileen, who directed Les to stand next to Sarah, who was used in a rescue. Rescue audios available on website: www.salumetandfriends.org

~3rd November 1997~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As always I thank you for your welcome. Conditions this time are conducive to my working slowly with this one. So we, if you permit, will allow others to come close to each one of you, in order that individual help be given—questions to be asked and responded to individually and to allow each one this time, to further their own spiritual growth. You have one question this time, my dear friend?

Les: Yes I have and it arises from my pondering much about what you have told us about you and others like you, having many parts, which enables a particular part to be with each of us. I have wondered whether this ability derives from your superior spiritual development, or whether we as spiritual beings, also have the ability to be in many parts for the assistance of others.

Yes, I will answer you quickly this time. I my dear friends, have no more abilities than each one here. The only difference I might add is that I have grown spiritually, therefore my capabilities have been quickened if you like, but there is nothing I can do, that you cannot. After all, have we not spoken about the possibility of the physical being, being in one place, whilst being seen in another?

Les: Yes we have spoken of that, but would that mean that many of our duplicates, if I can use that expression, can be seen elsewhere, while we still have only one physical body on this planet?

No, that is your limitation.

Les: This is what puzzles me. I didn't think that we could—not as you can.

No, of course the being clothed in the physical overcoat, limits what can be done. But what I wish you to know is that all beings are equal. The only difference is in the raising of the consciousness and how each soul develops; then all possibilities are open to each soul. After all, when you return home, you return to the many aspects of the soul, which belong to each one of you. You understand?

Les: Yes I think we all do. So at this present stage of development, it would not be possible for our spirit personalities, to be split into many parts, as yours is.?

No, that would not be possible for you at this stage of your spiritual development.

Les: Thank you very much, I couldn't imagine that it could be, but as you've suggested, we do ponder these things and that of course leads to further questioning.

And that is our deepest desire, that in questioning you gain further knowledge spiritually—we ask you for no more. If you can achieve the consciousness that you have now, if you can achieve its growth in any way, we could not ask more of you, whilst you are limited in these bodies.

Les: But one day, if our spiritual knowledge is sufficient, we would be able to be an energy of many parts, many facets, to use your expression?

My dear friends, of course you will, but I have to tell you, you are speaking of much time.

Les: Much time ahead, yes I was afraid you were going to say that.

Much time that you could not even begin to ponder upon.

Les: No, so we'll just keep along the path we're on now and wait for events to overtake us?

Provided you grow in your own spirituality, as long as the soul begins and grows in knowledge and in wisdom and in love, then you will reach such destinations, that each step of your journey, will entitle you to no more than to be able to express more fully, all of those spiritual capabilities within you.

Les: Thank you very much we have that to look forward to.

Now, I must devote some time here, if you will permit to use this one?

Les: Certainly, and thank you very much. God be with you.

One then briefly followed through Sue, explaining that they would be working closely with her over the next few weeks.

There was then one through Sarah, saying that she was assisting everyone in dealing with their fears. Sallie felt that this related to her particularly, as she had been struggling with this issue. The channel through Sarah did not stay long, but Les continued the discussion, some of which follows:

Sallie: Basically I'm relying on what's inside of me and my connection with a higher spirit to guide me, rather than looking over my shoulder and being worried about bad forces attacking me—I've not explained this very well, but —

Les: You don't have to worry about bad forces attacking you—you can't do anything about bad forces physically, can you? You have to rely upon your inner self, to have the protection against what you are wrongly presuming attack you.

Sallie: I don't think they want to even attack me.

Les: No, where did you get this idea from?

Sallie: My friend was frightened for me.

Les: They have no cause to be frightened. It sounds awful to say, but they are arrogant to think that they can help you, unless they are aware of spiritual development. Their arrogance astounds me really, to think they can try and advise you and are frightened for you, when they have no knowledge.

Sallie: The person means well.

Les: I know, I don't doubt that, I say this in a kindly way, I'm not criticising them. But they have to themselves learn more, before they can possibly be in a position to feel for you.

Sallie: That's what I think as well.

Les: They are talking out of blackness. Though they mean well, they are looking at it on a physical basis.

Sallie: I believe the more love I can develop in myself, the more good I can see, the more there is—if I don't see the darkness and I don't see the bad, it doesn't actually exist.

Les: You are quite right Sallie, don't forget the power of thought. If you think it exists, you will attract it.

Deny the fact that it does exist. With all respect to your friends and all their intentions, what they think is unimportant, it is what YOU think that is important. And so long as you think you are on the right path, and are working in the aspect of love, that's all you have to think about. That in itself will dispense fear.

Sallie: It's been a good lesson though and of course it's all the more pointed, because of the closeness of the relationship. Had it not been someone so closely connected, I wouldn't have —

Les: No, basically, you are using your own love potency to not risk hurting them, aren't you?

Sallie: I felt perhaps I'd said too much too soon.

Les: Possibly. It's better to say as little as possible. Let them ask the questions and just give simple answers, otherwise they don't understand.

Les continued to talk with Sallie quietly about this, while work continued with Sue and Eileen. There was then a quick message through Sue, to ask if we were all happy and to say the meeting was coming to a close.

~10th November 1997~

At the start of the meeting, Les gave the group some good news concerning a family member in Canada, who'd been badly injured. This provided more evidence and an excellent example for us all, concerning the POWER OF THOUGHT.

Les: Before we start, remember two or three weeks ago I asked you to give healing thoughts to a young boy? (Affirmed) I had a phone call from Canada yesterday saying he is making such remarkable progress, the doctors and surgeons cannot understand it. (Delight expressed by sitters)

Mark: So the damage won't be as bad as they had thought?

Les: Not as bad and she said they were really astonished at his progress—so I've done some new slips, with the hospital address and the ward, if you'll take a slip when you go please and continue the healing thoughts for him please, thank you. (Agreement + thanks)

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Let us join this time, in thanks to the Great Creative Force, for love which binds us all. We ask for ever-increasing consciousness of Spirit, that we may in the spiral of life, continue in knowledge, wisdom and love, in order that we as loving channels go forth and create that light of attraction, that brings to each one, individuals in need of help and your Love. We ask thanks for our daily living, that we as sparks of your eternal Love may continue to go forth in truth, in light and in ever-increasing Love, for all of mankind.

Les: Amen. Thank you very much.

My dear friends, this time, I came to you on a wave of much love and gratitude. Are you now prepared to believe the power of your love, how that combined love can be utilised for good?

Les: Yes we are indeed, I take it you refer to my message before we began?

I do.

Les: Yes and we are grateful for all the love that has been sent from those in your world.

But my friends, it is not unusual. I wish you to know that all of you have the capacity of much love, to use with the power of your thoughts. After all, the power of your love can transcend all of life's problems. I hope that now, you are beginning to understand what vessels you are, what vessels of love and truth you have become. And in using such love, you are ever-increasing your own consciousness and (in) increasing your consciousness, thereby you exude more love. It is a never-ending trail towards perfection.

Les: Yes, it would certainly seem to aim at and it is an object lesson to us all here. If any of us had a doubt, I think it's dispelled now.

There will come to you, many opportunities to send forth such love, not only from each individual, but as a concerted effort of love, by many. Not only here, but from many of other worlds.

Les: We're very happy to do that and we look forward to the opportunities that we can have, to help others in that way.

Do you not see dear friends, that in giving, you are receiving; in receiving, you are giving? Do you understand?

Les: Yes we do, each feeds on the other, doesn't it and each enhances the other.

Yes we have discussed recently, a little about looking at others and I would wish you to know that in giving, you are indeed receiving, much, much more.

Les: Thank you

Now dear friends, I will take questions this time, but before I do, I wish to say to you this: That for some time, I have to withdraw from you.

Les: Oh, we're sorry to hear that.

Please do not be sorry, I will return to you, but it is necessary for the embodiment of light and love, to be renewed within these beings that I bring with me. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, you have had to do the same thing a year ago in our time and we do quite understand. We're being selfish when we say we're sorry. Of course we do wish you God's speed in your return and we look forward to you coming back in due course.

I know that I will be welcomed, because since first we met, I have been most comfortable with you all. (Thanks expressed) Remember always, I will hear you and will help you, but for several of your earthly weeks, I cannot speak with you, as I do now.

Les: No, we do understand and we thank you for the time you do give us. We only hope that your return home will be a wonderful experience for you.

Always it is a joyous one. But of course, I also have much to discover and also to learn, you understand?

Les: Yes we do.

Now, have you questions this time?

Les: Yes I have been giving a great deal of thought to your teaching about energy. What I'm going to ask may seem stupid ultimately, so I apologise in advance, but so far as I can see, the soul, of which you have spoken so much, is energy. You've told us that animals have a soul to a lesser degree, that plants and trees have energy embodied in them, which can blend with ours. And I have been wondering, if a tree is cut down, and its timber used say in the manufacture of furniture, ultimately that furniture is worn out and probably will be burned. But since energy is indestructible, does the energy which was within that timber, return in some way to the source of Creation?

Of course, it is simple—you have answered your own question. Energy is indeed indestructible, so therefore it returns to the source of all energy. It is difficult for you all I know, to understand the working of energy in its many forms, but it is no different from mankind, if we can compare the tree to mankind. After all, when the body is decayed, does not the soul which is energy, go forward in seeking its home, its rightful place within the sphere of life.

Les: Yes, we do understand that. And also in the case of animals, they have if I can say, a 'lesser' type of soul, they also can be resurrected. That has led me to think, silly as it may sound, that plant life also must have a form of soul.

All living things are born of energy. There is not one thing within this planet Earth, which is not energised, by that all-encompassing energy, which is known to us as Love. After all, if you take your planet, it is just one mass of energy that belongs to the wider scheme of the universe. So each living thing within this planet, belongs to the larger whole, can you not see?

Les: Yes and must return to it, when its physical existence has finished?

Of course, plant energy would in effect return when it is decayed, to the soil, which is also energy. It is a continuing process, which can never be destroyed.

Les: It's an ever-lasting recycling of the energy, isn't it?

It is energy used in different forms; that is all—all energy stems from the same energy.

Les: Yes, I thought it must be returning, but since we have no tangible evidence that we can put our finger on, it was difficult to imagine it.

You will find difficulty in visualising energy, unless you have grown to recognise the energy form, the pattern of energy within your world. It is possible and many do see energy forms. It is not impossible, after all, I know you have discussed in past times, about speaking of energy being seen around peoples. What is that, if it is not spiritual seeing of the energy which surrounds the being.

Les: That's right and your instrument has seen the energy of the atmosphere.

That is our desire that this should be.

Les: So we too could see energy in the atmosphere, if we attempted to train ourselves to do so?

Look with the spiritual eye, not the physical. Always we return to spirit and not the physical.

Les: Thank you for your answer—so I wasn't being stupid after all. Does anybody else have a question for Salumet?

George: Yes, I have read a report on what is described as the Mayan crystal skulls. These are very perfectly made skulls, each from a single crystal and they may be older than the Mayan civilisation, but they are reported to have a 'between worlds,' communication facility. Is there anything you can tell us about the crystal skulls, which may be Mayan or pre-Mayan?

I understand your question, but before I answer it for you, let me say this to you dear friend: You are in need of some rest. (Yes) Yes, I will leave it with you, now let us return. I do not come to explain these mysteries of your world, of which there are many—but on this occasion, I will for you. These skulls are indeed prior to the Mayan civilisation. The Mayans were indeed a much developed race, who were aware, much aware, of all things spiritual. They knew and understood the workings of all energy forms on this Earth. These skulls you speak of were used in the way that many of your psychics and mediums of this age use glass balls, or how do you term them, crystal gazing, to build up energy between our worlds. It was only a form of communication, to which the Mayans developed their use, because of the beauty and simplicity and the easy use of them, in developing their own consciousness. Does that help you?

George: Yes it does and it's nice to have the confirmation that they are indeed pre-Mayan.

They are quite a deal older than has been said.

George: I thought they must be. Thank you very much.

Les: Of course, from what you said Salumet, the skulls themselves have no ability in communication between the worlds, they are merely a focal point, for the seers here.

Yes, as in all communication, you cannot light the light, unless you have the trigger switch, you understand? (Yes) I simplify it for you, but that is the basis of all communication.

Les: Yes, I think there has been some unnecessary mystery attached to the skulls. When I read about them many years ago, I was of the opinion that they were merely focal points and did not in themselves have any specific ability, in the field of communication.

My dear friends, let me say this to you: There is no need for any artefact, any icon, any such item, to be used for communication, between the human being and our world. After all, what better communication can you have, than your own soul?

Les: Of course not.

But always man, whilst alive on this planet, has sought many items to idolise, to utilise and to gain some form of idolatry for his own use.

Les: And to make money from it.

I would say, not always, but sometimes.

George: Yes, a part of their mystery, has been the perfection of their manufacture, which we could not manage today, in today's society.

Remember what I have said, their consciousness on spiritual matters, was great. They had abilities which have, as many of your races upon this planet—their abilities have been lost over time; abilities which each one of you possess, but have lost in the passage of your earthly time. In your so-called 'quest for knowledge', I have to say dear fiends you have lost much.

Les: Yes we can accept that too; we've lost the important things.

But with our help, we hope you will regain much, before your time expires here, that all of your world will be raised in consciousness, that each soul will come into its own, will recognise itself and the spiritual aspect and power and love, which each one of you possess.

Les: I don't think I would be far off the track, if I said to my colleague, that if he thought of the construction, or the making of those skulls being by mental laser, I would be very wrong. Understand George? (Yes) We have produced the physical laser, which does incredible things, but it was thought, which produced that and thought directly given, to things like the production of the skulls, merely cuts out the middle man.

It applies also in your own day-and-age. There are many words spoken, about beings from other planets, are there not? (Yes) We have discussed this before. Let me tell you now dear friends, that many of these planets do not need to utilise space travel, their knowledge is far greater. But at this moment in time, it is not knowledge which is given to mankind, because he is not ready for it. But there are beings who have the ability to use their spirit to the upmost, to be without any form of what you call, 'space transport,' and who have the ability to space travel. I hope I do not confuse you, but I wish to make the comparison, that in each age, there are always mysteries, which should not arise, because the simple fact remains, that your gifts of spirit are never-ending. If you use the power of your thought to its fullest capacity, there is nothing you cannot do. Dear friends, work upon the power of your thought. Again, this is my teaching to you all. Develop your power of thought, use it well in love and there is nothing that you cannot seek to do.

Les: Thank you very much.

George: Reassuring words, thank you.

Les: We shall have to learn how to use it fully.

If you do not use it, you will not grow and expand; you will not stagnate, but you will not grow either, you understand?

Les: Yes I must say that for myself, I don't want to sound conceited or egotistical—I am becoming much more aware of the ability to use the power of thought. I can't say it is producing concrete results as I would like to see, but I do know that I'm learning how to direct it into that area, for which I thank you for your teaching.

There is no need for thanks. Each one of you has the ability to grow in thought-power. But my dear friend, let me say to you one word, patience.

Les: Yes patience.

It will not come in a moment, it will not come in one year of your time, but it is an ever-learning process, but a most rewarding one if used properly.

Les: Yes I'm sure it can be.

Now my dear friends, I will take my leave of you, I look forward to our next meeting. I know that we will be refreshed and I hope that we can bring to you new knowledge and understanding. Know always that I hold you all dear, that I enfold you all within my energy of love and know that you always can call upon me for help. (Voice fades)

Les: Thank you again, for all you give and we wish you a very, very happy visit to your home. You'll still be in our thoughts.

~1stDecember 1997~

As expected Salumet did not come during the next few weeks, but the evenings continued with other work. The first one was through Eileen, explaining that other mediums would be used this evening. There then followed one through Sue, who came through and chatted through a medium for the first time. She talked about what she did on Earth (A lumberjack) and that she now also works with trees, but not cutting them down, but rather helping them to grow. Several other communications followed through Sue and Sarah simultaneously, which were difficult to follow on tape, with several voices speaking at once. Finally there was a control with a very strong voice through Eileen:

Now I can speak with you, I'll try to be quiet! (Booming voice) You know we endeavour to do much work here, therefore it is imperative that new people be used. So often we have problems when communication is tried. Without your patience and understanding, it could not take place; for this we are truly grateful.

Les: Well we are very grateful that you would allow us to help in the work like this.

I found it most difficult to remain quiet when the young lady (Sallie) was asking about being used to speak. Firstly let me say this to you: The ability is with you ALL—why do you doubt it? It is the doubt which holds you back, nothing more. I wish to say to you dear sir, that there comes to you greetings from someone on our side, who presents you with one rose.

Les: Yes I know the one, thank you very much.

Yes, early she is saying, but you understand.

Les: Yes I understand.

Yes and she wishes to thank you, because without you in her living, she would have lacked so much. I do hope you fully understand this message; it is a personal one for you.

Les: Yes and I do appreciate it and I do understand it—thank you and I was very happy to do as I did.

She knows and you know also that she has tried hard to return it to you.

Les: She certainly has done that.

It is quite good being a matchmaker. (General laughter) No, that is not why I come, that is not my purpose, but still it makes me glad.

The channel continued a bit longer in a more light-hearted way, but the main purpose was to deliver that message to Les.

~8th December 1997~

This evening was used to help spirit children who were not able for various reasons, to celebrate Christmas. Les was asked last week if he would erect a tree in the room, for this purpose, which he did. One called Marianne came through first (through Eileen) She said that she brought many children with her. Another child called Jeffrey came through Sarah and sang 'Away in a manger.' (He said he couldn't do this whilst on Earth) Another came through Sue called Mildred, who recited a little poem.

Then one came through Eileen called Monica, who said she'd only come for a pie, not to sing songs... Angela then came through Sarah to have a look at the tree. (They all loved the lights) Another came through Sue to do a little dance. Then Emily came through Eileen. She was a bit sad at first, but she cheered up after Les chatted with her. There was then one through Sue, who explained how important this evening was to all the children that had gathered. Towards the end of the meeting, a child called Michael came through Eileen, who wanted to connect with Jack and was often around him during the day. The channel also said there would be a new child for someone in this group next year; they said to treasure them, because there is no purer love than a child's love.

~15th December 1997~

The first communicator came through Eileen talking joyfully about a number of things, but mainly about eating meat and the idea that the thoughts are more important than the actions. She said that it was perhaps not quite as big an issue as some would believe—we should not become obsessed by it. Others followed with personal messages for the group.

~22th December 1997~

The first speaker came through Eileen with a personal message for one of the sitters. They then spoke to the group as a whole:

In being able to forgive, and I wish to say this to all of you here, that the capacity to forgive others, should come easily to each one of you who has knowledge, because in your forgiveness, you have created a love bond, which can be strengthened between others.

Les: Thank you, yes we have been taught the importance of being able to forgive sincerely and honestly. Not all people are able, even when they have obtained the knowledge they still find it most difficult to forgive. But I would say to all of you, to forgive is to truly love; you see what I mean?

Les: Yes we do and we do accept it's not always easy to do it, because of our human frailties, but we do try. That I must admit is a setback for you whilst you live here, but it is not impossible for you, as this young lady has demonstrated, because even if you utter the words, if it does not truly come from the heart, then those words become obsolete. You cannot fool your spirit, you cannot fool others in our world, because all is known. So better that you stay dumb, than to utter words, which are not worthy of truth.

Les: Yes we accept that too. It must be given sincerely.

There then followed a jovial one through Eileen, who talked about their work in a light-hearted manner, dealing with people dying physically and passing over. They acted as first points of contact, welcoming them into the Spirit world—the REAL world. Another followed through Eileen, with a message for Sarah, regarding her planned trip to Thailand. She then said there was a lady hoping to use (Speak through) Mark, and some advice/encouragement was given to try and develop this.

*The final speaker came through Eileen, briefly expressing their happiness upon arriving in spirit realms, after a life of hardship, with a contorted face. Before going they added: I can't go yet I have to say one last thing. When you see people like I was, they don't expect hand-outs, but can you at least smile at them? It's so painful to feel second rate.

~29th December 1997~

Good evening. (Warm welcomes at Salumet's return)

My dear friends, how good it is to be with you once more.

Les: We're delighted to hear you say that, because we are extremely pleased that you are here again and we hope that you are feeling much refreshed.

You must forgive the slowness of communication this time.

Les: Of course, there's no hurry; you're back with us that's the main thing and we much appreciate it.

Always the transition to the denser energy of your life is always a little difficult.

Les: I imagine it would be.

So, I thank you dear friends once more for your tolerance and your love. I return to you at this particular time, in order that together we can wish for you all greater consciousness, greater adaptability and greater extended love for mankind in your coming earthly new year. (Thank you.) You of course realise that yearly times mean little in our world, but we know that to you Earth beings it can mean quite a lot—that your hopes, your desires are refreshed as is too nature in your world, in the hope of new beginnings and all of your desires. We know and we fully understand and that is why I come to wish you these things.

Les: Thank you very much indeed.

I want you to know that in your coming years and in particular this new one that is turning, there is and will be an upsurge of spiritual consciousness, which is the beginning of much to come. (Good.) There will be many troubles in areas of your world, but do not let that dismay you. I say to you dear friends that we are happy with what is happening within your world. There will always be those moments of darkness, of blackness, of much sorrow, but it is being outshone by that greater consciousness that is stirring within many, many areas of your world.

Les: Good, we are very pleased that that is so.

I would like also dear friends, to thank you for the many kind thoughts and the use of your thought since last we met. Let me tell you they have not gone unnoticed. For this I thank each one of you. I—and I use this earthly word only to convey my feelings to you, I want you to know how proud of you I feel, in knowing how much you have achieved spiritually, in what I have tried to teach you.

Les: That certainly is a compliment, which we all greatly appreciate.

It is a strange word, this one called pride, but I know not of another to use, to tell you how pleased we are that you are achieving results spiritually. After all, that is why I come to you, not to give you snippets of information that are useless, but to uphold and to uplift you, to encourage, to enfold you, to help you to be those spiritual beings in this lifetime that you were meant to be.

Les: I think all of us would like—I know you don't want thanks, but we do thank you and we do appreciate the approval you give for what we have learned, because after all, it has only come from you, it is only because of your teaching that we do feel as we do now and that is the highest compliment we could have to begin our new year. I think we all agree on that don't we? (Agreed)

One of our concerns was that to reiterate so much on topics which are important, would not hold your attention. I can tell you that this group has outshone itself in that respect and I am pleased and happy to tell you that if only you could continue as you have done in time past, then our work with you would indeed be accelerated much more quickly than we at least had thought would be possible.

Les: I think that is the intention of all of us here, to exceed our learning in the coming year, to improve upon what we have done so far.

Without the true commitment which each one shows, my work could not continue. For this I thank you once more. Again I say to you, not only do you learn from me, but we seek to find within you, that which enables us also to grow. You may not fully understand this, as I know you feel—and again I have to use words I do not think are correct—I know you feel that my words are superior, but when you know how much you have given to us, then your understanding will be truly great. For this we thank you. Those words come not only from me, but from all who are involved with you.

Les: Do thank them for those words. I am going to say something particularly personal now. Others may have had the same feeling I know. When at night I pray and I speak to you, the only way I can put it is that there is a much greater reality and conviction in what I am saying, and for that I do thank you and all your companions. That's the only way I can describe it.

You must not take gratitude, you must accept that what you feel is your own doing, your own growth, your own upsurge of consciousness. You, my dear friend, have created this, not us. We can guide, we can tell you much, but you are the one who creates the growth in your soul. Do you understand?

Les: Yes I do—

I must say to you my dear friend, of all who sit within this room, you are one who has grown much since my coming to you. Those words may astound the others, but in so many years of your knowing, there was so much left unknown. Do you understand?

Les: That's true, I agree absolutely.

And since we come, you have blossomed forth, into the most beautiful of beings. I say these words not lightly my friend—we cannot say it to many, but now, truly now, only now, do you begin to shine! You shine with a spiritual light of great intensity, of great love. This should be used wisely, should never be abused, should only be used as we know you will, for the betterment and the goodness of all who come into contact with you.

Les: Oh yes, it will certainly be used for that.

Now dear friends, I take no questions this time, I speak upon not one subject, but I say to you: The love we feel for you grows stronger each time we meet. Know this, use this and always you will have our love and our protection when the need is greatest.

I will leave you now dear friends for this time, knowing that in this transition back to you, I have entered into your loving hearts. I know that together we have blended well and to those who are not with us, they are included. Even though their physical presence is absent, their spiritual energy is entwined with each one of us, in order to secure that love bond, which we all exude. Until next time dear friends, I will be with you.

Les: And we must say thank you once again. You have given us a wonderful start to the New Year and we look forward to our next meeting. God be with you.

There then followed one through Eileen with a message for Jack, mainly about him being over-tired. She also said that Sarah's daughter Emily was very musical and should take up a stringed instrument. Another followed briefly through Eileen, just to say thanks to everybody for helping the children to have a happy Christmas. He also joked about Les having a bit of a posh voice:

I say that all of you will be rewarded for your efforts.

Les: Our reward will be in knowing that they can be helped.

They can and they will, but if only people on Earth would realise that they are not restricted to helping those in the human form. We know you have done much to help those in distress, we know you understand, so for this reason I come to you this time.

Les: We're very pleased to know that our thoughts can be of such help in your world.

I am being instructed to tell you, once more you are being taught the power of thought. I hope you understand that message and I will say to you my lovelies, may God be with you always, may there always be love within your hearts.

~5th January 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to say this to you: As you enter into what you call your new year, so too my friends are you entering into a new phase of your unfoldment. As your months bring renewal and re-growth, so too will you amongst yourselves, see these attributes begin to take form and shape within many of you here.

Les: Thank you, I feel we are going to have a very pleasant year ahead of us.

I was interested to listen to you as we came together this time. I know that the opportunity to speak a little more on energy, would take place and it would seem that the time has come dear friends, for us to elaborate a little more.

Les: Thank you that would be very interesting.

Of course you know and understand that the souls of animals continue, as do you humans. (Yes) You should not be surprised therefore that animals although a little lower on your evolutionary chain, still maintain part of the overall energy pattern.

Les: Yes we can understand that now.

I would like you to know and understand a little more. Animals who incarnate into life, do not choose in the same manner as you do. They make choices once they are in the body form of the animal. (I see.) The choice is not made before they incarnate. Do you follow me so far?

Les: Yes, we remember you saying that we choose (Yes) the manner in which we come back. But now you're saying animals don't choose in the same way.

Not before anyway. What you have to understand is that they are attracted to the overall energy pattern, which is before them. They do not make a choice of the human being, but of the energy pattern, to which they belong. (I see.) If you can compare perhaps to what you term jigsaws, (Yes) if the animal was aware that it was a missing link, of course the attraction would be there. Do you understand?

Les: Yes I think I do—do you mean the part of the jigsaw would be the potential owner's desire for a pet?

No, no that matters of course, but it is a knowing, a sensing, it is the attraction of the energies to each.

We must move away from the physical elements once more, for your understanding of this matter. The animal would sense, as does the human being—that is what you would call the physical attraction, but it is in fact a spiritual attraction of energy.

Les: I see, so it is the spiritual energy in the animal as well as the spiritual energy in the person?

Yes, yes—I have spoken to you previously about why what you term opposites in human nature, are attracted to each other. (Yes) It is not that they are compatible in human life, but that they seek and they need what each other has. So be it between animals and human beings.

Les: I see—that is very interesting for us to know.

Can you begin to see that the whole of life now, is the formation of the energy pattern, the meeting of the correct energy? After all, imperfections that are there will be erased upon the unification, the joining of the correct energy patterns. Do you understand?

Les: We begin to; I wouldn't say we understand fully, but we can begin to have an idea of what you are telling us.

I did explain it is a difficult subject, but one we will constantly return to until your understanding is such that you begin to see with those spiritual eyes, what I am telling you.

Les: It is particularly interesting to me, because only yesterday I was typing a transcript of a previous tape you recorded for us in which you said all energy, plants, animals and humans are all part of the same energy. (Yes) So that ties up with what you are telling us now.

Yes, if you can understand that that is why human beings create their own illness—it is their energy patterns, which goes haywire. It is the fact that these energies can be blocked and unblocked, which makes you all so interesting to each other. (I see.) If only your knowledge of yourselves and each other could be extended thus, many of your life's mysteries would be shown in a new light. The understanding would radiate forth and many of your mysteries would be solved. It is the knowing, it is the understanding, it is that inner thought which is needed to bring forth these things.

Les: And of course an acceptance by us (Yes) of the fact that the spiritual predominance must be the one to concentrate on.

Until dear friends that concept is accepted, you will always stumble, you will always fall, you will always make mistakes, but of course being human beings, this is part of what you are about. But in having this knowledge you have the opportunity to use that free will to go forward, to extend the knowledge you have, to give to others. And after all, that is our desire that not only do we bring greater knowledge to you, but that you in turn become emissaries of the Truth to give to others.

Les: This is what we all hope to be able to do, give the truth to others.

And you are each in your own way.

Les: Good. Yes, we can't all teach in exactly the same form, but if only we are in our own way passing it on to others, then of course your teaching is being assimilated by so many more.

Yes, we do not expect all to accept the truth, the knowledge that we bring to you. But if we can grow in the minds, the hearts, the thoughts of others, then indeed the seed has been sown. We will not ask for more. There are others whose task it is that once the seed has been sown, that they step forward to help these people. You understand?

Les: Yes, I can understand that a great deal more and it clears something that happened many years ago at the beginning of our learning, before you used to come to us. I sometimes used to get a little irritable with people who used to say they wanted more proof, and somebody from your world told me through my lady Ruth, that all we were expected to do was to plant the seeds. (Yes) We might never see the crop, but not to worry about that.

My dear friends, if you have planted the seed, you can leave this lifetime, knowing that you have done your very best. You cannot expect more of yourself than to do the very best that you can. Sometimes you human beings are too harsh upon yourselves. Sometimes I have to say not harsh enough in some matters, but in general you are too harsh.

Les: Yes, probably because of lack of complete understanding, (Yes, yes.) but which you thankfully are now giving us.

I try to dear friends, and I know that many of these discussions are necessary, before it will totally be understood by you, but as I said when first I came to you, slowly, slowly is the way forward.

Les: Yes, I think we would all agree completely with that. Although it has been slow, we do know infinitely more than when you first began coming to us. Does anybody disagree with that? (Agreed)

Now I will take your questions this time, but I would like time for another to come to you. (Yes —) Do we have questions please?

Les: Yes, one I would like to ask and it will interest everybody here I'm sure, that's why I'm stepping in first. Two new people were here a few evenings ago, investigation the work. During the evening, the lady apologised, saying 'I'm sorry, I can't stop staring at you, because I don't understand why you have a white light around you and in fact across you sometimes.' I tried to explain about the aura, but I am not certain myself, whether what she was seeing was my aura, or whether it was the spiritual aura of somebody speaking through me, or giving knowledge to me, to be passed on to them. (Yes) Do you have an answer for that?

Of course dear friend, I will explain to you. It was a combination of a communicator using you, and your own uplifted aura, that is needed when blending takes place.

Les: Thank you, I thought that's what it was, but I wanted confirmation.

Your own aura cannot be fully extinguished, because if that were to happen you would no longer be upon this earthly plane, you understand? (Yes) And we do not desire that just yet, (Chuckles) but the brightness that they could see, would in fact be the overshadowing that was taking place at that time.

Les: Yes, thank you very much, I thought that's what it was, because I had the feeling of somebody being with me whilst I was talking, apparently in my own way and from my own thoughts, (Yes) but I was pretty sure somebody was assisting and that was confirmed when we came out of the room and she said, 'I can't see that light around you now.'

Yes, you must remember dear friends, that sometimes we—and there are many of us who come to help and to show you the way—that sometimes your words are not fully of your own formation, even if you are not aware of that. Those who come close to you, help you at times in your life, to form the necessary words. (Thank you.) It is something that happens more as your awareness grows and that spiritual side comes forward, especially when you speak of spiritual matters. So remember, think carefully and I do not want you to make it an excuse; when the words are formed, I do not want you to say, 'It was not of my doing.' You understand?

Les: Yes we do. We don't want to put blame for some of our mistakes upon our friends. (Yes) I don't think any of us would willingly do that, as you know.

No, you must accept what is said and the creation of your words and your thoughts, but remember that you can be influenced well, if the occasion demands.

Les: So that 'seeing,' by somebody else, could happen in the case of any member here then couldn't it, under the right conditions, if they were talking of spiritual matters?

It happens at all times and on many occasions it also depends on the condition and awareness of the receiver of the words, yes.

Les: Yes, I knew the lady has quite a lot of psychic potential, so she unknowingly was assisting in what she saw.

Yes, but it happens in those who have no knowledge of what you term spiritual knowledge. It is an innate knowledge that is there. It happens in the closeness of two people communicating. It can show itself in—how can I say, to be enraptured by the speaking of another. It is the attraction again, of the spiritual energy showing itself. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, yes, all of us I think we now begin to see more clearly what you mean by energy patterns and the amalgamation of those energy patterns.

Yes, you will always be attracted, whether it be to another human being, whether it be an animal, whether it be to what you term 'mother nature' in the open air. These attractions dear friends are longings to be in tune to the energy patterns to which you belong. I want you to look further and further and further, in order that you may understand what life is about.

Les: From your explanation just now, I think that's just about the best knowledge we could have for our future life and appreciation of all that we are attracted to. Wouldn't everybody agree that we can look upon these apparent physical appreciations as an expression of our spiritual desires to be part of the universal creative energy? (Agreed)

Follow these desires—do not let them fall by the wayside, because in following your innate knowledge, you are following that spiritual part of you, which seeks to grow, which seeks to understand and which seeks to fulfil its destiny in this lifetime.

Les: So it would be as well for us, when we are appreciating the beauty of the flower, the trees, whatever, (Yes) to consciously remember that we are not appreciating that physically, but thanking our spiritual selves, (Yes) for the appreciation they are showing through the physical.

And also to thank the spiritual aspect of that which you seek—to thank the animal, the human being, the tree, the water—whatever it is you seek. Also to thank that spiritual aspect for that blending of love, which is energy.

Les: Well that is very, very interesting indeed, because it confirms what all of us have thought, that the so-called 'primitive people,' had a much greater awareness of spiritual affinities, than we have as alleged 'civilised beings,' because they used to thank what they were looking at and partaking of.

There are many still in your world who are close to Spirit, but whom you term primitive. Let me tell you dear friends, you are the primitives.

Les: I agree absolutely.

But although much has been lost over your earthly years, we have reached the point of the world's evolution, when great changes are coming. (Good.) It is happening, but again, slowly, slowly, and as I have told you before, this time there will be no turning back, there will be no denial of Truth, there will only be hope and understanding and a greater love.

Les: Thank you very much for confirming that. We are again extremely grateful to you for what you have told us.

This time dear friends, I will leave you in the knowledge that always I listen to you. I know and understand that at times your lives are troubled by daily happenings, but I know also that you are each growing in strength, that enables you to live your lives more fully in understanding. For this we must give thanks and I know that you do. So, on these words I leave you with my love until we meet next time. (Thanks + farewells)

There followed one through Sue saying that as we learn from them, so they learn from us and for this, they were grateful. Another followed through Eileen saying that Lilian would be offered a little doggie and though she is a free agent, she should not agree to have it. She added that the voice that Eileen heard at home, was from them and not imagined. (Eileen had fallen asleep in the bath and a peremptory voice calling her name had awakened her.)

~12th January 1998~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I thank you for your patience this time. Conditions for this time are not so good, so I will say to you dear friends, if you have questions this time, I will answer and then allow others to come.

Les: Thank you. I'm sorry to hear conditions aren't good. Is it anything we have not done?

No, no, no.

Les: Nothing to do with us—oh good.

There are many factors, which you would not understand.

Les: As long as it's not us—I'm sorry to hear it. Right well I'll begin with a question. I was watching a programme the other day on birds on an island. Though there are many species of them, they have developed beaks for specific types of feeding and have developed quite differently from the same species on the mainland. This led me to think about your remarks on energy and remarks a long time ago about those in your world, whose duty it is to 'oversee,' the plant, animal and bird kingdoms. That of course led me to wonder, though you have told us that changes in animals, birds and plants are evolutionary following a natural pattern, are there influences directed by those responsible, which cause this special development? A complicated question, but I think you know what I mean.

No I do not think it is complicated, thank you. And I will try to answer for you.

Les: Thank you, because it's got a great bearing on what you've told us about energy. (Yes) And this is what I was trying to work out in my own mind, whether energy has a memory, or an ability to affect the species. It is the utilisation of the basic energy, which creates the difference. When you have any form of plant life, animal, human species, which are gathered together as one, then those who—to use your words, 'oversee,' have the ability to use and to utilise the energy, for the best of the particular species. (I see —) In the same way as you as people sit quietly, so we can bring to you much closeness of spiritual energy, so too does it work in the evolutionary patterns of plants and animals. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, I couldn't see that the plants and animals would have an intelligence of the right order to do the changes which are required.

You are not quite right my friend in saying this. Energy is intelligence—there is an intelligence in energy, otherwise how could it be used?

Les: I thought energy must have an intelligence, (Yes) which of course we can't understand.

Not in the sense you would understand of course, but energy does have intelligence—it has to.

Les: I thought so—good. So my thinking wasn't far off then?

No, just a little wayward, but you are on the correct path. Has that helped you to understand?

Les: Yes it has—well that is the answer; I came to the conclusion myself, that the changes must be due to intelligence in the energy behind those changes.

Energy and intelligence, but utilised by those who oversee—that is important.

Les: Yes well that certainly does answer the whole thing and it clears it for me. (Good.) Thank you very much for that. I think it's given everybody here a better insight into evolution, hasn't it? (Agreed)

Your knowledge of energy will increase, as we come together more often. But we must as I have told you, go slowly with it.

Les: Yes we do understand. Thank you for that answer, it helps me a lot.

Do we have one more?

Les: Any more questions?

George: Perhaps I could ask one about the Hindu religion, which seems to me, to be certainly in a number of places, to have a very gentle character and I think Krishna, must have been a remarkable master, who came to Earth to teach. Is there anything you'd wish to tell us about Krishna?

You would like personal details, I think you mean? Can I say this to you: Those you term 'masters,' who walk upon your world, are not special souls, they are souls who come to your world, to do a task of work, no matter where or who they come for. Human beings always need to find themselves to be adulators of people; it is unnecessary my friend. And although I am aware of whom you speak, do not look upon these—I use your words again, 'masters,' as special souls—they are not. In our world, they are spirits, who have come to do a task of work. It may be that their knowledge is extensive—that they bring to this world that knowledge does not make them special. So in saying these words, I do not want to set apart one being from another, whether it be any religious person, or whether it be the holy man in the street who has much knowledge—they should not be separated as special people. If you seek more knowledge upon this subject, I will see if more can be given to you on another occasion.

George: Thank you. It's been very tempting (Yes) to hold an admiration of the work that these people have done.

Of course you can admire, but what I say to you is do not hold them as special, they are not. They would not want you to do this; they come to your world to help, to bring knowledge and to live the lives that they have chosen. Always remember, no matter what human being, whatever their task be on this earthly plane, they have chosen to come here.

Les: Yes I've reminded myself of that a lot. It's an education in itself, that particular lesson you gave us and I think George, if we idolise or elevate the importance of others too much, we could be denying the very thing their coming to teach, (Of course.) that we're all in the same boat, learning the same thing, in different degrees.

George: Yes. Thank you for your teaching on that point.

Your respect for greater knowledge is understandable; I do not wish to seem to dispute any respect you hold for another human being. Of course you must offer love and you must respect all of mankind, but do not revere them, do not put them upon a pedestal—that is not what they would desire. Do you understand my friend?

George: Yes I follow that. Thank you, thank you very much.

But I will say if more knowledge can be brought to you, if it is of interest, but not because you think of these people as being special—that is not our task. All souls are equal.

Les: On that subject George, while Salumet is with us, that is what has annoyed me quite a lot, about the adulation that's given to Sai Baba.

It matters not what religion, what nationality; anyone who walks upon this earthly plane, is spirit.

Always focus dear friends, upon this fact and then you will truly be enlightened, as to what that being is trying to achieve. They come not for glorification—if they do then they have undone the good that they try to achieve. (Yes)

Les: You personally have told us often enough quite nicely, that you don't require our thanks for what you do.

Thanks is not necessary dear friends, after all, as I have said, we choose to come, because it is our desire, our desire to extend love and knowledge to you. We choose the situations, which we return to.

Therefore why should we expect thanks?

Les: No, we quite understand why you don't expect them. I don't expect them for the healing we do here, nor do the other healers. But from the other side of the coin, being humans, it gives us pleasure, to let you know that we do appreciate what you do.

Of course, but what you must not do, is to focus too much upon that thanks. In giving thanks you are extending your love energy. Of course it is accepted, but what I say to you is: Once it is offered then let it go. You understand?

Les: Yes we do. Thank you very much for what you've told us. As usual it gives us a great deal to think about.

When I speak to you dear friends, you must understand that all questions and answers are never how you would term, black or white. There are too many instances of people saying, it must be this or it must be that. Your living on this earthly planet is not that simple. I do think that you are beginning to come to that realisation and that each question brings forth another question, or another answer, or another question. (You're right —) And so we continue onwards and so we grow in knowledge—that is as it should be.

Les: Yes we are certainly learning that Salumet.

That is my desire for you that slowly, slowly we build to an understanding, where such questions would fall into place, before even you ask the question. You understand? (Chuckles)

Les: Yes I do. You've shown me that several times, in getting my questions before I've spoken them?

Yes, but is it not good that you ponder these things quietly?

Les: Oh it certainly is.

Yes, there is much within your world that must be corrected. Too much had been said and misunderstood, that now we are moving into a time of greater consciousness, the time is right that these wrongs be put to right.

Les: Yes and it's certainly beginning to show on our planet.

Who must we thank but each individual, who has that thought pattern of needing more knowledge and so goes forward in their thinking. As each individual on the planet reaches this state, then we begin to see a resurgence of higher consciousness throughout the planet.

Les: I'm very glad that we're doing our little part towards this, because it's so necessary for the world.

Fear not, dear friends, your world is moving now in the right direction. Always there is too much doom and gloom. If only the power of your thoughts, were used more positively, then you would be aware that this is being dispelled all over this planet, slowly, slowly.

Les: Yes. Before you go, I do want to thank you for what you've told us, about the problem with my neighbours being sorted—twice you've told us it would be sorted and I do thank you for that, because it has been—a very nice couple and the gentleman is now coming for healing.

I have to say I was aware of your doubts, but that is why it was necessary to tell you on more than one occasion.

Les: Yes, I'm sure you knew what was going to happen anyway. (Chuckles)

Of course, I would not be here would I, if I did not have that knowledge? I would not tell you if it were not about to happen.

Les: Of course you wouldn't, no. It's turned out very nicely, thank you.

Yes. Now I will leave you this time my dear friends, until we meet next time.

We ask that all of you be encompassed in love, be given upliftment and to have more knowledge of your own spiritual selves, in order that you can use it for the betterment of others.

Les: Thank you and our love goes with you. God be with you.

There then followed one through Eileen called Ernest. It took a little while for him to remember why he'd come to us, but then remembered that it was to talk about death and what to expect:

— If I seem a bit slow it's because I'm still a bit puzzled as to why I've come.

(Les encouraged Ernest not to worry and he placed his hand on Eileen's back. After a few adjustments, Ernest remembered why he had come and began his talk)

I think you all think you know what will happen when you die and I'm here to tell you that you probably don't! (General agreement + chuckles)

Les: Yes, we've all got different ideas I'm sure.

Yeah, most people do, but it's usually different from what they expect, or WHO they expect. Cos you all know you're gonna be met by somebody, don't you? (Agreed) But it's not always who you think.

Les: No, it's not always relatives, because of the emotion.

Yes, not only the emotion—it's not always true what you feel when you're living here. You might think it is, but it's not always. So sometimes it might be a bit of a shock. Well don't worry cos there's people like me standing by to help, (Good—) especially when we've made some physical contact, while you're still alive—but you know all that I'm being told, somebody's saying don't keep going over old ground.

(Laughter) They'll get bored.

Les: No, no we shan't. So you might be there to meet one of us?

Well not meet you, but I might be standing by. That's my job you see, helping in the beginning.

Les: So what does happen when we come over to you then?

Depends on what you expect, depends on your last minutes, depends on what you believe and it depends who wants to meet you— (Laughter) whether they've got other things to be doing. I don't mean that, I'm just being—

Les: They couldn't have anything better to do than meet us...

Well let me tell you that's not true—(Laughter) not that I want to disappoint you or anything—

Les: No, I'm sure they'd have better things to do —

But if they love you, yes they'll meet you when the time's right.

Les: So, somebody meets us and then what do they do with us?

Depends on you, again it depends on you and the conditions in which you come to us. (Yes) If it's been a long illness, then you'll probably awake in one of our hospitals.

Les: Yes and they're very nice, I've been shown them.

Have you? Well you're honoured to have been allowed that. But of course if that happens, you'll have many loved ones around you, helping to bring you back to full strength and energy, because that's the natural progress of somebody who loves you. But you'll be well protected, if that's the case. But the most traumatic moment, is the moment when you see everything before you.

Les: Yes, when we see our own lives —

Yes, that's the traumatic part of any passing. And that's why we have people such as myself, to stand by to offer help if we're needed—only if we're needed.

Les: And to help us overcome the shock of what we've done?

To help buffet you and surround you and help you over—probably the shock, because most people are shocked at what they haven't done.

Les: Quite, what they haven't done, more than what they have done!

Yes, it's not what they have done, it's what they HAVEN'T done and all their missed opportunities.

Les: Yes, that can be a shock.

It's a very big shock I tell you and of course it's very traumatic for many; there're many tears, cos we do have tears; it's not all happiness to begin with. But that soon dispels and you go on, to where you should belong.

Les: And my friends and I know, that we go to a place suitable, that we have earned.

Oh yes, yes you can only go to what you're entitled to yes, yes. And I have to tell you that there are places that you wouldn't want to know about, but I'm not coming here to frighten you, because none of you'll be going there, if I can help it.

Les: Good, that's comforting to know.

Yes, the lady Dawn doesn't sound too sure? (Laughter) Don't you worry my dear, I'll take your arm, don't you worry.

Dawn: Jolly good.

Yes, never mind—

Les: And then we go to whatever place has been prepared for us?

Not straight away, you could meet other people you've known first, before that takes place. There's no set pattern, that's something else I've come to tell you. There's too many stories about this that and the other happening. Remember that you're all very individual people and as such, you're dealt with in that way. There are certain factors which must be dealt with of course, but it depends what your desire and expectation is. You understand me?

Les: Yes we do understand Ernest thank you. Yes it's interesting what you're telling us.

Yeah, you remember that before you pass in most cases, that people are waiting for you.

Les: That's the main thing, isn't it?

Yes, people are waiting there for you, so it's only right, if that is what you're entitled to, that your loved ones meet you at some stage.

Les: Yes and then after that, it's just like going obviously into a new...phase of existence?

Probably one of your loved ones will introduce you to your new place of abode.

Les: Which they no doubt will have got ready for us, (Yes) according to the materials we have sent them.

It all depends on how you've lived your lives.

Les: That's it. (Yes) That's what I mean, if we don't send them the spiritual material, they can't prepare a place for us.

Of course not; I wish more people could understand that, yes.

Les: Only a few evenings ago here, I had somebody investigating our work and he was surprised when I told him it wasn't all roses, milk and honey there.

If you think that, then I'm afraid you're in for a BIG shock, big shock, big shock.

Les: They are I know; that's why I tell them.

Yes, people expect everything to change, when in fact very little changes to begin with. You'll still be YOU, just without your old body.

Les: That's it, our personality continues, just as it is here.

Yes, yes, same as I've still got mine, you see? Yes, I still use my old name when I come back, don't I?

Les: Yes, you don't need to use that where you are though.

No, but you don't forget it, do you?

Les: No you don't.

Anyway, that's what I came to tell you. Don't have any set ideas and you'll accept those conditions much more readily.

Les: I am right though I think, in saying that the soul can reproduce the physical body without any complaints, illnesses or diseases, that sort of thing, but a spiritual replica of the physical body, for recognition?

Yes of course, yes, that's the power of the thought—that is SPIRIT, it's THOUGHT—a land of thought—that's what it is. Not everyone can manage to capture that to begin with. It takes time sometimes, to discard that old body; to realise that you don't need a voice and you don't need physical things.

Les: No, we do a lot of rescue work here, for people who are in that sort of condition.

Oh I see, that's very good work, that's very good work.

Les: We do a great deal of it here; we're pleased to be able to.

Yes, there's lots of it needed I'm told, yes.

Les: There certainly are some poor souls over there, in need of help.

Yes we have those who help those in need on my side of live, of course there is, there's got to be, otherwise we'd be in a poor way, wouldn't we?

Les: We certainly would. We're all got to help each other, in whatever way we can.

Yes, of course you must. That's what it's all about.

Les: How do you spend your time mainly Ernest? What do you do?

I've just said, I'm there to help those newcomers. Somebody's telling me you've been told before, about going through the tunnel, that there are recognisable shadows. Sometimes that's part of my duty as well, but mainly I'm at the other end of the tunnel, when you've arrived and the confusion and the traumatic experiences. I'm there to help and guide and protect.

Les: Yes somebody told us that they show themselves as lights in the tunnel.

Yes, but sometimes souls recognise them as outlines of people. It depends on their own spiritual knowledge of course. But yes, it's visible within that tunnel of light, yes, yes. So that's mainly my tasks.

Les: So, everybody has to go through that tunnel, irrespective of the way in which they pass?

Not always—that's the main function of passing. It depends if it's traumatic, sudden passing, then it could be that they just find themselves on the other side.

Les: I'd wondered about that.

Yes, it's not—it depends if it's a sudden death or an expected death for that person, then it may just be that they're confronted by someone, who's waiting for them.

Les: Then comes the difficulty of persuading them.

Yes, at least if you're travelling through the tunnel of love, then you're being prepared for that transition. (That's right.) But no, that's what I say, you shouldn't expect just one happening, because there's many ways of passing.

Les: Of course, we don't know in what way we are going, when the time comes.

No, so don't be surprised and don't have fixed ideas about what should happen.

Les: Well that gives us a lot to think about and adds to our knowledge considerably Ernest. (Good.) So if you hear us shouting for you, you'll know who it is.

Well don't all be shouting at once, will you?

Les: Oh, I don't suppose we'll all go at once.

I hope not—I don't mind keeping busy, but that's ridiculous. (Laughter)

Anyway, I'll wish you all good luck in your lives and I hope that you all carry on to the very best of your abilities, because that's all you can do. You can't do more; just try your very best.

Les: That's all, just as you did tonight in coming through.

Yes, with a lot of difficulty.

Les: But you surmounted them and you're glad you did I hope.

I'm pleased to have spoken to you all, yes, yes.

Les: It's been very nice to have you Ernest and we do thank you a lot.

Just take care of you and thank you for allowing me here.

Les: It's our pleasure to have you and our love goes with you Ernest.

There was then a little girl through Eileen called Jessica, which helped lighten the energy before we closed.

~19th January 1998~

No Salumet this evening, but nevertheless this was another interesting session, beginning with one through Eileen:

I am here to tell you that the one you expect will not be with you this time. I also have to ask, that would you be prepared to be used for speech, because there is someone with us, who wishes to use you.

Les: Yes I certainly would.

The lady I speak through now, will be used for power and the lady known as Lilian, will be used to help the one who comes through you. But we must have your permission first.

Les: Yes I'd be happy to help.

Many are gathering I'm told, so it's possible others may feel they need to use words this time. But if you are happy, then I will withdraw this time and let you continue.

Les: Yes I'm quite happy to be used, in any way you wish. Thank you for opening the meeting for us.

We hope you are not too disappointed, but sometimes it happens—I leave you now and say God always be with you and keep you. (Thanks expressed)

There then followed the one expected through Les:

Lilian: Good evening to you, thank you for coming.

Good evening my friends, good evening. I'm sorry to have kept you waiting. It is an honour for me to address you, when the master is not able to do so. I trust that you will accept my very inferior presence and speech, that I bring to you this time. What I have to say, may perhaps cause some confusion in your minds, but it is something, which you should attempt to understand, in order to fulfil the progress, to which you are all aiming. Do you understand this? (Affirmed with thanks) I have no doubt that conditions in your physical lives are very much the same, as they were when I walked this planet. And it is said in the good book, that the truth is not in them and I think you would agree that in many instances, this applies to ALL who walk these roads in these days. You understand I'm sure, that it is quite impossible for those who are human beings, to be fully truthful, in every aspect of their living. You would agree with this I take it? (Agreed) I'm afraid that if you exercise the beauty of truth on all occasions, you would soon find nobody on whom to exercise that truth. You would be very short of friends, would you not? (Agreed) So my dear friends, we come to an interesting theory for you to ponder upon: What is Truth? What is Truth? You no doubt have heard that question many times, I'm sure. (Agreed) Also I feel I can say I'm equally sure, that you have never arrived at a satisfactory answer. So the truth of the matter is that you have very carefully shelved the responsibility of coming to a decision, yes? (Affirmed) If you'd said no, I'd have had to doubt you, because I myself went through the same problems, when on this Earth. But having left you for many years now, I can see the difficulty of trying always, to be truthful, trying always to lead what is called a 'pure life,' which in itself is an impossibility, because until we reach such levels of existence as you can have no conception of at this time, we must always have certain impurities in our beings. Would you deny this? (No) Then that is truth is it not? (Agreed) Now we are getting there! (Chuckle) Now if we agree as we have, that to exercise Truth in all matters upon this physical Earth, is an impossibility, we should have asked ourselves—you may have done so—what the expression of Truth is, in the spiritual life, to which you will adjourn one day. Has this occurred to you? (Mixed responses) Was that no? (Yes) So you do not yet recognise the problems associated with Thought itself, being used for communication and the ability to dissemble through words, will no longer be acceptable. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Lilian: It can't be easy to communicate with thought and keep them pure?

No, that is another aspect dear lady, but let's presume for a moment that you have learned the ability to communicate with thought. So we step forward from there do we not, that having learned that art of mental communication, HOW are you going to exercise your thinking capacities, so that dissembling is not possible?

Lilian: I've no idea, very difficult—

Good, good, we have reached the crux of the matter. You have no idea, has anybody any idea? All of you I think would agree, that many times—and I too was guilty—that many times you have thought one thing and your words have been another. (Agreed) It is not a criticism it is a fact of life. But when you no longer have words to echo your thoughts, how would you react?

Sallie: More truthfully, I would have thought.

Lilian: Try to —

Sallie: Well no you would automatically be more truthful, because what you're thinking is true to you at that point, isn't it?

It is true to you at that stage yes. Now we come to the question of whether in such circumstances, it is DESIRABLE to be truthful. How many times within your life here upon this Earth, have you thought one thing and said another? Not necessarily because it is expressing a lie, but because you are considerate of the person to whom you are speaking?

George: Yes, it seems to relate to compassion perhaps, in as much as —

Please sir let us not deviate for the moment. You exercise a departure from truth do you not, for the sake of the person to whom you are speaking? (Agreed) So, what is truth? Can you answer the question?

Sarah: Your thoughts.

Lilian: The thought is the true part.

The thought is not the truth is it, because you have varied it, according to the requirement of the person to whom you are speaking. Is that not so?

Lilian: Right.

So it cannot be true, if you think one thing on this Earth and say another, you have departed from the truth.

Sarah: But your thought is maybe right?

But when you do not have to use the words, how are you going to control your thinking, to assure yourselves and the person to whom you are speaking, that what you say is the truth?

George: Might I suggest that there is an absolute truth and there is as much truth as your friend can accept?

What is an absolute truth sir? Please let us have descriptions.

George: An absolute truth—a truth which would be accepted by God, by the Great Creator.

Lilian: Or as you see it?

George: Yes, as within we are all a part of the Great Creator and the truth would be central to ourselves, as it would be central to God.

You are travelling in a wide circle my friend, are you not?

George: I struggle for words, yes.

Why is it necessary to struggle for words, when words are not required?

Sarah: I think your instinct is the truth, isn't it?

You yourself dear sir, would know whether what you were saying was the truth, would you not, without the intervention of the Great Creator?

George: Yes truth is felt perhaps, more than spoken.

Of course this is what we have been saying, that the communication is mental and your words cannot dissemble, because the truth is despatched to the recipient is it not, without the intervention of words?

George: Ah yes.

So, how are you going to establish whether what you are saying is true? I will leave it with you to think about sir and I will ask the lady, I apologise for interrupting. Now please, you wished to say something? (Thank you.)

Sarah: I believe your thought is the truth and your words aren't, so what you instinctively think, is the truth.

And from where would you acquire that instinct madam?

Sarah: From the soul.

From the soul? (Yes) And you are happy to rely upon the soul, always giving truth?

Sarah: Um —

Remember that though the THOUGHTS are transferred from one to the other without the intervention of words, you are in a difficult position, because the one to whom you are 'speaking' shall we say to use the term, 'speaking mentally,' would be aware of your thoughts, would they not? (Yes) And how do you think they would accept them if they know that they are not as pure as they should be?

Sarah: I think they will be pure, because you'll know that the other person will know what you're thinking, so there's no point in trying to think something other than the truth.

So you are not really speaking the truth, you are altering your thoughts, because somebody else may think wrongly of what you are thinking.

Sarah: No I think your initial thoughts will tell you what is the truth and what's not and I think you have to stick by that. You can change your mind, but I don't think you can change your initial thought.

That is not quite clear to me please—

Sarah: What you instinctively think—your first reaction is the truth and then afterwards you might change your idea, but the initial thought pattern I'd imagine, is right.

Can you be sure of that? You use the word 'imagine,' so it would I think indicate that you are not SURE that your first reaction would be right.

Sarah: No I am saying your first reaction is right, that's what I think.

You said I IMAGINE it would be—

Sarah: Oh no, I'm sure it is.

You're SURE it would be.

George: Can we say soul is continuously evolving and evolves towards pure truth?

Yes, I will answer that with another of your phrases my friend: Upon this Earth do you not say: 'Today's truth is tomorrow's lie?' (Agreed) So evolvment as you say is continuous. So do you not then appreciate that as you evolve upon the spirit plane, so your thoughts of what is true may alter?

Lilian: I'm sure it will.

So again I say to you, what is truth?

Mark: It's an ideal, it's not actually anything, it's always relative to the vehicle you are looking from, and everybody has a truth.

Absolutely, now we are getting to the point. It is always relative. It has amused me upon this Earth to hear you saying sometimes, yes that is VERY true. What can be VERY true? It is either true within your understanding of the word, or it is NOT true. Is that not so? (Agreed) So you see the looseness of the words you have used my friends. But as you say sir, the truth must be relative to the conditions and circumstances pertaining at the time of the utterance of those thoughts. You understand? (Affirmed) Because remember also that those with whom you communicate, are also constantly evolving and what to them is true at one moment, may not be so, a few moments later in their lifetime. Do you understand what I have been trying to say? (Affirmed) Would you like to ask me any questions upon this?

George: Yes, we have been hesitating so much, because there is nothing static, all is in the condition of growth and ideals change with that growth.

Now you are beginning to realise my friend, how difficult it is for us to come to you, to explain the complexity and the immensity of Creation. We do our best, within our limited abilities, and knowledge, but energy itself, is in a constant state of flux, of evolvment, of alteration, of correction, because as energy evolves, so it within itself, realises that it is not always the infallible source, which it would wish to be. Do you follow? (Yes) We get into complicated matters, I'm trying to simplify it for you, but since energy itself is constantly evolving, there is no absolute truth within that energy yet, is there? (Agreed) Because it is still seeking within itself, do you follow? (Affirmed) This too, is what you must always attempt to do.

George: Yes perhaps it would be true to say we can only seek the best truth, for our particular point in time.

Not necessarily my friend. You are thinking of yourSELF; think of the others, to whom that truth must be directed. What would be its effect upon them, if you spoke what you say is the full truth. Do you see the problem? (Affirmed)

Sallie: The idea surely is to try and help people become aware, and perhaps by being too forceful in the truth, it can have the opposite effect.

It can indeed madam and it is a very wise saying you give; it can have the opposite effect. Therefore I say to you, when you approach by speech or thought another, give consideration to the effect your words may have upon that person. And if you wish to go further into it, remember that the truth is to be of SERVICE, to love another, therefore the TRUTH should be, that you do NOT think or say, what you feel is best from your point of view, but from the point of view of the evolvment of another. Is this clear? (Affirmed) It puts I think you would say, a rather different complexion on the issue of the word 'truth,' does it not? (Agreed) Did not the lord Jesus say when he was criticised about feeding the flesh of animals to his mother: 'What goes into the mouth is not so important, as what comes out of the mouth.'—Please bare that in mind. Now do you wish any further question, if not I must leave you. I hope I have not confused you too much?

Lilian: You've given us something to think about.

That was the intention dear lady, it's always our intention. If we cannot always give you exactly what you would require, or wish us to give you, at least perhaps we can give you something to think upon and so tread your own path towards the ultimate. Then I will leave you my friends, thank you for your patience in listening. (Thanks expressed) May the love of God be with you at all times and the love of God, is the only one truth. Keep that in mind. So often—and I think it has been said before I'm told in this room, that in your religious works, other books by your philosophers, because it is said that because it is in such and such a book, it must be so—All you have to consider, not that it MUST be so, the only phrase that must be so, is that it need NOT be so. Do you follow? (Affirmed)

George: That's a phrase we've had before.

Yes I believe it was spoken in this room, I am told. Does it not come to your memory? (Yes) Good, then I bid you farewell my friends. Do not be despondent. You will have much time in which to learn, God be with you. (Thanks + farewells)

Another followed quickly through Les, giving some advice to George and Sallie and answering one question about child spirit friends:

Good evening to dear friends, good evening, good evening. (Welcomes) I hope you're not going to expect more words of wisdom, because if so you're going to be unlucky. (Laughter) I do not belong to that one's class, I must tell you. I wish to speak to the gentleman opposite, the one who was told there are two waiting to use him for writing.

George: Ah —

Ah he says—ah, as though he has never heard of it before. (Laughter) Well what about it? You have not been giving it as much time as you could, have you?

George: No that's very true.

What was told you earlier, 'VERY true?' (Laughter) Is it true or is it not true?

George: Sorry about that—yes it's true—other things have temporarily taken over. But yes I must try again at more frequent intervals.

Yes, it did occur to you did it not on a number of occasions?

George: Yes, it's been on my mind.

Yes and you put it to the back of your mind and you made excuses—you had this to do, that to do, did you not?

George: Yes I must admit.

You must admit—even if you do not admit it, it is so! (More giggles) Right, to be serious about it my dear friend, please now attempt to give it more time. (Yes) Those two gentlemen still wish to use you and we do know that you've had unexpected problems to deal with, and that has not permitted you to give the time, the quiet time, which is required. But now we would ask you please, to attempt if it is not interfering too much with your physical commitments, to spend time now, so that they can get down to, as they say, to serious work, which has to be done.

George: Yes I promise yes.

Be careful be careful. We do not ask for promises, we know what you mean, but we were speaking of truth were we not? You will attempt to do so, will you not? (Yes) Thank you. We'd rather you say you will attempt, than you promise. You may not be able to keep the promise, but if you say you will attempt, then that is understood and we shall give you all the help we can, to enable you to do so.

George: Yes, thank you, I'm very pleased that you are speaking these thoughts.

Don't thank me my friend, I'm merely a messenger for those who wish to use you. So be prepared please and you may be surprised at what will happen.

To the lady at the end of the room now: You have had a lot of confused thoughts, about various things madam?

Sallie: Yes I have yes.

Rather like a whirlpool, is it not?

Sallie: It is rather like a whirlpool, yes.

It goes round and round and round and round and you come back to the beginning each time, yes?

Sallie: I come back to the beginning each time, but the beginning seems a bit different to the last beginning, so perhaps my beginnings are changing a bit.

Oh, well that's something, isn't it?

Sallie: I hope so yes.

Do you wish to ask any particular questions; that is why I have come?

Sallie: I think it's something I just have to work through myself. It would be pleasant in some ways to ask questions about it, but —

May I take you up on one phrase please? (Yes) You have to work through it yourself, you said. Why do you always rely upon yourself?

Sallie: I don't totally rely on myself, I ask for help. I'm probably not describing that very well, I do ask for help and I actually get lots of help, without even asking for it. And I bump into all sorts of situations, which I'm sure are there to guide me, but I suppose I'm just beginning to tune-in to things more often, than perhaps I was able to before. It is a whirlpool and it is confusing, but it's also exciting, in some ways, because I do get bits of it right in my own feelings and thoughts and connections. Some things take longer I suppose.

May I suggest that you do not attempt, to try so hard to find the answer. You're reading the back of the book, before you have completed the first chapters. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes, I have to find more patience to go through things more slowly, I suppose.

As the master said: Come unto me all ye that are heavy laden. Do so, be calm within yourself, do not search so hard, let the blossoming of the ideas come to you, rather than you search for them. Do you follow?

Sallie: Yes, although part of me enjoys searching.

Then what do you wish, to enjoy the searching indefinitely, or do you wish that enjoyment to be enhanced by what we can give you, if you exercise a little more patience?

Sallie: The idea of having it enhanced, if I can improve my patience, is obviously to me appealing.

I'm glad to hear you say that, because if you are more patient and learn to take each day as it comes and to deal with what it brings to you, we can be closer to you, because your patience allows us to be there, it does not affect us to the extent that your impatience does. Do you understand? (Yes, yes.) Then I would suggest madam that you make an effort to acquire that extra patience of thought, and of action too, so that we can come nearer, and in assisting you more, can give what you are searching for, without you having to spend so much energy in the search.

Sallie: There is a lot of wasted energy, I would agree with you yes.

There is indeed, there is indeed, energy which could be much more fruitfully used, for your own spiritual development, if you turned it into that direction.

Sallie: That's one of the things I'm trying to work on at the moment, is not allowing my energy to go off in a fruitless manner.

Do not work upon it too hard. Let it come slowly and gently. Many times have you not heard within this room, 'slowly, slowly;' is that not so? (Yes) Please I would ask you to control your impatience, for your own benefit.

Sallie: Yes that's been helpful you saying that, I will do the very best I can.

You cannot do more, you cannot do more than your very best and for that answer, we are grateful.

(Thank you.) We shall do all we can for you, you have much to give, and we do not intend to let it get away. God be with you my daughter.

Sallie: Thank you, and with you.

I think that is all the castigating now. (Laughter) Now I will take questions, if you have any.

George: Yes, in relation to very young children, I've noticed that they sometimes chuckle and make noises to an invisible friend perhaps and it occurred to me that the parents take care of the physical needs of a young child, but it appears sometimes as if spirit friends and also lending a hand in bringing up the very young child. Is this a sensible observation to make?

No, we do not lend a hand, we lend many, many, many, many hands! (Laughter) What do you think we do, ignore young children? (No —) Of course not, we are with them constantly, constantly. They are still to us in many instances, spirit beings, thrust upon this world. The reasons do not matter, but to us they are still spirit, therefore we are always in close attendance.

George: Yes, so it would be fair to say a major part of the beginnings of a young child's —

In most instances you would be correct sir that he or she is aware of the spirituality of those who surround him and to ease his or her sojourn, for a time upon this Earth, until he or she is more acclimatised, to the harsh conditions, which they must face.

George: Yes and sometimes although the infant hasn't learnt to speak, there seems to be quite a conversation going on.

Of course of course, that is spiritual communication. Words are not necessary, that is the spirit talking to Spirit. Does that answer you satisfactorily?

George: Yes I thought it must be, it's nice to talk about it yes, thank you.

Does anybody else wish to question? (Silence) What an awful lot you must know. (Laughter) Then if I have no further information to give you this time, I will leave you and ask for your continued development to progress satisfactorily, as you would wish. May God's blessing be with you all. (Thanks + farewells)

There then followed a softly spoken one through Eileen, gently bringing the evening to a close: (Welcomes)

We would wish to express our thanks to you sir.

Les: It's a pleasure to be able to be used like it.

We want you to know that your energies will be recouped this night time, when in sleep state. (Thank you.) You know as the physical being grows old, then energy is sapped more easily from the physical being and therefore must be restored, as one must not be over-used. So in allowing so much use this time, we thank you and again I say, you will be blessed.

Les: Yes I'm sure.

We hope your people here, found the talk from one of our teachers, most interesting. We have many, many times of teaching in our world, where we too learn so much.

Les: Yes I think everybody enjoyed it. (Agreement + thanks)

He has been around you for time, I'm being told.

Les: Yes, I knew somebody was around me today quite a lot.

And the opportunity this time was most apt and it was right for him to come at this time, because I'm being told that thoughts have been given out by some here, as to why their development seems slow, but it was necessary for you to learn that you cannot rush the ways of spirit, whilst you are clothed in these bodies. Many aspects have been given to you, with this teaching, not only about truth, but about looking at oneself in the way of your own development of thought and action. So we say to you once more, be wise, listen well to those who come to you, they have the greater knowledge and come to you, to bring it to you, because in many instances, they have had to learn their lessons, the hard way. Be thankful that they come to you, to offer the help, to give you their love and to surround you at all times, secure in the knowledge that help is at hand, whenever it is needed. (Thanks expressed) We would like also to say to all of you here, be thankful for this one, who you know as the leader of your group, because he has many years of wisdom behind him and he knows also that many come to him, impress him and help him in everyday living. This knowledge he has gained is given to many freely and is offered with love. For this know him and know also that we too thank him for his many years of work. (Thanks expressed) Now I will leave you. I thank you once more and I know that you all will leave this place this time, with much to think about and also that you all will feel much uplifted. (Thanks expressed)

Les: I'd like to thank you too for your presence here tonight and for the serenity you bring.

I could only bring it, to conditions which can accept it.

Les: Thank you very much. God be with you.

Salumet brings further light on Truth later in year (see 24/08/98)

~26th January 1998~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I am pleased to be with you once more.

Les: Yes, we are very pleased that you are; we've missed you.

I have been with each one of you, although not joining you in your evening meeting—always I am by your side.

Les: Yes, it's very nice to know that you are.

I think this time, because of the small numbers, that I will answer any questions you may have this time.

(Thank you.) Take this opportunity to ask individual questions, because I would rather that we had all peoples here, when I give you talks about our world.

Les: Yes. We do thank you for taking the trouble to come, with such a small number hear. We certainly will take advantage of your offer to put questions. Would anybody like to start, if not I will? (Pause)

Sallie: You start Leslie.

Les: I'd like to follow on what you were telling us about evolution of plants and animals, when you were last here and I wonder what happens when a bird dies. Does it automatically in your world, have a fresh body as it was here, or does it have to have a period of rest—the soul of the bird I mean—and then those responsible for overseeing the evolution, take charge of it?

I understand your question my dear friend. I think if you can recall, when first I came to you, we spoke about going on to our side of life and what happened to animals—this applies also to the birds of your skies. Because they do not retain the bond of love, which you human beings have upon this earthly plane, they return to a pool of energy.

Les: I wondered if that's what happened.

Yes, you see all energy returns to the Source. Because there is no individual bond or unity with humankind, we have pools of love or energy—use whichever word you desire—the birds of the sky, return to this pool of love. It is different with your domestic animals as you call them, because there is the love-link. They will return home and exist as (They were? Tape falters for a second, but the implication is that they would not return to the pool of energy, but would retain their form/individuality) until such time as you meet again. Can you understand this?

Les: Yes I do remember you telling us that, so they exist in their own right?

If the love-link is strong enough. (Yes) Of course, they have their own souls, but it is different for what you term, the animals of the wild.

Les: So returning to the pool of love, would be applicable to the animals of the wild also, (Yes) because there is no human love link?

There is no human bond. You see, what the human bond achieves, is the growth of the consciousness of the animal, you understand?

Les: I see, yes. Now in the case of caged birds who have become pets of their owners, would the love-link there, enable them to return home and re-live in a different way, or would they too go back to the pool of love and energy?

It depends on the love-link. It is possible they will remain as they are, until such time it is ready to continue on its way. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, so their owner would be able to be reunited with that bird, when the owner comes over?

Yes, if the desire and the love-link is strong enough. We have many what you call 'caged' animals, although they no longer are caged, they are free spirits, who roam in our world, but who still have the link of love with humankind.

Les: I see, that clears that point for me, because I did wonder what would happen to them. I'd heard so often about the gorgeous birds in your planes of life.

Remember also, that although these birds and animals of the wild as you call them, they can make an appearance in our world, if those who tend to this energy pool, have the desire to create this.

Les: Good, I was going to ask that question, (Yes) whether those responsible, are able to 'dig into' the energy pool, and create life from it?

Yes that is their task, that is what they wish to do. Mainly it has been people who have much love and respect for the animal and bird kingdoms. (I see.) That love does not die, it is utilised for the good of all animals, birds and creatures of your world.

Les: So those responsible for those pools of love energy, can repopulate any particular part of your world, according to their wish to do so, for the benefit of the people living there?

Of course, and not only for the benefit of the people, but for the good of the animals, because remember not only is it humankind who expand in consciousness, but all creatures have souls, which expand in consciousness.

Les: Is that so?

Of course.

Les: So they would continue to expand in their consciousness, and does that then take them in due course, through the higher realms in your worlds?

Not in the sense you speak of my dear friend. Of course, each kind of animal expands within its own group of animals or birds. I think you are trying to say, do they reincarnate as different species?

Les: No not as different species, but if we concentrate on birds for the moment, perhaps I'll make myself clearer: Those in the higher realms on your planes of life surely would not have to be deprived of the beauty of the sight and song of birds? So birds must live within those environments also?

Yes, yes, you have to understand the expansion of consciousness—and here once more, we enter into difficult topics. The expansion of consciousness belongs to all living things, to all matter which is energised. I think that we have to leave it there, because this is something we have only barely touched on.

Les: Yes it does make it very difficult for us to appreciate how it works. (Yes) I can understand what you mean, without understanding how it happens.

Yes—that is the difficulty of words, but remember, all consciousness is expanding and on your earthly plane even your planet is in the midst of expansion. Do you understand?

Les: I have to say no we don't—you understand what I mean by that? (Yes) We appreciate what you say and we can try to think about it, but it's impossible for us to understand it, as you mean.

That is why we must leave it there, because for your full understanding, we have to know a little about expanding consciousness.

Les: We'll shelve that for the moment then and look forward to some lessons on it in due course.

It will come my dear friend, but you are not ready for it yet.

Les: I quite accept that without query, we are not. We are gradually learning more and more, and the more we learn, the more we realise there is to learn and understand.

Yes, and that is why we must take it all slowly, in order that what you learn, is for your own good and your own understanding of truth and all that surrounds you.

Les: Yes, and frequently comes back to me a statement which was made many of our years ago, that we must take one step at a time, otherwise we shall have to return, in order to take the step that we missed on the way up.

Yes, that is a good choice of words from you. You must take all learning slowly, if it is to be absorbed properly.

Les: Of course, it's such a vast and complex matter, isn't it?

What I try to teach you whilst we are here, is but a scratch on the surface of all knowledge.

Les: But it's becoming fortunately a very deep scratch and we gratefully appreciate having it.

I thank you for those words dear friend, it lightens my task to know that you feel you are achieving some knowledge.

Les: I think everybody would agree with that, wouldn't they here? (Agreed)

Now, shall we continue?

Les: Yes, another question if I may: A long time ago I asked somebody who was telling us of their life in your world—when I say 'your world,' I must qualify that, by saying in the planes most closely associated with the Earth of course. The sky there varied in colours from blue to pink to mauve and so on and there were clouds that were also differently coloured. I wondered several times whether that is a normal environmental thing, or whether those visions of clouds are produced by the people wishing to see them?

Yes, yes, I say, we have no clouds. How can you be surrounded in such conditions and have clouds, unless it is a deep wish for you to see such things? (Yes —) There is purity of light, light that most people who come to our world are stunned by; it is a brightness without the hurt of their eye, which you have on this planet, but the brightness is such, that it staggers most.

Les: It would be a brightness of the soul and love beyond our understanding, wouldn't it?

It is love-light yes, it encompasses all, there is no change, unless the mind desires to reach out and find colours in clouds and rain and all the things that you have become accustomed to.

Les: So it is possible to produce those mentally, for one's own personal satisfaction?

Let me tell you this dear friends, let me return to my favourite words, the power of the mind. (Yes) Let me tell you that this mind can create anything you so desire—anything, provided you are entitled to it. We have spoken upon this subject, have we not? (Yes —) So let me say this to you: When those who come to our world are on the 'next plane' as you say—I do not like it personally, but it suffices for your understanding—you do not radically alter so much, you still have your desires, you still have your needs and you still remain close to this planet. So the mind is powerful enough to create those things that you love and have become accustomed to.

Les: They can be created within the atmosphere of that plane? (Yes) Well that certainly clears that for me thank you, because to me, I have visualised the light as you say, (Yes) and to me clouds would have been in effect, an impurity in that light.

The clouds would be seen only by that person.

Les: Just by the one or anybody else who might be interested in doing the same thing.

Unless there is a group thought, yes. But usually the thought is seen by the one person, because you cannot infringe upon another's mind power.

Les: No, so you have told us.

Yes, we go to another subject here. You would not be allowed to impinge, can you understand? (Yes —) So yes, the soul can see whatever it wishes, but not to the detriment of another soul, you understand?

Les: Yes we do—not unless it's a common desire —

Yes, there are many who come to our world who have the desire to see for some time, all the seasons, all the weathers of your world. If that is their true desire, then they have it.

Les: Do they?

Of course, of course.

Les: They can even have the seasonal weather changes?

Remember my dear friend, we are speaking of mind power, not physical elements. So although I say they have all seasons, it is mind power.

Les: Following on that mind power, and I think these are questions within your province—tell me if they're not please—if there should be a person who comes over to you and has been guilty of unpleasant thoughts whilst here, that person would occupy a certain strata within your world, with others of similar thinking. Those thoughts emanating from that person, could they interfere with those on a higher thinking plane?

Not at all, the answer to that is no.

Les: Thank you, I didn't anticipate it, but I just wanted clarification. So their thoughts would be confined to the limits of their environment?

They infiltrate within the group that they are entitled to be with, but no thoughts can go to any higher plane.

Les: No, not unless they are thoughts of progression of the soul.

Not even then, we have— I have spoken to you too, that we have those helpers who stand by, ready to receive the thoughts, when the soul is ready to continue on its journey.

Les: Yes, that's true, I'd forgotten that—you have said so, thank you. So the thoughts are not willy-nilly, (No) they are not indiscriminate, they have to follow a specified pattern, for one's own development spiritually?

The qualification for progress is truth, truth to the soul itself; honesty and willingness to reject those thoughts of which it knows must be put behind it.

Les: Well, we certainly have a long way to go, but we'll keep trying, with your help. I don't think I have any other question at this time, I'm already pondering what you've said.

I am pleased for you.

Sallie: May I ask something? (Yes please.) I'm aware that one of the things I have to work on is my impatience and it may be because of my impatience that I'm asking this question—if it is I'm sure you'll advise me of that. Over the past couple of years, since having the privilege to come here, I've had some development through feelings and knowledge about people and myself, which I'm becoming more comfortable with and it makes sense to me. But recently I'm getting pictures which don't make sense to me and I suppose it's my impatience, but I want to help them along really.

Yes. My dear friend let me say this to you: You do not have to give gratitude for being here, it is your right. You have earned the right to be here, amongst the others, because it has taken many, many years, for us to gather you all together; that is the first thing I want to say to you. As with all human beings, there is this impatience, which you all are liable to. Do not be ashamed of it, because without this impatience, you would not have the desire to seek, to know, to grow. So look upon it not as something to despise. Now I say to you this: As your time goes forward, of course as you become more aware, your consciousness grows—that innate knowledge that you have grows—remember this I have said this to you before. You are many parts not only soul, but you have in your physical being memories, a subconscious mind, that partly belongs to the soul and partly to the physical being. When you speak of jumbled thoughts, you must begin to understand that your subconscious thoughts become much more heightened as your spiritual consciousness grows. You need to distinguish between the two and although—(Eileen coughs and Les fetches some water)—Thank you. Your desire for more knowledge my dear child, will grow steadily. You will come to know the difference between what comes from spirit and what belongs to the human thinking. You cannot rush what is needed to be learned over one lifetime. Your desire is great, but you need to adopt the patience, to know and to understand that all will come to you in time. You my dear friend, would wish to analyse much that has happened to you. Let me say only this: It is good in as much as you wish to grow spiritually, but it also can hinder that growing, if you are not careful. I say to you only this, my dear friend: Allow these thoughts, these feelings, these pictures to come to you. Try to accept that it is part of your spiritual development, and all should soon become clearer to you. You cannot rush it, you cannot jump too quickly, you must take things slowly, slowly, slowly. You have much to offer us in the way of service of spirit. We know you read much, but there can be no place for experience, if you cut out the first steps of learning. Do you wish to reply?

Sallie: I suppose I just have to think about—what you're saying is have I cut out some of my first steps of learning.

Open up your heart, sit quietly and allow us in; that is all you have to do and all that you would wish will come to you. If you like, you can develop the feelings, the association of feeling, with other people. But do not analyse it, allow it to happen and we will continue to help. You my dear friend are travelling the correct path, do not falter and stumble with your thinking, but allow us to support you and help you to expand and grow. That is all we ask of any of you, that you open your heart and your mind to us. Be patient, be patient. (Spoken softly) Does that help you?

Sallie: Yes it does thank you.

You must rest more too. You are spiritually tired at this time in your life and it is because your mind is over-active. Allow yourself some time for quietness of spirit. That will sustain you in all ways, spiritually and physically. I will help you dear friend.

Sallie: Thank you.

Les: Thank you very much indeed.

Do we have more questions?

Jack: Yes, could I just quickly go back to something. (Yes) You were talking about consciousness earlier, the expansion of consciousness with the Earth. Were you talking about the Earth spiritually evolving?

Yes. It is a complicated subject.

Jack: I realise that, I just wanted to make sure I was on the right tracks —

Not only is it this planet, but it is all universes, it is all energy which is constantly expanding. Do you understand?

Jack: Yes I do, at the edge of my mind I think I know what you're getting at. I'm just trying to put it together.

Yes, you have formed a picture in your mind have you not?

Jack: I have indeed.

Yes, it is correct in as much as what you see is what you can understand.

Jack: Yes, absolutely.

It is correct, so travel towards it and your understanding will come. (Thank you.)

Now I think for this time my dear friends, I will allow another to speak with you and I will say this to you: Thank you for giving me your time, your love and your energy. Numbers mean little when it comes to communication, but what is important is that the energy given by those who come to us, be fully returned, when we leave. And I will endeavour to see that each one of you this time will leave feeling much uplifted and full of that Great Creative Force of Love, which you all are bound to.

Les: Thank you very, very much and for being with us tonight, it was an unexpected pleasure.

I cannot always promise to be here when you desire, but of course I always will try.

Les: Yes, we do know you have other work to do, that we appreciate also. We can't monopolise your time.

You do not, the desire is mine and I would say that you give more than I give to you. For this dear friends, I will be eternally grateful.

May peace stay with you all, until we meet once more.

Les: Our love goes with you, God's blessing on you.

There then followed one through Eileen briefly, with a message for Jack, about feeling like a puppet sometimes, being pulled by others too much. She went on to chat merrily about her life in spirit, lightening the atmosphere nicely before we closed.

~2nd February 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

My dear friends forgive my slow introduction to you this time. Power association and unity with this instrument, becomes ever stronger and so for a little time, power connection with you, may be a little more difficult.

Les: Thank you for telling us.

I hope my dear friends that our words last time, have been of help to you. I know that for some, it created new avenues of thought.

Les: Well it certainly did for me. I've already been passing on those words to others, who I've met since our last meeting.

I am aware and am grateful to you all. After all, is that not your purpose, in being available to us, that all extended knowledge be shared by all?

Les: Of course. That is another reason we are so grateful for what you bring to us, because it does give us the opportunity of discussing with others, who don't attend these meetings.

If it creates thinking within those people, we could not ask for more.

Les: I'm sure it does, because two at least to whom I've been speaking about it were most interested and admitted that it was an entirely new avenue of thought for them.

Yes, and this time my dear friends, I would like to speak with you about 'Thinking' — 'Thinking.' Many peoples of your world are confused and puzzled, when it comes to the differentiation between what I would term intellectual thinking and intuitive thinking. They cannot distinguish between the two. And that is understandable; after all, all thinking has a purpose in your world, whether it be intellectual thinking, or intuitive thinking. In groups such as these, of course we would expect that intuitive thinking would be recognised more easily and used for the purpose for which it is intended. I hear your questions now, 'How can we know the difference?' There are some within this room, who ponder this question on many occasions, are there not?

Les: Yes there are; I'm one of them.

Yes, can I try to simplify this matter a little for you? (Thank you.) When your thinking comes from the intellectual brain belonging to your physical mind, there is an urgency to have that thinking, to have that thought brought to fruition. With intuitive thinking, it comes more slowly, sometimes over some time and will always appear and return to you many times. The fleeting thinking of intellectual thought, you can make disappear instantaneously and not return to the thought. You cannot when it comes to the intuition, because it comes from within and also without, from those of us who wish to help you. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, so would I be correct in referring to that as spiritual thinking?

Of course, because your intuition is spiritual thought.

Les: Yes I thought that would be the answer, because to me they are the same. And my next question if I might: This intuitive thinking wouldn't necessarily only be on esoteric subjects, but could have an effect upon ordinary day-to-day things in our lives?

Of course, it would be of help, or information to be given to you, to be purposeful in your lives.

Les: And that would be because you could see the result of action taken on that thought, if we did take action. (Of course.) Now we're getting somewhere; this has been puzzling me for a long time.

That is why we must dedicate some time to this matter.

Les: I'm very grateful, because it has puzzled me for a long time now, at the recurrence of thoughts, which were simply on day-to-day matters and they haven't been put to rest, until those thoughts have been activated and dealt with.

That is the difference between fleeting thoughts and intuitive thoughts. We can inspire, we can continue to help you with these thoughts, the thinking that will help you to progress in your daily living.

Les: Yes, well this is really most satisfying, because not knowing precisely what it was, now you have explained it, I can understand why sometimes I've felt compelled mentally, to say thank you for that thought, (Yes) and have gone on to act on it.

There should be no urgency in intuitive thought, as there is in your other thinking, although I must say the intellectual thinking can feel to be compelling, it is not. You must take control of this thinking, you understand?

Les: Yes I certainly do and that's really opened up another new avenue for me, because it has as I say, been going on in my mind and brain for a long time, I've been aware of these apparently intermittent thoughts recurring, (Yes) until I have taken action.

It is part of your growth, it is part of the understanding of the self. When you know the self then you know and understand Thought.

Les: Yes and what has interested me too, is that on several occasions when thoughts have been, or the actions from those thoughts would be to the advantage of other people, it has been almost a compulsion to deal with it at once. (Yes) It happened once or twice in the background as it were and then quite suddenly I feel that I've got to do it.

Do you not see my dear friends that thought, intuitive thought, is a giving out of energy to another, on most occasions?

Les: Yes of course it would be.

And you must think of energy as a gift, as a giving to another.

Les: Which in turn, must be passed onto another?

That would be the scheme of life and not always happens, but that is how it should be given. Give of yourselves, give of your thoughts, use those intuitive thoughts constructively. After all, you still have command of these thoughts, whilst you are in these bodies. You have the power to ignore or to use—always that power lies with you.

Les: Yes, that's our free will, isn't it?

But in recognising these things, does it not help you, to know and to understand that these thoughts should not be ignored?

Les: Absolutely it does help.

Now, does one have questions this time?

Les: Yes, before we leave this subject, if I might ask if any of my colleagues here, have had similar feelings that I have had, in the difference of the thinking?

Sallie: Yes definitely with the intuitive coming back (Yes) until you actually do the thing.

If I could perhaps suggest some way of helping that is quite simple: As the thought comes, try to push it to one side, try to deny the thought and see if it returns to you. If it returns once, twice, thrice, then you know it is intuitive thinking.

Les: Yes, it's amusing, because it's precisely what's been happening to me.

Yes, that is your intuitive thought.

Les: Thank you very much indeed I'm glad I've acted on them.

Although your other thinking can be compelling, wanting to be brought to fruition, if you deny the thought, it will be gone. Do you see the difference?

Les: Yes you're quite right.

George: Could I just say that with intuitive thought, one instinctively knows that the body of the thought is correct, whereas with intellectual thought, it has to be proved.

Yes, there would remain the uncertainty, yes you are correct.

Les: Yes the acceptance of the intuitive thought is instinctive, isn't it?

Yes it comes from within, my dear friend, yes.

Les: Good, that's most illuminating, it really is and—

Does everyone understand now? (Affirmed)

Les: We can discuss it after if you like, because I don't think Salumet is here for very long tonight. I have one question, if you can take a question now? (Of course.) You have told us many times in the past to always check if we are unsure of our happening. (Yes) You are probably well aware of the extraordinary happening that has never occurred before, in all the years I've been working, at our last meeting on Wednesday. You are aware of it, I believe? (Yes) Is it correct, what was said?

May I remark upon this? (Please.) Yes, partly a little—I don't know how to put it into words—embroidery; but basically all is well. But there was just a little embroidery, but nothing that would dismay me.

Les: So the basis of what was told us, was correct? (Yes) Thank you very much, because I had no doubts about the instruments whatever.

No, do not doubt them, but be careful sometimes that they are not too excited by what happens; that is the only cautionary note I would put to you, you understand?

Les: Yes thank you, I understand, and I can understand their excitement too.

Yes of course and we do not want to dampen any enthusiasm on spiritual matters.

Les: No, well thank you for confirming that. It was so realistic, that I didn't really have any doubts, but you know my attitude now.

Can I say this to you, my dear friend? (Please.) If I was to know or feel that things were not correct, I would tell you, because our purpose is not to mislead in any way, but as you know there is a possibility in genuine people, to become over-excited about these matters.

Les: Yes you're quite right, that's why I like to check, to make quite sure.

Yes, do not doubt, all is well.

Les: Thank you very much for that and it'll give them wonderful assurance too, (Yes) because we all felt very honoured that it should have happened.

Yes, if you feel the love and the upliftment by all, you can begin to realise that it would not be felt so much, if things were wrong, you understand?

Les: Yes I do, and thank you again for the confirmation, because I shall pass that on to the instruments, to give them assurance too.

Yes, now for this time, if we have no more questions, I will leave you, only to work with this instrument for a short time and allow another to come.

Les: Thank you. God be with you.

There then followed one from the Native American Indian nations, through Sue:

Talk only for short time, to have more time with this one for communication. I give you the name of High Waterfall. (Thank you.) I say to you, every person here has bright and shining horizon. I say to you, use your psychic eye and look further than you can see. Look and you will discover the secrets of your inner mind.

Les: Yes, we would like to be able to do that, the difficulty is learning and knowing how to do it. You were far more experienced in those ways.

Spend quiet moments in tranquillity, look inward and you will be able to look outwards and forwards. Be of sound thought, do not let doubts creep in, accept every small particle that you see as truth and then the sky will open and your horizons will become close.

Les: Thank you, we shall certainly try, and what is the totem within us that we should be looking for most often?

Look and feel the peace, even in inner turmoil, there is peace, do you believe my words? (Yes I do.)

Rugged pathways are only a lesson in peace.

Les: Yes we do understand that since the universe is subject to the laws of cause and effect—if there is turmoil then there must be peace, if there is peace then there must be turmoil.

You cannot have black without white. There is no grey, you understand me, no grey?

Les: Not in the spiritual context, only in the physical world.

You all must try to feel the inner peace, the spiritual land which has been yours, is yours and will always be yours. Do you understand what words I say?

Les: Yes we do understand and we thank you for them.

Negative is not good, negative breeds fear, and fear cannot be spiritually beneficial to you.

Les: No of course not.

Face your fears, hold up the white light of love, so that any fears recede and die. I speak truth, but I do understand the difficulties you have, in applying them to your life, but all I can say to you, is try, even a small amount will bring you light and success, in smoothing out any rugged steps, which you feel you may fall upon. Do you feel my words are harsh?

Les: No, we think they're very sensible. The only harshness is in ourselves, trying to understand how to do it.

Can you understand when I say to you, that there are times when we could beat our heads upon the ground, in frustration?

Les: Yes, we could join you in doing that.

But we understand, we understand that what is clear, like crystal water, is like a muddy pool to yourselves.

Les: Yes you're quite right.

But it is no good using the stick to stir the muddy waters, you must let that water settle, that any dull and muddy particles sink to the bottom, allowing the clearer water to rise to the surface.

Les: Yes we understand what you say and will certainly try to do that, because we know the wisdom of your words and we thank you for them.

You will not ever be alone in your endeavours. Each one of you will have someone at their side, influencing, guiding—

Les: Yes we're quite sure that you're with us and we're very grateful for the knowledge.

Think upon my words and try, try to put fear behind you.

Les: We shall certainly try to do that.

We only wish for you to look forward and see the bright light on your horizon, like the sun rising in the East.

Les: Yes we shall do that.

Your suns will never set, they will always be in the ascendance.

Les: Good that's very comforting.

I give you great blessings and love from High Waterfall and will give what help I can to open the new channel in your souls.

Les: Thank you very much indeed and we all thank you again. God be with you.

Ar kee nyah, ar kee nyeah pah

There then followed one briefly through Eileen, who had been before, discussing animals and vegetarianism:

Good evening—I'm only here for a short time.

Les: Stay as long as you wish.

No, a short time.

Les: That is as long as you wish. (Laughter)

I've been privileged to return myself again. I told you I would send someone to you, do you remember?

(Yes) Yes, well I'm allowed to step in this time, just for a short time. Do you remember your question?

Les: Which one, I ask so many.

Yes I know, you obviously do not—yes your question was about eating meat, do you remember? And you asked me if in saying thanks to the animal before it was killed, did that make a difference?

Les: Oh yes I remember now.

Well I was most surprised myself by the answer. Yes, the animal would prefer not to be sacrificed for human consumption, but if the thought is good and thanks given for the animal's life, then in some way that makes matters okay.

Les: That's interesting, thank you. I know a lot of the tribes did thank the animal before they killed it, didn't they?

Yes and people still do I'm told, but the animal would prefer to live life to the full; so I hope I've brought the answer to your question.

Les: That's very kind, we do appreciate it. Now of course we have to ask ourselves whether, in view of the fact the animal would prefer to live longer, are we acting detrimentally to our own spiritual progress, by taking its life?

I have been instructed that you have been told it would be better to refrain from this act, but consequently the choice is yours.

Les: We have been told you're quite right.

Yes, well I also have to say, it's much more damaging to curtail the life of an animal who has received human love, rather than the beast in the field, I have been told to tell you.

Les: That's understandable too; (Yes) because to take the life of an animal that has had human love, would be denying that love, wouldn't it?

There is a little twist I think, because you don't fully understand that the animal in the field, can feel the love from the human, even in mundane tasks, such as feeding and watering.

Les: Is that so? They feel the love for the human, do they?

Of course it is a love act, isn't it? I too was surprised by these answers, because when I came to you I told you I had many troublesome times, coming to terms with meat eating and that you must not torture yourselves too much. Do you remember? (Yes) Yes well you see I too have learned something.

Les: Good, so we've been helpful to each other?

I should say so!

Les: That's very nice and we do appreciate you coming back, as you promised.

Well I didn't promise, so I'm really surprised.

Les: I mean the answer you promised, I put it badly.

Yes I did go back and find out, to see if it could be given to you.

Les: Thank you very much indeed, we're all grateful to you.

(Thanks + farewells)

~16th February 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As we come together once more, let us give thanks for this opportunity to bring more knowledge to you. (Thanks expressed) I know that your time has not been uneventful since last we met, but it is most joyous to be together once more.

Les: Yes, you are part of our lives now and we do miss you when you don't come. (Salumet had not come through at the previous meeting)

I am indeed part of you and I am never far from you. (Thank you.) Now, let us begin this time and let us say that every moment be used to fulfil understanding and any questions you may have this time.

Les: You wish us to ask questions now or are you going to give us more education first?

I will take questions this time first.

Les: Right. At our last meeting on Wednesday, which as you know is an entirely different evening, (Mainly 'rescue' work) we were told that all those present, had been together in a previous life, and it was said that we had been Buddhists and one of the lady's had very clear clairvoyance of the monastery, in which it was said we used to live. What I wanted to ask first, one gentleman who was at the Monday meetings when first you gave us information as to what we were in a commune, was also at the Wednesday meeting, as I was myself. Would that mean that both of us have been part of both previous lives?

I understand the question. Let me say this to you: That no significant meeting of another in one lifetime is by chance. There can be no chance meetings, in a perfect law. So let me say this to you:

That all peoples who are drawn to this place of love, have come because they know and are drawn to the love and light of the place and the peoples within. I will say this to you, about your other meetings, but firstly I wish to say this to you dear friends: Forgive the past, forgive the past. You do not fully understand the meaning of my words, but I will return to them later. (Thank you.) Those who are joined together in another meeting have come together for the same purpose of growth that you peoples here have also. Of course my dear friend, you are the link for all of these peoples. Therefore, your unity with each one is such that you have spent many of your lifetime in unison with them. So the answer to your question for yourself is yes, you have lived amongst the peoples here, as one commune and also with the others. There has not been a unity of all of you at one time. (I see.) But let me continue with your question. There are two members in your other group, who do belong with this one. That is the gentleman mentioned and also the lady known to you as Doreen.

Les: Doreen, that's interesting, she'll be delighted to know that.

Of course you understand that not just the few peoples here within this group, were enough to supply a small commune. There are others, there have been others, not present at this time. You understand this. (Yes —) I would think it must have crossed your minds and I have been awaiting the question. (Affirmed) But that is not our concern this time. But the gentleman and the lady have belonged to this group of people, you understand?

Les: Yes that certainly clears that point. I was very interested, because you've told us in the past that some of us come back with a memory and it would seem that the memories of our previous lives have come into operation again in this life, as you said does happen.

I will return now to the words I have used: Forgive the past; what purpose does it serve, to know what has gone before.

Les: No real purpose I agree.

So, I say to you, remember that you are not one whole that each lifetime is served by a segment of the whole. The segment that is used for one individual lifetime, is but insignificant to the whole. Are you following?

Les: Yes it's beginning to become clear to all of us I think.

That is why you must forgive the past, you must go forward, allow yourself to experience new concepts, new growth, new understanding of spirit, in order that you return to the whole enriched and more knowledgeable, in your quest for knowledge. That is why when the soul incarnates, all memories are mostly erased, because it serves no purpose for the soul's growth, to remember what has gone previously. After all, you are a different segment of being, that is why in this lifetime, it is good that each one of you has come together once more, to continue with your work, your understanding of each other and to extend the love, which you began as a group together. Has that been helpful to you?

Les: It's been helpful to us all I'm sure, hasn't it? (Agreed) Yes it gives us a far greater understanding of what has been, and what is to be.

Always look towards new experience, ask always that your understanding become greater, that your outlook is forever looking forward. After all, the experiences which you have gained, have grown. You are here to learn those lessons, which so far, you have been unable to attain. Do you understand?

Les: Yes I do, but one thing I'm not quite clear on, those two—taking myself having been in those two previous incarnations, (Yes) both those presumably would have conditioned in some way, the part of me, the part of the whole, which is living now.

You would have returned to the whole, with the lessons and the knowledge, which you had gained from those lifetimes. You must see yourself as one whole unit, which is able to expend itself to individual lives. I know this understanding must be difficult, because most see yourselves as one physical body and one soul. The soul is many integrated parts; until your understanding reaches this stage of knowing, that you are not one soul, you will never fully realise the greatness that lies within you. You have to try to expand the knowledge of who you are.

Les: Well as usual, that gives us a great deal more to ponder upon.

That is my wish for you that each time I come, new formations of ideas reach you, in order that you can find yourselves, that the meaning of life becomes clearer to each one of you. After all my dear friends, you have not come this far in your development, not to begin to understand what your real self, the soul, the spirit, call it what you may; the time has come for you to understand, what you are about. Do you follow?

Les: Yes I begin to see what you are driving at. So it is not conceit then, thinking of ourselves as this part of the soul, it's not conceit to think that we have far greater potential, than ever we have considered?

No, no, that is not conceit as you know it—that is the truth of seeking.

Les: So we have to keep that in mind then, that our potential is much greater.

It is ever-expanding; (Yes) it cannot be static, otherwise what is the purpose of your life? You would remain in a vacuum of knowledge, without going forward.

Les: Yes, that's interesting you say that, because at our last Wednesday meeting, one of the members asked me a question about ultimate learning and I said, you never will reach the ultimate, because everything is constantly expanding. So it is a question always of striving to reach something, which you will never be able to reach.

We have spoken about this. How can energy stand still? Knowledge belongs to the great universal Love, which you know as God, as understanding of the soul. So of course you must expand and grow.

Les: But never be able to reach finality.

Of course not.

Les: Thank you, I'm glad that I didn't advise her in the wrong way, because that's precisely what I said — I wish I could demonstrate to each one of you, the potential that lies within. The soul's growth is never-ending. We each one of us seek, search for that love, that all—(Coughing interrupts dialogue and sentence not completed/voice begins to fade, as if spoken from far away)* Existence is never-ending, so how can knowledge end? That Great Creative Force, it is ever-expanding, creates in us an ever-expanding soul. My friend, I speak about deep matters here. I am sure your understanding is such that you could not understand what I say to you. See that ever-expanding soul within that ever-expanding sea of love, and you will begin to see the fluidity, the knowledge, which exists in all time. I wish I could demonstrate to you the power within you all, the power which is your entitlement.

Les: I think we are beginning to have an idea of it, after what you have told us.

Your question dear friend—(Pause) forgive me dear friends, I was being drawn away from you, because of the complexity of the questions. The instrument will be fine. Now let us continue.

Les: Thank you. I'm sorry if my questions cause problems.

Not problems, but we touch on deep subjects here. It is not the questions, but the inability to express in your Earth terms, understandable answers.

Les: Yes we do understand; So much is beyond our comprehension.

Yes, much as you have grown since first we met, your understanding leaves little room for such great expansion of knowledge, as your questions have raised. I hope I have enlightened you just a little.

Les: Yes you have certainly done that and again we are grateful for what you have said.

Do you have more questions?

Les: Yes, I do have another which relates to something you told us a long time ago, about memories sometimes being of a spiritual nature. We remember what we have done when we come over to you in our sleep state, but that gets confused with the subconscious; this we do understand. But is the subconscious as we call it, part of the physical brain, or is it activated by the spiritual mind?

The subconscious belongs to the spiritual mind.

Les: Thank you very much, that clears that one, I couldn't see that what transpires within the subconscious, could be activated by the comparatively low grade physical brain.

The subconscious mind is your diary of events, if I could put it so simply and that belongs to the soul.

Les: I thought it must do, thank you for clarifying that, I'm sure we're all glad to have that clarification, aren't we? (Agreed) Because I think it must have occurred to all of us at some time—what is the beginning of the subconscious.

Without the subconscious mind as we term it, the physical brain could not continue on its own. It would be like an instrument without a player. Do you understand?

Les: Yes we do understand and I think we've all been aware of that in the past, that the brain is activated by the spiritual mind. So many people get the two confused.

Yes, it is something which you humans ponder and argue over so often. But do not doubt that your subconscious mind is the book of all events.

Les: Thank you. That is all the questioning I have.

I will say a few words only this time and then allow another to come to you. (Thank you.) Still dear friends, each one of you ponders the question, 'Why is life so difficult at times?' I will return once more if I may, and say: The power of your mind is at fault, nothing else, no one else; each one of you must accept responsibility for all that occurs in your thinking. If life situations distress you, you must look inward and ask yourself, why does it distress you so. The answer lies within yourself. Forgive, give love, and your lives will be as you desire. Love and only love, can bring about the lifetime, which you all deserve. And hear me well my dear friends: You ALL have the ability and you, each one of you, are deserving of the best that the Great Creator has to offer you. Remember each one of you is a perfect form, of that Creative Force and in having that knowledge, you have the equipment to have the very best of this life, upon this planet.

Ponder my words this time; each one will review them in a slightly different way, according to their own progress. But each one will find realisation, that what is within, is ultimately what you have made it. I leave you now my dear friends, with my ever-increasing thanks for your love and your welcome. Until we come together once more, we give thanks for all that we can achieve.

Les: Thank you again for all you have told us. God be with you.

Eileen then channelled another, who needed to come through into the physical, though did not require any particular dialogue. Finally, one through Sue touched on what had been said by Salumet earlier:

—I will say before your meeting comes to its close, that the information received into this room this time, was of benefit and was necessary. So, of course as you were told, your question was expected. We always have a purpose in mind and nothing, nothing is said or occurs by chance. Sometimes these things seem to take a long time in your time-span to happen. But believe me when I say, in actual fact it is only like a twinkle of the eye.

Les: Yes we don't understand the time difference, but we do accept what you say.

Even when it is your time to come to us, even then, you will not fully understand the time-scale. It will take some time to become aware of the difference and the reasons for it.

Les: Yes of course. Thank you for telling us—(Thanks + farewells)

~23rd February 1998~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Your anticipation and welcome brings me to you once more.

Les: Very nice as usual to have you with us.

Let us this time, give thanks for this joining together, this union of like minds. Give thanks that we come together as ONE, in expectation of growing spiritually together.

That is our endeavour this time. I hope dear friends that each successive visit with you, brings us in unity each time, more closely.

Les: I'm sure it does, it does with me, I think it does with everybody else, doesn't it? (Agreed)

I would like this time, to talk with you, about a much-used word in your world, 'wisdom.' If you are willing, let us have some debate upon this topic.

Les: That would be very interesting, because I think wisdom and knowledge are often confused and it has for many, many years, been part of my prayer, to ask for the wisdom to use properly, the knowledge of which I am given.

Yes, it would suffice I think, if we could have individual views, on what you think is wisdom.

Les: Yes, shall we start with you Margaret?

Margaret: knowledge of life, isn't it? What you've learned through life, then it becomes wisdom.

Les: You think its knowledge?

Margaret: Well, to have wisdom, you have to have knowledge, don't you?

We will hear all your points and then I will speak at the end.

Les: Thank you, George?

George: I would say wisdom is the proper use and application of knowledge; it would also come into the further seeking for knowledge and the use of knowledge to the common good.

Mark: I would say that it's the appropriate use of knowledge, the right use at the right time. It's a bit like when we were talking about truth. When we were talking about truth, truth was relative very much to the time and the meaning of the person, but I think wisdom has a more concreteness about it, but it must also be relative as well, I would have thought. But I don't know, it's slightly different from truth, it's more to do with the application —

Les: Right, if we could stop there please. Sarah?

Sarah: I have a feeling that wisdom is something—an inner help you get with wisdom. Knowledge is something you've learned and wisdom is something that comes from within you. You don't know why you do certain things, but you do them. It's—how can I say it, it's not spiritual, but it's something you're helped with from inside, rather than something that you just know.

Sallie: I think the ultimate wisdom, is a form of understanding.

Jack: Wisdom, yes—the way that you use your knowledge I would say and what you gain in experience. I would define it as the way experience has taught you the way you should behave and I think wisdom is actually applying that.

Dawn: I think wisdom comes through experience and also due to a certain amount of intuition.

Les: Right, and I think wisdom is mainly the ability to know when we are not as wise as we think we are. That I think would sum it up, because we can never require sufficient wisdom, to be cognisant of the requirements of everybody else around us, and that I think is what we must all strive to do.

Yes, my dear friends, your answers are the usual amongst human beings. You are unclear mostly, about the use of the word; it is not a word easily defined. Your understanding, your knowledge, belongs to the physical. Let me say this to you about wisdom: You are human; wisdom my dear friends, can never be achieved, whilst you are on this Earth. Your explanation of wisdom is mainly a physical one, combined with the word understanding, the gaining of knowledge and so forth. I would say to you my dear friends, wisdom whilst you live in these bodies, has to be the elimination of all extraneous thoughts, emotions and human compulsions, before you can even begin to consider wisdom. The young lady was partly correct in her saying, when she said she does not know where the understanding comes from. It is an innate emotion within you all; the spiritual aspect of oneself. I do approve of your human word, 'oneself,' because in this existence, that is all that you are.

Wisdom therefore my dear friends, is a gathering of spiritual knowledge of each self, which is gathered together, to be taken forth, with love. Wisdom is a fragile gift; wisdom is the inner knowing of life itself, for surely does not the sunshine follow the clouds? Is that not wisdom? Is the doing of an act, which you would not truly do for yourself, but for another, is not that wisdom?

Les: Yes I suppose it would be.

Do you see what I am striving towards? Wisdom is not emotion, wisdom is not a gathering of knowledge, wisdom is something each one of us continues to seek and which we can never attain, because always there is more to know, because your consciousness is ever-expanding. Do you not see, that in seeking wisdom that is what you are searching for? Can you begin to follow me, dear friends? (Affirmed)

Les: Yes I think we do, so to clarify a little for us, we have to look upon with a different meaning don't we? (Yes) We have to recognise that wisdom is the need to try always, to attain the spiritual, (Yes) rather than concentrate on the physical attributes?

Yes, you seek and ask for wisdom, when what you mean, is to be given human understanding of all of human life. Do you see the difference? (Yes) There is a difference. (Yes —) You were correct, when first you spoke about the difference between knowledge and wisdom. Wisdom dear friends, comes only—comes only and I say this with love and sincerity to all those I have communion with—wisdom comes only to those higher beings, who have attained such position in spiritual knowledge and love, that they have grown so, in their own consciousness, to become part of the whole. Only then, does wisdom begin to show itself, can you understand? (Affirmed)

Les: Yes we can; so we have a very long journey before us, before we can fully appreciate what wisdom is? I would rather dear friends, in your prayers and your thoughts, not to ask for wisdom, because wisdom belongs to you naturally, it will come when you are ready for it. Do not seek it whilst you tread this planet; rather ask that you be shown truth—and knowledge if you must. Ask that you be guided, that you have the ability to eliminate all that stuff that is unnecessary to you. Only then will you have clear-seeing, only then will the understanding come to you, that life on this planet is hard work and only then will that love within you, come forward to encompass you and to lift you into that Great Cosmic-Consciousness, to which we all belong.

Les: Yes, Jesus had the same thought in mind, I imagine, when he said, ‘What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?’

That is one expression, yes. You must be your own overseer of the soul. After all, you have the responsibility to care for, to nurture and to allow that soul structure in its lifetime. You must allow the soul to grow and again dear friends, I speak not only in physical terms; you must have balance in your lives, of course you must, how else could you survive? But what I say to you is this: Leave wisdom to those who have attained some degree of it and who will help you, when the time is right. Ask dear friends only, that you can extend your love to all of mankind, to all of humanity and to genuinely give of yourself. What point is there, of asking for understanding, if you do not make use of it properly? Are you not being hypocritical in your daily lives, if you ask for something and then deny the knowledge that you are given?

Les: Yes it would be hypocrisy. You’ve set us another big task.

I would say this to you, my dear friends and I will use this word wisdom only once in connection with your physical being: True wisdom, is eradication of all that is unnecessary for the soul’s growth. But the true wisdom is in knowing oneself. There lies the seed of wisdom.

Les: Yes I can understand. I think everybody else is clear on that, is everybody? (Affirmed) Are you sure, because I’m sure Salumet will take a question if you have it?

Yes, I would rather we discussed it fully this time, because I do feel it is a step that each one of you must make, a step in understanding.

Sallie: I’ve got one question please. (Yes) I didn’t quite catch what you said, maybe that’s why I’m confused, but you said something about asking for understanding, being hypocritical and I didn’t quite understand what you meant?

No, in asking for understanding and not putting it to its correct use, would be hypocritical—better that the words were never spoken, do you understand? (Pause) No, she is confused.

Sallie: I’m still confused, yes.

Each one of you, at some time or another, seeks knowledge and understanding in your daily lives, do you not? (Agreed) When the understanding is given to you, it matters not about what, how often does that understanding be thrown by the wayside?

Les: Because it would conflict with our physical desires?

Yes, that is where I say, you would be better not to ask, it would be better to be ignorant of the knowledge. If it is given to you, it is up to you of course, because of your free will, but ultimately it is your choice, whether or not to use the knowledge given to you.

Les: Yes because if we ask for it, we are implicitly accepting the responsibility, for using the understanding that we are asking for. (Yes) And if we don’t use it and accept that responsibility, then I quite see what you mean, it is hypocrisy.

Of course, I use the word in your physical language, for understanding only, but I say to you—and again I return to my favourite word, ‘THOUGHT,’ and how important that is to each one of you. That is why I say, wisdom is the elimination of all extraneous emotions. Why do you seek, if you do not use? Do you follow me?

Les: Yes I do, are you clear Sallie?

No she is not.

Sallie: I understand what you've explained, (Yes) I understand the words that you're using, but there's something that doesn't sit right with me about what you're saying, but I don't quite understand what it is.

Yes, you feel that you have the right to ask, of course you do. But what is the purpose of asking, if you do not follow through with the knowledge that you are given?

Sallie: I understand what you mean, but there's also the feeling that unless I ask, I don't even have the opportunity, to perhaps work with that understanding. Perhaps I'm putting myself at risk, because I could be given the understanding and not use it, but there's a possibility that I could use it.

Of course and that is where your free will comes into play. But what I would like you to know and to understand, is that if you are to grow spiritually, you must have full control of your thoughts. (Pause) She does not understand and is not ready for this information. We will leave it with you and I will try to help, to make it more clear to you, in your sleep state.

Sallie: Thank you.

Les: If I might say Sallie, I believe what Salumet is trying to get through to all of us, is that having asked for understanding, we must not even think of doing something which would effect that understand, or deny it, which is often our physical habit; we want to do the spiritual thing, but our physical inclination, (Yes) makes us not do it. We mustn't even think of exercising that physical inclination.

You must, if you are to become aware spiritually, you must have command of the physical thinking, you must have command of the whole physical being. After all, I am sure you are aware in your world, of many you call masters—are they not concentrated beings of thought? You would not find in any one of them, extraneous emotional thought that is not useful to mankind. That is why they have grown so spiritually, it is the control of the emotion, control of the thought, control of understanding and the need to give love to all, without thanks.

Les: So basically, we have to guard our thoughts Sallie—all of us; that would seem to be the answer.

Sallie: There's something I'm missing in this conversation and as Salumet says, maybe I'm on the wrong track, so maybe I'll take it away and sleep on it, yeah.

Yes, clear your mind my dear friend, her understanding at this time, is not ready. After all, did I not tell you when first I came, that we would have many difficult conversations, that you could not all, in your own developmental stages, fully understand?

Les: Yes, you did that.

So, do not feel my dear friend that you are lacking because you do not fully understand. Be assured that it will come to you, when you have fully opened to it.

Sallie: Thank you.

Les: Any other questions? I think Salumet's covered it pretty fully, in what he's told Sallie.

It is a difficult topic, because most people think of wisdom as a physical attribute, something tangible that can be touched and felt and seen in others. I am here to tell you dear friends, it cannot be so simple.

Les: So to sum up then, wisdom is a spiritual asset, which we have not yet attained, not even really thought about properly.

I would say that after all, one self in one lifetime, how much wisdom could you attain, in all of eternity?

Les: No, you're quite right. Again we're thinking in physical terms of one life, aren't we?

Yes, that is why it pleases me to hear your term 'one self,' after all one self, in one lifetime, is but an iota of the whole.

Les: Yes well that certainly does make it clearer, that we have to recognise that we must not regard this one life, as the only method of learning.

It is not the ultimate, of course it is not. Your understanding is such now that you know or should understand that the knowledge gained in one lifetime, is nothing, nothing to what can be achieved.

Les: That makes it clearer for us all certainly, doesn't it? (Agreed) I'm guilty as well as the rest of you—you're not getting out of it any of you—(Chuckles) I was just as bad, only thinking of the one lifetime, which is the crux of the matter, I think.

That is what you must all dwell upon, that you have come together this time, as like-minded people, but secure in the knowledge, that at least in this lifetime, you have had the chance and the opportunity to grow spiritually and that your lives have taken the correct pathways, to love and to light. Enlightenment in this lifetime, has been much for some of you, and for the others who are new onto their own pathway, there is a long way to go, but nevertheless, you have accepted and you have all dear friends, stepped into the light of knowledge. I thank you this time, for listening to me with love and with patience. I can feel the confusion within some minds, but I say to you, everything can be achieved, if you will open yourselves to those who come to you, to help you and uplift you, to bring you awareness, to bring you the help that is needed when it is needed. If you will but open up your hearts to them, you would be surprised how much less difficult, life could be for you. Come to know yourselves, and you have the beginning of much growth.

Les: Thank you very, very much. (Affirmed)

I do hope I have not tired your thinking? (Enthusiastic thanks/gratitude expressed)

Les: You've given us I big 'jerk up,' in our expression—we're thinking like mad at the moment.

I feel it, I feel it.

Les: It's a wonderful avenue you've opened.

I am always warmed by the affection and the openness of your hearts. It gives me joy to know that at least the physical brain is kept alive; that many thoughts are pondered and I ask that you use those thoughts wisely, wisely, wisely (Voice gently fades)

Les: We're very, very grateful for what you've told us tonight, it does for me open up a completely new wide avenue of thought and I'm sure it must do for my colleagues here too, (Agreed) because we do tend to think only of this one lifetime and that we must not do.

I hope that in this lifetime that this lifetime will be one, which you can reflect upon, as being one lifetime of greater understanding.

Les: Yes I think we shall be able to say that, thanks to your being with us.

As you all reconnect to that centre of love and energy to which you belong, I know that each one of you, will find that this lifetime has brought you closer to the unity of perfection, to which we all seek.

Les: I'm sure it will have, quite sure of that. I was thinking of you two or three nights ago actually; I was watching a TV program, and photographs of the sky taken from telescopes in space. No doubt they are still in their infancy, compared to those on some other planets, but I thought of you, because these telescopes are bringing to us the colours that we are not able to see with the naked eyes and the immensity of the Universe is just staggering. You've told us many times, but to see it, as we can see it now, really is incredible.

Much is growing within your planet—the seeking and the searching without into the universe. But your universe belongs to such a tiny portion of all existence, I could not begin to explain to you, in understandable terms, how minute you are.

Les: I can quite see what you mean Salumet, having seen those pictures the other night, it was staggering. I don't know whether anybody else saw Patrick Moore's program? It made me begin to realise the immensity that we'd been told of.

When you begin to feel the unity and the oneness of the Cosmos, then truly you have the beginning, of understanding of all spiritual matters.

Les: That's interesting you should say that, because I had a peculiar feeling, that although it was so immense, that it's beyond our comprehension, but I felt part of it.

(Salumet's voice is now a gentle whisper)

Yes, and you should, because we are all part of it; there is no divisions, you can see planets, stars, universes, but all is part of each other, as we are, when you feel the unity, the joining of spirit, indeed you have begun your journey home.

Les: Splendid, yes it was a peculiar feeling, but a very comforting one, I must say.

Yes, that is a human word, 'peculiar,' it should be natural for you, it should feel good, secure comforting, it should encompass you, within the feeling of love; in order that your knowing comes to you, that you are not separate, but you are intertwined, within the Great Creative Force. Feel it within you, know you are part of it.

Les: Yes, it is in some ways frightening to recognise that we are part of such an immensity.

Do not be afraid, because each one of you shines forth, in your own state of love and light, without which, others could not exist. My dear friends, I leave you this time; I wish that I could gather you all to me, to join me on my journey home.

Les: We would like to be with you; we shall have to be with you in thought.

Always you will be, but one day, one day we will be joined together, in your spiritual home, with the greater understanding and knowledge, with love abounding from each one, secure in the knowledge that you have attempted the very best that you can.

Les: We look forward to that time. I have one brief question to ask if I may, we had a gentleman, who's very interested in learning more about this work. He came to another meeting, but I wouldn't ask him here, to one of your meetings, unless you approved. If I have your permission, then I'll invite him as a guest one evening. I think he is sincere in his interest.

His enquiries are genuine. Therefore if the others have no objections, then I cannot see any reason to deny him.

Les: Thank you very much, I'm sure he'll be very interested to hear you.

I will leave you this time my dear friends. Know this: That the time is closer when I will be even more strongly with you. Be patient, accept what I bring to you and know we have much to offer you.

Another immediately followed through Eileen, with a brief message for Mark, before we closed.

~2nd March 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

My dear friend, forgive my slow introduction to you this time. Power association and unity with this instrument, becomes ever stronger. And so for a little time, our connection with you may be a little more difficult.

Les: Right, thank you for telling us.

I hope my dear friends that our words last time have been of help to you all. I know that for some, it created new avenues of thought.

Les: It certainly did for me—I've already been passing on those words to others, since our last meeting.

I am aware and am grateful to you all, after all, is that not your purpose, in being available to us, that all extended knowledge, be shared by all?

Les: Of course, that's another reason we are so grateful for what you bring to us, because it does give us an opportunity to discuss with others, who don't attend these meetings.

If it creates thinking within those people, we could not ask for more.

Les: I'm sure it does, because at least two of the people I've spoken to were most interested and admitted that it was an entirely new avenue of thought for them.

Yes and this time my dear friends, I would like to speak with you, about thinking, thinking. Many peoples of your world are confused and puzzled, when it comes to the differentiation between what I would term 'intellectual thinking' and 'intuitive thinking'. They cannot distinguish between the two and that is understandable; after all, all thinking has a purpose in your world, whether it be intellectual thinking or intuitive thinking. In groups such as these of course, we would expect that intuitive thinking would be recognised more easily and used for the purpose for which it is intended. I hear your questions now: 'How can we know the difference?' There are some within this room, who ponder this question on many occasions, are there not?

Les: Yes there are and I'm one of them.

Yes, can I try to simplify this matter a little for you?

Les: Thank you.

When your thinking comes from the intellectual brain, belonging to your physical mind, there is an urgency to have that thinking, to have that thought brought to fruition. With intuitive thinking, it comes more slowly; sometimes over some time and will always appear and return to you many times. The fleeting thinking of intellectual thought, you can make disappear instantaneously and not return to the thought. You cannot when it comes to the 'in-tuition', because it comes from within and also without, from those of us who wish to help you. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, so would I be correct in referring to that as spiritual thinking?

Of course, because your intuition is spiritual thought.

Les: Yes I thought that would be the answer, because to me they are the same and my next question if I might, this intuitive wouldn't necessarily be only on esoteric subjects, but could have an affect upon ordinary day-to-day things in our lives, yes?

Of course, it would be of help, for information to be given to you, to be purposeful in your lives.

Les: And that would be because you could see the result of the action taken on that thought, if we did take action?

Of course.

Les: Thank you, now we're getting somewhere—this has been puzzling me for a long time.

That is why we must dedicate some time to this matter.

Les: Yes I'm very, very grateful because, it hasn't actually worried me, but I have been puzzled for a long time now, at the recurrence of thoughts, which were simply on day-to-day matters and they haven't been put to rest, until those thoughts have been activated and dealt with.

That is the difference between fleeting thoughts and intuitive thoughts. We can inspire, we can continue to help you with these thoughts, the thinking that will help you to progress in your daily living.

Les: Yes well this is really most satisfying, because not knowing precisely what it was, now you have explained it, I can understand why sometimes I've felt compelled mentally, to say 'thank you' for that thought. (Yes) And have gone on to act on it.

There should be no urgency in intuitive thought, as there is in your other thinking, although I must say the intellectual thinking can feel to be compelling, it is not. You must take control of this thinking, you understand?

Les: Yes I certainly do and that's really opened up another new avenue for me, because it has as I say, been going on in my mind and brain for a long time—I've been aware of these apparently intermittent thoughts recurring, until I have taken action.

Yes, it is part of your growth, it is part of the understanding of the self. When you know the self, then you know and understand thought.

Les: Yes, and what has interested me too, is that on several occasions, when thoughts have been, or the actions from those thoughts would be to the advantage of other people, it has been almost a compulsion to deal with it at once. (Yes) It happened once or twice in the background as it were and then quite suddenly I feel that I've got to do it.

Do you not see my dear friend that thought, intuitive thought, is a giving out of energy to another, on most occasions?

Les: Yes, of course it would be.

And you must think of energy as a gift, as a giving to another.

Les: Which in turn, must be passed onto another?

That would be the scheme of life and not always happens, but that is how it should be given. Give of yourselves, give of your thoughts, use those intuitive thoughts constructively. After all, you still have command of these thoughts, whilst you are in these bodies. You have the power to ignore or to use; always that power lies with you.

Les: Yes, that's our free will, isn't it?

But in recognising these things, does it not help you, to know and to understand that these thoughts should not be ignored?

Les: Absolutely it does help.

Now, does one have questions this time?

Les: Yes, before we leave this subject, if I might ask if any of my colleagues here, have had similar feelings that I have had, in the difference of the thinking?

Sallie: Yes definitely with the intuitive coming back to you.

Margaret: Until you actually do the thing.

If I could perhaps suggest some way of helping that is quite simple: As the thought comes, try to push it to one side, try to deny the thought and see if it returns to you. If it returns once, twice, thrice, then you know it is intuitive thinking.

Les: Yes, it's amusing, because it's precisely what's been happening to me!

Yes, that is your intuitive thought.

Les: Thank you very much indeed, I'm glad I've acted on them.

Although your other thinking can be compelling—wants to be brought to fruition—if you deny the thought, it will be gone. Do you see the difference?

Les: Yes you're quite right.

George: Could I also suggest that with intuitive thought, one instinctively knows that the body of the thought is correct, whereas with intellectual thought, it has to be proved.

Yes, there would remain the uncertainty, yes you are correct.

Les: Yes the acceptance of the intuitive thought is instinctive, isn't it?

Yes it comes from within my dear friend, yes.

Les: Good, that's most illuminating, it really is and...

Does everyone understand now?

Les: Everybody clear on it? (Affirmed) We can discuss it after if you like, because I don't think Salumet is here for very long tonight. I have one question, if you can take a question now?

Of course.

Les: Thank you, you have told us many times in the past to always check if we are unsure of our happening.

(Yes) You are probably well aware of the incredible happening, which has never occurred before, in all the years I've been working, at our last meeting on Wednesday. You are aware of it, I believe? (Yes) Is it correct, what was said?

May I remark upon this?

Les: Please.

Yes, partly a little—I don't know how to put it into words—embroidery, but basically all is well. But there was just a little embroidery, but nothing that would dismay me.

Les: So the basis of what was told us, was correct? (Yes) Thank you very much, because I had no doubts about the instruments whatever.

No, do not doubt them, but be careful sometimes that they are not too excited by what happens. That is the only cautionary note I would put to you, you understand?

Les: Yes thank you, I do understand, and I can understand their excitement too.

Yes of course and we do not want to dampen any enthusiasm on spiritual matters.

Les: No, well thank you for confirming that. It was so realistic, that I didn't really have any doubts, but you know my attitude now...

Can I say this to you, my dear friend? (Please.)

If I was to know or feel that things were not correct, I would tell you, because our purpose is not to mislead in any way, but as you know, there is a possibility, in genuine people, to become over-excited about these matters.

Les: Yes you're quite right, that's why I like to check, to make quite sure.

Yes, do not doubt, all is well.

Les: Thank you very much for that and it'll give them wonderful assurance too, because we all felt very honoured that it should have happened.

Yes, if you feel the love and the upliftment by all, you can begin to realise that it would not be felt so much, if things were wrong. You understand?

Les: Yes I do, and thank you again for the confirmation, because I shall pass that on to the instruments, to give them assurance too.

Yes, now for this time, if we have no more questions, I will leave you, only to work with this instrument for a short time and allow another to come.

Les: Thank you, God be with you.

I'll tell you all about Wednesday afterwards.

There then followed one through Sue:

Talk only for short time—to have more time with this one, for communication. I give you the name of High Waterfall.

Les: Thank you.

I say to you, every person here, has bright and shining horizon. I say to you, use your psychic eye and look further than you can see. Look and you will discover the secrets of your inner mind.

Les: Yes, we would like to be able to do that, the difficulty is learning and knowing how to do it. You were far more experienced in those ways.

Spend quiet moments in tranquillity, look inward and you will be able to look outwards and forwards. Be of sound thought, do not let doubts creep in, accept every small particle that you see as truth and then the sky will open and your horizons will become close.

Les: Thank you, we shall certainly try and what is the totem within us that we should be looking for...most often?

Look and feel the peace, even in inner turmoil, there is peace. Do you believe my words?

Les: Yes I do.

Rugged pathways are only a lesson in peace.

Les: Yes we do understand that since the Universe is subject to the laws of cause and effect—if there is turmoil then there must be peace, if there is peace then there must be turmoil.

You cannot have black without white. There is no grey, no grey—you understand me, no grey?

Les: Not in the spiritual context, only in the physical world.

You all must try to feel the inner peace, the spiritual land which has been yours, is yours and will always be yours. Do you understand what words I say?

Les: Yes we do understand and we thank you for them.

Negative is not good, negative breeds fear and fear cannot be spiritually beneficial to you.

Les: No, of course not.

Face your fears, hold up the white light of love, so that any fears recede and die. I speak truth, but I do understand the difficulties you have in applying them to your life, but all I can say to you is try, even a small amount will bring you light and success, in smoothing out any rugged steps, which you feel you may fall upon. Do you feel my words are harsh?

Les: No, we think they're very sensible. The only harshness is in ourselves, trying to understand how to do it.

Can you understand when I say to you, that there are times when we could beat our heads upon the ground, in frustration?

Les: Yes, we could join you in doing that.

But we understand, we understand that what is clear, like crystal water, is like a muddy pool to yourselves.

Les: Yes you're quite right.

But it is no good using the stick to stir the muddy waters, you must let that water settle, that any dull and muddy particles sink to the bottom, allowing the clearer water to rise to the surface.

Les: Yes we understand what you say and will certainly try to do that, because we know the wisdom of your words—and we thank you for them.

You will not ever be alone in your endeavours. Each one of you will have someone at their side, influencing, guiding...

Les: Yes we're quite sure that you're with us and we're very grateful for the knowledge.

Think upon my words and try, try to put fear behind you.

Les: We shall certainly try to do that.

We only wish for you to look forward and see the bright light on your horizon, like the sun rising in the east.

Les: Yes we shall do that.

Your suns will never set, they will always be in the ascendance.

Les: Good, that's very comforting.

I give you great blessings and love from High Waterfall and will give what help I can to open the new channel in your souls.

Les: Thank you very much indeed and we all thank you again. God be with you.

Ar kee nyah, ar kee nyeah pah

There then followed one briefly through Eileen, who had been before:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I'm only here for a short time.

Les: Stay as long as you wish.

No, a short time.

Les: That is as long as you wish. (Chuckles)

I've been privileged to return myself again. I told you I would send someone to you, do you remember?

(Yes) Yes, well I'm allowed to step in this time, just for a short time. Do you remember your question?

Les: Which one...I ask so many.

Yes I know, you obviously do not...yes your question was about eating meat, do you remember? And you asked me if in saying thanks to the animal before it was killed, did that make a difference?

Les: Oh yes I remember now.

Well I was most surprised myself by the answer: Yes, the animal would prefer not to be sacrificed for human consumption, but if the thought is good and thanks given for the animal life, then in some way that makes matters ok.

Les: That's interesting, thank you very much. I know a lot of the tribes did thank the animal before they killed it, didn't they?

Yes and people still do, I'm told, but the animal would prefer to live life to the full.

Les: Of course—that's understandable.

So I hope I've brought the answer to your question.

Les: That's very kind of you and we do appreciate it. Now of course we have to ask ourselves whether, in view of the fact the animal would prefer to live longer, are we acting detrimentally to our own spiritual progress, by taking its life?

I have been instructed that you have been told it would be better to refrain from this act, but consequently the choice is yours.

Les: Yes, we have been told, you're quite right.

Yes, well I also have to say, it's much more damaging to curtail the life of an animal who has received human love, rather than the beast in the field, I have been told to tell you.

Les: That's understandable too, (Yes) because to take the life of an animal that has had human love, would be denying that love, wouldn't it?

There is a little twist I think, because you don't fully understand that the animal in the field, can feel the love from the human, even in mundane tasks, such as feeding and watering.

Les: Is that so? They feel the love for the human, do they?

Of course it is a love act, isn't it? (Agreed) I too was surprised by these answers, because when I came to you I told you I had many troublesome times, coming to terms with meat-eating and that you must not torture yourselves too much. Do you remember? (Yes) Yes well you see I too have learned something.

Les: Good, so we've been helpful to each other?

I should say so!

Les: That's very nice and we do appreciate you coming back, as you promised.

Well I didn't promise, so I'm really surprised.

Les: I mean the answer you promised—I put it badly.

Yes, I did go back and find out, to see if it could be given to you.

Les: Thank you very much indeed, we're all grateful to you.

Yes and thank you again for your welcoming. Goodbye.

Les: Goodbye and come back any time you wish.

I wish...

(We then closed and had our usual tea)

~9th March 1998~

The first came through Eileen, to explain the plan for the evening. Eileen was to be used quietly. It was suggested that the rest of us discuss spiritual matters, whilst the work was done. There then followed a 'rescue' through Sarah involving a drowning. Salumet then spoke:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I could not leave you this time, without just a few words.

Les: Thank you very much, that's kind of you.

Your discussion this time has been of much interest to me, because my dear friends, you are speaking about that important word, 'Thought.' Do you see how much and how far you have come in reaching this discussion?

Les: Yes I suppose we have, looking at it like that.

All of you are indeed ambassadors for spirit; to give the knowledge that you have received. But I would say only this to you: Do not be foolish in your thinking; your acceptance of spiritual matters is individual to you all and therefore the attraction to others to help you to convey those thoughts must be considered.

Les: Yes we understand that.

When you have reached spiritual truth, there is no need for the expression of words. Show others by your example—the example of your physical living. And here, I wish to speak to the gentleman who was so passionate about physical living. I understand his thinking and I say only this to him: Of course, in a physical world, there has to be physical actions, but always these actions must be guided and if truly within your hearts you can say that your actions have been guided, then you have nothing to fear. But there comes a time in your development, when physical actions MUST be thought about most carefully, because in taking action, especially actions that you have spoken of, you must remember that you will be responsible spiritually, for all words and actions taken. I know you understand this and I feel that the interaction of words here this time, became confused.

Jack: I think you're right, yes. No, purely my contention, is that we are actually here in this physical set up, to do something in this physical set up, regarding spiritually—

Yes I understand my dear friend. Always be guided by spiritual thinking (Yes) and the actions will follow. I am most happy to have joined you in this conversation. I am most pleased that we have attained such positions in your development that has enabled each one of you to speak so. Those who have not expressed themselves in words this time have been quietly engaged in their own thinking. To you all my dear friends, I say continue, continue in your thinking, do your best, you cannot do more, and all will come right for you. (Thanks expressed) My love for you remains and I know that all will feel much uplifted this time. (Thanks expressed) I could not allow this time, to go without these words.

Les: We do appreciate you taking the trouble.

Until next time, may each one of you continue to follow your chosen path.

Les: With your help we certainly shall. God be with you.

There then followed another through Eileen, called Jack. He was a jovial chap, who helped to lighten the meeting at the end. He referred to the drowning mentioned in the rescue earlier, and how it sounds a lot worse than it actually is. (Speaking from his experience) He went on to speak about his love of flowers and how they bloom as long as you want them to, in spirit realms.

~16th March 1998~

Eileen had a tickly cough this evening and needed a bit of healing. Salumet did not speak, nevertheless an enlightening evening followed. The first came through Eileen:

Hello. (Welcomes)

We wish to thank you for waiting for us.

Les: Thank you for taking the trouble. I know our instrument isn't as fit as you'd like her to be. I think it's very brave of you.

It makes no difference, but the one you expect will not be here, but we do not mind, we can manage with this instrument this time.

Les: Good, I'm glad we waited.

We would like to say that the instrument we are using may or may not know that although she is not what she considers in full/good condition, she's been helped quite a lot. We cannot allow workers who have so much to do, to be incapacitated for too long.

Les: No I'm sure you'd rather we were fit to work and you've helped me I know.

Yes you do understand, yes.

Les: And I'm sure your instrument will.

Well I thought it best to tell you, in case she does not, I do not know. But this time, we wish to speak to the lady who sits close by to me. (Sue) This lady has opportunity coming to her, opportunity that she must not let go by, because this opportunity enables her to grow spiritually.

Les: Did you hear that Sue?

Sue: Yes (Faintly—it was difficult for Sue to talk as she was in trance)

Yes, we know that she is being used, but it is necessary that we issue these words this time to her, because the time we speak of is in your near future. She will know the circumstances when they arise and she should not push to one side, the opportunity that is coming to her. She will have doubts of course, but she must be strong in her determination to go forward. These circumstances are set around new unknown people to her. Please remember these words, they are important for you and we do not issue them lightly. (Thank you.)

Les: Thank you very much for that.

You friend, I am being told, have found that recently that much has grown in your world and I speak spiritually, not physically.

Les: Yes much has grown.

Yes, there has been an expansion of your understanding, I believe?

Les: Yes you're quite right, there has been.

Yes, this will continue of course. Once you have trodden this pathway, there is no returning. But of course, I think I utter words that you already know.

Les: But it's nice to have verification of them, anyway. (Yes) And there is a very big expansion going on throughout our world, but of course it hasn't come to the forefront yet.

There is much to come to this planet, of course there is; I do not know so much, but I have the understanding that there are many happenings to come.

Les: Yes, you're quite right, we have been told that.

There is an air of expectancy I think I can say within our world, in certain areas of teaching, we are being informed of great steps being taken.

Les: That's very good news for us, thank you; we certainly need it in this world.

Always be aware that you can make a better world. Do not always be so negative, but look forward to the brightness, because there is brightness to come.

Les: I think all people who learn something of the spiritual side of life, do begin to do that automatically. It should come automatically, as your consciousness grows I agree, but to some there always will be doubts, always negativity, always a falling backwards.

Les: Yes it is unfortunate, because they miss so much, don't they?

But that is your human nature, it is only to be expected and we see it so often, that at times it is quite hard to be continually uplifting someone, to raise them to go forward. But of course that is the task of many from my world and we do it openly and with love in our hearts.

Les: We do appreciate it, it must be very disappointing—I was going to say frustrating, but it wouldn't be frustrating, because your understanding of us is too much. (Yes) But you must be disappointed sometimes, at the reaction you get from us?

No, I would not use the word disappointed. (No?) No, it helps us—it helps us to help those who need it most. It is a little more work perhaps, but we do not feel disappointment. In fact it gives us the upliftment to go forward and help.

Les: Yes I suppose it's a form of challenge to you again?

Yes, that is a better word.

Les: That you intend to overcome, regardless of the circumstances.

Yes, there is no—how do you phrase it, 'giving up on one?' (Yes) No, that would not happen.

Les: I think we begin to appreciate that here, don't we? That having one's feet on the path, there's no question that we shall want to continue on that path and it does give us all upliftment, even if it's in different degrees. Would everybody agree with that? (Agreed)

Yes, when your dedication is looking for the truth, then you can only be sure-footed, that is true. Yes, but of course with the natures that you have, with these bodies and the brains that you have, there are bound to be times when there is bitter disappointment and a lack of how can I say, 'faith' in the truth.

Les: Yes that's understandable I suppose, but we must learn and I think we do learn here, how to overcome those temporary setbacks.

Yes that is a big step forward for you all. When you can face adversity, when you can look it full in the face and not allow it to surround you, to beat you up with disappointment and grief, then indeed you know you are following the correct path. I could not say that to many people, but in groups such as these, we find that each one uplifts the other, in ways unknown to each other—it happens.

Les: Yes that I can understand too, because there's so much that's a mystery to us, that personally I just accept that there's going to be a lot of mystery. But I accept that fact and work within it, (Yes) without wanting to know the reason for the mystery, or an explanation of it, because we shall never get it anyway.

No, but in groups such as your own, each energy feeds upon the other.

Les: Yes, it's an interdependency again, isn't it?

That is what congeals you together, yes of course it is—it is most interesting, is it not?

Les: It is something well worth learning and I'm very grateful for the teaching we have here.

I do believe that the one who comes to you, brings you much; I do hope so because there is so much to learn.

Les: Yes he does bring us a great deal.

Yes, I know from my own experience, that in these halls of learning, we are taught so much. We are always learning there is no end to learning and each step takes us forward, just that little way further, to encourage us onwards, onwards and onwards.

Les: Yes I remember a long time ago, somebody from your world told us that if ever we thought we'd learned enough, then they would cease coming.

Well, foolish words to think each one knows it all; even those in our world who come to teach many, would be loath to say they know too much.

Les: No, some of them do say actually, that they can only tell you from their knowledge, at this moment.

Of course, any communicator who comes to you, can only give you what they have learned to that point in time. They cannot give to you, what they do not have. That is why there are so many contradictions in your world, from so many communicators. It is not that one is wrong and one is right—please try not to look upon these communications in that way. You must take each communicator and judge for yourselves, that what we give to you is acceptable to you, because once the acceptance comes, then we can move on.

Les: Yes, I'm certain that all of us have learned enough now, to question if we suspect anything is not quite what it should be. Not that we consider it to be an untruth, but if it doesn't tie in with other things we've been told, then it must be suspect.

Well it is suspect only to oneself, shall we say. (Of course.) It may be that your understanding has not reached that point. So I would say to you, judge not, listen to what is given to you. If it is not acceptable, leave it so and return to the fact later. And you may find by that time, all makes sense to you. You are growing all the time, as a child does. (Absolutely!) You would not expect a very young child, to be able to read a book full of knowledge. But in time, when the child returns to that book, all would seem so simple.

Les: Yes, I think that is what Jesus meant when he said, unless you are born again, you cannot enter the kingdom of heaven.

There are many such sayings, yes.

Les: Yes, we do have to be born again spiritually.

Yes, well we have said many times to many of your groups I believe, that what you call your death, is in fact your birth. Your birth here is in fact a form of death.

Les: Yes I don't think any of us here look upon it as death now, it's merely a transition from one world to another.

Yes, is there anything you would ask me?

Les: Yes, I don't know if you can or would wish to give an answer, but we've had a lot of controversy in this world, about the so-called abduction of human beings by aliens from other planets. They are alleged to have taken various parts of the human anatomy and then return the human being to this Earth. Is that so? You want to know if this is the truth? I can answer simply for you, YES it has happened.

Les: It has happened? That's interesting, because some of the reports would appear to contradict other reports.

Yes, that is always the problem with anything of a nature that you do not fully understand.

Les: Yes and there's also the possibility of exaggeration of what has happened.

Yes, always take into account that you as human beings have a mind which can embroider—always keep that in mind. But the simple answer is 'yes,' there are in our universe, many, many forms of life and of course you have to understand that some of these forms of existence are far in advance of your knowledge.

Les: Quite, that I do accept, without any reservation. As we were once told, we are at the bottom of the pile in development.

Yes, but there have been—I would say, do not look upon these stories of abduction, where they feel harm is meant; that would not be the case—we do not have alien forces intent upon destruction.

Les: Well, I couldn't imagine that it would have been allowed.

No, no, you must be cautious in your acceptance of these words. As you human beings show interest in all that surrounds you, in what you call SPACE, is it not surely, that those who live without this planet, should not be interested in you also?

Les: It's perfectly natural, because knowing us, our human attitude would be—if we discovered a new life-form of life on the moon for instance, the first thing we would want to do is cage it and bring it back to show everybody. It's understandable that others might want to do the same with us.

Yes, their knowledge is far greater, but that is why the memory in most cases is wiped, because human beings at this time in their evolution find it difficult to accept.

Les: I could understand that it could happen, but I couldn't see the need in taking parts of the human anatomy?

There is no need to do that. Why should they, when their knowledge is much more expansive than yours? You must use your intelligence in all of these stories.

Les: Thank you, that's an interesting answer, I do appreciate it. Would anyone else like to follow on from that?

George: I imagine part of the reason for our variation in reporting, is partly due to variations in perception. Some humans will perceive in quite a different way to others. Some are more sensitive to what is seen.

Yes, I would perhaps say that if each one of you in this room were asked to describe my words this evening, that there would be variations and that is the nature of the human being, that none of you are infallible. So therefore remember that many words that you listen to on all topics, must be used with reason and your own understanding of the situation.

George: And where the visions of Mary have been reported, some people have seen and some have not seen, or some would see different things. (Yes) I imagine it would be similar with our impression of aliens? Yes, you human beings tend to feel that all that you see, feel, smell, is the absolute. Let me tell you my dear friends, that all of the senses and you have many more, vary so much, vary so much, that how could it possibly be that each one of you sees in the same way?

Les: No, because surely our perception of apparent physical things, vary according to our spiritual awareness of them also?

Of course, that is what you must always try to understand. You may never understand, but at least you can try.

Les: And accept the possibility of a dual interpretation of what we are seeing or hearing.

Yes, none of you are perfect machines—I am being told not to use the phrase 'machines,' I apologise. Sometimes we look upon you and it would seem that you are but robots. (Said with laughter)

Les: You probably are amused at the fact that we even consider ourselves to be on the road to perfection? Yes, do we not all at times? Yes.

Les: No, we are a funny mixture, we human beings.

I did not say that.

Lilian: Would they be coming from more than one planet?

Let me say only this: There is one galaxy in this particular time of your evolution that is most interested in your own Earth system. Yes, they come from more than one planet, yes.

Lilian: Thank you, so they'd look totally different?

There would be variations, yes. After all, look at the variations, in this very room! (Laughter) You are not the same.

Les: Completely different people.

Yes, could you imagine going to another planet and being described as all looking the same? No, why would you expect others to?

Les: I suppose the basic question is, those that would be interested in visiting us here, even though we are not aware of them, their intention is for our benefit?

They are interested mostly, it is interest—the same way that your scientists and such like on this planet, seek the history of the planet. They are interested, so they seek it out.

Les: In the knowledge for its own sake?

Yes, not for destruction, not for destruction.

Les: Not for destruction, that's important of course, but neither particularly for our elevation?

The time is coming and I think I would be correct in saying that much more is known about these comings, than has been let known at this time. (Yes —) I could not say absolutely, but I have been informed that much more is known, than the common people know.

Les: You're quite right, we're sure of it.

You do know, yes.

Les: But when it'll be released of course, that we can't know. But we have been told that it'll be in the not too distant future.

Yes, I can tell you categorically, that the time is coming, when these visitors will make themselves known openly. (Splendid.) It has to come, when humans lose more of their fear and gain more understanding then they can make an appearance openly.

Les: And of course we have a lot to do ourselves, before we are fit to welcome them.

Yes, you have many prejudices, the human race many, many.

Les: Well you can tell them, they're always welcome to come here. We should be happy to see them!

Well, you could do that for yourselves, couldn't you? (Laughter)

Les: I'm just taking every opportunity.

You want me to space travel for you?

Les: Well, there's no harm in trying, is there? (Laughter)

Well this is a source of amusement—you human beings—(Gentle laughter)

Les: Well we would ask them and welcome them, if we knew that they were getting our thoughts.

George: Could I enquire if some of the visitors have physical bodies?

(More chuckles) If they so desired! You see, their mental capabilities far outshine you, far outshine you!

George: So the nature of the body would be adjustable?

Aha, yes! It is something this planet has not achieved up till now.

George: And that would assist them greatly, in their method of travel. (Yes) That's very interesting.

Les: Well I say again, they have an open invitation to come and visit us, if they wish.

Be sure—if you're sure it's what you want! (Laughing again) I'm not so sure you would openly invite them if they came.

Les: Provided they come in love and peace.

Yes, they wish you no harm.

Les: I've no doubt they would adjust their appearance, so that we wouldn't be too scared.

Lilian: They could take us for a whirl around the Universe.

Fear exists only within the heart of the seer. Do you not agree?

Les: I do. No, if they came with love, we'd welcome them with love.

George: It's the spirit that counts and not the physical appearance.

After all, do you suppose the human frame is so pretty to look at, with your small heads and long limbs? (Laughter)

Les: I think probably they'd be very brave to come and visit us. (Well —) In fact for all we know, you might be one of those speaking to us now?

(More chuckles) No I am not, but I am amused.

Les: No I accept your word that you're not, but you could have been?

Why not? They can take the opportunity as we do to speak with you through another, yes.

Les: As you say, we are not all that pleasant to look upon—we might think so, but others might well not and think how ugly we are?

That is what I mean, fear lies with the seer, yes.

Now I think I have said more than I had intended, but I have enjoyed myself and I hope I have not told you too much.

Les: No, I'm glad you've enjoyed yourself, because we do appreciate you coming and we're very glad you've stayed so long.

I have enjoyed myself so much it would be pleasurable to return sometime.

Les: Please do, you have an open invitation and having seen us, we shan't scare you, I hope.

(Chuckles) I reserve my opinion!—yes.

Les: Well it's lovely that you still have a sense of humour.

Yes, why do you humans assume we have no humour in our world?

Les: No we know you have and it's nice when you bring it to us like this. We were told long ago, if we bring our sense of humour with us, we shall be much more welcome.

Of course, you cannot change so easily, yes; it heightens your light.

Les: I think you found a lot of fun when you were here, didn't you?

Too much, nevertheless, you can have your fun and still grow—yes you must have many aspects to living.

Les: I think humour helps us to grow.

You do? Why?

Les: I don't know it seems to lighten the energy.

Yes it does.

Les: And from your side, whenever we've had what we'd call a very serious or heavy evening, almost always someone comes through to lighten the energy that's left.

Yes you're right, it quickens the energy, which makes it lighter, yes you are right. That is why we try to bring happiness.

Les: It's very nice that energy can be generated in a humorous way, or by humour.

Yes, you can find light-heartedness in all aspects of your living.

Les: Yes, our orthodox church would be much more popular, if they entertained humour a little more.

(More chuckles) I would say they are already humorous!

Les: Yes you're right; looking at it another way they are, they are humorous.

Yes, we know.

Les: In their actions and their clothing.

Yes, but we must not be judgemental, must we? (No) That is still difficult for me.

Les: No, we are speaking as friends, without judging. I agree with you, some of it's very amusing.

Now, I believe there is someone else to speak with you, so I will thank you once again. I hope I have not overstayed my welcome.

Les: I think it's one of the most enjoyable evenings we've had, thanks to you.

Well, remember I know when you're lying. (More hearty chortles)

Les: Yes, so you know I'm not. It's absolute truth and everybody agrees, don't they? (Agreed)

Yeah, I believe you and hope that each one of you finds much love in your lives.

Les: Thank you and our love goes with you too. Thank you again and God bless you.

There then followed one through Sue, who talked about her rather difficult transition. She also had a brief message for Sallie before we closed.

~30TH March 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I want to say to you my dear friends, thank you for your patience this time. I wish to say that this time I almost achieved full control. And so you must forgive the slowness of beginning this time.

Les: Yes of course. You did warn us of the possibility.

Opportunity must be taken, when all conditions are right.

Les: Yes we understand.

I will take questions this time, but I ask that the time given to this be curtailed this time.

Les: Right, does that mean you wish to speak more, or others are coming?

Others will come, in order that I work with this one.

Les: Yes right. I don't have an actual question—I was going to ask whether you could repeat the lesson you gave at the last meeting, because owing to an oversight of mine, we didn't get the recording. It was such an interesting session, I wondered if you could repeat it, but that might be too much for you this time?

I can speak briefly this time and return to it more fully, another time.

Les: Thank you, I have no doubt that you remember what you told us.

Of course. We discussed how the physical thinking can overcome spiritual influence, whilst clothed in these bodies, yes? We continued to say to you, that mankind is plural beings and I believe that each one of you, were rather amazed by my words, in saying that the brain belonging to the physical being, has uppermost control, even over spiritual thinking, yes? (Yes) I know that by the end of my speaking with you, it began to make some sense to each of you.

Les: Yes it did indeed.

I told you that although the spirit reigns supreme, that whilst you are in these physical overcoats, your free will and your thinking—physical thinking, must remain in full control, even though you can be influenced for good, by that spiritual aspect of yourselves. You have to understand that you must be responsible for all actions in this lifetime. Therefore no matter what spiritual knowledge you have, this physical living must be fully in command. (Yes) If you have questions, I will take them now. We will go into this matter once again more fully. But for this time, we must spend a short time only.

Les: I understand and thank you for promising to go into it more fully and for what you have said tonight. I haven't any other questions. I don't know if anybody else has a quick question? (Pause)—Evidently not, Salumet.

I thank you for your tolerance. Know well that your patience will be fully rewarded, that all questions to come will be answered. Know that in time coming, these answers will be more expansive in the answering, know that your knowledge will be increased and that what I bring to you, will be new knowledge, new philosophy for your world.

Les: Thank you very much for your kindness.

I ask that now, I be allowed to work with this one.

Les: Yes, of course.

We are close to full control.

Les: That's lovely to hear. Will it affect you if speech from another communicator is allowed?

I ask only that you will endeavour to see that voices remain low and if possible I ask that your light be even dimmer.

Les: Yes surely.

Les then suggested we spend the rest of the evening in silent meditation.

~20th April 1998~

Les had had to cancel the previous two meetings, due to health problems and this evening began with one through Les, who briefly touched on this, and then Salumet began:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Let us this time, give thanks for our coming together once more.

Les: Yes we all give thanks for that.

To you, my dear friend, I speak no words, for none need be spoken.

Les: No, you've been with me constantly, for which I do thank you.

All have been together in communion with thoughts, which have helped to bring some upliftment for you. So in that sense, we have not been apart. (No) I will say only these words, that where healing manifests itself, there is perfection. You understand?

Les: Yes we do.

I would like to say a few words this time, on some thoughts that have been reaching out to me. Many have been thinking, 'why are these physical events not told beforehand?' I say to you my dear friends, why do you feel that you have the need to know? Why do you feel that you do not have the power to know for yourselves? Do you understand?

Les: Yes, yes we do.

You all know and understand, that from our side of life, there is more foresight than you would understand.

Les: Yes we do know that.

You know and understand that we 'see' what is happening within your lives. But we cannot interfere.

You know that before you come to this lifetime, that you have chosen a life plan, but you also know that because of your free will, many choices can be made. Therefore, although you travel to one destination shall I say, the choices to be made are great and many. We help to influence, we try to encourage, but in the end, your free will must surpass all. You understand?

Les: Yes, we do indeed.

So you must understand that although we are aware of the choices you will ultimately make, we cannot interfere with that choice.

Les: No, we have to learn our own lessons, don't we?

That is why you have your physical experiences. So you should not say, 'why does this happen?' You know why it happens, because YOU have made the choice, you have created the conditions, you have chosen that pathway along which you must travel.

Les: Even though we are unaware of having made that particular choice.

That my dear friends is the difficulty, that is why all of you find it difficult to understand life's patterns, because you still cannot fully accept that you have total control, total control. Can I make you understand?

Les: It is difficult for us to understand.

I know, but you must think upon my words.

Les: I think we have to think in several directions, because a little while ago, you told us about intuitive or spiritual thought, (Of course.) and in hindsight now, I know that I was receiving that some months ago. But I was not exactly ignoring it, but I wasn't giving it the attention it should have had. (Yes) Had I done so, my resent illness would not have occurred, I can see that now.

And did not my dear friend—were you not told to have some healing? (Yes) Why did you stop? Why did you stop?

Les: Frankly, I don't know. I seemed to have recovered and had been all right.

Yes, but you were not listening, you were not listening. That is what I say to you all my dear friends: You must listen, you must gain that intuitive knowledge, which you have, and use it to its fullest. Once you have accomplished that, your life's pattern will be so much more simplified, in all aspects of your living; (Spoken gently) in your health, in your partnerships, in your working, in all aspects of your living, will life become more simplified, if only you would learn to listen.

Les: Again it comes back to what you have told us, that we must consider ourselves more often, as spiritual entities, rather than physical beings.

Yes, not more often, always.

Les: True, I accept the correction.

Always, always first you are spirit—remember, and all physical aspects will fall into place. I know these ideas, these concepts are difficult to take in. I try to simplify it for you, I try to keep my words simple for you, in order that your understanding might come gradually and that that understanding stays with you, until such time as recognition of my words becomes a part of you. You Understand?

Les: Yes, I would think we all owe you an apology. I know you don't want it, but I'm sure we would all like to give it, for all having been so dilatory in our acceptance of what you have been telling us, of the need to think of ourselves as spiritual beings.

As you open your eyes in your morning, feel the power of that spiritual being, allow it to work with you/through you, be yourselves, and all with be well.

Les: I must admit that I have been feeling it during my recent incapacity and I believe I'm right in saying at one time I was taken over to you during my sleep state and allowed to witness what was happening to me at that time. I didn't fully understand it, but I know full well, I was experiencing it.

My dear friend, nothing happens by chance. Your recent 'illness,' as you call it, had a purpose.

Les: Yes, I'm sure.

I think I need say no more to you. Opportunities opened up to you, that you would not have expected and in saying these words, I know that your understanding grew just a little more.

Les: Yes you're right there too.

So you see, do not think of your life in any way, as problems, or actions to be sorry about. Remember that even as you say 'unconsciously' these acts take place, that you have been responsible.

Les: Yes that is the difficult part of course, for us to understand.

Yes, so you see try to think upon my words this time, try always to be honest with yourself—allow the spiritual self always to be to the fore.

Les: Yes and I must confess, I have been mentally chastising myself, for not having recognised that some months ago, when I should have done.

We understand, but you have been too harsh with yourself—do not be too harsh with yourself. After all, none of you are perfection, otherwise you would not be here. So accept that you can learn more. Always seek the spiritual side of life and the physical will fall into place. And by saying these words, I cannot promise that your physical lives will be all, how would you say, 'milk and honey?' Of course it would not, but your understanding and your tolerance of life would be such, that each experience would be a growth for you.

Les: True, and I have to agree with that also, because again in the last two weeks, I've been thinking a lot and it has become abundantly clear to be, that when you've told us that there is no such thing as a coincidence, that has become apparent in my thinking and understanding, during the last two weeks.

So your understanding has grown, even through an experience of life, which you feel you could have done without.

Les: Yes you're quite right.

Yes! But how are you to know, that in having these experiences that you have grown more spiritually? That is the importance of life; that is what matters.

Les: And I remember also some of your early teaching about us only having to plant the seeds, not to be concerned with the product.

We will help the growth, if you would all plant the seeds.

Les: Which I was able to do and perhaps you are also aware of it.

You will not fully know, what you have achieved during this span of illness—you will not know. But I can assure you that you have grown and let me say too, to all of these dear friends, that they too have grown in their thinking, because in your illness, it has given them the opportunity to view their own lives. Is that not true? (Agreed) You know that (?) Now dear friends, I will not take questions this time, as previously. I would like to work quietly, to work with this instrument and ask again that no sudden loud noise be allowed to happen, but to tell you that there will be no speaking. I leave you all with much love and my thanks for allowing me to join you once more, in the knowledge that we will be together once more. (Thanks + farewells)

~27th April 1998~

This was an unusual meeting, in that for the first 40 minutes there was no communication at all. Salumet then came briefly, followed by more quiet time:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I join you my very good people, in order that we may thank you for your stillness, your quietness, and most of all, your dedication. Within these quiet times, much has been happening. Your (?) will reach its fruition in your coming months and we want you to know, each one of you, that you have been a most important part of what is to take place here. We ask only that you remain quiet until the end of this meeting, in order that this instrument be fully returned to you. (Agreed) It is important that you understand that in trying to achieve that which we will, we must take great care, because you do not fully understand that these instruments are fully charged in a way not familiar to you. So I will leave you with these thoughts and ask that this instrument be allowed time to fully return.

Les: Certainly. Before you go I want to thank you for all you've done for me.

We require no thanks. You know we will stay with you. (Voice very faint)

~11th May 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Your patience this time is admirable, for this we thank you all. By now you know and understand my dear friends that these silences are most important to the work planned.

Les: Yes we do understand.

Each time we come close to you much is achieved and it is not always necessary that words be spoken to you. I do not wish to speak on any topic this time. But rather that you all my dear friends, look deep within yourselves, in order that your search be fruitful, in finding out a little more about the real you. Whilst I work with this one, I would if you so desire, like you to look deeply within yourself and allow to come forward what is there. If our dear friend and guide, who sits here will ask each individual to open up his heart and to seek what each one finds. Is this acceptable to you?

Les: Is this acceptable to everybody? (Agreed) Meditation and personal examination I think one could say; is everybody quite happy to do that? (Agreed)

It will be good for each one's own development, if they can speak out to you, but to speak quietly, without raised voices, whilst I work with this one please. (Certainly) Next time we will discuss what each of you has found out about oneself. (Right) It will be good to have a little light relief next time.

Les: Thank you. I'm being asked everybody, if you experience anything unusual and of which you are uncertain, please say so quietly and I or someone with me, will try and clarify for you—don't be afraid to speak out.

There then followed a period of silence, before Les spoke:

Les: I'm being asked to say to you collectively, when you examine within yourselves, be honest and sincere and if there is something within your ego or psyche, or whatever you wish to call it, that you don't particularly care for, bring it out. You don't actually have to speak of it, but bring it out and mentally try and discard it for good. Each of us has within ourselves something we would prefer not to be there. Now is the time to try and eradicate all of those undesirable things, that you know are there, but you ignore and cover up, rather than try to eliminate.

Les then went round each person to see how our elimination's had been going. We spoke of feelings and visions and after the last sitter had spoken, Les spoke again, with reference to Margaret, who spoke of feeling so happy that she could not explain how she felt:

Les: Now, you heard what Margaret said about feeling so happy, I've been asked to tell you to spend a few minutes now, as and I quote, 'a reward' just congratulating yourself on what you have achieved. Look inward again and look for the lights which you yourselves have kindled within yourselves. And don't mistake gratification for having done that; don't mistake gratification, permissible gratification, as a reward, for pride. You do deserve, if I can use that corny expression, 'a pat on the back,' each of you, for having achieved what you have achieved. These are not my words, they're being given.

Les' voice then changed as he began to channel:

That you should congratulate yourselves upon your achievements and upon your spiritual development, because as has been said, the feeling which cannot be described, the feeling of happiness is due solely to your spiritual growth, over the past years, my friends. You are entitled to congratulate yourselves gently, upon those achievements in each of you. Feel happy within yourselves, that you have absorbed the teachings of the master, which now enables you to be aware of the greater peace, tranquillity and beauty of spirit, which resides within all of you, and which should more frequently be brought to the surface of your consciousness, so that you become more frequently aware of the beauty that does lie within each of you now. Do you understand this? (Affirmed) Now that you have achieved that degree of enlightenment my friends, it is only just, that you should be permitted to enjoy what you have yourselves created. Relish those feelings of happiness—do not try to understand them, you never will. Accept them as a blessing from the Great Creator, of whom you are now much more aware. Do you understand? (Agreement + thanks) And for all those who surround you with their love, I bid you farewell, I wish you happiness, I wish you constant awareness of the growth within you all and I wish you success also, in your elimination of those undesirable characteristics, of which you are still aware. (Thanks expressed) God be with you my children, guide you and keep you, God bless you at all times. (Thanks + farewells)

~18th May 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Let us first begin this time, by giving welcome to this new one who is amongst you. (Mary) I have to tell you my dear friends, there is a little apprehension with this one, but it will disappear.

Les: I'm sure it will. We have had a couple of talks together, but of course your appearing like this, is quite strange to the lady.

And for that reason, we will keep our conversation this time, more simplified. I would say to this one, that she is a little reticent with what has been brought before her in this lifetime, but that is not unusual, amongst you human beings, in any case. But although there have been many discussions and she is quite loathe to discuss deep feelings upon these matters, her thoughts until now, have always followed what you call the 'normal' pattern. But I will say this to her: Thank the one who has brought you to us, (Sallie) because at last, you will realise and will find what Truth is. That is all I wish to say to her this time.

Les: Thank you for that, it will give her confidence I'm sure.

Let us say for the benefit of this lady, how it is that so many of us from different stations in life, have come together in this union of thinking—how such different peoples have a commonality of purpose. I would say to you all my dear friends, it is not what you are in this lifetime, but it is the unity of the spirit, which has brought you together, not only in this time, but as you know, in times gone by.

Les: Yes our new lady is not aware of all that has been said about our pasts yet.

No, but the thought patterns would suggest that wondering why different peoples come together and what it is that brings you here.

Les: Yes to confirm that what you have said, when I was talking with the lady a couple of evenings ago and she asked whether she might join our group here, I was confident that the time had come for her to begin the work.

Yes, many words have been spoken by our dear lady known to us as Sallie, and for this she must be grateful, because now she will begin to grow spiritually, in the correct fashion. She is a spiritual being, who has rather lost her way until now—not that she is not a spiritual being—I do not mean that; you understand? (Affirmed) I play with words, but she has not fully understood the purpose of life.

Les: Well with your tuition, now she will begin to learn as we have learned.

I think for this time, I will take questions before I begin to work with this one.

Les: At our last meeting you said that on this occasion, you were going to discuss our last instruction that we should think and look within ourselves. (Yes) And you were going to ask—I believe you said it would be a little light relief—you were going to ask what we had found.

Yes, that is the purpose of the questions.

Les: Thank you. So would you like us to begin self-revelations?

I will leave the organisation my dear friend, to you.

Les: I was afraid you might. (Chuckles) Right well let us start then individually, if that's agreeable to you, is it? (Of course.) Right Sue, are you with us? (Sue as usual was in deep trance)

No, please leave this one.

Les: Right, Margaret, what did you find in your self-examination?

Margaret: Well as you know, I felt very happy about life—it has changed my life completely. I don't think I could go on, without coming here on a Monday. It has relieved me of lots of agonising questions and things like that. I would be unhappy —

I would like to interrupt briefly to say, of course your life would continue, but we know and understand fully what you mean, because in the unison of all spirits here, the upliftment is much greater. Continue to know and to understand that that upliftment can only grow. (Thank you.)

Les: George?

George: During the session, I found myself going back in time and thinking about my earlier life and things I did as a child and later. I would not wish to do certain things now, but in those times past, I had a different awareness and I was influenced by others of different awareness—quite reasonably and I accept that those things were perhaps right at that time. But now I feel there's a different awareness and I would do things in a different way. Perhaps if I take one little example, when I was at secondary school, I had the choice of going into the cadets and learning some military tactics, or learning some Latin. I think now I'd choose Latin, but I chose the cadet force at that time —

Les: Never mind, we still won the war! (Laughter)

Of course you understand that throughout life, that your consciousness is raised, but do not be dissatisfied with life's, how you would say, 'deeds' you are not satisfied with, because all experiences contribute to what you become.

George: Yes I think I accept all that. (Yes) Yes I'm not unhappy about the past.

That is because your understanding now is greater. Good.

Les: Mark?

Mark: Yes like Margaret, I can't begin to describe the value that I get out of coming here. There's a balance here that I don't have in my day-to-day life. And I'm becoming more aware of when I'm not on the right path; I don't feel at all uplifted, when I'm on the wrong path—

Yes, but we do not want you to be dismayed. After all, you are human my dear friend, no one has said that you can be the perfect human being. But what is good, is that you have found balance. But that does not mean that you should be wholly satisfied, but that you should continue to search and to grow. Yes.

Les: Sarah?

Sarah: Yes I feel that this has been tremendous help to me, being in this group and it's helped me with my attitude towards other people; I think I've become more tolerant of other people and perhaps understanding people a little better than I did before. Perhaps I'm trying to be less judgemental than I was. Yes, have I not tried to teach you, that you should judge no man, because you do not fully see the whole picture of their lives. (Yes—absolutely!) But you my dear friend, have I would say in all of the peoples within this group, the one who has grown most. (Thank you very much.)

Les: Any contribution you'd like to make Mary? Anything you'd wish to ask? Don't be nervous—

Mary: I can't think of anything to ask right now.

Les: Right. Sallie?

Sallie: I think I heard it slightly differently last week. I thought I heard Salumet say about characteristics that we wanted to rid ourselves of, or to change—maybe that's just something I need to concentrate on myself—I imagined I'd heard that. But during last week's meeting, I was thinking about a particular personality trait that I have, where I become resentful and I've been trying to work upon that for ages. But after last week's meeting, I drove to work and I thought various resentful thoughts about a particular person, and just told myself, 'you don't need this anymore,' and I got that really lovely feeling of warmth and light and support, which is very encouraging. I don't think I've done terribly well at it this week, actually, so it's something I've got to keep going at. But that's how I took it, that it was about something we wanted to work on.

My dear friend, you are much too harsh upon yourself. No one expects you to be rid of all disagreements in your life. You cannot suddenly become what you upon this Earth, call Angels; none of you will ever become that in this lifetime. But in saying this, we have to tell you, continue to work, continue to know yourself, work upon that inner knowing and all other aspects of your life, will begin to fall into place. Do not be too harsh, but know that you have the ability, to be the best that you can and to know and to work towards that goal. Look within more often; do not dwell upon what you call your thoughts.

Les: All right Sallie? (Thank you.) Lilian?

Lilian: Like Sallie, I've got resentments, which I do try to overcome and I do find the words that you have given over the last few years, a really great help and thank you for that.

My dear friend, I ask no thanks, I thank you all for allowing me to come into your lives. All of you have grown much—all of you spiritually have grown. That is the difficult part for you that you have not yet fully grasped that inner spiritual knowledge, which is there to uplift you, to uphold you in times of trouble. Once each one of you can fully grasp that inner sense of knowing, all would be well.

Les: Thank you. Now it comes to me. It's interesting that Salumet should speak just as he has spoken, because in my examination obviously I found many bits and pieces that I'd have preferred not to have raked up again. But accepting that each of those incidents was a method of growth, if I can say this without conceit, I forgave myself for the past. And I have concentrated more fully on what we have been told, about the responsibility for the spiritual self, being on the shoulders of the physical self, whilst we are here.

You'll remember that talk we had and I have found that in this last week, to be exceedingly helpful, in making me understand more of the reasons, for which these so-called 'peccadilloes' are visited upon us, during our physical being. They are not misdeeds, they are not necessarily wrong— (Breathing changes as Leslie begins to channel) —they are all part of the preordained pattern, visited upon you as spiritual beings, when you returned for a further spell upon this physical life's plane. Has it ever occurred to you that growth would never be achieved, in the way in which it should be desired spiritually, if you did not have the setbacks, the disappointments, the regrets—the many things in your physical make-up, which go to make you what you are now at this moment? A diet of honey, however sweet the honey may be, would become very appalling to you, would it not, if you have nothing to off-set that sweetness? Do you understand? (Affirmed)

George: Yes, we are learning the value of setbacks.

These 'disadvantages' as you call them, the 'mistakes' as you refer to them—the things you would rather not have done of which you have spoken, have all been designed in the great pattern of life, so that you may more fully appreciate and understand the sweetness that is there, to be yours for all time, when you learn how to enfold it within your spiritual selves. You have heard remarks this time, on the happiness that one of your friends wishes to retain. You have heard from another of your friends, the result she felt after discarding her previous thoughts. These are but minute things in what awaits you, when you have learned that the physical part of you is of no importance at all. The only purpose the physical body has, is to give you those disappointments, sorrows, mistakes, regrets—things which you would not obviously choose for yourself. Regarding them as part of an important physical life, they are important only in as much as they lead you, gradually perhaps, but lead you nevertheless, to an understanding of the need to concentrate always upon the advancement and the growth of your spiritual selves. Does this perhaps make your physical disappointments, mistakes, regrets, adversities, a little clearer to you, accepting as you should, that they are part of the pattern, which you must have in order to grow? (Agreed) Is this clear to you? (Agreement and thanks) There is not one in this room, who would choose to lose a loved one; still you mourn, still you regret the passing of that one, instead of being grateful that the lessons of the physical life, have been learned and that one whom you consider to be lost, has in fact reaped a rich reward of spiritual upliftment, joy, blessing—all suffered in this physical life, will have been paid for in that one moment of truth. Is this clear to you? (General agreement + thanks) It is unfortunate indeed, that so much emphasis is placed—understandably so I agree—is placed upon the physical characteristics and attributes. And yet the purpose of that suggestion for self-examination was based upon the need for you to recognise now, that the physical problems are but a method of ensuring that you spiritually grow. Knowing that, would you willingly sacrifice all the problems inherent in the physical living, or would you accept those problems, secure in the knowledge that the spiritual reward far outweighs the difficulties, the disappointments of the physical living? Is it not worthwhile? Would you rather it be any other way? (Agreed) You would accept each of you, that the pattern designed for you, upon this physical plane, is not as unfortunate as perhaps would appear, at a casual glance. But having as I believe you have, understood the reason for the physical problems, you would not I presume have life in any other way, but to prepare you for the beauty, the unimaginable beauty, of a pure spiritual existence.

George: That was very clearly put, thank you very much for that. (Agreed)

Would anyone have a question on this, while our master works?

George: As regards loved-ones departing this life, I feel there always has to be a certain sadness in parting, even in other circumstances of a friend moving away. With us there seems to be almost of necessity a sadness in the parting. Would you feel that this is reasonable? But in the case of mourning, this should not go on for a long time.

My friend, it should not even begin. It is understood that since you are so inured, enveloped in your physical circumstances like grief, is understandable. But the strength of your spiritual wish of your desire for the one who has passed on, that the desire that he or she should immediately begin to experience the beauty of the transition—that should overcome any physical grieving that may be apparent. (Yes) I know it will not, but it should. Please concentrate upon this. Do not feel guilt at your joy that another has passed to us. Until you become much more spiritually aware, that grief will continue to be with you for a time. Dispense with it, disregard it, lose it as soon as you can my friends, because it is important to remember that the grief you display, will unfortunately react on the one who has gone, preventing that soul from travelling forward. If you wish them to be with you, to comfort you, to remove the grief which you are showing, so the very thing that you are hoping for, that all will be well for the departed, you yourself will be preventing. Do you understand this? (General agreement + thanks) Your grief places a shadow around each of you, when that grief is acknowledged and permitted and the one who has passed cannot penetrate that. That cloud of misery that you yourself have put unknowingly, to prevent the soul from returning to comfort you. That is why I say do not feel guilt, if you cannot produce any, what you would call, real 'depth of grief'—yes there would be tears of course, yes there would be sadness that is understandable; but deep grief, no, no, no. So do not let constant grief colour your judgement, colour your outlook, and in particular prevent the one for whom you are grieving, from progressing instantly in the new conditions in which he or she may find themselves. Do you understand this now? (General agreement + thanks) Always we ourselves are sorrowful, when we see the darkness surrounding those who are called 'mourners.' If only you could see it yourselves, you would realise how stupid it is, to continue such matters in a physical world, which in itself is full of misery. You but add to those conditions, and those I would hasten to add, are NOT part of the plan, which was intended for you. Forgive me, but talking of grief, has in it's very self brought it to me—it will go—please forgive me for a moment.

George: Of course. (Pause)

You may not believe that there are those who still suffer from their own grief, because of the grief displayed by those who mourn them still. So I say to you, if there is anyone amongst you, who occasionally recalls a grief, which was evident at the passing of a friend, or a closer one, discard that completely please. Do not even let it come into your mind; because however long that may have been ago, it will still attract and make unhappy, those about whom the thoughts are given. Is this clear to you? (General agreement + thanks) Now do you have any further questions? I think I have mentally chastised you enough, do you not think so also? (Laughter) Now, if you wish to question please do so? (There were no further questions) But I do beg of you, give very serious thought to the question of grief, at times when you would consider it should be shown. Never forget this. Your grief is a magnet, which draws back those for whom you are grieving.

Then if you wish my presence no longer, I will bless you my friends, encourage you in your spiritual growth. Do not as the master says, be too harsh upon your living. You are executing the plan prepared for you. You could not know of it before you came, you must experience it whilst you are here. God be with you my children, help you, uplift you, support you, give you happiness, that happiness may be passed by you to others—Bless you.

(General thanks, blessings and farewells)

There then followed one briefly through Sue:

I bring this for you. It is a flower of my realm. The colour is so beautiful I wish you could see it with your spiritual eyes. Leave it in this room and tell each of your friends that come here that it is here and it will grow and the colour will become vibrant. It is a flower of love and is given in love to each one who enters this room.

Les: And we shall nurture it with our love and we thank you again. God bless you.

Finally one briefly came through Eileen:

Before we leave you this time, I am instructed to tell you and thank you sir for allowing the communication which has taken place this evening. I am also asked to tell you before we leave you this time that each one of you is beginning to recognise the power of your own thoughts. I believe this is something which you all have been instructed upon. (Agreed) I know it is something which you all like to hear about, but I do have the feeling that these words for you people in particular holds great meaning.

With these words I bid you good night and thank you for allowing me into your lives for a short time. (General thanks + gratitude) I come only on the wave of love that each one of you sends out. (Thanks + farewells)

~25th May 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time, because there are absent peoples, I do not wish to speak about any new topics this time.

Les: I see, you know of course they will be able to hear a recording of it?

I know, but it would be more beneficial that they be present, whenever it is possible.

Les: Yes I do understand and I'm glad you want to deal with it in that way, because I'm sure they would rather be here.

I wonder if you are aware this time, of the subtle blend of energy within this room. We have this time, full use of both male and female energy, in equal proportions. (Good.) Now for this time, I will take some questions, before working with this instrument.

Les: I don't know whether it would be opportune for you to talk to us again, about the responsibility of the physical, whilst the spiritual is on Earth. You did say you wished to do that one time.

I did, but I feel that because of the lack of understanding which was present, that that is something that should be spoken about, when all are present. There was much—not confusion, but not full understanding. Are you happy to do that?

Les: Yes perfectly happy thank you. Yes, I wouldn't question your wish to do it, because it's obvious that it's much better for them to be here. Right questions anybody please?

George: I remain somewhat confused still about past life segment of soul. I wonder if it would be possible to talk any further on this. Sometimes spirits come through to us who have had past life on Earth and I was wondering whether some of these would be termed 'past life segments?' I'm a little confused about that identity. Would it be possible to talk a little further on that subject?

Yes I understand, it is a topic for confusion amongst many in your world. You know and you understand that the soul is not just one unit. We have discussed this and I think the confusion lies when the soul returns from past time. But what has happened there, is that particular aspect of the soul has not continued onward. Therefore it has the ability to return, until such time as it returns to the whole shall we say. I believe this is what confuses you. Once the aspect of the soul—that aspect of soul that has lived a life on this planet—once that aspect has—how shall we say, 'fulfilled all potential,' then it must go forward. It can then return in another form at another time, but it is another aspect of the soul, not the same aspect. Do you follow?

George: Ah yes, so the same segment could reincarnate several times?

Not quite, not quite. This is a difficult topic, but it would not fully be the same aspect of the soul, although all aspects are united in spirit. Do you understand?

George: Yes that does help, thank you.

Do you all understand?

Les: No, I would like to go a bit further on that please. (Yes) Are we wrong then—I believe all of us at this moment, think that when we go on from this world, our soul will exist in the next plane of life. (Of course) But are we wrong in thinking that that is only one entity?

You must not think about the soul as entities. It is a much deeper broader issue than that. You limit yourselves, if you begin to think of the reincarnated aspect of the soul, as entities. Can you see? (Yes) I know it is difficult for you, that is why we take these things slowly, because as each thought comes to you, then when the thought is fully realised, then we can contribute to it further.

Les: So if we accept at the moment—if I can use that expression that the soul is composed of many parts, (Yes) could it be possible for some of those parts to be progressing onwards in your worlds, while some of the other parts have to come back here, at periodic times?

Of course, otherwise how can you make progression?

Les: No, because it would be impossible for one individual unit to experience all that has to be experienced. (Yes) Is that so?

This is why we have so much doubt about what you call reincarnation. (Yes) I think I would say it is unfortunate that it has been expressed sometimes, in the way it has been. But limited knowledge until now, has been mainly the cause and the lack of understanding, awareness and consciousness, of those of you upon this Earth.

Les: I see, so now we can understand that, there are many parts to that unit.

Although they may seem to be separate, of course they need to be part of the whole, to continue forward, to seek out the purity of the creative force, which we all seek.

Les: So, you have taught us that we are two completely different aspects of living, one spiritual one physical. (Yes) Now we have to go further I would presume, in thinking of ourselves, as many aspects of the spiritual, (Of course) whilst only one is here existing on Earth?

Yes, do not limit your understanding, to just this physical being and presume that this is the house for the whole soul.

Les: I think that's what we all have been doing, am I right? (Agreed)

Yes, and that is the error that most human beings make.

George: Yes I think the soul is much more complex (Yes) and more extensive than we have imagined.

Well, that is not to say, that you have been wrong in your thinking, only that your awareness has been rather, shall we say, 'juvenile.'

Sallie: Salumet, would it then be possible or probable, that the aspects of our soul who are on your plane, talk to us and guide us, and make contact with us and we tend to recognise those, (Yes) which are part of us, in a way?

Yes, your understanding is good. What is—let me speak a little about what you call your higher self.

What do you suppose this higher self is, if it is not that aspect of soul that is there to help and to guide you, whilst you inhabit these bodies? Look always to the help available, not only from what you call 'higher self,' which after all, is that part of you, which is more seeing, more knowing, more giving, than you could imagine, whilst clothed here within this physical being. There are many aspects that are there to help and to guide you. Another mistake that has been put forward is that all help from spirit, comes from those who are without yourselves, when so often they are part of yourselves. Now do you begin to understand? (Affirmed)

Les: I was going to say, as you put it, we are helping ourselves.

Yes! (Spoken slowly—clearly emphasising each word) And when that realisation is strong within you, then you begin to understand why, when life's trials and tribulations seem to weigh so heavily upon you, why when you sit in your quiet moments, the answers come to you more easily, because you are listening to that aspect of yourself, that has lived and which has gone through these same problems.

Les: That gives us an entirely new outlook, doesn't it? You were going to ask something else Sallie?

Sallie: Not exactly ask, but just to sort of 'feel it through' really. Would that possibly be why, sometimes when we start to get answers that we need, why they are so in tune with us and so perfect, because obviously I suppose it's us giving us the answer, isn't it? We know that aspect really inside, so well.

That is why my dear friend, so often in the past, you have been told to sit quietly and go inwardly. Do you see the connection?

Sallie: Mm.

Les: And of course it gives another meaning to the statement that 'all has happened.'

Yes, you bring in another point, but we will not elaborate upon that this time, because I feel that the others need time to digest what has been said this time.

George: Yes, I've a feeling our concept of time enters into this in some way.

Always we will return to topics, which we have touched upon and each time we return to those topics, there will be deeper matters to understand. Always we will go slowly, in order that you fully understand what I come to bring you.

Les: Yes, I think we are beginning to appreciate the value and advantage of your constant reminder that we must take everything slowly, because though we all no doubt over the years that you've been coming to us, have come to the opinion that we know a great deal more, we're now beginning to realise I think, how little we really do know.

I would not like to say this to you, but of course when first I came, I came to you as individuals with some knowledge of spirit, but that knowledge was most limited. But the reason I came to you was not because of the knowledge you had acquired, not because of the knowing that you had of spirit, but that as a combined group, who have known each other in past times. And here I will say to you, think about that aspect of yourselves, which knew each other in past times. Try to feel the connection from those times.

Sarah: Does that include Mary? Was she part of it?

Not at the time you have been told about, but of course there has to have been the connection at other times.

Sarah: Thank you. Could I also just ask, if there are many aspects of the spirit, and one is here, could it be that another aspect is in another form of life, or do we just concentrate on this Earth?

Form of life, in the human sense?

Sarah: Well not necessarily, if it's on another planet, it wouldn't be human as we know it.

I have told you that there can be more than one aspect of the soul, inhabiting a body on this planet at the same time. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, thank you.

Try to see your true selves as a multitude. After all, I did tell you think of the diamond and the many facets to it, then you begin to realise that the soul has many, many, many, many more facets to it. It is the nearest we can come, to explain to you what the soul truly is.

Sarah: Right thank you.

Les: I suppose it might help us to remember too, or to understand, if we accept that here we are puzzling about the many ramifications of the soul, yet we are living in a body, which in itself is composed of untold ramifications; each soul having its own purpose, its own destiny, its own memory. (Yes) And yet we ignore that. If we try and think of a cell as a compound, as our physical bodies are, we might be better able to understand the impossibility to understand it clearly.

And may I add to that my dear friend that each part of the human body can function individually, without always the need for other parts. If you can take your hand for instance, it is possible to use one finger, without the involvement of the others, but that one finger, still belongs to the whole hand. You understand? (Affirmed) That is a simplification of course, but that is what you must try to realise.

Les: Yes, it's helping me to realise a bit more.

This is the difficulty that your thinking has to be expanded, in order that you can take these things in completely.

Les: I'm being shown—I think this must be relevant, because I'm being shown an enormous plain and there's a tremendous herd of buffaloes. One has just died; every other individual in that herd is instantly aware of its passing. I merely pass onto you what I am getting; you must put your own interpretation on it. It was so vivid I had to give it to you.

May I say something more, before I work with this one? (Yes please.) That is part of your development, your evolution, that each one of you has the power to think individually, that what is your understanding and your conception, is not always what is suitable for another. So I would say to you my dear friends: Seek that which helps to bring to you the understanding of what is being given to you. It does not affect the result, but it is individualised for you and for your own understanding, in order that consciousness be raised, in your own way. What my dear friend has said to you moments ago, was his individual understanding of what has been said. Seek your own, and understanding will come to you. I hope that it has helped. My words I try to keep simple, in order that understanding comes more easily, because these things we speak about, are indeed deep, deep matters and not made aware to all who are there to be given advice; because you see, and I hope you understand that these philosophies are given to you, because and I hope you do not think I praise you too much, but this group of people here now, is ready for Truth.

Les: Thank you very much for telling us that and for that we are very greatly indebted to what you have taught us.

Sallie: Would it be all right to ask something very briefly, before you go and do your work? (Yes please.) It was just a couple of months ago, that somebody came through Sue and was on the same sort of subject, who'd come through as an aspect of one of my parts. I was told about Jonathan and I was told to ask if it wasn't clear to me and I just want to know I suppose, if there's anything more I can be told about Jonathan, because it sounded as though I should be looking out for him. Perhaps I misunderstood it?

Let me say this to you, my dear friend: You know and fully understand that you have been and will be of different vibrations, energies; you have existed as male energy and female energy. The name Jonathan given to you, as one aspect of yourself, was indeed a part of you that has lived in another time. I do not see the need for you to seek that part of yourself, because it is done with. But know that you are joined to many aspects of your being. It was not given to you, in order that you can find out more as you put it, but only to allow you to know that the spirit, the soul, is more than one aspect. (Thank you.) Do not seek—that energy is now part of the whole and will be known to you, when you eventually return home my dear friends. (Thank you.)

Now I must ask that I be allowed to work with this one, for a short time. Open your hearts and see what is available to you all this time.

Les: Thank you for your patience. We hope we haven't kept you too long.

What is time? I wish I could give you more, but for now, we must stay with what time is available.

(Thanks expressed)

One then came through Eileen with a message about two people, but none of the sitters present could connect with the information.

~1st June 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Les: Thank you very much for being with us and I'm sorry we're so low in numbers tonight.

Let me say this before we speak this time:

Let us give thanks for quietness and peace of now. Let it enfold us all in perfect stillness and a humbling.

I say to you, numbers are not so important now, but it means only that I would refrain from any speaking that is important for all to hear. So for this time, I will speak to you and as usual allow time to work quietly with this one. (Certainly) What I would like you perhaps to think about this time, is that as your earthly years go forward, I want you to consider how it affects your spiritual selves. For example, is the realisation there that as you approach say, for instance you my dear friend, who is now in the winter of your earthly years, how much it contributes to that lightness of the spiritual self. Have any of you considered this matter?

Les: Yes, I have the advantage there of course, being the oldest here. And of course the onset of years, which is so inevitable, has made me think much more profoundly of the spiritual content of myself here and hopefully what I am going to experience when I come over to you.

Yes, but do you not also understand how much more you can give to those who are younger in their years?

Les: Oh yes, I beg your pardon.

Continue please.

Les: Yes I do accept that too and I have often thanked those in your world, for the privilege I have had during my lifetime here, of passing my information and learning onto others.

Yes, but that is why we on this side of life, speak so often to you as being beacons of light, because as you grow older in your earthly years, so that spiritual light becomes stronger and is more amenable to others who seek this knowledge. As you become older in your earthly years, so the spirit comes to the fore and the earthly body, the earthly thinking, should begin to take second place, you understand?

Les: Yes I think we all understand that. But of course, we can never fully understand it until we reach the age when we can accept it, without even having to think about it.

That is the purpose of life, is it not, that there should be no seeking, but that the inner self, the inner knowledge is completely at one with itself?

Les: Yes, you put it better, that's what I meant when I said I have the advantage of years, because my colleagues here cannot possibly yet, have experienced, what I've experienced, because of the additional years I have.

But I would say this to you all: Why fly with the wings of the sparrow, when the power of the eagle is within you all, no matter what your earthly year? That knowledge is innate within you all, from the time of what you call birth and what from our side we call 'death,' as you would phrase it in this world.

Les: Yes that we do accept and understand.

That knowledge and power is within each of you, from that very beginning, but what I say to you my dear friends is that as these earthly years pass, so the mirror of your lives, of spiritual lives, should become much clearer; that all mists and—how can I say to you, all distrust of the earthly body, should manifest itself, in allowing the truth of spirit to come forward.

Les: Yes I think I would be right in saying—and I'm sure my colleagues would agree that even though they haven't my years, because of your teaching and the teaching of others here on occasions, they have become more aware of the ability to fly as an eagle, rather than as a sparrow, than they would have had, had they not been privileged to have your teaching. I think you all would agree with that wouldn't you?

(Agreed)

Of course as we spoke before, the inner self, that part of you which is the real you, has this knowledge; but when you are clothed within these physical bodies, so much is lost to the thinking. That is why I have come to teach you about the power of your own thought; that is what has been lost, that is what must be found, if you are all to truly fulfil your true passageways in this world. You have to allow that inner self to come forward in every area of your lives and thinking.

Les: Yes you have told us a number of times that we must always think of ourselves primarily as spiritual beings and not as physical beings.

I will always reiterate it for you, because it cannot be expressed often enough to you, because your earthly memory is not good at retaining the vocal words used here, you understand?

Les: I think everybody follows Salumet, don't they? (Agreed)

I will take one question this time.

Les: Right, I have been thinking a lot about what you have told us in your various lessons, because of the disastrous earthquake you undoubtedly know in your world—I'm sure you've many helpers waiting to assist those who are coming over to you. (Yes) Now, I want to take a hypothetical case of a man who has died in that disaster in the prime of life. You've told us that we choose our parents and our life here on each occasion. Would that man have been aware that he was going to be cut off in his prime, before he came back, even though he would have forgotten it in a physical sense?

You cannot answer these questions so black and white. You—when your soul chooses to return, it returns to the condition most appropriate for the learning of the lessons which the soul needs to return home. Why do you say, the 'prime' of life?

Les: It's an expression which we would all recognise of course.

Yes I see, yes, well the soul before it returns, knows the extent of the living, which it has to do. Once it has acquired life's lessons—and again we will use your case as an example. That soul need not necessarily be aware that that time on Earth, would be the time of his departure. Only if life's instruction had been completed, then conditions would arise for him to depart this world. Do you understand?

(Pause) No?

Les: No I'm afraid I don't.

No, I see, let me explain it to you further. (Thank you.) The soul is aware of the conditions to which it returns, in order that it may fulfil those lessons needed for spiritual growth—you know and understand this? (Yes —) But again we must return to the free will of the soul clothed within the human body. That free will enables the soul to take many paths, which it perhaps had not had foresight of, when still in spirit. The choice belongs to the human being, you understand this much? (Yes) There are pathways in life upon this planet that are pathways not chosen by the soul, at the time of—shall we call it rebirth? (Yes) Therefore there will be occasions when the soul has lost all knowledge of what it should be trying to achieve, because of the free will given to it on the return to the human body. You understand so far?

Les: Yes I do. Everybody understand that? (Agreed)

I am trying to keep it simple for you. If that individual has completed life's tasks, then the soul, without the knowledge of the human being, will see that he is placed within conditions, which will return him to us. Do you understand now?

Les: I see, yes that is clearer.

It is a difficult thing, it is not so clearly 'cut and dry,' I believe you would say, because of the free will of the human being.

Les: Yes, you have said before that there is no black and white, no one answer to any question that we might put.

The task has to be achieved—once life's conditions allow for those lessons to be learned, then conditions are put right with influence perhaps, that that individual be placed in those conditions which will help him to return home. Whether it be a natural dying, or what you term 'tragedies,' which we have spoken of in the past and which are not tragedies at all, because all is known—but there are conditions, which are needed to help so many over at the same time. You must remember that each soul may not necessarily come for their own individual good, but for 'group good.'

Les: Yes you have explained that before too.

Yes, so it is difficult always to single out one individual, without seeing the wider picture; without the wider knowledge, you cannot see what is happening within this world.

Les: No so again we have to remember what you've told us, that the soul for us ourselves has many horizons, many paths, not just the one.

Of course and it would not always be good for that individual aspect of the soul, to return solely for its own growth. You have to realise that in giving of yourself to others that is where the major growth comes from. (Yes) In giving love, in sacrificing for another, although I do not particularly like that word 'sacrifice,' because it seems to indicate that the soul would feel sorrow in doing such deeds, when in fact it should indeed bring joy. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Les: I agree I don't like the word sacrifice either.

I hope it has helped you a little in your understanding this time?

Les: Yes it's certainly given us a lot to think about and—I speak for myself of course, it has made me aware of the need to depart from individual thinking, or thinking individually.

Yes, if you singularise that thinking, then you will lose so much.

Les: Yes I think that's a track that I am tempted to go on, rather than thinking of the universal consciousness.

Yes, once you allow the mind to expand, then these ways of thinking become nullified—the whole being is encompassed by universal thinking, which brings greater understanding to all and encompasses you all, in a much more refined type of living and giving of Love.

Les: Does everybody understand that more now? (Affirmed) Well thank you very, very much for that, it's added to our knowledge of course once more and we are grateful for it.

I will leave you all my dear friends, with that Universal Love I have spoken of. I hope that each one of you can be filled to the point where you feel this love surround you and within you, to allow it to sustain you, in all that you try to achieve.

Les: Thank you and God bless you.

~8th June 1998~

No Salumet this week as Eileen was away, but there were interesting communicators through Sue:

With your permission, I would like to speak to you and give you a little light relief this time and perhaps give another small insight, into what you will be seeing in time to come, when you join our realms.

Les: Yes that would be very interesting, thank you.

Can I ask please, that all the friends here, try to clear a space in their higgledy-piggledy minds, and listen and try to picture what is being relayed to them. I will wait a moment and then I shall take you on a little journey:

The audio link for this and many other meditative journeys is freely available from the meditation section of the website www.salumetandfriends.org

In this world that you inhabit, you have what you term, your four seasons. Although we do not have seasons as you would imagine, there are changes occurring through our time-span also. I would like you please, to picture in your mind's eye, a door. This door is white, but not the white that you know of here. I can only ask you to think of it as the white that you see, on a snowy day in your realms, when snow has ceased, and the sky breaks and a sunbeam comes down and lights upon the fallen snow. Imagine the brilliance and the sparkle from those ice crystals and try to put it upon the door I am asking you to view. There is a handle, a beautiful golden handle on this door and I ask you to reach out and turn it and gently push the door and let it swing open. This vista you will see before you, is what you would call winter. In your winter, you have bare twigs, you have dark clouds amassing in your sky and you have rain. None of these things are wrong, it is just the season and what is expected, but in our realms it is not quite so sinister. Ahead of you is a beautiful tree; look up from the bottom bark, let your eyes lift. The boughs sweep out either side, like a magnificent cloak and the bottom branches are touching the ground. It is winter, but look at the leaves, see how they sparkle with the dew; look at the brilliance, though they are not green as you would expect in springtime, neither are they the mottled oranges and brown of the autumn, no. Look again, see how they shine—clear transparent. Each one is like a miniature mirror, go up to the nearest bough and look into those leaves and you will see your reflection a thousand fold. Gently rub your hands over those leaves and listen to the wonderful music that that creates. FEEL the soft dew upon your fingertips and BELIEVE that that is the tree of our winter. Now return slowly to the door and gently close it behind you.

Now we move to the next door, for the season of spring. This door I would ask you to see, as a shimmering silver green; a new colour which denotes a new growth—touch the handle, push the door wide. In front to you now, are much smaller trees. Look at them, look upon their branches and see the buds. Now, carefully watch, as each bud opens slowly before your eyes. See how it shimmers with the colour of the door. See how each leaf unfurls and grows and offers a promise of things to come. Look, look up and see the new butterflies as they rest upon the new leaves, their colours more vibrant, more shimmering than the best and softest gossamer. Listen, as they beat their wings, listen to the music of spring. This is the season of rejuvenation and those that wish it feel reborn, as they watch the tree give birth to new life. Walk back slowly now and close that door behind you.

The next door is for the summer time, a time of warmth, a time of laughter. This door I would like you to see, as a bright golden yellow. Feel the warmth coming from it, as if it was the rays of the sun. Once again push open the door. Before you once again is the most magnificent carpet of flowers. See how the gentle breeze moves their petals, so the colours intermingle and become a shimmering light. What colours do you see? Every colour of the rainbow and every colour that you have yet to see—colours that you cannot identify, but will in time to come. Listen as the petals stroke by one another, listen to the music of the summer time and feel glad. There will be no need for you to pick these flowers; that is not the purpose of their growth. Stand a while and breathe in their perfume; it is as you have never smelt anything before. It will release in you all, the joy for living. Slowly say farewell to the summer time and close the door.

And now the final door—this door is more than one colour. See how many you can see mingling on its surface—golds and copper, browns, greens and reds. Open this door and what is before you? Look, look as a carpet of leaves unfurls before you. Raise your eyes and see how they come down, gently coming down, swaying and touching and apart and touching, until they reach the earth's surface. Listen to the murmuring of them, as they come down. Look through them and you see another tree. But look, not one leaf has dropped from its boughs, not one. It is still as vibrant, as it ever was, but more muted, more gentle, coming to the quiet time, to the quiet time BEFORE the winter comes. Put your hands down and lift the leaves and let them fall in front of your face. Smell their perfume, so different to those of the flowers, but no less beautiful for that. And now stand back; move your eyes from right to left and what do you see? All four of the seasons, all mingling together, becoming as ONE. And rejoice in the knowledge that you will be surrounded by all of these senses. Listen to the music of the trees, smell the perfume of the flowers, listen to the murmurings of the leaves, as they fall and rejoice, for this is the Spirit of Life.

Les: Thank you very much for those descriptions.

There was then some discussion about how in spirit realm all these seasons can be produced with the power of thought. We then thanked our guest and said our farewells.

A young child then popped in briefly through Sue for a light-hearted chat before we closed.

~15th June 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good that we have so many of you together this time.

Les: Yes it is nice isn't it, to have almost a full meeting again.

We welcome back the one who is forever seeking and know that he has grown from his experience.

Paul: Thank you.

I would like this time if you will permit please, to speak a little more about the power of your thought.

Les: Yes please do.

You know from past meetings that thought I have told you, is the most powerful thing you possess, not only in this lifetime, but in all of your living. Thought is the real you, in all its many forms. I know each one of you have thought long and hard about my words on this subject, but this time I would like to introduce to you another avenue of thinking and it is this, my dear friends: Have you considered how intrusive you can be upon another's thinking? Can any of you say that you have thought about this to any deep degree? (General negative responses)

Les: I can't say so.

No, because you have not.

Les: You did say to be intrusive upon another's thought, did you? (Yes) Thank you.

Another's thinking.

Les: Another's thinking, yes—

Now I hear you say, how can that be, because you know dear friends, that you must be responsible for all actions taken by yourselves. But also you must be aware of the power of your own thoughts whilst here within these bodies, because as you grow spiritually in strength, so too does the power of your thought. We have discussed this have we not? (Yes) But it is also possible for you when that sensitivity arrives, for you to be sensitive to another's thinking, and unconsciously perhaps you might say, 'but that is not quite true,' because in the spiritual sense, each one of you is aware of your thoughts. You can direct your thinking to try to alter another. Do you begin to see what I tell you?

Les: Yes I would accept that, because I have done it on a number of occasions, when people have telephoned me for a healing appointment and I have been thinking of them afterwards and when they've arrived they have said that they'd begun to feel better, after having spoken to me on the phone.

Yes, that is not intrusive thought though, my dear friend.

Les: But wouldn't it be intruding upon their thinking?

No, because it is for good. What you must be aware of, is if you become sensitive to another's thinking and desire to change their thoughts that is when it becomes intrusive and that is when you must take control of your own thoughts. It happens all of the time, without many people knowing or understanding what they are doing. But once the recognition and the understanding of the sensitivity to others is there, then you must be careful in how you allow your own thinking to be directed towards them. Do you follow? I feel it is a little confusing for you, but I hope that you will think upon these words, because my dear friends, it is only another discipline in your spiritual growth. To control your own thoughts, helps you to understand and to know that all of you as individual beings, has the right to remain so, without intrusion from our side, or from those on this planet.

Les: Yes I think we begin to understand. I'd like to ask a question please, (Yes) so that we can clarify perhaps. I would think that none of us here at this moment, are sufficiently developed spiritually, to be able to control another's thoughts, or to be intruding upon another's thoughts?

No, no you are not, but that does not mean you should not have the awareness, because the time will come, when each one of you has reached a stage, when that temptation may arise.

Les: That's making it clearer. (Agreed) So there may be a conversation from another person later on in our lives and we may then perhaps have the ability to influence that person's thought, without them knowing, is that so?

Yes, remember always that each soul on this earthly planet, have their own lives, have their own individual thought patterns, and it would be wrong to interfere, or to try to change a thought from their own free will.

Les: Yes of course we would agree with that absolutely, because it would be interference.

Of course, and I have told you that we from our side of life, are not allowed to interfere in your lives, only to influence but not to interfere. (Yes) So those same rules must apply, because after all you are still spirit. Remember, most important word: You are YOU, but you will only remain clothed with these bodies, for just a short time.

Les: Thank you for forewarning us. So are you suggesting that in future, we shall have developed sufficiently spiritually, to be in a position to intrude on another's thoughts and alter them?

I am telling you my dear friends that all possibilities, all 'gifts' as you say here, of the spirit, are available to all. Whether you develop—have the ability to use—that is entirely up to each individual soul. What I say to you is this my dear friends, that I give you this knowledge beforehand, in order that you can ponder, at your leisure if you will, my words, in order that you are prepared for any eventuality of this kind.

Sallie: Can I just ask one thing on this please? (Yes) When you talk about influencing others from your side of life to us, you may influence but not intrude. (Yes) So would that be similar to actually suggesting a thought pattern to somebody, but not actually trying to change their own? I'm trying to work out the difference between influencing and being intrusive.

Influence is the act of encouragement, for that soul to create the thought that is best for them.

Sallie: Right —

You seem unsure my friend; it does not make sense obviously to you. When someone is influenced, we influence them, we encourage them to create their own thought patterns that is leading them in the correct pathway of life. That is influence as opposed to interference, which would direct in one way or another. Does that help you?

Sallie: Yes I've got it now, thank you.

Les: Because we would then be deciding their future for them wouldn't we, (Yes) which we must not do. Right, well we do thank you for the forewarning, it is certainly something we have to ponder on.

It is just one more thing that you should try to understand. Thought as you know, it is the most important thing you possess and always I will return to it.

Les: Yes, thank you. Now, we understand I think about the possibilities of our thoughts influencing the thoughts of another, in their spiritual development. I'm going to ask a different question if I may. How can the power of thought affect our physical bodies?

It has the power to change all things within the body.

Les: It has that power has it?

Of course, it is the most powerful thing you possess; if the thinking, the power of the thought is right, constructive and for good, then it will materialise into the physical being.

Les: That answers a question I've had in my mind for a long time.

Yes and it has taken you so long to voice those words.

Les: Yes you're right! (Chuckles) We can't get away with anything can we, with you?

Your thinking is YOU, the thought is SPIRIT. Go away from the physical thinking, when we speak of thought, we are spirit. Spirit can change many things within the body, if the thought is strong enough to create that change. This is where the physical brain tends to interfere; the brain, or the human being shall I say, tends to be negative and to try to side-step the thought of spirit.

Les: So in fact then, spiritual thought is all-powerful?

All-powerful—do not doubt it.

Les: Thank you for that information.

We are helping you my friend.

Les: You certainly are.

We are helping. (Spoken gently)

Les: Yes I'm sure of that and you understand why I asked the question, because I know you have been helping.

Yes, we need not use words this time, but know and understand fully, that many ARE with you, many, many are with you. (Pause) Now —

Les: Is there any question anybody would like to ask on that? I think Salumet wants to be sure that we all understand the extreme power of thought.

George: Yes I think at a physical level, we are aware that a powerful speech can alter the thinking of others and it seems to me a small step, that the thought behind that speech, can also alter the thinking of others.

Yes, it can to some degree, but the difference lies, when the spiritual power of thought, is directed towards each individual, rather than general speaking—that is what I am trying to get across to you. But yes, in human life terms, there always will be those strong speakers, who are capable of influencing the thinking of another, but that is slightly different, you understand? (Yes)

Les: That would be on a physical level, wouldn't it?

Yes, but of course the thought is still involved, but to a much more immature degree.

George: Yes, that clarifies that, thank you. (Yes)

Les: Now I come to a very delicate question: If in future we have developed spiritually sufficiently, to be able to influence the thought pattern of another, how are we going to know that our efforts to influence that person are correct for that person?

You would have the 'rebound of thought.' Remember always that what you give comes back to you, do you understand?

Les: So, it may sound contradictory, but if we were trying to influence in what we considered to be the right way for that person, but in fact it would be the wrong way, (Yes) we would be made aware of that, would we?

You would have understanding of it, yes—(Good.) the understanding would come. If you have reached such a state that you are capable of attempting these things, then your own thought patterns would—it is difficult to tell you, but it would be rebounded back to your thinking.

Les: That's comforting to us all I think, because I'm sure that we all at some time, if we do attain the ability to influence others for their own good, I'm sure we'd like to do so. But I'm equally sure, (Yes) that none of us would wish to do so in the wrong way.

Of course not. I do not explain this thing to you, in order that you feel that you would do wrong, but in order that your understanding of yourselves becomes clearer—that is the purpose of the telling.

Les: We appreciate the reason for it, thank you.

Now my dear friends, I would like to work with this instrument this time, for just a little time. Perhaps each one of you can devote the time to your own individual development. I will leave it to you to decide what is best for the rest of this meeting.

Les: Thank you. It won't affect you, if we do discuss this quietly?

Yes please, provided there are no sudden noises. I leave you all my dear friends, in the knowledge that each one of you is encompassed with our love, with our teaching and our knowledge. Know always that you will be helped, if your purpose of life is for the good.

Les: Yes, thank you very much indeed and God bless you. The love of all of us goes with you and though you don't want it, I'm going to say our very great gratitude for what you do for us.

A quiet discussion then followed, with comments from Sallie:

Sallie: It's interesting what Salumet was just saying, that we would always be helped, if what we were doing is for the good. I was just thinking sometimes I suppose it's a question of keep questioning yourself inside. But sometimes I'm not always sure that what I'm doing is for the good. I think it is, but there are so many different facets of looking at things, aren't there? It's just working out what actually is for good, I suppose.

Les's breathing then characteristically changed as he began to channel a response:

Yes may I answer your question dear lady?

Sallie: Thank you.

Earlier during discussion this evening, it was emphasised that when, WHEN we achieve sufficient spiritual knowledge to be able to influence the thoughts of another, then we must be careful that we do it for the right purpose. Do you recall that? (Yes) Thank you. I suggest now that you are still thinking in physical terms. Do you understand? (Yes) With respect, you as have all the others here, still have much to travel, before you have developed spiritually sufficiently to be able to alter or to influence the thought pattern of another, in the way you might think desirable for that person. When you have achieved the spiritual ability to do that, then you will not even have to question whether you are doing it correctly for that person; you will KNOW whether you are or not. That you cannot do at present, because of your physical thinking, not the spiritual context. Is this clear?

Sallie: I believe I understand that. The bit I was confusing myself about slightly was when Salumet was saying right at the end before he went that we would always be helped by that side of life, if what we were trying to do was for the good. And what I was confusing myself with, is sometimes I ask for help, because what I'm trying to do, or think what I'm trying to do, is for the good, so I ask the spirits to assist me, I ask for help. But how do I actually know that what I'm asking for is right? Am I doing it for the good? I'm not making any sense, because I don't understand it myself.

We do understand your confusion dear lady. May I suggest that you do not give us sufficient credit for knowing whether we are aware of your desire to do it for the good of another? If it is not for the good of another, then I would suggest that it should be obvious that we would not assist you upon the path of thought which you are emitting. Do you follow?

Sallie: Yes somehow that makes it very simple now you've said that.

You are sure that you are satisfied? We wish you to understand these things very clearly for your future development. Are you happy with what you have been told, or do you wish to question further?

Sallie: No, it feels comfortable what you've said—I don't have a question about it, thank you.

Thank you, as long as you are satisfied, then we will leave that particular subject. (Thank you.)

Now are there any further questions any person would wish to ask, whilst I'm here? (Pause) Or have you absorbed so much that you're altogether satisfied with your knowledge and acceptance of what has been told to you this time?

George: Yes I think it is true to say that we in the physical have always upheld the principal of influencing the thoughts of others, through example. Clearly this is a physical route to influence, but I would guess there are thoughts behind that example and the direct thought into action seems to me —

May I interrupt sir? You are becoming rather confusing in your statements. Could we simplify it please?

George: Yes I'm sorry. The thoughts behind our actions, if they interact directly —

Sir, sir, sir, you too are going along the physical path. The thoughts behind your actions are from your BRAIN, are they not? (Ah, yes.) Your brain is your physical aspect, is it not? (Yes —) So you are still thinking in physical terms and you are not applying spiritual awareness. Does this answer your question before you ask it?

George: Yes thank you—I was into another area of confusion, thank you.

We were aware of that, which is why we rudely interrupted. You understand the reason for our interruption I hope? Not that we wish to be rude, but we do not wish to waste time.

George: Yes this is clarified, thank you.

Thank you and is there a question from anybody else please? (Pause) Then I would say you must have encyclopaedic minds my friends! That is comforting to us, even though we cannot accept such as statement. (Chuckles) Then if you have no other questions I will take my leave and leave you to talk amongst yourselves, about other matters perhaps pertaining to the knowledge which currently is overwhelming for you, in that you have no questions. God be with you my friends. (Thanks expressed)

George: Thank you for clarifying those matters.

Thank you for listening. We hope that it has been of help. (Affirmed) God bless you all, goodbye.

Another followed immediately through Les:

You lot don't half muck them about you know—don't half muck'm about. (Laughter) They come here with all their good intentions, good knowledge, wanting to educate you, but you don't bloody well want educating. Why don't you ask questions mates, when they want to answer them for you? Ay? What gets into you all? You don't know it all, do you?

Lilian: We don't want to make a fool of ourselves, I think.

Sallie: If you ask a couple, you don't want to ask any more, because you feel like you're taking up the whole meeting—everybody's got to have a go at it.

That's just an excuse, just an excuse. You don't take up the whole meeting, questions take up the whole meeting, not two of them—go on, you're not getting away with that one girl! (More chuckles)

Mark: I feel that they expand the thinking so much that—

And you ain't getting away with that either.

Mark: No but it's just so incredibly—it's doorways that haven't been opened yet.

Give em a shove and open em a bit more. Ask questions about it, that's what you've got to do when the door's open. Don't just look around the corner as though you're scared—push it and ask questions. I don't know what I'm gonna do with you—Bloody well leave you I suppose.

Margaret: Oh no, don't do that.

Well have you got any questions, I can answer you?

Mark: On that theme?

Anything you like mate, anything you like.

Mark: I was just wondering if I was thinking along the rights lines on this: In the bible I think Jesus was—

Oh god, now you've got me—(More chuckles)

Mark: —Jesus was given the awareness that someone was going to betray him. He was given the awareness presumably from spirit, but he let the person (Judas) carry on and betray him, because that was presumably his growth? He didn't interfere with his growth, as he needed that experience of being a betrayer.

Of course he did and of course he got the information from spirit about being betrayed. Where do you think he got it from?

Mark: Yes, so he didn't try and interfere with that thinking, even though it was actually going to hurt him.

No, but he did try and influence him didn't he, by telling him he was going to?

Mark: He influenced but he didn't interfere, yes.

That's right, he was influencing by letting him know he knew. But he didn't say he ain't got to bloody do it, did he?

Mark: No, but he did have the power I suppose to if he'd wanted to, but he was —

He didn't have the power mate, he didn't have the power. If he did, what was told you tonight—it would REBOUND on him, if he'd tried to influence that man against what he should be doing.

Mark: Ah, it would have weakened him, right.

Yeah, he'd of been aware that he mustn't do it. You don't listen do you? (General agreement + laughter) Anything else you want cleared up?

Mark: That's all for me, thanks.

Anybody else want putting in order? No, well I'll go back to my fish and chips.

Sarah: Do enjoy them.

I shall don't worry, don't worry. I can still have them when I want them—that's my treat. I spoils myself now and again. I bloody hard day's work and I have a nice fish and chip supper.

Margaret: What work do you do?

Cor! What work do I do? What don't I do? For a start I comes and mucks about with people like you. I follows on where the big ones tread; try and clear up the bits of mess left, cos you won't ask questions. That good enough for ya?

Margaret: Yes thank you.

I go to other places as well, you're not the only awkward ones, don't think that. But I don't suppose there's any much worse than you. (Laughter) Still that's life that's life. I've gotta earn my fish and chips. Cor! They aren't half good over here too! (Laughter) Now nobody has said to me, why do you eat fish? See, another question you could've asked.

Sallie: I was thinking it though.

Well why didn't you ask it?

Margaret: Well, you enjoy it.

Sallie: But the fish don't.

If you thought I shouldn't eat fish, why didn't you ask why I eat it?

Sallie: Well because you're a bit sort of forceful, aren't you and I thought you might bite my head off, to be honest.

You're not near enough. (Laughter)

Sallie: Yes why do you eat fish when you don't need to?

Ah! Got her got her got her. You ain't been listening to the power of thought girl, have you? I THINK it's fish—

Sallie: You think its fish—that makes sense, that's all right.

Oh good, I've said something right.

Sallie: I feel happier about that.

I THINK it on my plate, I don't go catching it.

Sallie: So it's not a real living fish that you're eating?

T'is to me, t'is to me. I've got the thought powerful enough to make it seem that, but it hasn't killed the fish. Does that satisfy ya?

Sallie: That's fine, thank you.

Now ya know what the power of thought is. (General agreement + chuckles) And I don't have to even dig the bloody potatoes either, but I have some lovely chips. I'm going back to em now. I can almost smell em. Oh well if you've got no more questions I'll go, thank you. Nice to have met you mates, nice to have met you. (General agreement + thanks for coming)

Hope it hasn't upset you, me coming? (Expressions of 'Not at all' + 'Come again!')

If you're gonna ask questions, perhaps I shall. But I'm not putting you off asking questions, don't think that. You ask em, you think about what's been told and you ask questions. That's the way you learn mates. I've had to learn like that. Ah well, that's enough bullying for one night. I'll say cheerio to you all.

(General goodbyes + thanks + 'Enjoy your chips!')

~22nd June 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Is everyone comfortable this time? (Affirmed) There have been heavy hearts with some of you, since last we met. I hope that each one of you knows and understands that by coming together as you do, do you realise how much each of you are given from each other, to each other?

Les: Yes, and I don't think anybody has any doubts about that, have they, that they are giving and taking from each and all? (Agreed)

But are you aware that the interaction and exchange of energies which occur within this room, helps in your growth and understanding of life itself?

Les: Yes, I think it must do that and would I be right in suggesting that not only is that growth and understanding applicable to each of us here, but by its very nature can be used for the growth of others outside this room?

That is where your work begins, not in the exchange or interaction of your own individual energies, but in taking forth from this room and giving to another. That is the work that each individual one of you—that is each one's responsibility. But in coming together as you do, it—shall I use one of your common sayings, 'recharges each battery.'

Les: Yes, thank you, we understand that.

Of course, I do not speak about the physical, let us be clear about that dear friends. I again speak to you on a spirit level. Are you aware of this interaction, or I fear some of you may not fully know or accept that this is so, yes?

Les: I can only answer for myself, yes I do.

I wait for the lady's question.

Les: I beg your pardon—

Sallie: It's something to do with, we're learning from each other in the interactions, apart from recharging spiritually, each one of us is teaching/giving something to somebody else in the group—knowledge or understanding—

Of course—you have it. Not only are you giving to each other spiritually, you give to each one here, that energy which perhaps they are lacking in. Now do you begin to understand? It is a mutual exchange of energies with each one of you. It matters not what stage of development you have reached spiritually, but it does matter that you allow this coming together, to give of your time in order that this process can take place.

Les: So even though some of us may be unaware of this, our reaction to people outside of this room in the course of our physical daily work, daily life even, this could be taking from us some of the spiritual knowledge and energy, which we acquire from each other at these meetings?

Yes my dear friend. You exude the spiritual energy, which is—I will not use the word 'recharged' again, because it is innate within you all, but it needs to be used wisely. And of course you would not always be fully aware of what is happening in the meetings with another. After all, have I not told you that there are no chance meetings? (Agreed) Therefore when you come to meet another human being, always there is a spiritual purpose.

Les: Yes, you have made it clear in the past too that it is the spiritual part of that person we may meet, that is being attracted to our spiritual self, even though neither of us may be aware of that.

Yes, you should by now at least be aware a little that these interactions are taking place. I believe my dear friend that at times, all of you have the inner knowledge that someone known to you perhaps, is in need of some of your help; that is the spiritual drawing to another person. You human beings tend to name it coincidence or accident, when in fact spiritually you know that you are being drawn to that person for a good reason.

Les: Yes, I think it will be interesting for us all to have an individual reaction to that, if everybody's agreeable. Jack, have you experienced that?

Jack: It's what you'd normally call intuition, I suppose. (Yes) It has happened in the past certainly.

Les: Doesn't matter if you do call it intuition, it's basically the same. Sallie? I know you have, haven't you?

Sallie: Yes I have and sometimes I think it comes through dreams as well. Perhaps if for whatever reason you are not taking enough notice of what your intuition or a spirit guide is prompting us to do, then sometimes you'll get another prompting in sleep state.

We have discussed this matter have we not? When you know that something is repeated to you constantly, that you must heed it and know that you are being helped to understand. We have spoken at length about this matter, have we not? (Agreed)

Les: Mary?

Mary: Yes, I think I do, but I think I often don't listen enough, but I realise afterwards that I should have listened.

Yes, the lady—her logical thinking sometimes interferes with what she should be feeling. But no matter, each one of you has experienced these things. It matters not what title you put to it, know my dear friends that it is the you, the real you, that is at work. This lady has much to do in time to come.

Les: Sarah?

Sarah: I think I'm getting better at listening to what's been coming, I'm much more aware now than I was before. I think since we had the talk on it, I've been made more aware.

The purpose of helping another is firstly of course to recognise the awareness, but to allow yourself not to question, but to—how can we say—automatically be drawn to what you know is to be of use. Too often you humans withdraw from your way of thinking and feeling. It should be spontaneous. You will always be drawn to the right person in need of help, if you will allow those thoughts that I constantly and repeatedly speak about, if you will allow them free rein, they will always guide you to the right directions.

Les: You remember the talk about intuitive thinking Sarah? Some time ago Salumet spoke about intuitive thinking as opposed to physical thinking. (Yes)

Les: Paul?

Paul: I sometimes get a feeling with people, but I think I'm too inhibited sometimes, (Yes) to go with the flow.

He is reserved at times, but can I say this to you, that sometimes with your reticence, it matters not, because you give forth much, my dear friend and those energies will be taken, if your intentions are good. So all you need at times is to be a little more forceful with yourself. Do you understand?

Paul: Yes, I think so. Sometimes it's difficult to find the right words for things.

Yes, that my dear friend, is your human failing. Work upon it and you will be helped if you so desire. But you need to want that help. Can you understand?

Paul: Yes, I'm becoming aware that that's an important part of the growth, yes.

Do not be too concerned, but it is good that each one of you is aware that these subtle energies are always at work.

Les: Mark?

Mark: Yes, sometimes I've noticed with a lot of people I find there's not much impulsion to talk to them, but I get the odd person, and it surprises me, that there's been quite a free channel of conversation.

Yes. You must remember also that numbers are not important. If you can help but a few people within this one lifetime, then I say to you all my dear friends, your task in helping another cannot be dismissed. Do not feel that there is any gratification in numbers. Do you understand? (Yes)

Les: George?

George: I was at a wedding at the weekend and I felt there was a very good energy at times. (Yes) It left me with a very nice feeling as well and timing seemed to be important. There seemed to be a right time to talk with an acquaintance.

Yes. Can I say this to you, that many opportunities are placed before you in your lifetimes upon this planet. You, my dear friends, remember what I have told you, that your free will is all-important when it comes to making decisions; you either can go forth and offer yourselves for good, or you can retreat back and withhold those vital words of contact. But each one of you are given the opportunities to grow and allow your spiritual growth to touch another human being. When you feel that interaction of good, are you not left with that feeling of upliftment? Do you not know that that time spent in contact with another human being has raised you to greater heights? (Agreed) The feeling is always one of good.

Les: Margaret?

Margaret: Well I've become a good listener and I was asked to talk to a lady who lost her husband a year ago and in the last three weeks I have made her a lot happier and that's made me happy too.

Of course, again I would say to you, it is not always necessary to use the spoken word—a look, a touch, a gentle gesture, is enough to uplift another. It of course depends on each individual situation placed before you.

Margaret: The first time she came to see me, I gave her a big hug and she said she hadn't had that since her husband died, so I was quite pleased that I could give it to her.

And do you not see the rebound effect that you have had, my dear friend? (Yes) Not only have you helped the lady, but in helping her you have helped the departed one. Do you all understand that?

(Affirmed) Because, my dear friends, that is important to understand, that what happens within your world, also is like a mirror image in ours. Do you understand that? (Affirmed)

Les: Lilian?

Lilian: Yes, I can see the interaction now. It's much more clear and you've already answered my question, on the feeling we get when we have helped someone. I guess that's the spiritual upliftment.

Yes, remember that what you give out, so do you receive and that is why the feeling of joy and upliftment is greater, when you have taken forth and done your work well.

Lilian: It makes much more sense now.

Les: I won't go into a lot of detail, but in the last six months, to confirm what Salumet has said about there not being accidental meetings—in the last six months, I have had five people contact me, who over a period of time going back to 18 years, received help either for themselves, or for a close relative and the last one happened today. It has surprised me each time, until I remembered, about there not being such a thing as an accidental meeting. I must confess I felt very happy each time I was speaking to each of those people.

Yes, and do you not see my dear friend, that because of your going forth in your years of knowledge, that others in return, do not need you to go forward but are pulled towards your energy, your light, your goodness? That is why they come to you. As in all of the other cases, when people—perhaps you would say unexpectedly come and you are able to help them in some small way. But because of your many years of dedication my dear friend, more often than not, at this stage of your development, people are drawn to your light.

Les: I'm very happy to learn that of course. Obviously I am always delighted to help them again.

Know that you have worked well. There have been occasions, which I will not go into, but which in time you will recognise that you have missed out on, but of course as human beings, that is quite natural, so do not be harsh with yourselves, when the time comes to stand forth on judgement of yourselves. You understand? (Affirmed)

Les: I hope everyone feels better for that 'discussion,' shall we say, on personal revelations; it can only have helped us. (Agreed)

You can only have helped each other. You counterbalance each other when you meet in this manner. I wish I could show you all the colours and the energy that is within this room at this moment in time. If only you could see the blending of your energy, it creates something that would dazzle you. So my words to you this time my dear friends, are these: Come to know yourself well. As you know yourself, allow that part of you, to go forth, to allow others to know you, to be strengthened and uplifted by you, to take forth all that you have learned, but never to force your thoughts upon another—this too we have spoken about. (Agreed) Be careful in your thinking, but to allow freely, to give of yourselves freely, in order that your spiritual energy can be blended with another in need of such energy. After all, my dear friends, you are all but energy. See yourselves thus and you will find greater knowledge of all things.

I would ask if I may this time, that as I leave you, that each one of you sit quietly for a few minutes of your time and feel those energy patterns that you are. Come to recognise them and then to allow them to expand to each one in this room. See my dear friends, if you can feel the blending of those energies. I withdraw from you this time, leaving you with my love, love that belongs to all Creation; an all-encompassing love, not only for you this planet and all others, but to know that as I leave you, I leave part of me, with each one of you. (Thanks + farewells)

Les then began to reiterate something when one spoke through him:

Les: Before we go into silence, I'd like to remind everybody, including myself of course, of what has been said so many times: You never know what seeds you are planting and you cannot know what the result will be. And if you remember that every time you have occasion to help anybody—(Les then channels) —you can never know the extent to which those seeds you have planted will flourish and will in their time, produce growth, which will of course in time produce further seeds—and so the cycle is never-ending. Think not that when you help one, it is one only who is receiving your thoughts, your love, your energy. It is not your individual energy, as you have been told tonight, it is the universal energy of all within this room, who have, though not aware, have themselves benefited from the seeds planted by others, who you do not now remember. Do you understand this? (Affirmed) You are the growth, which is now in turn, able to produce the seeds for future growth, and so the cycle continues. Is this clear?

George: Yes, beautifully clear, thank you.

Free your minds of the thoughts, that the help you give is a personal effort. It may pass through a personal channel, but always it is a universal consolidated effort; the effect of much in the past, which also has been consolidated and was universal. Is this also clear? (Affirmed) Is there any question you would like to ask, if not we will go into the silence as requested. (No questions)
God be with you all. (Thanks expressed)

~29th June 1998~

Good evening. (General welcomes.)

Les: We're very pleased to welcome you.

I await your questions this time, before I work quietly with this one.

Les: Right thank you, would anybody like to start the questioning?

Sarah: It would be nice to know what Salumet thinks of this changing of fruit with genetic engineering.

Yes, my thoughts my dear friends, have been given to you on previous occasions regarding human links with genetic interference. It differs not with your question. I will say only that man must stop interfering in the manner that he is so doing. He will find the error of his ways.

Les: I think you're referring to genetic changes now, are you?

Yes, mankind must realise that all is already perfection that has been provided for you upon this earthly planet and any such interference, whether it be human, vegetable, mineral, whatever—he must realise that although he seeks betterment at times, he is failing in his heart-felt desire for such.

Les: I don't think he will better anything.

Of course he will not. But the seeking and the searching, is what is uppermost in some human minds. Does that satisfy your question?

Sarah: Yes thank you very much.

Les: Any more questions?

George: We have talked about the soul and the way it is made up of past lives, or in a way it is made up of past lives, but these past lives will be from different time periods. I was wondering if any further discussion of this might help us to understand the nature of Time more.

You will never fully comprehend the time factor as described to you here. After all, the soul does not belong only to past times, it is with future times also—that is where the difficulty lies. The soul encompassed past, present, future—all is intertwined. We have gone into this at certain times and I have said to you, we shall return to it on many occasions. But at this particular time, I do not feel that you are ready for more detailed discussion.

George: Yes, thank you for your words on that.

I hope you are not unhappy, but we shall seek for you, in your understanding of the time-scale.

George: Yes, thank you.

Remember the soul is without time, do you all understand this my friends? You must fully realise that the soul is timeless. (Some agreement) Are you sure that each one of you understands?

Les: Yes I think we shall have to accept and understand that we shall never understand in this life.

No, you never will, but we can help you to understand just a little more.

Les: Yes I agree.

George: It's nice to have your statements, because that does make us more certain of those few facts that we have grasped.

Yes, in pondering these facts, then your knowledge will automatically grow within you, yes.

Les: As a matter of fact this isn't a question, but it follows on: I was thinking of you—well I've thought of you quite frequently recently Salumet —

Yes and I thank you for that.

Les:—and it tied up with something my lady Ruth used to say when things weren't quite as we would have liked them to be. She would say: 'Well I always remember what I was told by someone who was very knowledgeable: If you can't have what you want in this life, always make the best of what you've got.' (Yes) That doesn't sound much, but it's quite profound.

And I will tell you, that is still her thinking philosophy; it does not alter because your state is altered.

Remember how important your thinking is.

Les: Yes I think it would do us all good to keep that constantly in mind, because if we do try and practise that, then we are inevitably fulfilling our desire for spiritual growth too.

Your spiritual growth will become natural to you, if your thinking is correct. It follows—it has to, that if the thoughts are following the correct pathway of your lives, then your spiritual unfoldment also will follow. Can you see, it must always be connected with your thinking?

Les: Of course it must.

I always will stress on many, many occasions, the power of your thoughts. After all, you are pure thought. Do you understand my words?

Les: We understand what you are trying to make us understand. (Good.) I think we accept that we never shall fully understand, but we must, by making the best of what we have got each day of our lives, we automatically are progressing towards a greater awareness of what we do have ultimately to understand.

You have much, much to understand. But my dear friend, when first I came to you—and that was in this month of your year, it was said to you both, that we must go slowly, slowly, slowly, in order that the understanding for each one of you, in differing states of development, would be enabled, to understand at their own pace, that the information and wisdom that I was to bring to you, would be devoured by you and readily accepted by you. I wanted you to grow slowly, slowly, in order for this information to be digested properly, and I will say this to you my dear friends: My heart grows full each time we meet, when I see how much each one of you has grown. You may not all be aware, but your spiritual lights now are so much brighter.

Les: Thank you for that I know it's very comforting to us all and thank YOU for it. I know you say you don't want thanks, but let us have that physical acceptance.

I accept them (?) but it is not necessary my dear friends. I have come to you on a wave of spiritual love and have been accepted by you all and you have returned fully, that love which I have brought (?) each time we meet —

The recording had become very faint/fuzzy by this point as Salumet withdrew in order to work quietly with Eileen.

There then followed one through Sue, called Sister Veronica, who explained that she had brought along some children in need of healing. These children had suffered much whilst on Earth and were given healing/comfort from the sitters who were each assigned one child to work with. Any despairing thoughts were to be released with love.

~6th July 1998~

Eileen was away this week, so no Salumet, but there were other speakers of interest, the first one coming through Sue:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Les: Thank you for being with us.

I have been in this room before, but this is the first opportunity I have had to bring speech, as well as my powers of healing. I have worked closely with you my friend, over many of your years. I was often with your lady and since she has been on our side of life, we have continued with the work together.

Les: I'm very pleased to hear that and I'm sure she's delighted.

You can imagine I'm sure, how she reacted when she could put a face to that that she has felt. Do you understand me?

Les: Yes I do.

She could feel my presence, but when she came to us, then the last pieces of the jigsaw were put into place.

Les: That's very nice for her I'm sure.

It was equally pleasant for myself and my fellow workers to be able to welcome her into our realms.

Les: Yes I'm sure it was a wonderful welcome, because she was often saying how she looked forward to meeting you all one day.

Indeed, and I say to you and I am sure you are aware in any case, that she now has great joy in what she does. We would be lost without her, you understand me I'm sure.

Les: I'm very pleased to hear that, because she was a wonderful lady when she was here and it can only have been emphasised when she has the opportunity to use the additional power in your world. I'm sure she's doing a great deal of good work.

That goes without saying, but she still has an unbreakable bond with yourself, as I'm sure you are aware.

Les: Yes I'm often aware of her with me and for that too I'm grateful.

Since you have brought your healing evening to a close—and may I say and I know you will accept my words in the spirit they are meant: About time to! (Laughter) Since you have curtailed that part of your work, we have moved away to your protégés, do you understand?

Les: Yes I believe they're doing quite well and the healing is all going quite well with them.

Of course. We are there to guide and to be used for the purpose of bringing comfort and aide to those who so desperately need it.

Les: Yes there are so many and I have no doubt at all, that you and your colleagues would continue to work with them, as you worked here and for that I do thank you all and I apologise for not having given up that work earlier.

As your dear lady would say: 'You are a stubborn old soul.'* (Laughter)

Les: Yes I can imagine her saying that, but I'll have one back on her and say, well she hadn't asked me to give it up—I know I had the warning and it's entirely my own fault.

We are with you very closely and we knew that when the chips were down, you would come to your senses.

Les: Yes I did, didn't I?

We can't afford for you to be under the weather my friend; we aren't ready to welcome you just yet.

(More chuckles)

Les: Well as long as you keep me quite healthy here, I'm quite happy to work as I have to.

You are closely guarded my dear, dear friend and we feel sure that in times of need and tiredness, you can feel our presence around you.

Les: Yes I can indeed, I agree with that and again I'm very grateful to know it.

That is not to say that we are with you constantly, we haven't got time to be with you all minutes of your day, but we always hear the call and respond to it when required, as I'm sure you know.

Les: Yes I do, that's why I use it discreetly and not at every minute.

We know, we know. You are a precious and most important part of our work. We couldn't do what we do, without your guidance and leadership here and we know that all your protégés are following well in your footsteps.

Les: Yes I have been very lucky in that. They are all very capable now of carrying on when I have to leap off; I have no doubts about that at all.

Some of them still can't quite believe that they have found themselves on that path. But as we have said so often in the past, what is meant to be is meant to be. There are no chance meetings are there my friend? When the call comes, you find yourself answering it, even if you are unsure at the beginning, exactly where it will lead.

Les: Yes that's quite true and I'm sure it's true of everybody here, it certainly was of me when I began.

We bring them from all walks of life and we nurture them on the way and then suddenly they find that they are part of a big happy and serene family. Is that not so?

Les: That's right, I think everybody would agree with that, wouldn't you? (Agreed)

I would like please to ask you if you would be prepared pleased for the rest of this meeting, to be taken over with some healing thoughts, for some people we feel would benefit from your help. Is that acceptable to you all this time?

Les: Would everybody agree with that? (Agreed) To devote the time to mental healing and that means for whoever you wish of course.

With your permission I would ask if each one would take a person who I shall name and ask them to give healing to them. Will you do that for me, as well as the people in your own hearts, that you feel require our own help?

Les: Certainly, yes of course we should be pleased to do that.

We were each given the name of someone in need of our healing thoughts and the reasons they were in need of a little help. For example, Les was told: I ask you my friend, if you could have your thoughts and love surrounding a young gentleman by the name of Raymond. I can only say to you that he had problems with his mind, when he was on this Earth and we feel that he would benefit from some thoughts from yourself.

We worked quietly with those allotted to us, during the time available. There then followed a communication through Les:

I have been instructed to continue the work requested by my colleague. In order that those whose names have been given to you may benefit more fully from the power which can be brought for each, I wish you please for you to imagine your particular charge, to be standing in front of you. Address each please by name and tell each the purpose for which they have been brought into your presence. You will not be aware—they WILL be aware of the love and the light which radiates from each of you to them. I wish you could see it as they will see it—as my Raymond, at this moment standing in front of me, sees the light and the power of love coming from me to him. Please do this, because then the combined effect of the love and light, which will be available, can more easily be distributed, not only to each, but to ALL. And that, because of your own love to them, can enhance beyond your knowledge, the power that you are able to bring to them, for their recovery from each individual problem. Have I made myself clear to you in this matter? (Affirmed) Thank you. Then I will not encroach further upon your time. I will leave you to bring them to you by your thoughts, to stand before you, to feel your love, your lights can be seen and they will benefit more than you can imagine. God be with you my friends, thank you for the power that you can give to each of your charges. God be with you all. (Pause) Do not be afraid to talk to each mentally, so that with your help, they may discard the problem for which they have been brought here at this time. Please emphasise that their acceptance of your words, that they can now dispense with their physical problems. Tell them please if they would do that, it would give you great satisfaction to see them well and fit and healthy, as you would wish them to be. They will delight not only in their own recovery, but in the pleasure it will give you, as instigators of that recovery.

We then continued in silence for the remainder of the time. Finally, a merry control came though Sue, to report back on the good work achieved, before we closed.

~13th July 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before we continue this time, let me say this to you my dear friends: All of you have different lives, as the individual peoples that you are, but can I say this to you: That once you have gathered together within this room, you become as one. So I would ask you my dear friends, that if there is any discord, disharmony within your daily lives, can you please leave it behind you, before you enter this room?

Les: Everybody clear on that? (Affirmed) Good.

I understand it is not always easy, but for the sake of our work together, it is imperative that you come with open and glad hearts.

Les: Thank you for telling us.

I would wish to welcome one of our wanderers, but of course as many do, they always return.

Jackie: Thank you.

Now for this time, I will take your questions.

Les: Right, it may be more of a debate than a question, but it all revolves around your teaching. A couple of days ago there was a terrible incident in the country we know as Ireland, where sectarian hatred has caused the death of three young boys. I began thinking about what you've said about the effect of our actions returning to us and the need that we shall have to compensate for our actions, when we come over to you. When that person comes over and is shown his life pattern, it is surely not going to be sufficient for him to say, I'm remorseful. I imagine he'll in some way have to atone for that terrible deed. Is it possible for him or her to atone in the next world, or will he be compelled to come back to the physical world, in order to do that?

I understand your question.

Les: It has a lot of answers no doubt, but I'm sure you'll be able to help us on this.

I wish to return to words spoken to you previously: There is no compelling, there is no compulsion to return, unless that soul so chooses. That must always be the way, but of course there come into force other factors. The soul is made aware when he returns to our world, of all good, and I will not use the word 'evil,' but 'wrong-doing' that he has done, whilst upon this Earth. The soul will make the judgement, the soul will decide when awareness comes to it, what that judgement and that atonement must be; the soul is never compelled. After all, have I not told you that we cannot interfere?

Les: Yes you have, this is one of the things, which puzzled me.

Yes, this applies in our world also. He will be guided, he will be shown what is best, but always he is a free spirit in his thinking. Do you all understand these words, because they are important?

Les: So he would be able to choose his method of atonement?

He can make atonement within the spirit world.

Les: He can? (Of course) I thought he might be able to, but I wanted to clarify that, because during rescue work, I've told many people who have suffered for what they did here, that they can continue to evolve, after they have made atonement in your world.

It always depends on the damage done to another soul. (Yes) After all, you are prejudging the damage done to another soul, when in fact you do not know what reaction that soul has.

Les: No, this is where I got all bogged down in my thinking. I was going round and round in my mind, on all these aspects.

You are making the physical assumption that the wrong-doer has damaged seriously the soul of the other person.

Les: Yes I must admit I was thinking that.

Always look at these questions with spiritual eyes—they will become much clearer if you do so. (Yes) We know and we understand that the atrocities of your world lean hard upon your physical beings and thinking. But after all, are you not spirit here and now? Can you not make your spiritual judgements, rather than fearful ones?

Les: Yes it comes back to what you have so many times said, we must think of ourselves as spiritual beings. We know it is not easy, but I will always return to the power of your thought, to not making judgement upon another and always to be open to give love to ALL, even those whom you would term 'evil' people.

Les: Yes you're right, that is difficult for us.

But you must attempt to give love to all people, after all the only way you will grow spiritually whilst in these bodies, is to be of service to another and my dear friends, that does not only mean giving love and good thoughts to people whom you like, but indeed the greatest joy comes from extending and giving of love to these souls who are in much more need. Can you see?

Les: Yes we do understand what you say, but of course as you've also said, it's extremely difficult for us (Yes) to bridge that gap between the physical and the spiritual.

Yes, but you must never stop trying to make sense of it, otherwise your thinking would stagnate and then where can you go? After all, whilst you remain upon this Earth, truth can never reach, it cannot make lodgement in closed minds, remember this please. Have I answered your question?

Les: Yes, thank you. I said it might be a debate more than a question, because it did lead me to think about the many wars that have happened and undoubtedly will happen and how people have to atone for the killing they do. I think we can safely assume that in the conflict, some people abhor what they have to do—what they've been ordered to do and must do. Others are comparatively indifferent and others as I understand from what I have read almost enjoy the killing. Surely the reaction upon those three different aspects of killing, must be different in each case?

Of course, you cannot make one sweeping statement about these things, there are many factors involved, as I have said. You must remember that the actions of each individual, is dependent on their own thinking; this must take priority in their actions towards another.

Les: How about a man who has been ordered into the army, ordered to kill and does so, knowing that if he didn't, he would probably be shot for disobedience?

It must be taken into account that that individual is governed by overriding authority, and of course that is different from the man who wishes to kill for pure pleasure and for his own upliftment—of course there is the difference. When each soul looks upon its life, it will instantaneously know whether those actions were for good or evil.

Les: So the degree of atonement they would have to be responsible for, would vary in the differing cases then?

You have to remember all souls are at different stages of their spiritual development, and their actions so follow. You have to look individually at all cases—you cannot say that all people who have killed or maimed another, have done so for all wrong reasons. How would you deal with the mother, who helps the child to die, from pure love? Is that not the same as the soldier in a position, when authority is bearing down upon him?

Les: Yes, so they would come within the same bracket (Yes) and be given the same understanding of the reasons for which they did it?

Yes, you cannot put all actions under one heading.

Les: No, I didn't imagine it was possible to do that, but it's nice to have the confirmation. So atonement for apparent crimes here, is not necessarily obligatory in all cases?

No, you have to understand my dear friend, that the soul views the whole life, the whole life and not individual instances as such.

Les: No, there's a balance sheet, isn't there?

There has to be some balancing, to make sense of that life. We speak about difficult subjects because there is no one straight answer.

Les: No, I imagined you wouldn't be able to, there are so many answers aren't there? But you have clarified it a lot for me. I hope it's been clarified for others, has it here? (Affirmed)

If you have questions about this, then let us sort them now.

Les: Anybody have a question?

Sallie: Only in so much that when you were talking about the atrocities in Ireland, it's possible I believe from what Salumet has told us, that those who were actually killed, it could have been part of their own pathway and plan—in so many ways it's not necessarily as things appear. Am I on the right sort of track there?

That is right, that is why I say to you: You cannot judge the reaction of the soul, who you think has been wronged. How are you to know? That is why you should not pass judgement on any other human being. You are quite correct in what you say. This I have taught you and I hope it is beginning to make some sense within your thinking. (Thank you.)

Les: Any other questions?

Jack: Yes, so basically you're saying that we are responsible for our own actions and that only basically—we only answer to ourselves? (Yes) Yes, right—that would seem extremely logical, thank you.

You cannot when you return to our world, say I was made to do this, unless it is in the case of the soldier who has authority bearing down upon him. I do not take that case, but when you return to us, you cannot place blame upon another soul for your action. You are the sole responsibility for all that you do.

Jack: So would that be right to say then, that basically there isn't a right or wrong to anything, except the right and wrong you put on it? Your actions are judged by your conscience basically—whether they are right or wrong that can't be judged, can it? You can't say if something you do is right or wrong, you can only say whether the intention of what you want to achieve is right or wrong?

You can only evaluate right or wrong by your own judgement.

Jack: Correct, that's what I thought.

I understand what you say, but that is physical thinking again. The spirit that you are, knows what is truly right and what is truly wrong. It is only when the awareness, the consciousness is raised, when the soul comes to our world, that the soul then recognises what it has done, you understand?

Jack: Right, I do yes.

Les: Any other question? (Pause) You said at the beginning Salumet that you asked us to leave behind any physical disturbances for the sake of the meeting. So I think I would be right in presuming then from what you have told us about the soul, that though we are apparently individuals, we are all in fact part of the soul, not only in this room, but effectively in the whole of Creation?

My dear friends, you are the blending together of the bigger blending of Creation. As individuals, you are individual souls; but your light of spirit when you meet in places such as these, become heightened and are attuned and joined to that very creative force to which we all belong. We need your lights to be harmonious, if the blending is to be successful. Of course each one of you are part of each other. I think you would find this difficult to accept at this time, but imagine yourselves as individual beams of Light, who are joining together to make one huge beam of Light.

Les: We could come back to your description of the diamond and the facets; the Creator is the diamond and we are just one, each individual of an infinite number of facets.

Yes, and I have told you that within each facet, lies many more—yes. Of course, we are all part of each other.

Les: And of course each facet is joined, isn't it?

Of course, but at the same time, can be individualised. My friends, this is a really deep matter to discuss, but I know that your thinking touches upon the very heart of Creation. And therefore I wish you to know, that each individual facet that you are can exist without another, but together you have the strength of all Creation. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, I think we understand that, don't we? (Affirmed)

That is why I have said to you, that you must if you can, enter this room in the purest state that your minds can provide, in order that the blending here, is as pure as it possibly can be, in order that we on this side of life, can utilise you to the best of our abilities, in order that the work we hope to bring is enabled to be strengthened, and that we can go forward in our endeavours to teach you and to bring more from our side of life. It is no little task I assure you, but I know and I am sure that much can be achieved, but it is an important part of our work that each one of you begins to learn that purification, which is within you all and which can be brought to you.

Les: I'm beginning to have a vision if I can put it that way, of each of us being primarily an individual facet, but when we come together like this, each individual is merged into one complete facet, which mustn't be sullied by any impurity. And that facet—the amalgam of all individual facets here, that one facet in turn, becomes an amalgam of many other meetings like this, all ascribing to the same degree of development. Does that make sense to you? Everybody understand that? (Affirmed) So if we think of this room as one comprehensive combined facet, which in turn is linking with others, in a way which we are quite unable to understand but which is happening, I think we might get a clearer idea of what Salumet is trying to tell us. Anybody have any questions on that, or any disagreement with it? (Pause—no questions) Thank you Salumet.

I hope it has given you more to think about my dear friends. Always as I have told you, there is never one clear answer, but as we move forward in our learning, each step should become clearer to you. That is why it is important that perhaps we retrace our steps in what has been spoken, in order that each time we speak, it becomes a little more clearer to you.

Les: It has to me. (Agreed) Any more questions on it? (Pause) No? Good.

How well informed you are becoming. (Chuckles) My heart goes to you all. (Thanks expressed) Now let us speak a little more about Truth, and this we have spoken of on many occasions. And too often still, your thoughts reach me as to why you cannot reach out and touch another and tell them of what you know. I have said earlier this evening, that Truth cannot reach closed minds and that really is the basis of it all, that your understanding of another's development is such that you would not understand what that closed mind can accept. So I would say to you only this, my dear friends: Do not waste your time upon those with closed ears, because if they reject then they are not ready. Leave them with the thought and allow that thought to be digested slowly. I say again, if the seed is left, then the thinking of the soul is there to ripen—that is as much as you can do. So I say open your heart, give love to all those you come into contact with, but never try to force what you know as truth upon another person, because again I will say to you, if you do then you are on the boundary of interference. (Agreed)

Now my dear friends, for this time I will leave you all with much love, with light for your lives, until we come together once again, I will leave you with much love.

Les: Thank you very much for all your explanations again and for all your understanding you give us. God be with you.

~20th July 1998~

Salumet did not come through this time, but Eileen was still used, along with others who had not been used much before as mediums. It was therefore more of a development session. The first came through Eileen:

Hello. I'm pleased to be here.

Les: I gather our usual friend (Salumet) isn't going to be with us?

That is my instruction to you. Other instruments will be used I think. I'm being told to tell you just to follow your instincts this time.

Les: Right, we'll do that, thank you. That doesn't mean you're leaving us at once, does it?

No I will stay for some time. (Thank you.) I am only being used to bring this to you, that what you may have been expecting this time, is not about to happen. I'm not being told any reason for this, but only that I should come to tell you so.

Les: Well thank you very much for coming.

I believe now that it is to bring awareness to more of the instruments with you, to try and encourage them in their work and to see what can be done with them.

Les: Good, it makes a change, doesn't it and I'm sure they'll be very happy to go along with that.

Now I will just withdraw for a little time, but I'm being told I will come back to speak with you.

Les: Thank you. In the meantime we'll see who else may be wanting to speak, shall we?

Yes please. (Right)

The next communication came through Sue:

Les: Good evening to you.

My name is Herod. I am not here to talk to you, I am here as gatekeeper this time. (Thank you.) But I can say I am overwhelmed at being given the opportunity to come to a place I have heard so much about, as gatekeeper. I thank you and now I will stop talking and will continue with my job.

Les: I'm very pleased you're so happy to be here and we all welcome you.

There then followed attempts to use mediums not usually used. There was then a short message through Sue, expressing their delight at being able to use Mary as a medium this time. The one through Eileen then returned:

I want to say how much I admire your patience.

Les: Mine? Well, after all these years, I should be. (Chuckles)

I am not making jest with you, I say these words to you most sincerely.

Les: Thank you very much indeed.

Because I don't know if you're aware, but I might be you could say, your 'equivalent' on our side of life.

Les: Ah, that's nice to know!

I don't know if you are aware of the work that we are involved in?

Les: Yes I believe it has many similarities to what we do here, except of course in a different perspective.

I have to say my heartfelt thanks to those novice communicators this evening, because I have spent much time with them and to see it come to fruition has made me glad.

Les: That's very nice to hear, I'm pleased too and are very grateful to the novices, for what they have done.

I have to admit to you, I have not always had your patience—let me assure you that even in this side of living, my patience is something to —how shall I say—to be improved upon.

Les: Well, mine is too!

So you see how happy I feel that those I have helped to communicate this time—it has helped me greatly and in watching you at your work, from this side of life, also has shown me something too.

Les: That's nice to hear and I am very pleased. When I do it, I'm always very happy when somebody new begins to speak through an instrument.

I would like just to say one thing now that I have found my voice. I would like to say to the other lady, it is time now for you to begin.

Les: That's you Mary.

No, the one you call Sallie, is now ready to be used, but her mind is a little active at times. Now, be thankful that you are here, with this very good gentleman, because I don't know if I could have the same patience. (Laughter) But, my very dear ones, she is ready now.

Les: Thank you for letting me know.

So next time the opportunity is given to you all, let me say, perhaps you will see that she is being used.

Les: Ooh! We'll be after her! (Laughter)

We have been after her for some time! (More laughter) But she will not contribute to the work, yet.

Les: No, we must see for your sake, as well as ours, that she does not get away. (Yes) We'll do that.

I have been whispering my name to her, but she has not been aware, so far.

Les: Oh, well perhaps she will now be more open to your whispering. Do it when she's asleep tonight, will you?

Ah—I may not have the patience this evening; I do think I've worked hard enough for one time.

(Laughter) I'll not be brow-beaten—no—yes, but I hope you have not been disappointed, because I'm now being told that you look forward to someone who comes to you each time. I am not aware of the person, but I am just being told this.

Les: Well, we'll look forward to it next time, thank you very much. But we're very grateful for you for having been here tonight and if we all say a little prayer, that you should be helped in your attempt at more patience, you wouldn't object, would you?

I will be grateful for all that comes my way. (Chuckles)

Les: Right, well can you give us a name that we can remember you by? It needn't necessarily be your own name, but something we can include in our prayers for you.

Well how kind you are and you can know me by the name of Marianne.

Les: Thank you Marianne. We shall all think of you tonight, before we go to sleep

Well, with all those blessings and thoughts, I should be hopping everywhere, won't I? (Laughter)

Les: I hope it'll be helpful to you anyway.

You have been an inspiration to me sir and I feel that I owe you those words.

Les: Thank you it's nice to have you and I'm very pleased to work with you.

I know sometimes no matter how well you wish to work, sometimes a little gratitude goes a long way.

Les: True, it does; it's nice to have a pat on the back, yes.

Yes, I like one, so why shouldn't you?

Les: Yes thank you very much; well you've got one.

Well, it has been my pleasure to join you and I will leave you now and thank you again for your kind thoughts.

Les: You know you're always welcome to come and visit if you wish Marianne.

Thank you I may well do that at some future stage, but I am quite fully occupied with so many who need to be taught to communicate. I think sometimes, people here assume communication happens just like that—it is not always the way.

Les: No, it depends on the individual, their desire to do it, ability to do it, their spiritual development — there are so many factors, aren't there?

Yes and they need to be helped and shown the best way of using the instruments available, and it is the work of our dear gatekeepers, to keep them in line. I am only thankful that I have not chosen that task.

Les: No it's a difficult job, isn't it?

Perhaps when I have reached a few more steps upwards, perhaps I will offer myself, but until then I will leave it safely in their hands.

We then said our goodbyes and closed as usual.

~27th July 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Les: Good evening and thank you for being with us.

I thank you for your welcome once more. I wish to bring to you all much love and to give to each one of you, power to your thinking. (Thank you.) We have spoken on many things, my dear friends.

Les: Yes, we certainly have.

And I would like to say to you this time that many thoughts are coming to us, about the existence of your planet Earth. I will repeat to you once more, that mankind has unreasonable thoughts, of his own power to destroy. I say to you once more: Mankind does not have this kind of power. He can destroy much, but he cannot extinguish the energy given to this planet, by the Great Creative Force that each one of you knows as God, or the Great Creative Force. Man will not destroy this planet. This is what I wish to reiterate to you once more, my dear friends.

Les: Thank you very much, that's comforting. I never thought for a minute that he would be able to. Mankind might superficially damage the surface of the planet, and perhaps to some degree, beneath the surface, but he would never be able to destroy it completely.

He has put too much into his thinking, that mankind is now all-powerful. Let me tell you, mankind still knows very little.

Les: Oh absolutely, I would agree with that completely. And unfortunately we don't always know the responsibilities we are creating for ourselves. We mess about with nature and physical forces.

I believe my dear friend, that by now those of you present here, know and understand that mankind has much to learn. (Agreed) But those of you in your world, who are able to acknowledge and try to understand the teachings of those from our world, will know that much can be done to help mankind in the right direction, in order that this planet follows it's true evolutionary path.

Les: I'm sure we can be helped enormously.

But we have spoken about these matters before, but because of the many thoughts coming to us from your Earth, I wanted you my dear friends, to know that my words do not alter; (Thank you.) what I have told you, still stands. If you so desire this time, I think it might be good that we have questions on any subject that I have brought to you and that perhaps you still have some thinking about, or doubts in your own minds. I would like to dedicate this time to answering your questions.

Les: Thank you. Sallie, if I might start with you. Is there anything you were thinking in your period of meditation in Wales just recently? Did you find anything in that time, which associated with what you have been taught here?

Sallie: I found everything that I discovered while I was away, was very compatible with what I've been taught here. It is not necessarily identical, but I believe it all leads towards the same point and in some ways it enriches the teachings here, because everything I pick up and read or spoke about, all came back to this point, in what we learn here. So do I have any questions on it? None which are in my head at the moment, though thank you for asking.

Les: Right, anybody else have any questions?

Lilian: There is one—it's about thought and animals. Those of us who've had dogs or cats or whatever, (Yes) you say they understand us, but is that their picking up our thoughts, more than what we actually speak to them?

I have said that what keeps your animals close to you, is a love bond, which is expressed in what you call your auric light. This is what your animals who have gone before you, blend with—not so much the spoken word turned into thought-form, but the natural love energy, which already exists.

Lilian: I see, thank you.

All energy is pure love—this applies not only to your animals, but to mankind generally. There will be no break, no undoing of a bond, whilst there remains a true love-bond. It is one form of energy, which is so strong, that nothing can separate it. Is that helpful to you?

Lilian: Yes, thank you.

Yes, remember again, think of yourself in the spiritual form, and you will blend with those who have gone before you. Do not think of the physical thinking so much as the spiritual thought—the all-knowing thought of spirit—there is a great difference. Are you clear? (Yes) Do you need more help?

Lilian: No that's fine thank you.

Les: Right, I'll come in with a question then: You have told us Salumet, when we have spoken about crop circles, you did say that so-called 'aliens,' were amongst us at this time, though we weren't aware of it. Recently I was listening to a discussion and it was said that in the county of Wiltshire, which is quite close to here, there had been discovered another 20 examples of these crop patterns. But of course there is still no specific understanding that we can have of them. Is this proliferation of them, an indication that our friends from outside of this world, are proposing to visit us in more numbers? Or is this an indication that they are going to do so?

Let me say this to you: Your world is changing. Those beings from other times, other energies, other planets who sustain more knowledge than yourselves—of course they have the opportunity to travel in this space area, many, many times. But at this present time in your Earth's history, the intention of these beings is that more contact be made. As each of your years pass, more and more communication will take place, but because of mankind's natural inhibitions and fear, this must be done at a slow, slow rate. Beings from other times have shown themselves upon this planet, but in the main, as in most things not fully understood by humankind, it is being ridiculed. The time is coming, when human beings must accept that they are not the sole forms of life within the cosmos. They will accept, they will begin to understand and they will lose all fear of foreign beings; although using the word, 'alien' or 'foreign,' is not useful to you—better that you say 'brother.' Their form may be slightly different, but the energy within, is the same energy of which you exist, but to a much faster degree of evolution, on their part.

Les: I see. What has surprised me is that they have not so far, given us any intelligible understanding of them. I should imagine that they are sufficiently wise to know our language and to be able to speak it, or write it, if they wish?

Let me say to you, my dear friend: That is not always the case. They may have more advancement in their travel, but you are an entirely new world to them. Would you go to another planet and expect them to understand, or would you understand their language automatically?

Les: No, we would probably understand their thoughts, I should think, if we are sufficiently developed spiritually.

Yes, now we begin to have an inkling of what this is about. Contact being made, is on a higher form of energy, therefore they are expecting mankind to retaliate in the same way, although they know them to be, how shall we say, 'lesser' beings in their development. Of course, humankind cannot respond, because they do not have their knowledge. They have left many 'pictures,' I believe you would say, in the form of their writings in the fields, (Yes, they have.) but it is mankind's downfall, that they do not understand these forms. It will come, there is already amongst many of you, an understanding of what is being done. It is being used in many forms, as the ancient civilisations in your world, used to use drawings, in ways of pictures, in order for others to understand.

Les: Yes, they could use sign language or picture language, but they haven't apparently, tried to do that to enlighten us. I would have thought it would be possible for them somehow, to have left a picture of themselves, as they are now, if they can achieve those crop circles?

My friend, they have shown themselves to mankind; they have shown themselves as they truly are. Not only is it in the crop circles and other phenomenon, but they have shown themselves to man, to those people who they hope, will understand and pass on the truth, to the rest of mankind. Do you not know my dear friends, that many in governments in your world, have witnessed for themselves, what you call 'aliens'—and I do not like that word, I would prefer for you to call them brothers. They have witnessed for themselves many of these beings, but because of their fear for mankind, because of their lack of understanding, much has been kept quiet. Do not assume that only corn circles are the only form of communication.

Les: No, that's all we've heard about.

Yes, that is not all.

Les: That's interesting.

I think I would say, that in many areas of this planet, there are more of these showings, of these crop circles, because of the entry of the spacecraft, in the same way that your antiquated aircraft need pathways of flight, so too do the spacecrafts. It is assumed that these crafts can lift and fly and go in any direction they wish, but I can tell you, they have to follow the airways of travel. That is why there is an abundance of these happenings in certain areas. The time and the place is most important and certain times of your days and nights, in order for them to enter this planet.

Les: I see, that's something that none of us knew.

They also have to abide by the cosmic energies, which are available to them.

Les: So, they follow specific energy lines then?

Of course, otherwise at such speed they could create much damage within your spheres.

Les: Yes, well that's certainly something new for us.

But I assure you my dear friends, communication has taken place. Much has been shown to all governments within your world and much is being denied. But the time will come, and I will not say that it will happen in 100 of your years, 200 of your years, but it is a gradual introduction of new beings. As your world has become a smaller place in knowing each other, so too the time will come when interchanging of beings from other planets can take place.

Les: That's a very, very interesting thing to look forward to, because we shall be looking at it from your world. But I wish one of our brothers, would show himself to me! (Laughter)

Well, what is wrong with your thought? Have I not taught you that anything can be achieved, with the power of your thinking?

Les: I'll have to start thinking then—hopefully. I have been mentally exercising for my own health and I must admit, I think it's working.

I will stress to you all once more, at risk of being tedious and repetitive, that it is the most powerful thing you possess. Use it wisely—we have discussed this also, use it wisely and there is nothing you cannot achieve. But be sure that that powerful thought, is all that you truly desire and is for good reason.

Les: Yes, well mine is still that I might be of benefit to other people, before I come home to you.

That is the way of your thinking—that is why you can see results; if your thinking is good, then the thought is reality.

Les: Thank you for all that information. Now something else which has reminded me of what you told us when you have spoken about judging people. Recently, there have been two physical deaths. One was of a financier, who had very doubtful antecedents and was regarded as something of a rogue, in the way he used to make money. The other one which is not publicly known is a man who had spent many, many years promoting spiritual healing and spiritual awareness generally. Of course, both have gone over to you and I began to try and wonder how they are going to react to the conditions that they are going to find. And of course being physical, I was crediting the spiritual chap, with a very, very happy beginning and the other one, with a not so happy beginning, until I remembered what you'd said about not judging, because we cannot know the reasons for which they decided to take that particular physical life this time.

You are correct—judge not any other man, because you do not know the reason behind their living, or why such things occur in their lives. You must not look at another human being and decide that one is better than another, for you do not know, you do not see the full expanse of their lives. And remember, when you speak of the events of one lifetime, you are speaking only of one iota of energy, of that part of the whole. So, who is to say that the one you would deem 'irresponsible,' and not so 'good,' is not the brighter diamond of the two?

Les: Yes, this is what came to me. I thought, well, I can't say, he might well be—

You cannot take a part of the whole and make judgement upon the whole. This is the problem, that when you judge man as you know mankind, you are judging only that one part of the whole. You do not know how the whole shines, or what the whole has achieved in past time. So you are wrong to make judgement; never pass judgement, and have I not told you my dear friend, that what you find distasteful in another, is a fault within yourself?

Sallie: Excuse me—I feel it's right—I know we're not passing judgement as such, but when you are with a person, or with people—I suppose it is passing a judgement, when you see the good in them? It's still a judgement, isn't it? But you're actually seeing—

I would say to you, my dear friend, it is not a feeling of judgement, but in seeing good, there is a 'knowing.' There is the knowing of the goodness of another, without judgement. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes, that makes sense.

In the way that we have spoken of like being attracted to like, and in the way that opposites are attracted; it is the spiritual search for what they do not have. So, if you find fault in another, look inward to your own thinking. I hope this is a lesson that each one of you has thought much about, because in doing so you will come to a fuller and greater understanding of yourself.

Les: Yes, it occurred to me, after I had been thinking about these two deaths, that what we are here trying to do is to understand a complete book, by only reading one chapter.

Yes, that is a good analogy, that is most apt and perhaps more understandable to all of you, if you look at it that way. I believe you have a saying in your world, 'Do not judge a book by its cover.' So, that too should apply to human beings. You cannot know the full story. Has that helped your understanding?

(Affirmed)

Les: Yes, it has me and I hope it has everybody else. Well, I think I've taken up enough time with my questions, any other questions from anybody?

George: Could I just go back to the crop circle question? A number of the crop circle diagrams, are diagrams from our past culture, going back thousands of years. (Yes) So, our friends from space, they would seem to have a considerable knowledge of our culture and thinking, over long periods of time.

Is that not a good way of showing that they have knowledge of your people on Earth, that they have superior knowledge, of what has happened in your lives? (Agreed) It is only a beginning.

George: Yes, I was wondering about those past diagrams and it's another little surprise for me, that it's from their knowledge of us, and not some other more direct interaction.

I think what I have to say to you is this: That because of the great difference in their appearance, they tend to hold back, because mankind has not reached the state of acceptance of all life. Mankind on this Earth, has many unsubstantiated fears—he fears himself, most of all. So, how do you suppose he would react to the seeing of another being who does not conform to his way of thinking of human beings?

George: Yes, I can understand and accept the problem of our very different ways of thinking (Yes) and difference of advancement.

Slowly it will come—do not doubt it is happening, do not be waylaid by those in authority, who try to push these things under carpets. There is more to energy, than this planet, your humankind—we are speaking of many galaxies, of a cosmos reach in life in many forms, but which all ultimately belong to a source of energy, which is creative in many forms and to which we all belong. Again, do not pass judgement, but allow your minds to remain open and loving, to all who enter your world, with love. As in mankind, there are many degrees of good and bad. So also there exists in other forms of energy, good and bad. Remember this well, because my friends not only is this planet open to the good and decent forms of life energy, but it lays its pathway open, for those who also have not good intentions, (Voice begins to fade as if communicating from afar) but this I will not discuss with you this time. But keep an open heart and mind. Remember my words well, know that many are here already in communication, many who wish to offer help where they can, who can and will adapt to your ways of communication, in order that their task and help be made known more widely and that the governments of your world, will accept them readily, because not only do they bring higher awareness to you, but they can bring to this planet, much knowledge and good. If only you will accept them, as brothers and not as some strange creatures to be ignored.

Les: Thank you, I'm sure all here would be happy to do that. (Affirmed) Perhaps we might even get an opportunity?

If your heart is open my friends, you can find much. You can attract to you, all that you wish, provided there is love in your hearts. I will this time my dear friends, take my leave of you. I thank you for your questions this time. I am happy to be part of your learning, happy that you allow me and those from my world, to enter your lives for this short period of time. Without your love and trust, it would not be possible for me to sit among you, to feel that unselfish love which you exude towards me. For this my dear friends, I offer myself to you, that I may be of help to each one of you, in times of need. Until we come together once again, may all that is good stay with you all.

Les: Thank you very much indeed once more, for all your teaching and your love. God be with you always. Then a communicator came through Eileen, called Andy. He had a message about a pig, which none of us could take, but it was amusing anyway, helping to lighten to mood in the room, before we closed.

~3rd August 1998~

No new teachings this time, as Salumet wanted to speak individually with each sitter, but these sessions may be of interest/applicable to you too:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to say to you this time dear friend that you are a little tired, but we will draw close to you. (Thank you.) Because we are fewer in numbers this time, I do not wish to embark upon any new teaching this time, but rather perhaps we all can consider what each one has come to know of themselves, since first I came to you.

Les: Certainly.

Each one of you is on their own pathway of development, but now I do feel the time has come for each one to analyse himself or herself spiritually, in order that we may move forward and grow together more closely.

Les: Yes I understand. Would you like everybody to give you their individual conception of how much they have improved, since we began?

I would wish that and in doing so, if they have questions for me, then we will use this opportunity this time, to help them on their way.

Les: Thank you very much indeed. Shall we start with you Sallie?

Sallie: Well I think the last time we spoke on this subject, Salumet was saying that I had grown more in understanding more about myself and I think since that point, I've gone through various lessons of my own making perhaps and probably the one I'm in the middle of at the moment, is letting go of attachments. That's my understanding of what's going on at the moment, with me on a spiritual and physical level.

You find that you cannot separate spiritual attachments from physical attachments. Is this what you are telling me? (Pause) Yes.

Sallie: Yes.

Do you begin to recognise that you—the spiritual you, has power over the physical thinking, if you so desire?

Sallie: Yes I know and feel that spiritually I can affect my physical environment.

Therefore your life's pattern is beginning to take shape. You still stumble my dear friend, over many things physically, which you should by now be able to place to one side. I hope that you can see that your spiritual self—and this is all important, that the spiritual self must grow. What do you feel you have achieved within this lifetime?

Sallie: I have achieved I suppose, what I wanted to.

No, you have not. If you had achieved what you had intended, you would not be sitting here. Can you see this? Can all of you understand? (Affirmed) Only when you fully understand yourself, only when your lifetime's task is completed can you say, I have achieved what I intended to.

Sallie: I understand what you're saying, I probably didn't explain myself. What I meant was, I have probably only achieved up till now, what I've wanted to achieve. I don't mean I've finished achieving—I don't mean that at all, far from it.

In that understanding then I say to you my dear friend, continue. Give some of your daily living, in knowing that spiritual all-important aspect, that is the true you. Each one of you at this time in your living, must give some time to spiritual growth, conscious spiritual growth. Of course you grow unconsciously shall we say, each day of your living, but now we would wish that you devote some time to conscious growth. Do you understand the difference? (Pause) No?

Les: It could be called a sort of meditation Sallie, when you're consciously trying to develop. (Yes) You understand Sallie?

Sallie: I'm not sure what the unconscious growth is though?

Les: That is your spiritual self.

That is working without conscious effort. The generosity, the smile, the helping hand, that are all spiritual attributes that are done spontaneously, without conscious effort. That is spiritual growth. Do you understand? (Yes)

Les: It might make it clearer Sallie, if you were to go back to what Salumet has told us some time ago, about the dual responsibility that the physical has for the spiritual, and what the spiritual has for the physical; you may remember that talk. Each has responsibility for the other.

Whilst you are in these human forms, spirit must use these physical bodies. But in order for the spirit to grow, it is necessary that you to live your lives to the full, that you accomplish all that you came to do. Most of the time, that spiritual growth is an unconscious effort, but when you reach the time of development which each one of you has now, the time is ripe the their conscious spiritual growth to take place. Do you understand what I say?

Les: Perhaps I can add to that Salumet, if you permit?

Yes please.

Les: Thank you. What I've found to be very effective and I've done it for quite a time now: Once we were taken through their land (spirit realm) and I saw a coloured waterfall, and I was told it was not a waterfall, it was energy in the form of a waterfall. Since then—to capture what Salumet says about conscious spiritual development, I sit every morning, not attempting to meditate, but I walk into that waterfall and will myself to absorb the spiritual energy, which is there to be taken. That is a conscious effort to develop the spiritual awareness. Is that clear? (Yes) I think you might find it advantageous perhaps, to do the same thing. I have found it worked. Right, Mary?

Mary: I think that I have begun to understand that I'm responsible for myself, for my past self, for my present self and I will be responsible in the future. I try daily to put effort into what I do, to try and give out something of myself to the people around me. I don't know how well I'm doing that, but it is a conscious thing that I'm doing. And at night I quietly try to go over my day and see what I've done that I'm pleased with and to examine the things that I'm not so happy with. I don't know if I'm growing, I—

Let me say this to you all, before we continue: I have told you I hope often, how much each one of you has grown. Your spiritual lights are bright, they change of course they do, but each one of you has grown much, since we met first. Do not doubt, you could not be sitting here as you do and not grow spiritually; please my dear friends be clear about this. What I am asking you this time, is to recognise your own awareness of your growth. Never doubt that spiritually each one of you has grown much. I am sure if you looked around at one another, each one could give you something of the other, in the way of change, in the way of recognition of the others, which they have noticed since first we came together. Remember also, that this coming together of all of you is not the first time. Remember also that this lifetime brings you the opportunity to expand in one aspect only of the whole self. So YES my dear friend, you have grown much, do not doubt this, and what you are doing I can assure you, is the way forward in your own spiritual growth.

Mary: Thank you. May I ask a question?

Of course you may.

Mary: I'm one of the newer ones to this group —

But that does not matter. Who are you to say how old or new you are in spirit?

Mary: I just wondered if I had a connection with this group previously?

All of you have come together, not always in the one lifetime, although most of you have, as I have told you previously. But there has to be the connection in past times. Did I not say, and perhaps this lady was not present—I told you all that I have waited a long time for the right conditions to come to be.

Les: Yes you did tell us that in the early days.

That many would come and go, which our dear friend can verify for you over the years, and who has shown great patience in waiting for many things to happen. But I'm sure also, he will tell you that perhaps one of his own life lessons, is perhaps to have a little more patience.

Les: I think that's right. All right Mary?

Mary: Yes fine thank you.

Les: Jackie, I know you haven't been back long, but do you have a question you'd like to ask?

Jackie: Well, not really a question. I feel that people come to me, so I feel that I'm probably quite good at talking to people. Friends come with their problems, but I think it's difficult to say, because your private lives do interfere. We all have our problems and we all can't help think about them, whether we are on the right paths—I'm sure we all think that, don't we? (Agreed) We've all got so many personal problems in life.

Sandra: Yeah I don't understand why all of us have had such a hard life really, with personal problems.

Jackie: To make us better people, I know I'm a much better person now.

Well, have you not answered your own question?

Sandra: If we didn't have the problems, we could work better, more spiritually?

Why would you need to be here, if you had nothing to work upon?

Jackie: So you think we all come here, because we all have our problems in life?

I do not think, I know that each one of you has chosen your life, in order that you may work through many problems. There I hear you say, 'why do some peoples have such sweet lives, while others have many difficulties?' Again, I will repeat, who are you to be the judge?

Jackie: No I'm not saying I'd like a simpler life, what I'm saying is that I've changed a lot and I think for the better. (Yes) I don't know, perhaps I feel it should be a rewarding time perhaps, it would be nice if something went well for a while.

Sandra: It's difficult to explain—a pat on the back or something, perhaps that's humans, isn't it?

Yes it is a human failing. Why should you receive gratification for what you have chosen in your own lives?

Jackie: So we choose all our problems?

Not necessarily, but the power of your thinking can alter your life's pathways.

Jackie: But we have paths, don't we? And these problems must be on the paths, mustn't they, to make us better people?

You have chosen obstacles in certain areas of your lives perhaps, in order that you grow spiritually. That is the important area, not that physical living can be free of worries, or that physical living can be easy.

After all, if life was too easy, what would be its purpose? (Agreed)

Sandra? I know there're people who are a lot worse off.

May I suggest to you my dear friend, (Yes) the best way forward spiritually, is not to allow your thinking to dwell upon the self.

Sandra? And the past as well, isn't it both?

May I suggest to each one of you, that the ego, the physical self, must be placed where it is best dealt with, and that is far from your thinking. Is this clear to you all? (Affirmed)

Mary: In the last two weeks, there have been various things coming up in my life, that seem to—I'm going through them, but I have a very strong sense that I'm not going through them alone, that there's somebody there guarding me, because some of the things—it seems that things are resolving themselves, almost with my faith that they're going to be resolved. But I'm always aware that there's somebody near me, you know that there's a spirit that's close to me helping.

All of you do not stand alone. Surely you know and understand this from the beginning?

Mary: I think I've always known this, but it just seems so strong right now.

Because your own spiritual self is allowing positive energy to exude from you, so those who stand close by can blend with you more easily—that is why. When you retain negativity in your lives, do you not see that you create barriers to those of us in our world? That it becomes more difficult to help you and remember dear friends, our desire is to help you, to uplift you and to guide you. You are never alone.

Sallie: I'll tell you what I've noticed with regard to help, is that when I think that I've done everything I can in a situation and then somehow I've found some energy or some spirit to make me do a bit more and it seems that nothing I do is effective; suddenly it seems like I have a magic friend and I get given a huge chunk of something, which is much more than I could ever have imagined. It doesn't happen that often, but when it does it's quite amazing.

Yes, that is because you are allowing yourselves to be open to our help—you offer yourselves to us for help. If what you desire is for the good, is for your spiritual growth, there are many who will be by your side. Do you all understand this? (Affirmed)

Jackie: Yes because when I first came here on a Friday Les for a coffee, and Les said that so many people were trying to help me, but I wouldn't let go of the past and they couldn't get through.

Yes, you create that barrier.

Jackie: Yes, you're not aware that you're doing it—

But that is where conscious spiritual growth must help, that is what I would like you to try to achieve at this point in your developments. If you will only open up to us in our world, your lives could be much more simple, because no matter what troubles or what problems come to you—and I do not say your lives would be trouble-free, but I do say this to you my dear friends, that your lives would be easier, because spiritually you are stronger. That is the difference.

Les: Sandra?

Sandra: No, I know what I've got to do Les, I've got to give a bit of time to relax.

You must give more time.

Sandra: It's just that I run around too much, I know it's what I've got to do.

All through life, too often in your lives, excuses can be made. (General agreement + chuckles) You have the free will to alter this.

Les: You could find time for what I told Sallie I do.

Jackie: Yes I'm going to do that.

Les: Right, Sandra?

Sandra: I just said that I'm going to make some time to try and relax and develop that way.

Les: That's all you want to say is it? (Yes) Fine, well if you do the same thing—think of the waterfall as energy and consciously walk under it and absorb it and you'll be astonished at the reaction you get.

Sandra: Right, I'll have to, yes.

Les: Paul?

Paul: Yes I think generally that's one of the things for me as well, to spend more time relaxing.

But how do you feel you have changed? How have you grown spiritually since we first came together?

What is your understanding of yourself? You do not look deeply enough, you must question and find the true spiritual pathway that you are treading. Look deeply my friend, to find that true self and the recognition will be shown to you; it will be shown to you in a way that you had not imagined.

Paul: I was wondering about—to eliminate the distractions, I had the thought of doing a vision quest or something, for three days, getting completely away?

I would say only this to you: I will help each one of you when I can, but you must each one of you, find your own individual way, your own pathway, that which you find easy to adapt to. So if you feel that is what you must do, then follow that instinct, or can I say not instinct, but inspiration. You do not always FEEL what we try to give to you my dear friend. I will help you.

Paul: Thank you.

Les: George?

George: I feel bigger than this physical frame. I've increased in knowledge, I've increased in awareness.

These qualities seem to run side by side, with a deeper love—compassion and humility also come into the equation. I feel a more sensitive being, I think that's how I feel I've changed over the last four years.

Yes my dear friend. That your words are knowledgeable, because you see, those of you who seek the more spiritual way of life, do become more sensitive. Your words please me, it shows that you recognise the changes within you. That the spiritual aspect of yourself comes forward more often than it did. So I say to you my dear friend, ponder upon your own words and consciously act upon them, in order that that growth may continue and that you become a useful member of this group here together now.

George: Yes I think I probably need also to find more quiet time.

Yes, all of you must give more conscious effort. These words I speak to you this time, do not put them aside when you leave this room. It is important for each one of you, that that spiritual growth, that conscious effort now be made, at this time in your development. Please work towards it, you can only be better for it and not only will you grow, but all those you come into contact with, will be aware of that spiritual glow, which you will exude.

Les: Margaret?

Margaret: Well, I can only say that since I've been coming here I've been a happier person. I understand other people's problems and my own problems. I can't tell you how happy I am in my life, because I am happy. Whether that's good or bad I don't know, but I feel contented with my life. I think I could be a better person, but I just don't know how to do it at the moment.

Can I say this to you, my dear friends: Of all the people within this room, including our absent friends, you are the one who has grown the most. I do not say those words lightly and in saying them, I do not mean you are the most spiritually evolved, but you are the one who has taken the furthest steps in your growth. (Thank you.) Know that in your time to come, you will continue to feel and to know the goodness that surrounds you and the many who come close to you to help you.

Margaret: Thank you very much.

Les: Right well now me I suppose: Well in my lifetime I've had to learn a great many things that I'd never have even conceived of learning. But I know it has helped me in many, many ways to do the work I do with you and others. And I've had to learn the patience as Salumet has said, because I know in my youth, I was one of the most intolerant of the intolerant. (Chuckles) You don't have to agree—(Laughter) At 20 I knew far more than I did at 40. (Laughter) That's often the case, but I'm grateful for having had the lessons, because it's enabled me to give a great deal to other people. But what has surprised me is in how the last couple of years, the proximity of our friends in the next world has grown. And as Mary said, she feels there is somebody with her; I don't FEEL that, I'm AWARE of it constantly and I have remarkable instances of this being so. It may sound conceited—don't think that, I merely give the facts—some of you may have seen it happen, that often when I'm saying something that I want to confirm, I'm taken over instantly. (General agreement—many had witnessed Les begin a conversation in his own voice, and finish it using another's voice while channelling the words.) That has happened to a greater degree, in that when I was talking to my son last week—they came down in their caravan and stayed at a local site, and we had a lovely week together—He had a problem, somebody came in and helped him to put that right and that hadn't happened before. Then my daughter phoned from Canada and thanked me for some tapes I'd sent and instantly someone was with me, answering her on the telephone. Now that's never happened before, but I'd emphasise this to Mary, that she's not wrong, neither is Sallie wrong, in thinking that the help is there. What is wrong, is that we don't, as Salumet says, open our spiritual selves and in fact our physical awareness, enough for them to get that close. So I'm very, very glad and grateful that I've had the opportunity in helping YOU, in your development, to enhance my own development to that extent and for that I'm very grateful to you all.

Thank you, and with those words, I wish to say only this to you, my dear friends: Each one of you interacts with each other. You are united within this room, but when our meeting time is over, you should take with you that love, that knowledge, that spiritual upliftment, which you feel in this short time together. And you should allow all peoples that you come into contact with, to share that pure spiritual love, because my dear friend, as you grow in spiritual knowledge, so you become the pure energy of love. And do you remember what I have told you about love, not the physical emotion of love, but the spiritual aspect of love? Take it with you, let it shine forth to all who cross your pathway. Remember no meetings are by chance, each meeting has a purpose and if that spiritual light which shines from you all can be utilised by another, then indeed my friends, you are achieving that which you came to this lifetime to do. In helping just one person, one person, with love in your hearts, with unselfishness and no thought for self, then you are beginning to achieve true spiritual worth. May I leave you this time, knowing that each one of you is surrounded and bathed in spiritual love from all in our world, who desire to help, not only those who are known to you, but to helpers who have devoted their time in trying to help all people on this planet, who desire to be helped. I know that you will ponder this night, upon each other's words and know my dear friends that as always, I will be with each one of you.

Les: Thank you very much for all your wisdom and your love. Our love goes with you and God bless you.
One immediately followed through Eileen:

Good evening. I will not detain you too long. I come to ask you that you join me in giving thanks for all that we have.

Les: I'm sure we'll be very pleased to.

For each one of you, I ask that you are all-seeing, that you gain the wisdom of silence, to know and to understand how precious your words can be, to ask that love in your hearts be magnified, until it is overflowing ... (?) I ask for each one of you to know and to bestow kindness towards another in your daily lives. I ask finally, that each one of you be shown your own special pathways, that when you come to us, your colours are bright. I thank you all for your patience with me and thank you all for the opportunity to join with you.

Les: Thank you for doing so and God bless you.

This was the end of the tape. However one other did come through Les during our tea and biscuits, while talking about reincarnation. The communicator touched on the main points regarding reincarnation, reminding us how it all depends on our spiritual progression, which Salumet has explained on previous occasions.

~17th August 1998~

No Salumet this time as Eileen was away. However there were other interesting communications, the first of which came through Sue, the audio link of which is available here:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=GH7_mFGQEdI

I thank you so much for your kind welcome and the words, which you have spoken to me.

Les: It's very nice to have you with us.

I am a little concerned at the moment, because my surroundings do not feel quite comfortable.

Les: Is there anything I can do to make them better for you? Is the light too much?

No your room and your conditions are not at the root of the problem, they stem from my side of the curtain. But I feel that I can continue without too much discomfort.

Les: Good, I'm glad to hear that thank you.

Before I say who I am, I wish to be made perfectly plain, that I will answer no personal questions, in relation to my life when I was on the Earth.

Les: That's understood.

I hope you do not consider me to be impolite in requesting this?

Les: No not in the least.

But when I tell you the name I was known by, I hope you will understand my reasons.

Les: Yes, that's quite okay.

It is not because I am ashamed of my life, or because I do not wish to tell you,

Les: But you don't want all those memories resurrected?

Yes and there will come a time when the history of my family will be told to you, but it will not be from my lips.

Les: I see—yes we're quite happy with that.

I have been permitted to come to you, as shall we say a stepping stone in the process of my family's story. It will—how would you say, 'sharpen the appetite' for more information and I can assure you that it will come.

Les: Thank you very much.

If you would be kind enough to be interested in a little of my life on this side, then I will be happy to tell you a little of it, but I do not wish to outstay my welcome, or to bore you with my little insignificant life.

Les: I don't think we would be bored and I don't think you would outstay your welcome, and I think we would all be interested, would we not? (Agreed)

I will say to you that since I have been on this side of life, I have learnt a great lesson in humility, but I cannot change my carriage, or the way I sit or stand or move around. But I have learned humility and that surely is one of the greatest lessons mankind could possibly learn.

Les: You're quite right, so few of us do learn it.

I came to the new life very full of self-importance, very sure that people, many people, were way, way beneath me on the ladder. Can you understand this?

Les: Well that's how you were brought up, wasn't it?

Indeed, and that possibly was the undoing of my family, but that is enough of that. It was a very hard and painful journey, through many steps, many hard steps. I know I caused my helpers, my guides much distress. I have been brought back to the physical on one occasion, to try to help them, to help me. I'm afraid to say that on that occasion, I was returned un-helped—I was unhelpful, and that is something I bitterly regret. But over a period of many of your years, not our years you understand, but YOUR years, (Yes we do.) I gradually had my haughty exterior broken down piece by piece and I can say to you quite truthfully, that when the final piece came down, I could see light and love, as it should be for the very first time.

Les: Of course you were so insistent, that those who were trying to teach you, were wrong in their outlook, weren't you?

I am ashamed to say that I was utterly convinced that I was in the right.

Les: Yes I know and do you recall coming through and speaking to me, many of our years ago?

Was it you my friend?

Les: Yes, and at that time you still retained your costume and a stick and you explained about your hats.

I cannot quite remember, but I think that it is quite possible, because I was very much in favour of headwear, you understand my meaning? (Yes) But because it took many years to break down my barriers, I have not always remembered the past. I feel that it is a lesson that I learned and it was put into a dusty corner of my mind.

Les: And at the same time you asked me to support a certain person, in their work on this Earth.

Forgive me, but I do not wish to remember. Are you sure it is what I asked you?

Les: Yes, if you are who I think you are.

No, I'm—I apologise I do not wish to appear as if I am trying to hide anything from you, but my memory of that, I must admit is a little hazy.

Les: Yes I don't want to put it any more strongly, in deference to your request that we shouldn't ask anything about your life.

I was led into light and love, by some wonderful and caring souls and I am honoured to say that since I have become more human—you realise what I mean by that— (Yes) and less of a glass ornament, I have been permitted myself, to give the kind of help I received, to others of a similar nature.

Les: Good! And you're giving that help in your world, are you?

Indeed I am and let me tell you, I am so ashamed of how I behaved, because now as you say, the boot is on the other foot and I am having to deal with people I so closely resembled many times ago. And it is not easy, in fact if I could, I would tear my hair out.

Les: Yes I know how you feel—not quite, but I believe I do.

I'm sure at times when you've been doing your rescue work, you have thought to yourself, how on Earth can I get through to these people. Well as you know because you do it constantly, eventually you do get through. I am giving a living proof of that, but goodness me, I feel deep, deep remorse for all the problems I caused my beloved carers and I can only continue in my life, helping others in recompense for my past ways.

Les: Yes well that is all anyone can do, because as I said at the beginning of our conversation, you weren't responsible for your attitude, because that is how you were brought up, that is how you were indoctrinated into the feeling of superiority, (Yes) through your whole life.

Yes, my one concession to my previous earthly existence, is when I feel the need to have four walls and a roof around me and of course I can if I wish. I do have rather beautiful and luxurious accommodation.

Les: Well, you were used to it, weren't you?

But gone are the sycophants that surrounded me. I have to cope alone and I thoroughly enjoy it and when I am replete of the luxurious life, I remove myself from the trappings of wealth and go on my way; it is a little indulgence that I feel I have earned.

Les: Yes I would agree with you, we would all feel the same I think. I don't think anybody would have any objection to that, would they? We understand, don't we? (Affirmed)

Thank you. Next time I feel the need to surround myself with fine furniture and velvet, I will think to myself that my new found friends would not object to a little decadence for a short time.

Les: No we wouldn't, we'd love to share it with you! (Chuckles)

Perhaps in time my friends perhaps I will welcome you all to my little palace.

Les: We would look forward to that. Now I'm going to ask you a very personal question, which you may prefer not to answer, in which case I understand. Do you still use make-up to the same extent, just as a hobby? (Pause) (No) I'm not criticising, it just gives me an indication as to your being.

No, it is not something I feel the need to indulge in. I cannot say that it is an important part of my existence.

Les: No I know it wouldn't be, it's just a little fad to go with your surroundings.

No, if I had another luxury to go with my beautiful little palace, then it would be fresh fruit. I hope you don't find that amusing?

Les: No, we're all in favour of it.

And fine wine, which perhaps I should bow my head in shame for my—

Les: No not in the least. We all like little indulgences, but we can't of course go to the extreme that you do. But we can quite understand why you would find it a method of relaxation, in your arduous work.

But I said I WOULD choose that as an indulgence. I have to say, that so far I have resisted the temptation. Good, aren't I? (Chuckles)

Les: But you would feel much more comfortable, if you did have the indulgence now and again.

Does that mean I have permission to go and indulge myself, with some wine and not feel guilty, (Yes) because my new found friends have told me that it is quite in order? Goodness me, that's all I needed to know! (Laughter) I think I shall presently leave you and see if I can find someone who will join me in a small indulgence.

Les: Yes, well we would join you in a toast then, while you do so.

Of course, you know it is all in the mind. I do not anticipate taking a glass of wine and putting it to my lips, but I will THINK I am putting a glass of wine to my lips and that will be just as intoxicating to me. As you know, it IS the mind, when you come through the curtain.

Les: Yes, absolutely.

It is thought that takes me into my beautiful palace, it is THOUGHT that removes me from my beautiful palace and puts me in the real world.

Les: Yes, and of course you had the difficulty when you were on this Earth, of not being able to express those minor indulgences, because of those around you, whom you thought would disapprove.

All I will say, is some would have disapproved, but many others would have gone to the other extreme and indulged themselves too greatly.

Les: Yes they would have.

And that is all I wish to say.

Les: But they would not have expected you to do it, (Pause) Well this is very interesting and we much enjoy your conversation.

Before I leave you I would say to you, that shortly into your room if you will permit, will come a member of my earthly family. And I am almost certain that they will divulge to you historical information, which I feel sure will be of great, great interest to you.

Les: It certainly sounds as though it would be.

But I have paved the way. It will be a little more difficult for this person to come. At present there is much still to do, before they come through the curtain to speak with you.

Les: They have not been here before, have they?

Ah yes, you unfortunately have got hold of the wrong piece of wood. I speak of someone who has been on our side, for many of your years.

Les: Well that'll be even more interesting. We look forward to it.

So with your permission, I will return and tell the people who are working so hard to bring this to be, that you give permission for them to come to speak to you.

Les: Certainly we do, we welcome them. Thank you very much.

It will be of historic significance that is all I will say. Now I feel I have been here with you a little longer than perhaps I should have. I do not wish to outstay any welcome that you give to me. It took considerable effort to bring me through here and we do not wish to take too much from the kind lady, who has allowed me to come here this time and converse with you.

Les: No, we do understand and we thank you for the consideration. Perhaps you'll come back and talk to us again one day. You'd always be welcome.

If our plans reach fruition, then there is a possibility that I may come, at the same time as another. I would not speak at length, but may come to introduce you to my family member.

Les: That would be very nice.

And I hope that when I return, part of this evening will come back to your consciousness.

Les: I'm sure it will.

I am honoured to have been accepted into your private quarters and thank you for taking the time and having the patience, to listen to the ramblings of someone like myself.

Les: Well they certainly weren't ramblings and we've all been most interested. I don't think anybody would deny that, would they? (Agreed)

George: It's been delightful, thank you very much.

Then I offer you farewell and hopefully it will not be too far in the distance that I am back here in this beautiful room.

Les: We hope it won't be too long and we wish you every success in the work you are now doing, in ridding others of the shadows in which they are walking.

I am happy to make it my life's work, until they find me another niche, for any talents I may have.

Les: Of course they will develop, as you do your work for the others.

My final words to you are: Always have a little humility. Do not plump yourselves up, with unwarranted self-importance.

Les: No, I think we all try not to do that. We've had many lessons to that effect, but we take note of your words.

I am not in any degree criticising any of my lovely new friends.

Les: No, we understand that.

I just give you some heartfelt advice. And now I will leave you in the fervent hope, that it will be very soon, that I come to introduce another to you.

Les: Thank you very much indeed. As I said, we look forward to that. God bless you.

We then began to discuss who it was/might be:

Les: That was most interesting, wasn't it? (Affirmed)

Sarah: She didn't say who she was though.

Les: No, she didn't want to. Anybody have any ideas?

George: Queen Mary?

Sarah: I thought it was Elizabeth 1st.

Sue: No, I'm sure—I can't—

Sue begins to channel again:

It is just as well I had not completely departed, is it not? I apologise, I did say at the beginning I would give my name, but no history of my earthly life. I do not wish to give my first names, because and I jest here, you would be here all night, I had so many. I will if you are interested, give you the last name. I would imagine you will all recognise it and let me say, I am nowhere near as old as Queen Elizabeth 1st.

Sarah: I apologise. (Giggles)

My surname was Romanov. I will leave you now.

Les: Thank you very much for telling us.

Sarah: Thank you.

Sue then shared her feelings/emotions that she'd picked up during the session. It had left her quite tearful. Les explained to George that he had also thought it was Queen Mary, which is why he'd commented on the hats. Sue noted at the time that the one through her was a little confused by Les's comments, but did not wish to appear rude. Sue felt that it was paving the wave for another member of the family and who she felt would be Tsar Nicholas. But the moment she'd uttered the name Romanov, Sue experienced extreme feelings of cold and shivers and she felt that the Tsar had a far greater lesson and it would take more time for this one to come through. We discussed what we knew about this part of Russian history, when an unexpected and highly charged message came through Les:

Good evening to you my friends. From your conversation, I would gather that you've been most interested in the communicator, who has spoken with you this time? (Affirmed)

George: Yes we are very interested and she spoke beautifully.

I would remind you of lessons you have had during the past meetings here, when it was more than once explained to both meetings, that humility is one of the prime lessons, which must be learned when you depart from this life, into ours. (Yes) And yet to our surprise you are still astonished, when so called well-known, victorious or otherwise significant people return to you here. Let it be understood, that the auras which surrounded them—and I talk about imaginary auras that you humans place around people on this Earth—they no longer exist, they are quickly dissipated when you come to us. That applies to all, irrespective of birth, of previous experience upon this Earth, or what you call the higher echelons of society. It is absolutely of NO IMPORTANCE WHATSOEVER!! The only thing which concerns us when you come to us, is your degree of spiritual development, not the trappings of so-called civilised life, which some of you still bring with you to us. And we despair sometimes at seeing how many stratas we have to clear away, from the spiritual person underneath. Nevertheless it has to be done and it is done. Now we come to the point of my visit. Many times you have been told that you would have no idea of the extent of the work that would be done within this room, is that not so? (Affirmed) You still can have no idea of the extent of the light, which is generated through the years of dedicated work, which you have given to us. And each time a meeting is held within these walls, so that light is increased. You cannot possibly imagine its radiance. And as you upon this Earth, flock to your chambers of music, your libraries of learning, in order to devour as much as you can of the knowledge which is there— in order to appreciate as much as possible the gorgeous music, which is available for you; so upon our Earth, or our plane, as you say—so upon our plane of existence, are the lights of varying degrees from various meetings such as this, from churches, from chapels, from synagogues, from what you call the fringe religions—ALL emit light to a certain degree. But I will say now—and I do not wish you to take this in any form of conceit, but I will say now, I know myself, of no place, which radiates light, as does this.

(Referring to the room we were using) And our realms are full of light my friends, light unknown to you; light and all its colours, all its shapes, all its patterns and all its beauty. But because of your work, light from this chapel, from this church, from whatever you wish to call it in a religious sense, this temple—light exceeds everything that I have known. For as it is that those, who for long have been with us, who have suffered much in many ways, are attracted to the supreme light which calls them—much, much more will be done here. Many so-called famous people wish to and will visit; be prepared for this. Do not think yourselves honoured, but if you wish, be grateful to those who on our side, have through the years, taught you what spiritual development should be. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

George: Thank you for telling us this, we are indeed grateful.

I leave you my friends. God's blessing be with you at all times. Do not hesitate to continue in your dedicated work. Goodnight to you, God bless you all. (Thanks expressed)

~24th August 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to say this time, that we must return to some things already spoken about. But firstly I would say to the gentleman known to us as Jack: My dear friend, I feel your inner turmoil, I will come close to you to help you, to bring to the fore of your thinking, much clearer thoughts.

Jack: Thank you.

My friends, I wish to speak this time about seekers of Truth. We have touched upon this subject many times, but still I feel some present, do not fully appreciate what they are seeking. What is truth? I say to you all, truth is truth—there are no new truths. What there is, is knowledge that is available to each one of you, dependent of course on your ability to receive. But my dear friends, all truth is innate within each one of you. So when you seek out the truth as you call it, remember nothing is new. But still you are surprised when something new to your consciousness arises; you question, you doubt —that is no failing on your part, only your human frailties. I want you all dear friends, to know that each one of you has the power and all knowledge of truth, but once again I repeat to you, you must look inwards. I will take some questions at this stage if you will agree, in order that this topic can be put to one side.

Les: Right, I was speaking to one of your colleagues some time ago on the subject of truth and we were told that there was no such thing as final truth at present, because the universe is still evolving, and as it evolves, so too will what we call truth alter in accordance with that evolving.

No, no, no; no, no, no, no; no—what is evolving is knowledge. Truth is truth and has always been. What is changing is the knowledge of truth, which is available upon the raised consciousness of each individual.

Les: I see well that answers that question, thank you, because I couldn't quite understand it.

Are you clear about this my dear friend, because it is so important for your understanding, that each one of you knows that truth cannot change, it has always been.

Les: Yes, I believe we did speak about this some time ago, as you said (Yes) and I was puzzled as to the difference between truth and knowledge. Now you have explained —

It is the acceptance of the knowledge of truth, which grows; it grows with the understanding, with the growth of consciousness as to what you can accept.

Les: So would it be right for me to say that as physical human beings at this stage in our development, it is not possible for us to understand truth?

It is possible only in as much as your understanding of how you have grown in this lifetime; your knowledge of truth cannot be exposed to you, until you return to us and see your full vision of who and what you are. Does that make sense to you?

Les: Yes it does make sense, but it leads me to another question (Yes) and I don't know how this will be explained, or whether we'll be able to understand the explanation, but I'm sure my colleagues here have the same thought, when I say, 'what is Truth?'

Truth is the all-encompassing vision of life.

Les: (Pause) I see.

You sound puzzled.

Les: I am still a little puzzled yes.

Yes, your understanding of the true meaning cannot be accepted, in this state of your development.

Les: No, because to accept your—and I say this with respect of course, to accept your explanation, is contrary to what our physical minds would consider (Yes) to be truth.

Yes, always whilst you are upon this Earth, your physical minds will always doubt, but you—the true YOU that is SPIRIT, should know what we term 'TRUTH.'

Les: So truth in fact is an intangible thing and you say it is the all-encompassing light of creation, is that so?

Yes, which cannot be altered; you cannot change what always has been and always will be.

Les: No of course not, so we'll have to accept and learn and understand the difference between our conception of truth and our acceptance of knowledge.

Yes, this is the difficulty of using human words; it is more a feeling, a spiritual feeling, a spiritual knowledge.

Les: So really to accept truth, it would have to be an awareness rather than an understanding of it?

Yes, knowledge can be understood, truth is as you say the spiritual awareness; the innate knowledge, the knowledge that lies within the spirit. It is a difficult topic and one I know each one of you struggles with, but I hope in having these question times, that it can be made a little more clear to you.

Les: Yes I'm sure it can. I think everyone would appreciate that, wouldn't they, (Agreed) that each time we learn a little more, even though we must accept that we shall never fully understand. But as Salumet says, we're adding to our knowledge; that is the important thing I think at the moment, and not just try to reach the impossibility of understanding the greatness of truth.

Sallie: Could I ask something please? (Yes) If I go within myself, I can find my understanding of what truth is. If another person goes within themselves, they can find their understanding of truth. (Yes) But our separate understanding of truth may be different?

Your understanding of truth is dependent upon the spiritual awareness that you have achieved. What is your truth may not belong to another. Yes, you are correct, but remember when you speak of truth, do not confuse it with the availability of new knowledge.

Sallie: It's an old truth—it's a truth that's inside that you just know.

Yes, yes this is the difficulty that you confuse the availability of knowledge, with truth that has always existed. I think the confusion lies in using the word 'truth.' I would prefer that you seek for the inner self; that is TRUTH. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes I do.

I think the confusion lies in using the human word truth. (Agreed)

Les: Yes it must do, because if two of us read a chapter in a book, to one of us it might seem to be true, to another it might seem to be a lot of nonsense.

Yes, but may I say my dear friend, you speak about human truth. We are endeavouring to teach you about spiritual truth.

Les: So to come down to brass tacks then, when we are speaking with each other and we are doing it so far as we know physically, in all sincerity, and we could say that what I've told you is the absolute truth, it could still be in human terms a lie, or a misconception?

Yes, it may be absolute truth to you, but not acceptable to another. You cannot be so dogmatic in your views, I'm sure you understand this. (Yes) But the truth—and I use the word, because it is the one you use, the truth I wish you to think upon, is the all-encompassing truth, which is life, spiritual life, not human life. You see the difference?

Les: Yes, so it comes back to what I have said many times to people who have been beginning to learn the subject, that whenever you read, remember you must allow for the bias of the author.

Remember dear friends, each one of you upon this planet, is an individual, an individual in human terms. (Yes) But united you may be in a spiritual light, but in human terms you are so different from each other, that there has to be these differences of opinion, in what is right, wrong, truth, good, bad, evil—you name it and there has to be those differences.

Les: So it would seem that all those differences, which we might regard as truth between ourselves, are merely stepping stones to assist in our spiritual progress?

Of course, that is the plain fact of the matter, that because of your individuality, each one of you has your own pathway towards truth. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, so truth as such is going to be an infinitely long way in the future, before we can be fully associated with it then?

I might add that we all, no matter how long, how much we have grown, are always seekers of the truth. How can we fully know such an important thing? Each of us in my world, continues to grow in knowledge, which ultimately leads us to truth.

Les: Yes I can understand that and I fully appreciate it and that must continue ever upwards, because as you've said, there are many planes of existence, (Yes) and I suppose the seeking for truth, or for the ultimate truth, leads on through those many planes of knowledge, (Yes) and more understanding. But is it a fact that one can ultimately become fully integrated with the ultimate truth?

There is the possibility to attain much in the way of truth, but you cannot have the ultimate, because the ultimate truth is the creator of all life. And although there comes a time of blending, which you upon this planet, would find hard to accept, there is a blending of spirit, where truth is the greater part of that seeking, where the blending of spirit becomes that purity of light, which none of you here could know of. But I would have to say, as far as I am aware, that blending of spirit, never reaches that point of existence within the light of creation, to be able to say that they have become the purity of truth.

Les: No, I can understand the way you put it —

(Voice extremely faint/gentle) There is much that I cannot explain to you, because in those realms of existence, the individuality of spirit, the unity of selves, do not exist; there no longer exists there any individuality of any description. But there is a blending of love, of light, but still in that highly evolved condition—and this is more difficult for me to describe to you—there is still that striving, there is still a knowing, there is still a desire to grow. I can't explain it to you—

Les: No, I appreciate that, please don't try, we do understand.

It is much too far in existence for me to bring to you.

Les: But I feel you have been very close to it.

I (Pause) I am still striving my friends, but my awareness knows of it, but my purpose is to bring to each one of you just a little more knowledge whilst you abide upon this Earthly planet, in order that when you return to us, that you can say we have been instructed well.

Les: We certainly have been. (Agreement + thanks)

I must leave you now for this time. I must go, but I hope that each one of you will once more ponder my words.

Les: We shall certainly do that. (Thanks expressed) And our love goes with you again.

There was a few minute's pause before Les channelled this follow up message:

I have come to tell you because the master never would or will, that all in this room are exceptionally honoured, by the constant visits of a very, very, very highly evolved soul. This visit of his tonight, was a great effort, which you will never fully understand, until you have spent much time within our realms of light and love. Let his bearance with you tonight, envelope you in the love and light and knowledge that he brings for your acceptance and spiritual growth. I myself have been honoured to convey this message to you my very dear friends. I trust that your spiritual development will benefit accordingly from what has been left with you on this occasion. May God's love be with you my friends. Goodbye. (Thanks expressed)

George: We very much appreciate the teaching and we appreciate your message, thank you.

I my friend, am of little account, but I thank you very your kindness.

~31st August 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

To you my dear friends I bring the blessing of much love to each one of you. (Thanks expressed) This time with your permission, we would like to encourage each one of you, in a conscious effort of your individual development. But firstly this time, I will answer any questions you may have for me.

Les: Thank you, would anybody like to question, or shall I start? (No comments) Right, I'll start then: You have told us a number of times Salumet, that we are more than one being. I take this to mean that our soul has many aspects. Would I be right in thinking that some of those aspects could be existing upon this Earth at the same time, unknown to the other aspects of ourselves?

When you begin to realise the nature of the soul and its many, many aspects, then it would not be surprising that more than one aspect of that being, should coexist in the same lifetime. Of course, the soul has prior knowledge, but the life form of the human being, may not have that awareness. So yes, that is possible—it, I have to say does not happen so often, but the possibility exists for it to be.

Les: Yes I thought it must be so, because of the omnipotence of the soul. I couldn't see any reason why it couldn't be so, particularly as you have told us in the past, that soul-mates form a contract as it were, before they come back here and ultimately at some time in the physical life, meet again. But they are actually soul-mates and not physical mates. (Yes) So this led me to wonder if other aspects could also exist at the same time, without our physical knowledge.

Yes, you are correct in that assumption. I believe when we spoke my dear friends on soul-mates, I tried to dispel that soul-mates are only two opposites in the human form—that is not a soul. You can have soul-mates, either of sisters, brothers, strangers—there is nothing to do with male-female connections. After all, the soul recognises no such gender. I hope I made this clear to you last time, but I reiterate it for you now.

Les: Thank you, yes you did make it clear and something cropped up, which made me remember what you'd told us and that led me to ask myself a question that I have now asked you, about there being a number of aspects possible of soul, upon the physical Earth at the same time and each being unaware of it physically.

It—perhaps we can explain it when the woman being meets complete strangers and instantaneously there is a bond, which cannot be explained. I do not say in all cases this is the reason why, but often it is the reason, that the two parts of the soul recognise each other. Do you understand?

Les: Yes we do. It's very interesting, because that would explain the very definite attraction as you say that one has sometimes without any apparent reason. (Yes) So we would not recognise ourselves, as being part of that whole self?

The possibility lies within you all to have recognition, but I would say on the whole, that you would not have that recognition, unless your awareness was such, that it was greater than it is at this present time, in order that that awareness could recognise its own—shall we say part of the soul, which it, as I say knew beforehand was coming to this lifetime.

Les: Yes, well thank you very much for that, because I was also thinking of what you have told us about not only being more than one—how shall I put this—you have told us that we should never judge another, that we should look within ourselves, because we are part of the reason for that need to judge another.

Yes, if you judge another, if you find fault, then you should look towards yourself, as to why you find this judgement to be necessary.

Les: Yes so all that is tied up with my question then and your answer, about there being many parts of us on this Earth, or the possibility of many parts being on this Earth, at the same time. So our actions in a case like that, could well be responsible for the actions of another?

Yes, we come to deep waters here my friend.

Les: Yes we do, don't we.

But I am happy that you have raised the point. I do not feel that at this particular moment in our time, that the others would understand the answer to that question. So can I say to you, continue further with your deep thinking, because you are seeking out deep, deep matters here. I congratulate you my dear friend, because you are entering a phase of deep knowledge. You will find coming to you much, much more than you had dreamed about and I can say you would never have imagined possible in your lifetime. Take my words my dear friend and be thankful that you will be given the opportunity for such deep thinking.

Les: Yes I do appreciate it and thank you for telling me. The other question I would like to ask: Today is the anniversary of the death of Diana, and you gave us very profound information, about the absurdity—and I put that advisedly—the absurdity of all the mourning that has gone on. And I have felt very sorry for the lady, because I could imagine that all the mourning, is contributing to her being called back in spirit unnecessarily.

Can I just say this to you: We have said it is not wise that when spirit comes 'home,' that those left behind, should mourn for too long. We on our side of life, celebrate the return home, of each individual spirit. So of course when there is an extended period of mourning by so many people, the soul is constantly pulled closer to the earthly plane. But I can say about this particular soul, that the love that was extended to her, has helped her to realise that the mourning that has been created amongst many of your people, is something that she has begun to understand and she has accepted it and put it in its proper place. So do not be concerned for this soul; not only is she aware of this happening, but she seeks the love also that comes to her. Do not be afraid for her, she is well.

Les: Good, I was concerned that she should be being pulled back to this Earth and not be able to do anything about it—not letting people know that she is well and happy.

I will tell you only this, that this soul had knowledge of afterlife; she knew that our world existed, she knew and understood great depths of emotion, but her understanding has helped her. She knew the reason why she came to this life and why she left this lifetime. Do not be sad for this soul, she has completed what she came here to achieve.

Les: Yes, I thought that must be so and it's comforting to me anyway and I'm sure it is to my colleagues here, to know that is the case.

She knows and understands that many of the people in this world have no knowledge of our world, and having that knowledge helps her to—shall I say, being returned constantly, by those people, who still grieve for her. She exists on the wider areas of love and thoughts that are sent to her.

Les: Good, that's nice to know and I'm very glad, because it could be otherwise, had she not known, but you did tell us a year ago, that she had a premonition of her passing.

Yes she did, she knew her life would not be a long one. She is well my dear friends, do not mourn. I say this for all people, not just this particular soul. She may have been special to the people in your world, but she is special in our world, only in as much as she is what she exudes. Do you understand? (Yes I do.) There are no rules of importance in our world as there are in yours, only the love of the soul, which shows it's true self, when it returns home.

Les: Well thank you very much for those explanations, I think we all appreciate it, don't we? (Affirmed) Do we have any other questions for Salumet?

Jack: Yes can I ask for a little bit of assistance please? (Yes) I've been meaning to ask you this for a little while: Can you tell me about this inner voice that you have? Is it a spiritual voice telling you what you should or shouldn't do, or whatever it tells you? I think mine's blocked up, or I haven't got one or something. Can you enlighten me a little please?

Yes my dear friend, (Thank you.) I have known of your confusion for some considerable time. You seek too much too soon; the still inner voice is within each one of you, but to know of that inner voice, you must still the human form and I have to tell you, your mind is rather active in this area.

Jack: I would concur with that.

What you need to do my dear friend, is spend more time in quiet isolation and allow that stillness, that quietness to surround you. Only when the thinking becomes still, can you 'hear,' as you put it, hear and understand that inner voice. It is a knowing, it is not a voice. You understand this I know.

Jack: I do, it just doesn't seem to work.

Yes, because you are seeking too much too soon. Be patient, I have been trying to help you, but as in all matters of the soul, we must take each step slowly. It will come, but you must have patience—and I don't mean to be unkind with my words, but it is something perhaps you could also learn—a little patience.

Jack: Probably true yes.

Yes, but we will try to help you. (Thank you.) Now that question brings me to what might help you this evening my friend, because I ask that each one of you, consciously sits to try to allow others to impress upon you, to help you in your understanding. In order to do this, perhaps you will go into the quietness and the light and see what comes to each one of you. Can I leave this with you my dear friend and I will work quietly with this one. (Eileen)

Les: Yes of course and as usual, if need be we shall talk quietly, but there will be no loud noise.

I would be most thankful. Know that I leave you this time, know that I am here to help you if you need my help at any time.

Les: Yes thank you and we do appreciate that. God be with you and our love goes with you also.

We then sat in silence to see what would happen and Les suggested that we imagine a light coming down and surrounding us. He then began to give advice to some of the circle, about various things:

He gave advice to Mary concerning her finding more time to follow her spiritual path. He suggested that Paul should write the pros and cons of things down, to help him make decisions. George was asked to be less intolerant and Sarah was told her development would increase and be considerably greater and will approach the standards seen in others, but work in other directions has to be done.

There then followed one through Eileen:

I wanted to say to all of you, do not be discouraged by your spiritual development, because I can tell you—all of you, that your development surpasses what you probably believe to have happened, with each one of you. I speak from experience; I devoted 60 of your long years, when I trod this Earth, in devotions, in solitude, in many menial tasks and I thought I must have a place in God's house that befitted my life when I lived here. Let me tell you dear people, that the work you do, far out does anything that I achieved in those 60 years. I just wanted you to be encouraged. Be patient, listen to your hearts and know that one day you will gain what you truly deserve.

Les: That's very, very kind of you to come and tell us that, it does give us encouragement and we appreciate you being with us.

I desire only to help and uplift you.

Les: You certainly do that.

Having the knowledge that you have, is all you need to help you forward in your spiritual task. Keep this in mind and know that each step of your way, there is always someone with you. (Thanks expressed) I will not end with God's blessing, I will only say know yourselves. At last I too have learned this great lesson. I thank you for your time and your patience and I desire only that you continue in your quest for spiritual unfoldment.

Les: We can assure you that we shall all do that. And again we do thank you and our love goes out to you. God be with you.

~7th September 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I thank you for your welcome once again. I feel there has been among some of you, much serious thinking.

Les: Yes, you're probably right.

I want to say to you my dear friends: Do not be so harsh on yourselves. You, each one of you, are travelling in the right direction, but may I say that this knowledge that you gain sometimes leaves you a little serious about earthly living. Remember my dear friends, that life here should be balanced with your own spiritual growth. After all, you came here for a purpose and there is nothing which says that your life should be so serious. Remember each one of you, that as your day on this Earth closes, if you can truthfully say, you have tried your best, that you have caused no ill to any man, either by word or thought, then indeed you should be grateful for that. So, be like the small children on your planet; seek but find pleasure in that seeking. Happiness my dear friends, is your right. So you see, take each day and thank the Great Creative Force, for the opportunity of growth and the opportunity for happiness in your lives. If I may say this to you, patience amongst mankind is not something that is widely spread amongst you, but it is something that each one should try to cultivate in their daily living. Do you understand my friends, what I say to you?

Les: Everybody clear on that? (Affirmed)

Know that you grow, but know also that happiness and light are your right. So if I may use an expression from your world and say to you all: Lighten up my friends. If only you could see the shadows which you bring to yourselves, in these moments of harsh judgement, you would quickly dispel those thoughts, and again we return to the power of your thought. So I am saying this to you, because of the deep work which we do and the nature of the deep thinking, I want to say that for the next two times we come together, there will come from my world, those people who will show you the joy, in being light-hearted. It is something to be cherished and I hope that having this break from these deep matters, it will help you to understand the joy in this world that is yours.

Les: Well we shall certainly look forward to that. (Agreed)

And if I—do you wish to continue Salumet?

Please speak.

Les: It's interesting that you should say that, because your instrument doesn't know that at our meeting last Wednesday, it was devoted to light-heartedness. And children I saw—well there was a communicator from the other side whom we know as Norman, who looks after children and brings the spirit children to us. And I knew something out of the way was going to happen, because I saw him with me, and the children decided to have a fun evening. Believe me it really was hilarious and they were presenting everybody with picture-book details, that they had read here and everybody was being visited by various animals, who winked at them, sat on their laps and all the rest of it. It was really the most amusing Wednesday we've ever had I think—I can say that without any doubt and they must have heard the laughter next door.

Yes, I want you to know and understand that joy and lightness and what better for you than your laughter—these things were given to you for a reason—they are part of your living—they should be used to the full. And I do not want you to think that in your spiritual development, it is necessary always, to be so serious in your thinking. Some of you—I have received your thoughts, that you are discontented, by the progress which you make. My dear friends I say this to you: Be dismayed not, because you cannot see your own spiritual lights. I have told you that you have come far and although your own awareness is not such that you can see these things, I would like you to accept my word, in telling you that each one of you shines more brightly. So we will show you some more light-heartedness from our world and although sometimes it may seem a little bizarre or strange, what does it matter, if it brings laughter to your hearts, joy to you—light-heartedness—has it not achieved what it was meant to achieve? (Of course.) So I say to you my dear friends, make great use of what is coming to you and afterwards when I return to you, then we will spend an evening on much more deep matters, which we have not previously discussed. So perhaps you would say, you are having another one of your earthly sayings, a lull before the storm. (Chuckles)

Les: Right we have been warned—we certainly look forward to that.

So if you have questions this time, I will be happy to answer them for you.

Les: Thank you. I'm going to step in first if I may, to follow on from our talk last week about the many aspects of the soul. We all here are aware that at times we have seen a person, which has brought into minds the saying that we have here, that 'the eyes are the mirrors of the soul.' I think everybody has experienced that, haven't they? (Agreed) Now is it possible for that particular aspect of the soul in that person, to express itself through the physical eyes in that way?

I see—can you be aware of the spirit within the human being, through those physical eyes. Is that your question?

Les: That's the question yes.

Yes, well of course, can I say firstly that the physical eyes belong to the physical being and as in many aspects of the human form, you can be deceived, unless you have the awareness of what is truly coming from within the other person. But of course it is possible for, shall we say the goodness of the soul to show itself, through the eyes of the human being.

Les: Yes I thought it must be, because I have experienced that a number of times and it's a wonderful thing to see, or be aware of.

But it is only because your own awareness is such that you are able to judge truly, what is coming from within.

Les: So again it is the spiritual reacting to the spiritual?

Yes, always remember you cannot have the two aspects, the spiritual and the human form—you cannot have one see the other because the spirit after all, is the force behind the human form. You have to have the spiritual awareness.

Les: I see, so in that case then, one person could be aware of the intensity in that person's eyes and another one might not be?

Yes of course. Is that helpful to you?

Les: Yes thank you that does answer what I wanted. Any other questions?

George: Yes, we talked about our space brothers and the symbols in the corn fields, as a means of communication. And I wondered after that, if they have evolved so differently from ourselves, that communication is really difficult and the symbols in the crops, is one of a very few possibilities of communication. Would that be a true perspective, or would there be many possible ways of communicating?

Yes, thank you for your question my friend. Have I not told you previously that many new forms of communication would take place, all over this planet?

George: Ah yes.

Yes, there are many ways to communicate, although you are not fully aware of them at this moment in time. But those who come, who try to make contact with you on this planet, they are limited not by their own knowledge, but by the limitations of the human being. They have to find a way of making you understand what they are trying to bring to you. It is not my purpose to come here to tell you—and of course I could, but it is not my purpose to explain to you, what your brothers are trying to do. That my friend, would be interference from me.

George: Yes I see that.

But yes, many forms of communication are to come.

George: Thank you.

Les: Any more questions? (Pause)

We have so many thoughts, but so few words. Do not be concerned. I hope that you will think upon my words this time, because I feel from you the seriousness in your lives, which you must try to dispel a little.

Les: Right, any other questions from anybody?

Sallie: There's something I've been thinking about. It's not necessarily what we've been talking about recently, but it's to do with regression therapy, where in order to perhaps understand yourself more, or for whatever reason, you work with a therapist, actually going back to a time before you were born in this lifetime. And I suppose—I know we're here for a purpose, but there's a part of me that thinks, would I be cheating in doing that? And part of me thinks no, it's not cheating to go back in that way—I don't know, what do you think Salumet?

Yes, I understand your question. I would say only this to you: Be careful when you undertake such things. There are occasions for the soul to be helped in these cases of regression as you call them. But I would say this to you, they are very few. After all, why do you suppose that when you come to this life, that all memory is blocked? Do you not see there is a purpose?

Sallie: Yes, yes my understanding of that is that if we had the memory, it would be very simple for us to try and achieve, yes.

Yes, I do not say it is wrong, but also I cannot say to you it would be right for you. Would it not be better that your own consciousness, your own awareness, work towards that understanding of the soul, whilst in this lifetime. Much more credit would be given to doing it that way. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes I do.

I feel there is disagreement, would you like to speak further please?

Sallie: I don't think the disagreement is from me. I'm fairly open to the possibility of regression therapy, or otherwise. It was merely (Yes) the feeling that—I don't know, whether it was necessarily a good idea to get involved with that, or as Salumet was actually saying, working it through yourself is probably more credible.

It is not something that should concern you greatly. I would not say that the soul who undertakes such things—how can I say, should feel badly, of course not, if the reason behind it is for good. But so often these things are done for experimental reasons and can I say only this, that the soul can become disturbed. Perhaps we can speak on this matter some other time when we have longer, but it is not something that the soul should feel ashamed about. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes, yes I do. (Yes, Good.) Thank you.

Les: Yes I would be very glad if we could have further discussion on that, because I've wanted in the past to ask questions about hypnosis too, because I personally am opposed to regression sessions and hypnosis, because there is no guarantee so far as I can see, that what is allegedly produced by regression, is in fact so, because there are so many possibilities that could intervene, particularly when you consider deep mediumship.

Yes, that is why I say the soul can become distressed. We will discuss this further.

Les: Yes thank you, we'll look forward to that, because it's a very complex subject and I think it's one which we'd all be grateful to have a greater understanding of.

What I would say quickly this time, is that regression for happenings within this lifetime, is a separate matter. It is when we begin to seek past lives as you call them that problems occur.

Les: Yes, this is what I've felt for a long time.

Sallie: So what you're really saying is, somebody who's working with a therapist, trying to unblock something in this lifetime that's creating great distress or a problem?

Yes, that is fine, because it belongs to this lifetime. It is no different than the soul who seeks spiritual healing in this lifetime. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes I do.

But the problem lies when the soul wishes to go further.

Les: Yes it could cause a lot of problems, couldn't it? (Yes) Particularly as most of the people I think who do this work, are not sufficiently qualified spiritually, to be doing it.

That is one of the issues we must discuss of course. We are speaking of the interaction of two souls and its obvious inhibitions, problems, which it can bring. There are many situations we must discuss.

Les: Good, that's splendid. Any more questions for Salumet?

George: Just adding to that, there was a case history of a man who was born into this life with a limp and he was cured of the limp, through past life regression therapy. But perhaps it would be better not to cure in that case, because the soul may have decided that he should be in this life with a limp. Is that a fair example?

Yes, that is why memory is blocked. The soul as you know, chooses the life it comes to and all the problems it brings to it. (Yes) Yes, what would or perhaps could happen, when the soul returns to our world, is that soul returns once again, with that complaint, if you wish to call it such, in order that it work through a lifetime, as it should have done. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

George: Yes I see that.

It is a difficult topic, but one I feel we must discuss more fully.

Les: Anybody else? (Pause)

Well my dear friends, I will leave you, I hope this time, with lightened hearts. Know I stand close by you all. I will not speak with you for two further meetings, because in front of you, there should be much lightness and laughter, in order that you can see for yourselves, that love and happiness is within our world, and all is not serious development if you like, of consciousness.

Les: I was told a long time ago, to bring your sense of humour with you when you come to us, you'll be much more welcome—I've never forgotten that.

Well I would not say you would not be allowed, but of course if you have lightness of spirit, then your placement amongst us, will be much easier. After all, you are surrounded by those souls who are lost in despair and hopelessness, who have nothing but heavy hearts and grief. If only we could give to them more happiness, whilst they tread this planet, how much greater would their lives become. So can I ask you this time my dear friends as I leave you, that this night when your thoughts are sent out to those in need, that you think of all those within your world, and within ours, who have heavy hearts and who need upliftment and light. Can you spare one thought for them? (Affirmed)

Les: Yes I think we can all promise that.

My love and my thanks stay with you all.

Les: And our thanks go to you, for all you bring and tell us. We shall miss you in the next two weeks, but we do understand. (Affirmed) And we look forward to your return. Thank you and God bless you.

~14th September 1998~

This is the first of the two light-hearted evenings promised. There is much laughter throughout, due perhaps to the way things are said and the amusing 'chemistry' of the various personalities. It's probably not an easy thing to relay in print, but hopefully the reader will get the gist of what these two evenings were about:

So you are breathing. (Loud, cheeky voice)

Les: Yes, sorry I didn't know you were there—my apologies for keeping you waiting.

Should think so too! Not many parties held here now is there? You're like a lot of quiet little mice.

Les: We're usually quiet and serious, but not tonight I hope.

Well if you are, I'll be going. (Laughter)

Les: Oh no, you stay please.

I've been looking round and there's only 10 and there should be 11.

Les: Yes you're quite right there should be another one, but she's tending her son's wedding I think. Mary's in France, isn't she? (Affirmed)

What the devil's she doing there?

Les: She's at her son's wedding.

Damned inconsiderate when there's a party going on! (Laughter)

Les: She's asked me to do a tape tonight, because she didn't want to miss it, but neither did she want not to go to the wedding.

Well I hope it's a bit livelier than this one. (Chuckles)

Les: Well we're waiting for you to liven us up now.

No I've come to the party, and there you all are sitting there quiet and sitting in the dark, I thought what have I come to here, for goodness sake. Where's Elsie?

Les: We don't have an Elsie here.

Well you'd best be finding her.

Les: Best be finding her?

Yes, you be finding her—come on.

Les: Perhaps she's from your side?

Yes.

Les: Are you with us Elsie?

Elsie then began through Sue:

Elsie: I'm here. (Much quieter and more refined voice—sounding a bit posh)

Les: You're there are you?

Elsie: Mrs Elsie Macintosh.

Les: Mrs Elsie Macintosh, welcome. Is that the Elsie you wanted?

Yes

Les: Well we'll dispense with the Mrs Macintosh from now on. You'll just be Elsie.

Couldn't you dispense with Elsie? That would be better! (More chortles)

Les: Oh no I don't think we want to dispense with Elsie.

Elsie: You asked me to come with you. We're going to a bash you said. I'm waiting to find out where we are having this bash, cos it isn't here.

Yeah I know that's the problem. Don't say too much because they're all so happy.

Les: We're quite happy really. You haven't told us your name yet, would you like to?

Nosey bugger! (Laughter)

Elsie: I had to tell him I was Elsie Macintosh, you might as well tell him who you are, otherwise he won't let us have any fun.

I see, well I'm Stuart Macintosh.

Les: You're Stuart Macintosh are you?

Stuart: Yes.

Les: So you belong to the same family and clan.

Stuart: Don't you associate my clan with hers. (Laughter)

Les: What were there 2 Macintosh clans?

Stuart: Don't know, but I'd rather think there was.

Elsie: Notice that I don't speak like what he does.

Stuart: I don't speak like he does—ho ho ho, aren't we funny.

Les: Are you part of the same family, or are you separate Macintoshes?

Sarah: Maybe they're husband and wife?

Stuart: May the good Lord strike you down! Who could suggest such a thing? (Laughter)

Elsie: If you could see him you would know that that is not happen. If you could see me, you would know why it could not happen.

Stuart: Many a good woman chased me in my time, I'll have you know Mrs Maccintosh.

Elsie: With a frying pan in one hand? (Laughter)

Stuart: More like a shotgun. (Chuckles)

Les: You were one of those Macintoshes, were you?

Stuart: Excuse me?

Les: You were one of those Macintoshes? Just a jump ahead of the gun?

Stuart: Huh huh huh! I had a good life.

Les: Did you? It sounds as though you did.

Stuart: But we're not going into that now—

The tape continues in this vein for some considerable time and on side B others come through of similar light mirth. One through Eileen gets sitters to recount some of their amusing childhood memories and Les recalls a few of his school boy pranks etc. Then a sweet little girl came through, talking about her love of the fairies and suddenly four appeared in the room and did a little dance for us, though unfortunately none of us were able to see it. Sarah came through with another child and the evening was brought to a close by a Sister through Eileen.

~21st September 1998~

This is the second of the light-hearted evenings that Salumet said we would have as a break from the usual evenings. The first came through Eileen to explain the plans for the evening. We were asked to talk amongst ourselves about anything, and others would join in later. One then joined us through Eileen and we talked light-heartedly, though a few serious subjects were broached:

Good evening—let me say one thing to you all please: The preparation of food for others, is done with love—no matter what your thoughts are on organic food, or otherwise, the preparation done for others, can only be good. So keep that in mind my dear friends.

Les:—I asked a question on that subject years ago, because they used to come through my wife quite frequently in the kitchen. And I asked why should they choose that room, which was untidy after a meal and so on. They said the very thing that you have said, the kitchen is the room which expresses most love of any in the house, (Yes) because of the preparation of food for others.

Can I make a suggestion here as well? If you good people are going to have disagreements, don't do it in your kitchens—I'm being quite serious now for just a moment.

George: It'll spoil the energy of the kitchen.

Yes and the preparation of the food. So bear it in mind, if you want to have a good old argument, go in the garden.

Les: Yes, we shall take note of that.

And then you'll have to answer to the little nature Spirits, but that's not my problem. (Laughter) Carry on.

Les: Can't you carry on now? Have you seen the little people in the gardens?

Of course I have, I know all about them—but don't let me stop you talking.

Les: No, we've had enough of our own talking. We're looking forward to hearing from you and your colleagues. Are they ready yet?

Don't ask me.

George: Do the little people mind us going into the garden and having an argument?

I should think they probably would. The answer to that, I should suggest is: don't argue. (Agreed)

George: We'll call it a discussion.

Well he is the diplomat of the group, if ever there was one— (Chuckles)

There then followed a young girl who came through Eileen unexpectedly, drawn by our earlier discussion about food. It seemed that she did not like to eat much when on Earth and had carried that through into spirit, still making her weaker and less energetic than the other children in the spirit world. Les was able to open her mind on the benefits of eating fruit, and she went away the happier.

Our discussion continued with our desire to see fairies. We were a little confused with how to go about seeing them and whether it would be something for the physical eyes, or something more subtle. The word 'hallucination,' was used, which drew more useful inputs from our unseen friends:

—No, no, no, no, no, no, no—no hallucination, no, no, no, no, no!

Les: Thank you very much.

Oh no, no, no, no, no, no, no!

Les: I'm glad you're listening. Has my definition been reasonably correct?

Yes—oh dear, dear, dear, dear.

Les: That gentleman (George) will bring his physical mind into play. (Laughter)

When you become part of the tree and nature, then you will have the awareness. Don't breathe it in, become part of it. Be blended—

Les: This is why I say, let it permeate.

Yes—oh hallucinations! What are we going to do with him? (Laughter)

George: No I didn't mean full hallucination as such, just a touch of it.

No, well just a little bit's too much.

George: Yes right.

You just remember it. (Chuckles) I'm not really telling you off am I?

Les: No as I was saying, you have to let it permeate George and there's the difficulty, learning how to do that, to become part of the energy, which surrounds you at all times—and to try and stop putting physical representations on it, because the whole of life is energy, as you know.

Oh I wish I had more power, I could turn him into a fairy! (Laughter)

Les: That would be lovely.

Wouldn't that be fun?!

Les: Yes it could be done, couldn't it? Rather a cumbersome one though I fear, but nevertheless a fairy.

Yes, hardly a light-footed one! (Chuckles) Dear, dear, dear.

Les: I just hope he can learn to become a part of the energy around him. I don't know whether you could offer us any further instructions, apart from meditation of course, and seeking the quiet and the peace.

Yes unfortunately I don't have that knowledge to give to you. I know it's there, but I can't change anything you don't already know.

Les: So we're on the right track anyway, in trying to absorb it, and be absorbed into it?

All I can tell you at this point, is that more females than males, tend to have this ability.

Les: Yes I agree absolutely.

Yes, it's all to do with the female energy I think. But I can't go into details, I don't know—

Les: No, but I would agree with you that females are much more able to become associated with the essence of creation, rather than males.

Yes. Now we don't want any women power in the room. We've not come to that stage now, have we?

(Laughter)

Les: Not yet.

George: But we all have both energies.

Yes, but it depends on what is the majority of the energy, in the life you're living, you see? And I hope you're a male! (Chuckles) God bless him.

Les: It's a fascinating subject, isn't it?

Yes. You are a charming crowd.

Les: That's very nice of you and we do have some very charming people come to speak to us.

Do you?

Les: Including you.

Ah well, we'll have none of that, I don't need to be hearing all that.

Les: You don't need to be flattered —

No I don't need to be told all of that stuff. I'm very pleased to have come.

Les: It's true, we do feel that.

Do you now?

Les: Yes we do.

Right.

Les: We know you weren't expecting or looking for it, but it's the only way we can thank you, to tell you what we think.

Well as long as it's all good, I'll accept it.

Les: Thank you very much—oh it's all good, all organically grown.

Now, now—we won't go into that again, will we? All forms of life is beautiful in its own way, isn't it now?

Les: Yes it is, you're quite right, but we haven't been educated sufficiently, in order to recognise the beauty in much of life that is around us.

No it's not so much you haven't been educated, as that you've lost it all.

Les: Yes you're right there, because a piece of rotting wood, we wouldn't regard as beautiful, but in its energy patterns it would be, because it is serving the purpose for which that rot was necessary.

Everything has a purpose. Don't forget that, every single thing has a purpose in life—even the people that you don't particularly take to, remember they have a purpose too, so don't go wishing them away!

(Laughter) You're grand people, but you're no angels! (More laughing)

Les: We are very grateful for the lessons we have had over the last few years. Your colleagues in your world have taught us a great deal, for which we are ever-lastingly grateful.

Well, our purpose is to help you all. If we can, we only desire to help and if it's accepted, then it gives us great joy. If it's not, well we just have to try harder.

Les: Or go to some more receptive people?

Well, that's kind of taking it the easy way out, I would say. You've got to have a challenge sometimes.

Les: Yes, you had many, didn't you?

Of course, but I'm not here to talk about me.

Les: No, but you weren't very well liked by some of them, because you also insisted on others facing up to those challenges, didn't you?

Oh you're determined aren't you, to talk about me! I might have guessed. No wonder they called you 'sharp,' at the beginning. Now I can see why—you little devil! (Laughter)

Les: No—they loved you, even though they disliked you sometimes, for your determination on their behalf—just as you're determined on our behalf.

Yes. It's taken me a few steps forward, but it's also taken me some back! But nevertheless I was fairly content with my live I think, even though I could have done much better.

Les: Well aren't we all like that? Feeling that we could do much better—we may have a chance to examine what we have done.

Yes, that's why I'm always happy to come back to people such as yourselves, to try to guide them on the right path, because it's so easy to go off of it! As you all know!

Les: It certainly is. Please don't remind us.

We won't go into that either now, will we?

Les: Must better not to, I think. But you're much better now, are you?

Of course, who wouldn't be?

Les: Still looking for challenges—well not looking for them exactly, but accepting them when they come?

They are kind of put in my path and it's up to me whether I take them or leave them. And sometimes I think it would be best if I left, but it wouldn't get me far.

Les: Yes but I don't think there are many you refuse to go for?

No—you'd be surprised what you want to do when you come here. Your expectations change and you only want to do what's best, not only for yourself, which normally comes last, but for other people.

That's the challenge, that you place yourself last. Does that make sense?

Les: Yes it does absolutely. It is a challenge, always to remember that, isn't it? And to always work for the benefit of others without reward for oneself.

Yes. Now look what you've been doing, you've been making me become too serious—that's not why I've come! I've been told these people need a little light-hearted relief and there he's going on about me.

Les: And you were quite light-hearted yourself quite often when you were here, weren't you?

More often than I should have been.

Les: No I wouldn't agree with that, because it served a very useful purpose, because it drove away many of the shadows that were around other people who came to you for help.

Yes, you're quite right, but I felt as though it happened too often, you know what I mean?

Les: Yes. Of course I can't argue on that, but I wouldn't have thought so, because it was so important for the work that you were doing.

Laughter IS important. I hope you all realise how important laughter should be in your lives, not only in happy times—if you can laugh at yourself in times of trouble, you see it all dissipate away. It's easy to be happy when all is well, isn't it? But if you can be happy in times of trauma and disappointment, be happy within yourselves, well—you've got it made haven't you? (Agreed)

Les: Yes if we can learn to do that all the time. It's a great asset if we can laugh at ourselves.

Well if you don't, WE all have a good laugh! Yes!

Les: I bet you do that, particularly when people are hallucinating! (Laughter)

Well now, we're not going into that again now are we?

Les: I don't mean it unkindly.

Poor little man.

Margaret: He's not little.

Well no, but I didn't like to say that now, did I? (Laughter)

Les: Just to change the subject just a little if I may, because the lady on my left here I feel wants to ask something, but she doesn't like—doesn't feel she ought to. Have you got a question Jackie?

(No) Haven't you got something you would like to ask our friend here? (No)

This is a lady can I tell you, who needs to laugh more in her life. Perhaps that's what you were thinking?

Les: Yes, I knew I had to go to her, to give her the option.

Yes, she does need to laugh a little more, but that could apply to many of you. So you know—laugh, laugh and be happy, because you see, when you laugh, your vibrations change. They do! I promise you. I know it's spoken of lightly, but know if you are happy, the whole of your body energy will change, only for the good.

Les: Do you not laugh much nowadays Jackie?

Jackie: I don't think you laugh as much as you get older, I'm sure you don't.

Margaret: Oh you do! (Agreed)

Jackie: I have a good time —

We're not talking about good times. Try to laugh more. Be like the little children. That's something else said in your world, that's quite true: Be as the little children. Can you understand? (Affirmed)

Jackie: You can enjoy yourself without laughing, can't you?

Les: You should do it a bit more, let your enjoyment come to the surface a little more. (Yes) Like me when I look at myself in the morning in the mirror, I say 'Oh god not you again.' (Laughter) I can't do anything about it, so I just laugh at myself and apologise to my reflection—stupid, but it works.

Paul: I enjoy playing hide and seek with the nieces—I'm sure I enjoy it as much as they do.

George: Because there's a bit of laughing involved. (Agreed)

Lilian: Children certainly lift you.

Margaret: They do, don't they.

That's because they're spontaneous in their enjoyment of life. That's what it is, it's not so much the games, or what you're doing, but it's the love of life!

Jackie: It's finding time too, isn't it?

No, no, no, no, no, no, no!! (Giggles) No we won't have that from you! There's all the time in the world for laughter.

Jackie: It's finding time to put yourself out. I get home from work and then I get in and I work some more and —

(Said with much gusto) Yes, why don't you stand at the washing up and smile!!

Jackie: Because I'm angry with the kids for leaving it all to me.

Yes!! (Laughter) Here we go.

Margaret: How old are they?

Jackie: Old enough to help—13-14.

Margaret: Well if they don't help, they don't eat.

Jackie: They sometimes cook their own.

My word, we come round again to eating! What am I going to do with you all! (Laughter)

Les: When you have minor accidents Jackie, do you get really annoyed at it, or do you—

Jackie: I haven't got a temper—I just don't laugh enough.

Les: You just deal with it and don't see the funny side of it. I used to be like that, I must admit. But nowadays I can see the funny side of it.

Jackie: I'm not miserable, I just don't actually laugh a lot.

Les: You're not miserable physically, but it's not helping you spiritually.

Inwardly, that's what's important. The laughter is an outward thing, but it changes the energy patterns within the body—I wish people would realise that. It is! Laughter is a wonderful thing!

Sallie: We laugh a lot at work, because we deal with quite difficult things, so therefore it's all a bit strange and we're always doing something a bit silly, to survive I think—so we laugh a lot.

Yes. Don't be too worried about that remark dear sir sitting next to her. She doesn't mean she doesn't laugh, now do you?

Jackie: That would be telling, wouldn't it?

We can have no secrets here—

Les: I think we often condition ourselves into resentment, instead of laughter you know.

(Les then recounted a funny incident with his sugar bowl, which he chose to laugh at, rather than get upset about.)

—That is the secret that if someone else was to do it, you would find it amusing. (Agreed) Yes. Please try to laugh more, all of you—it is so good for you. Now I think I've spoken enough.

Les: We've enjoyed having you and for your philosophy and teaching.

And my telling off—I do beg your pardon, I do forget myself at times. I was quite renowned for my 'no, no, no, no's,' at one time, and I'm afraid in coming back, it tends to come to the fore.

Les: Never mind, we are laughing with you and at it too. (Yes) We're very grateful to you for having been with us.

There you go again, thank you, thank you, thank you. I don't require 'thank you's'—thank you!

(Laughter) There! I'm going to do it myself! It's been a pleasure, you've been charming.

Les: We've thoroughly enjoyed it, haven't we? (Affirmed) We've enjoyed the laughter too.

Well let me tell you, I'll be watching for the rest of the night and if I don't see smiles on your faces—

(Laughter) I'll devise something. Now good people, you'll remember what's been said?

Les: Yes we shall remember that.

Remember to smile when you feel at your lowest and you'll be amazed how much it brings you up—

Les: We do have a saying, 'Cry and you cry alone, laugh and the world laughs with you.'

Yes, you are never alone, let me tell you that. I don't want anyone to think you are alone.

Les: We're only talking in a physical sense of course.

Yes, when you are at your lowest ebb, there is always someone nearby. Never despair. But it is so much nicer, it you have laughter, rather than despair.

Les: Well I think we can promise that we shall all try and remember what you have said and act on it. It will do us all good.

Wouldn't it be the ultimate, if someone passed, and you all could have laughed!! Wouldn't that make us all happy? It would show the world that it was something joyous, would it not?

Les: Quite! Which it should be.

Which it should be, but we know it can't be so—

Les: It's going to take humanity a long time to come to that acceptance. (Yes) But we can still keep working at it.

Yes of course, that is just my wish, because we are very joyous when somebody comes to us.

Les: I'm sure you are.

Yes. Anyway, you've got me on a serious note again—well now I really must go—(Fond farewells)

~28th September 1998~

No Salumet this week, as Eileen had a heavy cold. It was said that conditions were not good and the power was low. It was explained that power could be transferred between the various spiritual groups, who worked on the physical plane, if needed. This communication came through Sue:

We feel this time that we have slight lack of power in your room.

Les: Yes, we are short of members unfortunately.

Normally this would not cause us any inconvenience, but different circumstances this time, have caused a 'down' in power.

Les: That's a pity. Different circumstances here?

No—mainly on our side of life. As you can well imagine, there is much happening, much scurrying and hurrying on our side and sometimes this causes a slight breakdown.

Les: I see. But you are hurrying and scurrying because of the changed conditions here tonight?

No. There is much happening, surrounding other groups and it is difficult for me to explain, but sometimes power is taken and used elsewhere.

Les: Is it though? (Surprise expressed)

Yes. Not all power, but imagine that you are the generator here and power is, shall we say, 'siphoned off,' you understand my meaning? (Yes) When we feel it is required.

Les: So at least we are contributing to something.

Oh my dear Mr Bone, why do you suppose we are siphoning your power here? It is an enormous power source. You contribute even when you do not become aware of the fact.

Les: That's very nice and we all very much appreciate you telling us. It's nice to know that we do contribute to that extent.

If I could perhaps try to enlighten you just a little.

Les: That would be nice.

When your group meets here, I know you have been told on more than one occasion, that the light from this particular meeting shines forth as a beacon.

Les: Yes, we have been told that.

Then you probably will understand when I say to you that in your world, to use an electric light needs charge of electricity. Am I right?

Les: Yes, you're quite right.

Therefore imagine that the light from this room, this group of people, is an electrical current, which in its turn, lights up other groups, other meetings, other rescue groups. Do you understand me?

Les: Yes we do and we are very happy to know that you are able to take power from here, for that purpose.

On some occasions and it is very rare, if there is a 'downturn' of power here, if it is a severe downturn, which let me absolutely assure you, does not occur very often, then sometimes you need a boost from another group.

Les: That's very interesting to hear. I didn't realise the transfer of power was done in that way. We're very happy that we can contribute, as I said before.

For is it not right that everyone here on this Earth that is involved in spiritual matters, is working towards a common cause?

Les: Yes everybody is—(There was a brief pause as the phone rang—normally this is switched off.)

You are such a vital part of the organisation. I can only say to you, compare yourselves and other groups, like the arteries and capillaries and veins of the human body, each one interacting with another. And all of those, am I not right in saying, have the common cause to keep the central heart activated?

Les: Yes, you're quite right in that.

Therefore, that is what I say to you, all your power interacts with other powers, for the cause of keeping the spiritual heart pumping, so that all spiritual matters on Earth, can continue.

Les: Good. That's very nice to know.

I would ask one thing of you please this time? (Yes) Would you please be agreeable to have someone brought here this night who needs some help from you?

Les: Yes of course we would.

It is what you would refer to as a rescue. There will only be the one, but as you are fully aware, others will also be helped, from the one who will be visiting you.

Les: Yes we do understand that and we're very pleased that it works like that, because so many can be helped.

Again I refer you to my previous words, capillaries and arteries and veins, all interacting to help each other.

Les: Mm—I do understand.

I take my leave of you this time and will bring the one, who I'm sure you can help.

Les: Yes, we shall certainly do our best and thank you for what you've told us.

The expected rescue then followed through Sue, while Lilian dealt with another rescue through Sarah, at the same time. This particular one was distressed at being 'switched off'—it seems that they'd been kept alive on a life-support machine, which they had witnessed being turned off, without of course, understanding that it was time to let go of the physical body and return to the spirit realm, or as we have come to know it, 'returning HOME.' Sue then channelled, a bubbly, bright spirit, (Jess) who came for a light-hearted chat. Each sitter was introduced and there was plenty of laughter.

Finally, one came through Les:

Good evening my friends, good evening. (Welcomes)

You have been told many times by the master (Salumet) that numbers do not necessarily affect the work, have you not? (Agreed) I think you will agree that this meeting, on what you call this evening, has been a very good object lesson, to amplify what you have been told. (Agreed) Also no doubt, it was of very great interest to know, that the power you generate within these walls, is not confined only to this immediate environment, nor to just the work which is so excellently done here, but you were told, it can be distributed in many ways, of which you are entirely unaware. I wish to refer to this, so that you can be content with the work you have done over many years and which we hope you will continue to do for many years more. (Agreed) You are frequently told that you will never understand all the complexities of life whilst on this Earth. But it is only fair, that you should at least be given a little inkling, into shall we say, the 'mysteries of existence.' Particularly the fact that what you generate here, out of the kindness of your hearts and souls, can equally well be used in other places, of which you have no knowledge and probably, will never be aware, exist. But you can be happy in the knowledge that the power you generate because of your work, is never, never wasted. It is always used to the best possible advantage, for those who are in need of such energy and power. This I hope makes you very pleased with your efforts.

George: Thank you for telling us this. We appreciate that.

It is my pleasure to be able to give you that little 'encouragement' shall I say, though I know you don't need it, but it is a little encouragement for you to take with you and for you to nurture, within your own selves. (Thanks expressed) Now having done my duty I will bid you farewell my friends and I'm pleased to have been the bearer of such good tidings for you and I hope it will remain in your minds. (General thanks + blessings)

~5th October 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It gives me much joy to be with you once more.

Les: It gives us much joy to have you once more, though we did enjoy the two light-hearted evenings, which you promised us.

It was much needed my friends. It happens that sometimes you need to have some lightness within your lives. After all, your lives here are meant to be well-balanced, and although my task is to bring you fresh knowledge, we must not forget the light-hearted side of life.

Les: No, it was quite a pleasant change and I'm sure we all felt better for it.

I would like to say this time, that I will not embark upon fresh topics, because of the decrease in numbers here.

Les: Yes, that's understandable, thank you.

But of course if any of you wish to ask any questions of me, then I would be happy to answer them for you.

Les: Thank you. I did have one, which I too will leave until we have a full attendance here, because it is quite a complicated issue and I have made a note of it, so I will leave that. Has anybody a question that they'd like to ask Salumet?

Sallie: It's not a very serious question in some ways, but other ways it could be considered so. It's to do with the power of thought and creating our own reality, by the thoughts we send out. (Yes) I know from the discussions we've had, that we can send out healing thoughts and we can think healing thoughts about our own bodies. I was just going a bit further in this and it may sound a bit silly, but if I believe it, if I really believe it, is there any reason why I can't grow a new tooth?

There is no reason at all, why you could not. There is at this time within your world, I will not use the word 'experiments,' but 'constructive work' in field of human tissue renewing itself. I will go no further at this stage, but only to say that mankind is reaching a stage of development, where new technology is available to him. Of course it comes from our world, as you may well know, but there should be no reason. It may sound farfetched to you and I would completely understand any disagreement that peoples would put forward for it, but the power of your thought can create all things.

Sallie: Salumet, is it also something to do with the fact that although I might meditate and concentrate, upon that particular thought, within me there are years and years of conditioning, aren't there?

And doubts.

Sallie: Yes.

Of course.

Sallie: Which would hinder that process, I would have thought.

Humankind has not reached the point where he will easily accept any of these things, but let me say only this to you: Mankind has all the innate powers that we in spirit possess. We have touched upon the subject I believe and I think that must be as far as we can take it this time. Do you agree?

Les: Yes I agree and I agree with what my friend said, that it is in our own doubting, which prevents the full application of our power of thought, (Yes) because taking that a step further, the ability to grow new parts of the body, already exists in the animal kingdom. (Yes) As you know, some lizards can replace their tails, some spiders can replace a leg and there are other instances of part of an animal's body being replaced. Sharks replace their teeth.

Yes, and after all, what is mankind, if not a larger animal? (Of course) Yes there is the possibility of all of these things, but because of the doubts and fears which lie within you, it is not something that would be easily accepted, and this we know and understand fully. I want you my dear friends —always I have said to you, I will return to the power of thought, because it is the most powerful thing that you possess.

Les: Yes we look forward to that, when we have a full meeting. And at our last meeting, it was very interesting that something happened, which follows the power of thought train. We were told that power was reduced at this meeting, and I thought it was because of lack of members. But the communicator said no, there was such tremendous power here, that often they siphon it off, for use elsewhere.

Yes, do you not upon this planet, feed one battery to another, when one is low? (Yes) That is a simplification of course, but you see the possibilities?

Les: Yes and we were very pleased to know that we do generate it to that extent, that it can be used elsewhere. And I was thinking about it afterwards, that that is merely a physical extension, if I can bring physical into it—a physical extension of what you have repeatedly said about the power of thought, (Yes) because it is only the power of thought creating that energy, and the power of thought from your world, which is transferring it for use elsewhere.

Yes, not only the power of your thought my dear friend, because in the years that you build this energy, you unknowingly build spiritual energy, which is much easier for us to use. (I see.) Unknowingly, you are growing—you cannot see your own lights, your own power sources. It is possible to see, but I don't think anyone here, is at that stage yet.

Les: No I can't, we did discuss the aura afterwards, (Yes) and that is a partly visible thing, under certain conditions, and as we were told, dependent upon the spiritual development of the one who wishes to see it—that's quite understandable.

It of course is ever-changing, moment by moment, the light you speak of, but I speak of a much deeper spiritual energy, which is around you at all times. The auric light you speak of is almost like a shadow of light that is gleaned from you, dependent on so many things. You are a powerhouse, you are spirit, you always will have that cosmic energy. You are part of the whole energy.

Les: Yes of course.

Do you begin to see?

Les: Yes we are inclined to forget that, aren't we?

Yes, I like to remind you sometimes, that you are more than you think you are.

Les: Yes I think we're beginning to realise that. And it's a marvellous thing that we can think about.

I am sure if each one of you was to place your hands towards the centre of this room now, you should feel this energy, which is building here now. Try it my friends, you should be able to feel the build-up of the energy, each one of you exudes. Allow yourselves to be open to it, be part of it and let it come into your very being. (Short pause—Les comments that he could feel it coming up through his arms into his shoulders, vibrating.)

Les: Well I must say we're all very, very happy that the work we do does generate that power—very pleased to be a part of it, thanks to your instruction.

Do not thank me my friend. You have made yourselves available to it, that is the important thing, that you are allowing yourself, the true spiritual self to come forward each time we meet, as we do here—that the spirit is the stronger of the two elements, whilst we join together. This is what you are feeling now. All of you should feel that the physical is draining from you and that the true self, is to the fore. Can you feel it, my dear friends? You should be able to.

Sallie: A sort of warmth and a glow? (Yes) Yet there is something of the physical that remains, because in that sort of warmth and glow, I keep getting these little pictures of a new tooth, so I don't know —

Les: It would be interesting to hear everybody's personal feeling on this, but I feel that something is exuding from me and embracing you all bringing you closer to me spiritually. It's wrapping itself around everybody here, and you all become a single unit, which is approaching me.

That my dear friends is the blending of love energy, which exists amongst you all. You no longer are individual units, but you come together as one, as the words just spoken have explained to you. Allow yourselves to become as one, feel the power of the love, which comes from you all. Allow yourselves to be absorbed by that light energy.

Pause, before Les begin to speak softly:

Les: I don't know if anybody has an awareness that I have at present, which is that the physical is absolutely of no importance whatsoever. I get the feeling that the physical is a necessary encumbrance, which eventually of course will be discarded. And I feel that I'm looking down on a lifeless thing, which could be the physical. Not the physical body as I know it, but a physical awareness. Right, well since we have to keep a balance, I may get so far and not get back, so has anybody else a question for Salumet?

Sallie: I've been reading this book about Zen, which as far as I can understand, is not incompatible with your teaching, but I haven't finished it yet. There is a section, which talks about the empty heart—about going beyond the knowledge of the self, to that sort of place, described as 'nothingness,'—the empty heart, which will then allow you fuller knowledge, of a more spiritual nature—I'm not really sure what my question is, it's just —

My friend, let me say this to you: That is the point at which you should have reached this time—the blending of the true self, in the knowledge that there exists beyond the physical being, that area of existence, which takes you further along the way of spiritual development. You should have felt this time, the leaving behind of the physical being and taken the step into that empty heart, as you have called it, but what I would rather term, the next stage of existence. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes I think I understand, but I seem to be having a difficulty, actually wanting to give up my physical existence, because I get a lot of pleasure from—

Unfortunately there was then a loud cough and suddenly another came through Eileen, to explain the sudden withdrawal of Salumet:

Good evening. I must apologise, but the one who came to you has withdrawn. I am here to make apologies to you. It is for the benefit of the instrument and the one who came to serve you.

Les: Thank you very much—it's one of those unfortunate things. Thank you for joining us.

I am told much instruction goes on here.

Les: Yes it's quite true it does.

Can I help you with your questions?

Les: Yes please, we'd appreciate it if you can. We were talking about Zen and the empty heart Sallie? (Yes) I think it is a physical definition, of something of which we have to be spiritually aware. Would you like to repeat the question for our friend here?

Sallie: Yes actually, I think it's a bit of confusion I know I have, where I know we are spiritual—we're spiritual beings, though we're in physical form, for various reasons. I sometimes am a bit concerned, because unless things are going pretty badly, I actually really enjoy my physical form and things that I do, and I find it quite hard to completely go into a spirit mode as such, to separate the two—they seem very joined to me, but perhaps I'm just not experienced enough yet. But I'm wondering if it's a problem, if it's very joined, or if I should be reaching for that separation of the two?

Why should you be unhappy, if you feel joy in your living? Life is not meant to be unhappy. Do you feel it improper to be happy?

Sallie: No, I think it's very good.

Let me just say this to you madam, if I may: Joy and happiness, brings its own kind of love. It shows that you are dealing with your physical life, in the correct manner. You should feel joy and happiness, in times of adversity, and in times of happiness and love. So why do you place upon yourself, this troubled thinking?

Sallie: I think it's to do with the fact that so often when we talk in the group, it's spoken about how we should forget the physical, and concentrate on the spiritual. I'm not saying I disagree with that, I'm saying, why can't they be together?

They are together. Why do you feel it should be separate?

Sallie: I don't you see, but I thought that was the general idea going round in our group here and that's why I've been trying to do more to separate the two, but I don't feel that I need to.

No, do not. Your spiritual growth will grow with you, provided you live life as you should be doing. You cannot separate the two whilst you are here. Does anyone else think you should?

Les: No, the master who teaches us normally has said many times, that we have to keep a balance.

Yes, that is true.

Les: So, what is your problem Sallie? Enjoy both.

Yes, do you not see madam, that in your joyous living, you are giving to others, which in turn creates a great spirituality within you?

Sallie: Yes I think somebody—or I'm being confused by someone, because what you're saying makes perfect sense to me.

Yes, don't be concerned about being happy in your life, that's as it should be. I am unaware of all these misconceptions in your land, as to what you should do and what you shouldn't do, it's all rather confusing.

Les: Yes it is, isn't it? And we make it more so for ourselves quite often, because often, if life goes very smoothly for many years, we almost get a guilt complex, as to why it is doing that.

Yes, and you punish yourselves. (Agreed) Human beings are hard to understand at times.

Les: You're at liberty to say we're stupid also, if you wish, because we know we are! (Chuckle)

I would not impose that upon you. That is not my place.

Les: No, but we know we are sometimes and we do get very confused in our thinking.

You cannot ask for more madam—to have your life run in parallel, both spiritually and in human progress—you cannot ask for more, whilst clothed in these bodies.

Sallie: I don't want more, I'm just happy to have that thing confirmed.

Yes, do not allow others to displace your own correct thinking.

Sallie: Thank you.

Be happy—I say this to all of you, be happy and joyous in your living, because each task that is placed before you, it makes it lighter if you accept it with laughter and with joyousness.

Les: We've been told many times Sallie, we should always use our sense of humour, so that IS the answer to keeping our balance, you see?

Sallie: That sounds fine.

Les: And the other will follow naturally.

Sallie: So the actual separation isn't what we are trying to achieve at all.

Les: No, no, no, no.

No, no madam.

Les: If it was, I'd give it up. No, it has to be a combination of the two and the art of living, is to recognise that combination and glean from both the maximum that we can whilst we are here. Whilst we're here we're learning a lot of knowledge and a lot of happiness and tonight you've been told how this is developing in the physical strata. We also by having a sense of humour, can increase the spiritual awareness of ourselves, by using that sense of humour properly.

Spirituality and growth does not need conscious effort, it can be of use I think sometimes, if the act is conscious, but the most profound act, is the unconscious act. That is what attains you spiritual growth. Can you see that? (Affirmed) Yes? Good. I'm pleased I've been of some help.

Les: You've been a great help. And another thing Sallie is you see, we are still self-centred in our thinking. With respect to anything you have said, it has been self, you have been considering, hasn't it?

Sallie: I am at the moment yes.

Les: But if we accept that going through life, doing what we can for others is giving them happiness in many ways, even in little things—if we give of ourselves that is creating happiness in others and it's giving, or should be giving the giver of those actions considerable happiness in so-doing. Now, that is spiritual development—forget the physical side of it.

Can I say something madam to you?

Les: Yes please do.

There is a saying in your land, that what you give you will receive back. Can I say that you will receive 100 fold in spiritual growth, in happiness and joy you bring to another.

Les: I've many times used a simple explanation, when people have wanted to know how they develop mediumship. I said that mediumship is only giving or helping another in some way. If you merely assist someone to cross a busy road, you are a medium. A medium is only a channel for good. A very simple explanation, but if you develop on that, you'd see how simple it is—to give, whenever it is possible to give, without thinking.

That is the key, that the effort best be unconscious, because you rather lose something, when the action is done with conscious effort, in order that you may gain points, if you like. Of course, when you have the awareness that you have, it's difficult not to think along those lines, I agree. But it is the unthinking act, which is more creditable to you. The smile, the gesture, the look, the helping hand that is done by you 'automatically' I think you say, (Yes) they are the gestures of most good.

Les: And of course we come back to what we have been asked to do at night, whenever we are giving out our kind thoughts or prayers, whatever you want to call them, to spare a thought for those who are homeless, distressed in this world and also for those in the next world, who should be coming out of the mists and the darkness—give your thoughts to them also. You remember? (Yes) And do we all practice that?

Sallie: Occasionally, not always.

Les: There comes the physical again —

Can I say something to you before I leave? If you could travel through this lifetime and forget the word, 'I,' then you have ACHIEVED—but that is not an easy task for anyone. Forget the 'I' and what else do you have, but ALL OTHER PEOPLE, yes, yes, yes.

Les: I'm afraid the main problem is that we do let the physical intervene far too much.

I thank you for allowing me your time; I am being told there is someone else who wishes to speak to you, through another person.

Les: I see, well thank you very much for having joined us and for all that you've said and we do appreciate your visit.

Thank you.

Les: God bless you.

Thank you.

There then followed a quick one through Sue, who had been recently before and who gave the name of Jess, reminding us in her own special way to remember to LAUGH—even through our tears.

Finally there was another through Eileen, who brought a message for one of the ladies (Mary), about a trip to Switzerland.

~19th October 1998~

Good evening

All: Good evening.

My dear friend, I have been close to you this day.

Les: That's very kind of you.

I wish to say to you all this time, we are reaching a point in our coming together, when new knowledge will be brought to you. For too long mankind has been chained by his own thinking. (Agreed) We have reached a stage in this Earth's development when mankind must break free from these shackles, these misconceived ideas, which he holds onto.

Les: Yes you told us a long time ago that it would be happening and it certainly is. Many, many instances we hear about now throughout the world.

Yes I did tell you that what I tell you here will be uttered throughout your planet, in many corners. The words used may vary slightly, but the whole idea of Truth, cannot alter.

Les: No—yes I've thought of you quite a lot, because I've been watching a program about the Catholic Church called, 'The absence of truth.' They comment on the infallibility of the Pope and all that nonsense and while watching, I thought of what you have said, and how that will all be discarded.

We are in early days. Each of your world's religions—if it brings comfort to the spirit, then we must not say too much about it, at this present time.

Les: No, that's understandable.

But of course the time will come—I can assure you of this, that Absolute Truth will govern all religions.

Les: Splendid.

After all, there is the truth in all religions—it is up to each individual soul to take from it what he may.

(Agreed) So at this time, I will not say all religions must go, but each step being taken, is going in that direction. (Yes) For too long has mankind allowed these chains of religious teachings to bind him.

Les: You're absolutely right.

Instead he should be free to feel the spirit that he is, to allow religion to be part of him and not the other way. You understand? (Affirmed)

Les: Yes we do. We should live as the primitives lived, the so-called primitives.

They, as I have told you in time past, were closer to the all-pervading Truth.

Les: This is what I mean, we should be the same—live in the same way.

Unfortunately mankind sees himself on a pathway of development. It is this thinking which we must try to reverse for you. That task my friends, will not be an easy one. In so many areas of your world, has this materialistic view taken such hold, that mankind now sees himself as a power source, do you understand?

Les: Yes, he does realise though that if he thought a little more deeply, he would realise that it is a power source for his own destruction.

Yes, this is why at this time in the Earth's evolution, many of us are gathered here, in order that this time, mankind cannot destroy what is being laid down for him.

Les: Nice to hear that again, because somebody through my wife told us that many, many years ago, that the abbots and others had gathered for this very reason.

There are many throughout this planet that is why my words will be reiterated around this globe. There are many of us gathered here, in order that the Truth this time be known. There cannot this time be any denial of Truth.

Les: I'm hoping that at some time—I know I shan't be able to do it, but I hope that somehow, some time, all that you have taught us and which is on record, will be published somehow.

The opportunity will be given. (Thanks expressed) And the knowledge, which will be spread throughout this planet, will be seen as it is meant to be—simple, simple truth.

Les: Yes, that does please me a great deal, because I would hate to think that all you have told us, is going to be lost, even though it's recorded.

My dear friends, do you not understand that that is why you have been chosen to hear these words, that we know each one of you, can be an emissary for Good. The love you possess, the knowledge you hold, is great, but still we cannot interfere with your free thinking, but you have been chosen, because we know and understand, that the words given to you in time, will reach others.

Les: Good. (Agreed) That does make me very happy, thank you.

Dear friends, do not be fearful of speaking to others, we are behind you, we will help you and guide you with your words.

Les: Thank you. (Thanks expressed)

If at first someone denies what you say, do not thrust your words upon them, but leave them in their thinking—that is all we ask of you.

Les: Yes we shall do that at every opportunity.

That is why we have brought you together again, this time. That is your purpose—I say to you my dear friends, do not fail in this task, because it will be the most important part of your living. It will be an achievement of spirit, something which you chose to do.

Les: Good, I'm very pleased to hear the opportunity will arise for all your words to be published.

Now, there will be another to speak to you this time, through this lady here, so if you have any questions for me this time, I will be most happy to answer for you.

Les: Thank you, yes if I might start, I'd like to ask one on the subject of Thought again, of which you have told us so much. We know that our personalities remain the same for some time, after we go over and of course that applies to everybody. Now I wonder—to give a simple example, I meet occasionally a chap in the village, who talks so rapidly, that one would think he was running out of time and I have had to ask him to slow down sometimes. I don't want to hurt his feelings, so I put it as nicely as possible, but on the other side, if I met somebody like that, if I thought, 'I wish he would speak more slowly,' would he get that thought, or would I have to in some way direct it, so that he would get it? What I'm leading up to is, all our personal thoughts, at the moment we could imagine they would be available to anybody and I don't think that would be the case.

No, let me first say this to you: We have spoken about thoughts, which could be harmful to another, and that these thoughts can be intercepted, if that must be. But my dear friend, let me please ask you a question.

Les: Yes surely.

For whose benefit would you send out these thoughts, for yourself or for the other person?

Les: Well for me primarily so that I can understand fully, what is being said.

But can you not see, that it would be interfering in what HE has tried to do?

Les: Yes, looking at it that way, it would.

Yes, so you cannot have black and white—again we come to this question, that there are never clear cut answers to any questions of this kind. The thought you send, if it was a good thought for the purpose of helping another, then of course he would accept and receive it. If the purpose of the thought was for self-gratification, then that thought would be dissolved into the thought energy pattern.

Les: I see, so there is an over-riding power that governs this thinking then?

I would not say, 'over-riding,' but a 'guiding.'

Les: So, we needn't worry that somebody is going to be adversely affected by our private thoughts?

I would say generally no. You could not do that much harm, unless the other person was open to all thoughts—and again we must speak about this. There are some peoples in your world, who are open to many avenues of thought; they do not fully accept and understand what 'dangers,' perhaps I can use the word, they are tempting into their lives. But generally I would say, do not be afraid of good thought.

Sallie: Salumet, sorry to interrupt, but I don't understand about people being open to thoughts that could be dangerous to them.

Yes let me try to elaborate that for you.

Sallie: Thank you.

You have peoples within your world, who shall we say, 'experiment,' with what I believe you call drugs. (Agreed) Who give to themselves drinking habits, which leave their spirit open to all kinds of thinking. There are many peoples in your world—we have the purity of children sometimes, who are exposed to evil thinking. Again we cannot have a clear-cut explanation. Does this help you? (Pause) No.

Sallie: No, not exactly, I thank I understand that if we alter our minds too much through drugs and alcohol, we may have our own strange thought patterns.

No my dear, you leave the spirit open to all those thoughts that are available. We are coming to a difficult topic, which I think we must devote one whole time to, if we may.

Les: Yes that would be very interesting we would welcome that some time.

Perhaps next time, yes—it is a deep matter that which you have raised and I will explain more fully for you.

Sallie: Thank you very much.

But be assured, there are those poor souls upon this Earth, who do expose themselves to unnecessary—after all, you know do you not, that not all spirit is pure?

Les: Yes we do know. We used to—well I used to make that mistake in thinking so, until we had your teaching.

Yes, therefore always we have to have the balance, of the positive and the negative at all times, and this involves thinking. Can you begin to see?

Les: Yes I can and I was thinking of this when I was watching the program about the Catholics, and wondering how they reconciled the adverse effects of another, with their thinking, which caused those adverse effects.

Yes, they would, when they come to our world, recognise that the teaching they have expounded upon others, has been wrongful, but you have to remember, they too have been exposed to wrong teaching—so they are not solely responsible.

Les: No, they were indoctrinated, weren't they?

Yes, so you see that we have adverse effects upon other people and it continues onwards and onwards and onwards.

Les: Well the whole foundation of the structure was wrong, in thinking of the infallibility of the pope at any time—how could that be?

There should be no idolising of any human. I have told you this before and I will repeat it to you once more. But next time we will speak more—more deeply about the power of thinking.

Les: Yes, we shall look forward to that.

Now I will leave you this time dear friends and allow the other one whom I have brought to you. I hope you will allow them to speak.

Les: Yes of course, we shall welcome them now and thank you very much again, for all that you have taught us tonight. (Thanks expressed)

Know always dear friends, I am close by.

Les: Yes I become more and more aware of that myself and I hope others do. God be with you.

There then followed our expected guest through Sue:

Les: Good evening to you. Thank you for joining us.

I wish you a good evening. (Welcomes) You must forgive slowness of the words, but your language is not common to me.

Les: Thank you for using it, I'm sorry we are not able to speak yours.

All speech seems strange after the many years that I have used only the mind, to communicate.

Les: Yes of course, you don't use the languages now do you, not in speech form.

I come to offer healing to anyone here or who knows anyone requiring the power of healing.

Les: Did everybody hear that? Does anybody know one who needs the power of healing? Does anybody wish healing to be given to a person?

Mary: I know someone.

Les: What is the name?

Mary: The name? D Scot.

But please lady come and place hands upon these of instrument and repeat, please. Contact is most necessary. (Mary did as instructed) Please give name of person.

Mary: D Scot.

Please speak in your mind, his problem. Do not say aloud. Then please return to seat. (Long pause) Do we have another?

Lilian: Could I ask for one?

Name of person please.

Lilian: Gladys Inglefield.

As before, silently give requirements. (Pause)

Do we have any others requiring healing assistance please?

(There were no further healings.)

I have come from great distances. I can offer healing, but can also bring healing learning—I cannot use right words—I can offer to those who wish it, a little of my healing knowledge.

Les: Well I'll be greedy so yes, I would wish it, if you can.

Your path has already crossed with mine dear friend. (Thank you.) I have in the past been at your side, when you were healing others. Therefore my knowledge has already passed to you, although you have been unaware of my part in what you have done.

Les: Thank you very much indeed. I was pretty sure somebody was doing quite a lot for me.

I feel I can only stay for short time now, but I will say to all those that wish to help others, to feel more—well—to those who wish to bring a steady mind to those who have troubles, hold out your hands when you feel the need to help others and I will ensure that your hands feel the heat of the healing power.

Les: That's very nice, did everybody hear that? (Agreement + thanks)

Every person has the ability to help, but not all persons can find the time.

Les: You're quite right. We know it's inherent in us all. It's just finding the time in our physical lives, in order to use it. Thank you for the help you give to us all.

What I give to you all this time, will help yourselves and others, through many of you here.

Les: Thank you very much indeed and thank you for having been with us on this occasion. God bless you. There then followed another communicator through Eileen—one who particularly valued the use of speech, and healing through words, who had spent a lifetime without speech:

Good evening.

Les: Sorry to have kept you waiting.

You haven't kept me waiting. But I feel I have to interrupt, before we leave, just to say a little more about healing.

Les: Yes, please do.

So much has been spoken about the touch, about the thinking, but I would like to advocate speaking. You see whilst I lived upon your Earth I could not speak, so to me speaking has become quite important and I love it when I hear other people saying kind words to another, because that is a healing. (Agreed) So my dear ones, speak as much as you wish, because in the spoken word, is given much Love.

Les: You're quite right, we would agree absolutely, yes.

Ooh, what I would have longed for, to just have spoken a few words. But now I have the opportunity to come to you dear people and to speak non-stop. (Merry chuckles) So if you would be guided by me, just open those dear mouths and say something kind, every day to someone.

Les: Well we shall certainly try, because words are living things, aren't they?

Oh yes, they are the expressions of your thinking. Well, perhaps sometimes, I will not say always, that's not quite true. (Gentle laughter)

Les: That's when we must learn to be quiet.

Well that can be difficult for some. But that is all I wanted to say to you.

Les: Yes we were talking about healing earlier, before the meeting actually and some people still insist on using ritualistic methods and speech and it's so unnecessary.

Yes, but what does it matter if it helps, that is my philosophy now—whatever good, in whatever way it comes, that is only good for you.

Les: Provided it's done sincerely, for another person.

Oh yes of course! You must have the sincerity, otherwise it would be best to be a nun. (Quiet giggles)

Les: Of course the interesting thing is in any case, whatever method we adopt physically doesn't make a scrap of difference, because you are doing the work.

Well we are behind what you do of course, but you are the instigators of the actual doing.

Les: That's right, but you provide the power.

We provide the help, by inspiring you and by being beside you, when we are as two peas.

Les: Yes we love having your company.

Well don't invite me too often, because I do love to speak.

Les: Well would it surprise you to know that we love to hear you?

Well, I find those words most heartening. I'm sure not everyone would agree.

Les: Well we're not interested in everyone agreeing, we know what we like.

But anyway, I want you to know how important words can be.

Les: Yes, quite seriously we do accept what you say and we do fully understand the need for words like that. Thank you for reminding us.

Yes, it need not be a barrage of words like I use, but the gentle one or two words at the right moment—that is what is important.

Les: Yes, that is the secret isn't it?

Yes, the knowing when, yes. Well I will now take my leave and thank you for your most generous tolerance of me.

Les: Thank you for coming and you have an open invitation to come, whenever you wish.

George: And you have a lovely voice to listen to, I might say.

Well, yes, I know his words are quite sincere. (Gentle laughter) I must leave you. (Thanks expressed)

~26th October 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Les: I'm very pleased to say we have a full meeting for you this time.

I thank you all this time for such a warm welcome and great anticipation for what we say this time. I have told you last time that we will embark upon new knowledge when there is suitable opportunity.

Les: Yes you have indeed.

We have gathered you all in order that each one should hear this time, what I have to tell you. It is little known in your world, that within our world we have what we would call a 'Temple of Thought Patterns.' This is not known to many, because the awareness of such a temple is given to those who would use it wisely and for the good of all. These temples hold energy patterns of thought, not only from your planet, but from many, many, many. So you understand that this temple would be situated only in the highest form in our world.

Les: Yes that's understandable.

I have mentioned to you previously, that there are those in our world, who work with the interception of thoughts that can harm another, yes? (Yes) Those souls who have that capability would be among the few who would access this Temple of Thought. I would not expect you to understand the 'mechanics,' I think you would say, of how this temple would work, but we wish you to know at this time that it does exist, that this is limited knowledge within your planet, and I ask my dear friends that you accept my words in telling you so.

Les: Of course we do.

All of you strive within yourselves to come to know that part which you call Higher Self, that part which ultimately belongs within our realms—it is the thinking patterns of that Higher Self, which have the power to reach the Temple of Thought. You know and understand I think, that your thought patterns whilst on this Earth planet is the same energy, but of course it is working at its crudest level and you know that many thoughts that are sent by you, by the human self, the mortal self, can if they are erroneous thoughts, rebound back to your physical beings.

Les: Yes, you've made that quite clear in the past, too.

These are not thoughts that would reach the Temple of Thought within our world. So now you are thinking what thoughts are so collected there.

Les: That's true.

Every thought that reaches and comes from the spiritual aspect of each one of you, travels to our world, because the thought has become more 'purified' if you would like to think that way. The energy has the power to travel deep within the spiritual realms, although all thought is, how would you say, instantaneous? (Yes)—It is not always dealt with in that way. That is why so often within your world we hear, 'Our prayers have not been answered.' Now I come to the purpose of the Temple of Thought: Because the access to this temple—and I call it a 'temple' purely for your benefit, because within your planet the temple is known to you my dear friends, as a place of solitude, silent thought, is it not?

Les: Yes it is.

I ask you to try to visualise the power that lies within this temple. Only those souls who have attained the awareness of consciousness, have the entitlement to use and to transmute that energy—only able to transmute that energy, if it is for the purpose of helping others. It is not given randomly, it is used wisely and these transmuted thought patterns then become the inspiration and is returned to your Earth through many avenues. Do you understand what I am trying to tell you?

Les: Yes, I am beginning to understand and I hope everybody else is.

If you do not, now is the time for me to try to help you to understand.

Les: If I could ask my colleagues a question in another way—everybody has wondered no doubt where inspiration comes from, is that so? (Agreed) So would I be right Salumet in saying that when we wonder where inspiration comes from, would that be from the thought patterns transmuted by those while capable of doing it from that temple?

The thought patterns can be transmuted and then returned to you as inspiration, either by those Higher Selves, which you know is just the more aware part of your being, or by those people who have chosen to help these energy patterns return to your planet. This is something we have to discuss further, but for this time, I would wish that you could try to visualise your thought patterns as being living, tangible things.

Les: So one of the many parts of us—and you have emphasised this many times—one of the many parts of us, would be sufficiently advanced to be able to draw upon the energy of the temple, is that so?

Not necessary so, but one aspect of yourselves may be able to receive.

Les: We'd receive from those working within the temple?

Yes, very few have the awareness to actually enter into this Temple of Thought. I am speaking here of something, which to your thinking, is far beyond your understanding, but we are trying to give you generally new concepts of our world.

Les: You certainly are doing that. I may be quite wrong, but I believe I have been privileged to become aware of one of those temples on two occasions, when two of our members on separate occasions, were taken into a gorgeous room and they were overcome almost, by what they saw and felt in seeing it and becoming aware of it, but I knew in spite of what they thought was the ultimate experience, that this was only the anteroom to the Temple in each case.

I have to say to you my dear friend, within our world there are many temples of learning. The temples you speak of are indeed open to all, once they have attained that awareness, that consciousness of spirit, to be allowed to enter. But I have to tell you once again, the Temple of Thought is not open to many. It is a temple there for a purpose, used only by those of great consciousness, who have travelled within our worlds for many aeons of time. Now this may become difficult for you as I speak, because I have said not only this planet, but many, many more send thoughts to our world of thought; so we are speaking of something beyond your understanding. (Yes) Even to those with greater awareness within our worlds, are not aware of this Temple of Thought. I am giving you knowledge of this temple in a very small way, in order that you may understand, or begin to understand why thought is so powerful. Always I have tried to tell you there is nothing more powerful than your thinking. This is my thank you to you all for listening to me so patiently, sometimes without question and always with your love. My dear friends, you are this time being shown something which is little known not only in your Earth planet and many others, but even within our world of spirit.

Les: We are very humbled to think that we are allowed to share that knowledge and I was thinking of you and thought a couple of days ago when someone phoned me and wanted to come and see me. I remembered what you had said about the power of Thought and in order to try and get him to understand, I said try and think what is holding the planets in their orbits in the universe, if it is not the power of Thought of the Great Creator.

Now you are beginning to reach the very heart of the matter, are you not? All Thought must return to its very creation. It has always been, it can be transmuted, it can be used in many ways, but it cannot be destroyed. That is why I want you and wish for you to try to begin to understand that no matter what else is taught to you from our world, you will never have more knowledge than that which is said to you:

Be prepared to work on the power of your thinking.

Les: I think we have to dispel the idea of those who work with the power of Thought in those temples—we must not think of them as persons as we know persons.

You cannot.

Les: They themselves are thought emanations in themselves, are they not?

We do not speak of physical beings—no we do not. Even as you understand spirit—*(Eileen coughed several times interrupting speech)—Thank you. Forgive my withdrawal, but it is always difficult to be using an instrument.

Les: I am so sorry it interferes with what you were saying.

It is but a slight hiccup, but I have to say imminent withdrawal is necessary, when any physical condition interferes, not for any harm done to us, but because of the change within the instrument. I will discuss that in greater detail with you on another occasion. (Thank you.) I have to tell you my dear friends that the source Temple of Thought Patterns, is far from the knowledge—(Voice fading) I don't feel this time I can continue with this subject, because the distance and the explanation is too complex now. So let us my friends, discuss what you need to know.

Les: Yes. Am I right in thinking that within these temples, we have to accept something we cannot understand because thought working there is self-creative?

Thought within the temple of thought is the highest form of thinking, the purest form you can imagine, the most powerful form of thought—the thought energy has reached its ultimate form—perhaps that is an easier way for me to explain it to you.

Les: Yes, because it's something we cannot possibly understand.

That is why only those who have so reached that multifunctional state are allowed to enter. I know these ways of thinking for you now must be so difficult, but as I have said, it is the generality of it we wish you to know.

Les: Yes, I think we can grasp that to some degree and I certainly have never heard of the Temples of Thought described like that—I'd not even heard of them, as you have told us.

No, as I have said my friend, it is from me to you a small 'thank you' for your time and your devotion in listening to me. There is much we can bring you in the way of new knowledge, but you have to know and understand and be open to these new ways of thinking, if the world is to move forward now as indeed it will—for I have told you that many of us have gathered. The time has come for old ways—narrow ways of thinking, to be expanded, for this Earth planet to have greater understanding, wider knowledge and the opportunity for each individual soul to travel forward, not with blind beliefs, but in certain knowledge, that what he knows is Truth. Do you understand my friends?

Les: Yes, I think everybody understands that, don't they? (Affirmed) And we feel very privileged that we can take the part we are taking in this development towards the Truth throughout the Earth.

I know that what comes will be difficult for you to accept so easily, but each one of us who have chosen, have chosen people whom we know to be open to that Truth. As I said to you last time, that is the purpose that is the purpose of your being together again this time.

Les: Good, and I had a very good insight at our last meeting of the Wednesday group, because we did a rescue which involved a lot of people from many hundreds of years ago and I was aware then of something I've have not been aware of to that extent, of the way in which the work we all do here is almost perpetuating itself beyond here and in your world.

Yes, more and more will you come to recognise that what was once thought of 'help here,' is in fact inspirational help from our world—the two must go hand-in-hand as you well know. But it is beginning to change in the way that you are being used. That awareness may not be with all of you who are involved in this work, but if you will allow yourselves that quiet time, much more will be given to you in the way of understanding. (Good.) I have to say and I hope my dear friends this does not sound as if I am reprimanding you, but more of you could give just a little more of your daily lives to opening yourselves to— (Recoding very faint). There is a time in each of your lives, when you will come to recognise that although there must be balance of both your material and spiritual lives, there comes a time when you must open up the pathway to those aspects of yourself which are waiting to help you at every opportunity; and for some of you, you are not doing that. But that my dear friends is where again your own responsibilities lie, and we cannot, however much we love you and wish to help you, we cannot make you do whatever you do not wish to do.

Les: Does everybody fully understand that now? (Affirmed) I'm fortunate being retired that I can make the time as Salumet suggests. I would always beg of you all for the sake of your development that you do indeed—

Les begins to channel: —make the effort for your own selves, to give that time that is necessary. The time needed is little—the rewards for that little time can be great. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Les: Sorry about that interruption.

Sallie: That's alright.

Before I leave you this time, I would say only this to you: No matter which pathways you follow, in the time that each one of you has left upon this planet, the contact which you have now made will never be severed. So you see my dear friends, how great is your responsibilities to yourselves. My wish for you all will be that when the time comes for you to come home, that each one of you can truly say, I did my very best. They are few words, they are simple words, but they are full of knowing. Remember this lifetime is but one small aspect of yourselves. Remember that whet you achieve this time, ultimately reflects upon the whole. Think upon these words my dear friends, because in thinking about them you will begin to understand how simple and how complex this part of your living is. I will take my leave this time. I know and I have much to give to you, but for now I would say to you only this: This night allow your spirit to soar, because this new knowledge you have found, has given you opportunity within our world to reach out to those who are there to help you in the knowledge that you can reach to them.

There was then a brief blessing/prayer by Salumet before we closed, but unfortunately the voice had become so faint and the recording too unclear to transcribe accurately.

~2nd November 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I hope our discussion last time has led you to much thinking.

Les: It has me, I don't know about everybody else. (Some agreement)

I would like this time to say a little more about your thoughts.

Les: Yes please.

At this particular time on your planet, comes to us much thought about what is happening there. So many negative thoughts, when there should be more acceptance for natural happenings.

Les: Yes, well I do understand that, because it occurred to me that many people, because of these recent natural disasters are going to start blaming God again, is that so?

Yes, unfortunately mankind needs someone or something to blame.

Les: Yes, that's true.

You must remember my dear friends, that as you evolve, so too is this planet. There are, have been and will be, many changes—emotional, climatic and spiritual changes within this planet. What I ask of you, those of you who know and understand a little about your own spiritual progress, is to try to refrain from your negative thinking, on these planetary matters. As always I ask you to think positively and to try to encourage others to do so.

Les: Yes, that is going to be very difficult to do that, isn't it? We can but try, because another problem, I'm sure you're aware of, and would be one of the negative thoughts of which you speak, is the fact that because of these disasters, many of those who are left, are going repeatedly to say, that there cannot be a God, he wouldn't allow this to happen. So that is another negativity which has to be broken down.

It is a form of thinking, that sometimes amuses some of us, because they deny any existence of a creator and yet then 'disasters,' as you term them occur then they need that very thing they have denied, to blame.

Les: This is the absurdity of their remarks, because in another breath, they will say, 'Thank God it didn't happen to me.' (Of course.) So, which way do they go?

We understand how they feel and we must have compassion for them, because they do not have your knowledge. I will correct myself, they do have the knowledge, but it is not brought to the surface of their thinking. So I say to you all my dear friends, as you progress along your lives, accept that your planet too is part of you, accept it is a time of growth—not only for this planet, but for those of you within it. Encourage others to think more deeply. I have said to you, that within the next 1000 of your years, much change will occur, not only in your thinking, in the change of spirituality amongst you, but in the shape of this planet. Do not be negative about it. We are here to help and to uplift you at each stage, each development. So know always you are not alone. Ask for help in your thinking—it is available to all people.

Les: Yes, I do frequently ask, that my thoughts might be guided along the right channels, because it is difficult for us to understand, in spite of your respective teaching, why we should choose to come to a planet, still in its early stages of development and suffer the possibility of 'disasters,' such as have been happening recently. This is of course very difficult for us to understand. So personally I appreciate any help I can get from your world, in fashioning my thoughts and accepting that the fact that we are here, was of our own choosing.

Of course. All of you chose to come, have chosen the time to come, but let me reply to your remarks, my good friend: This planet is very young in terms of the cosmos and so too my dear friends, are the aspects of the soul, which you all belong to. You have returned the very juvenile parts of your beings. That is why you have returned to this very young planet. Can you understand? (Several affirmatives)

Les: Yes, I would say I can accept, but of course I couldn't say that I understand, because we don't fully understand (No) the complexity of you the parts of ourselves.

That is the difficulty.

Sallie: Excuse me, would it be something like when we go to learn something, we go to different areas to learn—we might go to a library, or we might go and have a driving test. Would the different aspects of our soul, go to different planets at different times, according to what it is we are trying to learn?

What the main purpose of your incarnations are, are that the soul is allowed to develop its 'weakest points,' perhaps I could say to you, to simplify it for you. The soul seeks to grow and because of the many aspects which belong to it, then it will choose the area where growth is most likely to happen. So yes, your theory in part is correct. You would not put a young child in one of your universities and expect it to come out knowing all that would be expected of an older soul.

Les: No, of course not.

Then perhaps you can think along those lines. It is difficult I know for you to accept that these bodies you inhabit, these beings on this planet, are in fact mostly souls who are seeking their very best to grow. Of course, there are those in your world, who have more knowledge, but for those souls, their pathway has been chosen for a different purpose; for the purpose not so much for their own growth, but in helping others to grow.

Les: Yes, that is something we have had to come to terms with. I think we all accept that possibility, don't we? (Affirmative replies) —That the existence here is not solely for ourselves, but for unknown reasons, for the benefit of others.

Are there questions?

Sallie: Does it get to a point, where we stop doing this, ever, sort of choosing places to develop ourselves? Do we ever get to that point, or will it just change in different ways?

You mean on this planet? Of course the time comes when the soul has grown enough, that it need not reincarnate into bodies such as you inhabit—yes of course that happens, but it takes many, many lifetimes.

Sallie: So, when that actually happens, then what do we do, when we don't have to come back anymore? I feel we must still continue to grow and change and do something.

Yes, you can still—the soul will grow in our world—there are many ways of growing. That is why I say, the 'primitive' aspects of the soul, choose to return within bodies. Does this make sense to you?

Sallie: Yes.

Les: And would that growth continue in your world, accepting that there are many, many planes of existence? (Yes) Let us say that the soul no longer has any need to return to a physical conception of itself.

(Yes) Would it, as it learned through the planes of knowledge in your world, have to return to a lower plane occasionally, in order to learn other aspects of itself, just as now it returns to the physical Earth?

No, it can return to lower dimensions, but it would not move forward, only to return. That would be foolish.

Les: Yes, I had wondered about this.

That would not be allowed. You cannot move forward, until such time as you have earned that growth. You can of course return to lower dimensions, to meet with others, to help others, but you would not remain; in the same way as I have returned to you, through this one. (Eileen) I do not belong here. Does that make sense?

Les: Yes, that does clarify, thank you very much. I had wondered whether it was a repetitive cycle, returning and going on, which went through—effectively, through eternity.

Remember, once you have returned home, you re-join the soul in its entirety. Only then does the soul decide what growth and what knowledge it has gained. But once you have reached the state of non-return to the physical being, then the soul must work, to grow in our world.

Les: Yes, thank you for that, because that answers another question, which I've not asked before—a point of view which has occurred to me several times and I did a long time ago, comment on the fact that many millions of souls have been through this Earth, but there are not so many millions of physical bodies, for them to inhabit at this time. So in my thinking, they must be progressing in your world, but not having to return here.

Yes, that answers too, the questions asked about how the planet has grown in numbers. It is not that they are all new souls, which is the usual thinking, but aspects of the same soul. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, because to me in my thinking, there was bound to have been a time, when there was simply no physical room, for the amount of physical bodies required, to accommodate those souls. (Of course.) So I came to that conclusion, though I asked a question about it, I came to the conclusion that at some point in what we would call 'time,' there is no need for the soul, or any aspect of it, to return to the physical surroundings. (Of course.) Thank you very much and that answers two questions.

George: Would it be correct to say that Jesus the Christ, had no need of reincarnation, for his own development, but chose to return as a teacher?

That happens to all masters, if I may say it and that is what Jesus the Christ had intended, to return to grow and to help many. That was one purpose for his soul's growth. But there was no need to return to the physical body any more.

Les: The same condition would apply to what you are now doing for us, wouldn't it?

Yes of course. We are not returning in physical bodies, only through instruments in order to instruct and help. But we do not belong, our own 'growth,' if you like, is 'secure' within our world, but we have allowed this one aspect to return within the instrument, in order to help this planet.

Les: And for that we are very, very grateful. Now, I'm going to ask you a question on behalf of your instrument. She has not asked me to, but when she was taken so far away at our last meeting, she said when she returned that she had the feeling that she was in a golden dome. Now, I can understand that expression, but are you able to give us any significance of that golden dome?

I will say this to you, and I will say also that the instrument I am using, would like to deny what will be said, but the aspect of the soul which she has been using this time, comes from a very old soul. This being she inhabits, is one which at this part of her soul's growth, gives her the opportunity for much growth in this lifetime. Last time when I used her, we spoke on very high matters. You were given knowledge that is very little known to others and because of this, it so happens that I had to place her to one side, further than normally I would do. In so doing, she recognised, what in fact was part of her own being. That is what caused the emotional distress, because in recognising that part of her being, she knew that she really belonged elsewhere.

Les: Yes, thank you very much for telling me and I'm sure she'll be only too happy to have that explanation too, because obviously I haven't the knowledge to explain exactly the reason for that feeling.

She, I will tell you now, will be embarrassed by that statement, because one of the reasons she was chosen as an instrument for speaking through, was that she possesses an innate modesty, which she will deny of course, but which we know to be for good.

Les: And that's why you can use her.

But I am sure that when she hears these words, she will want to deny them.

Les: (Quiet laughter) Yes, well we shan't accept her denial, because we love her very much and we're so grateful for the work she allows to be done through her.

I would like to say to all of you, the potential within each one of you, is great. So, my dear friends, allow those hearts to remain open, allow your thinking to be open, close out that negative thinking and when the opportunity is there, help others to understand. There are so many thoughts coming to us at this time that we need your help in these matters. I know you will think upon my words. I know your thoughts will be positive, I know that your loving kindnesses to others will be shown.

Les: Yes, that leads me to another question, if I may—anybody else have a question before I put mine?

(Pause) At our last meeting on the Wednesday, we were told that we don't always as has been said in the past, go over to your world—much as we'd like to, in order to help with the knowledge we have gained here. Now, I find that rather difficult to believe, in view of the fact that our knowledge could be most usefully applied to others in your world, who do require help.

My dear friends, what you must remember is this: That in this side of life, there are many stages of development and growth. Any knowledge gained, any growth attained, cannot be lost, cannot be contained for the self, it has to be given to others. You cannot contain knowledge and growth for yourself, because then it would become a selfish act.

Les: Of course it would.

So I have to say this to you: All knowledge that you gain upon this Earth, will be taken with you and of course, when you come home to our side of life, your natural response when you have chosen your rightful place, will be to help others, who have less knowledge than yourselves.

Les: Because I remember some time ago, you asked us most definitely, to give our thoughts when we say our prayers, to those on the other side, who are in need of those thoughts.

Yes, all too often it is asked of you, that you think of the people on this planet, who are in much need of help. But did I not say, remember also those in our world, who are striving, who are lost and are also in need of much help.

Les: Yes you did and I have been trying to further that by thinking as you asked us and that is what puzzled me, when I was told we don't always go over, because what would be the point of asking, if those thoughts can't be used?

Yes. You must, my dear friends, if I may say so, if you have—I will not say ‘doubts,’ because of course, only goodness can be within this room, but there can be given by some, a little confusing information. If you are in doubt, question please.

Les: Yes, this is why I have done so now.

Yes, please question the one who is giving you the information.

Les: Yes, I'll do that in future.

Always I have said to you my dear friends, whatever we give you in ways of knowledge from our world, if you feel that you cannot fully accept, then do not, because it means you are not ready, or that the information coming, is not the full extent of the knowledge. After all, I believe I have told you that only knowledge can be given, by those who have grown so. But remember, there are many stages of development within our world, as there are here.

Les: Yes, I wouldn't suggest for one minute that the information was deliberately misleading, (No) but as you have said, they can only give the information or knowledge, to the degree to which they themselves have learned.

It may be the informant thought that was the correct way. It is not that they mean to deceive, because that would not be allowed. It is only that the informant is young in their growth. That is why my dear friends, there are so many misconceptions about these spiritual matters on your planet.

Les: Yes, there are many, aren't there?

And we are trying now and there will be no going back, because the time has come, when this planet must at last know the truth and hold onto it. In the past, it has been given to many, but it has been denied.

Les: Right. I was puzzled because even though we may physically be aware of it, I'm pretty sure that because of our outlook and our wish to help others, that part of our spiritual self, would be allowed to go into your world and help, because of the sincere desire to do so.

That is the most important word you have used this time, the ‘desire.’ If you have the desire, then you will be allowed to use it.

Les: Yes I'm sure—Thank you for that, it's given me a lot of comfort, because to me if it hadn't have been permitted, then a lot of what we all would wish to do, is just being revolved into negative thought.

You cannot waste knowledge, you cannot waste truth, you cannot waste the desire to help your fellow man! That is the purpose of your living.

Les: So all of us here then can be happy in the knowledge that if we do ask for the ability to help those in your world as you requested some time ago, then the opportunity will be given us, because we sincerely wish to do it.

Of course. (Thank you.) I can tell you now, that the few of you within this room already are doing just that.

Les: Good, that is nice to know.

Although you may be unaware of it, because when you come to our world in your sleep states, then you are not being idle; you are given opportunities, which are there to be used. After all, in the body's sleep state, is the time for the soul to be active. You understand?

Les: Yes, that's very comforting to me and I'm sure it is for all of us, isn't it? (Agreed) Yes, thank you for those answers. Would anyone else like to ask a question?

George: Yes, I think there are a great number of us, who would like to have done more for some of our relatives who have passed on, who we've known rather well. And it's a very comforting thought that it isn't too late, one can still help them.

Yes. If only people who are left behind, who are grieving so, if only they had the knowledge that they could but help those who have gone on, to leave those loved ones behind, in order that they can go forward—so much more, so much more happiness would exist within your world. After all, the grief and regrets of you upon this earthly plane, I have to say, can be responsible for grief in that loved one who has gone to our world, because of your distress. Let them go, be happy—but of course, it is in the nature of the human being, to feel sorrow, to feel lost and alone. But what you should not do, is to hold onto that grief, for any considerable time. You understand? (Affirmed) But of course, you can help those loved ones as they too can come to you and help you, if they so desire, because you see, their knowledge becomes so much greater—they see the wider scope of life before them.

Les: Yes, I of course, have felt times of loneliness, but on the other hand, I have on several occasions over the years, had wonderful reunions on the other side, I know. (Yes) And I have come back absolutely uplifted, because of them, (Yes) and it's a wonderful experience.

Yes. Mankind has to—I do not like the word 'suffer,' but mankind has to experience the gamut of emotions. How would you recognise happiness, without the sorrow? You always have positive and negative energies to deal with, whilst you are on this Earth. So if you recognise them as such, it will help your passageway through this life, to be much easier. You are most harsh upon yourselves, my dear friends. You allow sorrow to engulf you, unhappiness to eat at you, distress to upset you—so many emotions that are destructive to your soul. May I suggest to you, that perhaps with qualities, that you pick one of them and consciously work with it, to see what you can achieve? Do you understand what I try to say?

Les: Yes, because of that recognition, out of that destruction of the negativity, we are of course, automatically increasing our growth potential, aren't we, by that fight?

Yes. You will dispel the negativity and return to the harmony, which the soul requires.

Les: And having won that battle for ourselves, automatically, we are able to radiate the benefit of what we have learned, by so doing to others.

Of course, because then you become, my friends, like a mirror of them. In seeing you, they can begin to see, what they also can achieve.

Les: Yes I must admit, it's very difficult to get it through to some of them.

I would like you all—I know I have told you before, but I wish to say it again, that you are emissaries for Spirit—use it wisely, be guided and you will have those opportunities placed before you, in order that you may help others, in their seeking of what life is about. And there are many I have to tell you, who are lost in this world, who know not which way to turn. They are not fortunate in the knowledge that you have, but within each one of them, is that spark of life, which is waiting to be used and to be helped, in order that they may too, may go along life's pathway, as they have chosen.

Les: Yes, I must admit, I have one—and I'm not mentioning names of course and I'm trying hard to do that and frequently I would love my physical reactions to take over, but I'm afraid your teaching always gets in the way and stops me doing it! (Laughter)

Ah! We do indeed have some growth, do we not? (Chuckles) That my dear friend is an achievement, if you can at least recognise that there is a problem.

Les: Yes I'd love to let the physical reaction come out, but as I say, your teaching always stops it. (More chuckles)

I will say, I commend you for your actions. It heartens me to hear these words.

Les: I still keep trying.

We cannot ask for more of you, we know that these 'problems' as you call them, beset all of you. But I know I see the light that comes from you all, and I know your potential and your love are there for all to share. Do not deny it, because if you do my friends, if you do not recognise the opportunities given to you in this lifetime, there will be many regrets, when you come to our side of life.

Les: Yes I'm sure there will be.

But my dear friend may I say, continue to try hard.

Les: Yes I shall have to you don't allow us any option, you know. (Chuckles)

We will be close by next time and help you in your task.

Les: Thank you very much.

And I do not wish to hear the words, 'I am only human.' (More laughter)

Les: I promise I won't say it. That's no longer an excuse, after what you've taught us.

No, you cannot return to those words and not know within your hearts, that it is indeed an excuse.

Les: Yes it would be, (Yes) thank you for reminding us.

I will my dear friends, leave you this time. I hope you will continue to discuss amongst yourselves what we have been talking about and I ask that I may have some quietness this time, with this instrument, before you close this meeting.

Les: Yes certainly.

My love is always with you. As always you are surrounded by goodness and light. And so my friends, until we come together again, I will leave you now.

Les: Well, from all of us thank you for a wonderful evening once more. (General agreement + fond farewells) God be with you.

After a quiet discussion, another came through Eileen, bringing relaxed merry laughter and a message/advice for Margaret about her knee and also her eye, before we closed for tea and biscuits as usual.

~16th November 1998~

There was no Salumet this time but another came through Eileen, who was able to explain why Salumet could not join us this time:

(General welcomes—our guest had an old-English dialect)

Les: Are you joining us tonight, instead of our usual friend?

Well, you've taken the words out of my mouth.

Les: I'm sorry.

Yes, I've come to tell you, they won't be with you, whoever that might be.

Les: That's a pity, never mind. I'm sure there'll be some other work done.

Ee, I can't get over how hard that was.

Les: Have you not done it before?

No.

Les: Well, congratulations anyway. It's always a bit difficult the first time, I'm sure. But you've managed it, that's the main thing.

Aye, aye I have. Now then, yes—ok ok—my goodness some people are impatient. I've only just got here and they're hurrying me back.

Les: Yes they don't let you waste time, do they?

—Because you've been not quite fully fit, it's being said that the one expected, will be with you next time. So everybody here this time will have something. (Thanks expressed) They should all have something to tell you.

Les: One question I would like to ask: You said that because I'm not fully fit, how would that affect our friend coming?

Yes—let me ask—yes because quite a lot of your own energy is used.

Les: For him?

Yes.

Les: I see, I wondered if that might be it, but I didn't want to presuppose that that was the reason.

Although it's taken from all of you I'm being told, you provide a large part of the energy.

Les: I see, well that's quite understandable and thank him for his consideration.

Yes, but he'll be expecting you next time so—all right all right, they are saying I've got to go.

Les: That's a pity. I hope you've enjoyed your short stay anyway.

Very much so, though I didn't realise it would be so difficult.

Les: No, well perhaps you'll visit us again in the future? You'd always be welcome.

Well with permission, perhaps I will. (Farewells)

There then followed a lovely Sister through Eileen, with some advice and wise words: (nice gentle ringing voice):

What a wonderful glow there is here.

Les: Good, we're often told there's quite a lot of light.

Yes indeed, most beautiful it is too, most beautiful.

Les: Thank you for telling us.

May I give you my dear one, some gentle and loving thoughts, from one who comes to me often and who has my own given name. I hope it is recognised by you, it is Veronica.

Les: Sister Veronica, yes!

She comes to me and teaches me in many aspects of my living. My purpose here this evening, is to give to you her much love, because as you know, because as you know she has moved on.

Les: Yes she's a very old friend of ours.

Yes she has been aware she has told me, of your recent illnesses and she wished you to know, that although she has been far from you for some time that the memory is ever close to you.

Les: That's very kind of her and I do appreciate it. Will you thank her for me please?

I will and I have come this time, to bring a little upliftment to one of your ladies—the lady who is at the far corner of the room, who is in need of a little cheering this time.

Les: Thank you, that's you Sallie.

Sallie: Mmm.

Yes, she is surrounded I might say at this time, by one of those sisters, who works with me. The lady I believe is unaware of Magdalena, but I am here to tell her, that in times of need, shall we say, that Magdalena is around her. If she will think of her, she can be much uplifted and much given to her.

Sallie: Thank you very much.

She is trying very hard to make herself known to you, but at this time, because of conditions around you, she is unable to do so.

Sallie: I will try talking to her and see if that helps.

Yes yes, she if I may say so, is a wonderful soul. We admire her greatly for the love that she exudes to others. She is an inspiration, not only to people in your world, but also in ours.

Les: It's very, very nice to know that she is with us to that degree. And we do appreciate her thoughts and her help.

She finds in this young woman, much potential that could be worked upon. That is why she has decided to make herself available to you.

Les: Yes the lady has been told before, that she has a lot of potential, which is ready to be used.

Yes, I think I would be permitted to add, that most human beings, use only about 10% of their potential.

Les: Yes, I'm afraid they do.

It is a pity is it not?

Les: Yes I agree with you absolutely. We are frequently told that we don't use nearly enough of our potential that we should and are capable of doing. We keep letting our physical requirements interfere, with the need at the time, to develop our potential.

Yes, if only you could adapt your lives, to a more equal amount of time, in service to your Spirit, then much would be better, within your world.

Les: Yes we are frequently told that and we find it difficult of course, within our very busy physical lives, because of the demands of the physical beings, to give the time.

There are always problems in many ways, no matter which way your life unfolds. I devoted my time in prayer and in what I would say, reaching out for God. But now I have a wider view, I can see that I missed out on much of the everyday things of living.

Les: Yes that is the problem isn't it? If you give yourself too much to the devotional side, then you do miss out on physical things, which are necessary for a complete learning, of the reasons why we are on this Earth, at this time.

Yes, but of course it was my choice, but I will tell you that my next return, will be much more fundamental, in the ways of everyday living.

Les: Do you think that you'd have to return again then or are you wanting to return again?

I have chosen, not yet, but at a time that I will return, in order that I may fulfil those earthly tasks, which were missing in my lifetime.

Les: Do you think those tasks you will have to perform, for your own spiritual development, do you?

Not only for my own, but for those I will be in contact with.

Les: I see that's interesting, because you've just confirmed what we've been told on a number of occasions, about returning to this Earth, but not solely for our own purposes.

Never can you be so—what is the word I am looking for? So insular, that you cannot be alone. I have to care for others, how else could you grow? That is the purpose of living.

Les: So you have already decided that in some future time, you will be returning to the physical Earth, to complete the tasks you missed?

Of course, but more importantly, I will be helping another one in particular. I cannot give you more detail, because it is something that is ahead of me.

Les: Yes, does it not worry you sometimes, to think that you have made a decision, for the development of yourself and others, but when you come back to the physical world and acquire a physical body again, you will have forgotten the reason, for which you chose to return?

No it does not worry us, because that is the condition of a new incarnation.

Les: So you accept the condition?

We may not always be completely happy to return, but we know and we fully understand that it is for our own growth and our own development. So of course there is no force to return, the main pathway of all living, is left to the soul. Does that make sense?

Les: Yes it confirms what we've been told quite frequently. Going back to our own problems of being able to give more time to the spiritual development—I think one of the disadvantages for all of us, is that even though we might be able to give time physically, our brains are so active that they are preventing our minds giving the quietude that is necessary, for that period of silence.

Yes, but I would have the advantage I feel, that I have previously lived in solitude. Therefore hopefully I will carry that attribute if I may call it that, with me to another time.

Les: Yes that is possible, isn't it?

It is more than possible, it will be probable. That is why it is important that each individual strives to their utmost, to use the potential within them.

Les: Yes I quite see your point. But of course we come back to the difficult fact of reconciling the demands of a physical life, to that of spiritual growth.

Yes I have to say, I feel that that is possibly why we return on many occasions, because we do not devote enough time to developing that spiritual side of ourselves, whilst we are of this Earth. That is my thinking of course—I do not speak for others, but that is the thinking that I have reached, at this point in time.

Les: Yes that's interesting and you found your period of solitude while you were on Earth last time, you found it of help to your progress now in the next world?

Oh yes of course, I have no regrets on the solitude, but I did have some regrets that I did not see more of the earthly living. But the choice was mine.

Les: And one can only go by one's own choice, because interference is not allowed in any way shape or form, is it? You must choose your own path?

That again I would say, is where your free will comes into action, because of course when I look back over that time, I can see many times, when I could have been persuaded perhaps to look a little further, and I declined. But the opportunity was there, do you understand?

Les: Yes I do

But because I had chosen that way of living, then that is what I stuck to. So who can I blame? You must my dear ones, remember that everything within your lives, you are responsible for. Whether you are aware of it or not, you are responsible.

Les: And we have also been told not only that we are responsible for our every thought and action, but in many ways, we are also partly responsible for the thoughts and actions of others around us.

You have influence upon others of course, in the way you conduct your lives. Yes you must also accept that responsibility. That my dear ones, was something I found very difficult to accept when I came here, because I thought that my solitude, my reaching for God, was so all-encompassing, that how could I be responsible for other people? I had a very sharp lesson indeed on this and in fact may I say that the dear Sister Veronica, as you know her, had much to teach me along those lines.

Les: We all find it very interesting that you should say that, because only a few meetings ago, another person who had spent much time in solitude and contemplation, was also very surprised when she came to your world, to find that she certainly did not have the place in your world, that she thought that her devotions entitled her to.

Yes, that perhaps is a lesson for you all. You should never assume that you have reached such a state, that you are entitled to anything. My dear ones, I have to say that you may be disappointed, if you think along those lines.

Les: Quite possibly, because who are we to judge what we are deserving of, or what we have earned?

You know not what lies within another's thinking, another's heart—how much hurt you may have caused a fellow man—you know so little in fact, when you live in this world. You may think you do and I have to say dear ones, that many are shocked by their own behaviour, when they think they have lived an almost perfect life.

Les: Yes I can well believe that.

So if you would accept a little advice, always ask for help, in the direction of your thinking. Do not have any preconceived ideas of any entitlement, for who are you to?

Les: No, you're quite right.

Accept what is given, strive to do your very best, seek that solitude, because I have to say, it does bring you closer to our world, and allow those who need to come to you, to be closer.

Les: Yes I quite see it must help them, to be able to cut through the mists and the turmoil, which surrounds us all, in this world.

But if I may finish with a few more words my dear ones, I would say only this to you: Do your best with loving hearts, try to control any thinking in the way of good thoughts, and you cannot do more. We see too often, especially those of you, who have some little knowledge of our world—we see you berate yourselves, when it is totally unnecessary. You bring upon yourselves worries, fears, depressions and all kinds of negative ways of looking at life.

Les: Yes we have been told that quite a number of times too, that we are too harsh on ourselves.

Yes, be kind to yourselves, because unless you are kind to yourself, how can you be kind to any other?

Les: No, you're quite right...then of course we ask ourselves, if we are going to express kindness to ourselves, how do we avoid doing that too much, to the extent that we might be self-complacent and arrogant, in our thinking of ourselves.

That would not happen, unless you allowed the ego to come forward too strongly.

Les: Of course that is something again isn't it that is difficult to avoid, it's a constant battle.

No, I think within each one of you, there is an innate knowledge that would tell you so. No, there cannot be enough kindness. There is a difference between kindness and self-indulgence.

Les: This is what we all wish to avoid of course.

Yes, that is why I say, there IS an innate knowledge, if you would but call upon it. But now my dear ones, I have spoken long and I must leave you now.

Les: That's a pity, because we've enjoyed your talking to us and your lessons.

I hope that they have been constructive for you. But I must leave now and allow others to come forward. I have been most pleased to have met you all. I have much to learn as you also have much to learn.

Les: We certainly have that.

But I know that the one who has brought me here, who has travelled on, is indeed a soul of much knowledge and I feel privileged that I have been allowed to carry her message to you.

Les: We are very grateful to you for doing so and you go with our love and our thanks.
One followed through Eileen, bringing messages through from two others. The first message was from someone called Agnes, with a message for Les, that his wife had been around him a lot this week and that he needed vitamin K. The other was called Malcolm, saying that Les had helped so many people, and they wanted to express their thanks—he also said that Les had another grandchild on the cards.
The evening finished with one through Sue, who reiterated further about the many people who wanted to express their thanks to Les for his help over the years and to close the evening with love and light to us all—to keep looking to that light, and all our dreams will come true.

~23rd November 1998~

This meeting gives some very good pointers as to the keys to inner silence/meditation, as well as giving us further encouragement to bring meditation into our daily routines:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good to be with you once more.

Les: Yes we missed you last time—we do understand the reason, but nevertheless we did miss you.

It is always our purpose to look after those of you who help us. So my dear friend, I hope that your health this time is much better.

Les: It is very much better thank you and thank all your colleagues for the help they have given me. I have been very much aware of it and I do appreciate it.

We need no thanks, but I know that each one of you is ever grateful for any help given to you. I would wish to give a welcome to the one this time who has come to visit us.

Anne: Thank you.

Because some of our members are absent this time, I will not discuss the topic that we talked about some many weeks ago. I would wish that all were present before we embark upon that subject. So for this time, I will take any questions you may wish to bring to me.

Les: Thank you. Does anybody have a question? (Pause) Right, well I'll start as usual then: You have told us many times about the power of Thought, but I think we all find it a little difficult to understand the mechanics of the power of Thought. For instance, we are using physical brains, which presumably is acting on physical impulses, but the power of thought to which you refer, must of course come from the spiritual ability to control the thought. That is what you mean isn't it, from a spiritual power?

Of course without spirit, there would be no physical being.

Les: Of course not. So if we—and it would be commonly asked I expect, if my colleagues could speak of it—how do we ensure that the power of thought that we are using, can have its affect upon the physical body? For instance, if we are sick, we presumably would all try and cure ourselves physically, by the power of Thought. But that we know would be operating through the spiritual mind and from that, to the physical brain.

Yes I understand, let me say this to you: As you meet with us in the states of meditation, you have to allow the spirit to come forward, do you not?

Les: We do indeed.

Therefore when you are giving healing, or self-healing, you must first reach that state of attunement, with that spiritual aspect of yourself—that must be your first task. Without that attunement, the thought is from the physical thinking, which can act on its own, but needs the spirit to activate it in the sense of its being. Do you understand?

Les: Yes I do, it must have that extra power, in order to be effective.

Once the attunement with your spiritual self is active then the physical brain will automatically follow in that thinking. Is that clear to you?

Les: Yes, does everybody understand that sequence of events? (Affirmed)

Without the attunement of spirit, then the physical brain will of course continue to have thought, but they will be random thought.

Jackie: Are we all capable of doing this?

As in everything in your lives, you must dedicate the time—without the dedication you will not go forward. I have told you this often and I do not offer apologies for repeating it.

Les: No you have emphasised that and it does bring me to another question I was going to ask: You have emphasised the importance of quiet periods, when we can draw closer to you and your colleagues. (Yes) You may well know that I do this regularly each morning, but I think it would help my colleagues here to have a greater understanding of it. Is it necessary to try and do what is commonly called meditation, or is it sufficient just to enter a silence and peacefulness within oneself, without a physical attempt to meditate on something or other? I find that just relaxing into complete silence and stillness, without any physical thinking at all, is very effective and I know I'm drawing closer to you.

Yes, that I would say comes from your own spiritual knowledge. Most of you I have to say have difficulty in coming to the silence completely, because your physical brains, your everyday living, interrupts. But I would say silence, as you have described it, does not come easily to most people, but that is the course you should take, if you wish to allow those who come to you, to draw close.

Sallie: The other way of doing it though—I would agree that that's probably the most effective way, but I tend to find sometimes, when I can't get to that state for whatever reason, if I just go into my heart and ask that you can have the same (Yes) sort of reaction, or something similar.

Can I just say to you my dear friend, in whatever way you find most accommodating, that is the best way for you. It matters not which way you travel, what is important is that you eventually communicate with those around. That is the purpose after all. So I would say to you, do what you find most easiest, yes—let us continue.

Les: With your permission Salumet, I would like to follow that further, because I have a very strong feeling that some of us here, are not fully aware of the desirability of sinking into a silence—if I can put it that way, of 'hearing' a silence, which sounds paradoxical—rather than try to establish a mental conception of meditation.

Can I say, it is a little foolish to try to analyse silence, because it is an all-encompassing thing. (Yes) You immediately recognise when you have entered this state of your being. But as I have said, it comes with daily practice and of course your free will once more enters into this. You have to teach yourself to be still and enter the silence.

Les: Thank you. Now does anybody have a question on that, because I do feel still—and I say this with all respect to all of you of course—that some of you are not aware of the basic requirements for meditation. Would anybody like to question that?

Sallie: I'd just like to clarify what my understanding of it is, if that's okay. At the beginning, particularly early on, when you're trying to get into that meditative state, where you have the physical thoughts going through our heads, my understanding is that you don't try and push them away, you actually just try and place no importance to them—like an observer—and then you can sort of drift beyond that. If you concentrate on the physical thoughts—because they're going to continue to do that, because that's how the brain works—it's only by letting them pass that you can actually slip into a deeper state of silence if you like. Does that make any sense?

That is the state most people are in, when first they come to what you call meditation. But let me say this to you: There is a form of meditation, when you are reaching your sleep state each of your nights. If you can capture that period of non-thinking, that is the beginning of true silence, true attunement with Spirit. Try to aim for this state and of course you will achieve it, because those who come to you are there to help. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmed) Again, you must give of your time—that is the prime part of your silence—firstly you must devote some time to it.

Les: I believe a few weeks ago, we were talking on this subject and someone through me emphasised—in fact I think the words were: 'I beg of you to give the time to it.'

Yes. I have to say that as a whole, you have to give of your time each day; it will not work for you, if it is spasmodic in timing, you must make it a part of your daily living. After all, what is more important, physical living or spiritual growth? You all know and understand why you have come. What is important about your daily living? How can you be helped by those who come so close, if you will not allow them too? How will you come to know yourselves better? You cannot, if you do not give of your time. This is not a criticism my dear friends, but these words are given, in order that each one of you may help yourselves.

Les: Have you tried to give the time, since that last speech about the desire that you have to do it and the need for you to do it? Has everybody really made a determined effort to find the time to do it?

Margaret: I find I can't do it at the same time every day, but if I do sit down quietly, I can go off for about an hour and when I come back, I just feel so wonderful.

Les: You are emphasising what has been said before and what has been said from the other side: You must give the time. You give the time to eat a meal, don't you? (Yes) You're getting the physical nourishment—well you must also give the time for spiritual nourishment.

Margaret: Well I find I've benefitted from sitting quietly.

Les: Yes, I can understand what you mean, because as I said I do too. Perhaps I should have said, it might have been clearer if I'd said I can FEEL the silence, I FEEL the power around me approaching—it's difficult to explain, but if you can enter into that state of FEELING what is there, rather than trying to UNDERSTAND what is there, then you are well on the path. Does anybody else get that feeling that Margaret has described?

Sallie: I don't exactly get that feeling that you were talking about, where you can actually feel an approach—a sensation of someone drawing close to you. Yes and you do feel quite wonderful—

Margaret: Sometimes I think, 'where have I been?' I don't realize I've been relaxed for so long, though sometimes I can only sit for 5 minutes, it's just one of those things.

Can I say this to you my dear friends, that silence as you call it, is Living energy. So in that sense, it is almost tangible. So think upon those words. Do not think of silence as being nothing, because that would be so wrong. In your silence there exists all things—people, energy and after all, if you would devote the time to your spiritual growth, so your physical lives would then fall into place.

Les: Yes, I think perhaps there's a general misconception, of the need to 'go into the silence,' if we use that expression, at the same time each day—that's not necessary. Neither is it necessary, and Salumet will correct me I know if I'm wrong I know—it's not necessary to have the same conditions—you can enter the silence, sitting in your bath. You have to learn how to detach the spiritual mind from the physical brain. I can remember—this sounds a bit coarse perhaps, but when I first began in this work many, many, many years ago, I was rather astonished to hear a platform medium say, that because of her physical surroundings—bringing up children, dealing with a husband etc. etc.—she found difficulty in finding any time to herself. But she did find that even going to the little room, (toilet) for a few minutes each day, was sufficient for her, to discover the value of silence and drawing close to the spiritual self. (Amused giggles) Now that sounds rather shocking, but if you go into it, you can understand what she was meaning. The same conditions at the same time, are not necessarily required; it is helpful, but not obligatory. It is the essence of the spiritual mind, overcoming the physical limitations of the brain. Do you understand?

(Affirmed) I think Salumet would agree with that, wouldn't you?

I would. Of course you must once again—and forgive me if I seem to remind you so often—you have to remember that the spiritual aspect of yourself, belongs to no time—forget time. Again we will speak that your yesterday, your today and your tomorrow, coexist in Time. So in tuning to our side of life, remember that Spirit is timeless. Perhaps this will help you a little.

Les: Any more questions on this subject, because I think it is something, which has needed airing, for the sake of everybody's development.

Paul: I was just thinking, so really there is no technique, it's better to find the inner silence in whatever way you can?

Les: This is what Salumet said earlier, find your individual path.

What is best for you my dear friend—there are so many misconceptions in your world. I feel saddened sometimes, that so many of your peoples are being taught, in ways of—shall we say 'Spirit,' when in fact it is organised teaching, and you should remember that it is such. Of course I will say guidance is helpful, but remember that each of you are individuals—remember this always, because you come to this life as spiritual individuals and you lead your lives as individuals. So therefore you must find that pathway that you have chosen, in your own individual manner. Of course be grateful and thankful that there are those in your world, who are able to guide and to help you, but beware always, of those rules and regulations.

Les: Yes, you used the word 'technique,' Paul, didn't you? (Yes) Yes, you have to disregard that. Don't try and think about a technique, remember that—(Voice changes as someone speaks through Les)—the ESSENCE of what you are attempting, is already within you; this is what you FORGET—it is part of you, it is THERE, you have to call upon it. Go into the SILENCE and recognise that it exists within you NOW. Do you understand?

Paul: Yes.

Do you all understand this? (Affirmative replies) Why do you seek externally for something which exists within you NOW and always HAS? Do you understand this? (Affirmed) Is there one amongst you who is not clear? Please speak if it is so.

Sallie: I understand it. I can't answer the question, apart from what Salumet said, about the fact that while we are on this physical plane, it is the stronger force for us. And even though we understand spiritually, when it comes to a competition of wills, for want of a better word, we are physical beings and the draw physically —

Please, please, please, please, please, please, please, you are not physical beings, you are spiritual beings in a physical clothing—(Yes) this is what you must remember. You place too much emphasis upon the physical necessities of life and not enough upon the need to accept that you are spiritual beings. Do you understand this?

Sallie: Yes, it doesn't answer the question though, as to why it is so hard, does it?

The question dear lady is within yourself, whether it should be hard, or whether it should be easier for you to understand.

Sallie: The understanding is there, but the actual doing of it is hard, that's what I mean.

What is the difference between the understanding and the doing?

Sallie: What is the difference? It's like we can understand a great many things, but we don't necessarily actually follow that through—it depends on many circumstances.

Of course, because you are not following the right path, you are giving too much credence to the physical aspect of yourself and not enough to the spiritual.

Salumet begins again:

May I interrupt? (Yes please do.) My dear friend, these things happen, because spiritually you are not fully in control of your own spiritual powers. That is why it is most difficult for you, when clothed in these physical bodies—it is a power struggle—that is the problem. But I have to tell you my dear friend that that struggle belongs to you and you alone. You have charge of your own spiritual growth, it is up to you to take control; no one can do it for you. Those who come close may help, but again they cannot interfere with your life's path and you have those choices, do you not?

Sallie: Yes I do.

So as you see it as a struggle, continue to fight your own spiritual war. You CAN and you should succeed.

Sallie: But I suppose it would be unrealistic of me, to expect to succeed all in one go?

Yes, do not place too much emphasis on gaining too much at one time. You have before you, not one lifetime but many, in experiences. Therefore my dear friend, take one step slowly at a time and the time will come, when not only your understanding, but the actions that follow, will fall into place. I feel my dear friend, that you are too analytical, in your own pathway of life. What I would suggest for you, is that perhaps you think less, think less and do more, in the way of silence. (The instrument-Eileen then coughed) I will take my leave this time, because of the little problem with the instrument this time. I thank you all dear friends, for listening. Know that I am always here to help you, as are so many others. (Thanks expressed) Until we come together once more my dear friends, I encompass you all in that spiritual light, which holds you dear to us. (Thanks expressed)

We then continued our discussion on meditation, some of which has been included:

Les: I try not to think, I accept that I am being drawn in, to a power that surrounds me—not engulfed, but I'm being drawn into it and become part of it. One can hear the silence, or rather, one can feel it. That is I think, for me anyway, the way I find most satisfactory —

Sallie then talked about how her Yoga sometimes helped her get into a peaceful state, conducive to meditation. Les reiterated the importance that was being placed on it at this time in the group...it's not a suggestion, it's a legitimate request for your own development and until you accept that, then you've got that blockage ahead of you all the time.

Sarah: One problem I have Les, is that if I sit to try and relax, I nod off.

Les: It doesn't matter, by nodding off you are subjugating the physical aren't you? You are letting the spiritual take over. So don't worry, I know I do sometimes. When I go to sleep at night, I know I'm going to dream, but if I sit down in the morning and an hour goes sometimes, and I haven't a clue—I just go off—not a dream, not a communication—I think I've only been there a couple of minutes. So don't worry about nodding off.

Others voiced various worries/queries, but the general idea, seemed to be that you had to just put in the time and whatever occurs, as you learn to still those thoughts and find peace, is part of the learning process...you just have to make the time, in order to progress.

There then followed one through Sue:

Can I say something please? (Yes please.) It is just a small thing, but it might help. When you suffer from human coldness and you shiver, you wrap yourself around with something, a cloak, a coat, a blanket, do you not? (Agreed) Try to think of wrapping that around you, and you feel warmth, do you not? It comes from within, and the shivering stops. Try and consider the Spirit as an enfolding cloak and warmth that you feel and the comfort that you get from it, is SPIRIT. Can you understand a little of what I mean? (Affirmed with thanks) Warmth, comfort, love of the Spirit—it is all one and the same. Forgive me for intruding upon your conversation.

Les: No, thank you for the suggestion. (Thanks + farewells)

There was a little more general discussion, before we closed.

~30th November 1998~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

Les: I'm sorry we're three people short again unfortunately.

(Eileen had a tickly cough and some adjustments were made) Thank you for your patience. You may find that adjustments with this one may be necessary at sometimes. It is nothing to be concerned about—we will take care of it.

Les: Yes, thank you very much, I'm sure you will. I hope it doesn't inconvenience you too much.

Now we know that it is difficult at times, to have full attendance at these meetings. So this time I will speak to you about a subject which we promised to speak about and that of course is what you call Reincarnation. It would have been better if all had been present, but we can return at another time if necessary. (Yes) Now, I know there were many questions waiting, when last we touched upon this subject. Now is the time for it to be aired amongst you, in order for you to see more clearly what this is all about. Would someone like to ask the first question, upon which they are troubled?

Sallie: Well with reincarnation, from what you've taught us and what I think I understand, we choose to come back, not exactly the same way, and we choose our parents and our situation, which is best for us to work on whatever it is we have decided we need to work upon. Somehow, I've got the feeling or the understanding that when we come back to work on that, we almost continually bump into other facets of ourselves, or those we've known before. My language is a bit crude on this, but you probably know what I mean?

Yes, yes, this is—I will not say a problem for you human beings, but it can create within you, obstacles in your living. They should not, after all there are many aspects of yourselves, which coexist in your daily lives. This is something we need to enlarge upon at a later date, but you are aware that you are not a single entity, you are not alone, you are many parts. Therefore it would not seem that it would be unacceptable for those aspects of yourself to encounter the human form, in any one lifetime. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yeah, I think so. Is it feasible that there's always a desire for those aspects of oneself to come across each other, because of that feeling of unification?

It is not a desire my dear friend, it should be your goal, that each aspect comes into harmony with each other. It should not be an obstacle in your living, it should become part of the living—the intelligent spiritual part of your daily living, in order that these many aspects of your being, can help. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes, thank you.

I think without fuller knowledge of these other aspects, you may be a little confused this time. But it is something we must embark upon at another meeting.

(Another sitter then began coughing)

Is the lady okay please? (Yes—sorry.) Others may feel this time, small irritations within their throat area. Please (not) to be concerned about this, there is a good reason for it, you understand? (Affirmed) Is the lady happy, with what I have told her?

Sallie: I am—there's something else though. I haven't really got anything to back this up, other than feeling and instinct, but it feels like that at certain times, different parts of my connection come towards me and at this particular time—I've felt this before—it's almost like you've got to put yourself in a situation where somehow I'm supposed to be helping that particular aspect, or teaching them something and I feel so damned inadequate myself, that it's almost like you think, well if I mess this up, I'm probably doing more harm than good; should I step aside, for a more experienced part of me to take over?

Yes, you have named the problem. You should allow these things to happen naturally. What you are doing my dear friend, is allowing the physical thought to interfere. Again I must stress to you, think spiritually and once you begin to do this, you will not be so harsh upon yourself and your life should fall into place. It is a matter of again, going into that silence, where you can be guided.

Sallie: Sometimes in that silence, and when it's very, very clear, as you say, and you come back to physical thought, I can almost feel quite ridiculous, in what I think I'm supposed to be doing, because it seems such an honourable task.

Yes, but of course, that feeling belongs to your physical thinking. (Yes) You must try to separate your physical thinking, from your spiritual knowledge—there is a great difference. You are beginning to recognise it, but you punish yourself far too often.

Sallie: I'm afraid of doing harm.

No, no you will not, do not be afraid, (Spoken very gently) do not be afraid. Allow it to come forward, allow those many aspects of your soul, to comfort and help you along in this lifetime. In fact, what you are truly doing is creating blockages for those many aspects of yourself. Can you see this?

Sallie: I'm not sure if I can see the blockage at the moment, but I'm sure I will if I think upon it, or go into myself about it.

You must ease up on yourself, you are much too harsh; you must allow it to come naturally to you, yes?

Sallie: Yes, thank you.

Les: If I might follow on that theme: You say—and we understand and accept this, that we are many, many parts, so we come to the spiritual thinking—again you told us we must try to emphasise this in all our actions and thoughts. How do we separate your inspirations to us, from our own aspect of self, which might be giving what we think are instructions, or inspirations from your world? This sounds awfully confusing, but are our physical selves, or part of our physical selves, responsible for the thoughts, which come into our spirit minds and therefore affect the physical living?

You cannot separate your physical thinking, from your spiritual thinking, whilst in these bodies. We have touched upon this subject before and you all found it confusing I know. Whilst you are in these human forms, of course your physical thinking has a great deal to do with how you react, even though the spiritual part of yourself has greater knowledge. Remember that within these human forms, you also have been granted freewill. The one interacts with the other. You cannot whilst you are in these forms, separate them. The thought, which is the spiritual thought-form, can create goodness, or it can be discarded, by the physical thinking. Do you understand this my friends?

Les: Yes we do and it certainly is a complication, isn't it?

It is difficult for you to understand I know, but you cannot separate the two, whilst you are restricted by these human forms—that is the difficulty of human living.

Les: Yes you did tell us some time ago of this problem, that the physical is responsible for the spiritual and the spiritual is responsible for the physical.

Yes, you cannot separate it, it is impossible—the two are joined together, whilst you have this living to do. Of course the spiritual form has much more knowledge and is trying most hard, to encourage, to uplift and to help you, in all aspects of your living. But because of the human freewill, mankind creates many difficulties for himself. Spirit cannot interfere with your living, I must stress this to you all again my dear friends. We can try to help, to uplift, inspire you, but we cannot interfere, once you have made your decisions. After all, what would be the purpose of your living?

Les: We come back to what you have told us, about the need to go into the silence, in order that the spiritual self, and the spiritual thinking may develop —

Now, I beg your pardon, but this is a most important point. At last you have reached the understanding, of why going into the silence, is most important. It is not so much for your growth in the physical body, but in order that the spiritual aspect of yourself can come forward and help you.

Les: Yes, so it can gain strength through itself, whilst in that silence?

Of course, of course—is that clear to you all?

Les: Does everybody now appreciate the reason why I've been asked earlier to go into the silence more? It is for the development of your spiritual selves.

Yes, once you allow that spiritual aspect of yourselves to become stronger, to become the main force within your living, then your physical lives will fall into place—life for you should be easier. I wish I could stress more to you how important it is, that the spiritual essence of yourselves, be allowed to come to the fore. It would matter not, what life problems came to you, whether it be emotional problems, problems of health, or problems of everyday living. They would disappear into the background of your lives, because the spiritual self knows, that these things are mainly unimportant. Do you understand my friends? (Affirmed)

Les: Whilst we're on this subject then, another aspect of the questioning: You of course have far greater knowledge of the future, than we can have in a physical sense. (Yes) Therefore you must know which path would be desirable for us to take, in our daily living. (Yes) Presumably knowing that, you would attempt to influence us, if I can use the word 'influence in that way, (Yes) as to which path we should follow. But that I imagine, is not construed as interference, in your world?

Of course not, because ultimately you as human beings make the choice.

Les: Yes, we come back to freewill again, don't we?

You come back to freewill—you can be inspired, but it is up to you whether to go in one direction or another. That is why my dear friends, you must be totally responsible, for all that happens in your lives. Can you now begin to see the connection? (Affirmed)

Les: Yes and of course, there is the further connection, that the more we do go into the silence to allow the spiritual selves—in plural, to develop, then you are presumably, better able to influence us, in the right direction, and our thinking, would be parallel to your desire for us, without it being interference?

Not only our desire, but your own desire.

Les: Our own spiritual desires, yes.

Yes, I point that out to you. You would recognise, when going into the silence and meeting all aspects of your soul, that you know the correct pathway that you should take. That is why it is most important each one of you feels responsible for one's own soul's growth. You dear friends, have that great responsibility. We can help you if you allow us to, we can guide you if you allow us to, but of course I say again, we cannot interfere. I hope this has clarified this for you?

Les: It has for me, does anybody else have a question on it? Any point you're not clear on, please ask now.
(Pause) So presumably everybody understands fully the need for development of the spiritual selves, is that so? (Several affirmed)

What is important also my dear friends, is that you begin to see, that all parts of my teaching to you, begin to take shape, that you can see that each teaching, belongs to another, that it begins to take shape as a whole, for your spiritual growth.

Les: Yes you're quite right, you did mention this a long time ago, that each teaching was dependent upon another.

Yes, it takes much time and you are patient, you belong to a group with much dedication; therefore it is now up to you to process what I have given you, in order that you may help yourselves. Do you understand my dear friends?

Sallie: Are we just helping ourselves though, is it just for us?

No, no we have discussed this, your purpose in this life of course, is dependent on why you have returned, but it would be a selfish life, would it not, if it was only for your benefit? All people you come into contact with, benefit from each other. Remember, that you have chosen your life's plan before you come. The soul knows that plan and it is up to the soul to guide you, if you will allow it to.

Les: Does everybody understand that now? (Affirmed)

(Les reiterates the importance of our answers, so that our unseen friends who are also present at these meetings, know whether we understand/accept the teachings or not.)

I only wish that I could show you, the many who surround you, who are with you and are there to help you, if you would but accept their guidance—you should never feel alone, in any situation in your lives. When mankind begins to realise this, then he truly will be walking the true pathway of living.

Les: Everybody clear on that now? (Affirmed) If I might put it this way, you have a responsibility, not only to yourselves and your own spiritual growth, but a responsibility to those who are trying to help you, to permit them to come close to you. Again we come back to the importance of the silence.

Sallie: It's an endless silence though isn't it, because although we have a responsibility to those people or those spirit forms, who are trying to help us, it runs on down, because although we are working on our own spiritual growth, we're also working with other facets of humanity, other parts of ourselves, and it's like an endless circle, isn't it?

Les: Of course it is. 'No man is an island.' Who said that?

Sallie: I don't know.

Les: I forget, but it sticks in my mind—some well-known author and it's quite true and with the teachings we're getting here, that should be of paramount consideration, always, that we are part of a whole, we are part of the creative energy. So how can we be separated? We cannot.

This is what most find difficult to accept. They see themselves as human forms, if you like with the spiritual aspect, some vague thing, that belongs to them. Instead, you should be looking my dear friends, at the other aspects; you should be Spirit first and foremost. The physical being is the lesser, remember this always. It is a convenient vessel for your soul, in this one lifetime; that is all. Try to keep this in your minds.

Sallie: Salumet, would it be logical then, or correct to think that every time we go through this lifetime, at the moment—I don't actually want to think about the others, because this seems to be quite enough for me at present—we just go on to a slightly harder or more complex task, because we perhaps mastered or understood another step along the way. In fact it doesn't get easier, it probably becomes harder?

You are partly correct, but again you are approaching a deep subject here. I do not wish at this present time, to follow that pathway. Yes, it is something to think about, that when you have mastered so much, you assume as physical beings, that it becomes easier. You are right in your assumption, that it in fact becomes more difficult.

Sallie: I thought I might be.

But I do not wish to discourage anyone at this present time. We are speaking on deep matters here and I do not feel that the majority of you here are ready for such topics. The time will come of course, but for now we must leave that there.

Sallie: Okay, thank you.

Les: Going back again to the spiritual development overcoming the problems and drawbacks of physical living, I think it might be useful to us all, to think at times of the martyrs, who have been sacrificed for their beliefs, in the course of history. What is it that gave them the strength to go through the terrible suffering, some of them did have? Joan of Arc for instance, being burnt at the stake—a mere girl. What was it in her make up that enabled her to experience that, and to accept it? It's obviously to me anyway, not a physical strength, it is something which far exceeds it. Wouldn't you agree? (Agreed)

George: Yes, with Joan of Arc, I think I read that she heard voices. So she would have gone into the silence—we are back to the silence again.

Les: Yes, quite, we don't know how many lives she'd been through, to acquire that degree of spiritual development, to enable her to withstand such torment. And not only Joan of Arc—many others have suffered throughout history, because of their beliefs. What gives them the strength, apart from the spiritual development?

Sallie: It must be a sort of spiritual strength, but I'm sure you'll tell me if I'm on the wrong track, but to me, it doesn't seem any braver, than living a life and going through the everyday things that we all go through and trying to do the best that we can. To actually give up a life for a cause, doesn't seem any greater. It seems equal, perhaps—I'm mistaken?

Can I interrupt please? (Yes) Let me say this to you: We return again to one of my teachings to you: Do not judge any other, because you know not what their task in any lifetime is. Therefore you cannot judge or know what they are about. So I would say to you, each one of you, focus on your lifetime now. Do your utmost to develop that spiritual self to the best of your capabilities, in order that each day upon this planet, is a good and successful one that you may come home to us each night and say, 'I have tried my very best.' You cannot do more my friends. If you can look back upon one day in your life and say, 'I have done my best,' then you cannot chide yourselves. You can only go forward, you can only grow in strength spiritually, in knowing that you have tried your very best. So I would say to you, do not be concerned about the development of any other one being. They have chosen their pathway. Do not judge; never make judgement on any aspect of living of another human being. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Les: Right, any other questions on this topic please? Or is everybody clear in their own minds now, of the essential need to concentrate as Salumet has said so many times, upon the fact that we are spiritual entities and not physical? (Agreed) We are all going to slip of course, but if we can try constantly to remember that, particularly when you are going into the silence, which I hope you are doing, then we should develop what we should develop. Any other questions?

George: I wonder if I could ask a question about healing, which may just connect, I'm not sure. I know someone who has the condition known as Dystonia, also known as 'writer's cramp.' It would seem that the brain allows use of the hand muscles, for anything except writing. I simply wondered if this condition is amenable to healing, or would it in some way arise from a directive from the Higher Self?

Again, I must say to you—and we have discussed this some time ago—again I will stress to you that mankind must accept responsibility for all that happens within his or her own lives. I know you find it difficult when it comes to illnesses amongst yourselves. Mankind always looks for something or someone to blame. I have to tell you my dear friends, that mostly responsibility lies with each individual, whether it be from choice—and it usually is, or whether it is from some emotional blockage within the being; well there are many considerations to be thought about. But the mind of course, has much power over the physical being. We have discussed this have we not? (Agreed) If the mind has the power to create illness, the mind has the power to undo it. That is my answer to you, my dear friend.

George: Yes, thank you. I suspect it has to do with emotion—thank you for your answer.

You can of course have emotional blockages within your physical lives and these can be carried forward from previous times, but we must not make generalities, because each one of you is an individual. You cannot assume that every illness has the same cause, do you understand this?

George: Yes, thank you for your answer.

But I will say again and I do not apologise for it, that each of you my dear friends, is totally responsible for your lives. And it is an acceptance that you must make, if you are wise. It is hard I know, I know you find it difficult. Illness in particular, for you human beings seems to be something you do not look upon, as a growth of the soul, but in fact it can be. Can you understand?

Les: Yes, so if we're looking for somebody to blame, it's quite simple to look in a mirror. (Laughter)

I thank you very much, I would not have thought of those words. Yes, total responsibility belongs to each one of you.

Sallie: But while we're looking in the mirror and being accountable, we can also forgive ourselves, can't we. We haven't got to blame ourselves, too harshly?

Of course.

Les: Yes, providing I would say, we have done what Salumet says, and each day, be able to go to sleep, comfortable in the thought, that we have done our best during that day, for all around us.

Lilian: That's a good idea.

I would say perhaps, that—I will not say 'fault,' but one condition you humans have, is that you allow your physical brains to overrun. You do not allow time for each thought to enter, it is galloping, galloping, galloping all of the time. It would be a good lesson for you all, to take control of your thinking.

Sarah: Salumet could I just ask one thing? If a child has an illness, a child hasn't really had a chance to bring that illness upon himself. Is that something that is left over from a previous life, or is it a chance for the child to die to help others, or maybe to help himself?

Again, you cannot make assumptions. That child is a soul—a soul perhaps of many lifetimes, so you should not judge, what that soul has come to do. Again, you are thinking on physical terms, because children to you human beings, should follow the pattern of growing to old age, as you all hope to do. But this my dear friend, is not the pattern of true soul's growth. What of the baby within the womb, who returns home, without even being born into the physical life? There is a purpose, even though you cannot fully understand it. You will confuse yourselves, if you try to judge every human being—you must not judge.

Sarah: So an illness that a person has, they haven't necessarily brought it upon themselves in this lifetime, it could be from a previous life?

Yes, you must not look upon illness as something tragic; that is where you go wrong. So soul has chosen for whatever reason, that way in their lives. I know this is a most difficult subject for you all, it always has been and still mankind finds it difficult. How many people have you known on this earthly plane who are stronger because of illness? (Emphatic agreement) Can you not see that that strength is a spiritual strength? (Agreed) So the soul has grown because of that condition. (Agreed) So do not always look upon illness, as being something destructive, it is not.

Sallie: So why Salumet, is it necessary to go through so much pain, in order to evolve?

You do not have to. It is the soul's choice—not everyone suffers now, do they?

Sallie: There's different sorts of pain though.

Yes, of course, but a lot of what you call 'pain,' belongs to the physical being and not the soul. That is the choice made within the human form. The emotions belong to the physical, and I would say mainly, that human beings suffer emotional distress, because they are not listening to their own selves. A lot of what you call suffering, cannot be left unattended, but for much of your suffering, it is unnecessary.

Sarah: On the subject of suffering, if somebody tortures somebody else, are both souls consenting to this?

Not always—again my friend, you are trying to generalise and again I say, without knowledge of the soul's own life plan, you cannot judge. That is why you must not judge another. You find it difficult I know—all of you do, but pain is not necessarily destructive to the soul. Does this make sense to you?

Sarah: Yes it does, it gives you strength.

Les: I think we constantly make the mistake of thinking of the one aspect of a person suffering, instead of trying to remember, that we cannot know as Salumet says, the reason for that and what its effect is going to be upon many others, who the soul is probably trying to help, by accepting those particular disadvantages or difficulties.

Sallie: Ultimately though, why are we doing all of this, because ultimately we come from that original loving Source, (Yes) so what's the point of all this, why can't we just stay with the original loving Source? Why are we doing this?

Why are you living?

Sallie: Mm.

Because to obtain soul's growth, you have to experience both positive and negative energies, to become pure. Again, my dear friend, you touch upon deep matters, matters which you could not possibly understand, that you would need aeons of your time, to begin to understand. Remember that the all-creative force is energy, energy in both positive and negative senses. But to attain that purity, you also have to experience negative energy, and that is one purpose of human living.

Sallie: When we've done that, I'm sure you're not going to answer this really—it's probably not the right thing to do, but when we've actually done that, what do we do ultimately? What's there at the end of it all?

My dear friend, I cannot answer, because I have not reached that point and I know of no being, but again, I use that word 'being,' reservedly, because you reach the state of 'non-being'—in ever reaching out to that creative force, you are going on a journey, that is as yet to me unknown. So I cannot answer you that question. Is that helpful to you?

Sallie: Thank you, yes it's only my physical frustration. (Yes)

Lilian: I can understand, I've thought that too. (Chuckles)

Sallie: It's not my Spirit, it's my physical irritation, at the thought of doing this for such a long time and am I ever going to get anywhere.

Les: You could ask what created energy? What created the Great Creator? We shall never know the answer Sallie.

Sallie: We all did I think, didn't we? We're all part of the same thing?

Les: Well, as has been said yes, and when Salumet says about going home, we go back to our origins in creation.

Sarah: Could I ask one more question? Salumet you said you've never been a human being. How do you get your negative experiences?

I have said I was a conglomerate of beings. That is a most difficult question to answer. We are a form of energy, not used as human form upon this planet. But our knowledge is such that it is extensive, in knowing what is happening, on not only this planet, but on many others, within the universe.

Les: Alright Sarah? (Yes) To simplify that if you wish, think of an artist—a 'master' as they're called in painting. How can he tell you of his knowledge or his ability to create those marvellous pictures? He can't, he can only do as Salumet is doing, to do it in another way, try and illustrate, what he is feeling or capable of doing or passing on. You see the finished picture. Do you follow me? (Yes) But you cannot know what activates that man or woman, to produce what they want you to appreciate and enjoy and to learn from. Does that simplify it a bit?

Sarah: Yes slightly, it's just that Salumet must have been at a lower level than he is now.

Les: Why must he? He needn't necessarily have been on any level that's known to us. You see we're thinking on physical terms again, which we must not do. Accept that there is an existence, an existence far beyond our comprehension, but just accept it.

Sarah: Yes, I obviously had a wrong concept of it, because I felt that once we'd broken away from that home as it were, you came down and had to work your way up, to get back there again.

Les: No we mustn't think like that, because it may never have been so.

Sarah: Right, so there are many ways of—

Lilian: Of reaching the same source?

Sarah: Yes.

Lilian: Many pathways?

Sarah: Not so much the pathways, I mean I know we're humans and we live on this Earth and there are other people who live on other planets, but I didn't realise that there were beings who were totally different.

Les: Well look at it in another physical way then. You know how radio programs work from radio waves in the ether? (Yes) How many of those exist and of those that exist, how many are used?

Sarah: Yes.

Sallie: It's a bit like our brain, isn't it? We only use a certain percentage of it. (Agreed)

Les: Right, I don't know if Salumet wishes to say any more?

I find your discussions most interesting, but for this time, I must leave you. (Thanks expressed)

~7th December 1998~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good to be with you again.

Les: It's certainly good to have you. I think I can say that we all look forward to these evenings very much indeed.

This time my dear friends, I would like to discuss with you a subject, which I promised to return to some time ago. (Thank you.) It in part, follows our discussion last time, but what I wish to talk to you about this time, is what you call Regression. Do you remember our short talk some time ago? (Affirmed) There are many disputes in your world about this subject, so I think this time we might answer some of your most pressing questions. Although as you know, each one of you has the choice of returning to another lifetime, and many of you in this world, have returned many, many times, you also know it is not always so. So let us speak a little bit about what you call Regression. (Thank you.) Do not assume my dear friends, that when you are under this regression time that you are absolutely returning to past lifetimes—it is not the case. Indeed there is not much difference than any communication between any instrument upon this planet. That is not to say of course, that returning to a past lifetime is not possible—it is, but the dispute within your world is this: That you assume that any information from past times must automatically be a past lifetime of each individual.

Les: Yes, you are quite right, that is the general assumption, but I have never been able to accept that myself.

Well, I would say to you my dear friends, hold on to what you feel, because you are partly right, I would say. Regression is possible, but there has to be a purpose for it.

Les: Yes, I was going to ask that question.

Well, let us now begin with your questions, now that I have outlined for you, the generalities shall I say, of this subject.

Les: Yes, thank you. I have never been able to accept the fact that automatically the information given by a person under regression, would be that pertaining to a past life, because there are so many improbabilities, that I don't see how it could be. Also in my thinking, the power of thought of the person responsible of the regression of the 'patient,' shall we say, that thought could also I think intervene in the information being given.

Yes, of course once more we return, do we not, to the power of Thought? (Yes) And yes, you are correct that sometimes the person who is doing this regression, has influence with their thoughts. I would say the majority of your regressions are indeed information being shown to the individual, but not necessarily their own past lives. Of course what we hear then is, 'But it is so vivid.' But is not any communication between any medium upon your world when contact is made within ours? Then of course that becomes reality at that moment in time; always bear this in mind. But of course, then we come to those genuine cases where the individual is allowed to be shown, I would say, one past life, not many, for the purpose of freeing their soul, in order that their life this time can be helped. That is the only purpose in being shown any past life, to, shall we say, 'unblock' any emotional or spiritual blockages that have been taken from that past life and is hindering that soul, in its pathway in the present time. Does this make sense to you?

Les: Yes it does and I can accept that absolutely, but that presumably would only be permitted under certain circumstances, if the information was in fact for the benefit of the progress of that soul.

Yes of course, any spiritual, any emotional blockage which the soul would sustain into this present lifetime, then of course that information would be permitted to help the soul.

Les: So that would be parallel to what you have told us about being counselled before we return to any life on this Earth? You did once say that we would receive counselling as to the best physical return we should have.

Each soul knows and understands what its life's journey is about, but sometimes the soul is unable to free itself from spiritual blockages, emotional blockages, which have occurred and belong to the soul. The soul brings it with them and is unable to free itself in the present existence. That is the only permission that would be given to allow the soul to see a past lifetime, whilst it inhabits this human form. Is that clear to you? (Agreement + thanks)

Les: Which leads me to the next question: If it is only permitted on certain conditions, would I be right in thinking that other information, which is supposed to be coming from a past life, could in fact be communication from your world to the person under regression?

Information given of past life, of course is monitored from our world.

Les: Yes I thought it must be.

Of course we have to protect the soul; that is another point you must take council with. Yes, you must remember the soul's progress is what is important. You could perhaps place a parallel with your healing—only those who would be allowed to be freed from illness, would secure what you term a 'cure.' It is on the same parallel, only those souls that are permitted to be freed from illness would be freed; the others would remain, because that is the pathway they have chosen. Does this become a little clearer to you?

Les: Yes it certainly does. Does that mean then that if somebody from your world wished to give information to the person under regression that would be equivalent to one of our physical beings here, being used by somebody in your world and then being given information, which they can give us—so much which is supposed to be coming from the regressed person's past life, need not be so?

In the true regression, where permission is given, I would have to say the information is given from another aspect of the same soul. It is slightly different when you speak about healing and other matters. Although the information for the help comes from our world, it is not necessarily in those cases, from the same aspect of soul. Do you understand this, or am I confusing you?

Les: No, because it rather confirms what I have suspected to be the case, that a person under regression, is, to my way of thinking, equivalent to a person in the physical world, allowing themselves to be taken over (Yes) and pass on information given from your side, which need not necessarily have anything to do with their own past lives. Is that correct?

That is correct—that is the majority of cases that you call regression.

Les: Thank you for confirming that. I have suspected it for a long time, which is why I have always been opposed to so-called regression being considered as such, because to me it is merely another aspect of mediumship as demonstrated at these meetings.

Yes of course, but you must not say, no regression to past lives do not exist. There are genuine cases, but the majority of the cases, you are correct, they are receiving information, but it does not belong to that soul.

Les: Now, we come to a most difficult question, which you may not be able to answer. How would one distinguish between the two factors of general information and honest information from a past life?

Because the past life truths would free the soul as I have said, from emotional and spiritual bondage, which could create in the physical being many problems, many phobias, many fears; the soul would then be free from them. That would be the indication that the regression was a true one.

Les: So it would have to rely on the physical reaction of the person after regression?

Yes, because then the soul is freed from any blockages, which it has brought.

Les: And that would be reflected in the physical differences? (Yes) Thank you very much, because that does explain how the two could be separated.

That is the only way—the soul would know. It is difficult when human beings are trying always to—and I use this word reservedly, 'prove,' something. It is not always easy, but the soul would be allowed to go forward on its pathway that has been chosen this time. You understand?

Les: Yes, because that ties in with something else I have often spoken about over the years. We hear frequently of a person saying, 'I have been here before and I have done this, that and the other,' and it is often presumed without query, that that person is in fact returning to conditions and places, which they occupied or were present at during a previous life. Again I have maintained that the information they have been giving to listeners and investigators, could well be merely information from your world and nothing to do with their past lives. Do you agree with that?

Yes, you must remember the power of thinking. I will always return to this again and again, that the power of Thought can create whatever you so desire. And in these instances, the individual is a channel—that is all—a channel.

Les: Yes, this is what I have often suspected. I think there no doubt are genuine cases, but in the majority of instances, I have been inclined to think, are information which could be obtained by anyone in this room.

Any individual who allows their minds to be raised, can be given any information they so desire, but that information does not necessarily belong to that individual soul. This is what you have to differentiate between what is genuine past life and what is merely information of past times. You have to know the difference (between) information in general and information of past lives that belongs to the individual soul. There is a great difference.

Les: Yes, there must be and so one should not accept all these cases at their face value.

Always stop, always think—use that thought wisely. Do not accept all that you are given so easily. And there is a way of thinking within your world that is seeking that is searching for more knowledge. We do not wish to dispute this, because any seeking can only be good, but what we do say to you my dear friends: Be a little bit more cautious in your seeking.

Les: Yes, you have probably gathered from what I have been saying that I always have been.

Yes, but not all people are so cautious. You must be, in order to—not protect yourself, but in order that you find Truth.

Les: Yes, this is what we all want to do.

And, that is my purpose in dispelling some of these disputes in your world.

Les: Yes I am very, very grateful to you—I am sure we all are. As far as I am concerned, it has pulled back the curtain quite a bit.

That is my purpose that all of these matters become more clear to you.

Les: Does anyone else have any questions?

I think my good friend the gentleman last time, did ask the question last time. I hope I have answered his question for him—if not, please let him speak now.

George: Yes, this has helped a lot—I do try to imagine sometimes the past life in relation to the soul. You have demonstrated in the past that a past life can be plucked and presented through a medium, yet the past life is a part of the soul. It would seem that the soul is a collection of past lives and yet it has a unity. (Yes) Does that make sense?

Yes, but do not concentrate so much upon past lives. They have gone as you would say, they have attained hopefully what they should have attained and the individual unit, which now exists in present living, is the Soul, is the Spirit that matters at this moment in time. Past lifetimes belong to another time, although they are part of the same Soul. Unless it is necessary for the Soul in the present lifetime to have access to one past lifetime, then past lifetimes should remain where they belong, in past times.

Les: Yes, I think one could relate that to one's normal physical breathing, because the breath we draw in, serves its purpose for a limited time, whereas when it is expelled, it's of no use to us or anybody.

You do not seek it back, do you?

Les: No, it has served its purpose, therefore we take a fresh breath and to me, I have always related that to what you were saying, George—the past is gone/finished (Yes)—it's served its purpose and I am always looking forward to the future, whatever it may be.

Remember past, present, future belong together, but you are living in the moment with this one aspect of your Soul, which is seeking growth. That is the purpose of life and that is what you should concentrate your efforts upon. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Les: Any more questions on it, because it is a very important aspect of living?

I fear sometimes human beings, because of dissatisfaction within their daily living, seek the 'excitement,' I believe you would say, of finding past lives. It has almost become within your world, an exercise of pleasure; this it should not be. So I would say to you my dear friends, live for the moment. There is no reason why anyone of you within this room, should be seeking knowledge of past lifetimes. It will never be given purely for an interest factor.

Les: Yes I'm sure of that, because there would be no point in so doing, would there?

It is, if I may say so, it is wasting—

Margaret: Time?

— Time and energy—yes madam, you are quite correct when you say this —

Margaret: Whatever has happened in the past, you can't do anything about it, can you?

Sarah: You have got to look forward to the future.

You can in a little way, rectify what has happened in past times, because after all, you have come to, in some cases, rectify previous lives. But it is living in the moment, which is important.

Les: Yes, it has a bearing on this—When my first wife died I can remember the 'horror'—and I use that word advisedly—of my fellow workers, because of the fact that I went into work the day following, when I was told I could have three days off for a funeral. I said I don't want three days off—I explained that it had happened—what could I do? But they couldn't understand it.

Yes, because they did not have your knowledge. You have to forgive them for their unknowing—I will not say 'ignorance,' that is not a word I like to use. But because of their unknowing, they would find it difficult to accept what you were doing at that time, because it is against the normal patterns of human behaviour.

Les: Quite, but I know my wife would have understood completely.

Of course, of course and may I say it helps if only all of you would understand, if you can send your loved ones on their way with happiness and joy, but of course being human beings you also have human frailties and human conditions of emotion. But in this understanding of this work, you should know and understand my friends, that sometimes you are shedding your tears for yourselves, not for those beloved departed ones, because after all, are they not returning home?

Les: You are quite right it is a selfish action and if only people realised that, the severance would be much less painful.

On both sides yes, (Yes—) but as I have said, the emotional energy within you human beings is a strong attachment and it is not easily controlled, but that is something my dear friends, you can work upon. It does not mean that the love-bond is any less stronger than it was when the beloved one was upon the Earth, it means only that you have more spiritual strength—spiritual strength—that is what you should work towards.

Les: Yes, it is strange really how we get bogged down in the past, in what shouldn't be a ritual. I have a neighbour who lost his wife about 3 years ago and still takes flowers to the grave and is miserable doing so, because it brings back old memories. I've tried to explain to him that it's simply a waste of money—far better to send that money to the local hospice for the benefit of somebody—where it could be used—(Yes) but it just doesn't penetrate—that is the ritual, that is the thing to do, so he does it.

Yes but my friend, have compassion, because he is not ready for this knowledge. You can offer him seeds of advice, but you cannot make him take it. He is so engulfed with his grief, that he has entwined himself if you like in energies of grief, but what he does not realise is the departed one is also constantly drawn back to him, because of his grief.

Les: I try to explain to him, (Yes) for her sake.

You will not, because he is not ready to accept. (No) You have done your task in sowing the seeds of truth, but it is up to each individual. Remember if they are not ready to receive then find another who can be helped.

Les: Quite! Yes, I don't have any feelings about it now. (No) Years ago I used to be concerned that perhaps I wasn't doing enough to help them, but now I just accept the fact that they are not ready, as you say.

No, give compassionate thoughts—again we return to the power of your thought—and that is all the help you could give—he is not ready. You will come across many peoples in your lifetimes—all of you—who you would wish to help, but they are not ready, they will not receive. It is no fault on your part, you have done your best and you must leave it there. You must not chastise yourself, you must not be too harsh upon yourself, if you have sown seeds, then you have done much.

Les: Yes, you have made that quite clear in the past, that all we can do is to sow the seed, we shall never probably see the flowering.

You can never know what help you have given. It is only when the soul returns to us, that the full extent of the help is realised. He will know and understand when the time comes, how much you have given to him. That is something for you to all remember. Do not ever doubt that the words you give to others in truth and knowledge is ever wasted—it is not, it is not, and recognition comes when those souls return home.

Les: That's the main thing, isn't it? (Yes) Again it comes back to what you said earlier, don't wonder about the past—if we have done what we could, then the past is gone—

You are the result now of past times. You may only be one aspect of it, but past times belong in past times. You are trying to achieve things in this life, things which have gone before and perhaps are unattainable to you.

Les: I suppose logically, if we keep thinking about the past and wondering about it, we are in effect holding ourselves back.

Of course, how can you go forward, if you are constantly spiritually stuck in past times? You must allow the soul free expression in this present time of living.

George: Perhaps it is permissible to review the past with a view to learning from it. We can see our mistakes in the past and it can help us to learn a better way sometimes.

But that is not the purpose of your life. If you knew what you had to do it would be pointless in returning to a lifetime, would it not? Life would be too simple—what would you learn? It is like telling a young child all the knowledge of its school days in one instant. What would be the purpose? What would you learn? Do you not see?

Les: I think we have come George, if I can add to this bit, what we have spoken about in the past, the difference between the spiritual and the physical. To review the past is a physical attitude and we have to accept that our soul, which is incomprehensible to us in many instances, has learned from the past and our physical expressions don't matter anymore. Do you follow? (Yes) Reviewing is a physical attitude, but we've got to accept that if we have been living properly as we should, then the soul has absorbed the lessons, which we have learned in the past.

It is not necessary for the physical thinking to know what the soul has learned—it is not necessary. It is the soul's instruction, which is important and after all, what the soul expresses, shows itself within the physical living. Again you cannot separate the two; that is what you are trying to do. I think sometimes you see the soul as a separate being from your physical being, and this is most wrong. You cannot have a physical being without the soul. Is this clear to you? I think it is something we must discuss further, because you will not grow if you look upon the soul as a separate entity. You are spirit first and foremost.

Les: Yes, this is the thing we keep forgetting, I'm afraid.

You have to realise—that is the most important fact that you are soul, first and foremost. We will discuss this further; I feel this is something that perhaps is not quite fully accepted yet.

Les: Yes, that would be interesting to do. I think we also forget that the lessons we have learned whilst here—we are not necessarily aware of them, but we should be more conscious of the impact of our physical upon other beings here. As Salumet says, the soul and the physical are two and the same and if we considered more the impact of our actions upon our fellow creatures, then we perhaps might become more aware of the development of the soul, rather than consider physical reactions.

I would say if you have to stop and think, then it is not the soul at work. Perhaps that is something you can keep in mind, that any action truly from the soul, is spontaneous—it is important you understand this. If you have to stop and think with your physical brain, then think carefully. Do you have more questions?

Les: Well I seem to have monopolised the evening, anybody with more questions? (Pause)

I would rather that this topic be finished with this time, because we have many subjects to speak about and it would be most helpful, if you can be sure of what I have told you this time.

Les: Everybody quite clear on how to regard regression? (Affirmed)

Paul: Can I just recap a little bit, in case I'm not clear. So there's no reason for anyone to have past life memories, unless they're experiencing difficulties and they need to seek out that past life, in order to be cured of the problem.

Yes, if the soul is restricted spiritually or emotionally, then past life will be given, in order that the soul is freed, and that this present lifetime can continue in the way it was planned. If you wish to go under regression with the help of another, you must accept that what you may get could be in fact only communication, in the same way as you would receive it, as our dear friend has said, in the same way as anyone here would receive communication. Do not assume that it is automatically past lives, belonging to the soul. It may be past life of another individual.

Paul: Just one other thing, was it said once that some people are born with many past life memories, from childhood and that they do retain it?

That is possible, but it is of no use. The memory may be there, but it serves no purpose.

Paul: So they'd probably be better off forgetting about it and concentrating on this life?

Yes, but that possibility exists, yes of course. It would of course depend on the growth of the soul, as to what can be retained. But yes, that is a possibility, but it serves no purpose. Is that clear for you?

Paul: Yes that's clear thank you.

Les: Any more questions on it? (Pause) So everybody is much happier now with regression?

Yes, I do think that my words will continue in your thinking for many days to come and that can only be good. So I will say to you now my dear friends, I will take my leave of you, I know you will ponder my words and I know that you will be helped in what I have given you this time. (Thanks expressed)

Know my dear friends, I am always with you. (Thanks expressed)

~14th December 1998~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I would like to say to you this time, as you approach your time of festivities in your world that my dear friends, I once more will withdraw from you for a short time. But as always it gladdens us to see so much love extended to each other, at this time of your year.

Les: Yes it's a pity it doesn't happen all year, isn't it?—I believe I said that last time.

Yes it is—perhaps something each one could work upon, but nevertheless, any opportunity to extend love to your fellow man can only be good.

Les: Yes of course.

So I think for this time we will my dear friends have any questions you may wish to put to me that you are confused or would like more information on, that we have discussed in past times.

Les: Right, does anybody wish to start, or shall I?

Sarah: I do have a question, but you carry on first.

Les: Right, some time ago Salumet we did touch on the subject of cloning and you said then as we expected, that though there may be physical cloning, each clone would be used by a different soul. Now I've been thinking quite a bit about that recently, and you have told us also that the physical and spiritual cannot be separated. So in my thinking, if cloning is possible, then surely the spiritual side of that, would affect the personality; not only would it be a physical similarity, but if the spirit is going to be involved as well as the physical, I can't see that cloning would ever in fact be achieved.

You are perfectly correct. It of course will be achieved physically, as you say, and of course in doing so, you must remember as in your world so too in ours, there are like-minded spirit; and that spirit which would inhabit a cloned physical body, would be as close to that original spirit as was possible. Yes that would be the case, but again although the physical cloning will be how your scientists will say, 'perfect', that is not the case. It cannot, each soul is individualised.

Les: Yes, that confirms it thank you, which brings me to the second part of the question, which is very pertinent, because there is a great deal of discussion these days on genetic modifications. The genetic make-up of a person is usually associated with the physical, (Yes) but if the soul is occupying the physical, surely the genetic make-up, would be of a spiritual nature as well?

Of course, you cannot separate it—that you must fully understand. You cannot make two entities of it, it cannot be separated.

Les: So our scientists would be quite wrong then, in thinking that the genetic make-up is physical?

The genetic make-up is partly physical—physical is motivated by the spiritual.

Les: So the controlling influence in any case, would be spiritual?

Yes, until your scientists in this world, begin to realise that the human make-up as you call it, is more than physical, they will always be faced with many problems. And I would have to say this to you, that their journey towards genetic interference is not a good one.

Les: No I'm sure it isn't.

But there are many, many within our world who are dealing with this problem in yours. Mankind is coming to a stage in their evolution, where their knowledge is at times being abused. But I have told you my dear friends, that there are many from our world, who are enabling goodness to come to the fore and as all knowledge is gained, then it is our task that any knowledge given, be used for the purpose and the good of humankind and not abused by the few.

Les: Yes, that has happened in the case of atomic energy already, hasn't it?

In many instances throughout mankind's history, yes. Mankind almost is self-destructive at times, but there is much going on in our world, so do not be afraid.

Les: That's comforting to know, because I've given a lot of thought to the genetic implications that are arising now and it could go horribly wrong I'm sure. (Yes) So it's comforting to know, you are watching it from your side.

Of course—we are, we are.

Les: We unfortunately in our search for knowledge and our arrogance in that search, we just don't realise the forces we are playing with.

Mankind can only go so far.

Les: Good, that certainly is comforting and I think everybody else will find it so, won't they? (Agreed) We are grateful for the information Salumet and we do thank you. Sarah, I think you had a question for Salumet?

Sarah: Yes, I think Salumet we did touch on this before, but I can't quite remember what was said. If somebody is Schizophrenic and they do something 'bad,' how is that treated?

To simplify the answer, you should not be judging anyway. You cannot know what that soul's purpose in life is. You do not know and remember my dear friend, there is cause and effect. Never judge another human being, for you know not what their purpose is.

Les: So would a schizophrenic here then, have been deliberately created by the soul, or is it an accident?

We have discussed this before. You cannot take circumstances so literally, because what the soul does, is chooses these situations that will arise in a lifetime, to allow the soul to grow. So what you would term an 'accident,' may be an opportune moment for that soul, to create its own soul's growth. Do you understand this?

Les: Yes I do and this had occurred to me, because as you rightly said, we had discussed this quite a time ago, (Yes) but what puzzled me, was that if accepting that premise, what happens to the soul if the physical being has murdered another?

In that case, all aspects of circumstances would be viewed by the soul. You have to understand that freewill in your world has a very important part in your daily living. So if you are speaking about a soul who you say and call 'schizophrenic,' it would depend on the circumstance of that situation. There are cases where the soul would find that life situation, the one that they have chosen. In another case, the person may quite well be by their own freewill, capable of such deeds, that should not have happened. You cannot generalise, you cannot generalise. That is why you should never, never judge another.

Les: No, so it's what we would classify as a grey area then?

I think you would have to leave it as that yes. There is no clear cut way to answer this for you.

Les: No, I ask because there was just a snippet on the news this evening—somebody who was a schizophrenic murdered somebody and has now committed suicide —

You HAVE to remember, these people are suffering; they are suffering not only emotionally, but sometimes spiritually too. That is an area that we must touch upon another time. It is something I think, you do not fully understand in this world. Their physical is governed by the spiritual, but the spiritual too, is activated at times, by the physical deeds. It is a subject we must touch upon, another time.

Les: It's certainly very confusing to us, (Yes) to try and analyse all these aspects of the soul and the physical, but each time, we learn a little more.

Yes, that is the best way, take one step at a time. We can always return to it, to analyse and to expand upon your knowledge.

Les: That would be very helpful in the future yes, whenever it's convenient for you to do so, because it raises another question of suicide and we know basically that suicide is not a good thing, because it holds us back from development, (Yes) but there are cases where if suicide is honestly for the benefit of another person and not to escape the traumas of this life, then that individual is not punished, for having committed suicide.

No, again we are in what you have just termed a 'grey area,' a grey area in the sense of explanation. You cannot have clear-cut explanations, in many of life's situations. As much as I would like to explain away your fears and your doubts, it is not always possible to do so in your understanding. So in many cases you have to accept that not all that is given to you, can be fully accepted by you. I know that may seem unsatisfactory, but spiritual growth to the physical mind, is a most complicated subject. Do you understand?

Les: Yes, if we were more enlightened in the spiritual aspects of existence—I won't say 'living,' because that would presuppose physical living—(Yes) then these things would not be grey areas, because we would know the underlying purpose.

Yes, if you were more enlightened my dear friends, there would not be these questions.

Les: No, quite—we wouldn't need to ask them, would we?

No, you are human, you are at your state of evolution, you are in this particular time still in the state of much learning.

Les: Yes I was watching a program last night, about the various ice-ages of the Earth and scientists were talking quite glibly, about 400 million years and so on, and I thought then of what you have said, about the number of lives we have to experience—in fact it's a constant re-living—and our spiritual growth could be effected by those climatic changes, which have been happening, because living in an ice-age, would be so completely different from living in that tropical country now—(Yes) and I just gave up. (Chuckles)

Yes, you are always evolving, but does it not put into perspective my dear friends, just how short a time, the human age of one lifetime is? (Agreed) If you think upon that, then you begin to realise—and remember also that this planet is a very young one—just how insignificant one lifetime is. (Agreed) Then you might begin to grasp the immensity of it all.

Les: I don't think we ever can grasp it. We have to accept what has been said by various masters, (Yes) that faith is necessary—faith in the development of the soul.

Not 'faith' in the physical sense, but spiritual knowing, a spiritual faith that all is already known. And that what we come to try to teach you, is knowledge being brought, an innate knowledge that the soul already knows. It is a most complex subject, but I think we are gathering knowledge fairly well, within this small group of people.

Les: That's nice to know, because at the moment, it's like we are trying to understand the bible, or the Koran, by reading one chapter, or one page.

Yes, if I may say, if you master one page, then be pleased with one lifetime.

Les: Well thank you for the comfort you give us that we are learning anyway, otherwise we'd be awfully bogged down. (Chuckles)

There is much more for you to know, but as I said when first I came to you, we must go slowly, slowly.

Les: Yes I think we all fully realise that now and how important it is. You also said, if we missed one lesson, we would have to go back some time, to retake that lesson, (Yes) because it was all part of the whole.

Yes, you cannot make separations, there is so much to know. Now my dear friends, I think for this time, I will take my leave. I wish you all much love and happiness within your lives, until we come together once again. (Thanks + fond farewells) I have to say I feel most joyful that I will have this short break. My love is with you all. (Thanks expressed)

Les: And ours with you and we wish you great happiness, God bless you.

There then followed another through Eileen:

My goodness what a quiet lot!

Les: Thanks for coming again, very nice to have you with us once more.

Can't you liven them up! (Laughter)

Les: Can't you please liven yourselves up? How about that? (Laughter)

That's better. Last time I came, I thought you were all dead! (More laughs)

Les: It's just that we've had serious learning beforehand and we're still thinking about it, you know...

I know I'm joking with you.

George: I think you gave us a name last time, was it Mackintosh?

Umm, I change it all the time—what you like, that's the best? I say, call me—(Laughter)

Les: We'll call you our friend.

Well don't go that far—

There was more laughter and jovial chatter, including mention of his whisky still in the cow's booth, which was mentioned at his previous visit. He wished us well for our approaching festive season, finishing the evening on a light note and reiterating the need for laughter in the world.

~21st December 1998~

As expected there was no Salumet, but another communicator came through Eileen, saying that the time was right to give all the sitters a festive message. We were told to sit quietly and see who came close to them. Each was given brief messages of advice and encouragement. The advice given to Les has been included as it relates to the following week:

I'm wondering why there are so many ladies who surround you! (Laughter)

—This referred to Les's mother and his two late wives, the most recent being Ruth, who was also an accomplished medium whilst on Earth—

They are saying nothing, only that they are with you often and one in particular who was last to go—especially around this time of the year. (Les was very appreciative to have them around.)

~28th December 1998~

Les explained at the beginning of the tape, that he'd felt very ill over Christmas. (So poorly, that he'd questioned whether his time could be up) He had to ask for help from the 3 ladies, who he'd been told were looking after him from the Spirit realms. It had a dramatic effect and as he was recounting it all to us, the voice changed and he seemed to drift in and out of spiritual communication/trance:

Les: —the 3 ladies were responsible and probably others and I had the most wonderful feeling I've ever had of—absolute complete and overwhelming love and compassion and everything that we as humans would consider beautiful. The tears were just streaming and it was the most wonderful experience. So it looks as though you are stuck with me for some time! (Much laughter and loving chat)

Then one came briefly through Eileen:

I have come to say, be prepared for the return of the one who comes to you, next time. (Thanks expressed)

Then a softly spoken one came through Eileen:

As you come to the end of another one of your earthly years in this part of your world, we feel it would be appropriate for you to dwell and try to recollect, what knowledge you have gained, from this past year. We were most interested listening to you, at the beginning of this evening. I would say only this: It is something each one of you should bear in mind, that no matter what stage, no matter where you are in your lives, what difficulties, sorrows or happiness—whichever stage you stand at, remember always you are never alone. If you will keep this in your minds, you will be freed from all fear and of course we know only too well, how fearful each one upon this planet can become.

Les: Yes you're quite right.

Life brings to you all kinds of difficulties, many types of distress and sorrow. But know always that there is always someone close by you, who is there to help, if you will but allow them to. There is much to come I am being told, for you all. That is not to say, that your life will be smooth, it will not. It is the troublesome difficult times, which bring growth. But those times, need not be times of great fearfulness. I would say only this now, before I leave, that this evening, we give you the opportunity with us standing close by you, to discuss in whichever way you decide, to speak of what you have learned, in this past year. And as your year closes, can you truthfully say, I have done my very best? I have shown love to many, I have looked into my heart, I have shared myself with others, without any thought of reward. My friends, I say to you, analyse your souls and move forward, as does your years. I thank you for your attention and I will bid you all much happiness, much knowledge, but most of all, I bring to you peace.

(Thanks expressed)

We then began to discuss individually, what we felt we had learned throughout the year, the points are summarised below:

Les: I have done a great deal of self-analysis over the year, particularly in regard to my own privilege of being what is called your leader. I don't look at myself as that, but only as one of you, who happens to have a little more knowledge and has been permitted to pass it on to you. So I have done a great deal of self-analysis and questioning, hoping that what I do in the way of teaching has been correct, properly administered to your thinking and that you have benefited from it. I have also become much more aware, of a closeness of our friends. They repeat this many times and I can say with much emphasis, that I am much more aware of it now at the end of this year, than I was at the end of last year, because I've had many more experiences and I'm fortunate in being able now, to be very much closer to them and therefore enabling themselves to be very much closer to me. I also have come to the conclusion, that it's quite impossible to understand the complexities of spiritual living, or the ramifications of the soul. So I accept without question now, much of which I would have questioned 12 months ago. I think that is a fair summary, it's not everything of course, otherwise we'd be here all night —

Sarah then added that Les had been a very good leader, to which we all agreed and he replied that much of the leading came from the other side, rather than from himself.

Eileen: What I feel probably sounds very general, but I feel that each time I listen to the tape of Salumet, I'm amazed by the content of the subject to begin with, but in a sense I'm not surprised. It's almost like its natural. Does that sound very strange? (No!) But at the same time I do believe I've become much more humble this year especially. And I feel I've become a stronger person and I feel that anything that comes to me now, won't be any kind of shock, that I'll cope with whatever comes—it's this feeling of knowing, which I don't say puzzles me, but I find it a little strange, that I've accepted it all so very easily. But I would say probably humility is what I've felt most.

Others agreed that they had also felt this.

Les: But I would not be surprised Eileen, if the Salumet that speaks to us through you, communicates that knowing, as you call it, because you are part of the Salumet soul.

Eileen: That's a wonderful thought, but—

Les: Well I have thought this before actually and you have not confirmed it, but acquiesced in what I thought, without knowing what I thought. I think it's quite possible that you are one of the parts of the soul of Salumet—

Lilian: I look at the human race in a much different light, especially with the judgement thing. You can't judge others, you have to remember they're spirit, no matter who—things that happen in the world, you accept it more. Things that we thought were really quite dreadful—that we've chosen that pathway that seems to help there. Lots of things, but that perhaps is the special one for me.

Margaret: Well last year I felt I was so happy with my life and it just gets better and better, and I don't know why. I sit down and think—well, if I believe what we've been taught, and accept things as they are and don't criticise, it's much nicer. I find that I have no one from here to talk to about things, during the week, and I come here with so many things to say, and then I learn more and—I just live a happy life, and I think it's wonderful. When I walk into this room, there's an atmosphere of joy and happiness and there's not many people who can go through life being happy. I try to do the best I can for others, but I think someone's doing the best for me and that's wonderful.

George: My overall impression is: One started with an acceptance of how things are in spirit and how we are all spirit beings. And then a bit later on, one can have a deeper acceptance and a deeper acceptance, and you can't imagine that it's going to get deeper, but it does get deeper. And one seems to get carried along with this feeling. The bumps and happenings in the material world, they don't seem to have quite such significance, as one used to attach to them. The odd knocks, they become less important somehow, or less sinister—I accept that there are many things we can't understand, not in any detail. I accept that we can't understand the full nature of the soul—

Mark: I feel I'm very lucky to be able to come to this group. Related to that, I notice more people in my daily life, I marvel at the fact that they don't have a group like this to come to, and yet still manage to be really nice, good people. I think I've got more respect for people, because I know I've needed it very much. I feel so much—sometimes when I come here, almost the thought of coming after work and everything, almost seems like an effort, but I know I've got to come and once you get here, once you hear all the beautiful knowledge, it's a great privilege—I know I'm battling to make more time for the silence. A lot of the time, this is my only silence in the week, which is a terrible thing, but I know I've got to battle a bit harder to create that silence—I feel much more integrated in my work environment. I suppose that comes from a bit more understanding of people—

Sarah: I feel very much like Lilian re the judgement thing. Last year I know I was beginning to not judge people so much and to try and see the good in them. And I think that's continued and I do find if I am trying to judge someone, quickly I feel aware that I'm doing this and try and stop and see the good side. So that has grown a lot this year. I've also become a lot more confident in being able to pass on the message. Last year I was accepting it, this year having really accepted, I find it much easier to tell people about it, whereas last year, I was quite hesitant, I didn't quite know how to go about it, I wasn't quite sure—There are a lot of things I still find it difficult to explain, but I'm able to get the general gist over, to help others who are in difficulty, or just when somebody's said something, and I've thought ah, you don't quite know this and I'm just able to drop in a word. And I'm finding that much easier than last year.

Paul: I think I'm getting a lot of help from the silent times, now that I'm trying to do it more regularly. When I do have problems during the day, I can take them in, to that silent time and they do dissipate and I end up smiling at them, all the worries of the day. And I think in the everyday life, I have been pretty cut off in the past and a bit numb with my daily life. But it's beginning to go a little bit, there's still a lot more I think, but I'm beginning to enjoy life now. Things don't make me so angry or scared. I think in certain parts of my life, I'd just given up on, or tucked them away or something—I think now things in the world are generally—it feels a warmer place to be. It's all the power of thought.

Mary: I feel very young in this group—it's been about 6 months. I was just thinking when we were all talking, about how gently and how easily this group took me in and how comfortable it was coming in. I guess the biggest difference in this 6 months for me, is the letting go of judgement and also letting go of anger. In my day-to-day life, I find that I don't get angry with people, socially or in the workplace. I'm able to understand and I see them differently—I don't know if that makes sense? (Affirmed) Also, I can't explain it, but there's a calmness in me, that wasn't there before and also I don't doubt myself as much as I used to. I think I accept myself better than I did. Also, along with not judging other people, I'm not judging myself, in the same way that I don't judge others.

Anne: (A guest from America, who hadn't been here long) I would just like to say thank you for letting me come here. I can only tell you when I came to England I was in an awfully big mess—I'm not going to go home as big of a mess, but I am gonna go home with more tools, to work with. I'd like to ask a question though. I've talked to Mary about this, I don't want to stop when I go home, but I don't know where to go?

Les: Well, I'll give you an address before you go and if you write to them, they'll put you in touch with associations in your part of the States.

Anne: I appreciate that, thank you.

Mary: Leslie, something else in my life, and I did mention it to Anne—if I need something, and I'm not talking about material things, but if I need something in my life, and I sit back, it's there—It always appears, and it's getting to the point, where I'm expecting it to appear. If I need help, with thoughts or feelings, or whatever, someone always comes along to help.

Les: That's why we have been told, as was said at the beginning that never think we are alone. You'll not necessarily have a tap on the shoulder and someone say, this is what you should do. But the help can be given in a variety of ways and it might well be channelled to you, through another physical person —don't forget that. So many people think help is going to be some mysterious word, appearing on the wall etc., but help comes in many forms, and the most convenient form, best for your particular need at that moment. We do make the mistake of presupposing the way help is going to be given.

Mary: The word faith has taken on a new meaning, since I've been with the group.

Jack: I'm a bit like—it's the judgement thing again, I think I've become someone less cynical. I probably have some way to go, but it's getting better.

There then followed one through Eileen:

Good evening. So often we are sent thoughts of what is knowledge. Can I say to you, knowledge is action. What is action, but the formation of thought. In your words tonight, you have demonstrated to each other, that not only have you gained knowledge, but you are learning wisdom. We wish to say to you all, take heart, know that you grow, know that what is given to you, is individual to each one of you, that you cannot all grow together, but you must take each stage at your own pace. You have within your midst, someone here, who has expressed humility and we say look after him, because he has taught many, many people. He will tell you it all comes from our side. Let me tell you, we cannot work alone. So I will say, perhaps on each one's behalf, that he is given many, many thanks, not only from yourselves, but from many in our world. Those who stand close to you, have listened and are telling me now, that they are pleased at each one's development. (Thanks expressed) You must take the credit, because although you stand not alone, you have the power, the power of your freewill, to either learn or not. So I say to you all, God be ever present with you, in whatever form, you wish to know your God. I bid you goodnight and thank you once more for your comments and your attention. (Thanks expressed)

~January 4th 1999—first meeting of the New Year~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I am pleased to join you once again in this one of your new earthly years.

Les: Thank you we are very pleased to have you, we hope that you feel refreshed after your withdrawal.

I thank you. Yes much has been achieved since last we met. But more importantly, I know that the time spent in my absence from you, has been fruitful for you.

Les: Yes, I'm sure it has for all of us.

I would like to say to you all this time, there is much ahead of us in this coming year. I cannot say to you, that life will be free from strife, but what I can tell you my dear friends, is that in this coming of your new earthly year, that each one of you will grow in spiritual strength.

Les: That's a very happy thing for us to know, at the beginning of our new year.

I hope it is accepted by you all. (Agreement + thanks)

Les: It is yes and we're very grateful to you for telling us, because it does give us encouragement.

Yes, that is why you should know, you have been dedicated members in this work and I think that all of you have felt the benefit of the knowledge passed to you. (Affirmed) Therefore, I wish to give my thanks to you all and wish you to know that spiritually, you are ever-growing, ever-growing. (Thanks expressed) I do not wish to embark this evening, upon any new subject, I think it is enough that we blend together this time and perhaps next time, begin our serious work. I know also that life is still difficult for many of you, at different times. Let me just say this to you my dear friends: As you become stronger, come to know yourselves more, come to realise that you are part of a whole, then truly life will be more settled for each one of you—that physical conditions of living, will seem at times to be very insignificant. I could not use these words to many, but I am happy to say that the power for growth has been given to you. Now you must utilise that inner knowledge, not only for the best of others, but also for yourselves. It is all before you and now I say to you all, use the knowledge you have gained. No longer can you stay back and deny the power within your grasp. You now my dear friends, have the responsibility, to use what has been given to you.

Les: Would I be right in saying that this is going for all of us, to be the year of fulfilment of a duty?

If it is not, then I will not say 'blame,' but you must accept that each individual is responsible for the outcome of their thinking. This year, should be a landmark for each one of you, if you will so allow it to be.

Les: So the exercise of our freewill, is going to be paramount for all of us, during this coming year?

Yes, you can never erase the function of your freewill. You are responsible for all that you do. But as I have said, the power is within your grasp. There is much to be gained, if you will but allow yourselves, to be open to the spiritual knowledge that has been placed before you.

Les: So the opportunities are going to be presented to each of us in differing ways no doubt, during this year?

Of course, because you are at different stages, it will be given to you at the degree that can be accepted.

Les: And so it is then up to us to utilise the knowledge that you and others have brought to us, (Yes) during the last few years and to justify you and others, having taken the trouble to give us that knowledge.

Yes, there is much work for us to do, but although we have given much to you, you cannot remain passive, you must grow in that knowledge. This is not meant to be harsh words for you, but the time is imminent, when your co-operation, your spiritual strength, will be much needed. Each one of you my dear friends, holds responsibility, not to myself, or the others who come to you, but to yourselves. You must now use your soul, you must use the knowledge and you must not look back. This is a time, where we can learn much together. So my parting words to you this time my dear friends, are these: Live your lives in love and peace, because in peace and love, you can overcome anything in your physical lives. Remember all that has been brought to you thus far, and you will not go wrong. For the rest of this time, I would wish to work quietly with this instrument. I am sure you can find many things to discuss. All I ask is that it be done with quiet talk. I look forward to our meeting next time.

Les: Certainly, and before you go, I would like to thank you again, for all that you have been doing for me during the last few days and weeks.

My friend, whilst mind retains the purpose of this work, living will be easier for you. We are there to help you, if you so desire.

Les: Yes I know I've been receiving a lot of help with my health problems over the holiday period and I'm grateful to everybody, who has been so close.

Yes, you understand why, because you have begun to realise the importance of Thought. You my friend, have reached a milestone in your living. I will say no more, because there is no need. My love is with you all, until next time. (Thanks + farewells)

We then discussed how we could pass on the knowledge, recognise opportunities and ask for help in finding the right words, for the people around us. We discussed the difference between physical and spiritual thoughts and how the first 'gut feeling,' is the spiritual one, and the other thoughts, as we think about it, is the physical thought. We must learn to follow the spiritual thoughts, which come to us.

There was then one through Eileen, with a message for Jack:

—He is surrounded by a little mist—we feel some darkness, he brings to the surface of his thinking at times, moments of despair, which I would like to say to him, are mostly unfounded. He must not allow himself to be drawn down by these negative thoughts. We are ever with him and we wanted him to hear these words from us, to know that we will try to uplift him. But he must play his part and allow the light to come to him. We do not want to elaborate on these things, only to reassure him, that we are always close by.

Jack: Thank you very much, it's much appreciated.

We know, but we felt you needed to hear the words from us. May many blessings be with you.

Jack: Thank you.

~11th January 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I will take questions from you, but I would wish to work quietly this time with this one. There will be communication through other instrument.

Les: Thank you, yes I would like to put one question: At our meeting on Wednesday, a statement was made from someone from your world, that I couldn't accept and I would like some clarification. The subject of healing came up and as you know after healing, the healer cleanses themselves as it were, by brushing away any possible contamination. It was said that that wasn't the right thing to do, because the pain which could be removed by that, could be picked up by another person. I jumped on that straight away, because I don't think that's possible—we are talking of two different things, the possibility of contamination spiritually, being removed, but pain itself, does not exist, except as a thought in the brain, warning us that something has happened to the physical body. So it can't be a tangible thing that can be given to somebody else. So having queried this, the communicator then said no, you wouldn't know it's possible, because it's very, very rare. But I still cannot accept that pain as such, as we know it, could be transferred to another person, out of thin air.

Yes, may I say this to you: If someone feels that they are accepting someone's pain, they should not be allowing themselves to be used for the purpose of healing. I would say this to you: The thought that pain is transferred from one to another, must be discouraged—it is not so. What is happening is that the physical thinking is interfering. Is that clear enough for you?

Les: Yes, you have confirmed what I told the healers at the meeting, to ignore it and continue doing what they have been doing, for many years.

If the people being used for healing—and healing after all, belongs to the spirit, then you cannot accept any physical pain. It is as clear as that.

Les: Yes, thank you very much indeed, that confirms what I told them.

Unfortunately my dear friends, as in many subjects about spirit, there are many anomalies. You have to for yourselves decide what is acceptable and what is not. Also in our world, there are some who would, I will not say 'mislead,' but can misguide you.

Les: Yes I did explain this to my friends also, that they can only give information, according to the information they themselves have acquired up to that point.

Yes, it does not mean that they are wrong, but only misguided.

Les: Yes thank you very much for clarifying that.

Yes, may I say this to you: That as I have said to you, this coming time, will bring to you much new information, information I believe you will not be aware of. And so my dear friend, I will say to you, that our next meeting together, will start off, by bringing some of this new information.

Les: We look forward to that, thank you.

Now is there any anything more, that someone wishes to say, before I work quietly with this one?

There were no further questions and Salumet withdrew at this point, to allow others to speak, the first of which came through Sue:

Good evening. I trust everyone here is well. I understand that at this time of your year, you do suffer in your human body, from some aches and pains and different ills—

Les: We certainly do.

Yes, I myself used to be afflicted at this time of year. But of course, you can overcome these things, with the mind, as well as the cough linctus's and the tablets, can you not?

Les: So we are told, and we try, but I don't think we are as successful as we'd like to be.

But we must bear it with fortitude, must we not?

Les: Yes I'm afraid we do rather accept that that we have to bear it, because we can't dispose of it.

No, never mind, your time will come.

Les: I'm looking forward to it—I can't speak for everybody else. (Chuckles)

Come, come you are not ready quite yet—not quite yet.

Les: No.

We'll let you know.

Les: You'll let me know, yes I expect so!

On a more serious note, I have come with a request. Have we someone here, who is familiar with a gentleman called Francis? (None could connect with that name) No matter, do not rack your brains, it will come. I ask that when you recall this person, you send to him kind thoughts. He has been some long time, in the grey part of our world and we are pleased to say, he has come forward now, into the light. I—one moment please—He could also be recognised by the name Chuck. Perhaps in the meantime, in quiet times, before you take your rest this evening, you could all send out loving thoughts to this person please. And then in time, the bond between him and another, will be forged, I am sure. Thank you. (Affirmed) I'm sure you are familiar with Anna?

Les: Yes we certainly are.

She wishes to send great love to you all.

Les: Thank you Sister.

And says she misses her little chats with you, does that mean something to you?

Les: Yes, I'm glad she did, she's a very old friend of ours.

—You are aware of course that she has moved on a little and is involved in other spiritual matters.

Les: Yes we were told that some time ago. You are heavily involved in the same work, aren't you?

I am privileged to say that I have been given the opportunity to do good work in my world yes, and I am honoured to be able to do such things.

Les: It's a great pleasure to have you here and I'm going to ask you if I may, to give my friends here, a little information as to the work you do, because it is rather unusual I know and I'm sure they would be most interested to hear it.

I would be most honoured to speak to you on this matter, but may I brave your indulgence and ask if I may return one other time, because it has been agreed that I shall return to you on two occasions, to discuss deeper matters concerning my work and that of others. I do not feel I have enough time this time, to give you enough information. Do you mind if I refuse this time?

Les: Of course not, we shall look forward to hearing of it another time.

If you will forgive me, I will say to you dear friend, that you this time have, how do you say, 'jumped the gun'? (Chuckles) I am aware that you can, shall we say, 'pick-up' on thought waves, and I was going to ask you whether I could return to discuss my work and you came in a little quickly.

The conversation then emphasised the importance of humour, which has been discussed in detail elsewhere. They then spoke of those of the church who pass over:

—It is with sadness that we see so many people, who think that they are doing good work in the name of the Lord and really all they are doing, is making themselves miserable. They would not agree that they are miserable of course, but we can see the auras around them and they are not as bright as they should be.

Les: No and we can understand this, it is their own thought pattern, which creates the dimness.

Indeed, and some do take a while to come out of that mist when they join our realms. I am pleased to say that with my somewhat cynical outlook on life, when I was in the order, when I was on the Earth, it took me only a short time, to throw off the dark garb, and put on the bright robe. Do you understand?

Les: Yes I do.

Even some of the good sisters—and they ARE good, I am not decrying them, they would feel better, if they were allowed to dress in a brighter, softer colour, can you understand?

Les: Yes we understand perfectly...

There are some who dress in white, but predominately it is dark and that is a great sadness.

Les: Dark, black, brown, grey...all miserable colours.

But we hope in time, that we can bring enlightenment to the religious orders, not in your lifetime, or the lifetime of everyone here, but it will come, we are sure.

Les: Yes, so we have been told, it will come.

We are hoping that there will be sisters who come through to our realms, who will be prepared to return to a similar life, but with greater knowledge, so that they may educate people, to the right path in these matters, do you comprehend?

Les: Yes we do comprehend.

We have several now, who are doing such work and it is difficult to explain, but the other self looks on and also learns, does that make any sense to you? You are aware that your Spirit is not one, so I think you will understand a little of what I say to you.

Les: Yes, we have been taught that the soul has many parts.

So you have one part that was, shall we say a dour and stern Sister and another part that has been born and gone back to the religious sect, with a much enlightened mind. And both parts learn from each other. It is difficult I know to comprehend, but it is something, that will benefit your world.

Les: Yes I think we're all beginning to learn and understand a little more, of the complexity of the soul.

I must say I have still very, very much to learn, but I'm sure you will agree, it is great fun having your lessons, is it not?

Les: It certainly is, we enjoy it.

You have your lessons from your master who comes here and we are learning all the time, from many, many different teachers. It is great fun learning, great fun.

Les: I'm sure it must be. As well as the serious work, we get a great deal of joy and happiness, from what we learn here. (Agreed)

That is what learning is all about, enjoyment, satisfaction, the ability to take one small piece of information and store it and know that it can be used another time, for good. It is exciting, is it not, to learn?

Les: It is exciting, when I know that the work we do here, if it were based upon the type of attitude one finds in most churches, I wouldn't have been in the least interested, but when I knew that it had a sense of humour and you in your world also have a great sense of humour, that appealed to me, as much as anything else.

Yes, I look forward very much to my next visit. I have been told that I will be coming with another and for two of your meetings, we will be telling you something of what we do and why we do it.

Les: We certainly look forward to that.

Until then I will leave you. May I give you my name? My name is Sister Veronica Madeleine.

Les: Sister Veronica Madeleine—you missed out one didn't you? Sister SUPERIOR Veronica — I don't like to boast.

Les: I know you don't, but you're entitled to the authority, you've earned it.

Perhaps you do or don't know that although I am known as Sister Superior Veronica Madeleine, I like to be known as Sister Maggie.

She departed shortly after this and there then followed an amusing pair, through Sue (Mary) and Eileen, (Jim) who did a lot of work with the 'poor' children, over in the spirit realms. They both worked with Sister Maggie.

~18th January 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before I speak with you this time, I would say this to you all: That next time, there will be someone who will answer your questions on the arrival of the new human being.

Les: Thank you that will be interesting.

I understand your doubts, but wait for what is said to you, before you question further. It will be given to you in understandable terms, in order that you understand fully, the workings of life.

Les: We shall certainly look forward to that.

This brings me to what I wish to say to you this time, my dear friends. We have spoken much on this your planet, the evolution of this planet and many others within the universe and the cosmos. What you perhaps do not know and understand is this: That each inhabited planet is overseen by those of us, who have been guided to oversee the evolution of these planets. There is I believe amongst you all, a vision of one guidance for all.

Les: Yes, I believe you would be right in that.

Of course, I must emphasise at this point, that there is only one Creative Force, from which we all come. But I do not think you understand that many planets are guided individually, by many principles and forces.

Les: I had suspected that that might be so, speaking personally, because I have often wondered how angels came to be considered as helpers in this world, if it were not for people—I say 'people' reservedly—if it were not for entities, having been given control, just as you have told us. Various entities are given control over the flora and fauna of this planet.

If I may say, in each individual planet's control, if I may use the word, perhaps you are familiar with, there is 'hierarchy,' from the lowest to the highest, which governs each planet. But what I wish to tell you, is that the over-ruling guidance, comes from a number of beings—from great, shall we say 'consciousness,' higher consciousness, than you would perhaps expect.

Les: I see, so it is a chain of command, as it were?

Yes. These beings would not be known to you, in any form at all, because they guide and oversee the evolution of each planet in guidance from that higher force, from which they take command.

Les: Yes, that's very, very interesting for me and I'm sure it is to the others and it does confirm what I have long thought, to be the case.

This thinking is disputed by many, who can only see one overriding guidance. You must understand my dear friends that the evolution of different planets, are at differing stages.

Les: Yes, of course.

So guidance must come from the higher consciousness of those, who are able to help and guide.

Les: Yes, and that doesn't surprise me at all, what you say. Is everybody clear on that, the chain of command from the Creator—any queries?

Sarah: So they know what we are supposed to be doing, how the planet is supposed to evolve?

Les: They would be aware of it, they have that knowledge, I'm right, aren't I Salumet?

Yes, yes, the evolution of each planet is known, but as you also have come to know, individuals upon each planet, can affect many changes, with the power of their Thought. But what I would like you to fully understand, is that many of us who come to help, have chosen this pathway, in order that the greater scheme of life should evolve in each planet, in each individual form, and to cosmically follow the right pathway. The state of being that many of your earthly masters feel, comes from that consciousness, which individually controls the planet and not from that greater source of consciousness, as you may have assumed. Am I making sense to you, my dear friends?

Les: Yes, you are to me. Does everybody else fully understand that? (Affirmed) Let us say that responsibility is devolved, just as it is on Earth, in the human chain, everybody clear? (Affirmed) And to emphasise that, you've only got to go through your knowledge of history, to recognise that many people have been aware of underlying influences, right from the earliest time of history, but have not been able fully to describe them accurately. The description has just been given to us. Am I right in that Salumet?

I believe your words to be good and correct. I will not go too deeply this time, but I wanted you to have the understanding that there are many forms of consciousness, of which you could not be aware at this time. So I will say to you my dear friends, take these words I have given to you, think upon them deeply, and when we continue, I hope there are some questions for me that I can help you with. You have to try to begin to understand that there exist many forces, that as until now, you may not be aware of, but which I hope I can bring to you, to form a fuller picture of your life and usefulness upon this planet.

Les: Good, we look forward to hearing it.

Do you agree that you have enough to think upon this time?

Les: Well, I would love you to go on with your explanations, if you can do that and I'm sure we would all like that, wouldn't we? (Agreed)

I will go a little further then.

Les: Thank you very much.

When we have spoken in time past, of visitors to this planet, I have told you, that that indeed exists and I believe you now fully accept that many forms of life exist throughout the cosmos. (Yes—)

You must now accept that these 'space travellers,' as you call them, are also governed by higher consciousness, from their own worlds. You have to now accept that they too belong—and I will use the words of my dear friend, they belong to a chain of command. So what visitors you have to this planet, have already been guided here. As we speak about these beings—and I will tell you that these beings of consciousness, have never belonged to any individual planets—I will now tell you there have been visitors to this planet for many, many hundreds and hundreds of years.

Les: Yes, that doesn't surprise me at all.

So, what you think of as a new situation is not. We have within many galaxies, beings of intelligence who far outweigh many of your so-called 'masters' upon this Earth.

Les: Yes I can well believe that!

So, you see that whatever you feel this Earth planet is meant to be doing, it is fully controlled and helped by many forms of consciousness, within many galaxies. So, do you begin to understand, how small a part you play, in the scheme of existence?

Les: Yes we do. And what you say is quite logical to me, because you have explained many times, that our soul is of many parts. To me, it is quite understandable that if we are reflections of part of the Great Creator, then the Great Creator must itself be a soul of many parts and those parts are the consciousnesses, who are responsible for the evolution of the planets and for the carrying out, of the wishes of the soul, The Creator. Does that sound too complicated?

I think perhaps, to the others, but you my friend, I know think deeply. You have my friend, attained much knowledge in other times and which is innate within you. But I feel, with the others, they must think upon each point more thoroughly, in order for their understanding to come. The Great Creative Force is not known to me in any form, but I will say this to you: (Voice intensity increases) You are part of the Great Creative Force, therefore you ARE the Great Creative Force. You are that element, which comes from the release of consciousness, from the Great Force. There are many forces and many principles—many forms of consciousness, which emanate and are created into human form, into many planets, into many forms of existence—into all forms of life. You cannot describe that force, which has been created, because I do not know of any consciousness, which could give description to it. It is something that all consciousness works towards, but in so doing, it opens more horizons of thinking.

Les: Yes, we have come to accept that too. That the more we question, the more we learn, the more there is to learn.

(Voice becoming faint) But in learning you are being, in being, you are absorbed, in being absorbed, you become part of an aspect, in being part of an aspect, you become part of the Whole. I could continue, continue, in the many steps of all Creation, but I do not wish at this time to confuse you.

Les: No, we do understand that and we thank you for your consideration, but I think my colleagues will accept that throughout history, each individual attempt, has been made to understand, what you have been telling us tonight. Each individual existence has its own interpretation of what it is trying to understand. The Egyptians in the 'Book of the Dead' and the transfer of physical objects in their graves—the belief that one is taken across the River Styx, by an oarsman and the other day I was watching a programme on television, where a 1600 year old corpse was found in a lead coffin and to the astonishment of those who found it, it had a coin in its hand, to pay for its passage into the next world. So everybody throughout history has been trying to understand, but never has been fortunate enough, to have the explanations that you are now giving us. And for this, we are extremely grateful.

But, my dear friends, does it not show you that this Earth planet, is reaching a point in its own evolution, where knowledge is being given around your world, in order that you can evolve, in the same way that many, many others have?

Les: Yes it's true.

You are very young, in as much as knowledge goes. You know very little in the way of existence. But your time is coming, and that is why there has in your time, come the emergence of others, to show themselves to the human beings of this planet, in order that you understand that much greater knowledge is known by others, throughout your universe.

Les: Yes. Well we consider ourselves fortunate that we are having that information given to us now.

You must analyse it for yourselves. Your understanding even within this room is individualised by your own knowledge, your own development and your own acceptance of what is coming.

Les: Yes. I think I can say we all look forward to the acceptance of what is coming. I don't think any of us would have any hesitation in accepting it, since we have learned so much from you. Is there anybody here, who thinks that they are not able to accept what is coming to us, in the way of knowledge? Are there any restrictions in anybody's minds, to the acceptance? (Agreed) Everybody's quite happy about that—it is important? So everybody is quite happy that there will be no mental restrictions, placed upon an acceptance of knowledge that is going to be brought to us. If you have any doubts, I would remind you, if I may, of what I have said a number of times, in the course of the years, that I was told many years ago, when someone said, 'Why can't you give us proof?' And the answer was, if you have faith, you will receive the proof. Hasn't that been born out over the time we have been together? (Agreed) So I would suggest that if you keep hold of that, then your acceptance will not be difficult, however strange the truth may seem. Is that understandable to everybody? (Affirmative replies) Good.

I will say only this to you this time, before I leave you: I when I first came to you, begged for your patience, in what I had to bring you. We have reached a point my dear friends, when we can give you more, but what I wish to say to you all is this: That whatever your fears, your doubt may be, each one of you here has been chosen for some mission in your life. It may not be completely clear to you at this time. I know in past times, some of you have felt that your lives have been insignificant. I am here to tell you that these thoughts must be banished from your minds, in order that each one of you can go forward to complete the tasks that you have chosen. On these words my friends, I leave you with the love that enfolds you all, at all times.

Les: Thank you very much and God bless you.

~25th January 1999~

Mark's wife had recently given birth and it had been predicted by someone that it would be a boy. In fact it was a girl and Salumet therefore begins the meeting by talking about this and the nature of prediction:

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

This time, I feel that I must give to you, some explanations, because of the confusion within your minds.

Les: About the baby?

Yes, I have decided that it best come from me, in order that this matter may be laid to rest.

Les: Yes, we'd be very happy to hear from you about it, thank you.

Firstly let me say this to you all: It also applies to the coming of the new child, but within your world, there are many communications, there are many communicators.

Les: Yes indeed.

All of you know and understand, that the soul decides for itself, when it should come into the human form. I have told you that many times a pact is made between the parents and the child, before any of you decide to inhabit the human form, have I not?

Les: You have indeed—you've made it quite clear in the past.

Each one comes to the human form, with the knowledge of what your life should bring to you. But each one of you knows, that those pathways are not always truly followed, that because of freewill, you have many choices in your lives.

Les: Yes we do understand that and of course the freewill of the parents also, would have an effect on the potential child, wouldn't it?

That is what I will come to. But firstly let me say this to you, why these many confusions occur? I would say to you my dear friends, unless information is given to you by those of us you call 'masters' —but which I would reserve my judgement on those words—those of us of ascended consciousness who give information, you may be assured it is correct, because of our wider knowledge.

Les: Yes, we did talk amongst ourselves and say that the information did not come from you.

Yes, so that is the first point to keep in mind, that is not to say that any communicator that you come into contact with, wants to confuse, wants to fool you, wants to deceive you; this I tell you now is not so. But what they do bring to you my dear friends is the situation of the 'moment' and here we come to the crux of the matter, the situation of the moment. You all are by now well aware that Time is ever-expanding, that what was the thought of one moment ago does not exist now. Until you fully understand the complexities of Time, you will always remain a little confused. So I say to you this, my dear friends: When communicators come to you, they bring to you truth, as they know and understand it, at that time. And as time is ever-changing, ever-expanding, so do situations. Do you follow me thus far?

Les: Yes we do, no queries on that, are there? (Affirmed)

Therefore, let me come to the child in question. At the time the communicator spoke to the gentleman, (Mark) there was much doubt and fear within the lady's mind.

Les: You're absolutely right.

And of course I have told you my dear friends, how powerful Thought can be. There you were told, a boy child was waiting and of course you know and understand that the soul has no gender as such. You fully understand this? (Affirmed) Are you sure?

Les: Well, it has taken us some time to accept the possibility, but now I think we all do, don't we? (Agreed) Though we still think of the soul as partly he or she, because WE are humans, male or female, I think it's gradually sinking into our consciousness, that the soul has no gender, as you say.

The soul has no gender, therefore, therefore the communication between male and female energy upon the Earth, is of much importance. But it is not of overriding importance—that belongs to the soul. Each one of you has male and female energy, you understand this? (Affirmed) Because of the doubt and fear within the mother and the time-lapse of the communicator and the actual conception of the soul, change was made. The soul decided that the opportunity would be best left to another time. There WILL be a boy child.

Les: I thought there might be. (Chuckles) Thank you.

Please accept my words as being true. Please do not remain confused. The opportunity was there for another soul and because of the situation and the period of time between communication and conception, the soul decided that it would take form mainly as female energy.

Les: Am I right in thinking that the soul in doing that— (Les begins to channel) was aware that mother, would have greater affinity with that soul, (Yes) than she would have done, had it been a boy?

Yes, this is where the difficulty arises, that you have to understand each of yourselves as energy without gender. There comes a time to make the blending for the right conditions of the soul. Can you understand this just a little?

Les: I can, can you Mark? Because I think the basic structure of what has been said, is that unknown perhaps to Isik, (Mark's wife) there was still a latent fear within her, about the delivery of a boy.

There was fear about any delivery.

Mark: Yes, I was going to say, there was no need for her to know that there was a sex at all, if there was going to be fear of it maybe, I don't know.

No, the fear and worries come from another time. This is a complicated, not as simplified as I would like it to be for you, but it is important that you understand that no mistakes, no deceptions lie here.

Mark: Right, because presumably there wouldn't have been time to actually let us know. The only thing is, it was a little embarrassing, because I told everybody at work, thinking it was true, you see.

You must realise my dear friend, that you have learned a great lesson. You should always be more careful, you should think deeply about the matters I have taught you, and then these things would not be so strange. I have said that each one of you has a pathway in life, that each one of you comes to these human forms, with a purpose, but because of your freewill many changes happen. Life is ever-changing and until you fully understand the complexities of Time, I feel it will be a little difficult for you to know, that the communicators who come through to you, come to help, not to confuse. But they can only give to you, the knowledge that they have attained and the vision that they have. That is why I say to you, only if one of ascended consciousness speaks, do you fully accept that this can happen, without any difficulties, because their knowledge is far greater.

Mark: Thank you, I wouldn't want to appear ungrateful, (No) I'm very grateful for all the wonderful knowledge that has come through.

You have known one of life's experiences now my dear friend, it may have brought you confusion and embarrassment, but may I say gently, this has been of your own making, you understand?

Mark: In that I talked about what I'd heard, yes, (Yes) but we are encouraged to do that.

Yes of course, on the basis of knowledge, but not of prediction. There are many in your world who will give you predictions, but can I say that most of you in this world will have been told something that does not come to fruition.

Les: Yes, you're absolutely right, so far as I'm concerned.

But it is difficult for you to understand this I know. Again I will repeat to you, unless it is given to you by one whom you call a master, then you must realise that any information given, which lies in what you call your future, can alter. Time is ever-changing, situations are changing, the cosmos is ever-expanding therefore nothing stands still.

Les: Because of those changes, the duties of the soul required upon this Earth at any particular time, obviously are going to alter, aren't they? And the requirements are going to alter—

How many times have each one of you said, 'I will do this sometime in the future,' and it does not happen? (Agreed) If you try to simplify it for yourselves and realise the power of thought—and remember the soul, the unborn soul, has much greater vision than you, upon this Earth. It can see the situations change, it can see the change amongst the physical bodies, the physical being, the physical thinking. Therefore, you have to give that soul—the purpose and the knowledge it brings—you have to allow it to come, knowing that it's consciousness is greater, whilst in that ungendered state. Do you understand each one of you, what I say? (Affirmed)

Les: And Mark, particularly remember what was said about the soul of the boy was waiting—waiting can be indefinite.

Again we return to the complexity of Time. I do not think he fully understands, but I know that much happiness awaits him.

Mark: Thank you.

Les: That's nice to look forward to Mark—and Isik, (Yes) that there is a soul waiting. But don't put a definition of Time, upon the waiting. And as Salumet so pertinently says, never predict; even if you have been given a prediction, doesn't mean you have to pass it on—keep it to yourself. I'd like to add a little bit that's relevant. When I used to work so frequently with Ruth, we had a lady whose daughter was pregnant. She was anxious to know what the child would be and a communicator through Ruth, said wait a minute, I'll try and find out and after a minute or two's wait, she said I'm sorry, I'm not allowed to tell you, but my own comment to you, is it wouldn't be a bad idea to buy a football. It turned out to be a boy, who was madly keen on football. But that was the communicator's personal comment, and that was made quite clear.

There also has to be some realisation, that many communicators are themselves being fed information from many sources. Therefore, you have to allow for all of these things. Certainly I would say, knowledge and truth given by communicators, is mainly acceptable, because it is that truth, at that moment in time, but the difficulties do come when they are telling you of forthcoming events.

Mark: Then I would say that perhaps these people should couch their offerings in terms of, 'at this time—it may change,' (Yes) because then one wouldn't feel tempted to talk to people about it. (Yes) Or if one did, one would be covered, as it were.

Yes, again my dear friend, I know and acknowledge what you say, but in communication, you have to understand that the communicator also is working for the good of others, and does not mean to cause hurt or resentment in any way, but they are also operating through their free wills. Can you understand? (Yes) It is difficult I know, and I hope that the wider issue is understood by you all. We hear so often and you are right to say, that it makes you feel that what is given—and I will use your word, 'rubbish,' but my dear friends, that is not the way to proceed. It is a lack of understanding that is the problem when we are dealing with human issues.

Les: Thank you very much for all that. Anybody any question on it, anything you're not clear on, because I know Salumet wants it put to bed finally. (Pause) Everybody happy about the explanation? (Affirmative replies) And if we are honest with ourselves, we must say that the information which is given, has been given to us in the past a number of times. How many times have I said to you, if you have half a dozen descriptions of a holiday, you'll have half a dozen different descriptions, all of which to the person giving that description, is an honest endeavour at the truth. Always keep that in mind.

You see, the communicator at that moment in time, knew that the soul was waiting for the opportunity to be born, but at that moment in time, as was said, the male energy was the overriding factor. But in the interim, those happenings changed. If conception had happened in that moment, then you would have no doubt, that that male energy would have shown itself. Can you understand? It is a complex subject; we have the soul, we have the complexities of time, we have the limited knowledge of communicators and all of these things cause much confusion in your world.

Mark: So there wasn't an over-statement of the sex of the child? My confusion is that it doesn't quite seem necessary to state the sex, if it's uncertain—

But it is not uncertain, there is a boy child who will show himself to you. The timing this time was not right; perhaps that simplifies it for you. No, what was given to you was not incorrect, what happened, was that situations, fear and Thought and many other factors have changed that.

Mark: And would you say that it was all meant to be as well? The thinking that it was a boy, was actually helpful in some way?

It has been a lesson for you my dear friend, in jumping to such conclusions and not thinking of what has been given to you in the past. By not analysing and realising what I have taught you, you my dear friend, jumped to conclusions. Do you understand? (Pause) No, we still have confusion, do we not?

Mark: I'm still a bit confused, yes. Maybe I could have—you can't say that it was six of one and half a dozen of the other? That the message wasn't terribly clear and that maybe I didn't think of all possible outcomes? I understand the confusion that you felt, in having such a communication, of course we do. But what you have to understand is that when things do not work as you so desire—and this happens many times in your lifetime—you have to understand that these situations are not as clear-cut, as you would wish them to be.

Mark: I certainly understand that now.

Yes, you could say the communicator was wrong, but I do not wish to say that.

Mark: I don't want to say they were wrong, but—

But you feel they should be more reserved, yes?

Mark: Possibly, it was a little ambiguous, maybe a bit too ambiguous.

This is what happens I have to tell you, and as you know, many communicators and I am sure this good friend will explain to you, can become over-enthusiastic in their communications. But it is not because of any desire to confuse or deceive.

Mark: No, that's important to know.

But what you have to understand, that there were complexities of many things and the overriding fact, remains with the soul. Energy and time are two things, which you will always find difficult, but which I hope we slowly can bring to you, in some form of understanding. I fully understand that you all were confused. But bear in mind in any communication, which I believe you say 'forecasts' the future, is always liable to some flaw.

Les: Yes I would like to back-up what Salumet says about that, I think it's highly relevant you should all know it now. Years ago I was told we would have Direct-Voice Communication, you know what that is, don't you? (Agreed) It's never happened. Some years ago—and I didn't tell anybody but those in the circle—but some time ago when it hadn't happened, I asked the reason and I was told there were many factors operating to prevent it. Particularly, there were those on their side, who considered that it would not be appropriate at this time, full stop. Now, add to that the fact that Salumet has given us the invaluable knowledge that he has given us, and you I hope have absorbed it to the greatest of your ability, but you would not have had that opportunity, had direct voice been given. You follow? I was disappointed at not having direct-voice—I don't mind admitting it, but obviously my desire for it, wasn't right. But I've never for one moment regretted, that the time has been given, to your development and mine, in another way. So far as I can see, it will be more beneficial for everybody, because you will have heard repetitive voices, but you would certainly not have got the information, the deep information and insight that we have had, that we've been fortunate enough to have, because of the time available in which to have it. So I imagine now—I would never have done so, but I think the time is right for you all to absorb what I have said and accept that we are merely an insignificant part in the scheme of things. What we want, what we'd like is not necessarily what is right, for the overall development of the soul. Any questions? I apologise for interrupting Salumet, but I felt it was quite important.

No, my dear friend, you find words, which do not always come easily to me. You understand the language. I know what I would like to say, but I know also that the capability of you all is limited. And this is the strongest barrier between us that we find it difficult to tell you in simple terms, many, many deep matters, but it should become easier, as your own consciousness grows. You will understand situations, which at one time would have left you confused, but as I have said and I will repeat before I leave you, unless information comes from one of ascended consciousness, then you must realise and understand, that the whole of life is changing, moment by moment. That is the difficulty, that those of limited knowledge, those who see a little further than yourselves, but also are limited in their knowledge, can give to you information, which to them at that moment in time, is correct—that is what you must remember. But I do understand your human feelings of confusion and I say to you my dear friends, put aside your human emotions and bring forth spirit, and in doing so you will better understand the way of spirit. I hope this time I have helped you to understand. I did feel it important that I myself bring to you the explanation, in order that you can clear it for yourself, within your own thinking. I will leave you all this time; I want you perhaps, to think upon my words once more and try to see the wider, wider scope of your thinking. I leave you all, I want you to know, that I am always with you. (Thanks + farewells)

Les: Just going back to direct voice, to finally put a cap on it—yes I was disappointed, I had to accept that it was not going to be and I also had to accept, that had it happened, it would as I have said, repetitively taken voices from the other side, of those very close to us, NOT masters, they would never come through. So, which is the more advantageous for the group as a whole, repetitive communication which is very nice and a bit of laughter and so on, personal information—

One then slipped in as Les channelled:—or the depth of spiritual development, which you have had. We know about the disappointment of this one who speaks to you, we know too now, that in his enhanced spiritual awareness since you have had the master teaching you, he is glad that what was promised, did not in fact occur. He knows that your spiritual development has far exceeded what would have been possible in the time available for instruction, had direct-voice communication been permitted. Therefore, if I may suggest to each of you, if a physical disappointment is of concern to you, please, please always look for a spiritual background to that disappointment. Is this clear? (Affirmed) Then I wish you farewell my friends. God bless you, give you enlightenment and lessen the impact of any physical disappointments, you may receive in your life upon this Earth.

George: We have received great gifts, God bless you.

Thank you, I'm glad you look upon it as a gift. It is rewarding to those who come to teach, to give of their knowledge freely, in the hope that you too, may eventually aspire, to the beauty of the enhanced consciousness, which they bring with them. God bless you all my friends. (Thanks + farewells)

~1st February 1999~

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

This time, we will not embark upon new issues, because we are lacking in some numbers this time.

Les: Yes, we are two short.

Therefore I believe it would be of benefit if we discuss your questions this time.

Les: Certainly. Right, who would like to start please?

Sallie: I'm not sure how to phrase this in the right way. We are not here to judge people, because we don't know what we've done before—I'll try and get to the point here. I'm talking about sexual perversions and I don't understand really why people do things like that. I'm just trying not to judge I suppose—I'm having problems with it.

Yes, when you find it difficult to withhold judgements, you are expressing that most physical trait, which holds you back from spiritual expression. I have spoken before about this and many subjects, which you upon this planet find most difficult. If you will look back over my words, you will find that the explanation lies within the spiritual realms of your being. What is being sought is light, in those who retain darkness. We have discussed this matter before and rather than have lengthy discussions this time, may I suggest that you listen to my words, of past time? (See transcript 29/01/96)

Les: I can go through that with you afterwards Sallie.

Sallie: Thank you.

Les: The question arose when we queried why we had the paedophiles to contend with. Salumet explained then that it was their spiritual self seeking the light, which surrounded those children. He emphasised that the physical free will overcame the spiritual requirement and he also emphasised, the need for the spiritual to look after the physical and the physical to look after the spiritual, do you remember?

Sallie: So in some way that individual's spiritual side is not being listened to at that point in time. The physical side is actually being the stronger element?

Yes, they are allowing the physical element to take over. But always you must look upon these matters, from the spiritual aspect.

Sallie: The difference with my question was—I won't drag this out, but I wasn't thinking of people who go and rape little children, I can understand from what we discussed, about them being attracted to the light. I'm talking about individuals, who have sexual perversions with adults, which can be painful, or sickening—

Yes I understand what you say my dear friend. It comes down to one issue, that of physical self-gratification, without any thought or feeling for another human being. They will take what they feel to be their right, but spiritually they are wrong. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes, so although I mustn't judge, because I don't know what I've done or whatever, I am right in feeling—not in judging, but the actual feeling of—or am I right in feeling that it's wrong, there is no right and wrong, is there? I've answered my own question now I think—

Les: There is right and wrong, there must be, otherwise one would not negate the other. But if I might suggest Sallie, you are still looking at things, too much on a physical plane, (Yes) rather than spiritual.

This will always be a difficulty with you all, that still you do not question actions or thought, on spiritual levels. Whenever you doubt or question yourselves, place yourself into your own spiritual thinking, and then your answers should become more clear. Do you understand? But I feel the lady needs to be reminded of my past words.

Sallie: Yes thank you, I'll listen to them again.

Les: If I can remind you of something else Salumet said not too long ago Sallie, he asked us to give thoughts to those who are distressed here, and in their world, before we go to our rest. Now, I have remembered this a number of times, because recently we had that earthquake, which was ghastly in a physical sense, and I felt almost in tears about the poor children etc. etc. I had to prevent myself feeling that and tell myself that my responsibility is to send my thoughts to them, that they may be helped in whatever way is best for them, by those who are there to do so, not to distress myself physically, because I can do nothing but that.

And may I add to those wise words, also that in expressing physical distress, not only are you sending those thoughts into the ether, but they are being picked up by those already in distress. So can you see the problems that are created by these physical feelings?

Sallie: Yes.

Do not feel my dear friends, that as you sometimes say in your world, that you show hardness—that is not true, you are showing your true spirits, but denying the physical hold upon yourselves. Can you understand this? (Affirmed)

Les: Not clear are you Sallie?

No she is not.

Les: May I suggest another one. What I do at night, is knowing that I physically am quite incapable of helping those people, as I am incapable of helping those recently lost in the mud-slides, floods and whatever—any natural disaster. I ask rather that those whose task it is to help those who are suffering, may receive the power and inspiration to do what is necessary, for the ones they are serving physically. Do you follow?

Sallie: I do yes.

Les: I don't think any of us can do more than that. We are forgetting I think, and I'm guilty of it sometimes also, that the power of thought is not only a power for good, it is an ever-lasting ongoing power. And as Salumet said, thoughts go into the ether, and as he's said in the past also, there are those, whose duty it is—

The rest is channelled by Les: to direct those thoughts, where they are most beneficial, for those who are in need of that help. Is this clear to you now? (Affirmed) You do not accept always, that thought is an ever-lasting, living power. You treat it like a page of words, to be examined and ingested, a little at a time, and the book then closed. Do you understand this? (Affirmed) Thought is not one volume, thought is the complete and utter knowledge of the universe.

Sallie: If my thoughts haven't been very kind about a particular person in that situation and I feel I've sent these thoughts out in a negative way, is there any way I can undo those thoughts, or should I just try harder to be more positive?

You have answered dear lady, you must be more positive in your thinking, in the spiritual sense, rather than the physical. Thought is ever-lasting, all-creating, all-pervading, and what you do not realise, all-knowing. You do not necessarily have to issue the correct words physically, for your thoughts to be understood, if your thoughts are directed in the right way, to those who may need the benefit of them. Do you understand that?

Sallie: Yes I was just wondering if there was any way, I mean by actually concentrating very hard to try and make your thoughts better, because you've sent out some thoughts, which aren't very kind. What I want to do is negate the nasty thought that I've sent out, (Chuckle) but I don't suppose I can do that that easily, can I?

You do not need to send nasty thoughts—that is the basic thing you must understand, there should be no nasty thoughts. Have you not been told in the past by our friend here that if you cannot alter a condition, do not attempt to force an alteration, STEP BACK.

Sallie: Yes I think I've messed up a little bit. I was just trying to see if there was any way that I could undo it. But maybe it's just a lesson.

If it is not done in the first place, then there is no need to undo it, is there?

Sallie: Yes, I agree yes—

So I suggest dear lady that you attempt always to NOT put a nasty thought from you, or to judge. As you become accustomed to doing so, it will become much easier for you. Is there any further question you wish to ask on this matter, before I depart?

Sallie: No, I've got to think about it I think, thank you.

God bless you my dear, God bless you.

Sallie: Thank you.

Now, with apologies to the master, I will withdraw.

Les: Right any more questions for Salumet? Somebody must have one, I can't always monopolise the evenings.

George: Perhaps I could ask a question about the Earth entities, which was a recent teaching. Since then, I have reread the account of St. John's vision of the future, on the island of Patmos, in the book Revelation. I think he describes some of the Earth entities in that account. He talks of 24 elders, and 4 beasts and a number of angels. Would these be the same Earth entities that was part of your teaching?

*I understand your words my dear friend. Have I not told you that on this earthly planet, there have been many masters of vision? I believe we discussed at great length, the subject of those who have what you term, fore-vision. And I will say to you only this: That in accordance with their visions of the time, they were open to much misinterpretations. They could only at their own time in existence, express their visions, in the terms of that particular time. What is at fault in this day and age of your planet, is that mankind sees himself, as the all-knowing, when in fact in many instances, he sees only what he wishes. But I will say this to you, it is of great matter to you I know, but I am puzzled why it should be so. Yes, that vision had its parallel, with what you see today and what has been said. But remember always my dear friends, that much has been said in your world about those masters of vision, which has been fabricated, it has been used for their own ends. Do you see?*

George: Yes, thank you.

Les: And it still happens George—listen to some of the church sermons, if they are not fabrications, what are?

But also much truth is given, but the problem I believe is in sorting out what is truth and what is fabrication; that is the difficulty in your world. But I hope my answer has been helpful to you.

George: Yes, thank you.

Les: Don't forget that the effort in those days, was to give descriptions, not necessarily of what he saw, or was aware of spiritually, but to give a description, which his illiterate followers could understand. (Yes) So forget it, it's gone past, dead; it doesn't matter what he thought or said. You will never get to the essence of his spiritual knowledge, or desire to educate spiritually. How could he do it other than be parallels and parables?

Yes, may I say a few words to you all my dear friends? (Yes please.) What I would wish to say to you this time, much has been written of your future, much has been said of visions my master upon your Earth. I will say this to you, and I hope my words sink deep within your soul: What you should be thinking about my friends, is this moment in time — THIS moment in time. Why are you so interested in what is to come? Are you not wasting those precious moments, when you could be living now, not in past times, not in time to come, but in the here and now? That is where your best efforts should be concentrated. After all, your future as you call it is the result of today. Do you all understand this? (Affirmed)

Les: George, may I go back on what you asked, I think it applies to us all at different times, or has done: What use is it for your spiritual development, is the constant questioning of the past?

George: Well it's just that I've always had an interest in the teachings of the masters and the visionaries of the past and it's been an interest and I've felt that there has been a reinforcement of the truth of the present, in some of those old teachings.

Les: Yes, but you have progressed beyond that or should have done, by attending this group. So why keep treading on the heels, when you could be leading what they did? Is that a sensible statement?

George: Yes that is a sensible statement. I have been writing a book, which attempts to link the past, the present and the future and hence my interest in past statements, and being able to present a case involving knowledge from various times.

Les: Yes but you're still going back into the past. Why not let the future itself emphasise the past? It would be automatic. I can see your point and I don't wish to sound as though I'm criticising, I'm merely trying to understand why you spend so much time in the past, when you could well be concentrating more perhaps, on your possibility of automatic writing, which is more important.

George: Well I still assign time to that.

Les: But your mind is still full of the past, so those who are trying to use you George, are being blocked. Had that occurred to you?

George: Well no I don't think I accept that. I don't live in the past, I only have passing interests—

Les: How do you know it's not affecting your mind? You say you don't live in the past, all right I accept that, you live a daily life, but you obviously are spending a lot of time dwelling on the past mentally, when you could perhaps be giving more time in the silence, or to be asking for help in being used.

George: Well I do devote daily time to that.

May I speak please? (Yes please.) This is a hic-up of an educated gentleman, who seeks correlation between all times. There is nothing wrong with this, but what he does not fully realise, is that he needs no affirmation, of what has been given. What you must do my dear friend, is allow your own spiritual self to come forth, and then all information, past, present or deemed for the future, will take shape in your spiritual thoughts, in order that there is no necessity for the constant seeking. You must allow that inner knowledge, because each one of you has this knowledge within, if you will but allow it to come forward. Each one of you if I may say, knows within what has gone, what your present time should be and what you should be seeking for in your future. You seek only the future, in order that you may grow, that you may grow spiritually. Again I have to say to you my dear friends, there is too much separation, between what we call spirit and the physical being. Your physical selves should become but a mirror, a part of that spirit, which should shine forth, as you grow in understanding. But in each of you, there lies the difficulty in understanding what I say to you. You must allow all physical interest, to be placed where they belong, and I know you will say to me that you are living physical lives. Yes of course, but WHY are you living these physical lives? Because your spirit has returned you to this planet, in order that the spirit may grow, that the consciousness may expand, and in this lifetime my dear friends, in order that each one of you, may in your own way, spread the truth, the ultimate Truth. That is the purpose of your lives and until you can place your physical beings where they belong, you will always have these difficulties. I am trying to help each one of you. I can only do so much, because again I have to say to you, that your freewill obstructs much that you can gain. Although we have taken great strides since we came together, there is so much still you do not grasp or understand. You HAVE to find yourselves, you HAVE to go within, you HAVE to know what is important in this lifetime. And I say to you, let us begin with dwelling on this moment Here and Now.

Les: If I might carry on Salumet for a moment, (Yes) perhaps my own experience might help my friends. I don't talk a lot about what I do or think, but I went through these problems many years ago and I had to decide of course, as Salumet said, what is the difference, and how to separate the physical from the spiritual. It can't be done in a physical sense, so we come back to thought. Years ago, when I used to get all hot and bothered about things, and get the typewriter out and do a nasty letter to somebody about something I objected to on TV. Then I began to ask myself, will it make a difference? I came to the conclusion that my pitiful letter, amongst the many thousands I get, possibly taking an entirely different view was pointless. So I came back to the question of Thought. I am trying to usurp the powers of other people, who can direct those thoughts. Let me do so and so, when I pray, when I ask for help in this direction or that direction for somebody, that my thoughts be issued, that they should be helped by those who have the power, the knowledge and the ability to influence the thoughts of others, not by physical pen and paper, but by mental persuasion in some way or other, which is beyond my understanding, but which I accept can be done, if it is asked for in the right way and for the right purpose. Is that clear to everybody? (Affirmed) And I would suggest that if you also instead of getting hot under the collar as you must do sometimes being physical beings; disregard that feeling and think well, what's the point, if it's not affecting the person, whoever it is those thoughts are directed against from me, it's only affecting me; it's negative thinking and that is denying my spiritual growth. So accept the fact that there are those with much more knowledge, much more ability and much more wish to do, what I wish to be done—so leave it to them. You don't put a car in a garage for an overhaul and then stand there telling the mechanic what to do, do you?—Unless you're a BF—leave it to the man who knows, leave the application of the right thoughts, to those who surround us and who have the ability to take our thoughts, into the right direction, for the right purpose. Any comments on that or can you accept what I am trying to say? (Affirmed) So disregard the physical and one's own physical desire to kick someone in the pants, it doesn't serve any purpose. Pass the responsibility, which you are entitled to do, to those who have far greater knowledge, far greater ability, to perform, what you wish to be performed. Follow? (Affirmed)

George: Yes, reinforce their ability, with your good thoughts.

Les: Absolutely, you shouldn't have bad thoughts anyway, as was said to Sallie, if you don't have bad thoughts, they haven't got to be undone. So try and make sure—and it's not easy I know, but try and make sure that the thoughts are not bad. Right, any further questions for Salumet?

I think this time my dear friends, there are enough thoughts being studied. So I would say to you all, that I hope my words once again, bring to you time to think, time to come to know yourselves a little more. After all, it is only in so doing that you will realise that each one of you, each one of you at your own stage of development, also have your own thoughts, your own problems to think upon. But if you allow yourselves to come forward as I have told you, then none of your problems would exist. I would say kindly to you my dear friends, that at times you truly make your own lives most difficult, by your thinking. So I will leave you once more, to ponder on what we have spoken about this time and know and understand, that as we continue, many things will become more clear, but only when you allow that spiritual self to shine forth. You are beacons my dear friends, it is time now for you to shine and allow others to see; not from your words, not from your actions even, but from that spiritual glow, which surrounds you all when your thoughts are in place. Know my friends I am close to you, and until such time as we come together once more, I say to you only this: Allow your thoughts to be of purest kind, hurt not another one of mankind, because they after all, no matter what their physical situation, belong to that same energy and as such, deserve the same kindness and caring that you would wish for yourselves.

Les: Thank you for those words and for the wisdom you have given us tonight. (Thanks expressed) God be with you.

~8TH February 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time, I will not speak many words, but will work with this one. But I wish to say to you this time, especially to you, my dear friend: There have been many around you, since last we met.

Les: Yes, I have been quite aware of them on a number of occasions, and I appreciate them being here.

Not only do they come close to you, but you have come to us many times.

Les: Good, that's very nice to know, because I have been hoping that that has been happening

You know and understand that this is so.

Les: Yes, I have been following what you asked some time ago. It is as I say, very pleasing to know that it is happening.

I will leave it with you this time. What I wish you all to know is next time we come together I will bring to you someone who will discuss more fully with you about colours and light. (Good.) This I promised to you some time ago, (Yes you did.) and we do feel that now the time is right. So be prepared next time, for someone of knowledge about, light, colour and vibrations.

Les: Good, because we know that that does have a very important impact on living here. None of us fully understand the benefits which we can get from it. I have been personally trying to absorb the gold and white during the silence that I've been having and I feel that it has been very, very beneficial to me.

Yes, well I know that your understanding will be greater when the explanation comes to you.

Les: Good, we'll look forward to that.

It was necessary that your understanding was more fully developed before we could bring this to you.

Les: Yes, we can accept that, because much as we wish to learn and much as we have learned, at times, they are still only words, (Yes) which do not have the spiritual impact, from which we could benefit.

That is why there have been many repetitions of the same advice, because in the repetition, there comes knowledge or understanding.

Les: Yes, you're quite right.

But now I will say this to you, there is someone to speak with you through this other lady. I ask only that whilst I remain working with this instrument that there be no sudden outbursts of noise, please.

Les: Quite, yes we'll keep it all at one level.

Know always I am with you.

Les: Yes, thank you. (Les becomes emotional/tearful at this point) And I would like to thank those you are with my son, (Yes) and his wife; I know they come in with them—they are on holiday locally at the moment, and I can't explain the feeling of the group which comes with them.

Yes, I know there is no need for explanations. Accept what is—accept what is.

Les: Oh yes, I shall—I do. It's a wonderful experience being aware of them coming in with my children.

This is your spiritual awareness reaching new heights. With it, with the spiritual awareness comes the human frailty of emotion—but accept what comes to you.

Les: I do and I am extremely grateful for it.

We know and that is why your consciousness has raised so much in the past few of your years. Know and accept what comes and what is to come.

Les: Yes, I accept it very, very gratefully.

It is hard for you humans to know and understand that spiritual light which is around and about you at all times. In the darkest of your moments, there is light. In the joyous moments, there is light, and I hope, next time, to bring to you a little more of the understanding, which will help you to understand the words you have uttered to me now.

Les: Yes, thank you very much indeed. God Bless you.

There then followed on through Sue, giving information about tapestries in the spirit realm:

Good evening (Welcomes)

It is a great honour that I come and sit with you. I hope you will be happy with what I say to you.

Les: I'm sure we shall be.

Please forgive me if I am a little hesitant to begin with, because it has been some considerable time since I have worked in this way.

Les: Is that so? We are very happy that you should have decided to do it for our benefit again.

I think we are becoming compatible this time now, the lady and myself. Yes, I feel that we are bonded—this one and myself. Have you ever been told about the life tapestry? Has anyone ever been here and told you about the workings of myself and my ladies?

Les: No I don't recall it. We have had people in the past telling us that they were making tapestries, but they were doing so as a communal effort, in order for them to be displayed elsewhere. But we have never had any in depth teaching on what you do.

I have not come to teach this time, but if you and your friends are interested I can tell you a little of what we do, but it is not teaching in the manner which you know. Let me begin by saying that since Creation there has been what you would call a scroll depicting everything that happens in all the different spheres of life. You understand what I say to you.

Les: Yes, are you speaking about just this planet at the moment?

For myself, yes, but I am sure you are aware that whatever myself and my ladies do, is mirrored in different parts of the cosmos.

Les: I'm sure it would be.

Since Creation, every aspect of Creation if you will—let me say that it is not quite the right word but it will suffice. Every aspect of Creation has been noted and there has been someone to write down everything—I believe you are aware of that—you know of the books of knowledge, you have heard of this before?

Les: Yes we have.

There is also the life in picture form, can you understand this?

Les: Yes—one picture can be much more evidential than many hundreds of words.

You are quite correct in that. I can only say to you that there are many, many people involved in the tapestry life. It is their chosen work, you understand? (Yes) Some people will work on it for many, many of your years, others for a short period of time, as a learning process. They may work on part of life that they have been unaware of up until now, do you follow? (Yes—) Therefore they are learning about times past that they have had no knowledge of.

Les: Yes, I understand.

Some work in groups, others alone—it is difficult to explain to you, because your knowledge is not quite sufficient to understand how they put the life onto what you would call a canvass.

Les: Yes, am I right in thinking that although you call it 'writing,' it is not physical writing as we understand it. They are transposing words from thoughts of themselves and thoughts they are receiving and those are being transposed unto the tapestry, without the need for physical writing.

You are partly correct, but I must say to you that the word 'writing' is not correct. The writing is done in the mighty tomes of knowledge—the tapestry is as you would know a tapestry on this Earth, it is picture form, not words.

Les: Yes quite, but it is formed by thought.

Indeed, yes I am sorry, it is formed by thought, you are quite correct.

Les: And your various ladies have responsibility for the correct thoughts being positioned onto the tapestry.

That is so. We can go back to the start of civilisation as you know it and it is all there for anyone to see. And it changes—I cannot explain fully, but imagine we are working on a period where there have been great wars, you understand?

Les: Yes, we understand.

The start of the tapestry for this time may be done in darker shades of colour—by that I do not mean ‘dark’ colours you must understand, I am talking about a darker shade of a bright colour. But as the person who is working on that particular ‘scene’—I use the word to make things easier for you—as their knowledge of that time becomes greater and their awareness and their understanding—then the colours that they are working on brighten and lift, as does the knowledge of the person working on that piece. It is a continual round of understanding and knowledge which brings happiness. We have people who work on the tapestry who come from a darker plane, you understand—they have come into the light and they work on the tapestry; possibly they are working on a time that they were physically involved in on this Earth. And we all know that if it was a dark and terrible time or they were doing dark deeds, then they have to go through a process of reconciliation—you know of this I am sure.

Les: Yes we do.

They would start to work upon this tapestry and the colours would be darker.

Les: Because the whole period was darker and all the thoughts were darker.

Although of course after having come into the light, their thoughts would be lighter and less traumatic, but still they would work in darker colours. And then as their understanding and their understanding of forgiveness goes into the mind, then they see as they are working, the brighter colours shining forth, and like an aura surrounding them. Can you begin to imagine a little of what I’m saying?

Les: Yes I think we can all imagine a little of what the work is, that is being done. Now we come to a question. What happens to the tapestries when they are completed? There is never completion I know, but each portion of the tapestry is devoted to a certain aspect of living here. So what happens to the finished article?

It is never finished as you mean—finished and perhaps hung for those people to look at. Past and present and future I know you know are like—intermingled. Therefore there is always a changing pattern. But I understand your meaning when you say finished. It is taken into the halls of higher knowledge and people, who wish to continue with their spiritual education, go there and watch as the tapestry changes before their eyes.

Les: I see. And who is responsible for those changes occurring, your ladies?

My ladies are also those who go to look. As greater knowledge comes to them, they see the changes occurring. Some people may go to the tapestries to a certain time that they wish to have more knowledge of and nothing alters. Nothing changes, they can be withered, they can sit and meditate and look at the beautiful workings and the picture stays the same. They can move on to another time and as they arrive and look at this tapestry, there will be an alteration, because they have understood what they were looking at. It is a complex and complicated thing to try to tell you, but believe me when I say it is a most wonderful form of education.

Les: I’m sure it must be. And are the tapestries available for anybody who wishes to see them?

Nothing is hidden to anyone who wishes to see; and by that I do not mean ‘look,’ I mean wishes to ‘see.’ There is a difference, do you understand?

Les: Yes, quite! Yes I do.

Looking and seeing are two very different aspects.

Les: Yes, looking is merely a superficial acknowledgement of what is there.

You can look at a painting in a gallery and you can appreciate it. But you can see a painting in a gallery and you can see and you can feel the presence and the soul of the artist, would you not agree with me?

Les: Yes you are quite right, I would agree completely. Right, I’m going to ask my colleagues if any of them would like to ask a question on this? (Pause) No?

I cannot believe that I have been so succinct that everyone understands what I have said. (Chuckles)

Goodness me I am quite proud of myself. I apologise for the humour, but I cannot expect you to understand fully the workings of the tapestry makers. It is something that cannot be fully explained in physical terms.

Les: No, we do understand that.

I will perhaps confuse you a little further, by saying that those that 'see' the tapestry can 'enter' the tapestry. Can you understand a little of what I am saying here?

Les: Yes it is a process of their wishful thinking, to become incorporated into the thoughts which have already been incorporated into the tapestry.

Indeed, they can become part of that particular time, especially if they wish to understand something that escaped their knowledge at a previous time. They can learn from it by seeing what has always been there. We all know that we miss things, do we not? There is a saying I believe on your plane: 'It is as plain as the nose on your face,' am I not right?

Les: Yes, you're quite right.

But it is not always easy to see what is in front of you.

Les: No, because we are trying to see with a physical brain, whereas those who are fortunately enough to be there to see the tapestry are approaching it with a spiritual mind.

Yes they are, but of course there are some that still have a small part of the physical mind and until they can see, see what is in front of them, they cannot lose that last vestige of the physical life, you understand?

Les: Yes, we understand that.

I am sure you—I know you have worked in 'rescue' and you have spent many, many hundreds of hours explaining this to poor souls, have you not?

Les: Yes we have indeed.

So you will understand, if there is a tiny part of the physical mind that needs to be gently pushed away.

Les: Yes, that leads me to another question I was going to ask. If they go into a time in the tapestry, which was very traumatic for them—say a great war—would they not feel those conditions again, by being involved in the tapestry?

If it was their desire to feel it, if it was necessary for them as a learning process—but it is not traumatic for them in that respect, it is—how would you call it? There is a word, 'déjà vu,' yes? It is opposite to déjà vu.

Les: They would be sheltered from the trauma whilst they were learning?

Indeed. My ladies are there to shelter and protect. I have many, many ladies from many orders, who spend all of their time in this work. I cannot tell you what rewarding feelings we have when we do this. And let me say the tapestry is always moving and changing for those that can see it. It is something that I hope in time you will be able to appreciate yourselves. I will be honoured to welcome you all and explain fully the workings of the life tapestry. But jokingly I say to you, I don't wish to see any of you for some time.

Les: No, we understand. (Chuckles)

I am too busy you see, far too busy. You will have to wait until it is your turn.

Les: Yes, and I think I would be right in saying— you say the tapestry is moving all the time—well of course it is a thought of Creation, isn't it?

Exactly.

Les: Or a creation of thought, I should have said. It is not the formation of a tapestry by needle and thread, as we understand it.

My goodness, wouldn't it take a long time—

Les: I wanted to make that clear for my colleagues.

I know, sorry I should have explained that at the beginning. You're not using needle and thread, it is—

Les:—the creation of the combined thought of all your ladies—

—coming through unto—I use the word 'canvass,' but you understand it is not as you would say a canvass.

Les: But it must be focussed for our benefit, otherwise we would not be able to observe what is there. (Of course.) So the canvass is merely a focal point for the thoughts that have created the pattern, which constitutes the learning that we have to accept.

Indeed. I will say to you the one factor on each part of the tapestry is LOVE. In dark times there is always LOVE and when you see the tapestry, Love is the first thing that comes towards you, you understand?

Les: Yes, it is not a tangible thing, but those who are examining the work, feel an involvement with the Love that has permeated the work which they are examining.

Indeed. The tapestry here is also here, can you understand that? Behind and to the side and up above—

Les: Yes, we don't actually look at it, we enter it, enter the radiations of it.

Indeed, and that is how the knowledge comes to those that wish it. They Live that part of the tapestry—they live it, they breathe it for as long as they wish it. And then when they have absorbed everything that they wish then the tapestry subsides. And then if they so wish, in time they can go on to the next part and the next and the next.

Les: It is something we shall look forward to.

It is quite amazing, even though I do say so myself on behalf of my ladies. I say one last thing to you: If in your quite times you project your thoughts towards myself and my ladies, I will endeavour to into your minds a picture of what you may see in time to come.

Les: Good, that would be very interesting for all of us.

I give you a name if you would like, so that you may call upon me in your quite times.

Les: Yes please do that.

My name is Sister Beatrice Mary, but please do not hesitate if you wish to call me, call me Sister B. I find Sister Beatrice Mary a little bit of a mouthful.

Les: Right, we'll call you Sister B.

That will be most pleasant and just call upon all of my ladies and they will hear you, just call for Sister B's ladies and they will hear you.

Les: We shall certainly practice that in the silence, won't we? (Agreed) Thank you very, very much for your description and explanation.

I am most proud to have been able to come to you this time. I hope that one day I may return and perhaps explain a little more about our wonderful tapestry.

Les: Yes, we would be very pleased —

We work in conjunction with the 'Book Writers,' you understand. (Yes) No one has a separate job, everything as I'm sure you are aware, is intermingled and is all part of Creation.

Les: Yes, it's all interwoven. Just for the benefit of those whose ability to understand one particular thing, can be catered for. I think I would be correct in saying that some who wish for knowledge, would prefer to have it from a book as such in their thinking, while others can penetrate the tapestry as you have said. And yet others go to other halls, where they are much happier with the spoken word.

Of course, it would be strange if all our spirits were the same, would it not?

Les: it would be very awkward and very boring I should think.

And wouldn't there be some long queues?

Les: There would indeed.

You are quite right, not everyone would benefit from the tapestry, any more than they would benefit from pouring over the books. It is as you say, each to their own particular ideal.

Les: Quite—and to the development of their spiritual awareness.

Of course. Not everyone wishes to develop at the same pace. We all know that some can go quickly through, others return time and time again—others stay in the same place absorbing knowledge for eons of time. Everyone works to their own abilities and desires. It is the same in all spheres of life and spirit and cosmos.

Les: Of course, it must be.

I leave you know. I hope I have given food for thought.

Les: You certainly have.

And I say once more, how proud I am to have come here this time.

Les: That's very kind of you Sister B. We feel very privileged to have had you with us. Isn't that right my friends? (Affirmed + thanks)

I send you all much love and I will endeavour to show you all a little as soon as you ask me to. I bid you farewell for this time. (Farewells + thanks)

There then followed one through Eileen requesting us to sit in complete darkness and focus on the centre of the room. We sat for about 10 minutes as instructed until the one through Eileen returned. We then tried to describe what we had seen with our spiritual eyes. Sitters described what they had seen in various ways, such as lights like little fireflies—sparks of gold + movement, crystal patterns, yellow circular patterns, kaleidoscopic repeating patterns, fluorescent mists, energy balls, swirling lights—
Les suggested afterwards that they were trying to show materialisation.

~15th February 1999~

No Salumet this time, but other communications occurred, the first of which came through Eileen, briefly explaining that conditions were not right this time for one who wished to speak to us about light and colour. One then followed through Sue:

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I cannot stay long. I was not expecting to come to speak to you.

Les: We thank you for coming at short notice.

I am what you would call the understudy this time, am I not?

Les: Well I wouldn't say that. You are an alternative speaker.

This work is not particular common to me. I may be hesitant when I speak to you.

Les: Don't worry about that. What type of work do you usually do?

As little as possible! (Chuckles) No, I joke but I am not what you would call, one of the worker bees. I suppose in our own ways, we all work, do we not? But I have no specific function in the work that you are aware of. I do speak to those in my world, and I think about experiences in the physical—the small groups, who I am told need some physical awareness, do you understand my meaning?

Les: Yes, they still hang onto the physical requirements.

Indeed, that fortunately was not a problem of mine, I was only too pleased to shrug off the overcoat, in fact I think I ran to the new life, at quite a gallop. But I am sure you are aware through previous work that you have done, that there are other souls, who find it more difficult to accept the new life.

Les: Yes you are quite right, there are many.

So we have some little groups and I sit with them and we discuss past life. And I ask them what was so special about their lives, that they must keep going back and back and thinking about it, you understand?

Les: Yes I do understand—they are reluctant to let go of it, aren't they?

Most certainly some are. I do have a few failures, but not many and I'm sure you have had a few failures in the past.

Les: Yes I'm sure we have.

But it is most rewarding is it not, when one looks at you and says, 'Goodness me you are right!' (Yes—)

Of course I am right—always, always right.

Les: Yes, this is the one occasion where you're not right, isn't it, saying that you are always right?

Oh that is just a little deep, is it not, but I do understand your meaning (Chuckles) and yes, truth to tell, it is a failing of mine. But don't you sometimes find you could shake them?

Les: Yes I do, well I have done in the past, since then I've learned that it doesn't matter; we can only teach, whether they accept the teaching is entirely up to them. It shouldn't reflect on our ability to teach others.

I do not use the word 'teacher,' in my work, because I feel I do not teach I 'listen.' Perhaps it is a form of teaching, I don't know.

Les: But you must answer also sometimes?

Well we do have discussions and I give them the benefit of my knowledge, which in some respects is great and in others, is non-existent, but we are all like that, are we not?

Les: Of course we are, we can only pass on the extent of our knowledge, at that particular point. In addition to passing on that knowledge, or teaching as we call it here, we also have to learn, in order to undertake further teaching.

Indeed, and don't you find it is like a wheel going round. I have a success in one of my groups and then they are so overwhelmed at the light that comes in through their minds that they go and speak to someone else. And that is how it goes on.

Les: Of course it does, passing on the knowledge from one to the other.

That is why I say I do as little as possible, because I feel it can be continued without me.

Les: Yes, but still you must be there to begin it.

I have that privilege yes, and although I make a jest and say that I am perfect, of course no one is. But it brings a little lightness sometimes to a dark discussion.

Les: Yes of course it does.

We have a group at present, that I am on the fringe of, because I feel it is a little beyond my capabilities. We have people who are clinging to an old regime, an old regime of fear. They caused fear and feel that they are still in control. And of course we now have to rid them of that.

Les: Of course you do and it can be quite difficult, can't it.

We cannot have the rule of fear, it is not acceptable, it is not permissible, and it is not good.

Les: And it is not going to be permitted.

Absolutely forbidden, excuse me for using such a word, it is forbidden, but my knowledge is not sufficient for me to be able to take control of this group. I am on the edge, I am there to take someone, should they see the light and guide them onto a different path. But I cannot as yet, take control of that group.

Les: No, but you're learning all the time.

Indeed and believe you me, it is quite an eye-opener at times.

Les: I'm sure it must be.

I don't think anyone is fully aware, of how fear can rule a person's life.

Les: Well the master who teaches us here, has emphasised that point, that we are our own worst enemies, by accepting fear into our lives and our thoughts.

But when people rule by fear that has got to be stamped out.

Les: Oh yes of course. Unfortunately there is too much of it in this world today.

It is a problem, a large problem, which I will say to you, has caused much concern in our realms. But we believe and when I say 'we,' I mean a much higher deity than myself, believe that there is a light at the end of a very long tunnel.

Les: Yes and one has to keep trying to ensure that they do approach that light.

Indeed, but in my lifetime, I have seen much that has pained me, and at the time I believe there was nothing that could be done, to rectify the situation. But as we all know, Love can conquer all things.

Les: Yes, that's absolutely true.

Love, the most important emotion, in all, ALL aspects of life.

Les: Absolutely right.

I had much guilt when I came into the golden realms. I could not wait as I said, to arrive. But I had much guilt, that I did not do enough to combat fear and I believe that is why I am involved now, in this particular group. It has helped me to see, that it is not always possible for one person, ONE person, to make a difference. But ONE person's love, can start a chain, can it not? (Yes) It can start a chain of help, yes it can. So I say to all of you, never think I am not good enough, I cannot do this alone. You perhaps cannot do it alone, but you are the start, or the middle, or the end of a chain, that can and does make a difference.

Les: Yes we believe that fully. Good, well we wish you every success in your activities with your group.

I would ask please that if we require your help at your next meeting, could we please bring someone that requires a little more than we are able to give, on our side of life. (Yes of course—) I do not mean your next meeting with these wonderful people here, but you have another group I believe?

Les: That's right, and they are quite welcome to come to that group.

Thank you that's what we were hoping for.

Les: Yes, we shall be pleased to have them and deal with them.

So, if you are willing, then I may return with them, at your next meeting—

Les: Yes please do.

Have I been succinct in my speaking—I am not used to coming into these realms?

Les: Oh yes, I think everybody has understood you completely, haven't they? (Affirmed)

I feel a little strange and my voice is nothing like I remember it to be.

Les: No, you are using an instrument, of course.

And of course, vocal is not used to any degree in our realms. But if I have been clear and succinct, as I used to be whilst on this Earth, then I am pleased that I have been able to come.

Les: Yes you have.

I did not wish to waste valuable time in mumblings, it would not be fair to you all, who give up your time, to come to these meetings.

Les: No, it's been quite clearly understood, thank you.

I will leave now and return to my people and will tell them that you are willing for them to bring one or possibly two persons, for help if required.

Les: Yes please do that, we shall be very happy to meet them.

I look forward to returning to you, so we can continue perhaps after you have helped and I can tell you a little more, if you are interested?

Les: I'm sure our other people, would be very interested.

But please do tell me, if you are unable to understand my diction.

Les: No, we understand you very clearly.

I am pleased, I wish you good evening and thank you so much, for all you have done in all I know you do—and please forgive me for being, how can I say, a little self-centred and egotistical. It is only my way of breaking the ice.

Les: Thank you very much indeed, we do understand, goodbye to you and God bless you.

There then followed another also through Sue of a much lighter note, talking about working with children in the spirit realm, teaching them and taking them to see the wonderful nature and animals, in what she called the 'new world.' She was joined briefly by one of the children through Eileen, who gently said to her teacher that it was sometimes the children who taught the teachers. They were lovely gentle characters who helped to end the meeting on a light-hearted note.

~1st March 1999 Les, Lilian + Eileen~

Due to Les's health problems, several meetings were cancelled over the next few weeks and Les made an extremely difficult decision that his health was getting to the point where it was time for him to move nearer to his family. His son lived on the coast and it was hoped that as well as providing support, the sea air would do him good. In the weeks that followed, preparations were made in readiness for the move. In the interim, Les, Eileen and Lilian met and were surprised when Salumet came through. The recorder needed to be quickly switched on, which is why the usual greetings are missing:

Firstly, let me reassure you that the work will continue, if all those who come together are so willing. I have to tell you my dear friend that the commitment from our side continues.

Les: Good, I'm very pleased to know that.

There have been many doubts amongst you, but let me say this especially to the lady: Do not fear for yourself or anyone within your group, because I remain with you. I shall continue to help this one I use, in order that knowledge may continue—if people come and go as I said from the beginning, that there would be many who come and go. What I would like you to understand my friend—I told you before that there was much to be learned this coming year—those plans will not change. What I wish to say is this: I said there would be many things to learn, much new philosophy, and that will be. But may I say this to you, that the changes around you at this present time are one of teaching. You may be unaware of this, but let me tell you that you have by your own decision, taught the others the strength of freewill. All were not aware of the power of change which can be created by the use of that freewill—now they understand. You my friend, I bring to you a little guidance, if I may.

Les: Yes please.

You know I do not come to tell of your futures —you know this has never been my way.

Les: I do indeed.

But because of your great dedication over many of your earthly years, I will tell you just a little.

Les: That's very kind of you.

Life's decisions are not always easy, as you fully understand. But sometimes these life changes are created for the soul's growth, although you tend I suppose, to feel that they are for physical reasons only. Let me tell you my dear friend, your own freewill has created for you the pathway which was meant to be. So let me say to you, you must dispel any doubts that you harbour, because you have been. But let me say this to you: Your work for us has not finished.

Les: Thank you very much indeed. My tiredness, my physical tiredness has caused me to have doubts I agree, (Yes) but I have been hoping that I shall be allowed to continue the work in the new place.

We are working for the opportunities to be presented to you.

Les: Thank you very much indeed.

All I ask of you my dear friend is that you recognised the opportunities when they come and again I cannot deny your freewill, please do take them up.

Salumet then gave a little guidance concerning Les's family, which has not been included.

— You know you are surrounded by many in our world. You were told earlier that many ladies surround you and still they surround you, until such time as you feel more upliftment.

Les: Yes, it has been a very traumatic time for me of course, lacking physical sleep and so on, I have got despondent I admit. (Yes) Though I have tried to keep in mind that my friends in your world are with me the whole time—but it is difficult sometimes to deal with it.

I will help you in your sleep time when I leave you this time. (Thank you.) You must try to keep upliftment—you must for the sake of your spiritual growth.

Les: Yes, now that you have spoken to me tonight, I can do that, I know.

It will start from now, you should feel upliftment move through you.

Les: Thank you, yes you have given me wonderful hope and encouragement in what you have told me this time and I am truly, truly grateful; it will enable me to face each day as it comes, secure in the knowledge that I still have work to do and that I wish to do.

Remember to give out the thoughts to those who surround you, in order that they might enable you to feel uplifted in times of doubt. Know also that knowledge such as yours cannot be wasted; in uttering just a few words can change the pathway of another's life.

Les: Well you have given me great happiness Salumet my very, very dear friend and I do thank you for it.

Yes, I wish you to know that I will always stay with you, until such times as you join our world.

Les: Thank you, that's very, very nice to know.

Lilian: Lovely, isn't it—

Les: It does give me encouragement and I look forward to going to my relatives, because of the love there and because it will give me a holiday from the work in some part, because I love the sea and I shall be near the sea.

Yes, and that is upliftment in itself.

Les: Yes, I was hoping that I might be able to spend some time like that and enjoying it and now I can keep that in mind that I shall be doing so and I can't tell you how grateful I am that you have broken the rule not to tell the future.

I could not allow these meetings to end without coming forward to speak to you. I have not been with you for some little time, because of the changes taking place, but I do feel it necessary my dear friend, that you know and understand that this contact, which I told you when first I came, took much time for it to happen that I come to you. (Yes —) That contact will never be broken.

Les: Thank you, I do thank you in my thoughts every night for being with me and for the help you give; I do hope you get those thoughts.

I know all of your thoughts my friends, it is the one great lesson that I have tried to teach you all. There has to be adjustments—I direct myself now to the lady and say there will be change, but there is no reason why we should not continue our long-standing friendship, in order that I continue to bring you more teaching and information.

Lilian: Thank you very much.

If you have just one iota of the command of this gentleman, then all will be well. There has to be some changes this time, because of the power, but I will say this to you, that as time continues, my control of this one becomes much easier.

Les: You will be able to use her in the future then, in other places?

I will continue to work with her, I will not say that it will always be easy, but we can make adjustments.

Les: Thank you, because I'm very, very happy to hear that, because I know she has such love for you as we all do, and she will be so happy to know that you are going to continue to work with her as your instrument.

Yes, as I have said to you my dear friends, once the contact is made, it is not so easily broken. If there is love and dedication and willingness to grow, then always from our world there will be people to help.

Les: Good, that makes us both very happy to hear that.

Your teachings my dear friend will live after you, as do all of the best teachings in your world. Know as you go about your living that the many you have given knowledge to, go forward in their own knowledge to spread what they know. You cannot but see how much you have given, over your years of dedication to us and how they in their turn, have spread the word of truth.

Les: That's very, very happy for me to know. I'm so glad that it has been so, because I regard it as a privilege to work with you and to pass on the knowledge that you have given.

May I say from all of us who come to you, not only to you my friend, but to all of our dedicated workers, how privileged we feel; it is not one-sided, without you we could not do our work. So I take this opportunity to say thank you to you, but I will not say goodbye, (No—don't.) because as I have said to you, there is work for you still. It may not be quite what you have been doing, but whilst you have words, there will be much teaching.

Les: Good, that does encourage me enormously, because I was worried about my health deteriorating to the state where I couldn't do it, but I know that it was planned that I should move to my family.

Yes, you are continuing on your life's pathway my dear friend. (Good.) Do not feel that by making this choice, because of your health—I would rather say to you, your health has helped you to make the right life choice.

Les: Yes I believe you, because I would not have chosen had my health not deteriorated.

No, this is sometimes what happens, that because of the physical condition the soul becomes rather set in its ways and finds difficulty in going forward. Do you understand what I say?

Les: Yes I do indeed—I can cope with the physical, so as I know I'm going to continue with the spiritual work.

Yes, remember that no matter what life brings to you physically, it is the spiritual growth which counts most. There is much for you my dear friend, much, much.

Les: Good, well I shall certainly sleep a lot happier tonight knowing that.

Remember I will be with you. (Good.) You may find whenever I am close to you, you may find that your dream state is much more vivid, because you now and have been told that you join us in our world much more regularly now.

Les: Yes you have told me that and that pleases me greatly.

Yes, but if you allow the physical tiredness and the moments of doubts, then it will prevent this wonderful souls growth taking place.

Les: I won't allow the physical doubts to interfere. Now that you have spoken to me, it's given me great comfort and I can look forward now to you future.

That is my hope for you my dear friends and I know the lady will inform the others that our work will continue, if not perhaps straight away, but in time, when I have made arrangements and slight changes, in order to work more easily with this one.

Les: Yes, I shall let the others know.

After all my dear friend —and we were aware of much speech amongst you. We know that it has been your doing in bringing so many together over the time that I have been allowed to come. Therefore before I leave you my dear friend, I will say once more, 'thank you' for allowing me to continue upon my pathway.

Les: Yes we appreciate your thanks, but there is so much love between us, that they are not necessary as you tell us. We are so happy to have been able to work together and now I look forward to the future again.

Because my dear friend, I can tell you that when the time comes to join us, you will be able to look over your lifetime, without too many regrets.

Les: Thank you.

You noticed I did not say 'any' regrets, but not many.

Les: Well I cannot tell you how much I appreciate what you've told me and I will try now to dispel all the physical doubts.

We understand—we know that you human beings are liable to these things. We understand that what we try to achieve is that at least you feel the upliftment from us at times—

Les: Yes I do feel it—thank you again and God bless you and I look forward to speaking with you again sometime somewhere.

With your permission, I will speak with you again and I will next time, give some advice to the lady.

Lilian: Thank you very much, I could do with some.

General farewells

One then followed through Eileen—an old friend Sister Veronica through with a brief message that tonight when he was in bed, he may feel warmth around his chest.

~8th March 1999~

This is the second of two meetings involving only Salumet, Les, Lilian and Eileen:

Les: Good evening to you.

I wish to say to you this time, thank you for allowing me to join you once more.

Les: It's a great pleasure to have you on these occasions.

We are making adjustments, which are necessary this time. (Thank you.) I promised to speak with the lady (Lilian) and say some words to her. All around is change, not only for the people within this room, but also coming to you. Many thoughts have been going through your mind, especially of late, I think you would say. Let me say this to you that the one who concerns you most, although this one has expressed many wishes to join our side of life. Her fear keeps her on this earthly plane. I think that you do not fully understand and I include you too, my dear friend, that when the time comes for each one of you to come to our side of life, so often we hear that when your time is here, then nothing can prevent it. (Yes) Can I say to you my friends this: As there can be adjustments in the time of the birth of each soul upon the many planets, so too can there be an area, a timing to come to us—not one single moment. You are guided as always by your thoughts and your freewill, which can keep you here longer than you need be. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes I do.

So you see, the desire is not quite true within her—her fear holds her back. We understand that you speak a little with her, but her understanding still is vague.

Lilian: Yes, it's difficult sometimes—I want to say so much, but I realise it's pointless in some cases.

No, that is why I come to speak with you this time. Nothing is ever useless. You will be given the time when your words will be helpful, even if they are—how shall I say, unacceptable at that time. Her fear is holding her back from joining us. So I want to say to you this my dear friend: You must not take aboard yourself, of all of her fears and worries. What we need and would desire of you is that you continue to place those loving thoughts with her and give to her the knowledge you have attained over these past times. There is not one second of time that is given to your passing; remember what I have told you, that your thoughts are all-powerful; they are the most powerful thing you will ever possess.

Lilian: So if I continue to ask for help for her that will help—

Yes, it will help to dispel those innermost fears that she is feeling. It will help her transition to this life, to be made more easily.

Lilian: Thank you for those words.

But we say once more to you, you must to take aboard yourself her fears.

Lilian: I'll try.

We know it is difficult when human beings are close, but always you must remain true—always to yourself and to your own thinking.

Lilian: I think the most difficult thing is seeing the body wearing out and seeing the things she can no longer do.

Yes, this disturbing to most human beings. We see so often the desire to remain whole, but after all, again we must return to accepting what you have yourselves created and what you have taken aboard in this lifetime. Again I know these words seem harsh to you human beings, but you must always accept that you are responsible for your lives while on this planet; not only the life you have lived, but what have brought with you. Do you understand my friends?

Lilian: Yes, I do.

It is difficult we know, but if you will look at all of these things on a spiritual aspect, then you should see that there comes to you some understanding of life. I know I repeat these words so often, but it is necessary you remind you. And I do not say this unkindly, but it would seem that you human beings need to be reminded so often of what is innate within you. Do you know and understand. (Affirmed) You each have the knowledge within you, but sometimes it is easier for the positive self to deny what you know, because not only is it the positive self, but the negative side of yourselves, which you must acknowledge. Do you understand? (Affirmed) And you see, the negative part of your being is the part of you that has to be worked upon, whilst on this planet. That is why have always said to you, you must never judge another, because in judging, you are failing to acknowledge that the fault lies within yourselves.

Lilian: Yes, I can see that quite a bit.

Les: And what we forget too, is that if we concentrate too much on the negative, the negative paradoxically becomes the positive.

Of course, always you are positive and negative, that is the make-up of the human being and you have to fully acknowledge that these two aspects of the soul exist in this one living time. I know it is difficult, that is why it is so necessary for us to repeat the same words to you, over and over again.

Les: I've become very conscious of that the last 10 days or so with this move that's going on. If I've begun to have doubts and I've just pushed them aside—but no—if it's true it can work—it may not be quite, but it is going to happen. I still keep thinking positively about it.

That is what you must do and that is what the lady with respect must do with her dealings with her loved one. You are the one with the strength to survive these conditions. She is fearful and must be given your support.

Les: I would suggest that perhaps when she next says 'I wish I could go,' you could say to her, well why do you worry so much about going? (Yes) Or why are you fearful of it, if you want to go? (Yes) Bring the subject up.

Lilian: Yes, I do actually try talking to her about what we've learned here quite a bit.

Les: Yes but you've got to overcome that little doubt as to whether you should talk to her. She's got to do in positively I think Salumet, hasn't she?

Yes, she must exude the positive attitude—the all-knowing that she has, because she can tell if you too have reservations. She is quite astute in her perceptions that one. (Oh Yes.) So when you speak, you must speak with a firmness of knowledge. Don't worry she will take aboard much that is being said to her.

Lilian: Anything that will ease her into spirit world when her time comes.

Her time can be now if she so desires—that is what I am trying to tell you, that her fears hold her from joining us. That is why I say to you, there is time given to the passing of each soul, as there is time given to the birth process. Do you see? (Yes) I am sure you have experienced in your time on this planet, when people have been told they have died and return. Why do you think this happens? It is the power of their will which returns them. Can you understand and accept this? (Yes—) There is a time-span of course and your lives are mapped as you know, but there is not one definite moment for all people. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes I do understand—you've certainly given me food for thought.

That is why people with spiritual knowledge, who truly, truly understand the ways of spirit, know that when the desire to leave this planet—when that time is here, they can go by their own freewill.

Les: There was a case recently in North Delhi. He lived to be 100, died about 10 days after it and it came out that he was very desirous of having the queen's 100th birthday telegram. (Yes) Now, until that happened you see, he was hanging on.

And in the same way people can do the same, when the soul desires to be born into a human being. The time must be right and it is the desire and the knowledge of the soul, which creates this situation. I believe we have experience of it within this group recently, when we had a new soul join with one of the group and they were disappointed to know that the sex of the child was not what was given. But you see, the soul decided that the time was not right for that birth to take place. You cannot have situations so set—this is the difficulty that I feel you human beings have, that you want everything to be as you say, in black or white. (Agreed)

Les: Yes, I know I've been having similar thoughts myself, with this problem of health. (Yes) And I thought well, I can't go until I've finished this move, because of the children; it would be too much of a traumatic business for them to take over, if I die—so I must hang on—I don't say I'm going to die when I get there, but I don't expect to go over until this is all settled.

And you will not come to us my dear friend, until the rest of your work is completed. (Thank you.) So you although have given time to these thoughts, you know deep within your heart that the time is not now.

Les: That's right, you're absolutely right, I do know—I still have more to do.

Yes, therefore you have been 'encouraged' if I may use that word my dear friend, from our side of life that you must continue, however disagreeable your physical conditions may be. (Yes) You deep within your heart know that there is more to do.

Les: Yes I'm quite happy to carry on until I know it's time to come to you. (Pause)

Lilian: I was just thinking, how did we cope before Salumet started coming to talk to us?

Les: We had a fair old lot to learn, didn't we? (Chuckles)

Lilian: Yes!

Les: I shall be eternally grateful to him.

Lilian: There are no words, are there?

I am the one who must be grateful to all of you, in allowing me your time, your listening and your understanding. But as I have said to you, there must be much repetition of words, for understanding to grow within you, (Yes—) because I know and understand that much that I have brought to you in new to your thinking, but I also know that each one of you has grown much and this brings us great joy, because the more the philosophy of life is given and accepted, then the more we can bring to you.

Les: Of course, yes.

And the more that you can give to others.

Les: It's constantly a two-way thing, isn't it?

I when I first came to you said that this time, truth would be known, that it would never be denied again and still I will stay with those words. Much within your world is growing, the spiritual aspect of life is taking hold, slowly, but it is happening and that is why for those of us who decided that the time had come to join you in this world, who were prepared to spread the word—we took much time in deciding who to join and again I say to you my dear friends, many, many thanks for that. But still there is much for you to learn.

Les: Good, there is plenty to learn, yes.

And although there will be parting of the waves for you, the contact will never be broken spiritually.

Les: That's very, very nice to know, it's merely a physical parting, not a spiritual one.

Yes, if you can keep this in mind, then there can be created a bond between you, although there is distance in your earthly lives.

Les: Yes, we must certainly keep that in mind.

Lilian: Just a speck in time.

I wish now to say to the lady that there is much help coming to her for the work ahead. You may be surprised in time to come, how much more expansive your own knowledge seems, you may even be surprised that you can find words, when indeed you thought that they were absent. I say to you my dear friend that the time has now come, for your own spiritual unfoldment.

Lilian: Thank you.

Les: Remember what was said to you recently, to have confidence in your ability that you can do it. (Yes)

There will continue to be much coming of myself and from others in my world.

Les: That's very nice to hear!

It will not stop, it must continue even if there have to be changes made.

Les: I'm very, very happy to hear that Salumet.

You my dear friend, will be kept informed of what is happening, when you depart from this house of Love.

Les: Good, I'll look forward to hearing that.

It is important that our work continues, that knowledge continues to be gathered, and when I told you earlier that this coming year will be filled with more philosophy of live, I again repeat to you that this must be so.

Les: Good, it's very, very encouraging for the future for us. I certainly look forward to speaking to you again, sometime some place.

I am never far from you, my dear friend. (No) Remember, keep the positive thoughts in control, (Yes) acknowledge those negative points, because they also are part of you. Never feel ashamed to have those thoughts or feelings, because in acknowledging them you also dispel them. Do you understand?

Les: Yes.

Do you my dear friend?

Lilian: Yes.

Always there is light and there is darkness, but one does not exist on this earth plane without the other.

Les: Of course not.

That is why you are human beings. But your task is not to deny the negativity within you, but to acknowledge —

Les: And to overcome —

And to overcome and therefore to dispel it, you understand. I say to you then my dear friends that is all I wish to say this time. (Thanks expressed)

May you both remain with light, with love and with hope. Know always that you are never alone, you are surrounded by many, who desire to bring to you both, the love and the lightness of spirit, that you both need at this time.

Les: Yes I do try to keep that constantly in mind.

Lilian: Yes—quite difficult times—

But, never be ashamed of those negative events—they are part of you to work upon and to change and to grow with each passing day. I leave you now my friends, with those words. (Thanks + farewells)

~22nd March 1999~

Again, just Lilian, Les and Eileen met. No Salumet this time, but 2 other communications spoke through Eileen:

Are you happy with winding machine? (Referring to Leslie's old reel-to-reel recorder)

Les: Yes thank you, it is working properly now.

I will try to speak quietly. I did not expect to be joining with you this time. I was warned that this voice might be troublesome this time, but I come to you my dear one to say 'how are you'?

Les: Oh, not too bad. I don't feel too well—I get a lot of trouble of course with breathing and sleeping, but I look forward to going to my family and in that part of the country I may begin to find the benefit of different air and the sea atmosphere.

Yes, it is something that many of you lack, is good air. This was never a problem in my time. I have come to you both this time to say are there questions you need to have answered.

Les: No, I don't have, but the lady (Lilian) but I'm sure the work is going to continue—in other places, in different ways perhaps, but I think the lady would like reassurance that that is going to happen.

I am told that this reassurance has already been given to you.

Les: Yes it has but I think the lady would like it implemented.

Ah ha, I see.

Les: We don't doubt what has been told us, but being human there are always doubts as to whether it will.

It will continue. Much good work must continue. All learning cannot be denied. You may dismiss it, you may place it to one side, but it cannot be forgotten. It is up to you and your choices whether you continue or whether you leave it be.

Les: That's where our free will comes in, isn't it?

Yes, I do not wish to tell you what you already know but for the sake of the lady I am happy to say that once again you can be at peace and know that all learning will continue.

Les: Good, very nice, because I know that everyone in the two groups is very anxious to continue the work in the best possible way. I've had some lovely letters and comments from them all as to how it has changed their lives what they have learned here and they wish to continue to learn more.

Learning is a never-ending process and to think it is, leaves you well mistaken in your thinking.

Les: I agree—learning is a constant on-going thing, isn't it?

We in our world continue to learn—each moment shows us new teachings. No one should assume that they know too much.

Les: We were told a long time ago that if we ever thought that you would stop coming to us!

If you were to so believe that your knowledge was such that you needed no more, then why should we come? We would leave you to your own ego.

Les: And our own ignorance.

Yes.

Les: Yes, I agree. No we shall never fall into that trap.

I know this—I know.

Les: In all the years that I have been learning, what it has taught me more than anything else is that there is so much more to learn.

Yes, I can assure you because I too am still learning and I have never fallen into the trap of believing that I know too much.

Les: No, it is such a fascinating subject, and it has been going on since Creation, so of course there is so much to learn and we have lovely teachers who come to us and we greatly appreciate what we have been told in the course of our years here.

Yes. It can only get greater the knowledge that you will be given. Many desire to come to help each one who has been given the opportunity by such as yourselves, who have created many groups around your world.

Les: Yes, there are many people like us who wish to teach others and I am hoping—and this is not a question for you to answer, this is merely a statement, that when I do get into my new house, I shall still in some way be able to be of service.

Yes, I am told once more, yes you have been given this answer.

Les: Yes. As I say, I did not want you to think that this was a leading question but I am pleased to know that I shall be able to continue in some way.

(Eileen coughed) Excuse this voice. It is troublesome, is it not?

Les: Would some water help the instrument?

No, no, we will deal with it, thank you.

Les: Thank you. Yes, it's nice to know that I shall be of use again.

Again? Why do make that statement, 'again'?

Les: I'll continue to be of use—my apologies, wrong statement.

Yes, that is better, yes—you have never ceased.

Les: Just a temporary break and then I can continue.

Break? You have no break—you continue to work on our side.

Les: Good! Yes, that's very pleasing to know also that I am with you at night.

You will be aware when you join us friend, of how much each one of you contribute to your spiritual lives although mainly unaware of it.

Yes, I feel the wind in your hair, I see great light in your eyes, I see great joy in your heart.

Les: Yes I know I've made the right decision this time—to go.

Why do you friends have such difficulties in making these life decisions?

Les: Yes it is a problem. Last year, when my children were broaching the subject and wanting me to go, I didn't realize that my health would deteriorate and I thought I could carry on.

Always struggle, struggle, struggle—we see so many of you struggle, when you should be inwardly knowing, inwardly know.

Les: Yes, I knew this time that it was the right thing to do.

Yes. I am saddened sometimes that my own race of people upon this planet have lost so much in the way of going inward and finding correct answers to these many difficulties which beset you at times.

Les: They have become materialistic have they?

Some—it has been difficult for many to sustain the knowledge which had been gained over many, many lengths of time. Circumstances have changed and I have to say they did not adapt well to these changes.

Les: It must be disappointing for you to know that and to see it happening.

Of course, but we cannot allow disappointment in our world, otherwise it would be served badly upon those whom we think upon. But yes, it saddens me at times.

Les: It must do, when you realise that so much could be gained.

So many of the people in your world are now beginning to realize how they must return to the thinking of older civilizations. It is coming.

Les: It is happening isn't it—it is coming more and more so.

Yes, yes. May I speak to the lady now?

Les: Yes, please do.

Yes. I would wish to say this to you—and let me say I am more prone to speaking with the gentlemen. It is something that still remains with me when I return to this physical condition that women never were spoken to for advice. So, if I speak abruptly to you, I ask your forgiveness.

Lilian: That's fine.

It is not the lack of knowledge, but the conditions, which bring my speech a little harshly to you. Yes, I see a future for you also bright, not perhaps what you have anticipated, but nevertheless a future full of love and brightness and a new understanding of spiritual matters.

Lilian: That's the important thing.

Yes. There have at times been along your pathway some little doubts as to the authenticity of some things given, but I can say to you now, you have reached a turning when many matters will be clarified for you. Go, go forward with renewed hope and understanding and love for all your fellow man.

Lilian: I'll remember what you've said—I'll keep it in mind.

Yes, you have the opportunity now to take great strides forward and as always the choice is yours. Thank you for listening to my words, friend.

Lilian: Thank you for the encouragement, it's a great help.

I am always, if I may say so, still bemused by women in your world today. I do not say this with disrespect to women, but in my time men were the great speakers and great doers, but of course women did have their place of importance if a little known.

Les: In many respects I think the women were much more important than the men.

Yes, I now agree, but of course when I lived upon your earth I would have disputed those words, although I have to say I could see great spirituality in our women.

Les: It always puzzled me why men should think about women like that, because if it hadn't been for the woman as the mother, man with all his knowledge would not have existed. So he was dependent upon the women anyway.

In the physical sense yes, but man, especially men on the planet at the time when I was here, believed that women were only given these great opportunities because of men and the Great Spirit. We denied them in a sense their true identities. Although we offered much to the Great Spirit, we did wrong at times by our own women folk.

Les: Never mind that's all past now and of course, in the present circumstances in which you live, equality is recognized, isn't it?

Equality does not exist, because we all are male and female, so there is no such thing.

Les: No, no—it was the wrong word to use, it's a physical word.

No, no I understood your meaning, but I wanted to make it clear to you. I will leave you now. I have been warmly welcomed by you both. I hope my words have brought some comfort to you.

Lilian: Yes they have.

Les: They have, indeed and we are very, very grateful to you for having visited us and of course your words, as you well know, are being recorded and they will be passed on to other people and to your instrument.

Yes, I have to say winding machine is still a puzzlement to me. Breath in the air I understand, but winding machine is most puzzling.

Les: It's very useful, because many have been able to learn of your words by hearing the recordings that have been made.

Yes, I know and when I say puzzling, it is puzzling whilst I am in this condition, you understand?

(Affirmed) I do know and understand of course, but when we return to earthly conditions, much becomes clouded—most strange.

Les: Yes, it must be like a fog to you.

Yes, but as I leave you now I have to say to you that Great Elk asks of you.

Les: That's very nice, he is a great friend of mine.

Yes, and I will leave you with those words.

Les: And I look forward to meeting him one day.

You have many to meet. Yes—and thank you lady. (Thanks expressed)

Another followed through Eileen:

I've been most interested listening about what you want in your tomorrows and I felt I had to come and say just a few words to you both. That it takes some time to realize that tomorrow is the result of your desire today.

Les: Of course.

So I want to remind both of you that each moment is being created and making your future. It would seem to me that there have been many discussions about what your future holds. That is why I decided to come to you both this time. May I just say to you: Do not keep your thoughts too much for the future. May I suggest to you both that your thinking remain in the NOW.

Les: Yes, I understand what you mean—I think you do Lilian too, don't you? (Yes) Now is the future. Yes, what we have spoken of already is the past and that cannot be changed, but the result of the past, the desire, the thought, is created for the future. Therefore it is most important that you do not allow this moment in time to be wasted with fruitless thoughts of the future. Do you follow what I am telling you? (Affirmed) It is distressing to see so much distress in your world, because people are unaware of their own wasted thoughts. So I just wished I could come to you to tell you this, to live for this moment—

Les: Yes we do understand.

—and I don't mean live in the moment selfishly. I know you understand what I am telling you. Therefore, please remember when you are distressed, when there is stress in your lives, bring yourselves back to the thinking of the moment. Please, please take these words seriously, because we see so many from your world who have regrets—regrets because of it. You cannot capture what is passed, therefore to make a brighter future for yourselves, may I also suggest before you allow extraneous thoughts and words, to think carefully and allow only those thoughts of good to come to fruition to create your future.

Les: Yes, that certainly is very good advice, because one day we shall have to face that future.

Yes. I would perhaps add, because there is a lot spoken about Karma in your world and what is Karma if it is not the result of your desire and thought. It is your tomorrow—that is all. I would like dispel some of the thinking about what you call Karma, but that is not my task this time.

Les: I see. Well, we do appreciate what you have told us.

I will leave you now. Know that I am surrounding you with beautiful thinking of each of your futures. It has been a great pleasure to me to join you. It is not often I am allowed to join such a small group and I have to tell you I feel most comfortable with it. Now I bid you good night. (Thanks + farewells)

~12th April 1999—Leslie's farewell~

(Welcomes)

My welcome here has always been one of abundance.

Les: Thank you, we all take great delight in being able to welcome you to us.

For this I would wish to say to you this time: Thank you. This for some time will be my last visit with you.

Les: That's unfortunate, but we do understand.

There is much preparation ahead, not only for myself, but all others who wish to work with you. I would say this to you my dear friend: Although your absence in the physical form will be noticeable amongst the others, I would wish you to know that you will feel my presence always around you.

Les: Good, that's very comforting for me.

It has not been evident of late, because you are doing what I have tried to teach you not to do so often, and that is to be so fully aware of the physical being, not to allow the spirit to come forth.

Les: Yes, just at the moment, with all these problems of moving house, it has been difficult to find a restful time.

I know and I understand fully, but in saying so my dear friend, I would wish that you could hear from within yourself, the words that I have spoken to you, over many, many of your months. You must always when there is difficulties in your living, allow that spirit to rise forth and to smooth your pathway for you.

Les: Yes I do try to do that.

Now, you are seeing how difficult it is, when you do not allow the spirit its true nature, when it is not used each and every day of your physical living.

Les: Yes you are quite right, because I have felt loss of energy—I put it down to all the other circumstances of course, but I'm looking forward to getting down with my son, because he too wants to participate more in the work with me now and I'm very pleased to know that.

You should have realised—all of you—as one of life's doors closes, another will open.

Les: Yes I'm sure it's going to and then I shall really rest a great deal and allow the spirit to take over.

Yes, that is what is needed at this time, but I will not say to the others to do so, because they have much work ahead.

Les: Yes they are all getting organised now, to run their groups. And I'm sure they'll be delighted to have you visit them now and again, when you can.

Lilian: Yes we will.

It is not a matter of now and again, but there are matters which I must attend to. I will be with them, no matter what and I am sure they will be only too happy, to tell you of my words.

Les: I'm sure they will be.

There is much to be given to you and we cannot allow any breakage in that knowledge.

Les: Good.

Lilian: Nice to know.

When I say I will not be with you for some time, it is only a matter of what you will call weeks—it is but a blink of the eye. But take faith and know I will be working with you all.

Lilian: We're very grateful.

Les: I hope you get my thoughts every night, because I never go to sleep without thanking you; I know you're there constantly.

You will as time continues, be much more aware of my presence, in some form or other. And I say this to you, to each of you, that my presence can take many forms. It is something we have not spoken about, but which I intend to, at a future time. There are many ways you can feel my presence. So remember always to keep your mind open to these words.

Lilian: Yes we will.

Les: Yes I must admit, that recently during the heavy work I've been having, and the problems associated with the house moving, I have sat down at times and just spoken to you mentally and asked for strength from you.

Yes, I will say to you that you are going along the road you have chosen. (Good.) Have no fears, know that the physical body is becoming of age, as you would say, but that should not prevent the work of spirit. It can be annoying, it can be upsetting, but there is no reason why it should be allowed to take hold and push aside the true nature of your being.

Les: No, I absolutely agree and I have been working on that basis.

I would say to you before I leave you, because my friends, I did wish to join you on this last occasion, whilst we still have the gentleman's physical being with us; I wanted to come, in order that you will know there is much work for us to do.

Les: Good.

Lilian: Yes, we'll look forward to that.

You know, if you have listened to my words, that the power of the thought, divides no soul. Distance is nothing, when you have the power of your thought.

Lilian: Yes.

Les: Yes that's right. We are all constantly thinking of what we are going to do in the future. We do thank you for having made that so abundantly clear to us, over the years we have been together.

There is much to give, much to learn, much to develop; there is so much we hope we can bring. We have over time, and I will say that time for you all, is the most difficult aspect of all. What to you may seem such lengthy time, is nothing. Therefore we have much to do and much to achieve. I will repeat my words, that you have gained the opportunity for much phenomenon in your world. It is coming, if you have patience, if you have love and you have dedication. We now feel that the opportunity and the time is coming, where much can be given to you in the way of words and also in the rising of your own senses. After all, you have been imbued with all of these gifts, now it is time to bring them to the surface. Therefore as I leave you my dear friends, let us join in our thoughts and give thanks to that Great Creative Force, to which we all belong.

Les: Yes, I'm hoping that one day in the future, my son and I will have the pleasure of you visiting us?

I will be around. His desire is great, but there will be times when physical living will take command for him. But be patient, all will be well.

Les: Yes, good. Thank you very much for telling me that and God bless you and thank you very much again, for all you have done for us.

Before I leave you, I will give to you some little information, that the gentleman you speak of, has been much-blessed in this lifetime and we would wish it known to him and perhaps you can make it your task to tell him, that throughout his life he is guided if you like that word, I do not, but it is a well-known saying in your world—he has been guided by his maternal grandfather.

Les: His maternal grandfather? (Yes) I will tell him that, thank you yes, he knows that he HAS been guided; (Yes) he has told me that he is certain he receives guidance and help.

That is some little information to help him along his way.

Les: I shall certainly pass it on to him, thank you very much indeed.

There then followed one through Sue, relaying the message that there were many waving, not waving 'Goodbye,' but saying 'We'll see you soon.' She emphasised how happy and excited they were— not a sad time, but a happy one. There then followed one through Eileen, who came to say thank you to Les, for helping them out of the 'mist' in a 'rescue,' years ago. This was immediately followed by another through Eileen, who talked warmly to Les, thanking him again for work done over the years and touching briefly on topics such as thoughts being alive and the need to avoid negative thoughts.

~14th June 1999—a new start~

First meeting in the room in Lilian's house:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I am happy to be with you my dear friends once more.

Lilian: Thank you for coming.

This time I will be with you for a short time only. I will wait for the others before we begin our teaching once more. I would ask you my dear friend that some conditions be held in order to make my presence here with you a little more comfortable. (Yes—)

I ask that when I am present amongst you that there be no variation of light. (Yes) I ask also—and this you already know, that there be no sudden loud noise. (Yes—) Other than those two things, I am so happy to be joining with you once more.

Sarah: It's great to have you back! (Strongly agreed)

Much is being done to inspire and guide you my dear friends. I wish you to know that though my words have been absent, you all have been gathered with me within the loving light which I extend to reach all of you.

Lilian: Thank you, we appreciate it.

I know there are questions to be answered about why there must be change and I intend my dear friends to answer these questions for you fully, in order that you understand why these things must happen. With these words this time I will withdraw in order that others may come to you this time.

Lilian: We look forward to hearing from you again soon and thank you for coming.

We will begin the work which I promised you in earlier times. You cannot go back on what has been given. I leave you knowing that I am always close by, that you seek love and inspiration, that you call my name in times of troubles; you know also that what you desire is not always what you will receive.

Lilian: We understand, thank you.

Now I will leave you my dear friends in the knowledge that now we have made this contact, all will be knowledge for your understanding and upliftment. (Salumet's voice was fading away)

Lilian: Thank you very much.

There then followed one through Eileen who explained that the rest of the evening would be for individual development and we discussed various impressions/feelings that we were given.

~21st June 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

My dear friends, I bring to each one of you great blessings. It is good that we have come together once more. (Agreed) I wish to say to you, my dear one, (Lilian) put to one side any fear, any apprehension that you may have, because your time is here for you to grow in a new way. You have shown to us much devotion over many of your years. You may find in coming weeks new awareness of what you need to do. (Good.) So look towards us and let us guide you and we will continue with this work which we have started. I would like to say to you all my dear friends that many have wondered why these changes have come. Let me say: Change is growth—that is all you need to know. It is foolishness to try to analyse the way and workings of Spirit. Know only this my dear friends that each one of you will individually grow to your own degree of spirituality, but as you know and from past words I have spoken to you, we need a united light, love and thinking if we are to achieve the work which is ahead of us. Therefore I say to you this my friends: Look to the silence; I have to tell you that there could be much improvement in this field. Too many refrain from this act of silence. I ask you my friends to try to find time in your daily lives to give to it, because in the silence that is when you can grow and be guided.

Lilian: I think we can all try a little more.

I know you will. We need from each one of you united thinking when you enter this room. I have spoken many words about collective growth. Therefore there is no need for me to reiterate again what I have previously said. I hope that each one of you understands more fully now that no one person is indispensable when it comes to the working of Spirit.

Lilian: Yes I see.

When the work has to be done, no physical person, no physical situation will stop the process. Do you now all realize this, my dear friends?

Lilian: Yes, that's nice to know.

Because there has been fear, there has been apprehension as to whether this work would continue. I have felt much love from each one of you in your thoughts and for this I thank you my dear friends. Know that all I have given to you in words will become stronger within your thinking. As time continues, each one of you will grow stronger in that spiritual knowledge. Already you have found the strength to speak many words to others, and individually each one of you has become much stronger in their own emotional thinking. You must, my dear friends become stronger, not only in body but in mind and in body. If you have questions for me this time, I will be happy to answer them for you.

Lilian: Any questions?

George: Firstly let me say it's a great joy that you have been able to return to us. Unfortunately for me, I have become rather deaf so I cannot always hear your words in session, but happily I am able to listen to the tape afterwards. I would still like to put a question sometimes if I may, but it's very likely that I will not hear your words during the session. Perhaps it would be good to begin with the brief war that has been going on in Yugoslavia. We have all be much saddened by this and many of us would have preferred a spiritual solution to the problems in that country as opposed to a military solution. There have been our prayers and hopefully these will have had some effect. I know that a suggestion was put to the American President that a large team of people skilled in transcendental meditation should go into the country and meditate locally. With this in mind I wonder if you would like to say something on the relative qualities of prayer and local transcendental meditation and indeed the attempted military solution?

Yes, let me say this to you my dear friend: Again we return to a subject much spoken about, but I will on this occasion try to clarify for you some points. There are, at this time of you world's evolution, many problems, many problems caused by mankind himself. This we have discussed many times. Prayer, as you know—thought cannot be wasted. Collective prayer and thought brings more power to it; this you know and understand by now I hope. (Yes indeed.) What I wish to say, of course continue with your prayers for the sake of you your brothers all over this planet— prayer is never wasted. But what is more important for you and for each one within this room is that you must rise above individual catastrophes, calamities within your world. You have the power my dear friends, to do this. You must see your world, your planet as it sits within the cosmos; it is but a small area. You understand this? (Yes) Know that all things are governed by the one law and that is the law of Love. You wonder why prayers seem to go unanswered—they do not. But what you seem to be unaware of are the negative thoughts of mankind who has lost that sense of Spirit, of goodness, of all knowing. Therefore you have Truth, knowledge and Light against darkness and what you humans would term 'evil.' Do you agree?

George: Yes I think I heard some of that.

Yes, it is difficult I know for you, but hopefully when you hear my words repeated, the understanding will come to you. You cannot as individuals change things in your world in an instant. But awareness is on your planet now, it is growing. There are many such as yourselves who send good thoughts to those of us who can help to influence the leaders in your world.

George: Yes I think we are beginning to understand and it struck me that it is a good sign that the idea of transcendental meditation was even put to the American President.

Yes, because you cannot, as I have said to you in past times, you cannot stop Truth this time. Mankind on the whole is becoming more aware, more spiritually aware, but until such time as all mankind have changed, there always will be strife, there always will be unkind deeds, man against man. We have spoken, so I think for this time I will stop there and let you think about the words I have said to you in past times.

George: Yes, I'm sure your words have helped to clarify this, thank you very much.

It is my hope, it is our desire that each one of you grows to a state of realization that you can be larger than this planet itself, if only you will give of yourselves to the knowledge and light of Truth. I think for this time I have spoken enough. We have much to do, we have much time to achieve it. I know each one of you brings great benefit to each other within these meetings. I leave you now dear friends and say to you offer yourselves to that Great Force which encompasses us all, that great energy called Love. Find yourselves enveloped within it each day of your living. I ask you now, may remind you please that there be no sudden noise or light until this one (Eileen) has returned. (Agreement, thanks + farewells)

~28th June 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to thank each one of you for your warm thoughts and welcome which has been extended to me my dear friends since last we met. Because we are few in numbers at this time I will not teach you anything new; this I have told you previously, because it is most important that all be here whenever there is new teachings to be given.

Lilian: Hopefully they will be here next week.

Yes, there are too many absent this time, (Yes) therefore I will say just a few words this time. (Thank you.) I know there are many questions that you wish to place before me; these we will deal with next time. I would also say this to you, my dear friends that I have been aware of your loving thoughts towards us and I would like to discuss further why each one of you still feels so much grief, so much distress when one of your human beings returns home to us.

Lilian: It is probably just selfish of us; we know that we are going to miss them.

Yes, we have discussed this topic on another occasion, but perhaps the time has come to elaborate just a little why human beings feel the way they do. So there is much for us to discuss next time before we continue on our pathway to knowledge. So I will say this to you my dear friends: For the rest of this time this evening, we will devote once more to individual development in whichever shape or form that may take. Therefore my dear friend, I will leave the rest of the time in your most capable hands. (Thank you.) Again I ask only that a little time be given to the return of the one I use, that no sudden noise, no bright light be used for a little time. (Yes certainly.) You need not be quiet, but perhaps you will keep my words in your minds. There is no need to remain in silence, but to allow the work to continue as it will this time. Know, once more my dear friends that I encompass you all within this group with my love and my light. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sue:

Thank you for your patience. I come to say that although you have heard from the master who comes here that he will talk to you at your next meeting about, shall we say, human weaknesses, I will just say a few words concerning the step through the door from this world into a greater world. Your thoughts and prayers this evening have been duly noted. You have spoken about fear to let go—a natural and understandable reaction at the end of the human life span, but as I know you are aware, it is the easiest thing for the spirit to return to its natural habitat, you would agree, yes? (Yes) You don't understand because the lives you have led this incarnation have not experienced the journey, but I know you are aware that you are never left to make that journey alone. My dear lady, it is something that is well understood in our realms, but whenever one of them has the opportunity to return and give some words of encouragement we will do so, and should you be in the situation where you yourselves can offer words of encouragement, then they will come easier to you if you will remember words of myself and others, do you comprehend what I say? (Affirmed) Fear is the key to all the holding back, physical fear. But let me say to you, the souls are old and wise, they are ready to return, but of course there is what you call a cord between the human shell and the soul and it is like perhaps a piece of elastic and although the soul is willing and able to take the step, they are sometimes held back as on elastic, because the human mind will not quite release that band. You understand? (Yes) I do not say this lightly, but sometimes when the mind finally releases the soul, depending on the circumstances, it can sometimes be like a human catapult, you understand me? (Yes) Whoosh, it causes no problems to the soul. They are expecting it but it can sometimes affect how quickly they return to their habitat, the habitat that they left aeons ago.

Lilian: So in the case of maybe an accident or in the case of war when the person is certainly not expecting it, is that with a whoosh?

Because the mind has let go, perhaps unintentionally, you understand me, it hasn't had time to expect and wait for—the soul is suddenly is returned into the realms. (Yes) So, yes, it takes with it a fragment of the human mind and therefore has adjustments, which are not always necessary with an easier passing.

Lilian: So those are the 'rescues,' as we call them, are they?

A small part—I am only generalising here, it is not the case in all, it is mainly, mainly where the human mind is strong and does not want to release the soul—that is mainly when the catapult feeling occurs—not, and I say, rarely, when it is a sudden, as you would call death. That is a different aspect entirely, but of a similar push through the curtain, yes? (Yes) But we come into difficult and complicated ground, part of which our master will speak to you about, possibly at your next meeting or at another given time. (Yes) I just came here to explain that we are aware, and we are always there to ease through the passing when the mind releases the soul. You know without me telling you that you are never alone, but it is something for you to hold onto and remember, should the need arise for you to help someone through that door. My voice is something that perhaps you will not forget and it will be in your mind and some of my words may come through and be of benefit, you understand? (Yes) There is just one more point I would like to make before I leave: Never forget where your origins lie and they are not of this worldly planet, you understand? (Yes) Always think spiritually, always return in thought to your origins. You are aware I know, that the incarnation you have now, may not be the first of your spirits.

Lilian: Yes, we've been told this.

Your spirits can be multitudinous and you may have other parts, which you will join with in time. Think of these, think although you do not know who or what you may have been, it is a good lesson for you in quiet times to think of your origins and wonder a little about what you may have been. I can only say this to you, because it is deep waters and I don't think I have the words at this time to explain further, but it will help your other parts of spirit, if they feel that you can join in mind with them. Do you understand a little of what I say?

Lilian: Yes, it is interesting.

You are aware I know of perhaps one incarnation.

Lilian: Yes, we've been told of one. (The monastery – see 30/06/97)

You know therefore that that particular part of your spirit has well gone on to other realms, but is still joined to what you are now. (Yes) That cannot be severed no matter how far on in the realms other parts of your spirit go. They cannot be separated from what you are now. You are joined, joined by a completely unbreakable cord, which can shall we say in human terms stretch infinitely, but cannot be broken. And they will—I say ‘they,’ to make it easier for you to understand, ‘they’ will know if your thoughts are with them. It is complicated I know and I hope in future meetings we may be able to elaborate further on this subject, possibly through myself or possibly through someone who has greater knowledge and can explain more fully. But I ask you, will you do this for yourselves and for your soul?

Lilian: Yes we will.

In quiet times, give a thought to what you once have been, and who knows, in quiet times you may be able to visualize what you may have been. Would that not be quite an achievement?

Lilian: Wonderful yes—we will see what we can do.

Now, if you will forgive me, I must leave you. I hope I have given you some food to think upon and I thank you for your time.

Lilian: You certainly have, thank you very, very much.

As I say to you, always give your love to those that need it and other’s lives will have a smoother path. I send you love from spirit and wish you health and happiness, until I come to speak with you again.

Lilian: Our love goes with you, bless you.

~5th July 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Thank you once more for this coming together. Thank you for all of your thoughts and I know my dear friends that once more we have many, many words to speak together. This time I wish if I may speak to you about the emotional body, which envelops you all at the time of what you call ‘earthly death.’ I spoke briefly last time and there was communication from another briefly on this subject. The time has come my dear friends, for you to understand a little more of the workings of your emotional body. You know that the emotional body is at times intertwined with your spiritual thinking. This is as it should be, but what is lacking within your human beings is this: That you do not fully have control of your emotional thinking. I am sure each one of you would recognize these words and what I try to say to you. Let me continue therefore and say this to you my dear friends: Each one of you here knows and understands well that when you leave behind these physical bodies that you continue within our world, that you are coming home; you know and you understand this—this is not the problem. The problem with many of you is that you do not have control of your emotional thinking. Know also that when you come to our world, you do not instantly change, and that is because of your lives upon this planet and the way you have allowed your emotional thinking to take hold. Can you understand and accept what I say? (Affirmed) This is why in times of earthly death you feel these great surges of emotion rise to the surface of your being. Why should you feel pity and sorrow for a soul who is returning home? Should not instead you be giving thanks to that Great Creative Force for returning that soul from whence it came?

Lilian: Yes, I can appreciate that. I do feel that a lot of the sorrow we feel is a selfish sorrow for ourselves.

It is indeed, but of course as human beings you were endowed with freewill and with all the earthly emotions that go with the human frame, but that is not to say that you should allow the energy of emotional thoughts to control your lives. If you are to grow spiritually my dear friends, you need to capture the strength to control your thoughts and emotions. Once again I am stressing to you the power of thinking, the power of each individual thought, not only the affect that it has upon you, but the affect that it has upon many other people. You must take the power into your own hands; this is most important for each of you.

Lilian: So could we help say someone who is dying, could we help that person with their thoughts and prayers?

Of course you can, but that is not what I am speaking of, I am speaking of control of your own individual emotions. You know the power of collective thought, you all have understood and accepted this aspect of thought, but what you have not fully grasped is the fact that individual thinking is your own responsibility in all things in life. Until you take control of your thinking of your own emotional body, there will always be stress, there will always be distress, there will always be hurt within your hearts, and after all as I have said, why should you grieve for the soul who is returning home? I wish to go further now my dear friends and say to you this—and this may be something that has not entered your thinking to date, but what you grieve for when you grieve for one leaving this plane, is in fact the memory of your rebirth into this world. You have not given much thought to this, have you my dear friends? (No) This is what I would wish you to think upon this time. We will return to the subject when I will give you the opportunity to put questions to me, but for now I wish that you take my words with you this time and think about them carefully.

Lilian: Yes we will.

I will try to make it clearer for you in your states of silence, if you will but think upon my words. But we will return for questions another time in order that you can fully understand. I hope for all time how important it is for each individual to have full control and full power of their own thinking.

Lilian: It would certainly make life much easier for us.

That is not the purpose if I may say, the purpose is that you grow spiritually stronger, that is the real purpose. So now I will leave those words with you this time. If you have any other questions, I will be happy to answer them for you and then we will allow some others to speak if they so desire and allow each one of you time for your own individual guidance and development.

Lilian: There is just one question. Our old friend who has just moved to be with his son—at this moment I think he is puzzled as to why he had to move so far away. Perhaps you could give us a few words that might help him.

So far way in the physical sense you mean? (Yes) Yes, I understand the question. He has not moved far from you. The essence of his spirit remains with you, but I accept that changes are for some people not always what they would desire, but I have said to all of you recently that change is growth and although what you ask for is not always what you receive, let me say this to you my dear friends: Again your own freewill has much to do with what takes place in your lifetime here. We can influence, we can help as you know, but ultimately the freewill of the individual takes precedence at the time of choice. I would say this to you and perhaps my words can be given to the one intended for, please.

Lilian: Yes they will be.

I know that each one of you has missed the physical presence of our dear friend, but although his knowledge was greater in a sense, and I do not say fully, but in one sense greater than your own, it came to pass that it was—and I say this strongly to you: The time had come for him to make new ground, because he had achieved much within this place with many peoples over many years. What I wish to say to you is this: That the choices each of you make within your lifetimes, are choices you feel are good for you physically in the main. Not many of you human beings look to change from the spiritual aspect, although I would say the gentleman in question knew within his heart that spiritually his work was to continue in another phase. He may not recognize it, but spiritually he does and although he feels a great loss at the absence of the physical contact of many of you, spiritually he is in a new phase of growth. I say to him look within, to spend his remaining time in the spiritual thinking in order that new words come to others from him, that there is an area within his life which is waiting to open up to others. He may deny, he may not fully understand, but he has reached a stage of his lifetime when new contact was necessary. I know and understand that he feels the family ties are important, but I say this to him: That was not the reason for his leaving you. His own continued spiritual growth, the recognition that life does have ups and downs when least expected; it is a lesson he had to learn. It may be a lesson hard to accept, but I say to him, he has grown from this lesson. This lesson of loss, this lesson of missing what was so regular within his life—this is a time of spiritual growth. That is all he needs to know. He knows fully well that to try to analyse the way of spiritual workings is not the correct path to take, therefore I say to him my dear friend, look forward to your experiences, look forward to many new aspects of knowledge, to a new awareness, a new feeling of growth, which will come before his days are upon this planet are ended. I ask that you pass these words to him. I am sure he will find comfort from them, because at this time that is what he seeks. Not only was this change necessary for him as an individual, but for each one of you to find anew, the strength which is within each one of you, to know that the work of spirit continues, that nothing can stop what has begun. I know my dear friends that my words will travel with you this night that each one of you will in your own individual way try to make sense of what I have said. Know always I am with you and know that we will discuss further the words I have given to you this time. I leave you now in the knowledge that each one of you is encompassed within my love and my light and the love of that Great Creative Force of which we all come. (Thanks + farewells)

~19th July 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to say this time how happy we are about the new conditions created within this room. I want you to know my dear friends that soon I wish to embark upon new knowledge for you. Until that time it is imperative that the energy that is utilized from each one of you is used to its best and that each one of you is so willing to be used also. Therefore on this occasion I feel it would be good if each one can offer themselves to be used in the best way possible. We thank you for the unification of this group, we thank you also for the dedication shown by the all for the continuation of the work. This time we ask that each one of you open yourselves to the influence around you in order that we may use your spiritual energies to the full. I am not speaking of your human fears and doubts, I am asking you dear friends that you allow that spiritual side of you who is all-knowing, to come to the fore of this evening. Therefore if you are agreeable this time, perhaps each person, excluding the instrument I use, to be placed within the centre of the room and to allow that encompassing energy to surround in order that they can be used. In this way we can better see how the combined energy of you all can be used for our new work.

Lilian: So we should sit quietly?

Each one be placed in the middle of the group please—each person by turn. Do not feel afraid if you feel anything that is unusual to you.

Lilian: Would it be better if I put a chair in the middle?

Yes, thank you. This exercise my dear friends, is of the utmost importance. We can take this information and use it to the best—it will enable us to assess what and how best we can use this combined energy. I will speak no more this time but I would say to you that much time will be needed this time in bringing back this instrument. I will leave it to you. (Thanks + farewells)

We then took turns sitting in the centre of the room as directed for the remainder of the meeting.

~16th August 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to say to you how pleasing it is to be with you once more. (Thanks expressed) I will say this to you, I speak with you just a few words this time my dear friends. I hope to use this quiet time in working with this one, (Eileen) but before I do I say to you this: There has been and there will be in the coming two years of earthly time many changes, many endings, many beginnings; but it will not change what I come to teach you. The new knowledge I have promised to bring to you, this will continue now we have established contact with you. There will be no change in this area.

Lilian: That's nice to know.

I also wish to say to you, and especially those amongst you who have concerns about the lack of human male people. I will elaborate a little on what I have said in past times. Each individual human being is Spirit which consists of male and female energies. Too much emphasis my dear friends has been placed in past times about males and females who come together for the purpose of communication. I say this to you, it matters not whether all are female or male in gender, because the energy we utilize from each person combines both male and female energy. So I do not want you my friends, to be confused on this issue. All we ask is that there are people wishing to be used in order that communication can take place; that is the importance of these groups. Not whether you are holding hands, not whether numbers of male and female be equal—all of these issues are trivialities my dear friends. But I wish you to know and to understand that the energy we use from you comes from that Spirit that you are and not the flesh and bone of the human being. Is that clear to you all? (Affirmed) For now I say to you my dear friends that very soon we will have new knowledge to bring to you, but before I leave you this time I also want to say that although the knowledge I bring to you I call 'new,' there can be no new knowledge. Remember what I have told you, everything is, has been and always will be, therefore there cannot be 'new' knowledge, only knowledge which has not been brought to the forefront of your thinking. Do you understand? (Affirmed) With these words then, I will leave you and I will say this to you: Once more allow your minds to be open to those who are close with you this time. I ask you my dear friend that you speak quietly with each one in order that they can bring forward that help which is being given to them, in whichever form that it comes to them. I would ask also that there be not sudden noises this time.

Lilian: Yes, and we shall look forward to hearing from you next time.

As always I am ever with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~23rd August 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I feel much love this time from each one of you. For this I thank you and reassure you that conditions such as these enable me to work more easily with you. Before I speak with you this time my dear friends, I would like if I may, to ask you a question if that is permissible? (Yes) I wish to say to you, and it matters not which one of you chooses to reply, but I would say to you all, what is your perception of this your planet, this earthly world? What is your own perception of it? Would one of you like to answer please?

Sallie: I think it has the potential of being the most wonderful place one could imagine.

I accept that—and it is a clever answer, which indicates to me that your consciousness is more raised than you yourself accept my dear. This world you live in is but very young in its existence as you know, but what differs from many other planets is that you people as human beings have so much influence over it.

Lilian: More than if we were on another planet, more than other people on other planets?

Because all what you are and the planet to which you belong, there is a slight difference. This I wish to try to explain a little to you this time. (Thank you.) You know my dear friends that as far as awareness—consciousness of that Divine Intelligence to which we all belong, the human race in this world is very young. I have told you, there are Masters who walk amongst you, but they are few in number; mainly the human being upon this planet is young in consciousness. But what I wish to explain to you this time is that what you perceive this planet to be is what this planet becomes. Do you understand those words, firstly? (Affirmed) You do?

Lilian: We have to take care of it.

It has a deeper meaning than being responsible for the planet. You human beings upon this planet were bestowed with your own free wills; this you know is essential for your living here. Therefore what you perceive is what becomes your reality. Therefore you might say if you accept this aspect of teaching that your world is in fact the conclusion of what each and every one of you think. Therefore you might say the world as you know it is an illusion. Do you understand what I say to you? If you do not, my dear friends, let us stop and discuss it now.

Lilian: Does everyone understand? (Affirmed)

Because you are spirit, what you perceive by your mind is in fact illusion within this world; because of your free will you have and use daily many thoughts, which are in fact not reality but illusion. Therefore I say to you my dear friends you are living now within a world of illusion that can be altered, that can be changed to your will. Therefore we come to the statement made by the lady: This planet has the potential to be what you human beings call 'heaven upon earth.' Can you accept this statement? (Affirmed) I don't wish you to accept it lightly, because the meaning is deeper than you would at first accept. (Yes) So we are in agreement; therefore if this world based on illusion of your own thinking—and again I speak of mankind generally—where do you go from here? Can you answer this, please? Do you know?

Lilian: No, I don't think any of us could answer that, can we?

Sallie: I know what I think. I think it is a question of raising awareness, (Yes) and as awareness is raised then the consciousness of more people becomes affected, (Yes) until enough of us are thinking along similar lines so actually affect a change in the illusion.

Yes! This lady speaks wise words. My dear you have grown much in past times, you are growing, growing, growing. She is right in what she says that because each one of you, each human being upon this planet is Spirit, you have the potential to become 'one.' In becoming 'one' you would be a planet transformed. If consciousness was raised to join together as one, then indeed you would be in heaven on earth. You follow my words so far? (Affirmed) Therefore I say to you—and I repeat words I have said to you but now perhaps the words will have more meaning for you—that to seek that divinity which each one of you ARE, you must go within, raise that consciousness so that illusion is reality, that you have the means my dear friends, to change all that is in, around and about you. Do you understand what I say? (Affirmed) Yes, what would the lady like to say, please?

Sallie: I suppose it's something I have got to learn to do better, but I have found that it's dangerous for me, that I alienate people when I speak openly about what I think and sometimes I think is better for me not to say anything at all, but that doesn't change anything though, does it? I suppose part of the price is to be alienated—its part of what you're here to do.

I would say to you my dear friend that this is happening because you are not yet aware of the reactions of your fellow man. You are being attracted to people not yet ready to receive. But do not be concerned, because with their freewill that is their right to reject what you say. But you should not feel alienated from them. Know that you have spoken words of truth and be happy for them. You will come to recognize the times, the situations, the happenings around your life when it is suitable for you to speak these words of truth. Too many times fellow human beings deny the right to speak what they know to be true; that I would say is not the correct path to take. So therefore I say to you my dear friend, do not chide yourself, do not be upset by the reactions of your fellow man. If you have spoken words of truth with kindness and with the correct nature of words, then you can only have done good, not only to yourself, because remember all things are retained by Spirit, and although it may seem that your fellow man has rejected, I would say to you this: That they have taken in, in Spirit form, that knowledge which you have passed to them. Do you understand?

Sallie: Yes I believe we all hear things at different times and there is a right time for us to make it part of us. (Yes) But part of me—it's the physical part of me—I end up I think with people becoming afraid of me.

No, no, no, no—no my dear friend that is not so. The problem lies not within you, but within the receivers. You must not allow yourselves to feel—you must protect yourself from negativity from others. You know within your own hearts that any words spoken in truth can only be good. Don't be afraid; what have I taught you my dear friends, about fear? (Yes) Fear will always hold you back, but remember, you are divine beings nevertheless but each one of course is on a level of consciousness of their own doing, but when this world of yours becomes raised and each one of you becomes more aware of that Divine Consciousness, that is what you should strive to do for not only yourselves, but this world of illusion. I want you my dear friends to think about my words this time, to see this world of yours in the manner which I have described. Try to find your place within this planet, try to seek within you what it is you need to do, what it is you need to change; not with the world but within yourselves. Only then is there the possibility that each one in their raised consciousness will become the greater and all expanding one consciousness. I will leave you with those words my friends, because I do not want to overload your thinking. We will return at another time and I will ask you to put to me any questions you may have. But I hope that my words this time have given you a different aspect of living upon this planet.

Lilian: Yes it certainly has. (Thanks expressed)

Sallie: It's very reassuring to hear you talk like that. I think sometimes you spend so much time with people who are not ready to accept anything like that, that you almost begin to lose faith in yourself and to hear you reiterating those things again, it does help.

Yes this is always what I will strive to do, because I know you humans have many frailties; you forget easily, if I may say so kindly. Therefore it is important that as we grow in knowledge that I gently remind you of words I have used previously, in order that you may come to see the wider scope of life. It is important for your growth I feel that we gradually incorporate each step slowly, that one picture grows to be much larger in your understanding, do you agree? (Agreement + thanks) And before I leave you to be used in other ways, I would like to take this opportunity my dear friends, to also again remind you, because we know upon your planet there has been much talk again of devastation. I wish to remind you that this planet will continue. Mankind has reached the stage of knowledge where it can be changed and I have said to you, it will not be destroyed.

Lilian: That's comforting, because it is a beautiful place.

It is a beautiful place only if you allow it to be. (Agreed) Now I will withdraw from you this time. Again I ask for each one of you that you think about my words.

Lilian: Yes, we shall listen to them again on the recording.

Thank you. Now I ask that each one opens up to those influences which surround you at this time. After all it is part of our work that each one of you be helped to unfold in your own individual ways, that as we go forward each one of you feels your own consciousness being raised. So my dear friends, allow that love and all within you to open up to whatever surrounds you now. (Thanks expressed)

~30th August 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

How welcoming it is to be with you my dear friends once more.

Lilian: Thank you, we are very glad that you've come.

I will not discuss this time any new topics, but rather I would say to you because of your numbers that I will speak with you individually and answer any questions that you may have.

Lilian: Yes, that would be nice.

Then I say to you my dear friends, there will be some time for each one to develop their own individual pathway, so we will devote some time to this, this evening. I would ask also that at the end of this meeting that your concentration be focussed upon the centre of this room. We are trying to achieve much with you this time, but because of the numbers we might have to work considerably more.

Lilian: Yes, I understand.

So shall we begin my dear friends with each question?

Lilian: Margaret?

Margaret: I have a problem in my mind about when I die. I do not want to be buried, I just want to donate my body for medical research. I just got a bit worried about whether this was correct for me to do.

I understand. Firstly, let me say this to you that the expression of your words 'to give' is a spiritual gift which you have grown with. I would say to you my dear friend that some years ago this would have been far from your thinking. But let me say this to you, that when you come home to us at the end of this physical life, the physical being matters not to you; it is as I have said before, a part of you to be disposed of. Therefore there cannot be anything wrong in allowing those physical parts to help others. (Thank you.) If this is a true wish, a true desire, I say to you my dear friend, go and think deeply and make arrangements with loved ones that this is what you desire.

Margaret: Thank you very much.

It is your last gift to this physical world and in that capacity I say to you, you are fulfilled in seeking to give with love. Thank you. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Paul, any questions?

Paul: I don't have any questions at the moment really. I think I'm thinking mainly about my next travel abroad.

Yes, well I believe much has been given to you about this subject, but let me say this to you my dear friend: There is much in your life that is fulfilled, but there is within you a part that is spiritually unfulfilled. Can you accept my words?

Paul: Yes, I can.

Yes, let me say this to you that as the years grow upon you as they surely will, you will find that from within there comes to you much thinking, much deeper thinking that will enable you to find your true spiritual home upon this earth. There is much within you my dear friend for you to find. Therefore I say to you, at this time continue to seek and you will find.

Paul: I'll do my best.

Thank you.

Lilian: Sarah?

Sarah: I have a couple of questions. Last week I did have difficulty in distinguishing from the physical and the spiritual when you asked us about how we perceived the world and Eileen said to me that if each of us do our best to raise our awareness, then there will be a snowball effect. I still have problems with the people who are causing a lot of trouble on the earth. I can put out thoughts to them to try and help them to do the right thing, but is this right what I am thinking? Is there perhaps anything else that I should be doing?

Yes, I understand what you are saying my dear friend. Can I say to you only this: That you are becoming too overly concerned about other people. That may sound contradictory to what I have taught you, but my dear friend, you cannot be responsible for another human being's actions. Please bear this in mind when you have these distressed feelings. You cannot but do your best in this life. If you can come to our world and say that you have helped but one soul, then indeed you have achieved what you came to this earthly planet for.

Sarah: Right, so I've got to concentrate more on what I can do and not on what other people are not doing. Yes, you must be aware of what you can achieve. You must concentrate your efforts upon your own way of living. In that way how you live your life will be mirrored to other people. Show by example my dear friends, that is the simplest way I can put it to you. I would say also that it is good to discuss amongst yourselves, your many ideas, your problems about your spiritual works and feelings. I have to say, I will always try to influence each one of you in the correct way of living, but again I have to stress to you all that your freewill has such a strong hold over your lives. Only when you free yourselves from the confines of freewill and free thinking—remember what I have said to you: Take control of your thoughts and your lives will become so much easier. But you my dear friend, you cannot take the burden of this world upon your shoulders. Do you understand?

Sarah: I do yes thank you.

Is that helpful?

Sarah: Yes that's very helpful, yes I've just got to focus more on what I can do, yes.

Yes, I would not say even on what you do but what you are. Do you understand?

Sarah: Yes, that's another thing actually I do have difficulty with looking inside myself.

Lilian: Yes, it's not easy.

Yes, we do not say it is easy, but with the knowledge which I hope each one of you is gaining, that gradually you can see that the spirit begins to come to the fore more often than the physical thinking; that is what you must all try to achieve. We know and we understand that your lives create for you many problems, but each of you has the power within yourselves and the power belongs to this moment in time. Do you understand? (Some agreement) You do not sound convinced.

Sarah: No, I am not quite convinced that the power is this moment in time because—

Where is your thought my dear friend if not but in this moment?

Sarah: That's right, but—(Pause)

You struggle with it I know.

Sarah: I understand that, but the past, present and future is all one, so—

But that is spiritual, that is spiritual knowledge, you my friend are confined to physical thinking also, which limits that spiritual growth and understanding; but you need to seek inwards to allow that spirit-self to take control of your living and to do that you must take control of all thinking; and what is thought if it is not each moment in time? (Yes) Therefore the power is in the moment. Do you understand?

Sarah: Right, yes I do, thank you.

Thank you.

Sarah: May I ask a second question?

Please if we have time, I am happy to answer. Please let us continue.

Sarah: You have said to us that we should think about people who've gone back to your world and give them our thoughts. Are they aware of our thoughts? For example, people who haven't realized they'd died and you try to give your thoughts over to them, are they aware? Is everybody who passes over aware of our thoughts that are being transmitted to them?

I would say this to you: It would depend on the state of awareness of knowledge to which they have passed into. Of course there are many who come to our world who are lost in their own ways of denial, who therefore find themselves surrounded by mist and are lost as you full well know. (Yes) That is why it is imperative that those of you upon this earth plane help us to 'rescue,' if I may use that word, to help these lost souls to understand what has happened to them. (Yes) Therefore they would be totally unaware of the love and the thoughts that are being sent to them. But these thoughts are not lost, I do believe I have spoken in past times about thoughts which are collected for the good of those lost souls, do you remember? (Affirmed) Therefore each good thought is collected until such time as the lost soul is able to understand and accept. Only then will they have the awareness which is their entitlement. Is that helpful to you?

Sarah: Yes thank you, yes.

Lilian: My question is about the monk: A communicator came through several weeks ago and during the conversation it was mentioned about the story of the monks when we were together before, and that we should remember in our quiet times and our prayers, that soul that has gone on. So, that is another part of us—they are separate parts, are they?

Yes, I understand and I understand fully that some of my words are not always clear to you all, but that is why we have these times of questions. We have spoken quite fully about the many aspects of the soul, have we not? (Agreed) Yes, I know this will always be a difficult topic for each one of you to fully take in, but let me say this to you: How can you justify in your own thinking that there can only be one complete soul? There has to be many aspects to the soul, to make sense of what you term 'reincarnation.' And I have told you have I not, that although it is not obligatory, for most souls it happens. Therefore I say to you, if you accept this, then you have to think carefully about many aspects to the soul. After all, we are only parts of that Great Divine Power which is the Creator of all things. It is not static, but it is ever moving. Do you understand before I go further? (Yes) Therefore to learn to become more fully aware, there has to be many elements, many aspects of the soul. Each aspect has to learn before it can join that structured part which belongs to that great divinity of power. I feel my friend I am going into deep matters here, which you will not at this time fully understand.

Lilian: No; we accept it but don't fully understand.

Yes. Please I say to you only this: Try to accept my words; think upon them deeply and gradually as we continue with our teaching, the understanding will become clearer to each one of you. I will repeat as often as I can many points which I have said before, in order that my words become acceptable to you all. Never be afraid to repeat any question which you have queries about. (Thanks expressed)

Sarah: Can I just bring up something in Lilian's question? If we were to go wayward whilst we were here, would we be letting down the 'team' of other parts of our soul? (No)

Sarah: So it's only that one aspect we would be letting down?

Yes, it would be that that aspect of the soul would have to relearn the task for which it came for. Never feel that you have injured the other aspects of the soul. They are 'insulated,' if I may use that word, against any destructive forces which are created in the physical living of one part of the soul. Otherwise, do you not see much damage could be done?

Sarah: Yes I do. Do all aspects of the soul have to come into this physical world, or only some aspects of it? No, only some; after all we are speaking of sparks of divinity and we are speaking of growth, we are speaking of many, many aspects and there has to be that core of divinity which holds together the many aspects of it. Again we are coming to deep matters and something we will return to, but for this moment in time, I think it is enough that you accept the many aspects of the soul.

Lilian: Yes, we accept what you say, it is just difficult. (Yes) We won't fully understand whilst we are here, will we?

You can continue to analyse to try to understand, and in so doing that knowledge can be given to you. After all, it is within you, it is within you, it is not new knowledge it is knowledge which you have to seek for. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

I thank you my dear friends for those questions this time. I hope I have enlightened each one and I will leave you now. (Thanks expressed) Know that you are clothed in divine light and love. Know also that I am so happy to join with you on these occasions.

Lilian: We're so happy to have you come.

I will leave you now to allow each one of you your own individual development. I ask you my dear friend that you go with each one to see what they can find. And please to finish this time by focussing as I have asked you to do.

Lilian: Yes we will. Bless you.

Everyone did as Salumet asked and then focussed in the middle. Lilian felt that there was a surge of energy in the middle of the room. After some time, there was one through Eileen who said that 'she' was not supposed to talk. Lilian asked her if she was trying for transfiguration and the answer was "no, materialisation".

Afterwards Eileen said that she had never had an experience like that before. She said that her mouth opened very slightly and that she felt that the area around her solar plexus was being pulled out of her.

~6th September 1999~

Eileen was away as another grandchild had just been born, so there was no Salumet. However other mediums were present and the evening started with one through Sue:

I am happy to be here and wish you all good evening. May I say firstly what joy it brings us to have our little lamb returned to the fold and we wish you welcome my dear. (Sara Martin, who used to come regularly, was able to join us again.) They always return if it is required, do they not? Yes they think that their time perhaps has finished and their work complete, but believe me, once we have you, we do not relinquish you lightly unless you specifically ask not to be involved. And may I say, how infrequently that occurs, does it not?

Lilian: I'm sure it doesn't happen much.

Those who come as ships in the night are not necessarily required for the work and we let them go. That does not mean we are not grateful for what they have given, but what they give is not always required for this work. Do I make myself clear, you understand me? (Affirmed) Everyone who has passed through these doors and the doors of our dear Mr Bone and others in other groups unknown to you people here, everyone has had some purpose, even if it has been for a very short time. Others leave the groups and go on to other spiritual matters, but I say again, when we have you on the hook, we don't throw you back. (Chuckles) So, I jest but I seriously welcome our friend and know that anything that she brings to this group can only be good and useful. Welcome dear lady, welcome.

Sara: Thank you.

Perhaps you could tell our dear friend who normally sits in this position (Eileen) that at the birth of her baby, or should I say her grand-baby, there was a spiritual doctor on hand. We have been around the lady for some time.

Lilian: I will pass the message on.

It is not a problem, there is no need for any concern, but we did feel it necessary to have one of our people close at hand this time. But it may bring her some comfort if you tell this to her. Thank you.

Lilian: And she can listen to what you are saying, because this is being recorded.

Yes I believe you do some miraculous things with different sorts of equipment. We obviously do not fully comprehend the workings, but know that they do allow others to hear what we say. It is obviously of great benefit and can only spread the word of Spirit to farther, farther fields; am I not correct?

Lilian: Yes, it is very useful—

But also dear friends let me say that word of mouth is equally important, do you understand my meaning? (Yes—) I know that each and every one of you has been in conversation with others and you have also to yourselves. I would love to tell my friend, my doctor, my social person what I do, what I get up to, what I believe, but goodness me, it is difficult. They will only laugh, they will only consider me to be, how do you say, round the bend? (Giggles) But surely you realize that when the opportunity is right, someone gives you a little push and the words come tumbling out. Have you not all experienced something of that? (Affirmed) Yes, and suddenly you are speaking and people are listening and the message has been relayed to someone else, am I not correct? (Yes—) And am I not correct in say that in most instances every one of you in this room has become involved in the work because of what somebody has said to you? (Yes—) You were none of you born in the spiritual knowledge, it is only what you have been told by others that has opened your mind, made you ask questions and made you want to know more. And are you learning my friends, are you learning? (Affirmed) I did not need to ask that question, I know. I know that as the years have gone on, your knowledge has become greater and you have become more aware of what is around you and what there is to do.

Lilian: There is no end to the learning, is there?

I say to you dear lady, that no matter how high you travel in Spirit, each moment is a learning process. The gentleman, I use that word for simplicity, the gentleman who comes to speak we you through the lady normally sat here, (Eileen) he learns every moment and what he learns he imparts to others in a simplified manner, you understand? (Yes) He cannot, he cannot obviously teach you higher and higher subjects, because—and this is no detriment to yourselves, your human brain is not good enough to take in that knowledge. So he simplifies and teaches what he feels is beneficial, but as your years continues you are learning more and more and in some cases it is becoming a little more complex, is that true? (Yes) And that makes you ask questions does it not, in your mind, if not in your voice, yes? And that is good. Question, question, always question—do not accept it without question. That is not the purpose of his teaching. We want you to question. We want you to say to yourselves, well we have heard that, now let me see what I can make of it—why did he say that and what does it mean—and the more you question, the more you have a light come here in the mind and that shows you that Spirit is entering into your thoughts and that can only be good, can it not? (Yes) We wish, desperately we wish that we could remove all the shackles of your earthly body and let you see what is to come, but unfortunately we have to be as patient as you. It will come, greater knowledge will come, but at the present all that we can do is impart what we can in the hope that it will blossom in your mind and in your hearts and I can say quite happily that, without exception, that is what is happening to you all. It brings us immense satisfaction when we know that a tiny, tiny drop of knowledge which has come down like a tear —lands, and, like water, spreads out into a pool, because from a pool becomes a lake and from a lake becomes a sea and from a sea becomes a vast, vast, ocean. And that vast ocean of knowledge is available to each one if they wish to learn, and we are honoured, I repeat we are honoured to be able to impart what we know to people such as yourselves, who seem to have such a thirst to know what we can teach you. We thank you, we thank you each one, for allowing us to be with you. Even in your sleep state we do endeavour to teach you a little, a little every time. Now before I leave you I have to say there is someone here who is parting on a journey, am I correct?

Paul: Yes, me.

May I ask the gentleman if he is ready and prepared for his journey?

Paul: I have still got things to do, but I've got about a week. Do you mean mentally prepared?

Yes, I do not mean, my dear young man, my dear friend, I do not mean have you packed enough clothes. (Giggles) No I joke you, you don't mind if I have a little joke with you, it lightens the atmosphere. No, whether you have got your socks and whether they are in pairs or not I really don't know. No, you are right, I did mean, are you mentally prepared for your journey?

Paul: I don't have a very clear idea of where I am going, apart from a few jungle areas to see the wildlife. Yes, well let me tell you, we know exactly where you are going, but I am not here to give you a map, no. I mean to tell you that we know where you are heading to, because it was the Spirit that has organized this for you. Do you not realize that?

Paul: I realize that the Spirit is trying to organize it, but I am not sure whether I get the messages. Well, that is human nature isn't it, always thinking to themselves, no that can't be right. But know, dear friend, seriously for a moment I say to you that your journey, wherever it will lead you, will be of great, and I cannot emphasize this enough, great spiritual worth. There is a reason you are going on this latest journey and it will become apparent when you are some way through it. I say no more, I do not want to put words into your mind, but I do ask you to open your mind. You have a very good, sharp mind. Please open it and listen to what you hear. Will you do that please for us?

Paul: I will yes.

Now, do that and your feet on your pathway will be light and your heart will be singing, and finally I say to you, don't forget to pack what you call your sun tan cream!

Paul: Yes—thank you.

May I ask the older gentleman (George) please, how are you finding your new-found experiences?

George: Well, I've got a lot happening at the moment and the electronic hearing aids are enabling me to hear the words quite well. I have been disappointed in recent sessions that I have not been able to hear the words, although I have been able to listen to the tape afterwards. But now I am wearing the hearing aids for the first time in a session and happily I am able to hear the words.

I am pleased, but let me just say to you this: that is the physical hearing. You could you know listen to Spirit if you just enabled us to come in just a little further than you do. We are not unhappy with your progress; far from it, in fact you have surprised us all, and I do not say that in jest, or I am not being rude, but we are delighted with what you have achieved, even though you are sometimes unaware exactly what that is. But we would ask you please to listen a little more with your Spirit and not with your physical. But we are delighted that physically things are a little louder for you.

George: Yes, thank you, I'm much relieved that it's working.

But, please in quiet times sit and listen without your physical hearing. We are not saying that we expect you to stop everything that you are doing, but we recommend in your instance that you do try to find a quiet time now. It is time that you did this. Yes, will you do that for us please?

George: I thank you for that advice. I have been very concerned about my writing. I felt that the book I want to get published is linked quite heavily to the Work. I have found it difficult to apportion things between the physical mind and the Spirit in this context.

Yes I am aware of your problems, but please it is of no consequence and no matter. You will see in time exactly what you have achieved and why. I wish you good fortune.

George: Thank you for your words and I shall endeavour to do as you say.

That would be of benefit, thank you. Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to speak with you. Now I will leave you. I thank you for enabling me to speak with you this time and I apologize if any of my words you considered to be inappropriate, but I feel that at times it is necessary to show that the people in Spirit also have a bright and lighter side. It is not all doom and gloom and prophecies, far from it. I thank you once again for allowing me to come to your home. I wish you all God's love; may surround you all and the lightness of Spirit be in your hearts. (Thanks expressed)

Another came through Sue to bring a message:

Someone is saying that there is a little boy who has to be given lots of attention when he is older, because he is going to be very clever with his hands and somebody says that people won't realize and they probably won't realize what he wants to do. But you have got to give him lots of attention and listen to him when he tells you what he wants to do, because he will know what he wants to do and he has got to do it. I don't know what that means but that is what I have got to say. They are saying that it might seem strange what he is asking for but not to be surprised. Let him do what he wants with his hands because it's going to be important when he is a much older little boy.

(This was a message for Sara)

~13th September 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to say this time that there is some unsettlement. Therefore I am trying my dear friends, to make the situation a little more harmonious this time.

Lilian: We are sorry about that.

There is no reason for you to express regret, thank you. I would to extend my love to the lady who came some time ago and is now returning to us. (Sara) I wish to say to you this time my dear friends how each one of you struggles so in your lives. You struggle so with emotional ties instead of allowing that spiritual knowledge to come forth. This is something we have discussed many times, but still I feel you have not fully grasped the meaning of spiritual freedom. Does anyone have a question about this topic please, because I feel that each one of you in your own individual way, struggles with this knowledge.

Lilian: This is not a question but I do agree with you and for myself I must try harder. (Yes)

Margaret: I should try harder too.

Sara: Yes, snap.

Yes, can you understand that it is a power struggle of emotion? When you are encompassed by life's difficulties, what can you do? You should go to quietness and allow Spirit to come forward. Then all physical problems should disappear quietly to where they belong. Still each one of you finds difficulty in dealing with this knowledge.

Sallie: What is it that drives us to attract this particular disaster or upset, because we do don't we, we attract things to us.

Yes, it is a power struggle. We must understand firstly that in being Spirit we have only the finest attributes, but when you are clothed within these physical garments, then physical thinking, feelings, emotions are partly in control. What you must try to achieve my dear friends, is that although Spirit and physical life must run hand-in-hand, as you may say, you must allow that spiritual knowledge to guide your physical living, because without this guidance, always the physical emotions will overrun your thinking. You must have the balance in physical life. This is the problem I feel with you all, you do not allow that true self, that all-knowing knowledge to come forward, because within each one of you is the knowledge of what is best for you.

Sara: Is it unnecessary to feel hurt by someone else's behaviour in an ideal situation? Is it unnecessary? Is it something we create?

Yes, let me say this to you: the only one who can hurt you is yourself. What happens is this, that when you feel hurt or injured by another person, you are allowing the emotional body to take control of your thinking. This is what I try to say to you. No one upon this earthly plane can cause you harm, unless you allow them to. Each one of you has the power to protect yourself, whether it be physically or emotionally. When you understand these words, you can truly be Spirit upon this earth; you can be free from all harm, free from all hurt, freed from all physical ailments—you in fact become as close to Spirit as you can. Therefore, my dear friends, I say this to you: ponder my words this time, come to know yourself, after all that is why you came to this earthly plane, that you might come to know yourselves, that you might join with those you have chosen to be with in order that you can create this harmonious way of life. (Said emphatically) Each one of you has that power in this moment. Do you understand my words? (Affirmed) Does anyone not understand this?

Sara: Can I just clarify something? Presumably we must discriminate first in order to protect ourselves, or are you saying that there really is no person that we cannot get along with?

I say that spiritually you will be attracted to many and likely to want to stay free from others. This is your spiritual light. There is no need for you to discriminate as you say—discrimination is a physical attribute, it does not belong to Spirit. In all your decisions upon this earth, think spiritually and not physically. This is the concept that you each find so difficult.

Lilian: And we forget.

Yes, that is the problem that you forget what I tell you. In each situation in your lives, it matters not what that situation is, if you were to sit quietly and find that spiritual answer, there would remain no problem. Can you understand? (Affirmed) Does the lady across the room understand?

Sallie: I understand, but I ponder a little about it, because if we choose to come here and we choose to meet up with people in order to understand ourselves and our own spiritual growth and to interact with people whilst also trying to help each other—I suppose it is just trying to balance the physical with the spiritual. Sometimes it is as if you have to let yourself be very open and give the opportunity, which can result in choosing to feel hurt—we choose our own feelings. (Yes) But there's something inside of me that says: if I am not open to that then I am blocking my natural self anyway or my spiritual self. Do you sort of know what I mean?

If you open your self to another person that is your free will first and foremost. There is nothing to say that you must do this for every person you come into contact with—that is your judgement, there is nothing wrong with that. What I try to say to you is: if you are emotionally hurt by another person, you must look within yourself—you have allowed the hurt to take place; not that the other person has deliberately tried to offend or to hurt. Can you see the difference, (Affirmed) because there is a difference between someone deliberately trying to hurt and you being emotionally hurt without intent being there. This is what you must try to understand. I do not say my dear friends that this is easy—it is not, but it is something I wish you to work upon. It can only help with your own spiritual growth.

George: Would it be true to say that if the Spirit within has sufficient influence upon the physical mind, then one would not be deeply hurt anyway?

Yes, exactly my friend. That is what you have to cultivate. You do not have to try—all knowledge lies within you, all you have to do is allow it to come to the surface. If there is emotional hurt or distress, then I say again to you all, look within yourselves. This is not meant to be a judgement upon yourselves—do not think upon it that way, but rather that it is a lesson which you all need to learn, to use that spiritual knowledge within to greater use. Yes? (Affirmed)

Lilian: And that would go for guilty feelings? If we listened to the Spirit side, we probably wouldn't need to feel guilty about some things—they wouldn't happen, if we listened first to our spiritual side?

This applies to all emotions, yes of course. When you have learned to allow Spirit to come forward, then you will find that life brings you fewer distress and upset emotions, but as I have said, the power lies within yourselves.

Sarah: You said to Sallie about not deliberately trying to hurt, but if someone does deliberately try to hurt you physically or mentally, is that because we have allowed them in somehow and what we should do is just forgive them?

I would say that there is much, what you call evil, but that as I have said before is not a word I like, because you do not fully understand the whole picture. You cannot know what is within another's thinking. Therefore have I not said to you before: never judge another man? (Agreed) Therefore there can be much reasoning behind that type of action towards another. It is not for you to judge, to analyse or to know better. I would say to you, if someone does do you wrong, it is only that you have allowed your spiritual defences to be lowered—but to send love to that being who I might say to you is in spiritual distress. I know the physical world will say: these people are evil, but who are you to judge? So my friends, again I say, be careful with your thinking.

Sara: So we must try to understand that there must be reasons for the behaviour, if it is behaviour which we find difficult to understand? (Yes) We must know that there is something that we don't know.

You must first and foremost make no judgement upon a fellow human being, whether you think the action is—and I use your words again: evil or distressful, you must not make that judgement, because you do not have the full picture.

Sallie: Am I correct to think that it is okay to say to oneself, that I find that behaviour unpleasant? (Yes) It is not judging the person it's the action, isn't it?

Yes, there is nothing wrong in saying this, of course not. We do not wish to say that everything that happens upon your earthly plane is right, we do say this—of course it is not. There is much distress in this world. But yes, you must not judge another human being or the actions which they take; that is the important thing. Yes, my dear friend, you are correct in your thinking. You do not condone evil acts, but do not judge the person if you do not understand or know them spiritually. I know this is difficult for you, but I can tell you that until you come and return home to our world, you will never fully understand the ways of the human beings in this world. But the more we have people like yourselves, who are working towards giving Light, giving Love, and remember my words of some time ago, it is easy to love those you like, it is not so easy to love those who seem to cause you distress. But which do you think would be better? Do you understand what I say? (Affirmed)

George: I think we sometimes understand it better at a personal level than at a political level. I am thinking about the bombings in Russia that are happening at the moment. (Yes) I find it more difficult to understand—

Yes, I would say to you, as the lady has said: you do not condone the actions of others, but do not pass judgement, because you do not understand what is happening spiritually within that region. Remember my dear friends that there is more than the workings of Spirit with the people, but karmic effects of regions upon this world. Do you understand? (Affirmed) So, you see the wider issues are not always available to you.

George: Yes, I feel it must be a more complex spiritual pattern in the case of these large events.

Yes, the whole of your planet is troubled by many of these things. That is why so many of us have come at this time, to try to change the pattern of thinking within this human race. It can be achieved, it will be achieved, but as you know it takes much work, much dedication and much help from people such as yourselves, who are dedicated to this work.

George: It's wonderful to hear that and it's wonderful that you are able to come to us like this.

I will say only this to you this time, because I would like to work quietly with this one, (Eileen) that I ask each one of you to sit quietly, to think about my words this time and perhaps you can discuss amongst yourselves quietly what you are feeling. We will try to influence your thoughts. I leave you now my dear friends, in the knowledge that as is always, I will be with you when I am needed. (Thanks + farewells)

A very gentle one followed through Eileen, probably one of a number of Sisters, who visited occasionally: I have been asked to join you this time to end this meeting and to say we have been most interested in what you have been discussing. I myself spent many, many hours dwelling upon my shortcomings while I was in your world. I have to tell you dear ones, that I left your world still with many shortcomings. So I say to you, try not to be too hard upon yourselves when you fail, but I would like to say to you this: as long as you continue to try, you cannot do more. I am not aware of anyone who has left your world in a perfect state. So perhaps these words will enable you to try just a little harder, because indeed it would be wonderful to receive more people who had at least spent some time seeking their true selves. I thank you for your graciousness, your time and your tolerance of my words. Thank you and may God bless you all.

~20th September 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time before I speak with you, I want you to know that I surround each one of you with great love. There are some here this time who are in much need of it. Therefore my dear friends, accept what we bring to you, feel that love and upliftment from within. (Thanks expressed) I would like to continue on some matters of which we spoke last time. I know that you have pondered about my words, but this time I would like you to try to understand a little bit more about what you are. I will as always, keep my words simple for you, in order that your understanding be greater. We spoke last time about emotions and how these affect your living. What I wish for you to understand this time, is more of your understanding of what Spirit is. After all, you know my dear friends that you are Spirit clothed in these physical beings, which at time causes you much grief. But I wish you to think this time about the Spirit aspect of yourself, which is clothed in these earthly bodies this time. What is Spirit after all, but energy—divine energy. You know and understand this well. We have to talk a little about energy once more to begin to understand. Can anyone here tell me their interpretation of what energy is?

Sallie: It's a form of life.

Yes, but it is much more; it is a form of life, but it is much more than that, but I thank you for your answer. Does anyone else have an answer for me?

Lilian: Is it an energy that is all-knowing?

All energy is all-knowing. It is within and without.

George: It is love and movement and progress.

Yes, the gentleman has the correct word. Energy is movement. That is why—and I will keep this simple for you: without movement energy becomes static. That is why when clothed in these earthly bodies, so many problems arise, because your energies become static, which in turn manifests itself through into the physical being. Do you understand me so far? (Affirmed) Does anyone not understand?

Lilian: No, I think we all understand.

That is why when we have places such as this room, so many people enter and find that wonderful feeling of upliftment, of light, of love. It is because the energy is ever moving, partly because of those who come from our world, but also your contribution to the spiritual work. So the energy within these places becomes purer. Do you understand this? (Affirmed) Do you have any questions so far?

Sallie: If the energy becomes static while it's clothed in physical form, there are different ways of manipulating it though isn't there? And making or helping it move while it's contained?

You speak wise words, my dear friend. This lady has more knowledge than she uses. The understanding is there, but she does not fully utilize it. But, yes of course, as we said last time, the power lies within. The Spirit has the capability of using energy correctly, to prevent that static build-up, if I may use that earthly term. That is why the physical body has illnesses when energies become, how you would say, stuck. Is that the correct term?

Sallie: Blocked.

Blocked, that is a much better phrase, thank you. So can you see my dear friends that the Spirit, being all energy, all movement, has the power over all things if used correctly? (Agreed) Can you see the comparison now between Spirit and the physical being? (Affirmed) Can you see that physical problems which occur, can then be turned and used wisely for spiritual growth and movement? (Agreed) Spirit is ever moving—it has to, it cannot become still. Do you all understand this? (Affirmed) Therefore now you know that Spirit is another word for movement, always movement. Can you now begin to understand my dear friends the power that lies within each one of you? Can you begin to see the wider issue of your lives?

Lilian: Yes.

Sallie: Why should it be that we are taught the opposite? We are taught to suppress everything. Is it a political control thing? We are taught such rubbish here, aren't we?

Well, if that is your feeling, then that is your understanding. Can you accept this? What your understanding may be, may differ from another's viewpoint. (Yes) That is where, my dear friend, your own freewill, your own awareness comes into play. Can you understand this? (Pause) No, she cannot. She thinks deeply, but it also confuses her. Let me say this to you: When Spirit is clothed within this earth, when the Spirit accepts this body, this lifetime, it also accepts many limitations. That is part of the soul's growth. It matters not what limitations, what hardships, what troubles come before you; what matters my dear friend is how you cope with them. That is the important question. No one expects you to lead a perfect life, because life upon this planet cannot be perfect at this stage of its evolution. But what I will say to you is this: That constantly you must seek your true self, that spiritual aspect which you know, and you know this innately, because it is all-knowing knowledge. You have to find it to understand and to seek a life which is trouble-free. Can you accept this? (Affirmed) You cannot do more than your very best. Therefore there will always be limitations placed upon you. There will always be conditions upon this planet, which you will find upsetting, but that is because you are physical beings. But what we discussed last time was the fact that no matter how distressing life becomes, you have the power in the moment to change your lives. You and you alone have that power, and this my dear friends is an important teaching for your all. So I say to you all, take these words I have given you this time, coupled with those words given to you last time; put them together and we will have further discussions and questions about it. Are you happy my dear friends with my words this time? (Affirmed)

Sarah: So when we look inside ourselves it gets our energy moving and when we attract other people it gets their energy moving and this brings the peace and tranquillity amongst us. Is that right?

I would say to you this: Before you become concerned about another energy, focus upon your own. And only when you understand fully your true self, your true Spirit or energy or movement—call it what you will, these after all are only words—when your own energy is as pure as you can accomplish, only then can you take on the energy, the movement of other people. This is a deep matter, you must take one step at a time in your understanding. What I have said to you this time my dear friends, are simple words with deep, deep meaning, and this is what I would wish you to ponder upon this time. I will leave you now, knowing that my words will stay with you until such time we have the opportunity to discuss them further. I will leave you now, be it still in that ever moving Light of Love. (Thanks + farewells)

Another then came through Eileen. She explained that she had been an unhappy young girl whilst on Earth, who had been very badly facially deformed on one side. She told us how much she had hated the people around her who had tormented her, particularly her pretty twin sister. She does not hate anyone now and she was sent to us to tell us that she now understands. She said that we should know that when she returned to Spirit life, she suddenly saw what her own hatred had created. Her hatred did little to the others to whom it was directed, but what she saw was a twisted figure which was her. Slowly she came to the realization that she had caused her own distress, because she had allowed all that hate and anger to distress her. The lesson we have to learn is to: 'be careful with our thinking.' She hopes that we never speak an unkind word to any child, as they are very precious, because the damage created is like a boomerang—it has a way of bouncing back.

If you wish to listen, here is the website audio link: http://www.salumetandfriends.org/resources/1999_09_20-girlwhohadhate-twistedface.output.mp3

~27th September 1999~ Leslie's return 'home'

Good evening. (Welcomes) This time I wish to say just a few words, because I am aware of your many thoughts, which have been directed to that friend who has now returned home to us. I wish to say to you my dear friends this, and then we will allow time for reflection, by each one of you on much good that that gentleman has given to you all. I feel it is useful this time to say to you that the passing of this one is very good example of what I have been trying to teach you about Power of Thought. I say this to you my dear friends, it was not his time. Yes, you are surprised, I know. He had a few more of your earthly years left for work to be done, but let me say that the power and the guidance of his many thoughts over past time, had to create the opportunity for those thoughts to be realized. Do you understand what I say to you?

Lilian: Could you explain a little more please?

Yes, the gentleman in times past has often expressed the desire to be with those whom he loved in our world. When constant thoughts are given in this way—I have told you my dear friends, that thought is the most powerful component that you will ever possess. Each one of those thoughts created a situation, which eventually led to the power of the thought having to materialize. Can you see? (Affirmed) I hope that you can see from this example, how careful you must always be with your thinking.

Lilian: Yes, we can see that.

I also wish to say to you that although it was not his time, he will suffer no consequence from it; he will continue on his pathway. But I will say possibly happier until the realization comes that there was more to achieve.

Lilian: Yes, I remember you saying he has more work to do.

Yes and he had, but that is why my dear friends, I constantly remind you about the Power of Thought. Can you understand it now? (Affirmed) Your dear friend had much wisdom, but he was also human as each one of you are, but that should not stop you in trying to become more aware of your thoughts and your thinking. When thoughts become all powerful, there has to be a re-enactment of those thoughts. So you cannot say, 'why did this happen?' I know you fully don't understand why such situations are created, but again we have moved to deep matters. 'Why,' I can hear you say 'did he just not pass peacefully?' There are many complex issues associated with this and this is not the time for me to go into those deep matters, but eventually we will, my dear friends. When your understanding grows slowly, slowly, then we will again talk about these many things that cause you difficulty.

Lilian: Yes, we do ponder sometimes why we need the pain and so on.

You do not need the pain, but again it is the thought and the control of it which makes the difference.

Lilian: Yes—we've got a lot to learn.

I did feel that each one of you needed to hear these words this time, not to remind you of your friend, but in order to remind you of what each one of you is doing with your thinking. (Yes) I will leave you this time. I feel that too many thoughts are travelling with you and therefore I will not give new information this time, but say to you my dear friends, thank you for allowing me to come to you once more; and to allow you now some time, either to reflect or to speak quietly amongst yourselves, in order that your understanding may grow stronger. I leave you now secure in the knowledge that always I am with you.

(Thanks expressed)

One then came through Sue, who had been before:

Moon Feather, Moon Feather will see old friend. Moon Feather will be happy to see face to face and talk many, many long moons. We have much to say. Moon Feather very happy, can speak here. He comes with great love to all. Leave now, not easy this time.

Lilian: Will you come again and talk to us.

Have come many times, so will return again to speak and will one day come with friend and all will be happy.

Lilian: We look forward to that very much.

Leave you now—much to do. (A few words were spoken in Moon Feather's language before leaving.)

Another then came through Eileen:

I did not expect to make this journey, but I have accepted that I should return to you one last time, in order to give to you this news. Moon Feather has spoken with you I understand, but I feel that having known this friend for so long, that I would bring to you perhaps some joy. I am very old acquaintance of the friend who has come to us. I wish to tell you that he has been overawed by what he has encountered.

Lilian: Has he?

Yes, I tell you my name, only so that you may recognize me as being a true and trusted acquaintance. I am Sister Anna who over the long years of his earthly working, have visited with him on many, many occasions. What I wish to tell you, is that he will, in time, endeavour to make contact with you.

Lilian: That would be wonderful.

But as you will probably be aware, there is much for him to do and to know.

Lilian: A lot to learn is there?

Always we learn—(Amused tone)—that is something that is never ending, but we wish you to know this, that your time upon this place is fleeting, therefore do not express any sadness or sorrow for one who is now much more alive. Look to your own lives and know that your lives too are fleeting by the everlasting clock. (Yes!) Therefore I say to you, thank you for allowing me to speak with you.

Lilian: We're most grateful—we cannot express our gratitude to you.

We wish no gratitude, but we ask you to think good of those you have known, those you have lost, but we have found—(Recorder cuts off here but Sister Anna had nearly finished)

~4th October 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I have to say to you this time that I was attracted by your speaking before entering this room. All I wish to say at this time is that the lady (Sarah) who had difficulty in understanding must try to remove all restrictions of physical thinking. Until you are able to achieve in some part, you will always find difficulties in understanding so much. I will return to this for her to give you some deeper meaning and understanding.

Sarah: Thank you very much.

Because of small number this time, I will not speak with you too long, but will say that next time we meet I wish to bring to you some new knowledge, new knowledge for your understanding.

Lilian: Yes, we look forward to that.

For this time others will speak and I say to you my dear friends, if this time you feel, you sense, you see anything which you have not experienced before, will you please tell the lady quietly, because I wish to work with this instrument for the rest of the time, but we will be trying to achieve much.

Lilian: Yes, we'll do that.

You understand, therefore I will leave you this time. Each one of you has an important task this evening, even if you are unconscious of it. Therefore I will withdraw and allow others to come to you; but please, please, let the lady know; or if you my dear lady sees, feels or senses anything unusual, please to tell the others. My love as always surrounds you. (Thanks + farewells)

~11th October 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

There is needed this time some upliftment for some of you. This will be given before you leave the room this time. I would like to speak with you my dear friends, about something I feel you may not have considered before. You know well that each one here has been associated in previous lifetimes. (Agreed) Therefore, have you considered that in meeting this time, why there should be differences in your spiritual awareness, each one of you on a slightly different pathway?

Sallie: Wouldn't we have been at different stages last time as well?

Yes, of course, this is the first question that you must pose, but to come together once more there has to be a unification of some spiritual knowledge, you agree?

Lilian: Yes, I think we can feel that.

What I wish to tell you this time my dear friends, is although the awareness is so different within each one of you, it is because each one of you seeks energy from another in order to combine, to create one spiritual energy for this work. In the same way as I have told you that darkness seeks light, so do each one of you seek the energy of each other. Can you understand this? (Affirmed) If you cannot please let me elaborate now.

Sallie: I think I understand what you're saying, but I don't quite understand why we repeat the pattern in the same soul group.

That is the topic of discussion this evening—that is what I will come to. What I am about to tell you this time is little known, but I feel my dear friends, that you now have the understanding to accept and to begin to understand. Therefore let me explain to you a little further. You know that all life, all energy, comes from the one source. This we cannot dispute—that is the pattern of life. We all accept that we seek to return to that from which we came. (Yes) It is a long task and many lifetimes to even begin to be on what you call the ladder. This we have discussed many times, but what you will not fully understand is that within the form of life's energy, there are many separations—and again, I am touching upon deep matters. Within that one whole energy, there are separations of energy, and those of you who have touched each other's lives, not only in this lifetime but in many others in different forms, you belong to one energy pattern. Can you understand this? (Affirmed) So let me say again, that within the energy life form, there are many separate energies. All of you here come from that energy pattern, in order that you can grow and therefore at some time in your existence you will return to that pattern. That energy pattern then would merge with other energy patterns at the correct time to continue forward in its growth, in its knowledge, in its understanding. Therefore to belong to one separate energy pattern, brings us to something else. Why, when you separate, when you take on these physical garbs, why are you not all united in the same knowledge and awareness? I say to you, my dear friends, you are, YOU ARE. When it comes to spiritual knowledge and energy, there is no difference between you. What makes the difference is your choice of life, your choice in this particular lifetime—that is all. But as spiritual beings each one of you has that Divine Spark of energy to take you to that separate energy pattern where you belong. Are you following me, my dear friends, are you understanding? (Affirmed) If you have doubts, if you have questions, please ask me now.

Sallie: Through the life choice we make, we have gained some sort of knowledge which is different from other members of the group because of the life choice they have made, (Yes) what about our spiritual memory, what we can actually choose to remember, because we have got it in our memory haven't we, to a certain extent?

I have told you, yes you have all knowledge. It is entirely within your power to remember and to use what you already know. That choice lies with you.

Sallie: Is that a choice we make before we come back?

No, you return to the physical life style with most memory erased—I have told you this before I believe— but that does not mean you cannot open that door to re-memory. This is part of your spiritual growth within physical living, you understand? (Affirmed)

Lilian: Is this partly why, well for myself, I feel very comfortable with everyone here?

Yes, because each one of you come from that separate energy pattern. That is why over many years of your time many people come, many people go, many people go who are suitable with you, but they feel and make the choice that they must go forward on their own. But there are those who you would not be compatible with, may I say and those are the people that you would not do much good work with.

Sarah: So does that answer my question, are we the only ones in this energy pattern, or are there some others who we have not yet met?

There will be people who come, who go. When I speak of energy pattern, you must remember that energy is ever- moving. So it cannot be static, I have told you, and that is partly the reason why we have discussed energy before, in order that you had the feel of movement and change. You have more questions? (Pause) No?

Mary: I understand that before I joined this group there was a meeting telling each of you how you fit in together in a previous life. (We'd all been together as monks) I joined the group afterwards. Did I also fit into that particular group?

No, you did not, but you still belong to the energy pattern. You were not part of that particular lifetime. You have not been together only once, but if you remember I said we would tell you of one lifetime together in order that you could begin to recognize some of your physical traits in this lifetime, to which I believe all of you could associate. (Agreed) The lady who has asked the question, she has been close with not all of you, but many of you in other times. This is what you must remember that one lifetime is not the ultimate lifetime. Each one of you has had many experiences of physical living. You have not always spent those lifetimes together, but that lifetime was given to you as an example and to help you to understand yourselves a little more.

Sara: Can I ask does the same apply to me, because I wasn't in the group either.

Yes, there are many, many not in this room at this time, who belong, as the lady has said, to this energy pattern from whence you come. It is deep matters my friends. I wish you to think upon it carefully, to feel that energy, to know that energy and to know that each one of you seeks energy from each other.

Mark: Are there many different energy patterns?

Of course; we all come from the one Source, but within that Source, there are many energy patterns, yes. This is little known knowledge. That is why I bring it to you simply and to allow you, each one of you, to take this knowledge with you this time, to think upon it carefully and to find where you belong in that scheme of life. You can know more if you will but seek for it.

Mark: Are the energy patterns becoming more or less distinct with time?

In what way?

Mark: I was thinking about whether people in general were coming together more or whether the energy patterns were merging more.

We have reached a time in this earthly evolution, when you human beings are becoming more aware generally, if that is what you mean. I told you when first I came to you that many times there have been great teachings upon this earth and many times has mankind thought he knew best. I told you, did I not, that this time all over you earthly world, many teachings are taking place that human beings are now becoming more aware, accepting what we say to them. But still, there is much for you to learn. Much has been denied, but we must work hard in order that human beings this time cannot deny the truth.

Mark: Does becoming aware alter the energy pattern?

Of course; you should know and understand this by now that you each one of you have the power within yourselves, not only to know yourselves, but to change all around you. Each one of you is an individual energy pattern. That is another subject, which we will enter into on another occasion. But for this time I wish you to know that each one of you belongs to the energy pattern of Spirit from which you all come to grow, to know yourselves and to work together.

Sara: So you can say that we have a spiritual compatibility? Is that a way to describe the feelings?

Yes, otherwise I would not be able to speak with you quite so easily. There has to be that union of Spirit and that is what each one of you possesses. I think for this time that I will leave you with my words. I ask you, my dear friends, to think deeply and perhaps next time when you have had your physical time of thinking, we can return and you can put your many questions to me. I will leave you now, I will continue to work with this instrument. I say to you, open up your hearts and your minds for the rest of this evening's time and allow those near and dear to you to come ever closer. I will leave you and let this dear lady be in full control of you now. (Thanks + farewells)

~25th October 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I feel your welcome this time and I say to you there is no need for thanks, after all, are we not well acquainted by now? (Agreed) I know each one has pondered my words to you last time and I would like this time to continue upon that subject of energy just a little more, but not perhaps in the way you would expect. The time has come my dear friends, for you all to take an active part in this subject of energy. Therefore I say to you this time, with your permission we wish to try to unify you all together in order that you can feel the power within each one of you. In order to experience this you must, my dear friends, discard in part your physical being and allow your spiritual energy to come forward. Therefore, this time I ask that each one here should hold the hand lightly of another. I would say this to you: This is not being done in the way that you within this movement, as you tend to call it, have done in past times in order to call upon us in Spirit. You know full well my dear friends, that this is unnecessary. Therefore when I ask you to join together, it is for an experience I hope you will not forget. I ask that you join together, that you give some time to discard the physical thinking, to feel the energy come from each person within your own being. I will remain here with you. None can come to any harm, but I do wish you all to offer yourselves to us to be used in order that you feel the power of Spirit. Are you agreeable to this? (Affirmed)

Lilian: We will all join hands, but we won't join hands with the lady you are using. (Eileen)

No, you must not in any way touch the instrument. You must form a complete circle. Please allow yourselves time to discard material thinking, begin to feel the power and energy to which you all belong; let it flow between you, until such time that each one of you should not belong to the individual, but that each of you should feel as a whole. You may speak quietly amongst yourselves if you should feel anything extraordinary within the circle, but I do ask that the voice be quiet and controlled, in order that this energy not be disturbed. I will leave it with the lady now, but know that I will remain until the end of this meeting.

Lilian: Thank you.

We linked hands as instructed and after a short time, some sitters quietly voiced what they were experiencing. Lilian felt that she was being pulled upwards. Others said that they no longer felt their hands holding another's, but that they were merged together. Salumet then returned:

Who amongst you does not feel the flow of energy? You see how difficult you find it to discard material thinking?

Lilian: It is very difficult.

This is the problem, but the knowledge that each one of you depends on each other, can only be a source of help to you all. I would ask the lady now if you would place your hand upon the head of each one here please.

Lilian: Yes, I'll do that now, should I?

We would be most interested to know what they feel. Allow to flow through you.

Margaret felt very hot and felt the energy strongly in her hands. Sara also felt lovely and warm. Lilian and Sarah both felt they were being pulled forward and Sarah's legs had been lifted off the ground. All members felt great peace and warmth.

~1st November 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Lilian: I am afraid we are very few in numbers this evening.

This time it matters not my dear friends how many there are; this I have told you on many occasions. But this time, because so many are not here I will not give you new information and instead I feel it would be beneficial to you all if I answered some questions for you. I know there are many thoughts that have come to you over many, many months of your time. Therefore this time my dear friends, let me hear your voices in order that I may be of help to you.

Mark: There is a chap who asked me last week if he could join the group and you said before that a lot of people would want to come who would not perhaps be the right vibrations for the group and I just want to check with you if it would be right for me to ask him to come along?

Yes, I understand your question. There is no reason why this one should not join us. So, if the dear lady is willing, then I am happy to accept.

Lilian: I think one of our other friends has got someone in mind as well, but I will let her ask you I think.

Yes, I would prefer to hear the voice that intends to ask, please. I do not mean this unkindly to you, but it helps if I can hear the question from the one who asks, you understand?

Lilian: Yes. Any questions Doreen?

Doreen: Yes I do. I recently came into contact with a lady who was of a different nationality to myself and we therefore could not communicate except by a smile and, at the end, with the holding of hands, and for some unknown reason, I felt a desperate sadness when I departed from this lady. I was in another country at the time and I might be asking rather a lot here, but I wondered if you throw any light on the reason for such a strong emotion for someone I knew nothing of.

Yes, I would say this to you my dear friend: why are you surprised? (Chuckles) Yes, always, always you are surprised. You do doubt at times the sensitivity within you. This, if I might say kindly, is a little failing on your part.

Doreen: Probably quite a big one at times!

No, no, but you are a most sensitive person to all of these communicable vibrations. The lady you speak of —hold please. (Pause) Have you been told my dear friend of any of your past existence?

Doreen: I believe that I was part of a brotherhood of monks at one time.

Yes, but you have been part of much, much more. You my dear friend have, let me say this to you: been part of travelling souls at one time. I am not here to give each one of you personal experience of different lives. These dear friends who you sit amongst this time, know this well. I have provided them with one lifetime when they came together, but on this occasion, I will say this to you, that you have been a traveller in one particular lifetime, which has given you the sensitivity to others that you meet. This sensitivity has come forward to you in this lifetime. I do not want you to feel saddened by the experience. It is a knowledge you have within you, but because of your earthly disposition shall we say kindly, you tend to impose upon yourself many restrictions. Do you understand what I tell you?

Doreen: Yes I do indeed.

It is not necessary for me to tell you and I know you feel do you not, that this sadness was created by something you would term 'sad' in your life—but that is not true. The sadness is within yourself, not sadness from another. Do you understand?

Doreen: Yes I think so. I was sad that I could not communicate with her and I felt at a loss.

But it has given you the opportunity to know and understand that communication needs no words.

Doreen: No the communication I think was in the smile and in the touch of the hands.

Yes, yes, but what you need to learn, if I may say so, is that communication when used in spiritual terms needs no words, no touch, no look.

Doreen: It is a touching of the souls.

Yes, it is a spiritual meeting which has created the sadness. It is a recognition of past times, when there have been many partings. Do you understand?

Doreen: Thank you very much indeed—yes I do, that has made it much clearer. I am very grateful to you, thank you.

Lilian: I don't know if you are able to explain. I was reading earlier before we came in here and we were talking about perception of our planet and so on. People on other planets, do they have free will as we do, or are they more spiritually aware and don't need the free will?

Yes, the awareness is given to every individual soul. Firstly let me say this to you: This planet, this world that you inhabit, is a planet of learning, is a planet of opposites. That is why mainly, human beings in their task of evolving were given free will. But of course occupants of all of the cosmos possess freewill, but because of their higher consciousness it is not always necessary in the same way that you upon this planet need to use your free will. Do you understand? (Yes) Without freewill, you people upon this planet would be confused, would be spiritually inept. I do not wish this to sound disrespectful—you know that is never my purpose, but this planet is so young. This planet is so very young that all souls who come to inhabit it, come to learn. That is what you must always remember about this earthly planet.

Lilian: So is there a time when perhaps we have been to this earth however many times is necessary and we have learnt all that we can learn spiritually, people who have been on the earth are we ever born on another planet?

You can be, but why do you need to be? Again we are going to return to the Power of Thought. When you have reached such a stage as full awareness where you no longer need to return to this school of learning, then of course you have the opportunity to grow, to become more spiritually adept. In those situations therefore, you would have the opportunity to be recreated on another planet, but not for the purpose of learning as you do here, it would be for experience of spiritual growth, never to return to relearn those lessons that you have left behind so many times before. That is why you return time after time after time. The power of your freewill creates the action, which brings the reaction or karma as is so often used upon this world. Do you understand? (Yes) Therefore the opportunity lies before you to be upon other planets, if that is your desire—but the desire is a spiritual one, whereas those who reincarnate upon this earth, do not always fully enjoy the task to begin with; that is the difference. Do you understand, if you do not, then please let me elaborate for you?

Lilian: Yes it you would please.

Often I have told you that you are many parts, many aspects to the soul, but it would not be the aspect of the soul which would wish to return to this planet, it would be a higher aspect of the soul which would wish to visit other planets of greater awareness. Does that make sense? (Yes) I am touching on new fields of knowledge here, which I don't want to enter into this time, but I hope it helps you to understand a little more how the soul works.

Sarah: All the while we are searching to better our soul, do we ever reach the perfection we are seeking? Do we ever reach our goal or is it always ever changing?

Yes, I have answered this question for you before, that because all life, all energy is ever moving it can never become static. Therefore there must always be seeking towards that point, that point of energy from whence we all became, when we began our 'lives,' if you wish to describe it in that way. The energy patterns are always there for us to seek and many, many of us have reached a point of Light and knowledge, but none that I know of could possibly tell you that they had reached a point, where there was no more movement, no more action, no more energy. That question belongs sometime far within your future. The knowledge is there, after all, have I told you not that everything is, has been and will be? (Yes) Many, many times—but also I have told you that energy is everywhere.

Sarah: Yes, thank you very much.

Doreen: Could I ask another question?

Lilian: Please do.

Doreen: We have been told many times that because of all the troubles in this world, our friends on the other side were trying very hard to help with the troubles that are going on; I am talking about all the major disasters in worlds where there are a lot of refugees, a lot of really big trouble spots. I am just wondering whether they are having any success in trying to alleviate all the suffering that is going on throughout the world. I think it's a terribly difficult task.

Yes, again I think my dear friend, because you have not been within these meetings often, you would not realize that this subject has already been touched upon.

Doreen: Sorry for repeating—

Not at all—when first I came to you I said that I had waited many, many long times. I also said that there were many of us within my world, who came, not only here, but all over your world to help in order that the truth this time would be accepted. Our influence, I have to tell you, is slow, but I believe if you look throughout your world, you would find that spiritual consciousness, awareness is slowly being raised. That what you would call your traditional religions all over this world, are being questioned by—I say your words, ordinary peoples. When that asking began, that was the beginning of change within your world. There will always and I have said this to my dear friends before—there will always be natural disasters, because this planet also belongs to a cosmos, whereby this planet has its own evolutionary place within the cosmos. So, there will always be natural disasters, there will always be—again I use your terms, karma of this earth to be reckoned with. But I will say this to you and I have said it many times before, we cannot this time fail in our task to help you people upon this planet to recognize that spirituality within each one of you. Therefore my answer to you my dear friend is that 'yes,' we are making progress in that direction.

Doreen: That's very reassuring, thank you very much indeed for your answer.

Margaret: Could I say something please? (Yes) Thank you very much about giving me advice about what I do with my body when I die. I have spoken to my family and they have agreed to abide by my wishes. It has made me feel so happy that I feel a bit guilty about it.

Yes, again here we have the introduction of guilt and fears. Why do you feel this way? It is the ultimate gift you give to mankind before you return home. To be able to consider, to think clearly upon your life—let me say this to you my dear friend, that in your deep thinking you, in effect, have freed yourself from these earthly chains. That may seem to you rather a large statement, but you, out of so many within this room, so many who have come, so many who have left—you my dear friend are one who has grown much. This I say to you with great humility and love. You have reached that point, when you can offer to humankind those last remains which can help others. Therefore I say to you, now that you have made your decisions, accept it with love and you will be free.

Margaret: Thank you very much.

Now my dear friends, I think for this time that I will leave you. I will say to you all that each one of you abides within my thinking, within my love, within my protection. Therefore, as I leave you this time, allow yourselves to feel those who come close to you once more. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Eileen, to say that Doreen would be used. The expected guest began speaking through Doreen shortly after:

Good evening to you my friend. Well that put me firmly in my place, did it not?! This is not my usual place for speaking and I did not want to intrude, but now I know that I was meant to come here. It is very nice and it is nice to be with new peoples. I wonder if you would be happy to try a little something with me tonight. I do not know what you would normally expect, but I would like to see if we can create a little picture for you. I would ask you please to sit and concentrate just for few moments towards the centre of the room and I would like you to tell me what you see. You may sit with your eyes open or with them closed. I would like all of you to partake in this please if it is possible.

Everyone did as they were requested and the following comments were made:

Eileen: I have a picture of fir trees with snow on them and I am not sure whether it's a snowman or something like that, but it's got a very smiley face which makes me want to laugh.

Very good my friend! You should not necessarily see the same picture. This is, if you like, to help with your awareness. Does anybody else see a picture? Do not worry yourselves if it does not come. If it is something that you are not used to doing, it might not be so quickly observed. Can anybody hear anything?

Lilian: I can't hear anything, but I am aware of laughter.

Eileen: I can hear the sound of almost like a dripping tap. It is going drip, drip, drip.

You are very close.

Sarah: I thought I heard the sea.

Eileen: I think it is a waterfall.

Thank you my friend. Can anyone else hear the waterfall? Water is a giver of life; it is a great source of power. There is much natural power within your world as I am sure you are aware.

Lilian: This is why we are drawn to water, is it?

That would be one of the reasons, my friend, the same as you are drawn toward the green of the trees and the fields. Do you not remember when you have been to an area where there is much greenery, forests and such that you come away feeling more at peace with yourself, you feel revitalized? That is nature at its most wonderful; it gives so much and asks so little in return. There is much in your world that you call grey that you cannot take great spiritual comfort from and nature is the most giving.

The recorder stops just before the conversation finishes, but fortunately the main points had been made.

~8th November 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Forgive the delay this time. I wish to say to you this time my dear friends, that we offer welcome to the new guest this time. This one has oftentimes had restless heart, therefore if you are agreeable my dear friends, we will give this time to your questions. I feel that it will help the gentleman who comes to us this time. So, shall we have your questions please?

Sallie: There is a woman who I have known for a period of time who has expressed an interest in coming along here. I didn't know what to say to her, because we have only been formed as this group for a short period of time and Lilian thought it would be best if I asked you whether that would be okay.

Yes, we did speak upon this matter and I did express a desire to hear your voice. The lady is welcome to join us, but I will then tell you whether I feel she is suitable for constant—how can I put it to you—if she will be suitable.

Sallie: I would appreciate that, because I have no way of knowing—

Yes, you are kind of, how would you say, in a quandary over this one.

Sallie: Yes and it's not very polite for me to say that to her.

No, therefore I am happy to accept her here and we will make the decision if she is bonding with the others within this meeting.

Sallie: Thank you, I'll give her a call later on this week and tell her that.

Lilian: So if we invite her along as a guest for one evening.

Yes, I would prefer to speak with the lady, yes.

Lilian: Colin, do you have any questions?

Colin: I know you have been asked this question before, but if as I am led to believe, that nobody goes before their time and suicide is a transgression of natural law, (Yes) then how does that fit into the equation that nobody goes before their time?

Because, my dear friend, what you are overlooking is the matter of freewill. Each soul which comes to this planet is endowed with their freewill. Each has a course to follow as you have stated, but mankind is not always so out-looking as far as truth and knowledge go. Therefore they do have—and I will say this to you strongly, each one has within them the power of their own living. So I would say to you this, my dear friend, that man alone has the power over human existence. If he wishes to destroy his time upon this planet, then he has to face the consequences of those actions.

Colin: Putting aside suicide, (Yes) are there any other circumstances whereupon somebody went before their time, not through their own choice—I mean obviously how you live your life is your own choice, (Yes) but apart from suicide—I don't really know how else to explain it.

Yes, there are occasions of course when mankind has destroyed another of your kind before their time is up. We have had recently—and you would not be aware of this, my dear friend, of a gentleman of many years, who ran this group on many, many years and was in full knowledge of Laws of Spirit, but because of the Power of Thought, he actually passed to this life before his time was up. You must remember, and I will state it once more and without apology to my dear friends here, the power of your THOUGHT is the most powerful thing, the most powerful thing that you possess. Therefore, the Power of Thought can create for you, many situations in life which are not beneficial to you. Do you understand, my dear friend? (Yes) Therefore, people have power over people, as you are well aware from the, what you call, catastrophes of your world. Mankind goes against his own kind. Therefore there are many, many times, when people come to us before their chosen time has arrived.

Colin: Thank you. Can you be sure then—an example, say of a plane crash, when a large group of people are killed. How do you sort out in your own mind whether all those people were brought together in one instance, because it was their time?

Well, how are you to know? (Exactly—) Yes, I would say to you my dear friend, you are creating within yourself many questions, which you will never truly fully understand the answers to, until you do join us in our world. It is as I have taught, or tried to teach my dear friends here: who are you to know what is good, what is bad, what is wrong, what is right, without the wider knowledge of that Spirit that is the true you. You have to look within for all of these answers. You will never have an answer to these many questions, which will be clear-cut. It is not so simple; I have stressed this on many occasions. Are you happy with my answer?

Colin: I thank you for your answer, but I just like to know, you know?

Yes, you are ever seeking, ever searching. You truly are, my dear friend, a nomad of Spirit. Always you will seek, always you will search, but the time must come when you accept and know and understand that all cannot be revealed to you, whilst you are clothed within these human garbs.

Colin: I understand that.

Yes, so I would suggest kindly to you that perhaps you learn to accept a little more and not to question so.

Colin: Okay. Sometimes you need to ask, because you don't know which questions you will find the answers to and those you will not unless you look.

Yes, I do not say 'do not seek,' there is a difference. You must always seek, you must always seek within; the answers to all of your existence lies within each one of you.

Sallie: Salumet? (Yes) Also there isn't one answer to anything, is there? There are so many different answers to so many situations, there's never just one answer to anything.

You are growing wise. Your reply encourages me to see how much you have grown. You will never ever know—have I not taught you that all life is ever moving, ever changing—never static? (Affirmed) So you cannot have any one situation that has only one answer, after all your perception may be entirely different from another of the same situation. You must always remember, you are endowed with this freewill. I know sometimes many of you feel that this freewill is nothing but, how you would term 'trouble,' but it has been given to you for a purpose and that purpose is that you learn to grow, to allow your awareness to grow, that you make the right choices in this lifetime. So, although these choices and this freewill at times seems troublesome, remember that the purpose behind it is a good one.

Lilian: Any more questions?

Colin: I have one more. At the moment in this incarnation I am learning in a human being's body in a physical body. To gain all that knowledge that is there in order to go back to the Source, what other things must I do—I mean we have plant life, we have mineral life, we have animal life—to obtain the knowledge of the Source? Would I not need to experience those forms of life at some stage?

You are experiencing those forms of life. You, my dear friend, as each one of you are, are the whole of all of the elements that belong to this world and to the Cosmos. Every human being is a small part of the Greater Cause. After all, what does a human being consist of? You consist and need all of the elements around you, you need the air to breathe, as does animal and plant life and all sources upon this world; you need water, you need earth, you need fire and, you see, my dear friend, all of these things are contained within. Therefore, to find the understanding, to seek and to search, you must go inwards if you are to become focussed on that Divine Energy from which you come. All is within you; if only you human beings would realize this, so many of life's problems would disappear. You do not need to separate yourself from plant life, from animal forms, from the air you breathe, from the water you drink, because you see, you all come from the one Source, therefore you all have the same elements of energy. Do you understand what I say, what I am trying to explain to you? (Affirmed) Each one of you is individual and yet, as the others within this group know, you all need each other, you all intertwine, because you all come from the one Source. Therefore my dear friend, I say to you, look not outwards, but look within; there lies all your answers of this lifetime, not only this lifetime, but the many which have gone before. All knowledge is within you. Use it wisely. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Can I ask you about the food that we eat? It's quite obvious that more and more people are becoming vegetarian. Is that in any way helpful to the spiritual self?

I believe when first I came to you, this was one question put to me. If you can remember, I will state briefly for you what I replied then. My answer to you was this: That it would be best to refrain from giving animals for food, but it depends on the purpose of why you would wish to eat their flesh. In itself, it is not wrong, but for your spiritually, I will explain this once more. To have true compassion, you must have compassion for all things upon this planet. Again we come to freewill and your purpose for eating the flesh of an animal. If that purpose is to sustain life, if you thank that animal for the flesh it supplies, then you have in part helped yourself to that state of being, which helps you to gain more knowledge of the animal kingdom. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes. Unfortunately, I don't think we remember that enough.

I would say to you, in this world of yours today, there is too much suffering when it comes to the farming of animals for food.

Lilian: Yes, but people are beginning to realize that, I hope.

As awareness grows, so too does the knowledge that the animals have as much right if not as much or more as the human beings who tread this planet. That would apply not only to the larger animals, whether they be domesticated or in the open spaces, but to all forms of life. Without respect for all things, you cannot grow; and remember too, that when you come back home to this side of life, you will see all that you have thought, all deeds that you have done and you, and you alone, will be responsible for those deeds. So my ultimate answer to you is that it would be best to refrain from the eating of flesh, but again it depends on the reason why you do this. Again there is no one clear-cut answer and there is in your world much dispute about this subject, but be careful not to judge, because in judging unwisely you create another problem. So remember my dear friends, judge not, because until your awareness is such, you could be making a mistake about another human being. Therefore I say to you, judge only yourself if you must, and I say to you this: that in doing just that you also can be making an error of judgement. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Lilian: In your earlier coming to talk to us, you referred to a group of people on this planet who are space travellers who are highly intelligent and so on, which was not known by people today. Watching a programme on television, there is a group of people who are looking for proof of such people who you have told us about.

Yes, have I not told you that all new teaching that I bring to you, will around your world be confirmed by many? (Yes) I also told you when first I came that many discoveries are still unfound, but as time goes along there is much that will be discovered. Many concepts and ideas within your world, have been, shall I say, falsely put to many people. The Truth is about to unfold in the many, many years to come. I told you also that this time the many Masters who have come to your world this time, have every intention of making sure that only Truth be known. There have been too many contradictions in your world.

Sarah: The medium that you are using Salumet, was talking to me before the meeting and she said that she had a very strong feeling that colicky babies, had a sort of resentment of coming back. Is that correct what she thinks?

I would not agree entirely with the lady, but in part yes, she could be correct. You know of course that the choice belongs to the soul, when it wishes to reincarnate into the human form, but also you have been told that some souls, although they know and understand that they need to reincarnate for the purpose of the soul's growth or for another reason—and there are many reasons as you know—some still feel that to have to return to the human form is not quite what they would desire, but they know that it is best for them. Therefore in returning to the human form, because of this feeling of—not resentment that is not a word to be used, but the feeling of holding back; it can create within the new life form many problems, which would take some time to subside. So in part the lady is correct, but not entirely.

Sarah: Thank you very much— (Pause)

Well, you are all very quiet this time.

Mark: I have just thought of one question actually. You mentioned that there are many reasons why a soul reincarnates, apart from their own personal growth. (Yes) I can think of one other reason that the teachers come down to teach us, I suppose, but what would be the other reasons?

The other reasons, there are many, many reasons why the soul decides to reincarnate. You know that in the many times there are connection with, for example, people who have a close contact to you in this lifetime, you may have been closely connected to in past times. It might be your purpose, for example, to join a loved one on this mission, if you wish to call it that—this mission of learning. To be supportive of another also enables the soul to grow, because it is done with love, without selfishness. There are many, many reasons. Yes, you must be aware that it is not solely for the purpose of an individual growth. In the same way as upon this earth, you grow from giving love and help and suffer to another—that is the biggest growth. After all, have I not just told you that everything is within you? All growth is there, all you have to do is seek for it. But in giving love to a child, to a friend, to a partner, then indeed you are giving much of yourself.

Sara: Is this where the greatest, deepest fulfilment and contentment comes from, giving of ourselves to others?

What is this—if you cannot give love, you have nothing.

Sara: Yes, so the greatest purpose (Yes) of being here is to serve others.

Unselfish love can only help you to grow. After all that is the purpose of life. Not only your own individual growth, but to help others, not only human form, but your planet. After all, the evolution of this planet is important within the scheme of all life. You must be aware of the wider issues always. Try to free yourself from this chain of thought, which binds you to one thinking, one part of the soul. After all, have I not told you that this lifetime belongs to one aspect of the soul only? So you must always seek that higher and wider awareness.

Sallie: And also, if as Sara was saying, that one of the greatest things we can do is to give to all aspects of creation around us, we are actually giving to ourselves as well, aren't we, because if we are all connected up, whatever we are giving out is being return to us in an extraneous circle.

Of course, that is why I teach you that energy is ever-moving. If you could but see yourselves on this scale, on this energy scale of always giving, then indeed your Light would shine brighter, brighter, wider within this scheme of life. You have to remember that, as part of that Divine Energy from which we all come, you are but very small within this scheme of life. All of you upon this planet are here to learn. Each one of you is given the opportunity many, many times. You are each given the help, the upliftment and the encouragement, but you, as the individual aspect of the soul, must also play your part. This planet, as I have told you, is very young in terms of its evolution. Therefore, the souls that are here in these human forms, have great responsibility for the welfare of not only yourselves, but the planet as a whole. Can you understand how important this is? (Yes) That is what you must seek for, not only your own individual growth, but that you become part of each other, that you radiate that knowledge and love which you gain to all corners of this world, this planet, in order that this planet also radiates out with love. We are touching on deep matters again, but for now we will leave it there. I would like you this time to think about this planet and its position within the Cosmos. Feel it become part of the greater whole if you can, and to do that you must go deep within. I would ask, my dear friends, this time that you ponder upon my words and we return to this topic once more. Would the young gentleman like to ask me any more questions before I leave you this time?

Colin: Yes I would, just one more. You say to go within. I think most people here probably meditate, but is there a more positive way of tuning in spiritually?

You mean is there a better way to find yourself than to meditate? (Yes) No. What is meditation? It is prayer; but it is prayer which is seeking that within. It is not external, it is a prayer of trying to know yourself. Therefore, in meditation you are allowing the human aspect of you as you know yourself now to be forgotten and the soul to come forward. You go deep within that spiritual light, that spiritual knowledge, which has the answer to all questions. Therefore I say to you, to meditate is the answer to all things, all things spiritual.

Colin: Would you be able to advise on a more suitable way for me to be able to relax and keep an open mind?

Yes, you my dear friend as I have said earlier, are a nomad—you are ever seeking, ever searching. You have in common I think with our dear lady known to us as Sallie, a very active mind. You have to allow the mind to become still and to become quiet. And to achieve this you must allow yourself to accept that meditation comes from practise of offering yourself to the Divine Energy within. There is no quick, no easy way. You have to allow yourself the quiet times of meditation, of prayer. You can of course call upon those who stand close to you to help you, to still that mind; but I would say to you my dear friend, in your meditation time I feel for you personally that the outdoors would allow you reflection time to create a peaceful mind.

Colin: Yes, I think I have proved that to myself, thank you.

Yes, you need the open space, you need that reflective time for yourself, then you can come together with others and allow yourself meditation time with others; but I feel for you at this time, it is difficult. Although you have much knowledge, have known much, but within you are still rather searching too much. Therefore, find yourself that freedom, that reflective spot for you—you will recognize—and I feel that soon you will know of somewhere where you instantly feel at home in order that you may sit quietly there; I think this will come to you shortly. There is much you can do, there is much you can give, but I feel for you my dear friend there are many questions and answers that you must provide for yourself. That is the best source of information—yourself. Do you understand?

Colin: I do, thank you very much.

Now, my dear friends, I thank you for your welcome this time. I hope you will think upon my words and I wish for you that those words will invite you to continue in your thinking. I leave you now in the knowledge that I am always with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~15th November 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I would say to you that many divine blessings be sent to those individuals who are not present here this time. I have, my dear friends, been aware of many thoughts and questions from some of you. I would say this to you: that you will receive the answers to those questions in time. Because we are few in numbers once more, I will speak with you again for a short time and then we will devote some time to each one's own individual development. So, my dear friends, if you have questions for me let me try to help.

Sarah: Only one or two aspects of us come onto this Earth as human beings. If one part has done wrong and is back in Spirit World, is it possible for another part to come here to learn whilst that other part is back in Spirit world?

Of course. You might confuse yourself if you begin to individualize each aspect of the soul. I know this is probably the easiest way for you in your understanding. Although there are many aspects to the soul, until each aspect is joined in what you call Spirit, the knowledge of the other who takes the human form is separated from all knowledge of the rest of the soul. Try not to see the different aspects of the soul as individual—they are not; it is a whole which at certain times becomes separated. We are speaking of deep matters when we speak of the soul, because the understanding upon this earthly planet is such that you see only one aspect which is in human form. But do you not realize that all aspects of the soul, as you say, are within the human form, but to a minute degree. (Yes) The whole aspect of the soul remains in the subconscious of the human being. Do you understand or are we becoming too complicated for you?

Sarah: I think I understand, thank you.

It is not what you would term black or white. These answers I give sometimes may seem vague, but that is only because your understanding would not be capable of receiving the information—not at this moment in time anyway.

Lilian: Once we are back in the Spirit world, we do understand, do we?

Yes, a much wider awareness, of course and the conjoining of all aspects is of course quite natural. There is nothing separate or individual about that union.

Sarah: But when one part that has not done so well here—

May I be so rude as to interrupt your question? (Yes—) May I say this to you: You cannot judge whether a soul has done right or wrong, we have discussed this topic I believe on numerous occasions. So do not fall into the trap of trying to say what the soul has done right or wrong. You do not have that knowledge or the understanding or the awareness to make such a critical judgement. So be careful in your thinking.

Sarah: Yes, I wasn't actually pin-pointing anybody, but I thought that I understood that, if by chance you had not done as you had intended to here, (Yes) you went into a lower level, as it were, into darkness over on the other side until you could get out. You haven't then re-joined your Spirit? (No) How does that work? No, well, you must not consider that all aspects of the soul are at the same stage of evolution. We really are on deep matters here. Of course the part of the soul which has come to this Earth to learn, if that soul remains free of any teaching, of any learning, then of course when they return home they must take the station which they deserve. And of course, you are right, the aspect of the soul which remains, shall we say, 'unlearned'—is that the correct term? (Yes—) They would not return immediately to the whole aspects of the soul, but that does not mean that they are ever lost. But yes, I see your meaning now, yes that one aspect of the soul would have to regain its status, if you like, before it can grow and join other aspects of the soul.

Sarah: So it would have to come back here again?

Not necessarily, we have spoken on this too. It is not always compulsory to return in human form, but most souls when they return to our world know what they must do for their own spiritual growth.

Lilian: Do they?

Of course. Yes, they are given advice, they are helped to come to the realization of what is best for them. But that is not to say that they are always keen to come back. (Chuckles) We have spoken briefly again, but they do know whilst they are in Spirit form what they must do. I would say very few wish to return to the human form, but we have said before there are many reasons why you would wish to come to this planet of learning, and of course, we must give our respect, if you can accept that phrase, to those who come under some degree of—how shall we say, I think you would use, ‘pressure,’ pressure, yes. I don’t feel that is an apt description, but it is one I think you might understand.

Sallie: Encouragement? They are encouraged to come back.

Encouragement, I thank you. Has that helped you in your question?

Sarah: It has yes, thank you.

Lilian: Sallie, any questions?

Sallie: It was something that Sarah mentioned and I can’t see it in the same way: Talking about levels of darkness, I don’t see that it can be like that, because we are, as I see it through your teaching, that we are responsible for our own judgements and we make our own judgements on our own behaviour, (Yes) and we have our friends like yourself who will encourage us to look at what we can do. (Yes) But these places of darkness, they are self-imposed aren’t they?

Of course—yes, you are the judge. Your actions in this world will determine your placement in the Spirit realms. Of course, no one places you in places of ‘darkness’—that is what you have sought for yourselves; it is self-inflicted, but many of the teachings that have been given to you human beings over many aeons of time, have described these places of what you term ‘darkness,’ not very well. They have been termed—shall we take an example of your Christian teaching, being called ‘hell.’ Yes, I think you are familiar with this term, and of course, there is no burning fire as that religion would teach you, but of course there is the hell of your own doing. But you are fully responsible for all places that you find yourself, but you are never left alone.

Sallie: We talk about forgiveness and understanding. (Yes)—if that’s the case, even if we have made grave errors of judgement in our behaviour whilst we are here, (Yes) I can’t see why it is necessary for us to put ourselves in places where we would go through mental torture—punishing ourselves—

I know what you are trying to say, but what you must remember, try to forget as I have told the lady about individualizing the soul. The soul is energy. What happens is that the soul who has led a lifetime of what you would call ‘wrongdoing,’ is in fact extinguishing the light energy until all becomes darkness. Try, my dear friend, to see this on the wider scheme of things. We are on difficult grounds, I know. If you try to see the soul as human, you will never fully understand; try to see it as light and dark. All is energy, that is why in times past, I have tried to explain the wrongdoings of others and why they poach upon innocence. It is in spiritual terms the seeking of the Light. Always try to seek the spiritual answer. Look within; try not to make for yourselves these complicated issues.

Sallie: I know you are right and I suppose it is just a human failure, but I could not bear the thought of—Yes, I understand what you say and yes, if you look at it in that way then you would never, you would never, ever be able to forgive in that sense.

Sarah: But you know yourself when you go over then you immediately see what it is that you should have done, so, as you say, you put yourself in that position yourself, because you know that is not what you intended to do.

Yes some souls, but those that are lost within the mists of their own wrongdoing, are not aware at the time of coming to our side of life, because they are in effect, lost. You should have some understanding, after all because you have done what you like to call ‘rescue work’ with those on our side of life. (Yes)

Therefore your knowledge knows that not all crossing is easy and instantly recognizable to the soul or others.

Sarah: Does that mean that all the rescues that come through that have got lost in the mist, have all done wrong?

No, no, you cannot class together all lost souls under the one umbrella of wrongdoing. Some are lost because they do not believe that there is existence after the human form. So, be careful in making judgement there.

Sarah: Yes, it hadn't actually dawned on me that, but when you said they were lost in the mist, I just put the two and two together—

Sallie: I suppose it's similar to people here on this Earth level. Some of us feel lost in the mists here, don't we?

And may I kindly say that that also is your own responsibility. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmed)

Sara: Even if by the time we leave this Earth, we have evolved much spiritually, do we still have to relive every moment of ignorance—all of the ignorant things we have perhaps done in our lives, even if we may think we have tried to correct some of them. Do we relive everything in our earthly life when we come over to your side?

Yes, all is made clear to you—

Sara: What a shame! (Chuckles)

Yes you cannot just see the good moments.

Sara: I don't mean just the good, but I wonder if everything, I mean the whole life.

Every second of your existence will be shown to you. (Oh!) Many things that would, at this time, seem very insignificant to you, all of these things become magnified. But do not despair, because most souls return to our world and realize how much good that they have done. When we speak of darker realms, I want you to know that it is the minority. Don't be afraid—do not place upon yourselves fear or guilt—we do not wish you to do that. Most human beings have more good than wrong within them. And after all it is the gestures that you are unaware of which spiritually are the greatest. You seem surprised?

Sara: So it isn't always a very harrowing or painful experience to relive the earthly life—to look again?

I would not say painful, but to most I would say there are some surprises. (I'm sure!) Yes, but all of this happens very quickly and quite soon after you come to our world.

Lilian: So, if there's something we're really, really, sorry about at that particular time, we can put it right, can we?

Of course, the opportunity—can I say this to you, that the recognition is the greatest part of the putting right. (I see—) In recognizing that your actions or your words are wrong, you have gone most of the way in correcting. But can I just say this to you, that if you know you have done something—and you do know, you intuitively know when you have—and I would say this to you before I continue, that the worst thing you can do is to hurt another human being, not only with actions, but with words and above all with your thoughts. I would say this to you, my dear friends—and this is important for you to know: If you can put right a wrong, then do so while you are upon this planet. And, I will repeat myself: it can be done with the power of your thought. It is much better for the soul if you do that whilst in the human form.

Sara: If you have a situation where you would like to communicate love and peace to another person, but you really don't know if they are receptive to the written or spoken words, then is it best to just send thoughts?

Again, you are trying to judge. If you know that you need to send loving thoughts, then by all means do so. The only thing I would say to you is you must never interfere with your thought onto another.

Sara: But you can send your love—

But if it is loving thoughts, of course you can. Loving thoughts are always good.

Sara: Yes, because occasionally there may be a situation where it may be more comfortable for me to send loving thoughts, than perhaps do it in a physical way—or it's easier perhaps?

Yes, this is a misconception that to put right something you know you have created that you need to create action; this is not right. The power of your thought—after all, what happens is that the spiritual aspect of yourself is in contact with the spiritual aspect of the other person. It is nothing to do with the human form. That is why it is much better to put right anything you feel you have done to hurt another. Use your loving thoughts to put all right.

Sara: That's very nice to know, because in many ways it's easier sometimes to use the mind.

If you use that thinking it is easier, then you will not create what you are attempting. Has that helped you? Sara: Yes it has.

Now I feel that for this time, my dear friends, I have spoken enough. There are many here this time.

Please allow yourselves to open to their influence and see how you can be helped individually. I leave you; as always know that I am always with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~22nd November 1999~

Eileen was on holiday and therefore Salumet did not come through this time. Sue said that she saw Leslie coming towards her and then going away again. Other members of the group also felt that Leslie was around. The first one came through Sue:

Greetings from the far realms—I have to tell you that in your room there are many, many Spirit doctors and physicians this time. It is more in one place than has been seen for many, many times. Even more than on your normal healing evenings and we are hoping that we can help some of those whose thoughts were given to us this time. We know in particular that there are some who are chronically sick and are suffering greatly and we are here this time to see what we can do, but obviously we cannot give you results immediately; only in time when people see whether these poor people have improved will you know whether this mass healing evening has been somewhat successful. Are you all willing that we should try? (Agreed)

I will please ask each one of you in turn if there is a particular name you wish us to focus upon. I ask please for only one name from each of you. You may silently ask for help for others if you require it but I ask please this time for only one spoken name.

Each sitter named someone and the control through Sue mentioned the name of the Spirit doctor who would be helping on their side.

If you could all please concentrate on your chosen people, speak to the doctor who will be at your right hand side and imagine please the healing blue light encompassing this room and all the physicians within. I thank you for allowing us to be here and we hope we can be of benefit to all those suffering and in need of help.

We did as was instructed for about 15 minutes, before the one through Sue returned:

Our doctors will continue but there is no longer any need for each one of you to concentrate your thoughts. The physicians will remain here and will continue their work. I have to say that you may find that their healing presence will be felt at times when you enter this room on other occasions. It has been decided that part of the Spirit shall raise a mirror image of this room will be made into a healing sanctuary. We feel that the love which is given into this room can be used as an energy source for healing power. So, it may be difficult for you to understand, but I ask you to imagine that a similar room on a different plane of existence, will remain and be used as a sanctuary for healing. It is a small 'thank you' for all you do and all you will continue to do. I hope it gives you a small feeling of worth. (Agreed) All of you should feel that you have some worth, because my dear friends, without people like yourselves, our work would not be as straightforward as it is. I use the word 'straightforward' but it is, of course, far from that, but we will not talk of complex matters this time. Let us leave here with easy thoughts and not too much questioning, you understand me? (Yes—) But be proud of yourselves, my children. You are all good souls, some of you very old souls, and we are proud to work alongside the likes of yourselves. We will leave you now and trust in the power of love—send out only loving and caring thoughts and be kind to one another. (Thanks expressed)

There then followed one through Sarah, who appeared to be speaking quickly in some unknown language. (Possibly Incan) One through Sue then returned and brought the evening to a close.

~5th December 1999~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I thank you this time for your patience, but the instrument I use has a dryness of the physical throat, which I am dealing with. This time my dear friends, I want to say to you this: Your thoughts are never passed by, those thoughts which come to me are never forgotten, but I would say this to you, do not expect that we answer you as quickly as you would wish or in the way that you would desire, but know that your thoughts, when used correctly, reach me, stay within me and eventually I will do what I can to help each one of you. (Thanks expressed) As we approach this time of your earthly year, when there is amongst humankind much kindness, much goodwill, it gladdens those of us from this world who endeavour to help all of you to know that humankind has within its heart the love and the joy that each one of you is deserving of. It also saddens us that this goodness, this love that is shown to others at this time of your year, is not used all of your time. I know there are many such happenings and much talk amongst you on this earthly planet at this time, because of what you call a new millennium. Let me say this to you my dear friends: it is but a passing time. There has been upon this planet many, many millenniums, but what I wish to say to you in respect of the one approaching is this: That in the span of time of the Earth's next 1000 years, there will be many changes, many changes that humankind will be able to achieve. There will be a new time of thinking, a time of awareness of all things, of all matter and the changing structure of the universe as a whole. This planet will reach the stage in its evolution within the next 1000 of its years, where people upon this planet will know, will know that the only true pathway is within themselves. Your scientists and your physicists even now are struggling with new knowledge, which I hasten to tell you comes from our world. They are beginning to see and to understand just a little about the makeup of the physical being which houses the Spirit. They know already that there is more to life than the physical contraption of the human body. I tell you these things, because although my dear friends by then you will past to our side of life, I wish you to know that the work that you have undertaken will continue. This planet Earth at last has reached an understanding of the destruction that mankind has wreaked upon itself. This planet has reached an understanding that mankind is more than at first he thought. Mankind has reached the understanding that all religions are but one, and mankind will recognize that there are many who walk this planet who have come to give them divine teacher.

Lilian: And they will be recognized, will they?

They are recognized, but in this new time which so many are seeking, there will be much more awareness. Our work upon this planet will be far-reaching. It seeks out those people who have been lost before to this knowledge. Mankind has reached the time in the planet's evolution, where he cannot now deny Truth.

Lilian: That's wonderful news.

I want each one of you, my dear friends, as this 'New Millennium', as you call it, approaches; I wish each one of you to look within and to know and to acknowledge that you have the awareness now of what lies before you, because my friends, you do have this knowledge and it is within each one of you. As always, at this time of your year, I will withdraw from you for a short time. I will return, refreshed I hope, with new teaching for you.

Lilian: We look forward to that.

We have had much coming and going in these previous times, but no matter what the number may be, the established link must now always be used in order that I can now begin to give you new teaching. Therefore, when I return to you my dear friends, there will be much for you to learn, to acknowledge, to dissect, because I know you have not yet reached the stage of acceptance, but I am happy that you will take the information given to you and think about. On these words my dear friends, know that you are surrounded always with my many blessings. I will endeavour always to help you if I can.

Lilian: We are grateful. Can I just ask you one question about the lady who came last week as a visitor?
Yes, please.

Lilian: Should we invite her to come as a regular?

May I suggest that the lady comes to you in my absence and when I return I see no reason why she should not continue, but it may be helpful if she comes to your meetings in my absence in order that she can slowly adapt to the knowledge which is given—but yes, she is acceptable. (Thank you.)

Now my friends, may the Divine Consciousness from which we all come, surround us all, help us in our unfoldment of Spirit, help each one of us in what we are endeavouring to achieve. For the rest of this time, I say once more, open your hearts to those who stand near, allow them to come to you, because there are many willing to make contact with you. Until we meet next time, my love stays with you.

~10TH January 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As I return to you once more my dear friends, I embrace you all within my love. It is good that we join together once again. I feel from some of you some pressures of living, but hopefully as we continue all of these many fears will dispel. As I left you last time I told you that in this coming year there would be much new knowledge for you. This will be but for this time I would like to say to you all, I want you to be absolutely sure that when I say new knowledge, I do not mean new truth—there is a difference. Truth always has been and always will be, but you can gain in knowledge and in wisdom, dependent upon your capabilities of acceptance and how much you wish to grow spiritually. Do you understand the difference my friends? (Affirmed) So therefore, when I say I will bring to you new knowledge, it will be new knowledge to you as far as your understanding has grown. Each one of you travels a slightly different pathway—this I know you understand. Therefore I wish to say to you, as new knowledge comes to you it may be that some can find within their hearts to accept more easily than others. But do not be concerned, because as time travels onwards, we will have much opportunity for questions. This I have always tried to do to make the knowledge simple in order that your understanding is great, that your intelligence is not demeaned in any way, but you accept these simple truths in the guise of new knowledge. So I say to you my dear friends, we have much work ahead of us. I hope that all of you as emissaries of Spirit will go forth as this new knowledge comes to you and let it radiate outwards to all you have contact with.

Lilian: I'm sure we will all do our best.

For this time I will not stay too long, so my friends, if you wish to speak with me, please do so now.

Mark: I have been asked to ask you if a lady called Maureen could come and see you next week? She is Colin's mother.

I am aware that the lady desires to visit with us. If her desire is genuine then we will make her welcome. Yes, I will accept the lady. Does the other gentleman wish to speak with me?

George: I haven't a question at the moment—one may come.

There is always in you some puzzlement I feel, but if you do not wish to discuss it this time we will leave it there, thank you.

George: I have been working towards publication of my book. There is always a certain amount of puzzlement involved in that.

Yes, may I say this to you my dear friend: I know you have heard it many times, but the word is patience—it will come to you.

George: Yes, in our earth lives I am aware that we are perhaps overly time conscious (Yes) and we like to meet what we set up for ourselves as deadlines, but I take your guidance that I should really be patient and yes, I have those inner feelings that one should really be patient.

Yes but in being patient that does not mean you should not strive—the two can go hand in hand.

George: Yes, it is proper and rational to strive and I should not get upset if things take a little longer.

Yes, perhaps this is the time to use a word perhaps I am not fond of but which is understandable to you all and I say the word 'faith'. Perhaps better use the word power of Spirit, which can create for you all things. Do you understand? Have some faith in your own capabilities. After all when you are allowing the Spirit within to be confused, all of these feelings transfer to the physical being. This I also have told you many times, but I know you human beings, and I do not use these words unkindly, but you do need to be reminded so often of what you can achieve.

George: Yes indeed—

Remember my words of guidance to each one of you, this for your spiritual growth. I am not so much concerned about the everyday problems of your human lives, after all I come to teach, but in trying to teach you, I know sometimes you need upliftment in your daily lives. So, please accept my words kindly.

George: Yes indeed, thank you. I always hesitate to ask questions about my own personal things, but nevertheless it is very good to have a little guidance sometimes. (Yes)

Sarah: Yes, I was just thinking that the same applies to my husband as well in his situation at the moment—he needs to be patient as well.

Remember, my dear friends, in your own spiritual unfoldment, you can also be the examples for others. Remember always that most people will learn by example, therefore it is important that each one of you show that spiritual nature to all that you come into contact with. I think for this time I will leave you with all of the love I can give to you and when we come together soon, there is so much for us to discuss. Now let us give time for others to speak with you. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sue:

Welcome with greetings from the hills and mountains. I bring you air and I bring you the Spirit of the sky and of the earth and I bring you much from the living quarters and the leaves upon the trees. New life is all around, buds burst forth, plants grow, animals produce and the life cycle which is eternal continues. These words this time are meant for the lady who will shortly have a bud burst forth of her own. My child, the one you hold within you will bring you untold joys as your years unfold. This little one has much to do. As his life progresses from childhood to adulthood, remember these words if you can: in a few of your years your little one will astound you and hopefully you will recall this night and you will say 'it was foretold'. No more will I say but as he grows you will become aware of what my words intend. And also, do not squash any ideas which may come forth from this child. Listen to him and believe what you are told. Even if some of the things seem fanciful to you, I say to you, they are words from the Spirit. Look at the buds bursting from the trees and remember my words.

Lilian had the intuition to reduce the light level at this point, as another spoke through Eileen:

How very kind of you—we obviously have mind communications. I just sat here thinking what strange creatures human beings are. (Giggles) Why must we sit in dark conditions, trying to communicate?

Ummm?

Lilian: It's more relaxing.

Granted.

Sarah: It's easier for you too, to come through when it's darker?

Physical darkness is difficult to explain—it is more for the protection of the physical body.

Sarah: Why is that?

Why? You see my opening words are true. If you are in communication of mind it would be most obvious, because the human body is frail and does not allow the strength of his Spirit to come forward. Therefore there is a meeting of Spirit and body, but it is the frailty of the human body which causes us concern. I did not intend to speak with you this time, but I sat here wondering when, WHEN will these human beings wake up. (Laughter) And so I found myself in communication with the lady, who instantly made full use of my thoughts and turned down the lights.

Lilian: So have you been a human being?

Let me just say this—again the lady is picking up my little discomfort at talking with you. So part of me knows and understands the human condition. Yes, it is not something I would wish to repeat, but it has helped in my understanding, but you have to admit, as human beings, you are most complex.

Lilian: Yes, we are. I guess that is the way things are meant to be.

No, no, no, no, no. I can tell you that the human race is going forward much more quickly than in any time past. I speak spiritually, of course. But in saying these things you have much to, ha ha, learn! So, forgive my intrusion into your quiet time, but I could not resist the opportunity to speak with you about you. (Thanks expressed) Well, I can tell you gentleman, this occasion will not occur again.

Lilian: That's a shame, we are very grateful that you've spoken to us.

So I will only say this as I leave: Good living to you all.

George: We have felt and become more aware of our complexity, but it is very good to hear the thought from other than, dare I say, a human being.

You force me to say this gentleman: Yes, it is KNOWLEDGE to understand others who are different from yourselves.

George: Yes, and this we very much appreciate.

You must not stop me going this time. (Thanks + farewells)

~17th January 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends, I welcome back lady who has been absent for some time (Mary). I also say this to you, my dear friends: Let us enfold this time the lady who is ever seeking and wishes to join us this time (Maureen—Colin's mother). To her we give warm welcome. I would like to say to you my dear friends, because we have with us this time lady who is ever seeking, I would like to say a few words about spiritual searching. I will take any questions you may have this time but let me say this to the lady who visits us: May I hear your voice my dear friend?

Maureen: Yes.

As my dear friends here all know, I do not come to give personal advice—that I leave to the many others who come to use many instruments of all kinds. My dear friends know and understand that I give my time to teaching, but to you dear lady, I wish to say this: You have had much Divine inspiration, have you not?

Maureen: Yes.

Yes. You have knowledge, you have much to give. But may I say with the kindest of words that what you seek you have to achieve by allowing that Divine inspiration to work for you.

Maureen: Yes, I understand.

You have as yet, not found the way to use this divine gift—to dispel, shall we say, the confines of matter, of living. Once divine inspiration comes to you, as it has to many people upon this earth, then what has to be achieved is a spiritual unfoldment, which allows your lives to help others and to allow life's experiences to show you the way to spiritual growth. Do you follow?

Maureen: I do follow you, yes.

I keep my words simple in order that each one—after all you are fully aware that each one treads a slightly different pathway. To you my dear friend I say this: There is something that you must understand. You are fully aware of the communication in meditation, but what I wish to say to each one here and which puzzles many, how do you know the difference between the ego 'I' and the Divine 'I am'.

Maureen: Very difficult.

Yes, this sometimes puzzles you, is this not so? (Yes) Yes, let me say just a few words about this: The Divine 'I am', the voice of Divinity is quiet, is humble, is gentle, is loving. Bear this in mind when each one sits quietly. Remember too, my dear friends, that if in doubt, remember I have taught you that that inner voice, that Divine voice, will always come forth, time after time after time after time. The ego 'I' will let go. Can you see the difference? Sometimes the ego comes forth and it is possible for the ego to confuse, but the Divine 'I am' always comes with humility, with love and in order to help others upon their own spiritual development. These words are simple, but their meaning is deep. Do you understand? (Yes) Do you have questions for me, because this time I will not give new teaching, but offer you the opportunity to ask questions.

Maureen: A lot of people nowadays want readings on a psychic level for their material life. What do you feel about this? Do you really think it is of any value to people? Are we possibly interfering with their free will, as opposed to mediumship linking those with their loved ones on the other side, which helps people realize that there is life beyond?

Yes. I have taught my dear friends, but I will repeat it for you: Each one of you upon this earth is Spirit, but each one upon this earth has psychic ability to a greater or lesser degree. If those abilities are developed to such an extent that the individual can help another, there can be no wrong in that, provided it is done with love and in the name of truth. After all, each individual treads a different pathway within one lifetime. Those who you call ignorant—and that is not a word I like, but for your understanding, many who are without spiritual knowledge still need help. If it comes in the form of psychic advice for everyday living, this can only help, provided the one who gives the information is genuinely there to help them. (Thank you.) Of course, when we come to what you term ‘mediumship’, then truly we have the communication we desire. Those who offer themselves as communicators from our world to yours—after all it is to help them recognize the Spirit that they are and what better way can we provide than to bring forward those loved ones who have departed? (Thank you.) You cannot interfere in another’s life. If that person comes to you seeking advice, you have not interfered, can you see? (Yes) But what you must be careful of is that you do not advise another to interfere in a third party’s life; then there is the danger then that interference can take place. Can you see the difference?

Maureen: Yes, thank you.

You must be careful in any approach that is given to another human being. But after all, each one of you upon this planet is responsible for their own development; in which way they seek it is entirely dependent upon their freewill. So, no, provided the motive is good, there is no harm. Can I say to you on a personal note, and this I do not give often—sometimes you do not follow your own instinct and advice.

Maureen: Quite right.

Yes, but do not be afraid. You are going forward in the direction meant for you. There is much that lies before you, my dear friend. I do not tell you it will be a smooth pathway, but after all, what is gained must be worked for. I see much goodness around you, my dear friend. Do we have more questions?

George: Can I come back to the subject of the power of thought again? I feel there is more that we can probably learn about this complicated area. I think we understand the power that thought can have. There are other types of thought: the story writer in constructing a story, the actor on stage—they will have their thoughts but there will be no intention that those thoughts should be projected in any meaningful way. Could you say something about the types of thoughts and their power?

Yes, we have touched upon this many times and of course I have told you that there are different types of thought. Remember although you are Spirit, you are clothed in physical garb. You also have a brain which is within that physical garb. The power of thought which I speak of is the thought of the Spirit; that is the power of thought. There is much thinking which is negligible within your lives—of course there must be. It is when you come to the deep thought that comes from the Spirit within; there lies the power of your thought. That is the power of thinking that you must be careful of, because not only can it do good, but you have the ability to affect many others also. You should be able to differentiate between the two and you have given a good example by speaking of the writer and the actor upon the stage; these are every day thoughts. Remember too in your dream state, many of your thoughts are flippant but many are Spirit-inspired. I know these many things confuse you human beings, but as life continues and your spiritual unfoldment becomes greater, many of these things become clearer to you. If I might say simply: The more practice that you have, the better you become. Does it not apply to many things in life? The more you practise, the easier it becomes. So too with your spiritual gifts—the more they are used, developed, the more you are in communication, the easier your judgement becomes. You will never in this lifetime, or at least very few beings will achieve that spiritual growth, which brings to you the love and the spiritual light which you try to achieve but never will, because of the thoughts and the emotions which belong to the physical being. So, remember, the power of thinking must be developed within the spiritual nature of yourself. Do not be afraid that every feeling, every thought is captured forever; that is not quite true and it is misunderstood by many, many people upon your earth. Is this a little clearer to you?

George: Yes, I hope that we have all benefited from that. It has certainly clarified it for me, thank you.

I say, my dear friends that once more you become confused between what is spiritual and what is physical. I know it is difficult for you always to see yourselves as spiritual beings, but that is what you must strive towards. If ever you are in any doubt, go within. I have told you on many, many occasions, the answers to all things lies within you.

Lilian: I think we all begin to see that, don't we? (Agreed)

I will take one more question, please.

Maureen: It is about relationships—I have read different things. Some say that the main people/partners we come together within our life, we are meant to be with for a certain length of time whether it be forever or for a short time, and we learn from them and they do from us. What are your views about people who divorce? Does it mean that they have naturally come to the end of that time they are meant to be together or are they not seeing it through, as it were?

Yes, I understand your question. Let me say this to you that in this lifetime which you know and understand in many ways is a lifetime to learn. As you know, I feel each one of you before you come to any lifetime, agrees beforehand what life you will come to, who you will meet and to what degree each individual will help. As in all walks of life, people come, people go, but let me say you never meet anyone who is not there for a purpose. But in saying this, each individual has been endowed with freewill, so without having a clear-cut answer for you because there can be none in this human living, many people sever relationships because of that freewill. It is not always what they have chosen to do before they came to life upon this planet, but in saying this, each one accepts responsibility for their lifetime here. Accountability is made when each soul returns to our world. After all, before each soul comes to life upon this planet they have seen their pathway, but as in all destinations there are many routes and that is the responsibility of the human freewill. So I would say this to you my dear friend: If two people separate within a lifetime through what you call divorce, perhaps that was the soul's decision, but it also could mean that one of those two people had used their freewill to depart from the other. This is a difficult subject for you probably to understand—it depends on the soul.

Maureen: I understand what you're saying.

It is not always right or always wrong. Right and wrong is not the right words to use, because after all when each soul comes to this life, there are many decisions made beforehand and you cannot be responsible for the decision of another soul; you are only responsible for your own actions. So shall we take your divorced couple as you call them as an example? Shall we say that these two people have decided to come for whatever reason—and there could be many reasons why they decide to be joined in this lifetime, but we do not have time this time to go more deeply into that matter. One soul decides to follow the pathway straight as it should be, the other soul decides when within the physical garb, that he wishes to deviate along another pathway. The soul who stays on the course they have chosen, cannot be responsible for that change in the other soul. So there should be no anguish within that soul that their life's promise has gone astray, if I may use those words. Only when the soul returns home is it accountable for what has happened within this one lifetime, and remember, it is but one lifetime. Does this help a little in your understanding?

Maureen: Yes it does, thank you.

For this time, my dear friends, I will leave you. I will allow others who wish to speak to you. I say to you, seek only truth, seek only to help those in need, seek to shine forth to all those that you meet, but I say to you, do it with humility and love that you all possess. I leave you encompassed as always within my love. (Thanks + farewells)

~31st January 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Let us this time give thanks to that Creative Force for this union. Let me say to you my dear friends, this union between us is of much importance, therefore let us remember why it is so. You my dear friends, as emissaries of Spirit, know only too well that the purpose of my coming to you is not only for new knowledge for yourselves in this lifetime, but also that all peoples that you meet may see and may know the spiritual light which each one of you sends forth. I want you to remember these words daily, because as you grow spiritually, many more opportunities will come your way in order that that spiritual light be recognised among those who lack in knowledge of spiritual matters. Therefore, I say to you my dear friends, remember who you ARE. Now, this time I wish to speak with you a little about the concepts of time, or rather the lack of understanding among you of what time is. Time, as you know in this physical world, has been manufactured by man into many degrees of your minutes, hours, days, weeks, years—but let me say this to you, that time is your mental perception of what it should be. Would you agree?

Mark: Do you mean like when it would seem that time passes very slowly and other times it seems like it passes very fast?

Yes, you are correct. After all, as an example, shall we take one hour of what you call time. Five minutes of your time can seem like one hour, sometimes. Is that not true? (Agreed) But you see, it is your mental perception that makes it so. Do you understand? (Affirmed) You also know that time as you know it, does not exist in our world. But what I wish to expand upon this time is something perhaps you have not been aware of before and it is this, my dear friends: You know and understand that within our world there are many stages of growth. You all are well aware of this (Yes), but what you perhaps do not fully understand is that the mental perception—and after all it is the mind which is uppermost in our world—the mental perception of time in our world alters with each stage of spiritual growth. You know and understand, and we have discussed at some length, that energy is ever- moving. Therefore as you progress spiritually it is a quickening of vibration of energy, therefore the mental perception alters also. Are you understanding me? (Affirmed) This has been little discussed in your world, except by the many masters who have taught initiates of spiritual matters, but in general most people have not considered the change of mental perception of time in our world. Let me give you some examples, please. You know when first you leave the physical garb behind, not much changes; you still retain all the desires that you have become accustomed to. Therefore, if you desire to speak with another or go to another place, then the mental thought helps you to attain it. But with each stage of spiritual development, all of this gradually quickens, quickens, quickens until you are one with the actual vibration of time. I am speaking on difficult matters this time, therefore if you do not understand, we will stop now to enable you to ask the questions.

Mark: So then with the raised vibration, would you then be more in the flow of life, because I have noticed when you are engaged in something and busy yourself with something, time seems to pass more quickly.

Yes, that is the physical equation if I may put it that way. That is the closest you will get to an explanation in this life, but the spiritual vibration needs no mental perception of any time but that is the stage that is much advanced, and you could not possibly begin to understand. But what I wish you to know and would want you to try and understand, is that the perception of time also changes; it is not something that, when you come to our world—and as you know there is not time as you know it, but it does change with the quickening of the spiritual vibration. Therefore the advanced being within our world, would have no perception of time as you would imagine it—they become part of the whole. Can you understand or is this too difficult for you?

George: This is very interesting. I suspect there is a kind of physical parallel where the quickening vibration is concerned, because physical clocks which depend on a vibration in the crystal, the time that they register changes when they travel at great speed.

Yes, yes; you have the meaning of what I am trying to put across, but of course we are speaking physical against spiritual, which is always the problem. But yes, I agree with you my dear friend, that is a good analogy.

George: Yes, thank you, I was careful to describe it as a parallel.

Yes, yes but I wish you to know, my dear friends, that the understanding of time, because it is always a question that is asked of us who come from our world to try to understand a little more, to explain to you how time in our world works. But perhaps the simplest way to put it to you is that time as you know it does not exist. It is an energy, it is a vibration, which as you grow spiritually, changes also. That is the important point this time. I ask you, my dear friends, to reflect upon my words this time and we will return to it in order that we can construct for you a little more detail.

Sarah: When you first go over into Spirit, then, as you say, the vibrations are much slower, but during that time from the slow vibrations to the very quick vibrations when you become one, there still isn't any sort of feeling of time at all?

Time as you know it does not exist; mankind has created time. After all, in your sleep state you are not aware of time passing. (Agreed) Try to imagine it on that level and you may, just may begin to understand just a little that mankind has 'arranged', if I may use that expression, man has arranged his living to work within what you call time.

Mark: Is it because we are not very developed spiritually, or not very in touch spiritually that we don't follow our urges to do things and so we need clocks to arrange everything?

Yes, as life is within your planet at this time of its evolution, time as you know it has become an essential part of your everyday living. This we know and understand, but as you also know, in your meditation states, are you aware of time? Perhaps then you begin to realise that the blending with Spirit eradicates the need of physical time.

George: It is probably true to say that as we move into Spirit, we leave the physical world behind and that includes the physical universe, which is the basis of our time measurement.

Yes, of course, it is the time when the Spirit comes to the fore and the realisation that the Mind is in charge of the physical. But we accept that because of man's use of physical time, it has created within his thinking many complexities that the understanding is great, but not always understood. Now my dear friends I think for this time I have spoken enough to you to enable you to reflect upon my words. As I say, this is something we will return to on many occasions in order that we can go more deeply, more thoroughly until your understanding is such that you feel you know a little more. Do we have any questions before I leave you? (There was just one question of a personal nature)

Now I ask you my dear friends to allow those who wish to come close to you, and I would say before I leave that as you continue upon your spiritual pathways, that your knowledge of those who come close to you will become much more heightened, that if you would allow yourselves to be more open, there are many who wish to help. The door, my dear friends, is being opened to you. Please do not close it.

I leave you with my love which not only encompasses you all within this room, but encompasses this planet with much love, with much healing and with much devotion in order that the Great Creative Force can continue on its way.

(Thanks + farewells)

~14th February 2000~

The recorder was malfunctioning at the start, making the voice sound slow/deep—several sections were inaudible:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Do you feel the love and peace which is with you this time? (Yes) I have joined you this time on a wave of love, because of the many thoughts that each one of you has sent forth in order to help others. I would like to say to you my dear friends just a little about prayer. As each one of you has given of your time this evening, I would like us to speak a little more about the power and the answering of your prayers. Indeed it is a noble thing that prayers are sent for another human being, but why are they not always answered? This we hear in our world so many times. Firstly let me say this to you: Prayer should never be intermittent, prayer should be complete trust and the giving and the empowerment back to that Divine Force, which each one of you calls God. If only my dear friends, in your prayers for others, you would not use such negative words. For example the words 'if you can'. This we hear so often from you: 'Can you help, can you help if you can'. Can any one of you explain to me why these words should be used, because in using them my dear friends, you attract negativity, because by using the word 'if', it implies that it is not possible and when you are offering yourselves and help for others to that Divine Creation, you should be absolutely certain that all things are possible. Do you understand how restricting words can be? (Yes) It is better that use from your heart the feelings of love towards another, that you place that love back to the Divine energy so that all can be made whole. Am I making sense to you my dear friends? (Affirmed) If you have questions, please let us have them now.

Sarah: So they may not be answered as we would have wished ourselves?

First, you are well aware I know that prayer as you know it is not always answered in the way you desire, but let me say: All prayers are heard.

Lilian: So the person would receive help anyway, though not in the way that we would have thought of asking?

You are not capable of seeing the full picture, as I have told you previously. Therefore you cannot know what is best for that soul—but your prayers are heard; of this you must be absolutely sure. After all, when you ask for (?) or for help for another human being, how are you to know if this is the desired way of the soul? (Yes) But in the saying and the doing of the prayer, you my dear friends, are helping yourselves also. So I come to what I wish to say to you and it is this: Your prayers should be offered ALL of your time, not only for help for others, but in your devotion, your faith if you like to call it that, in the utmost knowledge that the Divine Creation is all and (Knows all?), that there can be no 'ifs' and 'if only's' within those prayers. Prayer, after all, is individual to each soul and the contact made with the Divine energy is almost, shall we say on a personal level in order that the (Unity, wholeness upon the other?) That is true prayer, the interaction daily with the Great Divine Source of all life—that is prayer, not the intermittent callings that you make on behalf of others. True prayer comes from the Spirit and the soul. Do you understand what I say to you? (Yes)

George: —(?) Prayer can to unspoken with a feeling of wellbeing towards others?

Yes, you are correct. The unspoken word sometimes is much better, because it means that there is a melding of the love bond of the knowing, the absolute certainty that this love, this feeling, will blend with that Divinity to which...(?) It is something to be worked for (The tape stops momentarily, then continues and is more audible from this point)

...of so many of its troubles as each one of you has the ability to be healthy and strong by going within. Imagine what your world could be like when you give back that power to the Divine Creation. Do you begin to understand? (Yes) It is something not easily understood, because mankind has been taught over many times with many of your religions, that to utter some few words will bring about for you much goodness, but in fact it is much more complex than that. That is why so many in your world feel that your prayers go unanswered when in fact they do not. I will return to you on another occasion and explain a little about how these thoughts are reached by many in our world and how they are utilized for good in so many different ways. I think you will find it most interesting; we will return to it.

Lilian: So when people first pass into Spirit, do they still pray, ask for help for certain people, perhaps in the dark regions of Spirit. Prayer is still used?

Many, many people who come to our world as you know retain all the properties of physical living. If they have been dedicated to prayer as you know it in this world, then of course it will continue, but gradually they will see and understand for themselves the true meaning and understanding of what prayer is about. I feel this time I will leave you, I will say to you that others will speak and that before you leave this room this time, each one of you will feel a special peace that will overshadow you all and this has come about by the words, by the feelings that have been given out by you all this time. As always I leave you with my love. (Thanks + farewells)

There then followed one through Sue who said that Salumet's words this evening had been simplified to make them understandable to our human minds. She said that we learn every moment of our lives and that we absorb knowledge even if we are unaware of it happening. It is stored in 'mind' to possibly be of use later. She also explained that the mind is big and is able to take far more knowledge than we give ourselves credit for. Her final advice was: So absorb all that knowledge, be grateful for it and enjoy it! It is good to enjoy knowledge, it opens up vast vistas in your mind, in your subconscious and in your daily lives. And when your time comes and you come across to our realms, your knowledge will begin all over again. The learning curve will start at the beginning and provided you are willing to learn, so much will be yours for the asking. You have started well all you here. We would not have brought such a fountain of knowledge into this room and into your previous place, if we did not feel that you would put it to use and enjoy what you have learned. We are very proud of you all and we are looking forward to speaking to you on vast subjects—possibly only the tip of each subject, but it will be a starting point, for when your minds can absorb more. But as I'm sure you have been told before, take nothing at face value, question, always question. By asking questions, your knowledge can expand, and from expanse of knowledge, you will start walking into the Great Light, which is Love and enlightenment. I leave you with great love. You are all surrounded in your daily lives, by the love and protection of the Spirit. Reach out to it in times of trouble. Ask and help will be there. I wish you farewell, until we speak again. (Thanks + farewells)

~21st February 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I have come to you more slowly my dear friends, because each one of you is in need of peace and rest. Therefore I have allowed you just a few moments of quietness. This time my dear friends I would like to speak with you about not your planet, but also of others which are close to you in your own galaxy. There is at this time and for many of your months to come, much activity, activity between many planets, and the results of these physical happenings will not become known to you on this planet earth until two more of your earthly years have passed. What I wish you to know is that as individuals, you know you have a pattern of evolution, as does your planet. Also I have told you I believe that this planet is intertwined with many others that this galaxy to which you belong is but a small part of a much bigger scheme of life. We cannot enter into too much detail, because it would not be understandable to you, but what I wish to say is that the galaxy to which this earth planet belongs is now in a state of its own spiritual growth. To that end there will be many changes. You will find that the men of this earthly planet will come to recognize that within your space-time much is happening. Not only are you in times of much development, but you are in a time of great evolution not known to you before, but which will take effect and will make itself known to you human beings upon this planet quite soon. You of course, depend upon the knowledge given to you by those you call scientists and, I believe, astrologers are the words you use. You depend much upon their knowledge. I can tell you my dear friends that those in my world are already working with them in order that this knowledge can be brought to them. The time has come for expansion and growth to be recognized not only on this planet, but those who are closest to you. And yes, there is much knowledge that can and will be gained. Therefore I say to you my dear friends this time that as you listen to my words, I would like you to take them with you this time and to think upon them and allow yourselves, my dear friends, to become part of the cosmic consciousness rather than of the earthly one. You can achieve this and the time is now ripe for this to take place. Of course, there are many already on this planet who have this ability, but now I tell you it is available to all. If the spiritual desire is there, it can be achieved. I feel your wonderment my dear friends.

Lilian: Yes I was going to say, are there any words that can help us to reach this state?

I and others will work with you in your quiet states, but you must give this to us if you wish to desire this for yourselves. And again, we cannot interfere with your will, but I am giving you the opportunity for the knowledge. Do we have any questions this time?

Lilian: Would this knowledge be being given to people on the other planets?

They of course will be aware as those upon this planet are also being made aware. Yes, it is spiritual knowledge of course although there are much physical happenings, of course there must be because physical and spiritual happening is always intertwined.

George: I think I understand from that that there will be an involvement of greater spiritual awareness to many on the planet at this time.

Yes, the opportunity is here. It is now up to the peoples of the planet to take the opportunity for knowledge and growth.

George: I imagine that this may well lead to a revision of a number of our old ideas, old ideas of government, farming, various avenues of life. Would I be right in thinking that this will be a time of great revision?

I would say to you that these things are already taking place. It is not new, but because of the time of the evolution, especially of this planet, those things will become quickened and man will become much more aware of what he needs to achieve. Those in your world who are so far not knowing of spiritual matters will find themselves opening to much, much that they have denied—and I speak spiritually, of course. Once the Spirit is awakened, then of course mankind will follow with the physical happenings which will result in the evolvement for betterment for the good of your world. I do ask you my dear friends, to think on these things and to feel for yourselves. The moment in time is great. We from our world have tried for so long to ensure that Truth be out and it is beginning to happen. It cannot now be denied; it has to be. And let me say as one who comes to try to help and to teach and to help you with your knowledge, it gladdens my heart to see the results of our endeavours. I will leave you this time. I feel that these few words will enable you to think deeply once more. After all, is that not my purpose, but to help you to open to new visions of Truth. As always I will leave you with my love and support in all that you try to achieve. (Thanks + farewells)

~29th February 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time before I speak with you, I ask that each one feels the unity between you and those who stand close by you this time. I want you to begin to understand how important it is at each of our meetings that the strength of unity amongst you is of great importance to us all. I ask that we sit quietly in order that each one feels the quickening of spiritual vibration; and afterwards, perhaps this time, we will have questions. Are you happy to do this? (Agreed) If it helps you, I ask once more that you sit closely together in thought and feel that merging of energy amongst you. (Pause) Does anyone feel the unity between you?

Lilian: Yes, I think we all do, is that right? ((Agreed))

In blending in this way the vibration of energy is quickened. This is what enables us to use you in the way that is necessary. It would be good for each one of you, if at the beginning of each meeting, you raised your awareness of this bond before we begin any work.

Lilian: Yes, we will do that.

I will leave it to you, my dear friend that this may be done each time we meet for just a few of your minutes. Now, because we are few in number this times, we will have some questions if you desire.

George: You talked to us recently about the quickening vibration in Spirit and the way the vibration quickens until it is at one with Source. It seems to me that there is a very striking parallel in the physical world. Our scientists can accelerate particles of matter and if a particle such as an electron, is accelerated to approach the speed of light, it is said to approach infinite mass. I prefer to think of it as becoming one with its environment which would seem to be a route to infinite mass, and again the tiny particle, we are told, can be regarded as a vibration. It seems that there is a very striking parallel between, shall I say, the edge of the physical world and the quickening vibration of Spirit.

I am not surprised by this equation you have made. You of intellectual thinking would see this connection. Of course, when you speak of particles and mass and electrons and such, you are speaking of slightly slower vibration as compared to that in our world. I know you understand this, but the parallel is almost a perfect one—not quite, but I can see the way of your thinking.

George: It is almost, I would say ‘almost’, as if this edge of the physical world is reaching out as a bridge to the spiritual world. It is probably quite wrong of me to think that, but I am tempted to see it as that.

It is not a bridge. After all the physical and the spiritual world is intertwined. Can you not see that there has to be the passing from one to the other? Therefore you might say that the higher vibration of your physical world is the lower vibration of the spiritual world. You must not try to separate the two. After all, all things within your planet, within the cosmos, belongs to Spirit first and foremost. All vibration is spiritual in the sense that it is intertwined with all things material and physical. Can you understand this?

George: Yes, that’s an interesting thought, yes.

So, in your intelligent way of thinking, try to see these things as belonging to each other, rather than trying to separate them, then you will have a greater understanding.

George: Less of a bridge and more of a merging.

Merging, not a bridge, that is the best way to put it to you. I feel these words will give you much to think of this time. I know you will come back to me and we can continue along these lines. Thank you for your question.

Lilian: More questions?

Margaret: I just want to tell Salumet that I did what he said and spoke to my children about the way I want my body left and, since then, I have talked to several people who are going to do the same. I feel I have started a trend.

Yes, well let me say this, dear friend, that you must be true to your own feelings, your own true self and, after all, what is the physical garb, but something that is disposed of by all of you, and for those of you with the awareness in this room, this should not become a problem. Therefore, if you wish to tell others, then that is entirely your freewill. (Thank you.)

Sarah: I would like to go back to the quickening of Spirit. When I was talking to my husband and telling him that there was no time as we know it in Spirit world, and then went on to tell him about the quickening of Spirit, he said that that was time in itself. I didn’t know how to explain this to him.

You will not be able to at this time, because his awareness is not—although his understanding is great, he does not have the spiritual capacity to take on board these things at this time. Therefore I would say to you, leave him with the simple explanation for now and a little later we can, with help, explain a little more to him. He will not understand in the proper manner, what we would wish to tell him, because of his lack of spiritual knowledge at this time. It is not so much the intellect, because of course he has much of that as you well know, but sometimes the physical intellect interferes with spiritual knowledge. He may not understand this, so I would say it is best that the explanation for now be left. (Thank you—) I have to say to you this, that the concept of time in our world is little understood by many, many—even those with knowledge, because how can they understand something which they have not experienced. This is the problem in trying to explain these things to you.

George: You yourself obviously have an awareness of our physical time and wonderfully you come to us on Monday evenings, but does your awareness of our time present any difficulty at all?

No, no, the difficulty lies with you in understanding our understanding. Does that answer your question?

George: It’s something to think about! (Chuckles)

Good, that is what I am trying to achieve. If I send you from this room with thoughts of spiritual activity, thoughts of what you are truly about, then indeed I am beginning to achieve my mission here with you. But as always I say, it is good that we have these question times, because although I know each one of you seeks new knowledge—and of course you now understand that means not new truth but new knowledge to your understanding—it is best that we confirm for you much that we have spoken about. Therefore in doing this you will find that sometimes my answers are very, very simple.

Lilian: Would it be more of a thought process, the coming together of the physical and the spiritual? We know that we are going to meet here, so is it the thoughts that bring us together?

We, in my world—this again is connected with your time and your understanding of time—we do see time as you see it, because that is not so. But what we are aware of is the light which exudes from all of you and we know by the joining together which we do, that when the time is right we will be here. It is not time as you understand it. This is a difficult topic for you to understand. (Agreed)

Sarah: Salumet, would you be able to be in two places at once?

Of course I could, yes.

Sarah: And may I ask, do you come to any other groups on the earth?

Some aspects of me do, yes. You know of course that first when I came to you, I told you that I was a conglomerate of beings. Again we enter into deep matters. One aspect of my soul aspect is here with you—the aspect that is able to lower the vibration to be with you, to join with you. There are parts of my soul aspect, which would not be able to join with you in this manner. I do not want to complicate it for you, because it is complicated, but you are meeting with me and I am but one small aspect of the whole of the soul. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Lilian: Paul, did you have a question?

Paul: There is still nothing on my mind at the moment.

Let me say this to our dear friend, that much of his thinking in his quiet moments are answered for him. You know and you feel this, do you not?

Paul: Yes I do! That's one of the problems, I think of these questions and then sometimes they answer themselves.

That is because we are around you when it is needed. It is better for you, if I might say so, that you continue in that way, because much comes to you in your quiet time. But do not doubt it—be influenced by it, be guided by it and know that you are surrounded by it.

Paul: Thank you, that's very useful, yes.

Lilian: Can you take any more questions? (Yes) Could you—perhaps not this evening, but if you could tell us who collects our thoughts and our prayers. How does that work?

What I will do—I knew that prayer would again be raised as a topic of discussion and what I would like to do, is to bring to you someone who works along these vibrational lines of prayer, who would impart to you their own knowledge and give you a little more insight into what your prayers are doing and what is being achieved and not achieved by them. Would this be of interest? (Affirmed) Let me say now to you that in two more weeks of your earthly time, when we meet again I will bring to you the person who will speak to you about prayer.

Lilian: On a much stranger note to me, I have been sitting in meetings such as this for a long time, I get this what I call 'head nodding' when my head nods, (Yes...) and I do wonder why. Is it just to let me know that Spirit is there?

It is control. It is spiritual control and it is making, through the physical being, Spirit known to you; that is all. You know that it happens quite outside of your control, but it is only that the awareness of Spirit is within you; it is as simple as this.

Sarah: Is that the same as with my hands that move about a lot?

Yes, it is all to do with what you call spiritual power—what we call blending. And when a physical and a Spirit blend well, then it is that the physical has the awareness of Spirit within; that is all. And of course at times such as these when the blending of each one of you is greater, then we have more control. Perhaps I should not use that word 'control', that makes it sound like you have no control over your physical being—of course you have. Shall we say it is the awareness, it is the blending of the physical with our world; that is all. It is nothing to be afraid of, although I can tell you that some people are; they are afraid of the feelings which it brings. You will find many within your institutions of illness who suffer or think they suffer from what you call madness and voices, when in fact it is that they are channels for us, but because of the human mind frailty of the physical being, they cannot accept.

Paul: It is such a waste.

Yes, you must not criticize, you must not judge, because they know no better. They are not guided in the proper way.

Sarah: And what about the people who say they have heard voices that tell them to kill somebody? Is that a bad Spirit coming through, or what is that?

You must not always assume that physical conditions come from Spirit; this has to be corrected within your world. There is mental illness within a physical being. There are many explanations which I will not enter into this time, but of course when you are within this physical garb, much that happens within your physical living can create disturbance within the thinking. So do not always assume that these things are spiritually motivated. Each one of you remember has control of your lives—you are given freewill to use in many different ways and you must, each one of you, be responsible; and you know this, we have discussed it many times. Each of you are responsible for the lives that you live. Therefore, if mental illness exists, it comes either with that being into this lifetime or it has been created by the thinking. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Be careful in giving Spirit, in giving our world judgement for everything that happens on your planet. Although each one is Spirit, it does not mean that every action is Spirit-motivated. Try to think upon this a little this time also.

Lilian: So it's freewill really?

George: I suspect that where voices, music and other things one might hear—I suspect when this is happening one often has control—one can listen or not listen, and one can even enhance the effect. I recall when I used to ride a motor cycle and the wind rushed past, I fancied I could hear music and I could concentrate or not concentrate on it.

Yes, let me say this to you my dear friend: Within your world there is goodness, there is love, there is light, there is music in the wind, there is Spirit all around you—in your water, in your blue skies, in all that is about and around you. And, yes, the gift of freewill to you human beings, is your responsibility. Shall we, for example, take the wind that you speak of. Inner freewill could either feel the beauty and the music of the wind, or shall we say the human thinking could turn that feeling of wind into speed and danger and perhaps even death. Can you see how much control your thinking has? (Affirmed) Beauty surrounds you all, but you must always become aware of it. Again we come to positive and negative thoughts and the power as I have told you on many, many occasions, is the most powerful thing you possess—your thinking, your thought. So, please, always try to see this in your everyday living. I think for this time you have much that you can think about and go over once more. I hope I have helped to enlighten you on some points of interest. (Affirmed with thanks) And as I leave you, I wish you much love and much Divine Light in your lives and as I ask you to think upon my words, I say to you all my dear friends that each one of you feel peace in your lives. Until we come together once more may I say that the Divine blessing always be with you. (Thanks expressed)

~13th March 2000~

Salumet told us two weeks ago that tonight he would be arranging for a guest to speak with us from Spirit world about prayer. The speaker described himself as an 'Integrator of Thought' and gave further wonderful insights into the nature of Thought and Prayer:

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I have been instructed this time to join you good people. You have been told that I would be joining you at some point in your meetings. (Yes) For the purpose of this visit you may call me Edwin. Yes, I come to you this time to speak about what you call Thought and Prayer. I know much has been given to you, therefore I do not wish to go over old ground, but I hope this time that we will be able to enlighten ALL of you on the subject of Thought and Prayer. I believe the one who comes to you last time explained how powerful your thoughts are and how your prayer and each prayer is not lost within our world.

Lilian: Yes, that's right.

But you were also told that there are many extraneous thoughts which, although do not disappear, are always gathered and integrated within the vibrational field. I hope this was made clear to you.

(Affirmed) If not, I hope to enlighten you about this also. I am what you perhaps would call an integrator of thought. After all, Thought and Prayer are but the same thing. The power of the thought dictates whether it becomes prayer or just mere thoughts. Would you agree? (Agreed) Yes, I need in part to know how you feel about your whole thinking. So if perhaps we went to each one individually, perhaps we could gain some knowledge of what you feel and what you think. In this way I can enlighten you all on your own thinking. Do you agree? (Agreed)

Lilian: So basically you would like to know from each one?

Yes, what they feel Prayer is and how they feel it is dealt with in our world. I will then inform you whether you are right or whether you have some misconceptions about it.

Lilian you like to start Sarah?

Sarah: Yes, I think prayer is going from Spirit to Spirit, so leaving out the physical. Obviously you are thinking about it, but it's really trying to get the Spirit in this world connecting with the Spirit in your world and trying to blend together really—trying to pass on our thoughts from Spirit to Spirit.

Yes, of course, it is that, of course it is. After all, you are Spirit, are you not? (Agreed) We all agree on that, there is no dispute. Yes, the power of the prayer belongs to the power of the feeling, the emotion of the Spirit; that is true prayer. True prayer is the blending of the Great Spirit, as you like to call it upon this planet. That is what each individual is trying to achieve, whether they are aware of it or not, that is what is happening. As an Integrator of Prayer, I have to tell you—and I do not want this to seem that we interfere with the power of your thinking towards the Great Creator—we do not. We are only empowered to help those vibrational fields to reach their target if you like; that is the simplest way I can put it to you. I believe you have been told in past times that thoughts which are not only powerful for 'good' but can be powerful for 'not-so-good', we sometimes have to protect those where those thoughts are intended for. We are not interfering as such, but we are empowered to BLEND the vibrational fields; that is as simply as I can put it to you. So the directional field of thinking of your thoughts are helped along by those in my world such as myself, who are empowered to deal with it.

Sarah: Could you just tell me, if somebody is passing on a bad thought to somebody in your world and you are deflecting it or putting it off course, what actually happens to these thoughts, because they don't go away, do they?

No, all thought is collected in the aether but they can be diffused. If you ask your gentleman friend who sits next to you, he could give you an earthly explanation. In fact I can tell you that many of your so called 'scientists' who have come to our world, now join in this work, because they are interested in the actual workings of thought and vibration and all the vibrational fields which exist and which they did not know of whilst upon this earth. It is diffused, it is not dispersed.

Lilian: So prayer, if it is repetitive or a one-off, it makes no difference, it reaches you?

It depends on the power of the thought and what it is. What the lady is speaking about are thoughts—not 'good' thoughts shall we say, directed towards someone in our world. They need to be protected and that is our task.

Lilian: How about if we project a thought to someone in our own world?

You must always remember when you use the power of your thinking, whether thought or prayer, that what you send out is very often sent back. I do believe you have been told—and yes, I am being told you have been told, you must be careful in your thinking. (Agreed)

George: I think of prayer as projected thought and I think it springs from a desire to help people in need, and this can be on an individual basis or on a collective basis. For example, where world disasters are concerned—I think we automatically have compassion and feelings for people who seem to be caught up in earthly disasters. I think this is probably what I class as prayer. There is also another type of thought, which I think is more of a collective thing, which perhaps underpins our evolution on this planet; that may be something related. It is not prayer, but it would be a thought process.

Yes, I am understanding what you are saying. Can I say to you kindly that sometimes you people, when you send thoughts and prayers, as you call them, for the good of others—this is fine, but can I say underlying many of these thoughts and prayers is FEAR. Do you agree? —Fear for your own selves. Therefore I would suggest most graciously to you that that indeed is not true prayer. True prayer is thought sent, as I have said to the lady a little time ago, prayer is for blending, a blending of the Spirit to that Great Creative Force from which you all came. Prayer is the blending and the thanking for the life that you have—that I would suggest to you is true prayer. Do you understand? (Yes) So I would suggest to each one of you that you make a practise of what we call True Prayer each day that you exist upon this planet, because in creating True Prayer, you not only give of yourselves, but you blend together with those of us in our world and that is indeed Prayer which can create much good, not only in this planet but in many others. Do you understand? (Affirmed) I cannot become too technical with you, because I think it would be much too complicated. But true prayer, my dear and good friends, is the blending—blending without need, without want, without giving to another; it is indeed a spiritual blending of the highest degree.

Mary: My thought about prayer is just that it's a communion of thought.

Yes, yes it is a simple answer and yes I think I have said enough to expand to you what that feeling is.

Paul: Yes I think some of my thoughts have been echoed about prayer. Sometimes I have a feeling when I am praying that I am sending out thoughts, it's like communion with spirits...

Can I stop you there? May I ask all of you a question? Why do you pray?

Margaret: I think it is because we have all been taught to pray from childhood. I don't think I understood it then, but I think I do now I think. You pray for the good of the people you live with.

But that is an earthly instruction. But why deep within your thinking, why do each one of you pray?

Because I can tell you that each person who exists upon this planet prays.

Mary: Because we need to be in touch with the spiritual and in prayer we are.

Lilian: Is it the Spirit side of us wanting to connect?

Yes it is the innate knowledge, which drives you to prayer.

George: And can I say, we like to feel that we are helping to make the world a better place?

If that prayer, that thought is genuine—without as I have said, fear—without cause for one's own good, then indeed that prayer will be used constructively. So much of your thought and prayer time, if I may say so, is diffused within our world, because the depth of Spirit, of emotional feeling is not great enough. As in all things, it DEPENDS on WHY you send out these thoughts. Can you understand? (Affirmed)

Sarah: Is another reason we pray, because we are not actually complete, there is only part of us here, and apart from the innate feeling, we are lacking something, lacking the rest of the whole?

It is a spiritual need, but it is something you need to be working upon. But too often you feel that you MUST pray; that is not the way to do things properly. If you are driven by NEED, then it is not a natural prayer. Do you understand? It must come from within, it needs no words, it needs no objective. It is as I have told you, a blending with the Great Source of Life. It is a natural feeling, which, if done properly, can produce much good.

Paul: Does it always have to be voiced?

No, no. You can voice it—again it is dependent upon what you are trying to achieve.

George: I think an example of unvoiced prayer might be a peace meditation, a feeling for desire for peace in the world, which one could say might arise from fear of war. (Yes) But sometimes that fear might be more akin to a compassion for the world.

Yes, now you have touched upon the word—'compassion', not 'fear' for the world, not fear for yourselves—compassion. May I give you an example, please of unsaid prayer? If you were to come upon a person who is unknown to you, but immediately your heart goes out to that person. Unspoken love is sent for that person; that is prayer. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Because it comes instantly, it is natural and there is that great spiritual blending. That is GOOD prayer, if I may use that word. Can you see the difference? (Affirmed)

Lilian: I was thinking of the repetitive prayers and thoughts that are spoken in our churches and all religions.

As I said, all thought or prayer is not diffused, but there is much extraneous thought which is unnecessary. That is why you have Integrators of Prayer such as myself, who work constantly. As you can imagine, so many thoughts bombard us and without giving the impression that we are controlling thoughts—we do not—we are empowered as I have said to deal with the vibration of thought. This is deep matter as I have said and I will not enter into it this time.

Sarah: You have explained to us what true prayer is, so what we would class as prayer in asking for help as George has said for others, what would you class that as—not really prayer but just asking for help?

You can offer yourselves first and foremost, THEN you can give help. Do you understand the difference, because there is a difference? (Agreed)

Margaret: In your thoughts you're asking for help for other people.

You need not ask in words, it should come, it should come from here. (Hand on chest?) There should be no need for repetitive words, because of course, or I hope you do know, I hope you've been told and you do understand that ALL that you think is known anyway. Therefore this repetitious feeling that you have to continue to say words over and over again; each time they are said without true feeling they become less and less. Can you see this? (Affirmed) One true blending of prayer can create much, much good in your world, because that true blending with the Great Creative Force, who knows all things, understands all things—of course it is understood and known what you desire.

Lilian: Yes, that makes sense. Any questions Sue?

This lady will not speak, but she will understand when told.

George: Might I enquire how you regard the collective prayer from people in a church who are all speaking, thinking together?

Yes, it is difficult to give you one answer to this, because with so many people being individual spirits, they are praying in different way. You will have those who repeat words, because it is words they are used to saying. Those thoughts will have great impact, but there will be others within that congregation whose prayers and thoughts reach the targets that they are intended for.

George: It very much comes down to the individual.

Yes, I would suggest so, yes. It is wrong, and I have heard it said that churches today—it matters not what denomination—that churches have no use with these masses of people uttering so many repetitive words. Do not dismiss it so lightly. Much good DOES come from such people, those who are genuine whether they know of their spiritual self or not, because after all, it is the Spirit within which is at work. Do you understand this?

George: Yes, I have always felt that the church is an overt spiritual happening and it can set an individual on a particular course.

Yes you cannot dismiss out of hand all churches; many of your great I believe you call them cathedrals and places such like—mosques, all of these places, it matters not—it is what is in the hearts of those people. It is the blending of Spirit which counts.

Lilian: Yes, it makes sense when you tell us that.

So, again I would say to you—and I know this has been told to you many times: Do not judge others. Do not suppose that your prayers are any better than another human beings, because in judging thus you are erroneous in that thinking.

Sarah: If true prayer is working properly, does it still have to come through you, is there any sort of way—Not always, no. True prayer will blend with the Great Creative Force without interference from us.

Sarah: So you're really only dealing with that which is not quite right?

Well I would not use those words, but yes, I understand your meaning, of course, yes. (Thank you.)

I hope I have enlightened you a little. (Affirmed) There is a little silence, but it is a difficult subject to understand. We are talking about vibrational fields that you are not aware of as such, but it is, I feel, important for you to know that there those such as myself in our world who are there to help and to encourage when possible those of you on this planet. As I say this is something too which puzzles many, many people, because of course thoughts, prayers are constantly bombarding all of our world and, as in all things, there has to be ORDER. It is not interference, but it is ORDER. (Agreed)

Lilian: What about animals in our world? They must have thoughts.

Not in the same way. They have a blending with Spirit, but not to the same degree. It is different. I must take my leave. I am beginning to irritate this lady's throat. So I will say to you thank you my good friends for taking the time to listen to me, I have enjoyed it greatly. I hope each one of you has learned some small thing and I hope that my task this time has been successful. I bid you good night. (Thanks + farewells)

~20th March 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I would like to extend the welcome back to our dear lady who has been absent from us for some time. I have been with her many, many times and I wish to say this to you, my dear lady: Your heart will become lighter. Keep close your own counsel and give of yourself to those who stand nearby. I hope, my dear friends that the visit last time by one from our world was of use to you all. (Affirmed) I would like to speak to you a little this time about what was said to you about rescue work whenever the time is appropriate. Within our world at this present time we have seen many come to us who are distressed and in much need of help. There is as you all know a lack of communicators with our world who are prepared to give of themselves for such work, even amongst the spiritually instructed, there is a fear of this type of work. Therefore, for some time to come, when the opportunity is there, we will use you. But what I have to say to you this time my dear friends is this: I was close to you last time and in fact was most interested in your discussion after your meeting. Many of us were listening to you and what I would wish to say to you this time is how much you have grown. It was most interesting for me especially to recognize how much each one of you, so different in your own individual ways, how you can discuss and collate information in a constructive manner, in a spiritual manner, because each opinion comes from Spirit, the thinking of Spirit, from deep within you, which allows each one of you to offer opinions and to be glad of it that each one can offer an entirely different opinion without feeling that each opinion has been outcast. This indicates to us my dear friends how much spiritual strength there is within this small group of people. For this, my dear friends, I thank you whole-heartedly, because, do you realize, not only are you emissaries of Spirit in the physical form, but your thoughts, your hopes, your desires are known to those in our world who also are seeking knowledge and help. I think you probably are little aware of my last statement. When the light of Spirit shines forth as it does from you now, there is much joy in my world for those who have been close to you who see the transformation from ignorance to knowledge and how brightly that light shines in our world for all to see. This, my dear friends, is something I wish I could show to you, but of course you know that is not possible until you come to my side of life.

Lilian: That is encouraging.

You should be encouraged; I feel most hopeful for each one of you. You have gained so much and all by your own endeavours. We can come to you, we can join you, instruct you, teach you, but we cannot give forth that spiritual light unless you are ready to receive and you are ready to give forth from yourselves. And in that one simple conversation last time, when you spoke of forgiveness in your world and your different opinions upon it, we could see from each one of you that deep, spiritual light emitting. I say to my dear friends, have happiness within your hearts for what you have achieved. I know you do not want credit, after all that is not what we are about. I have taught you much about thinking and humility and blending of Spirit, but sometimes because of the human element of which you belong, it is appropriate that you—how do you say, ‘pat yourselves upon your backs.’

I felt this time that these words were necessary for you. Now I say to you my dear friends that what I would like to do this time is to bring to you one from our side of life who will give you some more information about conditions and the way of life in our world. The lady who is near (Sue) is the one who will be used. Please allow a little time for the communication. I leave you always my dear friends and especially the dear lady—I give her upliftment and much love, because she is in need of both— but know that I am with you always and I do hear what you say to me. And remember that your thoughts are always heard. I will take my leave of you this time and know as always you are surrounded by my love.

(Thanks + farewells)

The one through Sue was unable to communicate with us this time. There were many apologies for this.

~27th March 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before we begin this time, I want you to know that I have been aware of many thoughts coming to me. I say to you, my dear friends, they do not go unheeded. I feel much love and warmth from each one of you this time. I would like to say to you, my dear friends, just a little about yourselves. In your dwelling place upon this planet at this time you can see for yourselves new growth, new hope, much expansion of all that you call nature. To this I would make a comparison to yourselves. Yours—you see my dear friends that each one of you is also in the springtime of your spiritual unfoldment. From this time forth, each one of you will find new growth, new understanding, new ways of expression in all matters spiritual. But of course as each one of you is individual in lifestyle, then each one of you will, within that spiritual unfoldment, develop at different rates. This is entirely down to each one of you individually. I can tell you, my dear friends, that from this time forth many opportunities will come to you and it will depend upon yourselves in which way these opportunities are grasped and moulded for the betterment and good, not only for yourselves but for all others. I have told you on more than one occasion that you are not aware of your own soul's growth, but I can say to you my dear friends that many opportunities are coming to you and the opportunity is there for you to show the way to many others less knowledgeable than yourselves. Be aware of these words, they have much significance for you. Allow yourselves to open to all things new or happenings in your world and especially to your own thinking. Again, I am stressing to you the power, which each one of you possess, and that is your thinking. Use it for good, do not let it go, grow with knowledge, open your hearts and your minds to each other and collectively my dear friends you can become not only a source of power for good, but you can leave behind the confines and restrictions of these earthly chains which bind you, and allow the Spirit to re-grow, rekindle and to blossom fully as do all of your 'nature' as you call it upon the earth.

Lilian: Thank you for these words, we shall wish to remember them as time goes by.

I can only help you. I can help and uplift you, but I cannot change you. The work belongs to each one of you. Next time I will bring you new information, which will help each one of you to think deeply about your place in this world. Therefore, before I leave you this time, are there any questions to be asked? (No questions) My words this time have been few, but I hope it has given you some indication of new thinking that is needed from each one of you.

Lilian: Yes, and perhaps with your help, we shall not let these opportunities slip by with other people.

You do need to be vigilant about your own inner feeling, if you are to achieve anything of great importance in your lives. After all, what can be of importance but that the Spirit shines forth much more than it does at the present time? (Yes) It is now time for each one of you to be fully responsible for that spiritual unfoldment which you are capable of. Not only within the confines of this room should you be aware of what you are, but each breathing moment the awareness should be there. Before you leave this room this time, each one of you should have felt a guidance of one close by. I say to you my dear friends that I leave you now as ever with my love and upliftment; I say to you, feel that spiritual bond which entwines you all. (Thanks + farewells)

~17th April 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time before I speak with you: Let us give of ourselves to the great knowledge and wisdom which is at hand for our use. Let us join together this time and give thanks for all that we are and what we are endeavouring to achieve.

I feel my dear friends amongst you there is some tiredness and some little weariness of which I will speak, but this time I wish to speak with you and to clarify some issues with you in order that once more you can go forward with your own evolvement of spiritual matters. The first thing I would like to say to you my dear friends is this: There is much talk in your world about the new era which is coming to this earthly plane. Much has been spoken about the date in your calendars which somehow mankind feels to be some kind of 'new' age. Let me say this to you, each new day upon the planet is new evolution of your time. Therefore I say to you my dear friends, take each moment, each minute, each day as a new beginning. After all, this planet upon which you exist has existed for longer than you can know. Therefore, the evolution of this planet has been unfolding from the minute of its creation. Do you understand what I am trying to tell you? (Affirmed) Each precious moment of your time, is time to be used in your own spiritual evolution. If each person upon this planet was to view life as such, indeed there would be much to look forward to. The spiritual awakening would be greater, not only for you human beings, but also in the evolution of this planet. You know also that this planet Earth is but a small planet in the scheme of life. So, do you see how insignificant it becomes when so many people upon this world speak about some special year, when indeed the miracle of creation is with you in every moment of time. Have you any questions upon this subject, my dear friends? (Pause)

Lilian: No, I don't think there are.

You have all become so knowledgeable! (Laughter) I do not mock you.

George: Looking back over the period of our history, there have been periods that one can look upon as special (Yes) in some way or other and perhaps the coming decade will be special in terms of the opportunity of new beginning. I take your point that there is a new opportunity every day. (Yes) We are aware of our mistakes through the 20th century and one lives in hope that there will be fewer mistakes in the years to come. Perhaps it is wrong to view any period as special, but perhaps it is a hopeful way for us to look ahead sometimes.

But do you not see my dear friend that as you spend time looking forward that you are missing the opportunity of now? I understand that mankind needs something to grasp hold of, to be special, as you say in this day and age. This earthly planet is still in turmoil as each one of you knows, but it is up to those of us who come to your world to instruct, especially people such as yourselves who have the beginning of awareness. We wish to direct you all in order that you too can direct others in the rightful way of thinking. Yes, I take your point, mankind does always seem to need to live with hope, but when you have the knowledge of the all-consuming power of Spirit, then these wishes, hopes and desires do seem to be rather needless. Do you agree? (Agreed) Yes, that is one point that I wish to clarify with you and as you are in agreement, that can only be good. Another point I wish to raise with you this time, we hear so often confusing messages given about the life path of human beings. I have spoken, I know, on different occasion about many things, but sometimes it is necessary for us to make clear to you anything we feel that is, how can say to you, misconstrued or not fully understood, by the people on this planet. One of these things is the life path of the human being. Are your lives fated? Do you have a life plan? Let me begin my dear friends by throwing the question out to you. What do you feel?

Sarah: I think maybe when we come here we have a plan of what we want to do and, but as energy is ever-changing, so we don't always keep to it.

I know what you are saying. Does anyone else have an opinion please about this matter?

George: We have inner feelings which probably link with our initial plan.

Closer! Yes, anyone else please?

Paul: We are all born with certain talents and I feel there is a certain place for us where we could flourish and that maybe is where we should be heading.

Yes, yes I take your point. Yes, the other gentleman, what do you feel?

Mark: Yes, I go along with the things that have been said.

You feel life is mapped out for you?

Mark: Not exactly mapped out, but you certainly feel sometimes that there are opportunities that you feel you have got to go for, you have got to try them. You do not exactly know why straight away, but you just feel you have got to make this step and then other things seem to unfold and then later on you can see why you did have to go and take that step.

Margaret: I agree with that completely. You can plan things and whether they come out fruitful or not, you are meant to do that to find out these things, aren't you?

Yes I take your point. Let me now say what I wish to say to you: There is much confusion in your world about the life path of the human being. Yes, you do know before you come to this world what that plan is, but it is the soul path, not the human being. I hesitate there because I want you to realize the difference. Too many people in your world feel that their physical lives are mapped out for them. Not so, not so. It is the soul who has the life plan. Therefore the human being can be totally unaware of the soul's path. If you do not understand what I tell you, please stop me and we will try to make it clear to you.

Lilian: So, if the human part of us takes the wrong path, does that disrupt the soul's path that it should be treading?

The physical being is activated by the soul, so as the gentleman has said, it is the inner feeling which should be the guiding light. Those people who are unaware of spiritual power are treading pathways which to them is negative and uninformative in their lives. It is the soul who knows and understands what pathway should be taken. Can you see the difference? (Affirmed) Do you understand that you can live a human, physical life without ever understanding what your pathway is? (Affirmed) That is why we hear so many questions, 'what is life about?' That is the physical being crying out for the soul to help, but as you understand—and let me say I congratulate you on your understanding, that it is the soul, it is the soul who retains the knowledge of the life plan, not the physical being. The human physical being has freewill as you well know, but it is the soul who activates; so you must listen carefully if you wish to be directed correctly upon the soul's life path.

Lilian: The inner voice as we call it.

Partly, yes. After all the soul has to go through many initiations in the human living, if it is to reach that stage of understanding where it can go forward in our world. Each soul has that responsibility when it comes to this physical world; it knows what must be done, but because most of you have blocked memories, you are not fully aware of this. That is where the confusion lies. Too many people feel that their physical lives are mapped out for them. It is not, it is the soul's path.

Sarah: Salumet, would you say that the more times you have been back, the easier it is for the physical to listen to the inner self? Is it the very young souls that come here that are having the most problem listening to their inner self?

You must be careful my dear friend in expressing 'old' and 'young'. Yes, we do have old souls who return, but they are returning in part, remember, the part which needs to learn. Therefore it is a 'new' experience shall we say. So although the soul may be older, the human being may be completely new; the experiences will be those that the soul has not learnt. So I would not say it is easier, but the soul would be more aware of the difficulties that the human being is faced with. Do you understand? (Yes) We cannot interfere in human life. We can stand by as 'directional beings', if you like, to help and encourage you, but we cannot step in and interfere. Is that clear for you?

Sarah: Yes thank you.

Do we have any questions that perhaps you need to have cleared, because when I come to you next time my dear friends, I hope to bring you some new knowledge and new information. So let us make the most of this time with any questions that you have doubts on.

George: I had something on my mind which relates to the earlier part of your teaching this evening perhaps. Recently Pope John Paul asked for the forgiveness of the sins of the church in past times and these included the Inquisition and the violence of the Crusades and I felt this was perhaps a sign of our times: job well done, it cleared the air for the formal church which needed clearing. Do you have any comment on this happening?

I would say on this to you my dear friend, that those comments made by the Papal leader does denote, does it not, the goodness of his heart? To us it shows not so much that he has asked for forgiveness for others, but it has shown to us the magnitude of his love, it has shown to us the greatness of his Spirit. Therefore, whether his apology be accepted or not within your world, in our world it shows that this leader who has made these gestures of apology, he shows the way to many other leaders in your world. (Agreed) That is where his greatness lies—not in the apology, because of course you know, he cannot obliterate and apologize for deeds done by others, but as a leader he has shown greatness by that great love and sympathy.

George: Yes, thank you for your words on that.

Do we have more questions? (Pause) I have to say my dear friends, your gentleness and quietness when we meet, makes me humble, but so many questions when I am not with you! (Chuckles) There has to be reasoning in that I suppose, but if you are content then I will leave you this time. I leave you in the knowledge that your awareness is ever-growing, ever-expanding.

Lilian: Can I say that when we read your words again from the transcripts then I think again and think of the questions probably. It begins to sink in.

Yes, it is good that these words are written down because sometimes the human thinking does not always fully appreciate the true meaning of my simplistic words.

Sarah: And our memories fail us too and we can't always remember what you have said.

No, that is why it is good that you can re-read these things.

Lilian: And our American friend (Brent) would like the transcripts again, so that's good.

Yes, always still he questions but that is to be expected in one with such an intellectual mind, but in saying that, every seed has to germinate. So, my dear friends I will leave you this time and leave you in the hand of this one (Lilian) who is most capable and beginning to feel much more in the way of leadership of this group. (Thanks + farewells)

~24th April 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is with an open heart that I join with you this time. I feel your love as I hope each one of you feels our love towards you. This time, my dear friends I wish to speak with you about matters perhaps you are not aware of, but as we continue I will leave open to you time for any questions about the subject I am about to discuss. As you well know, my dear friends, the Divine Law always runs smoothly. There can be no discussion upon this point, because that is Truth. But what I wish to say to you is this: Within our world there has to be some kind of order, some kind of encouragement and upliftment to those who need help. Therefore I know that you are aware that there are many who you call 'masters'; I would prefer for this evening to use the word 'teachers'. We have spoken much about my world and so many aspects within it, but without the teachers within our world, it would not be quite so simple for those souls who are looking to grow and to go forward. Many teachers in our world are able to descend into many realms or planes as you call them, in order to help others. These souls do this work because the desire to help is great. They of course would be much more comfortable within their own realm of existence. What you may not know is that there are teachers of many kinds who come to teach in all areas of living. You have heard of the great halls of music, the great halls of teaching, our hospitals—you know all of these things, but what I wish to discuss with you is the work of some of the teachers which inhabit these places. 'What is a teacher?' I might hear you say. They are enlightened beings, beings of heightened awareness and knowledge who come to give great love to all those in need. But the teacher I wish to tell you about this time are those beings who help the soul who has grown in awareness, but who needs guidance before they can join what you term a higher plane or realm within our world. These beings, these teachers have specific tasks. I do not think you are aware of them, my dear friends, are you? (No) No, because little is known of their work. You know and have been taught that thought is the ruler in our world, that thought creates reality. Yes, of course, but what you are mostly unaware of is the guidance behind that instantaneous thought, which moves the soul forward. There is wise counsel for these souls. These are the listening ears of the soul who reaches out for knowledge and awareness and desires to go forward. These teachers come from great planes as you call them. They descend to help others but their time is limited because of the density of the surroundings. Of all the masters who oversee so many things in our world, the teachers of awareness, they are indeed teachers of great magnitude, great love, great spiritual awareness. Before I continue, shall we have some discussion about what I have said thus far?

Lilian: These teachers, would they have gone through the stages which we all have to go through and then reached this?

No, these particular teachers as we are calling them, have no need of these earthly experiences, but they are aware and have great knowledge of all that drives the soul, they have a knowledge deep within which can expose the soul, which knows the very energy—basic energy that that soul has. So these teachers are not of your world, they come from much further. That is why I have selected them for you this time, because little is known of them. The reason I give you this information this time is that as your own awareness, your own divinity grows—and we know you have spoken on physical terms about how the soul should grow and how you must listen to that inner voice—these teachers sometimes are your inner voice, not only your own soul. They do not come often to this plane of existence, because as you know this is a plane of much density, of heaviness but you have heard I am sure of cases where people feel that it is not only their inner voice that they hear but something outside of themselves. Think upon these teachers, because they have much awareness that is little known to many souls. Do we have more questions before I continue?

George: I would just like to observe that it brings home to us even more just how small we are to the cosmos and how indebted we can feel toward other beings within it.

Yes, that is why I am speaking with you this time, because I feel that your understanding now has become much more heightened by the knowledge you have gained, that this new knowledge, not known to many, can be accepted by you and be taken and can be thought-provoking to you. That is why I bring it to you and, yes, within the Divine, the Divinity, the cosmos—all of you are but a dot. But that should not prevent you from trying to understand the greater scheme of life. After all my dear friends, I would say to you that since we came together your own spiritual awareness has reached such heights as you would not have imagined. I believe this to be true. I, of course, can see you as you truly are, but because you are clothed in this human form, the view of yourselves is rather blinkered.

Mark: Do these energies come to uphold the Divine Law and at the same they are part of the Divine Law? Of course. All law is the Divine Law, it always has been, but as energy is always moving, so is understanding. That is what changes, is the understanding. But the great teachers of awareness are the teachers of Divine energy. Their time which they give to all souls in their own personal development is limited, because they come from much higher planes of existence. Their sacrifices are great, their motives unselfish, their love abounding and, as I have taught you, overall there is no one soul more important than any other as far as the Divine knowledge goes—You have to look towards these teachers of awareness as beings of great love who offer of themselves much, who sacrifice much in their own personal development, only in the sense that they could go much further forward, but because of the great love they desire to help those less fortunate. And although within Divine Law their own souls are developing, it is still in a sense, and for your own understanding, a sacrifice which they make. Do you understand? (Affirmed) I do not wish you to look upon the word ‘sacrifice’ in the human sense—that is not what I am trying to tell you, but at this moment in time I find no more suitable word to use. Of course they are growing because they give of themselves, but the great love towards all souls is tantamount to no greater love that you could find upon this earth. So, for this time that is what I wish you to think about, the great masters or teachers of our hospitals or our music halls or our schools and each one is indeed a teacher and their work most important. But I wish you to think upon our teachers of awareness and development and growth. Do you have more questions, please?

Lilian: I was just thinking that it must be wonderful to be in the presence of one of these teachers, the feeling that would be there.

The soul in the presence of these teachers is quite comfortable. They cannot see other than the beauty of their guidance and their teaching and the soul instinctively knows that what help is being given is indeed correct for them.

Mark: So there wouldn't be any point in trying to distinguish between the voice of one of these and your own inner voice.

All is one when it comes to you with love, yes, but for your own self-awareness, we have to make some distinctions at this time. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Are you sure my dear friends? Do you understand what I am trying to tell you? If you have doubts or questions, now is the time for us to discuss them because I will not return to this matter again.

George: The teaching souls, they have their own continuing evolution (Yes) and it is part of that that they are sacrificing in devoting their time to teaching?

Yes, but of course be careful of the word sacrifice because they are evolving, of course, otherwise what would be the purpose? But at this moment in time I use the word sacrifice cautiously. It is a physical word, remember, and to the teaching soul it would mean nothing at all. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Any more questions, please?

George: These teaching souls would have had their past lives, albeit not on this planet and not necessarily on planets?

Yes, we are speaking here of the teaching souls whose evolution as you call it, their awareness, their growth, is such that all knowledge is known to them. May I put it to you in that way?

Lilian: Would any part of...

No, no; I understand your question. No, some of the other teachers have followed the course of physical living and continue in that way. In the halls of music, in the halls of teaching, in the hospitals then this case is correct, but for the teachers of awareness, of growth, of knowing the soul, then they are all-knowing. That is why I have taken them apart from the others. They are the teachers of knowledge least known.

Lilian: And when the soul is ready and they can come along and help move forward...

There comes a point when the soul needs to go forward that sometimes they are confused, they wish to remain in a comfortable level of existence when in fact spiritually they have grown. That is the time when the soul of teaching comes close. Try not to imagine teachers as you see them—this is always the problem also that they are made known to the soul but in an entirely different concept than you may imagine. But I do not wish to enter into that now—that would be too confusing for you. But the teaching soul would come close to the soul who is trying to grow and move forward and in an instant the soul would know what the teaching would be. Remember the concept of time is different, the understanding is greater, the soul is more aware of spiritual contact as it should be. Do we have questions, please?

(Pause) I think you need some time to digest what I have said. That is my intention for you, that it is a little more knowledge for you to ponder upon.

Lilian: It's comforting to know that we are helped even more.

The soul is never left alone. I sometimes feel that human beings think that the only people who surround them with love and knowledge are those loved ones who have gone before them or those people they have known throughout their lives and are known to them as guides or helpers. This is a very wrong impression to have, because do you not see how limiting that can be when there is so much that can be tapped into? The whole of the cosmos is within you, so much help, so much upliftment and so much love to surround you all. Try to view my words this time on the greater scale of life. Let your soul do the thinking, let your soul feel, let your soul grow and then the awareness and understanding will be greater. I feel that for this time the words which I have given to you are enough for you to contemplate this time. Therefore, I will withdraw and allow some quiet thinking time. I would say to you, my dear friends, that as you sit quietly, allow those who stand by you this time, to come even closer and I leave it with the dear lady (Lilian) that whatever you feel you may discuss and I say quietly please until this instrument is back with you—but quietly discuss between yourselves what you are feeling. I leave you as always with my love and my blessings until next time. (Thanks + farewells)

~1st May 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I am happy to join with you once more. I have been aware of each one of you more clearly since last we met. I wish to say to you this time that do you realize how much the connection between your spiritual growth and your physical living has developed? I know that each one of you is much more aware that as—and you do not know how much you have grown spiritually, but I try to tell you often—but I know each one of you has become aware of the union between Spirit and physical life. Each one of you knows and understands that you have become more than just emissaries for Spirit, you have become within yourselves more Spirit, less physical. Each one of you, although each one is so different, but each one of you has the opportunity to voice the knowledge that you have gained. I know there is a fear amongst you that you are afraid at times to speak the words that you know to be truth, but this fear will go as you grow. There will be no fear and truth will come easily to be parted from your lips. Each one of you in your own individual way has much to give, not only to give but to teach and teaching of Spirit, remember, comes about in the most simplest of ways; a touch, a smile, to live your physical lives as you know you should. To dispel fear and doubt in all of your daily living will enable you to come forward with the truth of Spirit to those in your world you have become almost spiritually ignorant. I say ‘almost’ because there is a spark within all people whether they deny it or not, they know what truth is truly about. But to those people you can bring love and light and harmony and so also to yourselves does this not come back to you. So I say to you this time, my dear friends, continue to go forward; use your words wisely—many opportunities have been given to you thus far, and I say to you now, that as time continues throughout your physical lives, that many, many opportunities for each one of you will come. And it is up to you, my dear friends, because of course you have your freewill, it is up to you to be positive and to take those opportunities given for the greater good of mankind. I hope my friends this does not sound like one of your earthly sermons—I do not mean it to be so, but it is good for each one of you to know what you have fulfilled and what there is to come. So I say, do not be afraid to use your words when the opportunity comes to you; not only your words but, as I say, a touch, a kindness, a look—these are all spiritual gifts. Make use of them, bring love to your fellow man. These things are simple to do, but you have to make the effort to fulfil them. If you have any questions this time, I will answer them, but I would say to you, I would like you to give some time this evening to your own individual development if you are agreeable. (Agreed) So, my friends, have we questions this time?

George: Could I just recap on when we go within: We might hear the eye of divinity, the ego eye which needs to be subdued sometimes, when there might be influence from a Spirit guide, on very rare occasions there might be the voice of a soul teacher. Is that a fair statement in connection with going within? You have listened to my words wisely and for this I would say to you, there are many degrees to what you call meditation. You can have a group of people who will speak to you of different experiences during what you call meditation, but true meditation in the spiritual sense, of course you would always be guided by those friends, helpers and, yes, teachers of awareness at times. You are correct in your assumption. Meditation to be true, you need to give of yourself with love, with openness and to offer yourself to the Divine Creation to be used, to be used not as you will, but as that Divinity would have you do. Do you understand? (Affirmed) If you want to achieve meditation on the highest level, then you have to forego any physical traits of thinking, you understand?

George: Yes, thank you. There is another question I would like to ask about time. In Spirit evolution continues and in a sense therefore...

Can I stop you there, my friend? I know you use the word ‘evolution’. It is used mainly for physical living. If you are going to the higher realms as you wish to call it, I would prefer to call it energy expansion—there is a slight difference. If you wish to continue on that pathway, then by all means continue.

George: Yes, I was just going to enquire if there might be an aspect of time in Spirit, but in Spirit one would not be aware of it, there would be no awareness of time.

Yes, that is why I use the term ‘energy expansion’. The aspect of time by then would have disappeared if I may use that.

George: So, throughout various realms in Spirit there would be no time involvement in any of those realms. Not as you would have it, no. But of course that is far off in your knowledge and would take much time, may I use the word again, before that would be achieved.

George: Thank you for your term ‘energy expansion’, that has cleared it further for me.

Yes, I know the topic of time with human beings, it has been much maligned by many people on your planet. It is a confusing subject and best taken one step at a time, but I hope, and I know that you acknowledge the teaching I have given you about time.

George: Yes I merely put questions in order to help clarify for us.

Yes, that is why we have time for such questions in order that clarity of thinking can be achieved. Are you happy with that? (I am.) Thank you. I feel now, if you will, that time be given to each individual one. I, of course, my dear friend, will leave it in your most capable hands. (Thanks + farewells)

~15th May 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good to be with you once more. Can you feel my dear friends the bond which is with you all this time, which passes one to another. (Some agreement) Yes, this time it should be feeling stronger. Can we take just a moment this time for you all to feel this unison, please. What are you feeling, my friends?

Margaret: It's power in my arms and my hands. (Yes)

Lilian: Peaceful. (Yes)

Sarah: I feel a lot of energy. Just now I saw a star and I felt that the pointers were us and that you were in the middle of it.

Yes, good. Anyone else, please?

George: Almost a pressure. I don't know how to describe it other than that.

Lilian: I think it is the energy. (Yes) And it can feel heavy.

Margaret: My hands feel heavy.

Mary: It just feels like an emotional warmth.

Yes, good.

Paul: I have the feeling it was like a fire in the middle of the room and we were all getting strength from it—from the centre.

From the centre, good, yes.

Mark: I feel a cosiness/warmth/cosy feeling.

Yes, although each one of you has described individual feelings, I can tell you that these explanations are upliftment of Spirit and the feeling of the power which joins you from our side of life. It will help each one of you if, at the beginning of our joining together, you can quietly see yourselves as one. You may focus on the individual feeling that is suited to you, but what I wish you to understand is that you become as one, you understand? (Affirmed) I wish to speak to you this time, my dear friends, a little about your spiritual growing and your spiritual understanding and awareness. I want you to fully understand that as you grow more fully spiritually and the awareness becomes stronger, you may find that at times physical living also becomes a little more difficult.

Lilian: Does it?

You sound surprised dear friend.

Lilian: Disappointed, probably!

Disappointed—No, please do not be disappointed, because what can be achieved without striving for it? What becomes easier in life is not what is confronted, but in the manner in which you deal with it. You understand? (Affirmed) Perhaps you can equate it with children in your own world you gain in knowledge, but have to, shall we say, sit more difficult examinations. That is because of their growth in knowledge. Nothing stands still. Therefore, what I would like you to try to understand is that as the awareness grows, life too becomes a situation of difficulties in which you have to cope. But because of the growth of Spirit, all problems are dissolved more easily. Do you understand what I tell you?

(Affirmed) Is it clear to you? (Affirmed) So when life presents problems to you, I do not wish you to say 'why?'—I would like you to say 'Here is my opportunity.' You must make it—I do not like to say challenge, that is an incorrect word to use, but it is something that you must strive to work with.

George: We have the ability to rise above the problems.

Yes, and this is because of the spiritual growth. But because your growth and awareness has increased, does not mean life should become easier. So, do not be fooled into that false hope that as you grow spiritually, life becomes easier. I hope you understand—if you do not please let us discuss it now.

Lilian: I think we all understand, don't we? (Agreed)

Has anyone any thoughts upon this matter which we may discuss now?

Mark: I was just thinking that as you grow spiritually it would make sense that you would be able to carry more responsibility, maybe?

Responsibility in life becomes greater, yes, because of your knowledge and understanding. Your own responsibility is greater, say, than one who has little knowledge. You understand, please?

Lilian: Yes, it does make sense.

The gentleman hesitates, are you not?

Mark: Oh no, I am with you there now.

Lilian: Yes it does make sense, doesn't it? (Yes) And with the help of you people we can see the difference. (Pause)

Well, once more I see that each one of you is so well endowed with knowledge that we have no discussion. I am happy for you. Have we any questions at this time that you wish to discuss, because I do not bring to you new knowledge to you this time. Let us discuss anything that you are unsure of.

Mary: I have a question but I do not know if it is relevant. It is something that I have been thinking about lately. (Yes) I feel somehow that the children coming into the world now are much more spiritual than we were when I was younger and I feel that the adults around these children have a special responsibility to nurture them.

May I stop you there and say to you this: Yes, when first I came to you I said many changes would be happening in your world. There are many 'masters', as you call them, who tread this planet. In order for us to help you on this planet, there had to be, how shall we say, many more with knowledge in your world to encourage and to help those who had lost their way. One of the things that was decided from our side of life was that we would help to introduce more souls who would retain spiritual knowledge in order that they could help many, many others. Because when you have a child who expresses and shows spirituality in many forms, you, as human beings, tend to say, this is a special person. Let me say, this person is not special, they have come to this world to do work to help human kind. Yes, you are correct partly that many more souls, older souls from our world have entered this planet more recently in order that we can help the planet. So I say to you, my dear friend, your awareness is such that this has been noted well, but it is not to the extent that you would assume that every child is more spiritual—that is not so. But there are cases where the soul who enters the human form retains more memory, that is all. Our work must not fail this time as it has in time gone by. I told you when first I came that mankind had reached a time when knowledge and truth would come to him and there have been many ways that we in our world have joined with you to help in that task. Does that answer your question? (Yes)

George: One of our failings is that we are not very good with the use of our own words. We get a little confused sometimes. It is good therefore if we can have definitions of words and it would help me if we could begin by defining soul, which I think strictly is a Spirit or an entity in Spirit and I believe a small part of that soul may be involved in earth life, physical life. The greater part of the soul will always be in Spirit. Is that strictly correct for a start?

Yes, there is much confusion in your world about the use of the word 'Spirit' and 'Soul'. Yes, to clarify this for you, you are Spirit. We come from the world of Spirit—that is words used because it simplifies what we have to do. But the Spirit that is you here and now is but a tiny iota of the Soul. This is where the confusion lies, that many people feel that the Soul is one entity within the human form.

George: I think we sometimes refer to that part of the Soul which remains in Spirit as the Higher Self.

That is part of the Soul.

George: Yes, the Higher Self would be the greater part of the Soul?

Not the greater, but part. Remember, I have told you that there are many parts to the Soul and my dear friend, remember the diamond, the facets of the diamond and then you will begin to understand. One facet of the diamond is perhaps the Higher Self of the Spirit that is here now. Do you understand? (Yes) We are moving here onto deep matters but I hope that will clarify it for you just a little. The Spirit here within the human form is but one spark or one facet or one small piece—choose your own phraseology, but it is but one small part of the whole.

George: And that small part can have several earth lives, may reincarnate several times.

Different facets—yes, yes.

George: I just wanted to clarify that that same facet of soul could have several lives.

Yes, yes, I understand. Yes of course, the one facet of the soul may return to your world many, many times. If the failure of the Spirit in the human form fails in its mission, then it will return or accept that another facet of the soul needs to return in its place for a certain length of time.

George: It could be either way.

Yes, we are onto complex issues here.

George: I think you also said that more than one facet could have earth life at the same time, but this would be very rare.

Yes, it is not—how should I say to you—usual in the sense you would understand, but yes, it happens, yes. But normally one facet of the soul returns to this planet at any one given time. Is that helpful to you? Are you happy with that explanation?

George: Yes, I was just wondering if the soul which itself is moving on... (Pause)

Yes, I understand.

George: I was just wondering if there was any further conglomeration of Souls?

Yes. You must also understand that as I speak of Soul, there are again many facets of Soul, which as we move as energy is also moving, will join and expand and increase. I think this is where you are falling down in trying to understand what happens to Soul. It is not Spirit returning to one Soul in one time. There are many facets to the Soul and the Soul belongs to a much—you use the expression, 'larger Soul' but it is actually a joining with divine energy. These are difficult things to explain to you. The understanding cannot there and will not be for some greater time, but try to imagine that the Soul joins with the ever-moving divine energy. It becomes a much larger issue.

George: And you yourself have come to us from that further domain.

Part of me, yes—I am but one smaller issue from that Divine Soul, yes. It is difficult, is it not?

George: But it does help to make it clearer for me. Thank you very much.

Yes, I, as I am speaking to you now through the human form, am part of that Divinity which has come to your planet to help mankind expand its knowledge. I do not belong to the lower integrated smaller version of what you call Soul—no. It is something we will speak about further on another occasion, because it is a vast subject, which I feel you are not quite ready for. And I know your physical understanding is great, but I am not sure that the others would be able to interpret it so easily. I am not being unkind to the others, please be assured, but it is a vast topic. Do we have more questions this time?

Lilian: At our last meeting the first thing was a rescue of a child and I think she was 7 years old when she passed over to Spirit, but she appeared to have spent most of her little life in a kennel. She would not come out of this kennel, she obviously had a tough time. She wouldn't have chosen this life, would she?

Something must have gone wrong when she arrived?

Still, my dear friends, you have not grasped the—how can I put it to you—you have not grasped what Spirit is truly trying to achieve. You cannot judge what that Spirit has chosen to do. It does not pick specific ways of living perhaps, but it chooses parents because the opportunities are more likely to occur for the growth of that Spirit. You should not concern yourselves about individual rescues as you say, because your work has been done. Do you understand? (Yes) Try not my dear friends, to analyse what has happened, because you will only confuse your thinking. That soul I can tell you, did not in fact choose to be placed within that kennel, but that child as you say, chose to return knowing that it had a debt to pay to one of those parents and knew that the situation would arrive, where that debt could be repaid. So you must not judge; you cannot judge and if you try to you will more than likely judge wrongly. Have I not said to you, do not judge another, because you do not have the full picture. You do not know or understand what has gone before. You find it difficult in your world to understand suffering and man-made disasters. I have told you that Spirit comes for many, many reasons and this is not for you to judge. What I would suggest to you my dear friends, is that when rescues happen—and we are most grateful in our world for that type of work—you must help and then let go. Do not analyse. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmed) I know there are many, many happenings in your world which, to the human being seems unfair, but who are you to judge? You cannot see the wider scheme of life. Who is not to say that the child you speak of grew in Spirit because of that experience? Do you understand? Although the physical happening hurts you, you have to see the wider issues. You have to focus on the Spirit and not the human happenings. After all, the Spirit survives, not the human body. And although for you humans that seems cruel—and that we understand, because you are human and you have these emotional bodies, you cannot help but feel that this must be wrong; but I can tell you that this experience has made the Spirit grow. So, do not be fearful but accept the help that was needed for the rescue work has taken place and all can only be well.

Lilian: Good. Yes, and I know of some other situations as well.

Unfortunately my dear friends you quickly forget my words to you and that is why it is important that we continue to have these question times in order that I can remind you of what I have already given to you and because you have human failings, you will forget many things that I have already said to you.

(Agreed) So I will take one more question this time and then I will leave you.

George: It seems to have become the fashion for us to have homes for looking after old people and it has become possible for our medical services to prolong life long after the physical body and the mental body has worn out so that a number of people are being looked after with no apparent reason for continuing in the physical life. I am sure these places are in a way ordained and they are wonderful places for exercising compassion. Have you any comments on this situation that we have developed?

Yes, well of course you know and can perhaps can remember that I have spoken about the human race and the fact that you should if all is well in the thinking, can live to a much longer age than you normally do. It all comes down to thinking. We have discussed illness and we have discussed responsibility and we have discussed the topic of doctors and medicine and the influence which comes from our world. We have spoken over these matters. Yes doctors will be able, as your evolution takes place, to be able to prolong life. Whether this is acceptable to you or not depends upon the way of your thinking. Each one you my dear friends, could choose the time of your leaving if you so desired, if you could only but reach that state of knowledge and awareness which tells you that it is time for you to come home, without any illness of the body or any looking after I believe you say.

George: I believe there are many in the East who are more practised in that than we are in the West.

Yes, there are some in your world, but it is possible—I know this seems a large statement to make, but it should be possible for each one of you and the key to healthy longevity is your thinking. Your doctors who are inspired from our world, have responsibility for all of those people who they have in their care. Each one of you has responsibility for yourselves as Spirit and each one of you has responsibility for those you are in contact with. If you want me to express an opinion upon this matter, I would say only that perhaps to people who have grown old and weary and try to keep alive in whatever form by the medical profession would involve someone with spiritual knowledge who could advise on spiritual matters. Do you see what I am coming to?

Sarah: I don't quite understand that Salumet.

What do you not understand dear friend?

Sarah: You said that if someone is old and frail and the doctors are keeping them alive, what was that you said about the spiritual?

It would be much better to have someone with the spiritual knowledge and awareness to be looking after them.

Sarah: Ah, right, yes, thank you.

Because then the Spirit would have the knowledge to release itself. After all, my dear friends, you well know and understand, why do you need to hold on to these old overcoats if your time is ready to come to our world. And people do, because of your own freewill you can—because of the power of the thought, and again I return to my favourite topic with you, the power of your thought—you can create many situations which would be best left behind. Do you understand? (Affirmed) But again because you are human, you cling to human life for all you are worth. But mankind—and there are peoples in your world who live to a much older age, much more healthily—but when the time is right, they release themselves.

George: This is perhaps the ideal.

That is what each one should strive for. It can be achieved but with much work. Thank you my dear friends, thank you for listening to me once again. (Thanks expressed) As always I hear your questions and cries for help for knowledge or understanding; they do not go unheeded, but again I remind you that I cannot interfere. I can encourage and uplift and influence, but I cannot interfere; but that is not to say I do not hear you. I leave you this time with all of our love and until we meet next time, know always that I am with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~12th June 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I am happy to be with you once more.

Lilian: We are happy to be together again.

Yes. Although we have been apart physically, spiritually you always will stay together. This is perhaps something you could ponder upon in your quiet moments, perhaps my dear friends to see how closely linked each one of you are in Spirit. I wish to say to you this time just a few words about this group in general. Whether you realize it or not, each person has undergone in the past two years of earthly time much learning. Although you would claim these things to be physical learning, you cannot separate it from the growth of your Spirit, no matter what each individual lesson has been, and they have been extensive. Whether it be patience, understanding, trust—no matter what the physical learning has been, you my dear friends, each one of you, have grown in Spirit. So again I will say to you once more—and I do not apologize for the repetition of my words—that each learning you undertake upon this earthly plane, you must not look upon it as hardship or some form of punishment—that is a word we hear too often—but understand that as you pass through each difficult phase of your human lives, that the Spirit soars and makes it place within our world. I am sure if each one of you was to devote a few moments of your time to think over the time gone these past two of your years, you will see how you have come forward and how much you have grown in understanding. Do you accept my words my dear friends? (Affirmed) Can you all see that you have grown? (Affirmed) In accepting this you also clarify for yourselves that indeed life is much fuller than the physical existence. I know there is no doubts with you now, but remember that I said to you a little time ago, that as you go forward these 'lessons', shall we call them, can indeed become more difficult than become easier. That is not to say that your physical lives will become more difficult, I do not mean that, but the understanding that you have to achieve for the growth of the Spirit, becomes more difficult. Do you understand? (Yes) Therefore, I say this to you my dear friends: We shall go forward. This evening I will depart to allow each one of you some spiritual development, but when next we meet I will bring to you some more philosophy from my world.

Lilian: Could we ask one question?

Of course.

Paul: Is it okay if we bring someone called Graham, my brother-in-law, next week? He has asked if he could attend one of the meetings.

Lilian: Sara, his wife, already comes when she can.

I have anticipated this question. I am only surprised that it has taken so long. I would be happy to include the gentleman, but let me say this that his mind will have much to think about. After all, he will join you as a group who have gradually, over time, been given much knowledge.

George: As you will know, he is very much the scientist (Yes) and he comes from an interesting direction. Yes, that is fine words, yes. But his intelligent mind will help him in the understanding of the words used. What we need to cultivate within him is his senses rather than intelligent thinking. That he has the capability of doing and I feel I will be happy to have him here. As I have told you before, my dear friends, many will come and many will go. Those of you, shall I use an earthly expression, who stay the course, are those of you who have achieved some attainment of Spirit, which enables you to continue. Those who leave and go forth on different pathways are not yet ready for my words, but that is not to say that we should not include them in this group. Provided I am asked, I am always happy to let you know who is suitable. He, I have to say, is not without some little experience in phenomenon, that one. Now, my dear friends, I will withdraw this time and I will leave you with our dear friend here who will, if she allows, speak to each one of you in turn. Let yourselves be free to express in whichever way whatever you feel, whatever spiritual needs, questions or actions, please discuss it with our dear lady here. I leave you now again with all our blessings. I look forward to our next meeting when I hope once more I can bring you enough words to create new thinking. Before I leave, I would say to the gentleman please, (George) you must make your lady rest a little more. You understand. She must rest please. We will help you in trying to help her but she must heed your words. (Thanks + farewells)

~19th June 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I would like to extend a welcome to the new gentleman.

Graham: Thank you.

At last he has crossed the threshold to spiritual knowledge. I would say to him, his awareness has been dormant for many years. His interest has been to the foremost, but it has happened recently that the Spirit has been touched and, as each one of you knows my dear friends, until the Spirit is touched, there is no healing, no knowledge. Therefore I welcome him although he comes to us at a time of much expanding knowledge, as you know. Therefore it will be that he may have many, many questions to ask of each one. We have awaited his arrival and now I am sure there will be much progress made spiritually. (Thanks expressed) You (Graham) will as time goes forward, perhaps understand not only written words, but you will come to sense what is happening in places such as these. You all have been told that you are emissaries of Spirit, that many will come and many will go, but those who tread the pathway to truth, perhaps if they stray, they will always return to seek out that which they know to be truth. Now my dear friends I wish to speak with you this time about a subject perhaps little known to you. As you know, before you come to this planet, you are aware of the circumstances to which you come. You have chosen those who you wish to join with in this earthly life; this each one knows and understands. But did you know, my dear friends, that when you reside in the world of Spirit, that before you entered into earthly living, you were shown the lifespan of this earthly creation? Let me explain: When your time has come to leave this planet to return home, each one knows that before you and what seems to be to you like an instant of time, there flashes before you all of your life's history upon this planet. You understand, don't you? (Affirmed) But let me tell you this, that before you leave our world you are shown in exactly the same way, and I will not explain to you at this time how this is achieved—that is a teaching of the future—but you are shown how important you have been in the creation of this planet; you are shown what part of the universal consciousness is. Therefore before you come to this planet, you feel the responsibility which all of you have towards creating a planet of love and beauty, because the Spirit understands, understands fully the message of all Creation. And all Creation, my dear friends, is LOVE. This scene which comes before you, joins with you in showing to the Spirit how the interaction of all life began. This is most important for your understanding. Do you realize the utmost importance of these words, because I do not feel that human beings have understood such visions before. Can you please take a moment of time to think upon my words and then I will accept any questions that you may have. Think about what I have told you and then we will enter into some discussion about it.

Lilian: If we are shown the life that we are going to live on this earthly planet, then when we come back to Spirit having lived that life, we are then shown where we went wrong and things we should have done and didn't.

Of course you see your life history flash before you in an instant, this fact is well known, but that is not the importance of this teaching this time. What you need to know is what part you have played in the creation of this planet—the correlation to the structure of the whole universe, that each Spirit has played a part in the creation of your own world. That is the point which you must try to understand. Is this too difficult for you my dear friends?

Margaret: It is for me.

It is?

Margaret: Yes.

Do we have questions or shall we leave it this time?

George: I think I understand that we know our life path before we have physical life on this planet (Yes) in relation to the part we need to play in the Creation.

But it is the insignificant part, the part that you will play when you come to this planet. What is more magnificent is that you see before you the part that you have played in the creation of this planet. This is the point I try to place before you that each Spirit has played before the creation of this planet, each Spirit has played their part and this knowledge is shown to you before you make your judgement to return. Is that a little clearer? I know that we have much difficulty in expressing your earthly words for your own understanding, but it has to remain simple words for you to grasp the meaning of my teaching.

George: And the part that we then play in based upon what has gone before.

Of course, is that not the way forward? (Agreed) Yes, always that is the way forward. But in an instant, you have seen all that has gone previously, all that stands before you, and all that you will return to.

George: All that can interfere with that is our freewill, which would in all probability only be a temporary aberration.

Yes, if you look upon it as such, then life on earth becomes simplified. Yes, of course, the freewill of the human being can be most troublesome at times. But of course you know that most of you return with memory blocks, because otherwise what would be the point, what learning would you achieve, if memory was retained?

George: Yes, I understand that man would expect some such causation; the difficulty is merely trying to express it in words.

Of course, that will always be troublesome, especially for those who come to try to teach you new knowledge. Remember, there is no new truth, only new knowledge, knowledge that you can accept. But I wish you to think about the knowledge that you have, before you return to this lifetime—many, many lifetimes and each time you are refreshed with the scene of the creation of this planet.

Lilian: That knowledge is within us anyway, isn't it?

Of course, but now in your understanding, is the time to bring forward these things to you so that the consciousness can further be expanded. After all, this is what we are trying to achieve this time, that mankind at last is listening and preparing himself for Knowledge, Truth, Love, that mankind becomes part of the consciousness of his own freewill. But of course, as always, mankind needs a helping hand. Have we more questions this time?

Paul: So, just to recap a bit: We have all played a part in the creation of the Earth (Yes) and does that mean we also played a part in the solar system as well?

Yes my friend, but you are going forward too quickly. Yes, of course, you have that knowledge, but with the knowledge that you have been, shall we say, 'creators of this planet', there also comes the knowledge that you have responsibility for the state of this planet—that must go hand in hand. But, yes, when that stage of understanding is reached, you will go forward knowing that your knowing and knowledge and understanding is much, much greater than at first you realized. But, yes, you are correct in your assumption.

Paul: Does the Earth have its own Spirit as well?

It has been created in the world of Spirit before the physical creation. I have told you, have I not, that all things are created first in the world of Spirit and their counterparts are then brought into the physical existence, yes. So, do you see the connection between what you ARE and what you are NOW in the human form? (Yes) Can you begin to understand that there can be no separation from what we call the Universal Consciousness? Is it becoming clearer to you as I speak? I will help each one of you in your quiet times to come to the realization of my words this time.

Paul: It is sort of like we are part of the universe and could you say that we helped in the designing of the Earth as well?

Yes, you have that responsibility, therefore what you have achieved over the existence of the planet Earth, you and each one of you and every human being, no matter what their lifetime is now, each one of you has been responsible for the creation of this planet.

George: I think I can say there have been past cultures who have understood this and expressed it more clearly than many of us do today. (Yes) The Australian Aborigines call it 'Dream Time'; (Yes) we call it 'Universal Consciousness'.

Yes, there are many, many names used, Universal Consciousness is one that would seem to be understood by many. Therefore that is why I use the term, but there are many expressions or names for it. But yes, many of your earlier civilizations had much greater spiritual knowledge. We have discussed this on many occasions, but now is the time in the evolution of this planet for mankind to take responsibility, not only for earthly living but for all that this planet has become and to take responsibility in such a way that mankind can look inwards and say: 'Yes, this has been created, each one has helped to create what exists now.' Is that clear for you my dear friends? (Affirmed) What I try to tell you this time is that you need, at this moment in your own awareness, to understand just how much responsibility you have. I want you to understand whilst here upon this earth plane, to understand the importance of your Spirit and how much power each one of you has within these physical frames.

Lilian: Any questions Graham?

Graham: Yes, in the physical world in which we live at the moment, will there always be a need for such a physical world in the future or as we grow towards spirituality will eventually there be no further use for the physical world in which we live now?

Yes, because you are new to this group I will explain to you but this has been spoken about. Yes, for the time being this planet is a place of teaching. It is necessary for the evolution of mankind. It is necessary as part of the universe, but the time will come when mankind has reached an awareness, an understanding, when this planet will no longer be needed. That is part of evolution, but we are speaking of much time, my dear friend. But I am sure if you need to look more fully I am sure the others will find for you my previous words about this matter. (Thanks) Have we more questions, please? (Pause) Yes, I feel that enough words have been spoken this time. I feel that what you need to think upon is quite sufficient for this time. We will go more deeply into this matter, but for now, please take my words, digest them, analyse them and if you can, accept them and I say, dear friends, we will return to enlarge upon this subject. (Thanks) I feel this time that as I withdraw from you that it would be good, especially for the new gentleman, if we can sit quietly for a little while and then to allow those who wish to come to join you. I ask only this time that the instrument be allowed to return very slowly. Until we meet next time, know that my love is with you as always, know that I hear what you ask and as always know that I will return with answers to your questions. (Thanks + farewells)

~3rd July 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good that so many join here this time. Since last we met I have been aware of much thinking on the part of you all as regards to my words to you last time we met. It has been most interesting for me to hear what your thoughts have been. Each one of you has put forward many ideas for the reason behind my words. So, as you are individual, so too have come your many answers to my speech. This I would wish to say to you this time my dear friends: That the one word which has not entered your thinking about this topic is the most important one of all and that, my dear friends, is the word 'Love'. Let us retrace our steps a little. When each one of you questions what life is about, we have discussed many things and I have said to you, have I not, that life mainly is service to another in order for your spiritual growth. But what activates service in all aspects of living is Love. I hesitate here my dear friends in order that the word Love occupies your thinking for a moment or two. After all it is the expression of love which initiates your working and living on this planet, not only for those nearest and dearest to you, but to those who you encounter upon your pathways. It may be but a moment of your time in living, but for each soul it can a lifetime of growth. In saying these words, let me return now to the topic which we had last time and simplify them to within a few words; the topic was your involvement in creating this planet earth. Yes. It was the love of the Spirit which enabled you to become part of the wider scheme of life; it was that love which activates you, which helped you to create this planet Earth in order that others could be helped—not only yourselves but many, many other beings. Does it now become a little more understandable to you? (Yes) By including that one word, that understandable word to you all, you now begin to see that the energy that you give off is indeed that which you call Love.

George: Would it be also true to say that our involvement in the Creation would be in the nature of a service to the Great Spirit?

All service is to that Greater Consciousness, yes.

George: And that itself would be love.

That is love. If I might return you to the words within one of your religious teachings and it begins: 'God is love'. Let us dispose of the word God, because we know there are many forms that many people upon this planet honour and love and learn by; but let us say that all is love, then perhaps you can see the wider scheme of life. Does this help you, each one of you? (Affirmed) If not, let us please to discuss it this time.

George: I wanted to thank you for being so patient with us last time. It just took a little time for us to assimilate the teaching.

I am aware and let us say that time as you know it is of little importance. What is important is that all that I give to you is eventually, whether it be a minute, a week, a year, many years of your time, but as long as the understanding comes. I, I think I can say, have resigned myself that the little patience I have gained is something that you human beings have still to conquer. But we are aware and it also helps us to understand in our teachings to you to be aware of your many—I almost said 'faults', but again I hesitate with that word. Do we have questions please?

George: I wondered if we could recap a little in the following way. (Yes) If one goes back perhaps 4 or 5 billion years in our time before the physical Earth and before the Spirit body of Earth, we would have been Spirit...

Spirit— let me interrupt just for a moment—Spirit has always existed, whether you call it Spirit, energy consciousness, it always has been. Yes.

George: It probably would be incorrect to refer to us at that time as souls, because that word as we have come to know it involves past life which didn't exist then, at least not in the way that we know it now.

Yes, yes. Of course you speak of soul in that manner as this planet did not then exist—then of course the Soul in the manner that you understand it would not exist, but the soul belongs to Spirit. In a sense it has always existed in other forms. But if you speak of the soul on the earthly planet, then you would be correct that before the time of the birth of this planet, then the soul in the way you speak of would not exist. As always there is never one clear answer.

George: So as Spirit, we had thoughts and we thought, we played our part in the creative principle in thinking of the planet and the Spirit body of the planet came into being (Yes) and the physical planet followed. This, I would suggest, is not a unique happening in the universe, but a general creative happening.

It is the pattern of all life. The Power of Thought is a creative force behind all things and Thought belongs to Spirit. There always has and always will be Thought. Are you happy with those replies?

George: Yes, I was just attempting to fit our role in the Creation into the greater scheme of things and I can see that we as Spirit were part of that great creative principle.

Yes, it would seem to you human beings to be like a jigsaw, but each piece does eventually fit. It may travel around the board, but there can only be one place for each piece, which eventually slots into place. This is what happens with your understanding of all things. It is unfortunate, perhaps I could say, that whilst clothed in these physical garbs that the Spirit is so restricted, not only in thinking, but in memory and in all knowing. I have, of course, told you that all these things are innate within you. It is up to you all, my dear friends, to cultivate each gift of the Spirit, but I know and I fully understand how restricting these bodies and of course the physical brain interferes at times. Rather than help you to understand, it at times confuses the issue.

Sarah: I am sure it is all because of my physical thinking, but one part of us has to come back here to learn, but when the Earth has finished, when there is no more Earth, there must be another place where we can go to learn the same things because by the time the end of this Earth comes, there will still be some parts of some spirits that still haven't learnt properly so they need to go somewhere to learn. Or am I thinking too much along human lines?

Yes, my dear friend, you cannot see further that the Spirit has found itself so to speak, that when this planet Earth has reached its finality as far as the cosmic evolution goes, it should be that the souls who needed the experience—and after all, this planet has been created for the experience of those souls who needed it. By the time this planet reaches its finality, as you say, but remember—and this will be another topic—that nothing is lost. The energy of this pattern will return to its greater pattern, but there will be no souls as such who will need form of teaching.

Sarah: Yes, I can see it in a different way now.

Yes, you understand. (Yes, thank you.) Do we have more questions, because I would like to close this chapter if each one is happy with what they know?

Graham: We have been involved in the creation of our planet for our current learning and our current needs. Will we in the future, in other dimensions, go on to create other schools of learning in different ways in the same way that we have created this planet?

Yes, I have answered the gentleman previously that energy is ever expanding, therefore of course there will always be new creations, new teaching areas but in a different format. But yes, of course, there will always be learning; there has to be growth for the Spirit. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.)

George: Could I just observe that regarding love, in a much more physical sense and a scientific sense we have the word affinity. I have always felt that affinity is rather like a mechanical, scientific expression that is close to love, not the same as love, but it is to do with things coming together. I see it as an interesting scientific connection with love.

Yes, of course you must remember that we are using physical words again. We have to use words for the benefit of you beings upon this planet—that is your way of expression. Yes, I understand what you are trying to say. Love is of the Spirit, love is all, it is the creation that comes forth to all things. Affinity is something I would say entirely different in earthly meaning. You can have an affinity to something, but not actually be involved in loving. There is a distinct difference as far as I can see.

George: Yes, thank you for your guidance there.

After all, man can have an affinity to an object without the emotional feeling of love, which of course, you would recognize as being emotional in the sense that you understand it. Would you agree?

George: Yes, I agree. It is nice to have your comment on that.

Now my dear friends, if you are content with our words this time, I will quietly withdraw from you and allow others to come if they so desire. Again I wish to express to each one of you that always I hear and feel your thinking. I always try to uphold you, not so much in your daily living—as I have said before, I cannot interfere with your living upon this planet, but what I try to do is to uphold and uplift you so that your thinking becomes of the Spirit rather than of the physical. This, my dear friends, I am beginning to see that each one of you is expanding, is growing, not in words of wisdom, not in knowledge of this work, but in your own individual thinking. This, in turn, rebounds to others who come within your pathways and in this way it should show you how much you have become messengers of Spirit. I ask, my dear friends, that as you retire, each to your own this night that great thanks be given for all love and knowledge which surrounds you. (Thanks + farewells)

~10th July 2000~

Before Salumet spoke, Sue had been describing her experiences visiting a 'direct voice' session in Reading, Berkshire.

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I was pleased to wait just a little time in order for our dear friend to tell you with some excitement about her experiences of Spirit. It offers each one of you the opportunity to once more consider and think about the workings of those from our world. Although my dear friends you have no need of proof as such, you can see from what has been told to you this time how important it is that when physical happenings occur, great care is taken of our chosen instruments, because as you have heard my dear friend say to you, the stupidity of some can cause much danger and harm to those who are used by our world. It also should reiterate for you all how time is insignificant when it comes to work of Spirit, that many of your years are needed sometimes—not always—for instruments to reach the point of being used correctly. Think about it my dear friends, because it should show you that loyalty and dedication to this work will always be repaid, not only in the growth of each individual Spirit, but to many others who can benefit from such knowledge. Are there any questions you wish to put to me about what you have discussed? I am happy to answer them for you.

Sue: Yes please, I would like to ask a couple. At the end of the meeting when the medium was coming back from trance, we have always been very quiet here in our circle, allowing the medium to come through quietly, but in this instance it was very, very noisy in the room. It didn't seem to affect the medium at all. Were the people being insensitive and should they have been more quiet or was it something that really didn't matter to the medium herself?

Yes, I understand your question. There is a reason for quietness and stillness and peace. It would have enabled the medium to return more quickly if there had been greater sensitivity. But, of course, having reached the stage of development in being used in such a way, she would be fully protected by our world spiritually although, as you well know, physical damage can be done. But of course we do protect those who we work with. But I would say to you on the whole that whoever is in charge should keep a firm house. It is much better for the medium to return in quietness. I do not say complete silence, because of her experience, but I would suggest that they should at least refrain from too much noise. It is a jar not only to the Spirit body, but much more to the physical.

Sue: That's what I thought, thank you very much. It was understood on Saturday that the voices were using a mask. Would you have agreed with that, rather than a box, because the voices were coming from all parts of the room we were sitting in and we were told that the Spirit isn't always happy using the mask because it is sometimes uncomfortable for them?

Can I just say this to you my dear friend? I have told you on previous occasions that the form of the mediumship was ever changing, that there would be many new forms of communication, particularly in the form of machinery which is available to you now. So, too, does the act of physical phenomenon change. The mask method that you mention has been around for quite some time of your earthly years, but any form of communication can be difficult for those as well as people in your world, difficult for those who wish to communicate. After all, experience is the most prominent word in all of these things. People become accustomed to many methods of communication. As you are quite well aware, communicators who use you, find it increasingly much easier, because of your experience and this is what will happen as time continues, that it becomes easier as each time this method is used. You know and understand communicators who have said to you 'what a small frame' or 'what a large body'. It is a little the same as that, except they are using what you call a mask. It is just the ectoplasm being used in a different way—that is all. Much and many changes are taking place within our world which should make communication much easier in time to come. I should tell you that physical phenomenon and what you call materialisation also can take place now with light, but this is something that is being worked upon. But, for as long as mankind can remember, in the new era of what you call spiritualism—and again I would debate titles—physical phenomenon has always occurred in darkness, but as in life, all things change and alter and become easier. Is this helpful to you?

Sue: Very much, thank you.

Lilian: So would the sitters of that evening, there would have been a lot of energy used from them for this phenomenon as well as from the medium?

Of course, the main form of ectoplasm is taken from the medium, but of course all peoples within the room would be giving of themselves. All that is available to us would be used.

George: I was thinking about materialisation in general and the purpose of it and I thought the purpose of materialisation would be communication, and then it occurred to me that the reverse process would be very useful and necessary for space travellers. Is that fair comment that materialisation would be mostly for communication with physical beings and dematerialization would be a necessity for space travel?

Yes, I understand your question. Dematerialization as you call it is an attribute of Spirit; it is something which you all are capable of. I do not pardon myself for repetition of my words, but each one of you as Spirit has the capability of much. Materialisation as you understand it is of course for communication, it is a form of communication which satisfies most of the senses available to human kind. In that I mean you see with the human eye, you smell, you touch and feel and you hear—all of your senses are satisfied, therefore there can be no dispute, may I say, of what is happening in that form of communication. But as we have been discussing, it takes many years of human life to develop mediumship for that type of work. Dematerialization happens in your world by those you know as masters—I use that word lightly, but it happens—but when you return home to Spirit, dematerialization of many things become quite normal, because of your greater expansion of understanding. Yes, I agree with you that many space travellers have used what you call dematerialization for their own good and their own benefit, but what is more important is that you know and understand that it is an attribute of Spirit. To you human beings who have lost much of your natural capabilities, dematerialization and materialisation seems to be an exception to the rule; it is not, it is just a matter of retraining yourselves if I may put it so bluntly.

George: It is documented in a number of older scriptures.

Yes, nothing is new my dear friend, this I have tried to teach you.

Lilian: I suppose it is what we call 'out-of-body experience', is it?

No, no, you are speaking of something entirely different. Dematerialization is another form of spiritual life. Out-of-body experience is just the freedom of Spirit from the physical body—that is all that means.

Mark: Is it an out-of-body experience when you—I have had dreams sometimes when I've been flying and it has felt as if my physical body was flying. I wonder if that was an out-of-body experience?

Yes, all of you have what we would call out-of-body experiences, because, after all, in your sleep state my dear friend each of you leaves the physical body behind for a short time in order that the Spirit be rejuvenated if you like; but, to most people, this is not remembered. But when you speak of the physical body flying, remember my dear friend, that when you come home to Spirit you retain all the knowledge of your physical being. Although you are Spirit, you still feel like a physical being that is why you would feel as if the physical was flying. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.) Are you sure? (Yes) It is the Spirit flying, but the awareness of the physical body, that is all. It is not the physical body which is flying, it is the Spirit.

Sarah: You said when you go back into Spirit dematerialization and materialisation is a natural thing, but if you are just Spirit and no longer in the physical life, what is it that materialises and dematerialises in Spirit? It is just—if you wish to go further, it is the Power of Thought. If you need to have it simplified that is all it is, but for the use of the words that is how I have tried to explain it. Is that helpful?

Sarah: Yes, thank you. When I was typing back the script from last week, I noticed you said, 'Have you all understood our speech?' which you gave us. It made me think, do you get help from others when you are teaching us or is it just your knowledge that you are imparting to us?

Yes, I understand, I have anticipated your question, thank you. If you remember when first I came to you I told you that I was a conglomerate of beings. (Affirmed) I am not given information one-to-one, as you would say on this Earth, but the knowledge which I bring to you is, how shall I say, knowledge that has been obtained by many over many, many years of your time. That is why I used the word 'our' rather than 'I', or 'me', or 'mine' or 'my'. Remember that what I bring to you is knowledge from a Source, not a knowledge of one being. That is what you must always remember, that what I bring to you is knowledge gained by time and beings of great knowledge; but for the benefit of you here on this planet it would have to seem as if I am one being. Do you understand?

Sarah: Yes i do, thank you.

I feel for this time that I will leave you, as always with my love, with the hope that you have new thoughts to travel with you until we meet next time. So I say to you my dear friends, once more know that I am always with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~17th July 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As I come to you this time I bring to each of you upliftment, for some are weighed down by earthly problems. I hope that before you leave this room those daily problems may seem a little lighter.

Lilian: I'm sure they will, thank you.

For the next few of my visits to you my dear friends, I, with your permission, will accept questions about many aspects of my teachings. I wish to do this with you in order that we may then go forward with some new information. Therefore, I would ask that each of you consider which part of the teachings you would like us to discuss with you. Then I feel it would be appropriate to continue with some further knowledge for you. So, do we have questions this time?

George: Yes, it was 11 years ago that I sat on the steps of a Mayan Sun Temple looking at the stars and contemplating the universe and its construction, and a message came to me from the collective consciousness or somewhere which said that this is all very well, you consider the universe as did Newton and Einstein, but the greatest thing in all the universe is Love, and it wasn't until your recent teaching about the creation, that I realised the full depth of that message. (Yes) Thank you for that and I guess that is your way of teaching to increase the depth of understanding all the time.

I believe, my dear friend, that I have said to you that if we—those of us who come to help you—can reach but one human being, then our work has to be blessed. Yes, indeed, to have that knowledge come to you is indeed what we try to achieve. Of course, we could use spiritual powers to bombard each of you with the knowledge, but that would be fruitless. After all, each individual Spirit has to find the realization that emotion which each of you has in order that you can accept and fulfil the teaching of the universe which is indeed such a small word within your vocabulary, the word of course is love. If you have found that realization, my dear friend, then I can only say to you that you can only but go forward. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Would I be right in thinking that the love in the physical sense as we know it—we really can't imagine what it is like at this time, it must be so much more.

Yes, you as human beings generally speak of emotional love, which mainly belongs to the physical. Spiritual love exists on a higher level. Of course that has to be, but that is not to say that you cannot experience spiritual love whilst in the physical garb. Of course you can and that is what my dear friend the gentleman has said, that his realization has now been reached. I could continue to say for many, many of your earthly years of what you should be striving towards, but ultimately that treasure belongs to you and it must be sought after. Do you understand? (Yes) I cannot place before you that experience. Are you clear on this point my dear friends? (Yes)

Sara: Is the compassion that we feel for others which enables us to feel spiritual love for all people?

Yes, compassion is a much better word to use in your world than the words emotional love. Emotional love begins with physical attraction, but compassion for mankind stems from spiritual love. Yes, you are correct.

Sara: And when we reach this state of being able to feel compassion for many, many people if not all people, is it that the heart chakra expands, is it felt in that way, very much in the heart?

I would say to you, if you have that awareness, yes that is what happens, but mainly most people are not even aware of that. It is part of the being that shines forth. You may speak of chakras if you like, after all, the Spirit body is light, therefore if any part of the Spirit grows and expands, therefore does the light shine more brightly. But, yes, you are correct. The struggle of course in recognizing compassion is the struggle against the physical living, when compassion can be forgotten all too easily. But, may I say to you kindly and to each one of you, that before you can expand compassion to any other being, you must first of all recognize it within yourself. Do you understand? (Yes) To give compassion, you must accept compassion. Do you understand? (Yes) Before you can give of yourself, you must recognize yourself. You understand?

Sara: So we see ourselves as equal?

Not equal, but you must recognize who and what you are, before you can give of yourselves, yes.

Lilian: Any more Sara?

Sara: I was just thinking about the last thing that Salumet said about recognising who and what you are. I'm wondering in what sense.

I know what you are saying. First and foremost you must recognize yourself as Spirit. Once that recognition is to the fore, then all physical aspects of your life become placed in the correct order. Your physical lives then become much easier for you, because you have recognized the Spirit. And, after all, when the physical garb has diminished then what exists but the Spirit, and the Spirit should know only love.

Sara: So when we live more to the dictate of our Spirit and we follow really what our Spirit tells us in terms of how we live each day, the difficult details that we sometimes struggle with are seen as very unimportant.

Very insignificant—they will find their place against spiritual knowledge, yes. If only human beings could know and understand that they create so many of their own problems, not only for themselves, but for those who surround them. Remember, what you give you receive. Those are simple words, but they are truth. Try always to remember, I have said but I will repeat, that each one of you, what you have in this lifetime is what you have achieved. Do you understand? Therefore, if your life is difficult, then look within to see what needs to be changed. I know this is a difficult concept for many to accept, but I do urge you to accept it and know that through that knowledge you can become much better human beings. If you find fault with another, then look for that fault within yourself.

Lilian: I'm sure we all do try—not easy sometimes.

But that, if I might add kindly, is a failing of the human being. That yes, you say, 'I will try'—you may try for such a short period of your time and then it is all forgotten. With spiritual understanding, nothing is forgotten. So, I say to you once more, seek always, strive always to recognize that true self. That my dear friends is what you need to try to achieve.

Sarah: This is more of curiosity. A friend of mine is interested in spiritual work. She has been to see a medium this weekend—I have not talked to her since—who channels a race/people from space, not from our world, called the 'Paladins', I think she said. She said that when this world was created, they didn't allow us to become more intelligent than them, because they wanted to have control over us and now they need us to be able to progress. First of all, I don't know if this is right, but it did make me think that maybe we are not only here to help each other here, but also we have created this world to help others who are creating, which I am sure is right.

Yes, you are beginning to understand some of my teachings, for this I can see only good. Let me say again that as I have told you previously, there are many worlds within this great universe and many others who have beings upon them, beings with much greater knowledge than this very young planet Earth. Of course those beings have superior knowledge, but let me say only this to you, that there is a little misguidance in as much as that race did not have the upper hand over Earth beings. They may have thought they did, but they, as you do, answer to a much higher and divine power. All planets answer to a greater divinity; all is part of a greater plan. Therefore you are correct partly in your assumption that each planet exists for the good of every other. So I would say this to you my dear friend: The information that comes to these people are being given as truth, because that is the truth that the beings know and understand, in the same way as if contact were made with Earth beings, you can only give what you know and understand. What has to be remembered in all of these teachings from not only other planets but from greater sources, is that a true cosmic understanding is in place. So I say to you and your friend, accept what comes, but place it within the concepts of greater knowledge. Do you understand what I say to you?

Sarah: Yes I do, thank you.

You must always—I keep coming back to say to you, recognize yourself as spiritual beings, because within that realization lies the true understanding. People upon other planets may have more knowledge, but in fact they do not have more knowledge as such, they have more understanding of the knowledge. Remember, I have told you that within each one of you lies the potential for much spiritual, what you call, ‘powers’. It is only that Earth beings are reluctant to recognize and use those powers which are inherent within them. Do you see how slowly everything congeals together? (Yes) Has that helped with your understanding?

Sarah: Yes, thank you very much. When you begin to talk, I begin to remember things you have said.

Yes, always look to the wider scheme of life and to the wider truth. See all of these things with spiritual eyes and you will begin to understand them a little more. I know these subjects at times must seem alien to you, but in fact they are not. All knowledge lies within you. (Thank you.)

I would ask that before we meet next time, that each of you dwells upon anything we have spoken about and that you are not completely sure of, because I know there are many points that should be discussed. So before next time please, my dear friends, bring them before me and I will try to answer them simply and truthfully. (Pause) If you are all so satisfied, I will withdraw this time. I know you have much to think upon. I know that as you leave this room that each one of you will feel a little more uplifted. I will leave you and let us see this time what can be given to each one of you in your state of quietness. I ask, my dear friend (Lilian), that you ask each one what they are feeling this time. (Thanks + farewells)

~24th July 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As we join together this time, feel the surge of Love which touches each one of you. My dear friends, do you have questions for me this time?

Mark: They talk about body clocks waking you up at the right time in the morning, but I wondered if sometimes you were given a nudge from Spirit to wake up at the right time if you had to get up very early at a different time from the usual. Sometimes I find I have only just woken up in time to catch a ferry or something very early in the morning and it seemed to be uncanny.

Why should this seem so, my dear friend, after all in your what you term ‘dream state’ you have the freedom of Spirit which is more knowledgeable and aware of your own physical body’s requirements. You, of course, would give out the thought before retiring to your bed and that thought state would be known by your Spirit. That is why these things occur. It is not always a nudge as you say from another, but your own internal knowledge.

Mark: That is not a physical phenomenon?

It is the Spirit that more expansive knowledge and would know what the thought and thinking would be. Does this not make sense to you? (Agreed)

Mark: Yes it does. The thing that I was slightly unsure of was we have been told that our physical time is not present in Spirit, so I wondered about whether it could be done—it was that part that I found a bit confusing.

Yes, remember that the physical being is only the result of the spiritual thinking. It is the Spirit that is all-knowing, which is wise and which can achieve many things for you. Therefore, time as you know means nothing to the Spirit and you know full well my dear friend that when the Spirit returns to our world in part of your sleep state time, the knowledge would be known and therefore when the Spirit re-joins the physical overcoat, that knowledge then becomes the reality. Do not always assume, my dear friend, that external influences are taking place. Remember that you have full control.

Mark: So the Spirit after it has gone into Spirit world, it just knows when to return to the physical being and then the physical being wakes up at that time.

Yes, it is simple, but you seem to make it more complex by your thinking. (Chuckles) Yes, I do not wish to confuse you, but yes you are speaking of the simple knowledge that the Spirit holds. You could if you so desired try these things on a regular basis and be aware of the thought that is being sent before you retire for your sleep state, and you will find that your Spirit will accept the thought and then create the reality. Is that helpful to you?

Mark: Yes it is, thank you.

Graham: I was reading through your teachings to last November when my wife was here and the discussion at the time was about loving thoughts towards those people who seem to, by their actions, hurt us. It was said that when you feel you cannot communicate by letter or by voice, perhaps the best way is to send loving thoughts. You replied that loving thoughts are always good and that no harm can ever come if you project loving thoughts. But you said something that I was hoping you would clarify: a warning that you must not interfere with the thought towards the other person and I wondered what that meant.

Yes, you my dear friend have been with us for only a short period of time. The basis of my teaching to all of you has been the Power of Thought. This teaching is on-going and we have returned to it on many occasions. The most powerful thing you possess is your thought. Thoughts are dealt with in many ways and we could spend this evening and many other evenings discussing this topic. What you are wishing to know I believe is that you must also be in full control of your thinking. It is easy to give out good thoughts, but you must be careful that there is no intrusion upon the thinking of another. Are you with me thus far?

Graham: No, could you explain that bit again please about the intrusion.

Each one has the responsibility for their own thinking. You understand? (Yes) Those who wish harm, those who give out vibration of wrong thinking can do much damage to the Spirit. Therefore my instructions to you all has always been that those who wish you harm should always be given only loving thoughts from you. You understand that? (Yes) Because, let me tell you, what you think will always return to you. But what you must also know and what you must also try to understand is that you cannot interfere in another's thinking. This is where the confusion lies is it not? (Yes) Yes, because of the power of the thinking, you can with another human being have stronger thought vibration than theirs. There is variations in the power of thinking, therefore if you have the knowledge of sending thought, then you must also be careful that you do not interfere in the thinking of another. Is it clear to you now because you cannot interfere in another's life or another's thinking.

Graham: Yes, thank you very much, I was looking at it the wrong way round.

Yes, I feel you have become confused. Again to us it is a simple thing, but to you human beings all of these topics become confused and therefore rather complicated. What I have tried to teach all of you is that with the power of your own thinking you can achieve all things, but in attaining that power of thinking, you must also realize the responsibility you hold towards the thinking towards another human being. That responsibility is a great one and one which you should think about and use wisely. I feel the gentleman needs to ask more.

Graham: I would like to think about what you said (Yes) and, if I am not sure, I will ask again.

Yes I will always give you my dear friends many opportunities to clarify my words.

Graham: It takes a little while to get on board. I feel as if I am doing a bit of catching up at the moment. But it is very enjoyable and I have enjoyed reading your teachings.

Yes, I hope that the words as you read them more often, and after all that is the reason behind the written words and the spoken words, that all of you, my dear friends, can look back upon what I try to teach and if there is a problem, then I hope that you can come to me in all sincerity and love in order that my simple words can become even more clearer to you. Again, I do not wish to be seeming unkind but humankind have very short spans of memory. Again this is something that can be cultivated for your own good.

Sarah: I just wanted to follow on from what Mark said. When we go to sleep, does the Spirit automatically leave us or does it sometimes stay or is there any hard and fast rule or not?

No, the Spirit will return at some point in your sleep state to our world to be spiritually rejuvenated. It is entirely left to the Spirit body when this occurs. Some who have the equipment shall I say, to leave the body easily, like to leave it for most of the sleep state, but others will return to us without knowledge and without remembrance of that occurrence. There is no specific time or hard and fast rules for this.

Sarah: If the Spirit is not within the body and the body is woken suddenly, would the Spirit be aware that the body is going to be woken suddenly?

Yes, remember as I have said to our dear friend the gentleman, that Spirit has an expansion of knowledge which is not available to the physical. The Spirit is all-knowing, or rather all-knowing as far as the physical is concerned, not all-knowing in as much as all knowledge, but all-knowing for the particular time of that living of the physical being. You understand?

Sarah: Yes, thank you. My son was watching a television programme last night and it was about an American during the cold war trying to spy on the Russians. They tried to do it with telepathy with someone standing outside a building and trying to get information. Now not only could this American home in on this building that this person was standing in front of, but he could actually go inside the building. We were talking earlier about out-of-body experiences. Is this an out-of-body experience? How would he get the information from the inside of the building, when the other person was only standing outside the building?

Yes, again I return to short memory—we have in past time discussed this very thing. But yes there is and are a few human beings who have the capability of greater knowledge shall be say, but only from practise of using the Spirit rather than the physical. It is perhaps what you might term ‘mind power’. Again we have touched upon a subject which we have not fully entered into in any great degree, but we can do on another occasion if you so desire. Yes, if you would like to look back over my words rather than use time here and now, you will find my answer. But if you so desire, let me know and we will discuss this a little further. (Thank you.)

Lilian: I was talking to someone the other day about the Spirit leaving the body at the time of death. As I understood it, it was immediate as the body dies, so the Spirit leaves. She had the idea that it took three days of our time.

The Spirit leaves the physical body only when there is a severance of the cord. The Spirit can leave the body, which in your world can be said to be dead, but until that cord is broken, the Spirit remains close to the body and on some occasions this can take seconds, this may take minutes and even days. On most occasions I can tell you that when the time of what you call death, the Spirit is freed almost immediately, but again, you are both correct.

Lilian: You know that our old friend had two circles. It was in the other circle that this query came up. That is interesting.

Yes, remember my dear friends that you should never be so closed-minded that you cannot accept other viewpoints from other people, because there oftentimes includes many things from Spirit which are correct. So do not always assume that other people are wrong. If you have doubts, then please to ask questions of me. After all I am sure that each one of you here have heard many cases of someone who has been pronounced deceased, and returned to life. (Yes) So, the physical pronouncement of death is not always the actual moment of severance of the cord. Is this clear to you? (Yes)

Mark: Would it be partly the power of thought of the person?

Yes, not only the person, but the power of thought from those close by. And again we return to interfering thoughts. Do you now see some connection? (Agreed)

Lilian: So if in a particular religion it was said that it would take three days, so the thoughts from the people surrounding the body, would that affect it?

They can but they pull back the Spirit and try to keep them, but when the time is right, there is nothing or no one who can stop that return home.

Sarah: So, if that is the case, if people are brought back to life as it were, is that not their time to go then, otherwise they would have gone?

Yes, it is as simple as that. It is lack of knowledge of you human beings in understanding the process of what you term 'dying', but nothing or no-one can hold you here when your time has come. No person, no thought, no healing, nothing at all will keep you upon this planet if it is truly your time to return home to us.

Lilian: Thank you. Last week we did a rescue through Sarah and she did find it quite difficult to shake off the effects of this rescue. Is there anything more we can do to help her or anything that she could do?

No, you have done all that you can. The lady you speak of will find that with a little more experience that she can take more control of those who come to her. She must remember that these souls come under conditions of control, but we also need the control factor of her own mind. It will come with time, but let me reassure you my dear friends that there is nothing to be concerned about. It may take a little longer than you anticipated but always the lady will return free from any encumbrance or any leftover feeling from those communicators. (Thank you.)

Well, my dear friends, as ever I hope you have been completely satisfied with my answers. I know as time continues these question and answer times will enable you to become a little more enlightened. That is our purpose that is why we wish to help. There are many things to be achieved here, but again I reiterate to you that we must go slowly and it must show you I believe how many times I answer your questions over and over that that is the reason we must proceed slowly, in order that each point, each question that you have is fully answered and understood. Do you all agree? (Affirmed)

Mark: My baby, Robyn, quite often wakes up in the night and I was wondering whether she was asking her Spirit to wake herself up. Usually we just bring her into our bed, because we are too tired to wait for her to go to sleep and then put her back in the cot. I just wondered what the process was there?

Yes, I understand. Of course children in your world are to most people just babies who are here to learn, but of course you know and understand them as spiritual beings who have chosen to come, yes. But what you must also understand is that although they have chosen to come, these spirits in the small physical child's body are sometimes unhappy, because they still have remembrance of the spiritual life. There are some babies in your world who will be restless for quite some time of their young living. It may even continue with some for years, until the Spirit realizes that they have come here for the purpose they have chosen. So you see, it is slightly difference from what we have spoken of previously. It is a different subject altogether.

Mark: It's a kind of adjustment phase.

It is adjustment, it is a restlessness, it is in some children anger. That may sound strange to you, but the Spirit is angry that they have to be confined within these human confines. Can you understand?

(Affirmed) So I would continue with what you are doing and even if you can to speak with your thoughts to pacify and console the child—welcome the child to this world and offer your help to her. It can be done. So, it is something perhaps for you to think about this time. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Would that work in the case of my youngest grandson? He is definitely not into school at this moment. There were tears this morning—true his mother is not very well and I had to take him—but could it also help in this case with thoughts?

All thought must help. What you must not do is blame everything onto the spiritual being. Remember that each one has come to this world for the learning process and, as a child, they will behave as children. The condition within their own little living, can alter any child. Although the Spirit is always in control to some degree, the physical child must work within those conditions to which they have come. So, I would say that the child you speak of is making only adjustments to the conditions of living which are there in front of him. I would say to you this my dear friends that be careful that you do not always make every action that is before you in your living — do not always assume that it is of a spiritual nature. Although you are Spirit, you are also a physical being with physical problems to overcome. Can you see what I am telling you?

Lilian: Yes I can, because he is happy enough until we get to the school gates.

Yes, it is a lesson for him to learn and overcome—that is all.

Sarah: You said that we may be surprised to hear that the Spirit was cross, was angry. If the Spirit knows all about the physical, why would the Spirit be angry, because the Spirit has chosen to come back and I know that it is confined to that, but it must know that it is being confined.

But no, it does not. Have I not told you my dear friend that all memories are erased, but in some children that memory remains. So that Spirit being within the child's body can remember the freedom and the love of the Spirit realms. So, therefore, although they have chosen to come, there is—perhaps anger is too strong a word for you—but there is unease, there is discomfort, there is a longing to return home. It is a longing perhaps—forgive me for the misuse of the word.

Mark: But it can be physically expressed as anger.

Yes, it would be interpreted by the parents or whoever is associated with the child as an angry child, because it is expressing itself in the only way that it knows how. Is that clear to you? (Yes) Always, this is the problem I find my dear friends to find appropriate physical words to describe to you feelings from Spirit.

Sarah: You do very well though.

Are there more questions or is there enough to think about? (Pause) May I suggest my dear friends that you think upon the words this time and take each one slowly. Perhaps to know and understand, quickly and quietly in your own time, and then, before we continue on more questions, you can return to those we have discussed if need be. I think that for this time my dear friends, I will withdraw. I will leave you in the hands of this dear lady. You can if you so desire discuss quietly between yourselves all those points we have discussed this time. I ask only that the words not be too loud in order that this instrument can return quietly. (Thanks + farewells)

~31st July 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

We are slower this time because my dear friends those who stand close by you have been working with each one of you this time. There is weariness amongst you and when you leave you should feel the substantial benefit from their help.

Lilian: Yes, I'd like to thank our Spirit friends for this.

Know that always they stand close by you. Now we will continue this time with more questions which I know you have for me.

George: Yes, you have told us much about past lives and there were some words that Jesus spoke: 'When you meet your past images which neither die nor are manifest, how will you bear it?' That raises a further question perhaps and it is nice to read in the scriptures something which agrees so well with what you have told us, but is there likely to be any difficulty in meeting up with our previous images when we return to Spirit? Can you tell us something about that?

Yes of course, yes, the words were most apt at the time for understanding over continuance of life. You all know only too well that I have told you, when you return home, you yourselves will be the judge of all that has taken place—past, present and future. You understand that each one of those times is intertwined. Therefore when you come face-to-face, as you say, with past images, what is happening is that the vibration when you have returned home has quickened. Therefore you are able to assess not only past times, past existence, but you will be accountable for the life that has just gone. It is only a judgement within your own eyes, that is all. To simplify the whole issue, you come face-to-face with all that has existed within your own living.

George: Interesting. Perhaps this is another reason why we should not be judgmental in ourselves.

It is not that you are faced physically as you would know it with past images, but the inner knowing comes to the surface and all, my dear friends, becomes accountable. That is why the words were chosen that it would be difficult, because many of you, when you return home, are shocked and upset and sometimes very pleased with what the Spirit has achieved. It is a coming to terms with the inner knowledge of your very being. Do you understand? Is that helpful to you?

George: Yes thank you that clarifies rather nicely.

Mark: When I was working in the shop this week, a girl commented that she found Charlotte Church's voice very strange, because it was so well developed. I suggested that it might be evidence that she had worked in a previous life on her voice and had brought it into life and I wondered if you could say something about it. (Charlotte was only 14 years old then)

Yes, I will say only this to you my dear friend that now you have begun your teachings. Have I not told you that many opportunities would come to each one of you, that you would be emissaries of Spirit and this is only one instance of just that. You are, of course, quite correct in telling the lady that all experiences of past lives are always within the Spirit and many of you who reincarnate bring many of those gifts with you. Therefore, may I congratulate you my dear friend on your answer.

Lilian: It often puzzles me why some people seem very, very fond of animals—they don't mind what the animals do or get up to—and others really don't like them at all—I am talking more of the pets we have. Is there any explanation?

Let us say just this that when each one comes to your world they are prepared for many strange and unfortunate instances within their daily living. There could be a reason for dislike of animals. This is something which cannot be put clearly to you, because again there can be many different answers. It may well be that past times have shown no bond with animals and it is something that the individual needs to learn. Remember that your life upon this planet is a teaching time, a teaching time for love, not only to your fellow human being, not only to all that nature provides for you, but also to the animal kingdom. Those people who you have noticed have an aversion to these animals are lacking in spiritual love. It is just an aspect of Spirit that they will need to adjust and to learn, that is all. Does that help you? (Yes) Remember of course that each one of you is on a different pathway, that each one of you will have different likes and dislikes according to the growth of your own individual Spirit. Do you understand?

Lilian: So we mustn't judge.

I would reiterate once more for you, do not judge another. I know always this lesson is difficult for your human beings, but it is an important one that you would do well to try to at least learn. Do not judge, not only others but yourselves. You cannot be the best judge of yourselves while you are clothed within the physical garb. So many times my dear friends have I told you this and so many times do you fall down upon this matter, but the more we speak of this, the more you will begin to understand. That is why it is important that we go over all the ground of the many things I have told you in order that it can become clearer within your thinking. Do you agree? (Agreed)

George: Perhaps a confusing factor in our society is that we have what we call constructive criticism and destructive criticism and this leads to perhaps the idea that out and out judgement is bad we know, but sometimes a criticism can be constructive and directed towards making a situation better. Would you agree that there are degrees of judgement in this way?

I would agree that there are physical degrees of judgement, but let me hasten to add for whom is the constructive judgement meant?

George: I was thinking about society in general rather than individuals.

Yes, but what I wish you to know and understand is this: When you make a so-called 'constructive judgement', who is the best judge, you or the other being? In whose mind is it constructive? Do you see what I am trying to say? Be careful in thinking that your thoughts, your opinions are the correct ones, be careful that you are not in fact making judgement classed under the umbrella of constructive criticism. Can you see the difference? (Yes) I understand what you are saying, but what I wish you know, is that be careful, who are you to judge what is constructive or destructive for another human being? Do you see? Is that helpful to you?

George: Yes, thank you for your words.

Always my dear friends I would say to you this: Before any thought goes from you, go inwards and see if that is truly how you feel, before you allow that thought to pass from you. Imagine yourselves in similar situations and perhaps your view would change. But it is difficult I know for you not to be critical, but even what you term 'good judgement' can in fact be an interference. You understand?

George: Yes, thank you. Could I just ask one about the stigmatic holy ones which is something which has come up before? I believe the teaching was that it was related to the power of thought. Would that be entirely the power of thought of the stigmatic one or would there be what I might describe as a Christ energy within the collective unconscious which also plays a part?

Yes you would be fringing upon the help of many others when those whose power of thought is so strong. Remember that I have told you that the power of thought becomes reality, but what also happens when the power of your thought is so strong is that those who are close to you and influenced by that thought can also collect in fact to help the situation be created.

George: Yes, thank you, I wondered about that.

Yes, there again is no clear cut answer, but remember that the power of thought is all powerful. Much can be created by thought alone.

George: Yes, that is always the primary factor.

Yes, but yes as you know there are many who are close to you and I have said that like is attracted to like. Therefore, those powerful thoughts would be attracting those from our world who have the same vibrational thoughts, which therefore creates a vibration which here becomes even more powerful. If you take the thought of one person within this room who used the power of thought, it would be strong, but the collective thought of all would create a much stronger thought vibration. We have spoken about collective thoughts in the process of healing the world and such things. If you think along those lines, it will perhaps become a little clearer to you, yes. Again I would say my dear friends, there are many avenues of thinking about thought—that is not a contradiction, it is an explanation of why the physical thinking is rather confused at times. Do you understand? (Yes)

Lilian: When children are singing collectively at a school or whatever—I went to a concert recently where there were small children on the stage and there is an emotion within me and I wondered if that is a physical emotion or is it a spiritual one? Just looking at the children and feeling—I can't describe it, but I wondered was a human one or was it a spiritual feeling?

You must remember that most children are closer to our world, therefore a collection of children that you have mentioned would be giving forth light of Spirit which hitherto is lost to many adults in your world. Again it would be a remembering of Spirit. Do you remember we spoke of the babies who were distressed because the memory of Spirit was still so near to them? It is an awakening within oneself of the childhood of Spirit. That is why the emotions come to the fore. Of course it is a physical act, the feeling of tears, but it comes from within—the remembering, the vibrational light of children. The power of small children gathered together could be used for great things if only they could be channelled in the correct way, but that is something which people upon this planet so far are unaware of, but I can tell you, my dear friends, it is an avenue that is being travelled.

Lilian: I wondered if it was something to do with Spirit children being drawn to them, but obviously not, it is their own spiritual light.

Spirit children will always be around where there is a gathering of earthly children—of course, that is natural. That is why you feel that awakening of Spirit, because the power of the child light is so strong. Remember my friends, although you do not see Spirit, we are always round and about you. Those who come to help you, uplift you, those who have loved you are always close. So of course, why not with the children? Do not be afraid of expressing the child within you, because each one of you my dear friends is child-like in Spirit. Do you understand? (Yes)

George: Yes, the collective power of children, is this something that we see in a theatre situation when a group of children are enthusing about one thing and one can almost feel the atmosphere.

Yes, if only adults in this world would stay as children, this world would be a much better place to exist in. It is only that the children are closer to our world than the earthly, materialistic ways of the world. They are natural, are they not, small children? (Agreed) They are free from prejudice and many of the earthly things which to you adults causes you so many concerns. Children, as collective power to be used for good, will come in time. It is something that within our world has been looked at, but it is difficult to change the thinking of earthly human beings after such a long time of really not respecting the love and power of children. It is a subject which we could, in another time, expand upon, but as I say it is an avenue being travelled down even as I speak. I know each one has experienced the love and the light which children bring to these groups when they return from our world. It is a natural light and vibration which is always with them. So, my dear friends, perhaps you will begin to look at children a little more differently from now on. They are beacons of knowledge.

Lilian: I wish I'd known that years ago! (Chuckles) Thank you.

I think for this time I will withdraw, allow you ponder my words, allow each one of you if you so desire to think about the Spirit within and the power of your own thinking. There will be no other communicators this time, but if you wish to spend the time quietly speaking or rather go within, I will leave it to your own good judgement. I will say only that until next time we meet, think carefully before you allow those thoughts to enter into the greater world. Think carefully my dear friends and come to know yourselves more closely. (Thanks + farewells)

~7th August 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time we will continue with more questions, but part of this evening there will come to you through the instrument, who sits next to this one a communicator who we hope you will find most interesting. I would say to you my dear friend, the lady across from us (Mary) is in need of a little healing help. I would ask that if you will, that you place your hand on her back some time during this evening. Now my dear friends shall we begin.

George: Recently, in an American hospital, an experiment was carried out. 50% of heart patients were prayed for and 50% were not prayed for and the ones who were prayed for fared statistically better than the other group. I think you will say that this is not the way to use prayer, but nevertheless it will no doubt prove the value of prayer to some people. Have you any comment on this?

Yes, if only one were helped even by earthly experiment, then I can only say to you, this is good. You, of course, may not be surprised by these results; it is just a pity that so many were excluded. Of course, again we return to the power of thought, which is indeed the beginning of prayer. We have discussed prayer to some degree in past times and each one of you I hope by now fully understands that your thoughts for another person are never disregarded. But of course collective prayer is a little more prayer is a little more powerful, shall we say to use your everyday words. But the same effect is achieved by many of those within your world whom you call healers. Their prayers are sent to us so often for the safe and well-being of others. But prayer is there for each and every one to use. I did tell you, did I not, that many changes would happen within your world and these things are taking place as I speak to you. All within this planet are slowly, slowly becoming more spiritually aware.

George: Things are coming into the open and things are being reported in the media which is nice.

Yes, that is what is good, that a wider audience of people are now aware that these things can happen, that non-judgemental people have the opportunity to make up their own mind, that there is no dogmatic teachings which hold them back. This can only be good for mankind.

Lilian: Today on our television they reported that they have discovered some planets—10 or more of them—they said outside our galaxy, but I don't know what they mean, how far.

Yes, again I have told you that mankind has very limited vision when it comes to all of creation. Mankind upon this planet is so very young in understanding and awareness, but all of these happenings will come in time. But as I have told you always my dear friend, slowly, slowly all will come, yes, yes.

Lilian: Would this be one of the planets where the space people come from and form the corn circles and so on?

Let me just say this to you, that we have spoken of travellers from many areas of creation. Your scientists and your astronomers will discover much in time to come. That is because those from our world are there helping and inspiring in order that knowledge comes to them. It is not a new discovery—it has always been there. It is just that man's awareness has now reached a stage of understanding, that the instruments that they use have become much better and all this comes from our world, because of the influence that we exude. You understand?

Lilian: Yes, if only they knew, some of them.

But they are now they are beginning to discover and many old ideas have to be thought about much more carefully, because you see, horizons are again expanding. This will always be. For those in your world who seek more and more, it shall be given in whatever way in order that mankind finds himself again spiritually. It is a slow process we all know, but as more and more of you good people gather, gather in knowledge, then the expansion of that knowledge grows and grows and grows. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes, thank you. Sarah?

Sarah: It was just an observation I made when I was typing back one of the scripts: Salumet said to try and be a little more child-like and I was thinking of some of the tribal people who, in my mind, seem to be quite childish and they always seem to be so happy and laughing and I was thinking that they are most probably more spiritual and have a greater understanding than we have in the West.

Yes. Remember that children have very few prejudices and if they have any at all, it has been taken from adults in your world. Children are pure in their thinking until such time they are taught or they see for themselves what this earthly world has on offer to them. They have much to cope with, your earthly children. It is not surprising that many grow into adulthood with many, many problems. But what I say to you all my dear friends is this: That if you can look at a child, see that gleam within the eye, that smile upon the face, that purity of heart, then strive for those things. That is what is meant when I say, try to be child-like. Search for the purity within you, because each one of you my dear friends is Pure Light, but it is clothed in the heaviness of physical garb with all the problems and troubles, which are within this planet, which weigh you down, which are burdens to your soul. It is up to each and every one of you to free yourselves. Again I say to you, we can help, we can uplift, we can encourage, we can inspire, but we cannot live life for you. When times are troubled, think of those words. Pick yourselves up, ask for help and it will be there for you.

George: And this is where the principle of detachment can be so important, I believe.

Yes, of course. You cannot bring to it any, how would you say, garbage, garbage? Is that the word you would use? You cannot hold on to this, you must be open, you must have no doubt that help is at hand for you. It is there, my dear friends, it is up to you to use it. If only you could but see those who stand close by you in times when each one is troubled, if only you could see the pain that they feel for you, because you do not ask for their help. Remember what I have taught you, they cannot interfere. Unless you ask for help, it will not be made available to you.

George: So the principle 'pain sharing' is with those who stand close. I have read about this in the Australian Aborigines where two people will endeavour to share each other's pain and relieve it in that way at a physical level.

Yes, on a physical level, but why not take it one step further; if they would but seek help from those of us from Spirit, the pain would disappear almost instantly. But yes, I do know and understand what you are saying and there are many people who can share this closeness, not only of pain but of love and understanding also.

George: Yes, I think we are becoming more aware of this.

Now, my dear friends, if you have no other questions this time, we will leave it there. Next time we meet, I will speak on another topic which I hope will be of interest to you, but we will have times when we return to your questions in order that each one of you in your own individual time and way, will fully understand all that we bring to you. I leave you as ever with much love, with hope, with understanding that you may continue with your daily lives with a little more understanding and love. Know as always that I am with you. (Thanks + farewells)

The expected quest soon followed through Sue:

(Welcomes)

I am unsure how long I can be with you. This is a very, very heavy atmosphere. I have come with a specific purpose and I shall endeavour to tell you before the power is completely taken up. I tell you I am more than one. I am a part of each one of you here. You all know from past teachings that you are not one soul.

Lilian: Yes, we have been told this. It is difficult for us to understand but we accept what we are told.

I thank you for accepting this knowledge, it may help you to understand a little when I say to you that as this voice speaks to you now, it is made up of a facet of each one of your souls, yours dear lady and everyone in this room. The instrument being used is filled with a part of each one of you here, a part of each one of you that has never walked your physical plane ever in eternity. And it is part of your soul which has chosen to be—how can it be put for you to understand—each part has chosen to be a fragment of spiritual light. Can you comprehend that? I have no other words to give you that you could comprehend. I will be very, very surprised if your acceptance came immediately, but it was felt that to broaden your spiritual knowledge, we could give you this small thing to ponder upon to help you to grow and to question. I feel from each one you concern, no, not concern nor disbelief but awe.

Mary: Intrigue?

Yes, 'intrigue,' a word I am not particularly familiar with. But then I have not been down to your plane and, as I have said, I am not 'I', nor am I 'we', I am a conglomerate of you all and let me say to you, that each part of each one of you here is stretching out to their own and are trying to bridge a gap with silver light, trying to reach those they belong to. Can I ask you please to send love to your own soul particle, which has entered this instrument here? Try and feel yourselves in this room. I know you are confused, but I ask you to say, do you accept what has been said, even though you need to question it, even though it seems perhaps an impossibility—will you accept each one of you, that a part of your soul is with you here now? (Affirmed) Your individual facets of soul, which have been here this time have come through much heavy, heavy atmosphere to be here. But know in your hearts that they have come willingly to give you spiritual help and love, but find it difficult now to remain with this one, so if you will forgive, we can stay no longer.

Lilian: We are most grateful. Thank you very, very much.

I am sure that you will have much questioning and I have to tell you that the Master who teaches you will help you with your concerns next time, but do not dwell it to the detriment of other teachings. You have said you accept, please continue with that thought and things may become clearer as time goes on, but the Master will help you with any real difficulties over understanding. It is not possible to continue now, but each one who is with this instrument sends out the greatest love of mankind to their own and hope that each one can sense that love.

Lilian: I'm sure we all can. I know I can. (Thanks + farewells)

~14th August 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Thank you, my dear friends, for the love that is extended towards me this time. I would like to discuss this time a topic we have touched upon, but which I feel you are now able to digest in a little more detail. Firstly, let me put a question to you my dear friends: What is your perception of light and darkness? Does anyone have a response please?

Graham: I think of light as a place with energy and darkness as a place with very little energy.

You would all agree on those words?

Sarah: Not quite. I would say that light is the energy that you are giving out, your energy, rather than a place with energy—your energy or your lack of energy making the light.

So you see light and darkness as degrees of energy? (Yes) Yes.

George: We have our physical expression of light being a vibration (Yes) and darkness being absence of vibration but I think this stems well beyond the physical. There are vibrations that the physical world doesn't know about.

Would you see darkness as being without vibration, is that what you tell me?

George: I think that is our physical way of looking at things. (Yes)

Sarah: Could it be with and without love as well? (Yes)

Mary: Could it be knowledge and ignorance?

Yes. Let me say this to you my dear friends. Your responses here this time are what I would have expected from you. But let me say this to you, that each one of you have not yet reached the awareness of the picture of existence which contains light and darkness. Many expressions are used within your world. You say 'angels of light' and 'angels of darkness', or you use the terms 'good' and 'evil'. Let me tell you this my dear friends: Light and darkness are but reflections of the same vibration. That is not contradictory, but it is life itself, it belongs to the scheme of life. I hesitate here because I want you to absorb those words. Light and darkness co-exist, because they belong to the plan of all existence. After all, can you not see that perhaps the darkness—and we will use those words in order that your understanding is there—light and darkness—we will hold those words— without the darkness, which you feel to be destructive, yes? Am I right in that assumption, that you mainly feel darkness to be destructive? (Yes) What if I say to you my dear friends that clearing out, destroying, is sometimes the forerunner for rebuilding and recreation. Would you then view it in the same way? (No) No, then you understand that the vibration of darkness is necessary. The light and the darkness in your world needs to be finely balanced. We have spoken that darkness always seeks the light and that is because balance is necessary.

Sarah: So does light seek the darkness too?

Of course; if one is a reflection of the other, you must have the balance. I want you my dear friends to now consider that the Spirit beings of darkness from our world are in fact a necessity for the ongoing of this planet as in the universe. After all, without the lightness of your sun, would not this planet be complete darkness? (Yes) You need both. Are you beginning to see where I am leading you to? I want you rethink those thoughts that you have maintained and upheld for so long. You could call darkness I suppose within your own world 'nature', when you consider what you term 'catastrophes', when, in fact, the Spirits of Darkness are recreating new form. Do you understand? If you do not, we will stop here and discuss it further.

Lilian: The spirits of darkness—that is their job?

Let me tell you, yes. Angels of light and darkness are not far from reality. They are phrases that have been used in past times for the understanding of those at specific moments in your evolution. Light and darkness is definitely needed for the evolution of not only this planet, but of the whole of the cosmos, the whole creation of life. After all, without darkness, how do you know there is light? Do you have questions at this time? (Pause) You all have absorbed my words so easily! (Laughter)

Graham: I am a Geologist and I take an interest in the science of geology and now geologists are beginning to unravel some of the things that have been important in the evolution of our planet; (Yes) the death of the dinosaurs and how the death of the dinosaurs enabled other species and animals to progress forward and evolve. (Yes) If this hadn't have happened and the dinosaurs had still been around, then perhaps we ourselves would never have had a chance to evolve. This understanding is there and is going on.

Yes, the mysteries of your earthly living will gradually come to the forefront of the many minds in this world who seek knowledge; you are correct. But you see, to us there is not light and darkness as mankind has given it credit for—you see lightness and darkness as opposites when in fact they belong to the same creation. This is the point I wish you to think about this time, that you find the connection between light and darkness and do not view them as opposites. When you come to our world the only difference is that the awareness of light and darkness shows you that this blending is quite natural and should not be rated in the way that humans try to do. It comes from a lack of knowledge and, as the gentleman has said, many of life's mysteries upon this planet—and not only this planet, but others—have come to the surface of thinking and that has been mainly through the influence of those from our world.

Sarah: Salumet, when we come over to your side, here we have light and dark, because we have the sun that gives us light and dark—we have dark moments and lighter moments, but the actual physical light and dark—so when we come over to spirit world, I am slightly confused, how do we get the light and the dark? Yes, you are confused my dear friend, because again you are speaking of physical lightness and darkness which is entirely different. I speak of the very essence of life, the lightness and darkness which is the very structure of all living things. Take a flower within your garden. You see it decompose and you see it spring to life. You could say that the elements of darkness has destroyed that beautiful thing, but the beautiful lightness of spirit reinforces and uplifts and recreates that beautiful flower once more. It is a working between lightness and darkness that creates the evolution of all planets. Do not confuse it with physical light and darkness—that is something entirely different. Think about it my dear friend and the understanding will come to you. Always I have to remind you gently my dear friends that your physical thinking interferes with what should come from within. Always try to feel and think on a spiritual level and the understanding will be greater. Mankind tries too hard to find answers for physical happenings, when if only he would go inwards, those answers would become so clear. But that is the pitfall of having human brains. I do not say that to be derogative to mankind, because that is part of the purpose of your growing, but you understand what I try to tell you.

Lilian: So spiritually each of us is a little of both, a little of dark and a little of light.

You strive to find a balance—that is human living. Of course you will have many falls, that is why we from our world, help to uplift you, help you in life all that we can, but ultimately the spirit has this job of work entirely on its own. You are solely responsible for how life follows (flows?) this time and many, many other lifetimes you take full responsibility for all that you think, feel and do. Do you understand? (Affirmed) I do not intend to go any further this time, because the words have given to you is food enough for you to consider.

George: Your analogy of the flower—it made me think of the religions of past times based on the spring time festival of renewal, when re-growth would begin through the summer months until the autumn comes and then the period of more darkness through the winter. Most populations are rather integrated to this idea in early times.

Yes, there are many ideas on all of these things, when in fact the answer is so simple. It may help you my dear friends to move away from the words of light and darkness, but to see them as one energy who is creating for you, life that you can lead to the very best of your capabilities, as all existence is in need of both energies to exist.

Mark: So it would be a bit pointless to try to distinguish between the two really?

It would be easier I feel for you if you could dismiss trying to create opposition between these two vibrations, but as you know, when ideas are formed, that it is difficult to dismiss once they have been created in the thinking. As we have said, the thought becomes reality. The reality reaches out into words and actions and mankind finds it difficult then to retrace that thinking. That is why I feel this time that these few words should suffice in order that you can think more deeply upon my words.

Paul: Some night animals might think it's the reverse, like a moth might see better at night, so night is like light to a night bird or a moth and they might see daylight as darkness.

As I have said my dear friend, yes, it is the awareness which creates the thought, yes. That is all the difference between mankind and those in our world, that because of their heightened spiritual awareness, it is viewed in a much different way, because you can see the wider scheme of life a little more clearly. But, yes, that is a good point that you have made. It is your perception of what you see.

Sarah: And also, us humans are looking for the opposite light in other humans, aren't we?

Yes, always you seek something really which does not exist. You have created opposites when you should in fact be seeing the greater good of all of these things. Remember that opposites need each other in order to become totally balanced. Remember balance, that is perhaps a fine word for us to ponder upon—balance, finely tuned. After all, that is what you are seeking my dear friends, is the balance between the human form and Spirit. When that finely tuned balance is achieved, then you could say that all aspects of your life upon this planet would be supreme. You understand? (Affirmed) Are you sure?

Sarah: I thought you were going to say that when you have got a fine balance then it would be time for you to go back into Spirit, because you have achieved what you have come to do, but that is not the case.

You will never, you will never achieve that upon this planet. It would take many aeons of time to even achieve a great deal of balance; that is something we can discuss another time. There are measurements of balance, but I do not wish to confuse the issue this time. Have you more questions for me or are you all happy to think upon my words? (Pause)

Lilian: I need to think about it. ((Agreed))

I hope I have brought to you some little more for you to discuss to think upon inwardly in your quiet moments. I hope that between us we can achieve a little more information, which will help you all, my dear friends, to go forward in your spiritual growth. Therefore, if you are content, I will leave you this time.

Mark: The Yin-Yang symbol demonstrates this very clearly what you are saying. (Yes) I wondered where that came from. Did that come from Spirit?

Yes, all the expressions within you world have been given or they have originated from different peoples at the time when they were ready to listen, but as you know, human beings are rather set in their ways of thinking so, each set of people have created in their own time their own description of light and darkness; that is all, it is as simple as that. Call it light-darkness, yin-yang, good-evil, whatever you would wish. What I am trying to achieve for you is for you to see on our way of thinking, that you should not have the word opposite in between these two things, because they belong together. They are not separate, but one reflection of the other; that is what you must try to remember. It is not destructive but creative. If you think along those lines, it will make your thinking easier.

Lilian: So when we talk about the dark regions in Spirit, where some put themselves shall I say, even that is not destructive?

No, because out of destruction comes light. The light will always seek to balance the darkness and the darkness always seeks the light, so can you see that each needs the other? (Agreed) You have to think deeply my dear friends—this is not as simple as it may sound.

George: I think we must accept light and dark in their spiritual form (Yes) and forget our light and dark physical expressions because they are not the same.

Yes, you must erase the preconceived ideas which have been created in your world about light and darkness. Again we have difficulty because of the use of words. They are but two vibrations which need each other for all of life to function. I hope it has helped you. I hope my dear friends, that when we meet again these words will have reached that point within you, when you can say, ‘Yes, I understand a little more.’

I will withdraw from you this time leaving you all with my words, with my love, with peace and upliftment and I ask each one of you that you continue to offer yourself to that Divine Goodness, which all of you are part of. (Thanks + farewells)

~21st August 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

My arrival this time has been delayed, because it was felt that most within this room were in need of some peace and some quietness of mind. I hope that those people may leave this time, feeling spiritually renewed and with the knowledge that those close to them are aware of their needs. Because of this delay, we, my dear friends, will have some questions, rather than I embark upon knew knowledge for you. Therefore if anyone has questions this time, let me now answer them for you.

Sue: Thank you, I have one. I don't know if you are aware that myself and the lady you are using now, went to a 'Direct Voice' circle, a couple of days ago and saw some absolutely amazing phenomena. I just wondered whether you could comment on it, how difficult it is on your side for this to take place and how difficult it is for people on our side to learn, if you like, how to cope with it?

Yes, we are not unaware shall I say. The opportunity has been put forward for you, not because it is necessary for you to experience phenomenon such as you have had, but to enable you, as two people who have given much of their time, to see what is possible and what they too can achieve, given that they are willing to offer themselves in service to this work. There will come to you my dear friend, other opportunities for new experiences in time to come. We know that not only within this room, but in another place that many, many of your years have been given, in the hope of some physical phenomena. Let me say this to you: There are always difficulties no matter what form communication takes. Whether it be clairvoyance, clairaudience—whatever and I have told you that many new forms of communication will take place. But the phenomenon you speak of, is one which from our world has always been available, but we have to have the dedication and the medium who is willing to be used in such a way, because remember that the medium used has no knowledge of what is happening. So firstly, my dear friend, let me say this to you: It is not so much training, as you have asked, but in the giving of oneself to us. We will do the training. Do you understand?

Sue: Yes I do.

For that type of evidence you must have people who are unselfish, who have given to us of themselves, without wish for any egotism. That, I would say, is the main ingredient of development of that type. You understand?

Sue: Yes I do.

I know my dear friends, that phenomenon of this type, is wonderful in the human eye. It gives credence to our world that so many people crave to see such things. But again, I stress, it is not necessary for people such as yourselves, because you have what you need to develop in your own way, and each one of you are indeed individual in your service to our world. There is much to come to you within this room. You know I do not come to tell you what is to happen; that has never been my purpose. My purpose is to teach and to enlighten each one who is willing to listen. But I will say, my dear friends, that if you continue to travel along the road of development that you have been travelling, you will be rewarded—you will be rewarded. Remember, I have said that communication is a two-way process. Without you, we could not communicate. Without us, there would be no communication. Therefore each is essential for the other. Many developments have taken place from our side of life, in order that mankind was willing to give of their time, was willing to accept our words. Mankind must understand that communication is the very essence of truth, if mankind is to begin to understand what all these things are about. Unselfish service, I would say, is what you should try to achieve, and my dear friends, I can tell you without this unselfishness, I myself would not be communicating with you. Therefore take credit for what you are and what you have been and what you will be.

Lilian: Thank you for those kind words. Could I ask a question? (Of course.) It's for the gentleman sitting next to me, who has a health problem. I know you don't come to sort our health problems out, but is there any word you could say that might help him?

Yes. I will say this to the gentleman: We are aware that he has not joined you for much of your time, we were aware of his coming and as you know, all is known within our world. I would say that all steps taken can only be of good, when it comes to spiritual intervention. What the gentleman must begin to realise is that he must go inwards, he must look to his true self, to know and understand what the problem is. I would suggest—and you know I do not give advice normally, I would suggest this gentleman would be a case for what you would term, 'Spiritual Regression'. He would find this most helpful and can I say that although those in your world who do much good, much healing, he has not at this time found the right person. I will say no more than this, because I do not want to interfere in ones life's path. But I ask him to think upon my words and he will be guided.

Lilian: Thank you very much.

George: Mankind over the years, or in the past has had communication with other beings and I think in our literature we have given them names, such as angels and archangels. Would that be an accurate statement?

Yes. You know that I am not fond of names, but yes, I would say to you my dear friends, that those descriptions are apt enough for mankind to use. There are indeed, what you term angels and archangels, but probably not in the same way as you would think. I can tell you that true angels have never lived upon any planet. They are supreme beings, and because of this, it gives an aura of lightness, which creates in mankind's eyes, the look of an angel as you visualise them. Are you following me?

George: Yes I think so.

What would be your question upon this matter?

George: Yes. I just think it is nice to look back in our literature and observe that there has been communication with non-physical beings, (Yes) and mankind in the past has given names to these, perhaps unsatisfactory names.

Yes. I can tell you, my dear friend, that this part of what you call literature is indeed correct. This is a topic that we have not touched upon, but is a subject for a future time.

George: Thank you for your confirmation on that.

But let me tell you there are such beings in our world. They have never been 'mortalised,' shall we say, on any planet, because they are supreme beings. But they do come to many planets, in the form of help, and many people have become aware of them in your world, and as you have stated, have given them names, to which I might add, they are pleased to respond to. And if perhaps I could give one more piece of knowledge to the last gentleman, let him call on the one known to you, I am sure, on the one known to you as Gabrielle. If he will but call upon him, he will help. But we will touch upon these beings at a future time.

George: Thank you for confirming some of our records on that topic.

Lilian: I feel I want to ask, do they have wings?

You know the answer to that. (Laughter) Do we have more questions?

Mark: You've said that these supreme beings, they appear as light to us. I wondered if that was always the case with supreme beings?

In what way?

Mark: Well we were talking about light and dark last week and how we were to see them as continuous or not separate anyway. But if a supreme being always appears as light...

I have not said that any supreme being appears only as light. Have I said those words? (No) Thank you, I am not understanding you correctly then.

Mark: No, I thought these supreme beings that we were talking about, these archangels appeared as light and I was curious to know if this is how supreme beings generally appear.

Yes, well until we discuss them, I do not feel your understanding would be great enough just at this moment in time. But yes, I am beginning to see where you are going. We will discuss it more fully. But are you confused by the topic of light and darkness?

Mark: I wouldn't say confused, but I think I've got to think about it more.

Yes, I think you have. I think that you need to go over my words last time. You need to digest until the knowledge becomes more acceptable to you. It is a new concept of thinking I feel, for each one of you, what we discussed last time. I do not expect any of you to fully understand what I told you, without some questions. But when you speak of supreme light and supreme beings, we have touched upon a topic which is far in advance to what we have spoken of. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Paul: Could I just ask one question about the dark and the light? As I understood it, they are one and the balance is the thing to aim for, so that presumably if a being had too much light that would be a problem, an imbalance, just as someone who is too dark would be imbalanced as well. Is that right?

Yes, thank you for your question. May I suggest that you take yourself away from the thinking of persons. Light and darkness are vibrations. One reflects the other and the balance would come automatically, because each would seek the other to keep that balance. There cannot be imbalance in the universal laws. That would not be right, do you not agree? (Yes) Therefore light and darkness always seek each other. Is that helpful?

Paul: Yes, it happens naturally.

Yes because the darkness would always seek the balance of the light.

George: I think it helps me to see it in reference to a great painter called Rembrandt, whose speciality was to work with light and dark and achieve balance in his paintings. Of course without both, there would be no painting.

Of course. Look at all of life upon this planet. You always have the balance. That is why when first I came, when you found it difficult when I said that those who seek to—how do you say—abuse young children. If you can look at it from light and darkness, it is the darkness seeking the light. Always the Spirit will seek the balance. If you can put aside the human form and the human thinking, then all can become clear. It is a difficult subject, and not one that I would expect you to fully understand for some time to come. But I would wish that you keep it in your thoughts, until such time as it becomes clear to you. But yes my dear friend, that is a good analogy, that to bring the whole together, you need the balance of both.

Lilian: Yes we'll give it some more thought. Any more questions?

George: I have a very brief one, to which the answer is probably no. I have read that in regard to physical happenings in séance, a red light is a help. Is there any substance to this idea, or is the lighting quite irrelevant?

Let me say this: For those who are on the first steps of this development, it is something that has been suggested from our world, to help in the vibrations necessary for those who are within that group. But of course as you are well aware, there has been phenomenon in light. But these are exceptional mediums, who have been born and who have been chosen to do this type of work. They have been chosen and are fully protected by our world. But I would say that it is essential in the first degree of development.

Lilian: So what's the answer, say when someone's lost a partner or a child or whatever—I say 'lost'—they have gone back to spirit. Sometimes a person left on this Earth in a sleep state, just before they go to sleep or when they wake up, actually sees the person who has passed into Spirit, say at the bottom of their bed, or wherever. How does that work? Is it thought again?

No, not always. Again there are no straight answers. They can be seen clairvoyantly by one person and not always those in a room. But as you say, in sleep-state your consciousness is raised to such a degree, that you are more aware, you are more able to see with the Spirit eyes. Sometimes that is when these things will occur. It is a different matter from what the gentleman was speaking of. We are taking from the medium within those conditions, much of her own body energy, as well as spiritual energy. We are speaking on an entirely different subject here. You all know and understand of course, that when you enter the sleep-state, that the Spirit is free to remove itself from the physical body, and in the sleep-state, it is possible to see, to do and to achieve much. And remember, those loved ones who have passed over to our world, for some time after their removal from the physical being, are still very close to your world. So you see, the raising of the consciousness, of the one who remains and the closeness of the departed, are but a blink away. Do you understand? (Affirmed) I hope that has helped your understanding. Again, my dear friends, I hope my words have brought you comfort and knowledge and understanding, this time. (Agreement + thanks)

Next time we meet, we will embark upon something that is new to you and that I hope you may find of interest. I leave you in the knowledge that each one of you is surrounded by that great Love. And until such time as we come together, I ask that your thoughts be directed not only to those that you know and love, but to those many souls in your world, who are lost, not only in your world, but in ours.

(Thanks + farewells)

~28th August 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time, although we are small in numbers, we are great in Spirit. Because my dear friends we are few in numbers this time, we will not embark upon new knowledge this time. But what I would like to say to you all, is still something that I would hope you, each one of you, consider when you leave this room. Often my dear friends, we have spoken of other beings who have interested you and who you believe to inhabit other planets; this we have discussed on numerous occasions. But my dear friends, what I would like you to consider this time, is a little closer to your own world. We have spoken of Nature Spirits I know, but how many of you know and understand, how many other beings inhabit this planet? Would anyone wish to comment, or shall I continue?

George: Could I just query, when you say other beings, is that other beings in Spirit?

In different form from the human being; all comes from Spirit. How many people in your world have dismissed the creatures of the Earth? The water? The air? The fire? What I wish to say to you dear friends, are you of the opinion that all these beings are only figments of imagination, or do you so believe that there is more than what you can visibly see? We are not speaking of spiritual beings, but different elements of beings. This is something we will discuss fully, when the other members are present, because I feel the time is right, now, for your understanding to grow, about your own planet. Who here would dismiss the fairies in the woodland? Who here would dismiss all those beings who help your nature? Who here would dismiss the fire elements? So many beings who inhabit this world with you. Would anyone now like to comment please?

Paul: I was just thinking when you're in a place that's quite wild, like a wilderness, you feel there's a freshness and an energy around you, more than perhaps when you're in a city or something, (Yes) as if the Nature Spirits are present.

Yes, so you do not dismiss these creatures?

Paul: No, I think there is never any gap with nothing. Everything is full, (Yes) full with beings and Spirits.

Yes, it gladdens my heart to hear you say such words my dear friend. This subject has been much maligned in your world. I intend to go more fully into this subject, as I have said. But what I wish you to do, my dear friends, this time, is to take these few simple words that I have given you and to think about them carefully, because when we return to the subject—I will not expect, that is the wrong word, but I hope that you have come to some conclusions, about the beings within your world; beings not visible to you, but who belong to a different energy pattern than yourselves. Because until you have these visions, you are not fully aware of what your planet is about. It is time, my dear friends, for your awareness and your vision to expand, for that inner vision to become clearer, because you see my dear friends, there is so much help available to you, from all these beings. Do we have more comments about this please?

George: Yes, I think again this is something that people of our past on this planet, have been more aware of, in times when life was less material and less complicated. I think those of our past have had a greater awareness of these Spirits of Nature.

Yes, but it is not only materialism that has closed mankind's eyes, but his fear and his own thinking, which have closed down his visions of these beings, who after all, are part of the whole existence of your planet. They are of importance to all of your existence, because without their help, life for humankind could not continue. I do not want to say too much without the others being present, but I want you just to realise and think about what we have within this world, which most of you at this present time, are so unaware of; so blind that all of that help cannot be appreciated, that your love cannot go to all these beings, who work so hard on your behalf. Do you understand my friends? (Affirmed) I know I am speaking about a subject as I have said, that has been scorned, that most people will dismiss as delusion. But let me tell you that those people are the deluded ones. So my dear friends, take these thoughts with you this time and think not only of Nature Spirits, which we have discussed in part, but see what else you can come up with. Think carefully, but more than think, feel.

George: Yes, I would have thought that our celebration of our springtime renewal, as it happened thousands of years ago, from the little bits that we do know of, it must have been quite a spiritual occasion, the springtime renewal.

I understand what you are saying my dear friend, but why only springtime? All of existence is constant renewal, renewal that is worked for, renewal that is given in love, renewal that is governed by that cosmic Love. Nothing within this planet remains ungoverned by that love. Therefore try not, my dear friend, to section only one part of living, because all of your existence is spiritual love, you understand?

George: Yes, thank you.

I do think you will find our discussion, when we have full numbers, to be of interest. It will give you more to think about. It will, I hope, open up those spiritual eyes, because it is the Spirit that needs to see. The physical eyes can see, but only if governed by Spirit, you understand?

Lilian: So it would be possible for some people to actually see these beings?

Of course, but only those spiritually aware that will see. But it is possible to see, of course, with the physical eye. But the main attribute is to offer that unconditional love to these many creatures. Their task on this planet is of utmost importance. And although many of these beings do not have the same opportunity of advancement as you human beings, their contribution to life is such, that they cannot be dismissed. Do you understand please? (Affirmed)

Paul: I think it connects to the work that goes on in places like Findhorn, where I think they work with these entities a bit more and there is more of a loving relationship going on, so that their vegetables grow bigger.

I would say yes, that is one aspect of what we will discuss and to take that example, is yes indeed a fine one. After all, I suppose it is known to all of you here, how that race known to you as Indians, Red Indians, how they communicated with these beings, who enabled their harvests to be rich and plentiful. Yes, so my dear gentleman, you have touched upon one source of what we will discuss. But there are many, many beings who will come together to work together with you, provided, and again I will say it, provided they can feel your unconditional love, they will work with you and for the betterment of your living.

Lilian: Does it sadden them sometimes, the different things which are done to nature, the trees and the pesticides and so on?

Of course and without going into too much detail, which is not my intention this time, I will tell you that yes, they have feelings perhaps, if I could use that word and they will react to anger and violence and all those negative feelings, that humankind is so prone to. Yes, of course.

Lilian: It certainly makes us see things much differently.

That is my intention, but I do feel that it is a topic that needs to be explored now, by each one in this group, not only a few of you. Therefore my dear friends, take my words with you, think about them carefully and perhaps you will be a little more enlightened by your own thought processes, before we come together again. I know it seems to leave you with half a thought, but that was my intention, because now you will have to work harder, to try to understand what I wish to tell you. So do not feel disappointed, that I have given you so little this time, because you will find that in opening your hearts and minds, that you could be influenced in the way of thinking, which I am trying to encourage. So I leave it with you, my dear friends, and we will discuss this a lot more fully, more deeply and I hope that by the end of our discussion, each one will be a lot more enlightened. Now, before I leave you this time, I wish to say to the lady who is leading you, that we would like to use you this evening, if you are willing, use you in a guided meditation. Please just allow yourself to relax and let those come close to you, who are standing nearby.

Lilian: Yes I'll try.

That is all we ask. You can do no more than that.

Lilian: Thank you once again.

My love as always stays with you. (Thanks + farewells)

Lilian gave each sitter a flower, following her meditation. There then followed a rescue through Eileen, involving a 7 year old child, who was looking for his dog. A nurse (Eunice) came with a lovely puppy and he was helped over, on his journey back to Spirit.

~4th September 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Your welcome this time is very strong. For this I thank you and say it is good to join with you once more. I do hope that those of you who were here last time thought just a little about what we discussed. Yes. For those of you who were absent, I would like this time to discuss with you about the existence of what we would call non-human beings. You understand I hope, those who were not present last time.

(Affirmed) Let me firstly say to you my dear friends this: There is much within your world which has been discredited by many and for this reason I feel now is the time to tell you, with the understanding that you have gained so far, that it is time to put right many of these wrongs in your world. Most of you will be aware of what you would term, I believe, 'Fairy Tales'. Every country within your world has its own tales to tell. These have existed for many, many thousands of earthly years, but always it has been dismissed by most peoples as fanciful imagination. Let me tell you here and now my dear friends that these tales are based on truth. Thus far it has only been available to those who have clear vision and even those who believe in an afterlife in whatever form, have dismissed these tales as imagination. Let me tell you that these non-human beings are as much part of this earthly evolution as you humankind are. Without them you would not evolve in the way that you do. What are these Nature Spirits, because that is what they are? They do not originate in mankind's thoughts; they are, as you yourselves are, the creation of the Divine Creator, the great architect of all things. What do you say when you look at the trees and the plants and the flowers? You say, do you not, it's God's masterpiece? Of course it is, but these great things need workers to empower that masterpiece. I know each one of you are aware of the four elements in your world: the Earth, the Air, the Fire, the Water. Within these four elements there are many, many others. Now we come to the beings of these elements. They are created within their own elements. The Earth element, they are created in the Earth ether. That is why they are not visible to the human physical eye, that is why you need clear vision to be aware of them. Let me say, my dear friends, that all of existence interpenetrates every particle of life. Let us take the Earth. When you see those plants, those trees, those flowers, you are not aware of the workings behind them. You say, 'it is nature'. Yes, you are partly correct, but behind what you term 'nature' are those small beings who empower the plants, empower the trees, empower the flowers. And I will address the Earth beings by the common name that you would know them by. You know all too well my friends that we are limited when it comes to names, therefore we will call them Gnomes for the sake of your understanding. Without these small creatures who work tirelessly within your Earth, there would be no life substance as you know it now. Yes, these little Gnomes, as we will call them, have the appearance of tiny small men. They have been seen and they respond to harmonious conditions and to love. These Earth beings work within the Earth, on all layers, from the mineral they work on the jewels of the Earth, they work on many aspects of the Earth. But perhaps you will not fully understand, that unlike the human form which you possess, these beings are not immortal. They can exist for as long as one thousand of your earthly years or until such time as their task is completed and then they will return to a group soul, but they do not have the advancement of the human being—that is their only difference. You are most quiet my dear friends! Before I continue, do you wish to say anything at this point?

Mary: How does this tie in with the American Indians? Did they have a real grasp of spirituality?

They most certainly did. They called upon the Nature Spirits, not only Earth Spirits, but they truly believed in the Fire Spirit as you may well know. These Spirits we will call by the name known to man as Salamander. These Indians were well versed in spiritual matters. Because of their beliefs and their knowledge they had much success, not only with their animals but their crops. Yes, indeed, those people and even to this day those who remain true to that kind of living, have great success with Nature Spirits, because, as I have said, they respond to love and harmonious conditions. You will find them in many, many numbers in open spaces, in hills and woodlands and forests where mankind has not caused too many harsh conditions for them.

Lilian: And would those places feel peaceful because of them?

Yes, yes. If you send loving thoughts, create harmonious conditions, it should be possible for anyone who is spiritually aware, to see these creatures or beings or Gnomes or Salamanders. The beings of the air you would know as Sylphs and of course water beings you would know as Undines. I am sure each one of you is aware of these things, but all I wish you to know my dear friends is that they do exist. All I ask is that you think about these things more carefully, that you consider the working behind every element in your world. I know, especially with the Earth Spirits, that your geologists would give another explanation for many of the things that occur, but let me tell you my dear friends, they do not have the full picture. Do we have some response before continue?

Lilian: They are obviously very much aware of us as humans?

No, the Earth Spirits are largely unaware of human form. They are more aware of conditions, but they will respond, as I have said, to love and harmonious conditions. Under these conditions they will work well.

Lilian: So if we admire the flowers, they must be pleased. Will they pick our thoughts up?

If it is loving thoughts, yes. What you may not know, and I will speak mostly this time about the Earth beings, because on each element of beings, there is so much to be said. Would you know and could you understand that they almost live in their own way like human beings? They live as groups deep within your Earth. They exist on a type of air which is different of course from the air that you would breathe, because it is partly physical air and air in the ether, which is, of course, much finer.

Graham: Do they have children in the same way as humans do?

They are capable of having families, but of course not in the physiological way that human beings would. You must remember that all Nature Spirits are controlled by those other beings, non-human beings whom we would term Angels, and that is a subject we have to come to at a later stage; but they are governed by them. But within their own element, yes they exist as families and groups such as yourselves. I know these facts seem strange to you, but it is time, my dear friends, that your thinking goes more deeply, that your understanding of all of existence is widened, that you encompass all life as it exists within this planet. You are not alone. The evolution of mankind and this planet is not reliant upon humankind alone. That is the purpose of my speaking to you about non-human beings.

Lilian: Could we in any way harm them by different things that we do to the Earth?

Of course, it would not harm them in the manner that you mean, but in damaging and corrupting your planet, then you make their task doubly difficult. You would not of course know or understand that by the power of their thought, they also can change the way they look. They can become taller or smaller to suit the situation within which they work, but they cannot enter to another element. Earth cannot change into the Air element, Water or Fire; they are restricted to the element to which they belong. Am I making sense my dear friends? I sense that you are a little stunned by this knowledge. (Chuckles)

Mary: Am I right in thinking that they give out an energy which enhances our own energy?

Of course, because by looking after and appreciating the work that they are achieving, then you give back to them. Everything is penetrated by each other. Nothing is isolated. All form of life is interpenetrated. Can you begin to understand my dear friends what I am trying to tell you? I know it must be difficult. I have chosen the Earth Spirits this time, because I feel that is the element that is probably closest to most of you. Most of you have gardens. Most of you feel the beauty and the love which nature provides for you.

George: I think we have a feeling for nature and Nature Spirits. What concerns me sometimes is modern farming and farming methods (Yes) and this must be seen as a distortion of nature and I imagine this might well cause some problems due to lack of respect and deviations from the natural process.

Yes, let me just say my friend, that of course anything which causes disharmony within the Earth is distressing to Earth beings, of course and, such as they are, like human beings, they can be mischievous. This is where—let me give you an example, let me give you an example of the Fire Spirit, Salamander. Let us talk of the fires which rage out of control. They are absolutely ecstatic at such a thing, because they are vibrant, they are alive, but they are also mischievous. That is one example, if you come to the Earth Spirits who are distressed, then you will see a deterioration within that ground, you will see the dying of the trees, you will see the plant which is diseased. This is all to do in part with conditions which are not harmonious to what you call nature. Do you understand?

George: Yes, I think we have seen problems arise within the farming process and this is to be expected and would stem from lack of respect.

Yes, if only mankind would acknowledge the work which goes on within the Earth. If only mankind could offer thanks to those beings who work so tirelessly and hard for your benefit, then things would be more acceptable to all. Can you see? But because mankind in his ignorance believes that he has total control of the Earth and what he calls nature, he is in fact destroying much of the good work that these Earth beings have created. When next you touch the soil, the plant, the tree, the flower, why not give thanks for all that they have done?

Lilian: Yes, I'm sure we will.

Think about it my dear friends that is all I ask of you. As always I will say, if you cannot accept my words, then leave them for another time, but I feel that now is the time for you to open your minds to the existence of these non-human beings.

George: I have a very special place in my heart for the bee populations. They are so industrious, they are so intricately part of the nature system, they visit so many plants and flowers and pollinate them that the natural order would be totally different without them. I have always felt that there is some sort of guidance (Yes) behind the work of the bee and its visits to so many plants and the way that it pollinates. Yes, there is guidance, there is guidance in all things. You are correct in that assumption, but of course the bee belongs to the physical, it is only another aspect of what can be achieved in this world. But the underlying power lies with the beings of the Earth and I would say even more so the bee population is guided by the Air beings, the ones we would call Sylphs and who people have seen close by to plants and water and who do appear in smaller human form and with what would appear to the physical eyes as the formation of tiny wings. There are many beings, but we will speak of the Air beings another time. I feel your bafflement my dear friends!

Lilian: We are deep in thought. I am sure when we are in our gardens we shall be thinking of them all the time and hopefully seeing one or two.

It is possible when you are spiritually aware. Speak to those people in your world who have evolved spiritually and I am sure they would be only too glad to tell you of all that they are capable of seeing. But again, because of much ridicule and disbelief in your world, they are loathed to speak of these things. They are afraid of being called foolish, they are afraid that their fellow man will think of them as not being quite 'the thing', I think you would say, therefore they are hesitant of speaking of their visions.

Lilian: I must say, all this week I have been thinking, as you say all over the world, there are the little people in Ireland, in Cornwall it's the pixies and different names for different places.

Yes, all over your world, every country has its own fairy tales, yes.

Lilian: So how did they start?

That is what I say to you my dear friends, they are based on truth, but as in many things, it becomes distorted, it becomes to mankind in general a figure of fun, to be dismissed as fanciful imagination. I am here to tell you, my dear friends, that there are such beings in existence. As I say, I use the names which you would be familiar with, but all that they are, they are part of the Great Creation, which enables this planet and yourselves to evolve. You are not alone and never will be alone, because there is too much that belongs to the great scheme of life. Humankind has been at fault too long, in thinking that he is a superior being. This idea I would wish you to try to place within the scheme of the great plan of life and to understand that humankind is but one small part of what exists, not only on this planet, but on all others. You cannot isolate yourselves from all the other energies and beings that exist on this planet. Let me just finish this time, by saying that when you look into water, do you not see the power behind that liquid? Can you not feel it, can you not see it, can you not understand that beneath that power, there lies beings who are constantly at work to create a living force of that water? Water is very good element for trying to capture the power within. Think about those few words and next time we will continue this discussion and I will be more than interested to see how each one of you has interpreted my words. My dear friends, there is much you need to learn and if I can open your eyes just a little wider, then I am sure that your understanding can only help you to grow. If this is so, what more can we ask of you, because in growing and understanding, with your vision how can you not go through this existence and not give to others what you have achieved? Would that not my dear friends be remarkable? (Agreed) With these words I will take my leave this time. I do hope that you have a little more food for thought, but we have much more to discuss, but I feel especially on this topic that we must go slowly, but I feel that we must discuss it as we go along. (Thanks + farewells)

~11th September 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends we will continue to discuss other the topic which we began last time. I hope each one of you has given some thinking time to our discussion.

Lilian: I am sure we have.

Yes. We spoke last time mainly about earth spirits. I said we would discuss the others. We discussed the four elements of Earth, Water, Air and Fire and I believe I told you that within those four elements there exist many, many more. I began with the Earth Spirits because I feel, my dear friends, this is perhaps the closest and more acceptable one to you, but what I wish you to know and understand is the relationship between yourself and these other spirits of this planet. I told you last time that you do not stand alone in spiritual evolvment. These spirits are not seen easily with the physical eyes, because they are within the ether—the Earth ether, the Water ether, the Air ether and Fire ether. All of these spirits are formed mainly from the elements to which they belong. Therefore let us take an example this time. Shall we discuss the Water Spirits, or sometimes in your history they have been called Mermaids in the larger expanse of your seas. Why should some see these things, I hear you ask, and not others? Well my dear friends I have already partially answered that question, because they belong to the ether and not seen with the physical eyes, unless with those physical eyes you have momentarily clear vision and only with clear vision will you view these creatures. The Water Spirit or Undine, can be seen on the waves of your seas, can be seen close to water of many kinds. Their task is to work with plants in water and the very motion of water. They are created from the ether of water. They can be seen as shimmering creatures in the smaller places where water abounds and upon the larger areas of your seas, then you have the larger Undines which are seen to many as the Mermaid. Remember I told you last time that these spirits have the ability to increase or diminish in size. Sometimes the Water Spirits will seem to shimmer as mist or fog. They are there again, as the Earth Spirit, they are completely captured by loving thoughts, by spiritual development. Now at this point my dear friends I would wish you to understand that the Water Spirits are drawn to the human Spirit by the very water element within man. And what is that, I hear you ask? It is the seat of your emotions. Therefore can you see that they would respond to good emotion? Let me try to say this to you, that when the waters rage, these Water Spirits are working to full capacity. They can be stilled, if you like, by the extension of love and the offer to work with them. Those human beings who have clear vision, who have love in their heart, who have the best intentions for all fellow creatures, not only their own kind, they will in their evolvment have the ability to have clear vision and to view these beautiful creatures. Their only intent is to work on this planet for their own spiritual evolvment, although it varies from your own, but they respond to human Spirit with love and kindness, but the Undines or Water Spirits will be found anywhere there is water, even on your marshy grounds where you probably would be surprised to find them.

Now let us speak of another element, the Air Spirit. Again it is fashioned from that element to which it belongs. The Air Spirit is known as Sylphs. They, too, can increase or diminish in size, but what is important once more is their involvement with human Spirit, with mankind. What would you suppose my dear friend attracts them to humankind? We speak of the air element.

Lilian: It's the love again.

All are attracted to love, but what is it within humankind that would attract the Air Spirits to you.

Mark: I was thinking the same as Sarah, the respiratory air/oxygen.

Yes, but it is the mind. The mind, the intellect, they are attracted to many artistic people. But the Air Spirits or Sylphs are indeed shown to you as beautiful creatures. They show themselves to you as tiny people or large people dependant on the setting. They are the ones that you would call fairies. Yes, who would have shimmering wings, because they are fashioned from the air. These creatures are indeed beautiful and attracted once more to love and beauty.

And last but not least we have the Salamander or the fire Spirit. We spoke briefly of the Fire Spirit last week, did we not? Yes, and of all the elementals, the Fire Spirit can indeed be mischievous, as human Spirits can be mischievous; why should there be distinction. But all Spirits, no matter what element they come from, respond to love and will always work with mankind, providing you give those loving thoughts. I would like to make clear to you, my dear friends, that oftentimes mischievous happenings have been accredited to human Spirit, when in fact it is sometimes the Salamander at work with his mischievous ways, especially when there is anger or trouble within households and such places. They thrive upon psychic disturbance. They oft times are amused when they hear of human Spirit taking the blame for their own mischievous ways. Think upon these words. I wish you to know, my dear friends, that you exist in a world, which is inhabited by many, not only the human Spirit, but those I have mentioned and many, many others; some who have the ability to evolve and some who will never evolve in the way that mankind will. But what I want you my dear friends, to understand: You upon this planet coexist with many others of various shapes and sizes, but all belong to Spirit. Each interpenetrates the other, no one group is isolated. Although mankind in his, shall we term 'wisdom'—a word I am not fond of—considers that he is the sole beneficiary of this planet. Now is the time in your evolution my dear friends, and I know that I have approached a subject not easily accepted—but I do feel that you have reached a stage when you can at least begin to think and open up your heart and minds to other beings. Before you reach for the planets and the stars, look inwards to your own planet and those who are here to work for you in your own evolvment of Spirit. Therefore my dear friends I say to you this: Open your minds and hearts, give love and thanks to all those who are around you, and you will find that your lives will become enriched by the knowledge of these small creatures; their beauty is something to behold. And again I hear: 'But the Earth Spirit or Gnomes who we have discussed do not present such a pretty picture.' But who are you to judge? Do you suppose my dear friends that you seem attractive to them? (Chuckles) So, once again I say to you my friends, do not judge, but accept and keep an open heart. I feel I have given you enough to think about, to open your minds and hearts, or if you have any questions my dear friends, now is the time to ask them.

Lilian: Would they be more aware of us than we are being of them.

Only if you extend your love to them—they would be most unaware of you. Disharmony would bring you to their notice—violent feelings. I must say, that the Air Spirits are greatly disturbed by what goes on in your atmosphere—the noise within your skies—but as all creatures, they adapt well, but of course they thrive more in conditions of harmony and love.

Lilian: So that's where we'd go perhaps to visit a beautiful garden, or woodland or stream.

If your love and your expectancy is for good, it is possible for your vision to be clear enough to see them if they so desire, but they, as all Spirit, know only too well those who seek them for the wrong reasons. Harmony, love and the right reasons will bring you into touch with them, but it is entirely an individual goal for you to achieve, but it can happen if you so desire. Again I say to you my dear friends, the power of your thought is crucial.

Mark: Are very young children aware of them?

Their awareness would be greater than those of you have existed on this Earth plane for a longer period of time, because you see, young children still retain some memory of Spirit. We have touched upon children in other matters and their psychic ability. Yes, they would be much more aware.

Mark: And I guess the elementals would be more attracted to the children as they are more loving and purer.

Yes, their purity of Spirit, their light and their love would be the attraction. That is why their awareness would be so much greater. Yes, you are correct. Again I say to you dear friends, if only you could behave as small children, then your awareness would be greater also.

Sarah: We are here together working for this Earth, but with the Fire—I can understand the other three elements, but with the Fire, are we trying to be careful of them and they are trying to antagonise us, or how exactly do they...

No, do not become confused. I have said that they can be mischievous, but the majority of their working time is for good. It is just the element of fire and fire is as necessary as water, air and earth. After all, when there has been fire, what then happens?

Sarah: Re-growth.

There is new beginnings, new life. So do not dismiss fire as some kind of hazard. It has its place in the plan of life, you understand?

Sarah: Yes. When you said, if we gave out thoughts to them, if there was a terrible raging fire and we gave our thoughts out to the fire people, the Salamanders, if our house was on fire, could we help to reduce the flames if we all gave out our thoughts, or would that be interfering?

Good thoughts are always helpful, but the Salamanders are governed by Angelic Beings. This is a topic we have not as such discussed but we will. They have the control over the Salamanders. Therefore I would suggest that if you were disturbed by any destruction, I would give thoughts to those Angelic Beings who would take control. (Thank you.)

George: The Salamanders must be rather different from the beings of the other three elements. Earth, air and water are nice permanent and stable elements, (Yes) where fire is much more starting and finishing and moves round quite a lot, so I would think the Salamanders would be very different for that reason.

Yes, I would perhaps use one of your earthly words to describe our Salamanders: combustible. Perhaps that would make a clearer picture for you, but what I wish for you my dear friends, is that you find the connection between yourselves and all of these Spirits—that is the point I want you to come to realise that they do not stand alone and neither does the human Spirit. That is the connection, that is why it should be imperative, I may say, for you to open your eyes to these other beings, to give them your love and understanding and help whenever you can. Give thanks for the work that they so tirelessly do for your evolution. I know that mankind has developed an intellect which allows him to praise himself to think that he stands alone. That is not true my dear friends, that is not true.

George: Modern mankind has tended to think of fire, not as an element as did more ancient people, but more as a process of oxidation (Yes) and perhaps we could think of the Salamanders as masters of oxidation.

Yes, I did say last time that your scientists and your, shall we say, more developed mentally clever people, would always give you explanations for all that I have said, but I did tell you, they do not know or understand or accept the full picture.

George: Yes, I think the truly clever people are clever enough to realize just how much they don't know.

Yes, to keep an open heart and mind, that is the intelligent person.

Sarah: I know this diverts away a little from what you are trying to teach us, but you did say last week that these Spirit beings can live for as long as a thousand years and then they go back to a 'group' Spirit, I think that was the word you used. Would you mind explaining just a little about that?

Yes, of course. Group Spirit—you know that Spirit has always been and always will be, there can be no altering that statement, but there are some degree of Spirit that it is not necessary for them to evolve. Those who I have mentioned will work perhaps for a thousand years, have completed their task. Humankind has much to evolve for. It is a much longer process, but the day will come, as I have told you, when the human form will disintegrate and you will become but thought form. It is only that these elemental beings have a much smaller task to complete and then they will join their group Spirit to become blended with that greater mind. Do you understand? (Pause) No.

Sarah: Yes, I understand that, but I am just thinking about the group Spirit.

It is just a blending my dear friend. Perhaps I have confused you by using 'group Spirit'. It is just that those who have succeeded in their task, will return to Spirit in the form that they know best. Is that clearer for you? (Yes) You all return to that part of Spirit from whence you came, and after all, you understand that you are more than one. (Yes) So too are these other elemental beings, so they immerse themselves in a group Spirit. Are you sure you understand?

Sarah: Yes, I think I do.

It is difficult I know. This is a topic much maligned by mankind and we see all too often so many people who think of those with clear vision as—how is your word, crazy, crazy? But that is not true; they are the ones with clear vision. You also have to accept, my dear friend, that although these Nature Spirits are different from yourselves, all Spirit returns home to the one source, whether it be a group soul, or individual group spirits, it matters not. What is important is that the task that is undertaken on this planet is done and dealt with and Spirit can return.

George: I think you inferred that the elementals of this planet are just a tiny part of the general cosmic pattern.

Yes, of course, as you also are. Mankind needs to begin to view himself as part of the planet, not as the keeper of the planet; this is what you must try to understand. I am afraid that mankind's intellect has interfered in his spiritual nature for far too long that now is the time to return to be childlike, to a simpler way of thinking. If you are to understand all that goes on within this planet, then you need to be simplistic in your outlook. Surely that is not a too difficult a task for you who are so intelligent!

(Laughter) Are there more questions?

Paul: I remember once we had a lot of moles in the garden and we put out the thought to them suggesting to them that there was another place they could go to a field nearby. I think we tried to do it with love, a loving thought that they could move to the field nearby and it seemed to work. Would that have involved any of the elementals?

Of course, the Earth Spirit would be helping, because of the love thought, yes of course.

Paul: So the Gnomes would have helped out there.

If the thought was given in love and for the benefit of the small creature, then of course you are being helped by the Earth Spirits. It is not only the power of your own thought in these instances, although I have taught you well I hope that the power of your thought is of utmost importance. It is just that you have a little help; that is what I would wish you to try to accept. You are never alone. Are there more questions, please? (Pause) You are all going home with your eyes wide open. I cannot ask more of you my dear friends, only that you dissect my words in any way that you wish. When first I came to you, I said, accept only what you can; after all you are each in your own roles. If you cannot accept my words, it does not matter, you will come to them in time. Therefore my dear friends, if we have no more questions this time, I will leave you and let you think about my words and I will leave the rest of this time in your very capable hands. Let us see what else is to come. (Thanks + farewells)

~18th September 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before we begin this time, I wish to say to the one known to you as Mark that we will come to him in sleep-state, because he is in need of a little upliftment at this time. Now my dear friends, my purpose this time and my happiness at joining you once more is such that I hope you feel that this evening will be just as informative as others have been, but rather than give to you this time new information, I would ask all of you, my dear friends, to participate in some answering of questions to you. We of course know your thoughts and desires, but those who stand close to you would like to know what each one of you has gained in recent times from the instruction given to you. Are you happy my dear friends to speak individually to me? (Agreed) I, of course, know what is within your thinking, but others need to hear the spoken word to know how you feel, to help them in their understanding. So you see, it is again two-way help. They will help you and you will help them. So if you are happy, I will ask our dear lady to begin wherever she feels it is suitable and ask each one of you what you feel you have gained and what you have learnt.

Lilian: Sarah?

Sarah: It has made me I think—I hope, less selfish. I am beginning to see that giving and good thoughts to everyone, how important that is and in return it is a vicious circle—not so vicious—it makes you feel happier and then in turn it makes it that much easier for you to give out good feelings towards others. I think I am beginning to see the reason for us being here, much more so than ever before. In understanding a little more about why we are here, that again makes it much easier to live, because you can see the purpose and that in turn helps, I hope, for me to go on the right path, the path that I should be treading whilst I am here. Generally I just find that the whole teaching has helped turn me around a lot.

Yes, can I say to you, my dear friend, that you indeed have learned the lesson of more tolerance. Would you agree?

Sarah: Yes, I would.

Yes. Please to continue.

Sarah: I find these evenings—I never want to miss these evenings. I just want to get more and more knowledge and hopefully in the long run to help everybody to help the world. That is another thing I hadn't realized how we should be part of the world and not the world here for us. So in every respect I think it has helped me along my way.

And of course, my dear friend, you know that when those from my world have you, we rarely let you go. (Laughter)

Sarah: Well I am very happy in them not letting me go! And it's nice also to be so aware that they are always with us and I find that very comforting and it's nice to pass the message on to others too who are perhaps in a little need and to let them know too that they are not alone.

Yes I would perhaps say to each one of you, if you are lacking in any way, it is that your awareness of those close to you is until now still not too clear, but as your awareness and knowledge grows, this will come more easily to you. Thank you.

Lilian: Paul?

Paul: It is difficult to put it all into words, but most recently I have noticed there is bit more control with my moods and things that would have made me a bit cross or tense, don't have that same power quite now and I can see how I would have got wound up by things, but now I can step back a bit more and have a little chuckle about it now and not take it quite so seriously.

Laughter is most important within your world, otherwise all matters would become much too serious. But I would say to you this, my dear friend: you are indeed a spiritual person. In many lifetimes you have brought this to the surface of human living, but within you lies a small fear that the human side of you is not in full control. This is something you must try to learn this time, but you are succeeding.

Paul: Yes, I felt a little 'give' recently, yes.

And as time continues if you will but give time to your quiet moments, then in this lifetime you will place to one side that strong feeling of control. You understand?

Paul: I think so, I think I know what you mean, thank you.

Lilian: Graham, I know you're a newcomer, but...

Graham: Even though I have only been a member of the group a short time, I don't think I can begin to say how meeting in this circle has changed my life. Maybe I have had accelerated learning, because of all the catching up, but I really feel, and I am not exaggerating, that my life has been turned upside in many respects. Many times I used to think, what is it all about and where are we going, and I went about my life happy, but wondering, whereas I think that a lot of those questions have now been answered. I had no idea about the afterlife and all the things that are yet to come and I do look upon life very differently now. I think I see a lot more beauty around me, a lot more love, particularly in other people. When I meet people now I think differently. I think I used to feel upset by people; their negativity and my negativity bouncing off each other and I am finding now that I am learning to control that more and I don't feel as upset by things as I used to and that is something that I really have noticed. The knowledge that you have given us recently about nature spirits and all the other teachings have, it is wonderful to spend time thinking on these matters in quiet moments and discussing them with my wife and daughter and we all feel that we are gaining a great deal out of it. We are very grateful.

Yes. You my dear friend have been a thinking, logical person and now you will begin to find that that thinking capacity can be used in the instruction of other people. That is what we strive to give to you and although your time here has been much shorter than the others, as you have said, because of your thinking capacity, you have caught up, if I may use that earthly expression, very well. It gladdens me so to hear such words from each of you, to know that yourselves feel this awareness grow from within you. Thank you.

Lilian: Mark?

Mark: I look upon these evenings as bringing me down to Earth really and it feels a bit like an umbilical cord to life. It's made me much more aware of my failings and I don't think that it makes life easier to live as such, but it makes it more understandable certainly.

Yes. Let me say this to you my dear friend: you are always like the bees in your world, busy, busy and this applies also to your thinking. We do not wish to bring you down to Earth, we wish to raise you back to our world, but yes, gradually you do know and understand that your quiet moments are most important to keep you grounded.

Mark: Yes, I don't get enough quiet moments certainly.

No you need to have more meditation time, but we know and understand that human life is busy, but again each one of you has the responsibility for your own spiritual growth. Each one of you here has so much potential to give to the world. We help all that we can, but without the help from you, we are limited in what we can achieve. To you, my dear friend, I say to you only this: continue as you are. Life of course we can never promise you will be easy, but if the awareness and understanding is easier, then what more can we ask of you? Thank you.

Lilian: Margaret?

Margaret: I can only say how happy I am to come here every Monday and think about you all week. I find it difficult to explain to people sometimes how I feel, but I just feel happy about my life, I don't know if that's wrong or not, but I am so contented.

Yes, you have travelled this lifetime, I may say, not always easily. Life at times has been heavy upon your shoulders, but at this stage of living you have acquired a new awareness of what life should be about.

You, my dear friend, give help to many, but what I would say to you is this: That not all can accept your words and therefore you need to become a little more discerning in who you speak with.

Margaret: I am learning that.

Yes, it is something we are helping you with, but again, as all of the others, you are travelling in the right way. (Thank you.)

Lilian: George?

George: I have a strong desire to understand life and its placement in the universe and to share that understanding with others. I think this is a way forward for many. I realize that this has been helped enormously by the teachings of course. I realize that I do not stand alone; there are many connections both here on the physical Earth and with those in Spirit. I feel that I have been helped enormously by many, many people, many, many of those in Spirit, in putting together knowledge and understanding and I do this without ignoring the love principle which connects with all things and it seems to me to be the way forward for me which I have felt for quite some time now.

Yes, let me say this to you my dear friend. You are what I would call a universal being. As the other gentleman, you have a thinking mind. Your gift is of the word, both spoken and printed. This we would not disagree upon, but what I would say to you my dear friend is this: Although your gift lies in the distribution of words, you as Spirit need to devote more time to your own expansion of growth of Spirit. To help others is admirable, but to help yourself grow is even more so. I do not say these words to make you feel as if it is pride, it is not, but in learning first within yourself, do you not see how the expanse of knowledge can be even greater, because then the words that you speak of write come from the truth of within and not the knowledge of the outside world. Do you understand my words?

George: Yes, I think I understand that. In my seeking of knowledge I have looked in various corners, can I put it that way, (Yes) and I am aware that there have been teachers in the physical world, such as John Goldsmith, who upholds the principle that you have just stated, it comes from within.

Yes—it comes from within. What you have achieved my dear friend, is admirable and what you seek to do offers much to others, but what I say to you is think of yourself. Please take those words in the way that I mean them for you. Thank you. (Thank you.)

Lilian: For myself your words have turned my life right around for the better. I think the one that perhaps I remember the most is the judgement of other people and if I feel judgmental, I do remember what you have said—we don't know the reasons and I do try hard to remember that. And for me that is perhaps the most important point.

Yes, let me say this to you my dear lady: You have been involved in this work for many of your years. It is not something you would have anticipated in earlier times but let me say this to you: although your involvement has been steady it has only really come to fruition when you realized this task which you now undertake. You of all of these people have grown so much in such a short time. Although your involvement has been longer, the speed of your development in recent times has been great. We say only to you, continue, give of your heart, your time, your mind and all will be well with you.

My dear friends, let me say this to you: It has been for those who stand close by you, a very good evening of discovery. It has taught them much and we hope that in expressing your words to each other, you now begin to understand each other a little more, because it is only in expressing your innermost thoughts do you expose your true selves. Think about each other, exchange the love which exists within this room when each of you are gathered together. I leave you this time with all my love, with the knowledge that I stand close to each one of you, that I know your thoughts well and we have much work still to do.

Lilian: Yes, we look forward to that. Is there anything you would like to say to the lady that you are using? (Eileen) No, she is aware of what we feel. If it was necessary then we would give you the information.

May all of the love that you deserve remain with you until such time as we come together once more. (Thanks + farewells)

~25th September 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time, my dear friends—my intention this time is to spend some time with this instrument (Eileen) in quite teaching, but I know that we have some questions which I am happy to answer for you, but there will be one other from our world who wishes to speak with you. I would say only this to you this time my dear friends: That in the past year of your earthly time many of you have encountered many of life's difficulties. This has not been without purpose, because each one of you has grown so. Therefore in the wider scheme of life and awareness, all of these experiences have been good for you. So, let us have the questions please.

Sarah: I was trying to imagine as I go along aside how many nature Spirits would be, for example, on a tree and exactly what they do?

If you are looking for me to give you numbers my dear friend you will be disappointed. There are many factors which determine who works within individual trees. This is a combined effort by all of the nature beings. Responsibilities as you may understand is given to individual nature beings when the time is right, and remember that it would depend upon earthly factors, such as situations and which kind of Spirit is needed. Remember that all Earth Spirits have the capabilities of working together or by themselves, but all is worked in order. Their purpose of course is to maintain healthy growth to see that the energy of nature remains as pure as it can be.

Sarah: And also one other question Salumet, my son (Ben) is very interested in coming. I think he would just like to see how the meeting is conducted. Would it be possible for him to come sometime or is it early times yet?

I have been aware of much interest. May I respectfully say, please leave it just a while longer. I will give you an answer at a later stage, but for the moment it is better that his interest remains in speaking with you my dear friend. (Thank you.)

Lilian: The lady next to you (Sue), she has a friend and she would like to see if he could come. He is into this kind of work.

Sue then channelled: It is the gentleman who is involved in the physical circle that this lady (Sue) has visited. This lady is wondering whether, during the month of November when his own circle for other reasons cannot take place, if he was interested, he could come and see how this circle operates; that is if Master you would feel it would be beneficial for both parties if this gentleman were to come.

Yes. I would see no reason why this dear friend may join us provided that each one of you, my dear friends, is happy with the situation. You must remember, although I have said it is important that the correct people enter this room, it is also important that each one of you is happy to invite them also, because all of this work as you well know, depends upon love and harmony. This we have within this group. So, I say to you, if you are happy to allow this person to come, then I see no reason why he should not join you.

May I return, my dear friends, to the lady who spoke previously (Sarah) for just a moment? This young man (Ben) has much awareness and it is good that so many of your young peoples are coming to this way of thinking, but when the soul is young in earthly years it is mainly just interest, because there is much in life which has to be learned. But I say this to you my dear friend, there is much potential with this young gentleman and you will find as life continues for him, that awareness will grow much stronger. That is why I have suggested a time lapse before allowing him to discover more. It will give him time to think, you understand?

Sara: Could I ask about my step-daughter Ashlea. She is also interested, but she is younger than Ben and I would imagine that you would say the same to us.

I would say yes, it is better that information is given via yourselves at this stage. You know of course that those from our world work closely with your young people on this Earth and when they are of such young ages it is easier for those in our world to have contact with them. So again I say to you, learn by the given word. Allow them to develop their senses, encourage whatever attributes of Spirit they show. When the time is right, all will fall into place, but of course you must encourage and you must keep the interest there. Do you not also see, my dear friends, that it is part of your own learning process in teaching your children? (Agreed) Now my dear friends for this time I will not leave you, because I will be working quietly with this instrument. I would say to you only this: That at the end of your time together will you please allow the instrument time and a little quietness to return?

Lilian: Yes we will, thank you.

The expected guest (Sister Veronica) followed through Sue, bringing young children from Spirit realm for us to work with:

How nice of you to allow me to come to this special place. I am honoured to be here and hope that I can bring you the love of Spirit, and trust that each one of you will feel enveloped by what I hope to bring to you. The love of Spirit is the most wonderful thing and we want each one of you to sense how much love for you all. You have learnt have you not that the most special love, the most uncomplicated love is that of the love of children and I say to you that the love of the Spirit children knows no bounds. They give their love unconditionally, especially those who have always lived in Spirit. I say to you now, that in this room, set at the feet of each one of you here is a little child. These children, with the exception of one, have never trodden your Earth. I will ask you please to send out loving thoughts to these children, individually and as a group. May I be permitted to give the names of the children here and who they are beside? Here in front of the lady Lilian is a little girl. She is four of your years. She has never lived on your Earth and is being raised in Spirit until it is time for her to be reborn. This little child is called in our world

Faith. Please Lady Lilian, send out loving thoughts to this child. She will be around you for some time and you may sense her in your rest periods. Lady Sarah, sat at your feet is another small little girl also never having lived in physical. She is six of your years and her name is Annabel. The three gentlemen, you have three young boys, all who should have been born on this Earth as what you would term as triplets. Unfortunately they were returned to Spirit earlier than they should have been. Their names have been given as Andrew, Jonathan and Clive. They are three of your years, are beautiful, beautiful children who love one another as siblings and love everyone and everything around them. Send out your thoughts to them please and they will send you back love a thousand-fold. Again you should feel their presence in your sleep state. To the other two ladies, I bring you two little girls, their names have been given as Felicity and Marion. Again they have not lived on this Earth but are growing beautifully in Spirit. They have long, golden curls which reach down to their waist and are wearing blue, shimmering dresses—it is the clothes they have chosen to be seen in. Give them out your love and feel their presence around you in your quiet times.

Sara: Can I ask how old they are?

Felicity is four years old and her younger sister is two years old. I ask you also to send loving thoughts to their birth mother who lost both these children before she was able to cradle them in her arms. Naturally there are reasons for this, but of course the dear lady is unaware of them.

To the lady sat beside me (Margaret), I say to you, that at your feet is a very handsome young man named as Marcus and he walked your Earth for seven years. He was brought back into Spirit and is progressing very well. He has a strong affinity with you dear lady. There is a connection, but I am unable unfortunately at this time to explain it further, but he is very, very much connected to you and is sending you much, much love. You should in time hear his name again and the connection will become more obvious to you, but this is in future times and I am unable to say more at this time.

The children are singing to you now. They have been practising for some time. It is a song of love of gentleness and music and colour. They have made the words themselves and I have to say to you that they are extremely proud of them. We realise it would be asking too much if you could hear them although I do ask you to feel the music, feel it running through your veins. They are very happy to be here and as I said previously they will be around you in your quiet times. They are now turning to each one and curtsying or bowing depending on whether they are boy or girl and each one is presenting you with a flower. Listen to it also in your quiet times, you may be more receptive when you are at rest. I have to say that it is a beautiful song and the children are so proud to be here and to sing it to you. Thank you for allowing me to bring my blessed children to you. My name is Sister Veronica. I hope in time I may return and tell you how my beloved children are progressing and perhaps bring some more to sit at your feet. I will remain here quietly until your meeting comes to its close, so please feel the presence of them in this very special room. I leave you now with my children and with my love. (Thanks + farewells)

~9th October 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends, as we approach your slowing down time within the natural world I would like each one of you to also slow down in your thinking, to recap on the many things we have spoken about in the past months. I suggest to you my dear friends that this also be a time of recouping energies.

Because we have a few absent friends this time, may I suggest to you that we spend this evening in discussing whatever topic you wish, but at the same time realizing that your thinking at this time must slow just a little in order that we can unfold to greater things. We have reached a time in all of your development when new happenings will occur. I believe I have told you my dear friends that many opportunities will be given to you, but as always these opportunities are governed by your freewill. So be aware my dear friends, of all that comes to you. Before we continue on with this evening's questions, I would like just to say to our dear friend, the one who is known to us as Mark, that he has been faced with many decisions in recent times, but I will say only this to you, that you are going forward on the correct pathway. But you need to be aware of spiritual time—do not forsake it for the sake of Earth's physical living.

Mark: Next week I'm closing down the second shop so I think things will be a bit less demanding and I think I will be in a better position to organize my time.

Yes, your awareness is there, but although I do not come to advise as you full well know, I feel that just a little reminder that your spiritual awareness is of great importance. Thank you for listening to my words. Now, if you have questions this time my dear friends.

Sarah: I was just thinking about Salumet saying we should slow down and nature itself slows down, perhaps this is partly to keep us in tune with nature. Is that so or is it just to regenerate ourselves?

I have brought you along the path in recent times in trying to understand the world of nature a little more closely, because in this way your attunement to all things will be so much greater. Yes, as the natural world disintegrates and regenerates, so too does the physical being at times need times of quietness and rejuvenation of Spirit. So, if you can find that same connection, then all to the betterment of your own unfoldment.

Paul: I was thinking about when we are sitting in our circles and we do not cross our legs, when people meditate though, they often cross their legs. Is it important at all? I know when we have been sitting in a circle we have been told not to cross our legs as it sort of stops the energy flowing a bit?

Yes, I understand. Perhaps we can discuss this a little more. I am aware of many rules and regulations which feature within your organizations and to which many of you uphold these rules. Let me say, most of them have come from well-meaning people who have not always listened to our words of wisdom. Communication can take place whether the legs or arms or whatever else you wish to cross will take place, but let us look to the other side of the mirror and say that you all know that you are more than the physical beings that you see before you, that you are energy, and of course that energy is cloaked by the physical being. So when people speak of energy being disrupted, then of course they are partially correct. I would say this to you my dear friend, that it is probably more satisfactory for the human being to sit with their legs and arms uncrossed, not because it helps with communication, but it is more comfortable for the human being. Can you see the difference? (Yes) If you were to cross your legs now, it would not cut off communication with me. Do you each understand, because there is much said in your world. (Agreed) I would say, the important issue is that you are attuned properly, that your thinking is correct and that your motive is good. Communication therefore will take place whenever those conditions are respected.

Sarah: Salumet, when I have had someone through me and I have had difficulty in getting that person to leave, I have been told to cross my arms. Is there a reason for that?

Yes, because it is a physical happening, which then allows your mind to return to the physical. That is why. There is too much spoken about physical and spiritual conditions. You might say, why therefore are we in dimmed light? That is slightly different, because I am using a physical body and for us who come that little further, it is more comfortable. But that is not to say it cannot happen in full light—of course it can. But we in our world are aware that the physical condition can sometimes be affected. Is this clear for you? (Yes)

Lilian: The lady you are using went to a meeting whereby she was lucky enough to see an Angel. She was surprised at the size of the wings of this Angel—now she has no idea that I am asking you this question—I wondered, can the wings vary from person-to-person, is it in our minds or is it the being that shows himself.

Yes, you know of course that the thought is all powerful and the thought can create much. After all, when you come to our world then all is thought. But you do have to remember that within our world there are beings who indeed are indeed beings who are different from the physical beings as you know them. These Angels have never trodden your earthly pathway and yes, they do show themselves with what you would call wings. These creations are but variations of light. You have not been told about Angels thus far—I have told you that we will discuss it further—but you can tell this instrument whom I am using, (Eileen) that the vision that she saw is not of her own thought pattern, but actually the being as he would be. I will of course, when we come to that topic explain to you why the beings known to you as Angels, would appear to have what you call wings. For now I would say that is enough for the lady to know.

Lilian: Yes, we will look forward to you telling us about the Angels. We were just curious and I think she was surprised at the size of the wings.

Why she should be surprised, I do not know, (Chuckles) but of course when each one of you returns to physical life, you tend to forget, may I say, what you have experienced in the physical in the spiritual sense. The spiritual and physical existence is so entirely different.

Lilian: Would I be right in thinking that we have had a visit from our old friend (Leslie) this evening?

Sarah: I thought that, too.

My dear friends, you should never be surprised at anyone who comes to you within these conditions. Many, many, many are attracted to you, but I would say to you that whilst I am using this instrument, those who would desire to speak with you are kept back may I say for a short time—but there are many. Do not focus on one being, because always there are many.

Lilian: Would they come to listen to your words as well as we do?

I of course am teaching many, many whilst I speak with you. Not only do they gather in our world to listen to many speakers, but they are curious as to what we try to teach the beings of this earthly plane. But why should you be surprised, my dear friends, the thought is ever expanding and just because I use an instrument who uses physical words, that does not detract from the energy of the thoughts. Do you understand? (Yes, thank you.)

Sarah: Last week we had a communicator through Sue and she said that at each one of our feet there was a child and she was explaining what the child was like and how the child was, but she said the child had never been on this Earth. I was curious why they should have a physical form if they had never been on this Earth and why they would wish this. Maybe they were just taking on this particular form to visit us, but it seemed curious to me why they should wish to do that.

Because when a Spirit takes on the physical garb, although that child does not walk the earthly plane, he has still chosen two people to be parents. When that child returns to our world, that interest is still there. Although they have gained in knowledge and that is all that they have needed to know, still the interest remains, because once that Spirit has decided to enter a new body, it is essential that they continue to grow in our world.

Sarah: So these are all children that have been conceived, but have not actually— (Yes) Ah, right, that makes sense, I hadn't realized that.

If the children had never been conceived, they would never return to this Earth plane. Is that clear for you? (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: There is in this country at the moment Siamese twins—two little girls—but one of the twins she has no heart and a few other organs and she is virtually living off the sister who has got these essential organs. Is that one Spirit?

It is one Spirit but with physical complications. Remember that when the Spirit enters at conception, that it is now in the hands of physical living. We know that these problems confuse and upset many of you on this earthly plane, but that one child is probably not here to be living as a human being, but the purpose of that malformation is necessary, although you may not understand why—but it is but one Spirit.

Lilian: So if they were separated and one continued to live, the other would be nothing?

Yes, there are many questions in your world we know confuse you, but all becomes clear when you return to our world. All I say to you my dear friends is when you have such confusion within your thinking, then send out the thought to have it made clearer to you and you will find the answers.

Lilian: That is something we forget. We must remember it more.

Always—and again I do not apologize for saying that your thought is the most powerful possession you have. Please use it in a wise way.

Sarah: If nobody else has a question, this is a very personal thing and I don't really know whether I should be asking you and you have probably already answered it by telling me to use my thought. My daughter is about to go on a trip and I have just heard that there is trouble in the place that she is going to go. I just wonder if you could make any comments to me?

You are a natural physical being, a mother of a child. That love and concern would be most natural for anyone. I would say to you only this: Look deep within your heart and know and understand that the children sent to you are only borrowed, that their life pathway leads them to places you may not always approve of, but it is their pathway. Think carefully that although there are many places within your world where there is much trouble, much anger, much devastation, you cannot stop another from living their life. Your children my dear friend, are of an age when they know their own thinking, is that not true? (Yes) I would say to you, you have no worries. Let her go. (Thank you.) But it is difficult, we know, we know and understand the deep bond of love, but do you fully understand, my dear friend, that these children as you call them are also Spirit. They have chosen their lives, their parents, not so much as I have told you because of the people, but the opportunities that will be given to them, and may I say that this is one of life's opportunities for this one. Perhaps I can say again to each one of you, my dear friends, if only you would use your thought wisely, if only you would look inwardly when one of life's crises comes to the fore, if only you would remember my words, life would hold no fear for you, because you would be seeing life with spiritual eyes. That my dear friends is my mission here with you that each one of you who listens to these words will grow and unfold spiritually to a degree that is unique to each one of you. After all, your stage of development is very individual, but we have a common bond. Each one of you seeks truth, each one of you lives truth, each one of you wishes to spread truth and yet each one of you is held back by fear. This is my hope for you all that we can erase that fear from your lives. It is not a small task, but one that needs to be searched out quietly and slowly, but eventually I hope that when your time comes to return home, you can say, I have learned much. For this I only can give thanks to that Great Creative Force, which has allowed me the opportunity to bring you a little more knowledge. For this I will be eternally grateful. (Thanks expressed) I know and feel your love, my dear friends, and I will always be amazed each time I come to you, to feel encompassed by it. I feel for this time that perhaps we have spoken enough, but remember my words, allow yourselves to recap on all that we have spoken about, allow yourself that regeneration of Spirit as we approach the winter of your time and let us work towards that rejuvenation of Spirit, in order that we can learn more on what I have to bring you in time to come. My blessings are with you all and now I will take my leave. (Thanks + farewells)

~23rd October 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I have begun this time more slowly, because the instrument has small problem with her throat and I have been attending to it. Perhaps my dear friends this is an opportune moment to tell you that from our world at this moment of time, there is coming to your world many, many great advances within your medical world. Many of your so-called diseases of the Earth plane you know full well to be activated by mankind himself, but also you know and understand that most of mankind is looking towards medical people for help. This is, of course, offered by the people known to you as doctors, but also you know that it comes through those known to us as healers. Many of your doctors have the healing gift and through these people we are now working from our world with them in order that mankind not only has spiritual health, but earthly health also. Because by now my dear friends, you would understand that until the Spirit is touched there can be no health problems solved. You know and understand my dear friends that disease is the dis-ease of all bodies, the earthly, the etheric and the spiritual, but as I have said, mankind in general relies upon earthly doctors for their so-called cures of disease. To this end we are working in order that bodily needs be satisfied, but also that the healers within your earthly world can create for many people the opportunity to grow and understand themselves as whole beings. What I would wish to say this time—and this also applies to the instrument I use at this moment—that it is good to give of oneself, indeed it is admirable to give of oneself to others—to give of the Spirit to the Spirit—but it is foolish to give of oneself and not to look after the Spirit and body of that same being. Do you understand what I say to you my dear friends? (Affirmed) It is admirable to give, of course, and that is what love is all about, but you must look after your own Spirit, your own development and only then can you give love and help to others. Not only are there many advances being made within the medical world—it will come to light soon in your world the many advances being made—but great strides also are being made in communication with all of your electrical equipments. I have broached this subject before I believe with you, but now we are beginning to see the results of our labour with mankind and there are many within your world who now have very good communication with others from our world.

Lilian: So would this be all over our planet?

Of course, there is no one place which has the attention more than any other. All races, all manner of people are finding that their use of equipment is being used in the best way that it can. It will become more widely known, but remember that I have told you so. There also comes from our world at this time, and there is a great surge of love towards this mission upon your Earth, and that is one of raising consciousness among all people on the Earth planet. I can hear you say, 'But has this not already taken place?' Of course it has, it is an on-going thing, but at this particular time in your consciousness, in your Earth consciousness, there is an upsurge of understanding, of great seeking of knowledge.

Lilian: I think perhaps especially in the younger people.

Yes, in all areas of living, in all people, in all of mankind on this planet. We are working on many areas of living. We are trying to achieve to be emissaries of that Great Divine Love, to bring to you understanding, reasoning, hope, all of these things which are necessary for the Spirit to evolve upon this planet.

Lilian: We are very privileged that you tell us these things before they come into fruition.

Yes. Many times we have attempted within your world to bring greater knowledge, many times have we attempted to bring mankind closer together, but always there is strife, there is unrest, there is this power struggle—man between man—but I can now say that we are beginning to make great strides upon your planet and although I can hear you say, 'But it seems very slow', in your time, yes I would probably agree with you my dear friends, but, as you know, time in our world means so little that these great strides being made now are happening quite quickly. Are there any questions anyone would ask of me this time?

Sara: Last night on television there was a programme about a lady who claims to live on light—on prana. Can you confirm whether this is possible or not, whether the lady is in fact genuine?

I understand what you say. Those of you who are clothed in earthly garb, have to survive with a physical body. In order for that Spirit to survive within that earthly body, the soul would have to use that body wisely and, although many people would claim to be able to survive on what you call 'life', I would say to you that it would be impossible, unless that soul has existed before and has come to this lifetime with a particular purpose in doing so. After all, your earthly body needs what you call water to survive. There are I would say, a very few masters in your world who could survive for some time, but not all of your earthly time without sustenance. Does that answer your question?

Sara: Yes, thank you.

What happens, if I may continue, that when the body is deprived of earthly food, earthly water, that is what is needed to sustain the body, the soul then retracts and you become aware—you are in a higher state of consciousness, and many people attempt this in your world. That is no bad thing of course, but the soul has to return to the earthly body to survive upon your earthly planet, therefore it is not wise to neglect the human body for too long. If, indeed, that lady you have mentioned has succeeded for so long, she risks the health of the bodily overcoat and she may find that her lifetime expires more quickly than indeed it should do.

George: The nature of time still keeps coming up. (Yes) We call it linear time that we experience on the physical Earth (Yes) and it is different in Spirit. Does this mean that when the soul requires further physical experience, that it is free to choose that experience from any part of Earth's history or does the soul need to take account of earthly time sequence?

No, not in the manner that you mean. Of course, the soul is much more aware of earthly time and all that happens upon your Earth. Remember that when you leave this world, all becomes much more clear to the soul, but they are not governed in the same way as the human being is upon this Earth. But the awareness of course is there and they can utilize it for their own means. Is that helpful to you? Remember the Spirit does not return to your linear time, it is part of it. Can you understand? I know we have not gone into time too deeply, because I feel my dear friends, it is a subject that very few can understand until you discard the human form. (Thank you.)

Lilian: So we should be content until we join Spirit, maybe.

I do not say content, of course it is helpful to question sometimes, but what I do say to you is that my explanation to you would be limited because of your understanding.

(Lilian then asked individuals if they had any more questions)

I have to say my dear friends that when I leave you that I oft times am quite amazed by your conversations, because you often seem to find the questions when I have left you! (Chuckles)

George: This relates to the elemental beings that you talked to us about and to our agriculture and gardening. Probably the most widespread fault we have is using chemicals to get rid of slugs. These seem to present a great problem. It may be that there is a problem, because we have upset the balance of nature. It seems very hard on the slug to treat it with chemicals. Is this a problem to the elemental folk? (Yes) Are we right to see this as a spiritual problem?

Yes, I understand the question. Yes mankind has interfered in all areas of what you term nature, but mankind is beginning to realize that it is far better to return to more natural ways. Yes, the elementals, as you have said, would find the use of chemicals abhorrent. You will find the beauty in nature in areas where there are not chemicals used, where mankind has had little to do with it. Therefore that is why, mountains, woodlands, streams are much more beautiful places and where you are much more likely to encounter the elementals. So, I would say to you my dear friend, that until mankind realizes— because after all this planet has been provided with—how can I say to you—any problems that arise also has a cure—not only with mankind, but with nature. It takes but a little thought on the part of the human being, it takes much prayer and thought for those who govern your countries, to understand the seriousness of all that they allow to happen. That is why it is imperative my dear friends, that each one of you in your quest for knowledge and truth, seeks thoughts for all of this planet in order that only good emerges.

George: And as you say, the growing awareness is so very important.

Spiritual awareness is indeed what is necessary for all to be turned completely around, for man to understand his place in the scheme of life, in order that harmony returns not only to mankind, but to all natural things.

Lilian: There is just one other person who would perhaps like to come as a guest for one evening—my daughter-in-law. Would that be alright to invite her along sometime?

If, as I have said, all are happy with invited guests, then I see no reason. If I were to find any reason why, then I will tell you, but no, I am happy to welcome anyone who has genuine interest or knowledge or seeks truth.

Sara: Could I ask a question about auras? (Yes) It is about the main colours in Graham's (Sara's husband) and my own auras. I have never been told in this group and I would be interested if you don't mind.

I will listen to your question, yes.

Sara: It is really just to ask what are the main colours of our auras?

I have spoken about auras before and you do not have static colour within the aura. You have to understand that aura changes. It is but a light that reflects many aspects of your being. It contains your spiritual growth, it contains your medical health, it contains your emotional state; therefore there can be no true colours which remain at all times. This again has to be understood by people who deal with the aura. It is a reflection of the spiritual being at any one given time.

Sara: Because there are lots of books written by people who say that there are one or two major life colours (Yes) and I was a little unsure about that.

Yes. The only life colour which would be given I suppose, would be that of spiritual growth, but again, being human beings, being subject to emotional changes, will alter those colours. So be careful with those who give you readings, unless they fully understand the true and real nature of the aura. Is that helpful to you?

Sara: Yes, that is very helpful, thank you. So we can be any colour?

It changes from moment to moment. It would apply only to the time of what you call the reading. It is not a lifetime of colour. I would suggest perhaps that they are helpful in as much as they can show any problem areas within your living and it would perhaps give you the opportunity to grow from that.

Graham: Could I ask a question about auras? I don't really understand the nature of the light associated with an aura. Is it a physical light or is it some other type of light?

It is a spiritual light, but it can be seen usually by spiritual consciousness. All physical things have an aura, all living things, but it is spiritual light which is seen.

Graham: There was a photograph taken when we went to a reading once and that was very interesting, but again I wondered how that would work, because I guessed that it might be spiritual light and how a camera would take a photograph that is spiritual. Is this possible?

Of course, yes. Physical can capture the spiritual light. It has happened many times with cameras, where spiritual beings are seen. Remember all things are energy and perhaps then the understanding is made a little easier for you—but the light is spiritual. (Thank you.)

I feel for this time we have spoken enough and that I will withdraw from you, leaving you once more with my great love, and until we come together once more, I say to you all my dear friends, seek out that truth within yourselves, know that all things are possible with you and that I am always close by. (Thanks + farewells)

~13th November 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Thank you my dear friends for the love which you bring to us this time. I feel amongst you jubilation and some despondency. Throughout this time we will work with each one of you individually, in order that each one is uplifted in the way which is necessary to them. I know some of you have pondered the words I gave to you about the slowing down of nature in your surroundings and my suggestions to you that you try to accomplish something similar. Have any of you questions for me regarding what we have spoken about?

Lilian: I have certainly thought about it and thought what a sensible idea.

But do you fully understand why?

Lilian: Not really. Does anyone understand why?

Mark: Only superficial things like the weather is colder, there is less sunlight and we get less energy from there. It looks like there is less vibrancy in nature: the leaves are dropping from the trees and rotting and we haven't got quite such vibrant green around and colours from flowers, so there is a bit less upliftment from scenery perhaps.

Yes and do you remember my words about why this happens that in disintegrating it is the step towards rejuvenation? Can any of you see this process from a spiritual viewpoint?

Sara: Yes, I see it in our lives and I see it in the lives of others that the old has to fall away for the new growth to come through. I see it in nature and I see it in the changes in our lives.

Yes. Can you also see the purpose of why I should ask you to find that common bond between yourselves and what you term nature? Yes, you have the understanding of the physical means and the physical ageing of the body, but cannot you see the correlation between human and nature, in as much as each is part of the other? Can any one of you begin to understand?

Mark: I see now that you begin to make a renewed effort in spring to come out of the slumber of winter together with the flowers pushing up, I can see the parallel there. And then you feel in a summer flow almost, your energy is higher and you feel lighter and you do feel more vibrant in a way.

Yes, and why should this be, but only that the Spirit has been uplifted and rested. But again because mankind has freewill, he is sometimes afraid to let go and slow down in order that the Spirit be rekindled may I say. What I wish you to understand my dear friend, is this from the spiritual viewpoint: Physical aspect you fully understand, but what I would wish for you is that now you begin to see yourselves, to elevate yourselves above all things physical and become part of what you term nature. Only in this way will your understanding grow, will your understanding be such that you become part of the whole. Do you understand? I do not feel that you do, but perhaps if it is a little difficult, I will return to this topic at another stage.

Sarah: It is a blending of us and nature isn't it?

Yes! You may well say I understand, I know what it is about, but until you come to the state of blending as you say, you will not fully understand how nature truly works within your own world. After all, are you not part of this human nature? Why then does humankind find it so difficult to become of the whole? This my dear friends is what I would ask you now at this stage of your awareness, to take on board and to consider, each one of you in your own individual way, to discover what you can give and what you can receive. This is a spiritual task for you all my dear friends and as we come to this time of slowing down within your world, I ask you to take hold of your thinking and discover for yourselves what you are about at this special time of raised consciousness.

George: I have read about people in the Buddhist philosophy who would sit beneath a tree and think about a plant or a bud and they would almost become that bud. Their consciousness would seem to take on the consciousness of the plant.

That is precisely what I would wish for you all to achieve. When awareness is such, then you are part of the tree, you have the understanding of the tree, of the flower, of the bud. It takes much of your time, of your thinking, of your understanding to reach these stages of development, but my dear friends you have that power within yourselves, but only you have that within you to do these things. I can try to encourage, to uplift and to help you, but if you do not use that freewill, then you become static in your growth and this we do not wish for you. Think carefully my dear friends. I have been leading you up to this moment if you like, by speaking to you about the nature beings. There was a purpose for those discussions in order that each one of you could become a little more aware about of who and what you are.

Lilian: So it would help us to be in the quiet places where there are trees and water, would it?

Of course any time spent in quietness can only enhance your awareness. It is the way forward for humankind, until they reach such a state as the gentleman has just discussed. It is but practise, dedication and understanding. Does anyone have questions, please?

Lilian: I went for a walk the other day with the water, trees and the air, and I was thinking of these creatures, but I didn't see any I must say, but I was aware that they must be there.

Yes, any awareness can only be good for the Spirit, but it is all too easy sometimes when we have discussed these many things for each one of you to return to your earthly lives and forget what has been spoken to you. Forgive me my dear friends if I continue to remind you, but can you see that all of these creations and nature beings and yourself belong to one energy? (Yes) All that is needed is for the knowledge and the understanding and the utilization of that understanding to help you forward in your own growth. You understand? I think we will leave it here for this time, but I have promised you that I will speak to you about Angels, but I feel that perhaps until our new year in your world, that will be the time to speak further about this topic. I would like you my dear friends to consider what we have spoken about at this time. So, if you have any questions about anything other than what we have discussed, I am willing to answer them for you.

Sarah: When you said that we humans made the Earth because we needed it, when it was made was it perfect and then have we gone astray or was it slightly imperfect in the beginning and we are trying to make it perfect. I don't quite understand.

Yes, let me say this to you, that universal laws are always perfect in their planning—that is the first thing you must understand. But of course you know that this planet is an imperfect world, and so it was meant to be, because those Spirits who come to the lifetimes upon this planet, do so for growth—that is why. But the plan for this planet was perfect. So, yes, the answer is both perfect and imperfect. Does that make sense to you?

Sarah: Yes, the plan was perfect, but in actual fact it did not turn out to be perfect.

Yes—no, no, no, no, no, your understanding is wrong. Natural law is always perfect, but this planet was provided for humankind with all its imperfections in order for the Spirit to grow. That is why mankind was given freewill in order that it be used to create perfection. Do you understand? (Yes) But remember all universal law is perfect.

Sarah: So the animals that are on the Earth, they are also here to learn, but they seem to be more perfect than we are. Is that correct?

Do you know this?

Sarah: No, but I just feel that their life is more ordered—I do see some things in nature with the animals that perhaps I don't think is very good, for example, some monkeys eat other monkeys, but generally they seem to be more ordered and they don't seem to have such a nasty streak in them as some of us, perhaps. Yes, mankind has always been puzzled by the happenings within this planet—that is not for them to judge. All has been planned and of course mankind over time has lost his spiritual attributes to a great degree and has created upon this planet much that should not have happened. These things have happened because mankind has freewill. The animal kingdom in all its stages also is evolving. This is a planet for evolving, this is a planet of learning, this is a planet that because of man's thinking, has become one of much disruption and disease, regrets and all other human failings. That is not to say that the universal plan for this planet was wrong, only that humankind has abused those laws. But all works well. Mankind has to learn and is learning at a very fast rate, that he is responsible for the upkeep of this earthly planet—that knowledge is becoming more widely known. But yes, it is an imperfect place, but I would say to you this my dear friend, it is not for you to judge. As I have said to you so often, you do not see the wider scheme of life. I know that it is difficult to understand, but so often my dear friends you torture yourselves with many things that you cannot change. And let me reiterate for you that the best you can do is to send your thoughts for good; in that way not only are you growing, but you are helping all of mankind. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmed)

Graham: Is it possible to encourage plants and trees to grow by communicating or attempting to communicate with them. We used to have a cherry tree in our garden and our neighbour, who was a dear old lady, used to communicate and talk to that tree every day; she felt she had a relationship with that tree and the tree grew better as a result of this. Is this true?

Why—you are continuing with what we have been discussing. That dear lady, as you call her, had an awareness that the tree would blossom from the love that she gave to it. If she were to go one step further she would be part of the tree and the tree would blossom as she herself would. It is an exchange of energy and love. So therefore, of course plants, animals and all of vegetable life respond to love. That is your key word for all of living, Love.

Graham: Yes, very interesting to hear you say that, thank you.

Sara: A lady I know who is advanced in years was surprised and delighted to find that she had a Spirit friend talking to her and helping her in practical ways. Is this quite unusual?

Let me say this to you, that as we have discussed before, children are aware of what you call spiritual friends, as are all mediums and those who give of their selves and their time. In some individuals who get to what you call earthly elderly age, they are reaching out to Spirit life, if you like. They are closer to our world than they are at times to this Earth. Therefore the opportunity is open to those who stand close by and who probably have been with her for many of her earthly years, but she would have been unaware of them. I would say to you that this lady has now reached the stage where her awareness is open, where her vision is clearer and therefore contact is easier. I would say to you that she is now probably closer to our world than your own. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: Paul, do you have any questions about your travels?

Paul: No, not at the moment, thanks.

He needs no questions. He knows we travel with him. (Thank you.)

Sarah: You were talking about our medical advances and there was a programme on the TV recently talking about such advances. There was a programme about the Icelandic people who can trace their ancestors right back to the Vikings. Many suffer from cancer and they can trace back generations showing the deformed gene they all have. You said to us that we create the diseases we have in past lives or in our own life. If people come back with a defective gene, do we trigger off the problem with the disease whilst we are here by what we are doing now and can these people avert getting cancer even though they have a deformed gene by the way they are living today?

Yes, I understand your question. Yes, let me say this to you: In situations as you have discussed, these are of course karmic debts; you all understand that term I know. But of course you know that the power of thought that is given to each one of you when you come into this incarnation, is entirely your own responsibility. Therefore I would say this to you, that although this group of people have come to this lifetime with what you call a deformed gene and I would call a spiritual debt, people have the ability to change their lives and rid themselves of spiritual debt. That would explain why not every single one of them would trigger off the disease. The way they live their life will dictate whether that disease becomes ripe and vigorous, or whether it can be changed. Let me say to you my dear friends, that each one of you has the ability to change the very cells within your body. It is not easy I know, but you have the power each one of you, to change it.

Sarah: And would that mean that if we come with a spiritual debt we can rid the soul of that debt in this lifetime?

Of course, but again it belongs to you and to you alone, but with the help of the many you call healers, who are here to help and to advise you and to bring to you that touch of spiritual light, which is needed for you to dispel that spiritual debt.

Sarah: So that would be probably one of the reasons why they would come back, to rid themselves of that spiritual debt?

Yes, as a people they would have chosen that life. Is that helpful?

Sarah: Yes, thank you very much.

I think for this time my dear friends, there is much for you to consider. I thank you for inviting me into your lives. I hope that I have given you some new food for thought, as you say. (Affirmed + thanks) I leave you now my dear friends in the knowledge that each one of you will leave here feeling a little more uplifted and I hope with a little more purpose in your lives, a little more understanding of all that surrounds you. (Thanks + farewells)

~20th November 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends, we extend warm welcome to those who come to us for the first time. They are not unaware of spiritual matters, therefore I can speak with you my dear friends in a manner fitting to this group. I would like to say this time that within this planet many things are happening, many thought structures are taking place within your world. I have spoken to you recently about the world of nature which is around you, we have discussed the dying down and the rejuvenation of all manner of things. I would like to say this to you my dear friends, that within your world at this time, the awareness which is among you, the awareness of all that surrounds you, the awareness of your own nature is coming to the fore. You will say, I can hear, 'But why do we have so much destruction, devastation in our lives?' Remember my words, that before there is rejuvenation, there is always a dying down. So too, this applies to humankind, and I can tell you my dear friends that humankind is beginning to see with those spiritual eyes and not with physical and materialistic ones. I have told you that many in your world will benefit from new medical knowledge, which of course you know originates in our world. So, too, will new knowledge extend throughout this planet, in order that mankind can benefit from all that he is given. There are many with you upon this Earth plane, who have come to uplift, to help and to restore harmony to this planet. They are not without difficulties, of course, and we cannot change the power of your thinking in such a short space of time, but I have told you, and I will reiterate again for you, that this time mankind cannot ignore truth. He is beginning to understand, he is beginning to see that you are part of the whole. You are not separated from the rest of all of Creation. Until that is fully understood, we will always have what you call disasters upon this Earth plane. I do not wish to give new information this time, I will wait until we are gathered in with all of those who come to us on a regular basis. So therefore I feel it may be apt this time, to allow you all to ask of me those questions that you may have, questions as you always know of a philosophical nature, because I will just say gently to those who come to us this evening, that my purpose here with you is not to answer on any personal level, because there are many within your world who are here for just such a reason as that. Therefore my dear friends, if you would like to discuss anything this time, let us begin.

Peter: Is it possible to ask a question on healing, healing energies. (Yes) Why is that those with mental illnesses—it always seems harder to improve the situation with people who have mental illnesses than it is with more physical disability. I can understand energies vary and are used for various levels within the being of a person, but it always seems to me that when I try to improve a situation as a mental illness that I am up against the same thing—it's just to 'calm the mind', which seems to be as far as I can go. If there is a chemical imbalance and there is a shortage of a certain chemical, I can appreciate that it may be difficult to make up that through the healing or the healing energies, but why is it that we can't make any lasting improvements where mental illness is concerned?

Yes, I understand your question. Firstly let me say my dear friend that all of you that are used for healing, we say to you a large 'thank you', because without your help we would be less than helpful within your world, although you know full well that the touch is not necessary for healing to take place. Let me just say this to you: you must understand that healing comes from our world—it is Spirit to Spirit to Spirit. Therefore you must not become too concerned with the physical condition. What you do not understand fully is that it is the Spirit which is being helped—you know this of course. (Yes) Yes, it is not always possible for physical healing as you would say, to take place, until the Spirit has been touched. That is the object of healing, you understand this? (Yes) You must also remember, that although you are the channel for any healing, you are not responsible for the outcome. Remember also that the person who comes to you, is in fact the one who has the greatest responsibility. Therefore when it comes to what you call mental blockages, these people sometimes come to this life, knowing exactly what they need to achieve. Therefore it is paramount that you encourage whoever comes to you with any mental blockages, encourage them to understand fully what they are about. You, my dear friend can only be used as the channel, and the best that you can do is to do your best with those who work with you. Do not try to judge why one will have healing and why one will not.

Peter: No, I don't do that, I was just concerned that with people with mental illnesses, you cannot talk to them in the same way as obviously you would to someone who is compos mentis, so therefore regarding anything that is philosophical, which would help in a spiritual way would be wasted. It is just that with the healing energies, can they adjust the mental imbalance or imbalance of chemicals that are causing it?

Of course, because you see within our world our knowledge is fuller and greater. Therefore you cannot judge what is taking place within that being. Remember because you do not see the outward signs of healing, that does not mean that the Spirit is not touched. This is the difficulty that humankind has with healing. You must give of yourself, you must give love, you must allow those influences from our world to work through you; you cannot do better than that. I would say to you this my dear friend, that those who work with you (Slight pause)—yes, those who work with you, realize that there is a little difficulty when it comes to patients of this type. May I kindly say to you—and I do not say this unkindly—but the fault lies within yourself. Look inwards and then you will begin to understand. Do you understand what I say to you?

Peter: Yes I do, I know what you mean. Thank you.

Think, go inwards and you will find the answers, but I would say this to you my dear friend, you cannot alter what is meant to be. I know when those of you that are used for the healing energy, you find it difficult when those who come to you do not respond quickly. But let me say only this to you my dear friend, that only those who are meant to come to you will, and do you not see that those who come to you, come not to you for their benefit just, but also for your own soul's growth. (Yes) Can you see this? There is always a deeper purpose to all things. Does that satisfy you my dear friend?

Peter: Yes, I think I overlook things in my enthusiasm to try to improve the situation and one forgets...

Yes, you feel it deeply I know, but what you must do is to begin to look at it from the wider viewpoint. Look upon it as a spiritual problem and not one of the material world and this I know you can do. (Thank you.)

Graham: I think this is probably something you've touched on before and it was about personality and how children from the same parents can be so very different. I understand that part of each person's soul is coming through into the physical body, but the personality we have, is this something that is part of our soul or is it something that is engineered to help us with our life path and we have a particular personality to help us fulfil just our life path, so it is an artificial thing that is set up?

Yes, I understand. When you speak of personality, personality I would suggest belongs to the physical. Spirit comes to this world—as you know, it has chosen the pathway that it intends to take, not because of the people that it will be surrounded by, but because of the conditions which can be made for that lifetime. You understand? But when the Spirit joins forces with the two other human beings, then that personality is formed from the beginning in the material sense. What I think you mean, is does the Spirit bring with it anything from our world and of course the answer is yes. But personality I believe belongs to this world. Many factors form and kneed that Spirit in the human form. After all, you are both Spirit and you are human; there has to be a balance. But of course that Spirit brings with it many aspects of spiritual life, any memories which help to form what you call personality, but which in fact is not to the forefront of that human being's life to begin with. But many aspects of Spirit come forward as that person grows in knowledge and understanding. Do you understand? (Yes) There is no one straightforward answer to this—many factors are important. (Thank you.)

Paul: I had a question about animals that become extinct. Is it possible for any to be recreated?

No, you cannot change the scheme of life. If animals have become extinct upon this planet, there has been a good reason for it. We might say it has been the interference of mankind, but there is plan, there is a life plan for all of living and if these animals have become extinct, then there is no reason for them to return. This is a difficult subject for you to understand I believe, because we know that mankind has interfered so much within your world. But what you must try to understand is that these thing would not occur if the plan was not perfect in a way in allowing it to happen. Can you understand this my dear friend? It is difficult I know, but what would be the purpose in allowing an animal to return to this world once all signs and life of it have been extinguished?

Paul: Yeah, I think I understand. It is having faith in the perfect plan.

The perfect plan and after all it is part of this earthly world's evolution. Remember too that this planet has evolution and the life structure of it cannot be altered. Man can interfere, man can change, but it cannot change the overall plan of evolution. Does this make sense to you? (Yes) I know my dear friends that many of the things I tell you are difficult to understand or accept, but that is my purpose in trying to help you to accept and understand these things.

Jane: Can I approach the question of global warming, which I am sure concerns everyone in this room and is that going to be our pathway in the evolution of things that you have just described. Is this planet going to destroy itself and can we intervene as governments around this world anticipate they will have to do?

I will speak briefly to you my dear friend. This has been discussed at some length with those of us who meet. Yes, mankind has interfered in this world on this planet, but as I have had said earlier, there is a new awakening and mankind is now at this moment in this Earth's evolution, aware of the danger and the damage which they have created. Mankind, I can tell you categorically, will not destroy this planet, will not destroy this planet. Mankind has reached the point, when he is aware and beginning to understand, with the help of all of you and many people like you, who give of their time, their thoughts, to help this planet to a new beginning. All is known; all always has been, always will be. This aspect of time is a subject which mankind finds most difficult to understand, but I can tell you, all of you, that mankind does not have the power of destruction over all of this planet. (Thank you.) Do we have more questions, please?

Peter: One of the things I have asked Spirit in the past, was whether there was destruction on a very large scale way back in time. There are various stories that have cropped up relating to floods and fire, and maybe atomic, I don't know. I was given to understand that there was such a thing, whether it was destroying the whole planet was not discussed, but whole-scale destruction did take place except for perhaps a few people who started up again or kept the race going.

Yes, let me say this to you. Much has been spoken about this planet, about destruction, about rejuvenation and many, many things. What you must understand is that mankind in past times has been destructive, we cannot deny that. We cannot deny, as the lady has previously said, about what you Earth beings call global warming; all of these things takes place. But what you must also consider, and it is just as important, is that this planet has a life-plan also, that the planet is evolving, that there will be natural disasters, not attributed to mankind, but to the evolution of the planet. You know I am sure my dear friend, the power of what you call nature and its forces. There will always be what mankind terms disaster and which my dear friends and I have discussed—who is to say what is a disaster? Who knows the purpose behind all life? Only those with extended knowledge in our world can know the full scale of what is happening within your planet. You speak of a small number of people who continued within this world, after so many disasters I believe this is what you said; if those disasters happened, then I would say to you my dear friend, that was part of the evolution of this planet.

Peter: So it is possible if there was such a thing then, it wasn't created by man, it could have been a natural happening or phenomenon?

Yes, but you have to accept that mankind has been destructive in his thinking. I am not saying that mankind did not play a part—of course he has, and throughout the whole existence of this planet there have been many changes—the extinction of many of the animals as the gentleman has said, has been down to forces beyond mankind's control, but all works towards the evolution of this planet. What mankind has to realize is that he is but a small part of this Earth. Forces of nature must play their part as does mankind. Again I would say to you, when you think my dear friends about these many matters, try to see it from a spiritual point of view. Do not view these things from the thinking, the human thinking of the human being, because then you become lost in the many aspects of earthly living, which will only confuse you. I would suggest again my dear friend, to continue to ask those who come close to you, to give you some explanation if you are unclear. But I will say to you this as I have told my dear friends here, that in accordance to the growth of Spirit, that is the information you will be given. You must know also that there are many in the Spirit world, who have less spiritual knowledge than you would do yourself, therefore what you must try to know and understand is that there are many degrees of knowledge and understanding. That is why it would seem so many pieces of advice given, which seem to contradict. You must remember that who brings you the information can only give you the knowledge that they have gained. But again I say to you, my dear friend, look inward, know and understanding what comes from within.

Peter: Yes, I realize that. Over the many years the awareness increases (Yes) alongside with the knowledge, but I get to the point sometimes—should I be asking questions on such deep philosophy? Is it going to do me any good or can I help anyone else with it? I think, as you said, according to the need really, therefore one should absorb the knowledge. If I told people about things that happened millions of years ago it wouldn't help them to sort out the emotional problem that they have today, for instance.

No, but the knowledge would be for own good. There is no doubt that as awareness grows, and we are well aware of it within this room, that the more that is given, the more you need to understand, that each seed that is sown produces another seed of doubt, or a seed of knowledge to be gained. But yes, awareness grows—it should never stay at one point, because whilst you are upon this earthly plane, your knowledge, may I say in all kindness, is very limited. Therefore, the more knowledge you can gain, the more your understanding can grow, the more you listen to those who come close to you, then the greater that Spirit will shine forth and the more that people will be attracted to you and then you can extend that knowledge that you have to others. Only, my dear friends, when you understand yourselves, can you begin to understand others. This I have told you many times and I have told you also, as many of you here know and understand, that what I try to teach and bring to you is the power of your own thinking, the Power of Thought is what is the most powerful asset you have, because Thought belongs to Spirit. You all understand this, don't you? (Agreed) If there are no more questions this time, I will leave you and allow any others who wish to speak to come to you. I say to you my dear friends, I leave you with my love. I ask that each one of you have upliftment in your lives that each one of you goes forward in your understanding and with great love. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sue, commenting on the energies in the room and how the new guests had added well to the mix and that they were very welcome to sit in the circle again if they wished to do so.

~4th December 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time let us begin by giving thanks to that Divine Energy for this union. For this coming together this time we ask for upliftment in our daily living in order that we continue with the work and words which are given to each one of you. I feel my dear friends that each one of you in your own way is in need of some upliftment at this time. So I say to you that, as you leave us this time, you will feel the benefit of our combined love. (Thanks expressed) We are approaching the season of goodwill within your world and I have spoken to you recently of the slowing down process, which affects all of your planet, especially in parts of the planet which you call your winter times. I have explained to you that these times are of importance to you all in order that there can be rejuvenation of the Spirit within all things. I say to you my dear friends, the time is approaching when I also must take leave from you for just a short time, in order that we may also find upliftment and rejuvenation of Spirit.

Lilian: Yes we understand.

We too gather within our world at these festival times and we do have the same counter-parts as in your world, in order that each of us can return to our own place, in order to record and to learn and to discuss what we have achieved and what we have not. Therefore, it is not a time of just withdrawing from you; there is a purpose. I will say this to you my dear friends: I will come to you one more time before I withdraw for a few of your meetings.

Lilian: Yes, we do understand.

I know you understand that communication with you entails many complicated issues—much lowering of consciousness and vibration. It is good that those of us who communicate with you upon this Earth on a regular basis, it is important that we return at least in part to that vibration to which we belong.

Again, because we are few in number, perhaps we will give of this time to discussion.

Sara: Can I ask about bullying with children. Sometimes I am not sure what to advise children when they are being bullied. Is it good to tell them to send loving thoughts for one thing? Can you advise?

Yes, my dear friend, let me say this to you. Always you are a little afraid of physical happenings within your world—that is because you are most sensitive and the more you become aware of our world and all that it holds, the more sensitive you become to the happenings in the physical realms. When you speak of loving thoughts, I hope that I have taught each one of you that loving thoughts are part of your makeup, are part of your creation. Therefore to teach children these things should not require much thinking. Every child from the age of understanding should be taught about the power of their thinking. They too can create for themselves much good or much sadness within their lives by the way of their thinking. But let me also say this to you my dear friend, you cannot protect your children from life. They must experience all of those experiences of life, in order for them to grow. And although as parents you find it difficult to stand back, you must do so. Unless you see any danger to that child, you must allow the child to evolve in his or her own ways. I know this is difficult to accept, but it is a failing on the part of the human being. Remember what I have told you: you cannot interfere in another's life. You can guide, you can help, you can uplift and most of all you can encourage and you can listen.

Sara: Yes, thank you that answers the question.

But encouragement to give of oneself should be encouraged, especially in the thinking. You know full well my dear friend that all powerful thoughts never fall by the wayside. This applies to the youngest of children, until such times you depart from this world. I would say to you, if you wish to help this child that you speak of, then you must encourage her not to be strong physically, not to be hurtful with words, because that is not the correct pathway, but to become stronger from within, to begin to know from inside their own strength and, after all, even children have that knowledge from within of what is right for them.

Sara: Yes, I think she is strong in Spirit, because I think she has a very strong sense of what is right, but she suffers sometimes.

Nothing that is achieved cannot be achieved without some suffering. I hope each one of you understands this, that to achieve greatness of Spirit, you must have suffered to some degree along life's pathway. I hope you understand this my dear friends. (Affirmed) So I say only to listen quietly, to help her if she asks you, but to give her the knowledge that she is strong from within. When that knowledge is gained, then it is seen from the physical aspect and she will be known by her light and her strength. She is capable of understanding.

Sara: Yes, thank you very much, that has clarified what I felt—

Be guided always, not only towards children, but in everyday living, be guided from within and you will find the way and the correct answers to your questions.

Mark: I read in a newspaper about an experienced pilot who was flying in an area known as the Bermuda Triangle and apparently he looked out of his window and he was not where he was meant to be—he was miles off course and he looked at his computer readings and they showed that he was flying at something like 2,200 feet and somehow he had got over a mountain range that was 3,000 feet high. I think the suggestion was that he had entered this special zone and he had somehow entered a field where the normal laws of physics that govern this planet—gravity and various things, had apparently disappeared and he had appeared in another area. I wonder if you could shed light on that?

Yes, there are in this earthly planet many areas where mankind would say it goes against the grain of understanding. This applies not only to this planet, but to many, many, many others. We enter into the realm of time, my dear friend, the subject which I have thus far discussed little with you, because I have always felt that your understanding is not great enough as of yet. I would say to you that yes, there is a time 'warp', I believe you would say, in many areas of this planet. Yes, I am aware, as are many others, that these experiences are baffling to many.

Mark: If you were looking at that plane as it entered that zone, whether the plane to your eyes, would just disappear.

To your eyes it would disappear, because it has entered another dimension of time. To our eyes it is a natural occurrence, it happens at all times. It is the ignorance of mankind about the times zones and the dimension of time.

Mark: And in an instant that plane suddenly is somewhere else?

Yes, it is another dimension of time, it is not unusual from our side of life. The understanding is not always understood by many here, but it is a time dimension not as yet fully understood by people upon the planet.

Mark: And I would guess that those 'zones', whatever you call them—the people who know and the energies that know how to use them can do their space travel and get to all kinds of places just like that. Yes, the understanding of time dimension is a difficult one for you, but yes, as I have said, there are many areas in your world which hold these dimensions of time. It is not unusual, after all, how do you suppose the future is seen if it is not the entering of another time dimension? It is a little the same I would say to you, but slightly used differently by those who have the awareness and consciousness of seeing what is ahead. After all it has happened if you can see the future. Do you agree? (Agreed) It is just travelling to another dimension, whether it be with the spiritual mind, or whether physically travelling as you have said, into the time dimension which is encompassed within your planet. There are many, many of them, but as of yet little is known about them.

Mark: I understand that quite a lot of people have got lost in them, (Yes) so I would guess that they are not on their life path, that they weren't meant to be there and I wonder what happens to them?

You should not make assumptions my dear friend. Who are you to say that it was not their life path? You cannot say it was something that was not meant to happen; perhaps for them that was their exit from this way of life. It does not mean my dear friends that you go into another time dimension and disappear forever. There are many in this would who would be able to tell you that they have entered another time zone and have returned to tell the tale. Therefore I say to you my dear friend, do not make assumptions, do not judge. Is that helpful to you? (Yes) The experience of time travel, time zones and time dimensions—call it what you will, is a very difficult subject for us in our world to try to explain to you, because your understanding as of yet is not great enough, but it is something that causes great interest within your world and many are being inspired to understand and to take aboard all of the knowledge that is being offered to them.

Sarah: My mother once saw something that she saw happen in the morning, but in fact the occurrence did not take place until the afternoon. So she had actually entered a different time zone. (Yes) So could she enter this zone at any time if she were so able to? Why should she just have that one situation? Was she in an area with a different time zone or is she capable of doing it herself with a little more knowledge?

Yes, there is a difference between entering a time zone physically as the pilot that the gentleman spoke about, and entering a time dimension through the mind—that is the Spirit coming to the fore. Not only can you move forward, but you can go backwards in time. There are many who could tell you of this type of situation. Many people are afraid to speak of these things, because they are ridiculed many times, or they are afraid that their own sanity is at stake, but in cases such as you speak my dear friend, that is the mind of the Spirit, which at any particular time can be to the forefront of consciousness, that is all. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Last week, through the other medium, Sue, someone came through and said that this group that meets here on a Monday and the group that she's met in Reading would be connected somehow. I wonder if you could tell us how they could be connected. It was the group that Peter came from.

I am not aware of connection between these two groups. Let me say if the communicator felt some connection between these two groups, so be it, but I say to you my dear friend, I do not see the connection in any way spiritually, other than an interest in what each other does.

Lilian: I must say I didn't feel there was going to be a connection.

I cannot say more than that. That is what I know and feel. (Thank you.)

Sara: I am not sure if the subject has come up before, but I wondered if you could talk a little about homosexuality and sex changes. I am just wondering, these are obviously a part of our life and we love and accept all people. Is it part of their intended life plan, to have to change their sex? I know it is only a physical happening.

Yes, I have spoken on the subject before, but I will speak briefly this time. Yes, we have discussed why there should be this, shall we say maladjustment within the person, who feels that they are perhaps trapped in a body sometimes of the wrong sex. When you talk of homosexuality, I believe you call it, there are many reasons. Sometimes the Spirit is anxious to return to this planet for whatever purpose and will enter a physical body a little too soon. Do you understand what I say? (Affirmed) And this therefore causes some few problems within the physical makeup of that Spirit. There is confusion and the physical outcome can create many problems for them. But once that Spirit has entered the physical creation, then freewill takes over. There is no one really explanation to give you, there are many, but these people have suffered at the hands of mankind, when, after all, what is important, but that you all do love one another and provided there is no harm done to each other, then I would say to you my dear friends, accept with love all human beings, because they also are a spark of the Divine Energy and who are you to judge? (Agreed) Again we come to judgement and you must try my friends never to judge another, because you do not see the full picture of creation.

Mark: Would you say though that it's not right to say there's a genetic homosexual, as some people do try to say?

I would say that genetics has little to do with it, but I know and understand there is much dispute within your world. All I can say to you my dear friend, is that from the spiritual standpoint, it is an urgency of Spirit to be recreated into the physical, which creates this problem. Do you understand? (Affirmed) After all, I believe if you were to speak to a person of this nature, what would come mostly to the fore, would be the emotional makeup, rather than the physical makeup. Do you agree? (Agreed)

Lilian: At the end of the day, it's the spiritual side that's the important part.

Of course. To give love to others is of more importance. After all, there are many types of human being that tread this planet—many types of people. And after all, gender is but a small part of the physical makeup. (Lilian asks the group if there are any more questions, which there are not)

I will take my leave of you my dear friends. I thank you again for your love and your welcome, which as always I feel so strongly. I will withdraw and work quietly with this one (Eileen) for a short time.

Therefore I will leave it with you to see what else develops. (Thanks + farewells)

~11th December 2000~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to begin this time my dear friends—that also includes those who are absent from us this time: I would like to give thanks to that great Divine Spirit for the many times we have come together in this one of your earthly years, which is slowly coming to a close. We give thanks for the joining together of those hearts, of those minds, of those Spirits, who have sought after knowledge and truth.

My dear friends to you I thank you for the love and the welcome that has been extended to me each time we meet. I will return home for a short time, in order that I can recoup of spiritual energy, in order that I may return to you—if you will allow me to—(Strong agreement) in order that we can continue with any teaching of new knowledge, which you can find acceptable.

Lilian: Thank you for coming as regularly as you do and for the love that you bring and upliftment.

Without you I could not do the work that I do. Therefore I say to you, my dear friends, my thanks goes out to each one of you. Although there are some of you who are not aware of those who come close to you, let me say that they also thank you for your patience, your quiet gratitude and your willingness to go forward with truth. You go forward fearlessly and each one of you has expressed to many within your world, of the truth that you have learned. At this moment in time, I am asked to thank the gentleman who has completed many words in book form. We know how much time, how much effort this has been for him and those from my world have asked me to extend their many thanks to him.

George: Wonderful! Thank you very much. I think it is I who should be doing the thanking, because I really have been helped, I know and if it is convenient later, I would like to give my formal thanks to those who have been in touch.

Yes, they are not deserting you now; you have more work, my friend! You may not be fully aware at this present time, but those who gather around you, have seen the potential for issuing forth spiritual matters and we cannot, how can I say, let you go! (Chuckles)

Lilian: We're very lucky to have him in our group.

George: That is good to hear.

Although each of you have many separate lives, each one of you is important to this work. Each one of you has gone forth in your own particular way at every opportunity. You are given the opportunity many, many times, but in seeking those opportunities, you must make use of them, and I tell you my dear friends, each of you has achieved this many times over. As we come to close for this one of your earthly years, I ask you my dear friends to reflect upon the many subjects that we have discussed—and they are many. We have continued on many themes which have been discussed some time ago, but that is the purpose of teaching, that you continue to uphold what has been given and then to take the further step forward. My dear friends, your foothold in this work is steady and sure. As you approach your festivities in this world, I would ask of you my dear friends that you consider the joy of your little children, that you find within your hearts, that love, that joy, that innocence and try to recapture some of it within yourselves. After all, why do you think children are so full of joy? It is because the Spirit is closer to our world for some good number of your years. Have any of you seen the joy that shines from a small child's eyes with wonderment of life, (Agreed) the joyousness of living and the wonderful way they have of pushing aside any small problem that they have? I would say to you this my dear friends: try to recapture some of that Spirit within yourselves over this holiday time. Not only do I say dear friends, reflect upon these things, but go inward and recapture what is truly you, recapture that honesty of Spirit, that joy of Spirit, that truth of Spirit and then, and only then, will you begin to understand what we are trying to achieve with you. Now, if you have questions for me before I depart, I will be only too happy to speak with you.

George: Would this be a convenient time for me to give thanks those who have helped me with my writing. I would very much like to do that. In fact I have a dim red light here and I would very much like to read a small acknowledgement which I have in the book if that is in order?

I would say only that those who are close with you know of your words, but for the purpose of the others, then we will be glad to hear them. If you will give me a few moments I will withdraw a little further in order that you may have a little more light, but please do give me just a few moments. (Pause)

George: I would like to say this—this is from the book. I acknowledge with thanks the writings of all those authors whose works are listed in the bibliography without which, this book would simply not have been possible. Those works embrace a great many subjects which I list, and I go on to say: Many of the writings have been inspired and my debt is therefore not confined just to Earth plane. In fact, in order to adequately research our connection to Spirit realm, I was drawn to sit in with a Spirit/healing circle; a most excellent circle that had already enjoyed several decades of dedicated work. I have continued to sit regularly during the six years of working on this book. My thanks to Leslie and all concerned. As a result of this I have found myself in the privileged position of being able to seek answers to certain questions or confirm information, through Spirit communication. (All recorded and transcribed) In this way it has been possible to make clearer statements on such puzzling topics as: the Tunguska event, the Noah's ark story, and a number of other items listed. I am therefore deeply indebted to many information sources, both in this world and the next. Now I would also like to say that I feel much more like an editor than an author, because I have received so much help. In the early days there were two psychic readings, in which a Siberian guide who was named Achinac Fervos, and my father came through and gave me some initial guidelines regarding the book. And then there is the work of Leslie of course, our old friend, and I hope that he has the awareness that this book has now been published and it includes the words, or some of the words, of a North American Indian gentleman named Long Shadow and people who Salumet has very nicely organized to come through for us: Mary Stuart, Sophia known as Catherine the Great, a Light Escort Edwin, who talked to us about prayer and one who talked to us about the bible code. And then there is of course Salumet, to whom I feel very much indebted and, in thanking Salumet, I realize I am thanking the whole diamond and the logo that is on the jacket of this book is enclosed in a little diamond in token of that. I hope that his book represents a first step and will be a first step to publishing further teachings. Thank you, thank you, thank you. I apologize for the light that may have been a little bright, sorry about that.

Thank you. Would it interest you to know, my dear friend that all of those peoples you have given thanks to were able to see your words in print before it happened on the Earth plane? (Ah!) So, you see, perhaps we had the advantage over you! (Chuckles) But I am to tell you that your thanks has been accepted and you will be encompassed with much love as you continue.

George: I'm pleased my thanks has been accepted—wonderful.

Remember, all things that exist within your planet has its counterpart in our world. Your words of wisdom and truth will be placed with many others by those of us who have guided and inspired you. We know at some stages of your combining these words, that there were a few doubts—but not for long. We uplifted and upheld, we knew that the truth would come forth; that is why and that has been the purpose of your joining this group, that these words would be know. People will accept or they will deny them, but you can have no control over that, my dear friend. You have done the task that we had set for you and again we say to you, many thanks.

George: Thank you—that is a two-way thank you.

We can do many things from our world, but we do need the human element and the instrument to bring forth into the physical world all that we say. Let that divinity within you continue to grow. That is my word to you my dear friend.

Lilian: Will you take any more questions?

If you have more questions, I will be happy to take them.

Mark: I read a newspaper article about a lot of UFO activity off the Puerto Rican coast, where the ocean is supposed to be at its deepest apparently and fishermen have reported having UFOs flying under their boats—well flying/swimming under their boats. They say that the fishermen were trying to poke them with their oars and when they touched where they thought they were, the luminosity went from the space ships and when they pulled their oars up again, the luminosity came back and I wondered what was going on there, whether it was some kind of a clue or whether they were having fun with the fishermen.

Yes, you seem to have some interest with the water element in your world. Yes, you know and I have told you that there are many, many other forms of life and yes, there are travellers from other worlds, who have come to this planet. What you must remember is that their knowledge of energy is far greater than yours and, without knowing for sure, I would say that they were having a little fun with the humans involved. The luminosity is nothing more than energy and their control, as I have said, is far superior to humankind on this planet. Therefore they can produce many things, which to humankind would seem unbelievable. That is an aspect of their living that we will discuss at a further time, but it should suffice you to know that their visitations do exist. There are many ways of entry into this solar system, therefore my answer to you, if this was a genuine visitation from other planets, then they probably were having some fun. We will make some time for further discussion of this, when I return to you. We have many topics that we have to continue with and that will be our objective when I return to you in your new earthly year. Therefore in your quiet time my dear friends, I would suggest you think of your questions for me. We must go forward with knowledge and I will endeavour as much as I am allowed to, to give you a little more information which is understandable to you, but of course always we are held back by earthly words and the lack of psychic understanding on your part. But there is much we will discuss.

George: There seems to be a very long tradition of reincarnation where the Dalai Lama is concerned (Yes) and it would seem to indicate that he is a very good man, who has reincarnated repeatedly (Yes) to teach. Are you able to confirm this or would you wish to comment on it?

Yes, I have told you there are many Masters who walk this planet, and let us firstly say this to you: that those who have attained such knowledge have the ability to realize and understand spiritual ways. The gentleman you speak of has indeed reincarnated many, many times, in order that the teaching may continue. It is in fact, many different aspects of his soul; it is not the same aspect each time—of course, that would make little sense, would it not? (Yes) But it is felt that when one has reached such attunement between the physical world and our world, that that attunement must continue for the benefit of all who come into contact with him and of course for his own soul's growth. Do not doubt that by whichever name he reincarnates with, it is still many aspects of the one soul.

George: Yes, so all the reincarnations would have a similar energy?

Yes, that soul has chosen that pathway and there is always a reason—perfect law is always followed, yes. Does that help you? (Yes, thank you.) Before that Spirit reincarnates, it already knows the task and the length of time which will be spent in your world. The one you speak of is indeed truly spiritual.

George: Yes, it appeared to me that he was different in the large number of reincarnations that have taken place. (Yes) Thank you for your explanation.

Lilian: The lady that you are using, (Eileen) before she came back to the physical life, her life plan she would have realized and been told that she would blend or whatever with you for the teachings that you bring? She would have no knowledge of that once she had reincarnated, but it would have been discussed.

Lilian: Before she came?

Yes, but she would have no memory of it. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.)

You must realize that there are cases of people being used by people from our world without their knowledge; this is something different. Most cases of mediums or people being 'overshadowed' shall we say, have known before they come that this is part of their life plan, although mainly unknown to them in the physical. (Yes, thank you.)

I will say only my dear friends that as I take my leave from you this time, how deeply touched I have been to have joined with you on so many of your occasions, that you have listened with quiet appreciation, with acceptance and knowledge and deep thinking, that you have taken the words of truth and spread them throughout your areas of living, varied as they may be and that between you, you have sown many seeds of truth. For this you cannot know how much it has helped your own growth, but I am happy to say to you that you do shine as beacons. You have filled the lives of others with those seeds and for this we must be eternally grateful to each one. I will take my leave my dear friends until such time as we meet again. (Thanks + farewells)

~15th January 2001~

No Salumet this week, but there was one of interest through Sarah:
(Welcomes)

I have been interested to listen to what you have to say. May I say this to you: much of what you say is not quite of what we would have thought you would have been able to speak so clearly about. You obviously have understanding and from this we can only say that we are very happy with what you are doing and how you are progressing. I cannot give answers to you as the one who comes through the lady next to the one by me, but I can tell that he is most pleased with what you are able to discuss and the subjects you talk about. I am here on a short mission. I have been asked to come to let you know how I am able to assist in other ways. By coming to you I am able to think—I beg your pardon that is the wrong word.

Lilian: Would it be on the same wavelength as we are at this moment in time?

No, by coming to you I am able to tap into your thoughts and to help you to bring to the surface those things that are important to the well-being of this group.

Lilian: So you know us quite well, do you?

I am present at most of these gatherings—not only am I here with this group, but I am with other groups who meet in the same way as you do.

Lilian: That is your job, is it, helping us?

My job is exactly that and this I do with many others. We join together and discuss what should be brought to the fore in the groups we visit. We cannot obviously join the groups together, but in bringing to the fore that information that is necessary to each group, the general thought for the wellbeing for this world is helped.

Lilian: We didn't realize there some around like you, but we shall remember it now.

There are many things that you do not know on this planet, but with the assistance with the one that comes to you regularly, you are beginning to understand a little more of what you do not know. What I mean by that is that he tells you many things that had previously occurred to you and when he has brought some of this information to you, people like us can come through to let you know what our part is and we know then that you will understand what we are saying. But we cannot go to all people who have no knowledge, because they would not understand or even perhaps believe what we are saying. I think that we should try to discuss a few more topics and then I will try to help you to bring something new to the fore to discuss and maybe next time the one who comes to you can help you with your answers. So I will leave you now and will try to bring some new thoughts to your minds. (Thanks + farewells)

~29th January 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

May I say to you my dear friends how warm and comforting it is to join with you once more.

Lilian: It's nice to have you back.

My time apart from you has been fruitful in the sense that I have gained much knowledge of how our meetings have developed. I have seen many times when perhaps my answers to you could have been a little more enlightening, but all of these things always come when we look back upon the time spent together and your many reactions to it. I wish to say to you my dear friends that in this coming of your year here upon this planet, we have much to discuss and to speak about. My intention my dear friend is that we continue on topics that have previously by discussed with you and to enlighten you further upon these topics. Many times I have said to you, have I not, that we will return and speak in more depth; that is what we will try to achieve in this your coming year. I would like you to say to the instrument that I am using (Eileen) that she is not to be concerned about the throat problem. I can make adjustments for any small irritation that occurs; we are not unaware of the problem. As you well know my dear friends that adjustment is needed on many occasions and it is our purpose as we come close to you all, that these adjustments be made to the suitability of each sitter. We are missing quite a few of our friends, but we will be coming together once again in many more numbers, but I feel that it is important in this next period of time in talking and teaching with you that we do not leave such talks until all are here, but to continue with the teaching with however many numbers there are. This is something I have refrained from in the past, but we know that by your dedication and because of the use of your modern machinery, that the words and the teachings are not forgotten and can be repeated to all who wish to listen to them. Therefore my dear friends I will say this to you, that this year I hope you will attain new knowledge, more understanding, more closeness of your own hearts; that by drawing together as you do that the bond between each one of you strengthens, that the love that you give to others and the teaching that you send forth to others outside of this room is retained and will help all that it touches. To each of you my dear friends, once again I will say to you, the road ahead is not smooth, but for each of you, you will learn to overcome each obstacle placed in your pathway. This is indeed life's lessons, but each one of you will find in your own individual lifestyle, problems and stepping stones which will be surmounted with ease. Not only will you grow in strength my dear friends, you will become even more spiritually aware and you know that as individuals you will individually develop along your own life path. But in joining together as you do on a regular basis, that spiritual unfoldment becomes an even stronger bond. This my dear friend is my desire for you all that as we continue to work together, all new work be related by you to many, many others who are seeking, who are searching, who are lost, who are without hope, who are without knowledge; let yourselves give to these people in order that the truth that you all know, be given and accepted on a wider scale. Because we have only just come together again my dear friends, for this evening I will answer a few questions for you and we will begin serious work next time, when I hope to bring you a little more of the Universal Truth, which surrounds you and of which you are part. Are there any questions, please?

Sarah: I had a control through me (15/01/2001) last week and although I felt that it was a control, my mind is still quite active when a control comes through. Could you just confirm that what I said was right? This control said that he helped our minds to bring relevant information to the fore to help the group and to help the world as a whole.

Yes, I will explain just a little to you in a way perhaps you will find easy to understand. When we from our world use you as communicators, as instruments, we try to place to one side that part of you which holds so much and what you would term the subconscious. Although those who come to you overshadow you, you still remain in control. That is why doubts creep in, but I would say to you that there are many who stand by and if there is confusion or the likelihood that communication be cut, then those whose 'job' shall I say for your understanding, will step in and help the thoughts to be conveyed. Therefore, my dear friend, what you experienced is perhaps experienced by all who are developing the communicative skills. Is that helpful to you?

Sarah: Yes thank you, it is.

You are never alone, you as the human being and the communicator from our side—there is always others to help, there are always those from our world much more experienced, who are ready to step forward to help and if that feeling of help comes through as a form of thought, then so be it.

Sarah: So I am on the right track, am I?

Yes, do not place these doubts to the forefront of your thinking, place them where they belong. It is good to think about these things, but do not allow them to become an issue.

Sarah: If I was giving information through, I wanted to make sure that it was correct.

Yes, and that is what will make you my dear friend a good channel for us. I believe I would be correct in saying that all potential mediums and what you might in your world call fully-fledged—although I would perhaps disagree with you, they all have experienced those feelings. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Any questions George?

George: Yes, you've have told us much about the work of elementals. I wonder if we could extend this a little to connect with some practical considerations of the planet, for example, we do plant woodlands and forests and this can be done with various degrees of respect for the trees. My own feeling is that when forests are planted with all one kind of tree in a very commercial way, this is losing some of the respect and it might well be better to plant mixed varieties of trees in a more natural way. I was wondering if the elementals would be affected unduly by going away from natural considerations and I suppose the great thing is to do whatever is done in love. I wonder if you could comment on practical considerations like that?

Yes, I recognise your concern my dear friend and this is a subject that I will return to in more detail. But let me say to you this time: It matters not weather the trees be mixed or of one kind as you say, that is not the governing factor. Of course in an ideal planet, nature would rule and mankind would resist from interfering quite as much as he does. But the fact remains as you have most aptly put it, that Love is the overriding factor in all of these plants. I do intend to return to this topic quite soon. In fact I will tell you now that our topic of discussion next week, begins with that of the Angels. So quite soon, you will have a more elaborate explanation of all of these elemental works, all of the elemental skills and the feelings, the thoughts that go behind it all—their structure and their part in your planet.

George: Thank you. Similarly, I imagine that in looking after a garden and planting different flowers and making it look beautiful, this could be seem as a shared joy between humans and elementals?

Yes, you cannot my dear friend separate yourselves as human beings from those of the other creatures of the planet—all is intertwined. But I hope I will explain to you more clearly, when the discussion comes about the different beings of this planet. It is a topic which needs individual discussion, because as I have told you, there are many types of being, which occupy this planet with you. So you agree I would presume, that it is worthy of individual discussion, rather than one general discussion, would you not? (Thank you.) You will have your answer my dear friend. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Mark, any questions?

Mark: Yes I've got a question and I've also been asked by somebody if they could possibly come next week. She's a Japanese friend.

Yes, we have been awaiting her.

Mark: Ah, that's nice. (Chuckles) My other question is: There has been a lot of talk in the news and I don't think it's been reported very clearly, about the rights and wrongs of giving injections to young children and babies. One school says that it's okay—particularly a triple injection including the measles. (MMR vaccination) Some people say that it can cause autism in children and I wondered if you might have something to say about that?

Yes, I understand your question. All medical matters in your world—first of all let me say that most of your medical institutions are on this planet to help others. What we from our world would rather dispute is the way in which they handle medical conditions, that mankind has gone a little far the dealing of illness. But when mankind gives help with love and kindness and the hope and desire to destroy disease within mankind, then the motive is one of Love. Therefore you cannot question that they are trying to help. I would say only this to you my dear friend: That these decisions that you ask me about, have to be made by those individuals, because it could be part of their life plan. It is difficult to say why one child would develop some other condition and another not, unless that individual had chosen to do so. We are coming back again to freewill and although it be children, the parents spiritually know that this was a condition that was likely to happen. It is difficult to tell people without knowledge about these things, but I know it is within your understanding, that these occasions take place. But the medical profession is doing its best, as far as it knows and understands. Great influence is being brought to bear upon those in your world, who are dealing with humankind in the form of illness and in fact I can tell you that there are many, many of your conventional medical doctors, who are now beginning to understand that the body is not the prime subject, but there is more to the body than just the physical being, that the mind and the thinking and all other aspects of living, must be taken into consideration. There are many, many in the fields of your medicine, who are slowly changing their attitudes to illness. Does that help you to understand? (Yes) And again, I would have to say to you my dear friend, that responsibility for living lies with each individual.

Mark: Yes, would it be true to say that if it wasn't for the poor ways in which we live and bring up our children—if we were doing it better, we wouldn't really need these injections?

That is one aspect, but it is not quite as simple as that. There is too little known still within your planet of how life should be lived, but that is the purpose of many of us coming to this planet at this time, that this information and this knowledge slowly creeps to the thinking of each one of you. And of course if all illness was wiped from the planet, there would be no need for the planet. Do you understand? (Yes) I hope that has been helpful to you.

Mark: Thank you, yes it has.

Margaret: I think that was a wonderful question. I get quite concerned about children and the way they are brought up. That's helped me a lot, thank you.

Yes, it is too easy to dismiss all areas of help as being wrong. As I have said, the overriding factor is whether it has been done with love and righteousness and all of these other things. We cannot have a perfect world just yet.

Margaret: Do you think we ever will?

We will, but not for a very long time. But each idea, each change of thinking, is another way forward to a greater understanding. That is all my dear friends that you can try to achieve. We have told you, we cannot live life for you—we cannot give you answers that concern your freewill; we can help, we can guide, but we cannot interfere. And I know to many, this seems a hard lesson, but without the lessons, how can you grow? And I know the subject of small children is very emotive to you all, but try not to think of them as children, but rather as Spirit. Try to see them and why they have come to this life. In other words my dear friends, see each individual as an equal. Now there is something for you to think about this time. I can see that you are beginning to think already. (Agreement + chuckles)

Lilian: If next week you are going to talk about Angels, is it alright if my daughter-in-law visits again?

Yes, if she so desires. (Thank you.) I feel my dear friends with that for our first joining together of this one of your years, it is perhaps time for me to withdraw, that we look forward to new teaching, to new understanding and to how much we can all gain, from knowing each other.

I leave you with the Light of Love,

With the Light of Truth,

With the Light of Understanding,

And with the Light for all of you in this world, of Patience, which is so lacking in this world, at this particular time.

I leave you my dear friends, until we meet next time. (Thanks + farewells)

~5th February 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Firstly let me say welcome back to those old friends and welcome to our new friend. I wish to say to you this time that, although this instrument still has a little problem as I said to you last time, it does not create a problem for us. If the lady should have to physically cough, then I will just withdraw a little. So please assure her that it is not a problem. We know she is concerned a little about it, but there is no need. To our new guest I will say 'welcome' and although she joins us at a time of information which she may not understand, she will feel great benefit, my dear friends, from being in your company. She is on a trail of new knowledge, of different acceptance and of seeking more truth. Now, my dear friends as I said to you last time, we will embark upon a conversation which was touched upon before I left you for a short time. This subject is not something that can be discussed fully in one meeting, therefore if you are in agreement, I suggest that as I speak to you, if you have questions about anything I may say, will you please ask me now so that we can continue along this topic with full understanding and with greater knowledge. Is this acceptable to you? (Agreed) We discussed about the nature beings within your world, about the elementals, and we touched briefly upon the subject of angels, the angelic beings, did we not? (Yes) The first thing that I wish to say to you is this: that within your world many people are confused between the angelic being and what you term 'guide'. Angelic beings have always been, they were here at the creation of this planet and all that it was to be. Angelic beings of the higher realm, shall we say, have never been of human form. There are many angels that you call guides. This band of angels have human form and have come to you for different purpose. Let us, for your understanding, call them Greater Angels and Lesser Angels, although they all belong to an angelic hierarchy. Firstly, my dear friends I hope that you understand that mankind and this planet Earth is but a small part of the whole, that everything is intertwined, that mankind is the only form with the spiritual counterpart, but I wish at this time to speak to you of the Greater Angels, the Higher Angels. These are the angels that are given to you and shown to you as figures of imagination, drawn with the human form, but with the occasion of small and large wings. Firstly let me say that because these angelic beings have never had human form, they are purity of light, they are the life force, not only of this planet, but of all Creation. We touched upon the wings of these angels last time, did we not? (Yes) What I wish to say to you is that this purity of light emanates from the top of the head and showing themselves in the form of humans makes them seem to have wings, which are in fact purity of light which surrounds the whole form. Angelic beings such as these are with each one of you. Every human form has an angelic being from the time of conception to the time of dying, or rebirth as we would wish to say. These Greater Angels are responsible for the consciousness, the soul of each human being. That is where they differ from the other angels, or guides as you like to call them. I will stop here on the introduction of them, to see if anyone wishes to question what I have told you.

George: Could I mention St. John's writing about his vision in which he describes angels and four intelligent beings and twenty-four elders, which I took to be some of those who would be watching over the planet. Does that connect at all?

Yes, you have to understand that these elders as you describe them, belong to the group of angels of whom I speak. These angelic beings are responsible for much of what governs this planet. There are many, many types of angelic beings, who all have differing stations of work. Much of what has been written in what you term your bible, is in fact quite correct, but also as you well know, much is manmade. But when we speak of visions of angels, I can assure you my dear friends, we speak not of visions of the mind, or self-seeking visions, but we are speaking of that form of Divine Light, which was much stronger in the days when your so-called bible was written. There are many, many variations along this evolution of angelic beings. You have Angels of Healing, they are one form of the Great Angelic Beings. Anyone who steps within a room of healing, may or may not be aware that that Angel of Healing is there with them, that they know that healing is about to take place. They are responsible for the soul consciousness. We have angels of many types of work, but I would say to you at this present moment in time, it is important for you to realize that this Greater Angel and the evolution of these angels has existed and they are closer to what we seek than any other form. Again I will say to you, they are Purity of Light. They come from the Source of all Life. They have the knowledge, the wisdom, the understanding and the love of all things.

Lilian: As each child is born into this world, an angel will come with them?

Yes, you all have a Guardian Angel. These Guardian Angels come from this group of angels. They will never leave your side from the moment of conception until your death or rebirth. Whether you become aware of them is dependent upon your own consciousness, your own spiritual growth and remember what I have said, they are not your guides; you must not confuse the two. These angels govern the soul consciousness, the whole consciousness of this planet Earth, beside those of many others. I will tell you now that many of these beings have come from a spiritual planet of Light, to help with the evolution and lifting of consciousness of humankind. I believe this fact is not widely known, but we will discuss it if you wish.

Lilian: Could I ask a question about the healing? The energy that one can feel, would they be behind the energy—is that the way to tell that they are there?

I would rather say that the Healing Guides, who superimpose themselves upon you, would be the energy that you would feel, because the angels of the group I speak of, come only for protection for the soul. You have the interaction in healing of both the Angel and the Angelic Guide. Try to differentiate between the two if you can.

Lilian: Yes, would they be aware of one another?

Not necessarily, because remember your guidance is of a much lower order and in fact, I would prefer not to use the term 'Angelic Guides' for these beings, but they are known as angels and for your sake of understanding we must use your own terms.

Sarah: I know that each one of us has one of these angels and I know it might seem a silly question, but what would happen if we didn't have one of these angels?

That is not possible. Each one of you has a Guardian Angel.

Sarah: Is that the case of all life on other planets, would they also have an angel?

Yes, in different form of course; that is something we will come to, but for this time we are speaking of angels in the human form as you would recognize them and they have been seen. But let us perhaps say that these Greater Angels, because they are purity of Light are therefore able to change their appearance. Remember what I told you about the elementals, if they have the power to do this, what do you suppose the angels, the Greater Angels have the power to do? They are the closest you could come in this form to what we seek, to that all-encompassing life force from which we come. They are the messengers from that all-encompassing light.

George: Would the Guardian Angel have the power to influence consciousness to prevent a physical accident that wasn't meant?

No, you are speaking of the guides; they are the ones who would look after form in this human existence. They are the ones who will try to influence you in many ways. The Greater Angels are more responsible for the whole outcome of consciousness in the planet. And although you are given one Guardian Angel, again they do not have the right to interfere with your own freewill. This is a complicated issue and that is why it will take many of our meetings for you to come to the full understanding of what I tell you. I do not feel that you will understand it so easily without many discussions.

Sarah: Could I go back to something you said about the time that George was talking about in the bible. Did you say the light was greater than it is now?

The understanding. Let me say that only those who have come to that stage of quietness and self-knowledge if you like, only they and they alone will have a glimpse of these magnificent beings—and remember, they are magnificent beings. They have never touched or been in human form, they are purity of Light. We are speaking now of Creation in its almost pure form—this is what I wish you to try to understand. These Guardian Angels, their task is try to protect you throughout your life if they can, but their purpose is for the expansion of soul and consciousness and all that is spiritual. They are not concerned with everyday living as your Guides are. They are the essence of being, they are the providers of this planet of Love, wisdom, power and many, many more spiritual attributes. It is your right, but because of the form that you inhabit, it will never be achieved in one lifetime. Are you beginning to understand my dear friends? (Yes) I feel an awe amongst you that I can touch, therefore it is important that we take each step slowly.

Lilian: With each reincarnation, would we still have the same Guardian Angel?

Yes. You will always have the same Guardian Angel no matter how many incarnations there are.

Lilian: So as we progress, they must be very pleased.

Of course, that is their purpose to increase awareness and spiritual consciousness and all the attributes of Spirit. But, let me say this, they are not pleased in the same way that humankind would be; they absorb that knowledge back into themselves. That is another topic to touch upon. All I wish you I feel to try to understand this time, is that we have this group of beings, spiritual beings, which are little known about, but which are separate from those you call Guides. Do you have more questions?

George: During our disastrous periods when we are having wars, would they be saddened or would they simply not have that reaction?

They are beyond human reactions of that kind. This is the point that I try to put to you, that they are beyond all of these emotions, and in fact until you can place emotions to one side, it is highly unlikely that you would have a glimpse of any of these beings. Do you understand? (Yes)

Sarah: So when we have finished coming back here and we no longer need to come back to Earth any more, the job of that Guardian Angel is done, or does it go on to somebody else?

It is never done, it is always interested—your progress will always be known. Imagine a room full of children with one teacher. If one advances a little more quickly than the other, it will not discard it to go to the one left behind, it will continue to show interest in all of those children. Would you agree? (Yes) Try to imagine these Angels in that type of work and remember, you cannot put physical time to these things—understanding and time does not belong to these Angelic Beings.

Sarah: I just wondered if this Angelic Being was just simply for that one person and that when it had finished its time on this Earth, it no longer needed to go on to somebody else perhaps, because you said that you keep the same Guardian Angel all the time.

Yes, but remember your view and your vision is limited. Remember these beings are the Source of pure Light, where knowledge is ever expanding. They do not see it as you would see it. This is the difficulty in trying to teach you about them, that your understanding of them is so limited. We are speaking of beings who have never, ever had to learn the lessons that you as beings have. They go along a different line of evolution.

Lilian: I see, like the animals do? (Yes) I was listening to a radio programme not too long ago about Angels and different people were ringing in to say that they had seen an Angel and they left behind a white feather. I couldn't quite see the point, but is that true?

It is possible, of course. It is just a manifestation that is within the power of all Angelic Beings.

Lilian: So they could leave behind a white feather? (Yes) I wondered why a feather.

I cannot tell you that, but there must have been some symbolic meaning, I would think.

Lilian: Maybe the wings?

No, you must dismiss this idea of the wings being made of feathers.

Lilian: If as humans think of the wings as being made up of feathers, maybe that would be why.

Perhaps if that was your conception of what it should be—without knowing what happened, I cannot comment. But yes, why would it seem impossible for some manifestation to be made? Many reports are given in your world, are they not? (Yes) So remember that all things are possible from our world. Do you have more questions or are you happy with what I have told you this time?

George: Just going back to St. John's account again, he mentions one Great Angel with one foot on the land and another foot in the sea, which would suggest enormous size by our standards.

Yes, remember that form means nothing to these beings. They are not limited by conditions as we would know them, and of course, how they show themselves to those who can perceive them is something that seems amazing to humankind, but yes, we do have the hierarchy as you, I believe call it, even in the evolution of the Angels, that these beings do have some semblance of order, some form of hierarchy, in order that the Divine plan can be played. There are indeed what is termed in your what you call bible, many Angels and also Archangels. They are the highest of all of these Angels, not because they have more power over them—that is not how the Divine plan works—but there has to be order. For this purpose alone you have that group of Angels who are called Archangels, because of their magnitude, of their great knowledge and wisdom.

Sarah: Eileen, the instrument you are using at the moment saw an angel. I believe she was in meditation and it was her Guardian Angel she saw. Is that right?

When you have the right conditions, if you have the right frame of mind, if I could put it to you that way, if all of these conditions are right, then it is possible to have a glimpse of that Angel who is with you for all of your life. It is open to each one of you to become aware of who your own Guardian Angel is. They would be only too willing to allow you a glimpse of who they are.

Jan: Are they there for part of our own consciousness?

They are always within your consciousness at all times, but it is whether your consciousness will allow them to come forward or not; that part must be played by you. There is nothing to prevent each one of you from having that knowledge if you so desired, but I would say to you that the time which is best for any of these visions is not a time of seeking, but in a time of quite resignation, when your Spirit comes to the fore. So, do not consciously seek, but allow that inner being to be still, to be quiet and ask quietly that when the time is right to be shown your very own Guardian Angel.

Jan: From your teachings you say ask for help and guidance. Is that almost the first port of call, when we look into ourselves and ask for help, is it our Guide that answers the questions or tries to help first?

Your own guidance, your own Higher Self would be the first port of call, as you say. Remember, you have that guidance, but it is not these Higher Angelic Beings. They will not step forward to offer you guidance. That is the second form of what I call Angelic Beings, your Guide. That is the word that humankind has given to your guidance, and remember you do not have just once guidance, there are many who come and leave within your lifetime, who are there to help and guide you. But your own Higher Self is your first step of guidance. Do you understand?

Jan: Yes, I, like many, presume it is very difficult to separate and I realize what you're saying, to separate our physical from our spiritual (Yes) and what you are talking about is purely spiritual (Yes) and it is very difficult for us, isn't it, as human beings to as you said, cast away the encumbrance of everyday life and accept. I can accept it, you realize I do accept it, but it is very difficult to understand, isn't it?

Yes, that is why it is important that we go slowly as we have always done at these meetings. That slowly, slowly the understanding and the awareness becomes greater, that each one of you travels at your own pace of knowledge and development, that each one of you seeks that, that you will in your own time. We cannot rush you, anyone from our world will not rush you; you are in control of your own spiritual unfoldment. But all I say to you is this, that these Greater Beings, these Angelic Beings, have a much greater responsibility than is imagined or understood within this planet. Their connection is not only with this planet, with humankind, but as I have said at the beginning, with all of the planets in your Solar system—and there is my dear friends a planet of Light where these beings do exist.

Jan: Often I have heard of Guides having lived here before, having been a physical being. (Yes) That obviously is a Lesser Angel (Yes) as originally said, but do they progress on to be a hierarchy of angel?

No, they travel along a different evolution. The line of evolution for these beings is entirely different. What I speak to you tonight about is a Divine and purity of Light, which cannot be intermingled with the evolution of—I do not like 'Greater' and 'Lesser', these words create confusion, but I am not sure how else to put it to you. I want you to understand this time, how much wider, how much greater the knowledge that these Angelic Beings have, how much more expansive is their knowledge and the help that they can give to this one little planet. That is what I would like you to try to think about this time—the greatness of these beings and how important they are to the evolution of so many, many things. All other forms of beings come back to these Greater Archangels, shall we call them, and their line of helpers and those who come and stand close by humankind. I think I have given you enough this time to think about. I will accept your questions next time, because I know you will have some for me and then we will go just a little further, if you are willing to do so. (Affirmed + thanks) I will leave you my dear friends with these many, many thoughts. My desire for you of course would be that each one of you became aware of these beings who stand so close to you within your lifetimes that you could feel the love that they exude, that you could feel their own beauty and indeed, it is something to behold. I leave you all my dear friends as ever with my love and my thanks to each one of you for your time and your dedication and for listening to my words. (Thanks + farewells)

~19th February 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends I bring to you not only my love, but an element of understanding that will bring to you the meaning of what I wish to tell you this time. Firstly, I wish to address our lady friend and say to you that I ask you to tell the instrument I use that I am working with her on a spiritual level in order that she may understand causes of her physical problem. I will leave this in your capable hands please.

Lilian: Yes, I will tell her.

I know my dear friends that each one of you has considered my words of our last meeting and that we do have some questions, but firstly let me say this to you: What I would like you to try to consider this time, and I did touch upon it before on another occasion, was how much you humans are mirror images of the Angels which I called light and darkness. Do you remember our discussion? (Yes) Do you remember that I told you that they were but reflections of each other? (Affirmed) You do. What I would like you to consider this time is that you as human beings display the qualities of both of these Angels. Shall for your benefit we call them good and evil. Do you remember that I told you that the Angels of Darkness, if you like to call them that, were not destructive but constructive, that the Angels of Light or goodness, were just that, but that they balanced each other out. This my dear friend is what you as human beings are. There are times when you give out good, there are times you have thoughts of darkness, but you need each to balance out. Can you begin to see how you reflect these Angels of Light and Darkness? Can you see within yourselves that these two scopes of light make up your own physical being? Do you understand that? (Yes) I would say to you that of all the Angel Beings that are in existence, you are most closely related to the Angels of Light and Darkness, because you are so much alike as humans. Do you have questions about this please, because I feel it is in your interest to fully understand what I mean by destruction and reconstruction, when we speak of these Angel Beings. Do you see that within yourselves, or do you see yourselves as something quite separate?

Lilian: For myself, I can see light and darkness.

Each one is happy then with that explanation that the link between you is so close?

Lilian: There has to be the light and darkness?

Of course, it is part of law, it is the part of all things functioning equally. Remember what I told you, how can you know only good, you would not understand it without having had evil—I use those words for your understanding—but in fact all that they are, are two different vibrations which, when brought together, balance themselves out. Do you understand, please? (Affirmed) As we speak of Angels of Darkness, there is in your human vocabulary, Angels who are called 'Angels of Darkness' and I believe they are called this, when it is Angels who come to you when your time upon this planet and the time for rebirth to our world is imminent. Then many of you say, you are meeting the 'Angels of Darkness', but I will say this to you my dear friends that if you pull back the veil of the Angel of Darkness, what you will encounter is beauty, love, compassion and all that is good. So again can you see the balance lies there also? (Yes) What I would like you to understand also, is that there are many, many Angels—many. You cannot exist in this world without an Angel of some kind. We spoke briefly of the Angel of Healing last time, did we not? (Yes) I have spoken of the Angel of Darkness, there is the Angel of Thought, which we touched upon briefly and which this dear lady asked me about in another way, about thoughts being helped. There are my dear friends Angels of Thought. Before I continue further, would you like to ask me any questions?

George: With regard to the previous teaching, you mention the planet of light as the origin or place of some of the Angels. I appreciate all the beings on that planet would be beings of light. Would the planet itself be of light, or would it have a physical counterpart?

Yes. You have picked up on what I intended to discuss with you next. Of course I told you these beings are beings of light and come from planets of light. These beings belong to the hierarchy of Angels. These beings have never experience the vibration of human living, such as the Angels which I speak to you about. The vibration that they belong to must also be the same vibration of the planet from which they come, in the same way as the Angels of Light and Darkness use the earthly vibrations of this planet, although they are of a different vibration to yourselves. I will tell you my dear friends that in the hierarchy of Angels, the Angels of the Sun are the more advanced. We are speaking here about things not widely known upon your planet. And again I say to you my dear friends, if it is beyond your understanding, then I fully accept your rejection, but what I purpose is, in this one of your earthly years, is to take you a little further from the knowledge that is already well known to many upon this planet. I wish to stretch you spiritually, in order that you can see the wider scheme of life. You know and you understand and I believe you accept that there are other life forms other than this one planet. You know and you understand and accept that human beings are of the lowest form of development. Therefore, does it not make sense to you my dear friends that there are beings of much quicker, much lighter vibration, who belong to planets again of lighter vibration? They could not exist in the planet such as Earth, because it is too dense and full of heaviness and in all of universal law they have to exist where all is harmony and balance. You know that when you leave these physical bodies, when you come to our side of life, you will gravitate to that plane of existence which is suited to you spiritually. It will belong to the vibration from which you come that you will go to it. So does it not make sense that these finer vibrations, these Angelic Beings should come from a planet such as they too belong to, the lighter vibrations, the love, the harmony and the balance? Can you accept this my dear friends?

Lilian: I can accept it, but it needs to be thought about.

Sarah: I find it difficult to have an Angel of the Sun. It is fire so they—

No, no, you must not look at it from the physical eyes. We, my dear friend, are speaking spiritually. Again this is where things become complex because you are so limited in the way you think that it is difficult to think spiritually. But I know my words are difficult, I know I am going onto new ground for you. That is why we need to discuss and speak about it slowly, in order that each step can be taken at your own pace and after all my dear friends, you know each one of you has your own pathway, have your own understanding, have your own lifetime of spiritual activities. I know that it will be difficult for you at times to accept my words, unless you have thought about them carefully and given of yourself to those who stand close by you, in order that they too can help to bring to you that understanding and knowledge.

George: I think I could say that as we go along we are learning that there is more and more that is beyond the detection of our physical science. This is no problem so far as I'm concerned in acceptance. We do look at things from our physical eyes sometimes and we endeavour to see things spiritually and we are discovering that there are more and more aspects of Spirit, but I can assure you that this is not a problem.

Yes. I know that the scientists in your world would say that all of nature is a natural happening, but what they do not fully understand is that behind the natural happening is a natural law which guides. That is the point that they miss, that there is an intelligence behind all natural law. But I know and I would not tell you if I did not think you could not take my words and digest and use them for your own individual spiritual growth.

Lilian: Would it help us to understand—I am speaking for myself—we each have a Guardian Angel (Yes) and so everything, the sun, the other planets, they all have their Angels?

What you must try to understand that all is not left to chance. You know that there is structure, there is law in all that is around, there is intelligence, there is creation; we all know and understand this. What I am trying to tell you and teach you this time, is that there is a state of hierarchy—and again I use that word for your understanding and your use, because there has to be harmony, there has to be order, no matter which planet you come from, whether it be in this solar system or another, it matters not. There has to be order, there has to be love and that is what these Angelic Beings are in existence for—not your Guardian Angels who come to you on this planet, not even the Angels that are above them, but there is a hierarchy of Supreme Beings, that is what they are, they are mirror images of all that is Love. These are the beings which put structure and order to all of the planets. I do not feel that at this time you are able to see spiritually these great beings, who have so much understanding and love for all things. They are a state of existence. In fact to speak of them almost in human forms is wrong, they are so much more than that, but they are the ones who govern the spirituality and the construction of all the universe. Above them comes only the Supreme Beings and I have no intention of going that far, because my own knowledge does not extend thus far, but I hope I have given you a little insight into what you are and how small you are in comparison to all of these Angelic Beings. They have so much influence, not only in your lives but in all of existence.

Sarah: Have these Supreme Beings always been and will always be or do they change in any form or how are they?

Supreme Beings always have been. They are the closest you will come to the Creative Force I believe. You are not likely ever to have contact with these beings. They could not possibly in any way come to a vibration such as this, but it does not do you any harm spiritually to know.

Lilian: Any questions Izumi?

Izumi: Sometimes I feel and pray and think—

Let me say to this one, because she has difficulty.

Izumi: Yes, difficulty to speak. (Izumi was new to the group and she also struggled with the language)

But that does not prevent your Spirit being open to us. For you, my dear one, there is much knowledge to be gained. I would say to you, this one has the virtue of patience and because of this virtue, she will learn quickly. She has reached a point in life, where not only does she seek interest, but she will go forth and she will be used, perhaps not in the way that you within this room are being used, but we in the Spirit world have much work for her in the future. Just to be here in this room with us is part of her life plan, although she may not have been aware of it, but she is treading a straight pathway thus far. Children will be most important in her teaching. She may not know it at this moment in time, but it will be so.

Mark: I was thinking about the sun and I was thinking we think of the sun as a central thing physically casting light in this part of the universe. You made me think about it spiritually as casting spiritual light much, much further. Thinking of it physically, it seemed like it was a bit of a parallel (Yes) and it seemed like it was much, much more important than I had thought of it before really.

Yes, of course each one of you knows that there are many suns. I do not speak of one sun, but there is such a planet. Let us take the words you have said and spoken, that the sun gives light, it gives warmth, it gives hope and if you think about these things on a spiritual level, can you not see that all these attributes are what we seek? Light, warmth, love—all of the good things that we try to seek towards that are natural things for the Spirit. I wish you to think perhaps this time about the sun and its qualities and how they relate to you as Spirit. This is an exercise for you my dear friends, which I hope you will take up. Perhaps the next time we meet we can have a discussion about it.

Lilian: I was just thinking, the lady next to you (Sue), someone came through her one evening and said if we looked at the moon or stood in the moon's rays when it was nice and bright, it would be beneficial. I think what they must have meant was spiritually.

Yes, again I say to you all: look with spiritual eyes always. If you seek answers, look inward, see the Spirit grow. If you go inwards spiritually, you will find the answers to all things. I am here only my dear friends to help you, to help you to understand yourselves, to know yourselves spiritually. Again I say to you, we can help, we can try to uplift you, but we cannot live life for you. That is your task to grow spiritually and if you can grow whilst clothed in these garments, these human clothing's, then you will find that when you are born into our world of Spirit, your knowledge will be so much greater, so much greater. This is our purpose of us who come to your planet that we are trying to find more of our world in your world. That those who are blind spiritually have their eyes opened, those who have their hearts closed have them opened, those of little compassion, understanding, charity and compassion—there is so much work we have to do with you human beings. But I say to you my dear friends, as I have done in times past, if you can but help one person grow and move along their own pathway, your lives have not been in vain, but that is not to say that you must neglect your own growth. All I wish you understand about the angels is that there is a hierarchy, there are angels around you every step of your existence and especially so at important moments in your lives; that you do not confuse them with your guardian angels who are responsible for you whilst you are upon this planet. Do not confuse your guardian angels with these higher angelic beings, because they belong to different vibrations. Think about these things and my dear friends all will become clear.

Sarah: Salumet, could I just ask one thing before you go. If our Japanese friend (Izumi) has trouble speaking to you in English, is it possible for her to speak to you in Japanese and you could reply to her or do you need another voice box for that?

I could not use this one. I have not trained it enough yet, but of course we are aware of all that is happening in her life. Yes, of course it is possible, but not with this instrument. It is not that we cannot, but we need the instrument and conditions to be right. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: Are you taking any more questions?

I feel for this time that we should close. If there are others to speak, I am sure they will, but I will withdraw from you this time. (Thanks + farewells)

~26th February 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Since last we met I have been with you on many occasions although you have mainly been unaware of it. I know that my words to you last time have given you much time to think about what is new in your awareness. I hope my dear friends that as discussed last time, we can have some questions to clarify what I have told you and to place to one side the topic of these angel beings. So if I can leave it with my dear friend here, shall we begin to discuss what we have talked about. (Lilian asked each sitter individually if they had questions)

Mark: I think I am quite happy with the topic so far thank you.

I would just like to say to this dear friend that when he gives time to himself, his thinking is quite deep and there comes to him in the very rare quiet moments that he has, that understanding, slowly but surely, the understanding that is needed to go forward. But I have to say also, those times of quietness are not often enough.

Izumi: I want to believe in angels, but sometimes it is difficult to...

Understand? (Yes) Yes, I know what you are trying to say my dear friend. When you come from different cultures, and there are many on this earthly planet, many teachings, many religions, many ways of thinking, you as children are given ways to follow which lie deeply within your subconscious minds. Therefore, for many when new awareness is given to you, it is more difficult to accept for some than others. This is what is happening with our dear friend. Because it is a topic not spoken of within her culture, it would be more difficult to accept, but that is not to say she will not come to the full awareness of all who surround her. It will come because she has an openness of mind, which is seeking truth. Do you understand my words? If not, I am sure our good friend next to you will explain. May I leave that with you please? (Yes)

Lilian: Yes, she must be searching, otherwise she wouldn't be here, would she? (Yes, yes.)

George: Looking at some of our literature, I have found seven named Archangels (Yes) including Gabriel and I believe Gabriel is said to have given the Koran to Mohammed. Are you able to confirm this that the Koran came about in this way?

Yes. That, I have to tell you my dear friend—of course Gabriel does exist, it is a name given to one of the Higher Beings of Angels as you fully know and understand, but as for giving the Koran, which is part of another religion, different from your own, I would have to say this is not so, it is not true. Why would an Angel of such divinity give to one group of people? That is not their purpose and especially not the angelic beings of the hierarchy. So I would say to you my dear friends, that is not the complete truth. It may have been that the Angels were close by at the time, but not one would have been singled out to present that book, that Koran as you call it, to one set of people. After all, the task of these Angelic Beings is for all of this planet and not one group of people. Within their understanding or their thinking, they could have, if they had wanted to, brought forth from their minds and their thinking that the Angel Gabriel had presented it to them. Can you see the power of thought coming into action in this case? Many things have been written in your world about what has happened in the past history of this planet. I would say to you, be careful that you do not accept everything as being the absolute truth. Mankind has the ability to fabricate and to make use of what is suitable for his own needs. May I put it to you that way?

George: Yes, thank you—that's interesting. I came across one reference, which simply said that an Angel named Gabriel was in charge of what was described as the fifth heaven. Would Angels be concerned with the heavens or astral planes?

Yes, I know what you are saying. Again we are speaking of physical words. Of course words such as 'Fifth Heaven' are words that have been used for people of the time. Of course, these Angel Beings, as I have told you, exist on a very different level from that of your Earth plane, and of course, you know my dear friends that there are many planes of existence. The Fifth Heaven is just one statement of one plane of existence. And again, I say to you that these Angelic Beings are aware of many planes of existence, because of their very nature and what they bring to the many planets of this universe. Try to widen your horizons, try to see how these Angelic Beings work for the good of all, for truth, for expansion and for that Great Creative Force of which they are a part. Do not limit your thinking to this planet, otherwise you will become laden down with minor details. Is that helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.) Always, I say to you my dear friends, see the wider scheme of life and you will not go wrong. That is what we are trying to achieve with you, that the expansion of your mind is what we are trying to achieve for you, to help you to think for yourselves spiritually, in order that spiritually you can cross those boundaries of physical thinking into the realms of Spirit. Do you understand what I say to you? (Affirmed)

Sarah: Actually, I think I am alright with the Angels, but I would like to pick up on one thing that Salumet said that in Izumi's culture they do not have angels...

May I interrupt you my dear friend? No, they think they do not have Angels. Angelic Beings cover this whole planet, whether cultures or religions are aware of them or not. These Angelic Beings belong to no one religion.

Sarah: Yes, that's what I was surprised at. Surely, they perhaps know of Angels maybe in a different way. In a different form, of course—interpretation is everything as we have discussed often. Where we are limited from our world is in finding the correct words for so many areas of people with different viewpoints, different upbringing, different cultures, different religions. This is the difficulty that we have.

Sarah: So if they were aware of the Angels, they may not even see them with wings either. Of course not, their interpretation may be different, but that matters not; you cannot change what these Angelic Beings are.

Sarah: Actually that is good for us, as we picture an Angel, or at least I do, as we have learned to know, but it is perhaps better just not to picture them like that, but picture them more just as a...

Let them come to you as they wish to show themselves to you. Remember the form that you see is pure Light. Try to imagine energy as pure Light and then perhaps your understanding will be easier. It is so difficult for you I know, when you thinking is so limited within these physical brains, but allow that thinking to expand into the spiritual aspects of life and all of these questions that you have, become so much clearer. (Thank you.)

Margaret: I found it difficult to imagine Angels, but this last week I went to bed thinking about it and I don't know if it is my imagination, but I slept so peacefully and woke up so fresh. I don't know if that has anything to do with my thinking of Angels.

But again we come to the power of your thinking. Do you not see that the power of that thinking which is peaceful, has created within the physical being peace and quietness? (Yes) That is all it is. It is again the power of how you think.

Margaret: I have had a very peaceful week and when I get into bed and put my head on the pillow, I have just floated off. It has been wonderful.

That is when we are close to you. That is good that you feel that sense of peace surrounding you.

Lilian: Sue?

This one is too far gone. (Sue is often in deep trance during meetings)

Mark: I did have one other question. I was wondering if what scientists refer to as 'black holes' were like a counterpart to the sun, because you were talking about the balance of light and dark (Yes) and the light Angels of the sun being the highest and coming from a planet of Light, being Light, and I wondered if the Dark Angels maybe came from a black hole?

Yes, it is a way of thinking, is it not, but I would have to say that although there is complete balance—there is always balance within the universe—light and darkness that we have discussed—but remember, although we call them Angels of Darkness, they are Angels of re-generation. So they therefore do not belong to the dark areas of the universe, but to a different planet. Although we call them Angels of Darkness, they are but reflections of the Angels of Light. That is what you must try to keep in your mind and not to use the word 'darkness' as something 'evil' or 'not good', because I believe we have discussed their task within this whole universe.

George: Again, looking at our literature, there is probably something that we have got entirely wrong, I don't know, but there seem to be quite a number of Angels listed that are described as 'Fallen Angels'. I think one named Ariel and one name Beelzebub are examples given. Can you say anything about that?

Yes, but of course there always is two sides, is there not? Again we are speaking of light and darkness. Within the Angelic Beings there have been those—remember they have freewill as you do, although you are lesser beings, if I may put it that way. They also have a will that they may use for one way or another and there have been in time those Angels who have not lived up to what they have been given. But they are the Angels not of the Higher Angel Beings, but of, if I can put it for your understanding, the Lesser Angels. Do you understand? (Yes, I see.) The Angels of the hierarchy shall I say, that has never happened to them; they are pure Light, they are pure Love, they are here to help and do the work of the truth that is around each one of you. Remember, I have told you there is a hierarchy—and I use that word only for your understanding—and yes, there are those beings, Angel Beings, who have, as you like to call it, fallen. Is this helpful to you? It is only a matter of their own freewill.

Sarah: So, once they have fallen, they are no longer Angels?

Of course they are still Angels.

Sarah: But they are Lesser Angels.

They are Lesser Angels—

Sarah: So once an Angel always an Angel.

Well, yes, they belong to that line of Angelic Beings, but let us take an example in this world of yours, where you have a group of men who all begin on the same level, who all have their own freewill. Let us say, for example, that half of those men decide to live their life for good, but the other half decide to take the other pathway. They do not change what they are, but they have taken a different pathway. To use the word foreign, is rather a strange word, but it again is a word used for the time and for understanding of your language. Is this helpful to you? (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: I was thinking about all the planets and stars, some we can see and some we can't. A lot of them we thought as with no human beings on them—we thought of them as empty planets or no life. But really they are full of spiritual life, aren't they?

Of course. Not all inhabited as you would imagine, of course not, but remember there are many universes, many, many universes in the cosmos. Therefore when you begin to imagine that this one universe, which amazes most of you because you cannot understand it, try to imagine then that this vast universe to which you belong, is only but one drop in another ocean. Then your understanding will begin to grow a little more and a little more and a little more. This is what we are trying to achieve, that mankind uses his spiritual knowledge and uses it for growth and truth and understanding, that he seeks that from which he came, step by step by step, but in understanding the other areas of living, of existence, then mankind begins to understand his place within the universe.

Lilian: If we have an Angel from conception to our death, do they then continue with us or help us after we go back to Spirit?

They will return with you, but then they will leave you. Once you have returned to Spirit your awareness is already there. But they will stay with you in other lifetimes if that is what the Spirit intends to do. You always have, each one of you, a Guardian Angel, and again, these are Angels on the lower scale of life. Do you understand? (Yes)—because they are able to come closer to this physical existence, but they cannot go where the Higher Angelic Beings go, because they do not belong there. Can you see? (Yes) Can you begin to understand that there is much difference in this range of angelic beings?

Sarah: Before we come back, do we get to know our Guardian Angel?

No, no. That is not necessary for you to know. Your awareness would be there when you return to Spirit, but once the decision is made to return to a physical body, then all thoughts are erased. Otherwise you would all know who your Guardian Angels were, would you not? (Agreed) But you need to seek for them, ask them to show themselves to you, because that is possible my dear friends. There is nothing difficult about coming to know that Angel who walks every step with you in this lifetime and many others. That is their purpose and it would bring no more greater joy to them, than to know that you are aware of them. But again, I put the responsibility back to you and your spiritual growth. Are you happy with what we have discussed or is there more, because I would like to leave the Angelic Beings of this time to finish with any questions this time. If you are unsure of any point, please let us discuss it. (Pause)

Lilian: I think we are very well satisfied, thank you once again.

I will leave you my dear friends. Let us, when we meet next time, let us hope that again your thinking has enabled you to go just a little further in your understanding. I leave you all, as ever, with great Love. (Thanks + farewells)

~5TH March 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Forgive the delay my dear friends, but it has been necessary this time to make some adjustments. I know and understand that there has been much thinking since last we met, so I say to you my dear friends that I will give you the opportunity to discuss further that which we have begun, in order that we may move forward next time.

Lilian: Thank you, you have obviously been listening to us.

I will leave it with you my dear friend, to ask the questions.

Mark: I have been trying to think about the way things are organized. I understand there is a hierarchy of beings and you have the Light Angels and the Angels of Darkness, which are of a lesser power to the angels of lightness? And I understand that everything in the universe is evolving. Is everything moving towards a higher vibration, closer to the Source Energy?

Yes, I understand what you are trying to say. There has to be of course, some form of hierarchy, although you know full well that these difficulties with human words and terms can be confusing. But of course there is a perfect plan, there has to be, and that is what all, not only those beings responsible for this planet, but all of the beings responsible for all worlds within all existence. We seek perfection. It is as simple as that.

Mark: I was trying to imagine—the Angels of Darkness or the dark energy, they are necessary now for the work they are doing now, but do they in the future evolve into, for example, a lighter Angel? Will that darker work be less necessary later?

I feel my dear friend you are becoming rather confused about darkness and lightness. Firstly I have told you they are but a reflection of each other. They exist not only for this planet, but they exist within the whole cosmos, because—remember what I have told you—the Angels of Darkness are there to re-create and bring all back to near perfection.

Mark: So why are they then seen as lesser?

They are not seen as lesser. You must see lightness and darkness as two aspects which work together. You are trying to separate the two, which cannot be done. Without the lightness, darkness cannot exist; without the darkness, light cannot exist. They are the two equal balances of the one whole. Try not to think about it on a physical level. Raise yourself above your own thinking and think about it spiritually. You understand that all of the cosmos, all of the planets within your own solar system, all is governed by law. You accept this? (Yes) Within the workings of those laws you must have balance, and balance is lightness and darkness. Try my dear friend to think about it on a spiritual wavelength and not with the physical thinking, because if you do, you will only remain confused.

George: I wonder if it would help if we enquired if the Angels of Light and the Angels of Darkness have different work to do or are they simply connected?

They have different tasks, of course, but they cannot be severed, they do belong together. What I think is happening with you, is that you are seeing the Angels of Lightness and Darkness as being an entirely different group of beings. They are not, they are part of a whole.

Mark: My problem was the idea of the Angels of the sun being the highest. That was my problem thinking like that.

Yes, but we do have those beings who come from the 'higher-archy' shall we say, they are a separate group. They are Angels of Light who would never work upon the planets, because they are almost pure light. You are confusing—they belong to a separate line of Angels. Does this help you? They are the group of what you would call 'Archangels'. Is this clearer for you? If not, please let us continue.

George: Yes, I think there would be a number of tasks which would come under the heading of 'evolution' and a different set of tasks which would come under the heading of 'regeneration'.

Of course. Yes, always the difficulty is in having the correct words for your understanding. This is always our difficulty.

Mark: Yes, it struck me that it was all about the definitions of things.

Yes, please forgive me if I have not been clear.

Mark: No, no, I think you are doing an amazing job.

George: It's wonderful.

But it is always the problem to explain spiritual matters on a physical level, because you see, you cannot fully understand these things whilst you belong to such overcoats of little spirituality. It is a problem I know, but we try to keep it as simple as we can for your understanding.

Mark: In theory, would it be possible for an Angel of Darkness to eventually become or reach the energy of the Archangels?

No, you must not confuse the line of Angels which are known to you as Archangels, are a line of Great Divinity, if I may use that word. All of the other Angels have the possibility of evolving, but they would not evolve to that higher range of Angels. But within, shall we call them, the 'lower' range of Angels for your understanding, within that range of Angels much can be achieved, because after all, all is evolving, all is changing; in the same way that one day you too my friends, will have evolved into much more spiritual beings than you are at this present time.

Mark: So the supreme ones—it is not a question of the very high ones being older?

No, they have always existed in that line of evolution. Does this make your understanding a little easier?

Mark: Yes, they're made up of something quite different.

Quite different, yes. Perhaps, to simplify it for you, can I say that the Archangels are the Supreme Beings, whereas the Lesser Angels are the workers, who are helping evolution and mankind and all other planets to evolve. You have to try to separate these two, although as I have told you, all works together towards perfection of the laws.

Lilian: Would there be any time in our evolution that we should be aware of these Higher Angels?

Not the Supreme Angels, no. But there are many types of Angels who can make themselves known to you on this planet if you so desire.

Lilian: I was thinking spiritually as we leave the Earth plane.

Yes, because your awareness is so much greater. As you leave behind these overcoats of physicality, then the awareness, the consciousness has grown and you become that part of you which is all-knowing. Therefore your awareness of these beings is so much greater.

Mark: Another thing we wanted clarification on, was we were wondering whether what people call Spirit Guides were what we were referring to as the Lesser Angels, for want of a better term?

Yes, I did say to you that people refer to their Spirit Guides as Angels, but that in fact, is not quite true in the sense of Angels. But, if it satisfies their need, then so be it, but Spirit Guides are none other than people who have gone before and who wish to return to help each one.

George: And that is the same as the term we use, 'Angelic Guide'?

Yes. It is a term that is used by you people upon this planet, not by us. Does that clear it for you?

George: Yes, thank you. I read very recently about a lady who had a psychic reading, and it sounds as if it was a very informative psychic reading, and at the end of the session a reference was made to her Down's syndrome child. The psychic said that this is not an ordinary child, but an incarnated Angel. And I wondered if this would be possible, or if there might be sufficient reason for this to happen. Could you comment on this?

Yes I will, I will try to clarify this for you. You know that all things are possible from our world, but I would say, and the instance you speak about, is of course a term used by the psychic and not in fact an Angelic Being who has reincarnated into the physical body. But in saying that, I do wish to say that on very rare occasions this is possible, if indeed there is a special mission, but only then would this happen, and I have to tell you my dear friend, it happens very rarely. Of course what I would wish you to understand, and I know full well that you know, that anyone who takes a body in whichever way, disfigured or disabled, is indeed usually and old soul. So of course they are special beings in that sense, so I would rather say to you, think upon those lines, than rather that they are Angels who have come into the physical being. It can happen, but very, very rarely and there would have to be a special mission on this planet for it to happen.

George: Yes I understand, thank you very much.

Lilian: Any questions Jan?

Jan: Just to say thank you, for making me more aware than I was before.

That, my dear friend, is our purpose. There are many within this planet at this particular time in your evolution, who are coming to that point, where awareness has reached the point of no return. If you will remember my dear friends, I said when first I came to you that we could not allow mankind to slip back like he has done in past ages. That this time, there was a concerted effort for mankind to raise his consciousness and to go forward—not only mankind, but the planet and many other planets within the cosmos.

Jan: I have a feeling, as I am sure all of us do here, in general people you speak to here in the physical, everybody seems much more aware than they did five or six years ago and television programmes, the media coverage seems to be far greater, which is wonderful, because it enables us to speak more freely and you just feel that people are in touch with one another again. Am I correct?

Yes, Of course that is of course what we are trying to achieve and to come to groups such as yourself, who we know and feel will pass on the words of truth. That is what we are seeking, that humankind reaches out and understands his true nature, in order, not only that his understanding grows, that he can be of help to his fellow man.

Jan: Yes, I do believe that way, way off in the future, there will be no need for conflict and wars; I honestly believe that that will not be the case, there will be no need as people's awareness grows more and more.

Yes, that is our aim, but I am afraid it is still some way off.

Jan: I agree, I agree, but it will happen, I am sure.

Of course, it has to.

Izumi: I have to think about the future and I have to decide something and I have fear and I am worried about this. Could you give me some...

Yes, that is why you came to us, because we know and understand what you are feeling. You, my dear friend are a most spiritual being, clothed within a small body. I would say to you that just by being here with my dear friends, there has been an element of strength, of upliftment and courage. These attributes are not easy to come by. What I would say to you my dear friend, is that as you approach your sleep-state, ask your questions and you will be given your answers. If you do not understand my words fully, then my dear friends will explain it to you. But I told you when you came we had been expecting you. And remember, no matter how difficult life's decisions are, the right choices can be made when made in silence. Can I leave that with you my dear friend, to explain my words? (Yes) (Pause)

Are you all happy, because I wish to continue on new things next time we meet, so if you have questions, please ask me now.

Sarah: Salumet, when you said that we were going to grow spiritually, do you mean us as the human race, or us individually?

Well, all is part of the one thing. If you do not grow individually, you could not grow as a whole and the planet could not grow. Yes, I mean all things must evolve.

Lilian: I found it interesting about the children with the disabilities—they really are special.

They are special, of course, because you know you choose to come to the lifestyle that you have and only those old souls feel strong enough spiritually to return to such deformities.

Sarah: And actually often the disabled people are very nice people, very happy people.

Yes, that is because the Spirit shines through. Yes, perhaps it will help you my dear friends to look at your fellow man in another way. (Pause)

Lilian: Yes, I think that is all the questions, thank you.

I will take my leave with you this time and give you some time for discussion if you so wish. (Thanks + farewells)

~12th March 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to say to you my dear friends, the spiritual light in this place tonight is so very bright. The spiritual light which emanates from each one of you is indeed something to behold. I know that you are not aware of this, but please accept from me that it is so. (Yes, thank you.) This time most of it will be taken by each individual's own development, but before I leave you to this, I would like to say something to you: Each one of you within this room this time in the coming year of your earthly life, there will be a significant change for each one of you and dependent upon each individual's own awareness and growth, will these changes be accepted or rejected. But what I wish to say to you my dear friends is this, that these changes coming to each one of you—and I would say it may not only be change for your own selves, but may involve those close to you—but nevertheless they will be significant changes, which should affect your awareness and your spiritual growth. Remember these words, because my dear friends it will only be in retrospect that you will see and remember my words this time. Each of you are going forward in your life's plan, and although there have been instances of hesitation and displacement shall we say, most of you are travelling the correct pathway. So keep this in mind also as you progress through this next one of your earthly life, your earthly year. All I will say now is that I would like to work quietly this time with this instrument, and if you my dear friend (Lilian) will take over and allow those others who wish to speak or those who wish to be guided, and let those who come close by you come a little closer. As I have said, this time will be used for your own individual development and next time we meet I will again speak to you of new subjects.

Lilian: Yes we look forward to that. Perhaps at the end of this year, if we can compare the months that have gone by we shall remember your words.

Yes, I ask that you do please. I go always leaving my love and my light with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~19th March 2001~

Unfortunately the tape recorder malfunctioned on this occasion, so no transcript is available. However we did ask Salumet to recap for us next time, so that any new teachings could still be preserved.

~26th March 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before I continue this time, I ask you my dear friend that this instrument be given a little healing from you, before she returns to you.

Lilian: Right. Will I be allowed to touch her, or just keep my hands away?

Gently, gently away and slowly to touch please.

Lilian: Is it because of the noise? (Yes) Sorry about that.

Yes, I had to withdraw fairly quickly, which is a little shock to the instrument, but do not be concerned, because there is no need. But I ask only that you do this for us please.

Lilian: I'm glad that there is no need for concern.

Firstly, my dear friends let me say this to you: I have told you that this, your coming year, each one of you will be confronted with a life situation, which you will find is spiritually worthwhile. Yes, I have told you this.

Lilian: Yes. We look forward with interest.

Yes, this will be discussed at the end of this coming year, to see if each one of you recognises the event which will help you to grow. I have told you it may not be what you expect, but for each one of you, this is a most important year and I have felt the need to repeat these words to you my friends.

Lilian: I hope that we don't let Spirit down.

You will never let us down. You can only let yourselves down. But I would rather say, not let yourselves down, but that you are in a learning process.

Lilian: Yes. Does that go for your instrument as well?

Yes, there are no exceptions. It is an important year for all of you.

Lilian: And even our travelling friend? (Paul)

All of you who have been touched, will in some way find this year to be one of spiritual growth. Now, my dear friends, I know that there are questions this time, therefore I will refrain from new discussion and allow any questions that you may have to come to me.

Lilian: Thank you. I wonder if I could ask a favour, if you could recap just a little bit on last week's talk, because our tape machine didn't work. It's more with the freewill and how we blend at the end of the journey that we are going to take.

Sarah: Just so we can have it in your words, so it is easier for us later on, to pass on to others.

Lilian: It is so nice for us to read them and think about it.

Yes, rather than repeat all of my words, I have been pleased my friends by what has been recalled by your physical memories and so shall we begin and if you ask me specific questions, I will be only too happy to answer them for you.

Sarah: The bit I remember you saying that when we first go over we still need our freewill. But then later as we grow a little more, then we no longer need it and we blend in with the—what was the word you said, it was somebody of thought, the Spirit of thought? I couldn't remember...

The Beings of Thought. (Ah yes.) Yes, the blending comes of course, you remember after much time. It is not something that happens too soon. After all, you have much spiritual evolvement to go through, before you reach this stage of blending. But I wished you to know that there is a point in spiritual life, when freewill becomes obsolete. But I do not expect you to think that it will happen before many, many aeons of time have passed. You do not remain individualised with freewill, but although you blend with that Love Energy, if you would like to call it that, there is still an individuality about the blending. Do you remember those words? (Yes) That was the point I was trying to tell you about, that although freewill stops, there is an element of individuality still within that love blending. Does that make sense to you my dear friends? (Yes) Are you sure?

Lilian: Yes, we accept your words, but often we need time to think about them.

They were the words that I wished you to think about.

Sara: I have a question not related to blending. Can I ask a question about dreams? (Of course.) My daughter is very interested in her dreams and their meanings. She is 14 and I wonder whether I should encourage her to keep a dream journal as a first stage of helping her to develop the interest.

Yes, there is no reason why she should not. By keeping such a journal as you call it, it determines the difference between 'dream state' and 'dream state in our world'—there is a difference. But the more you come to realise and keep note of all of these dream states, you will come to recognise those that belong and come from our world. Inspiration, judgement, guidance come to you all within your dream state. But of course there are also dreams that belong to the physical being, which are very muddled and are trying to make judgement of what has happened within your lives. So, you must make judgement upon these things and it will come to her. She will instinctively know the difference, if she continues to take note of them. (Thank you.) May I say my dear friends that each one of you should make note of what comes to you in sleep state, because not only do you come to our world, but you are given the guidance that each one of you seeks and needs, to perfect living upon this planet. Dreams are important to your development whilst you inhabit these cloaks of physicality. Do you understand? (Yes) So yes, my dear friend, please to encourage your daughter. (Thank you.)

Izumi: I do not have a question, but I am happy to come here.

Yes. This one will have much growth from involvement here. She already feels the love and the blending, which takes place within this room. There is much good to come to this one in her life's journey.

Mark: I was just wondering once we become part of a blending and our freewill has become obsolete, I just wondered what the purpose becomes then?

The purpose my dear friend, is that you have reached a state of being, which you have spent many aeons of time seeking and searching for. It is one step closer to the purity of being. That is the purpose. When you leave behind freewill, you are leaving behind that last part of any physical living that you have claimed and at last, when that is left behind, the true Spirit being can go forward. Does that help you?

Mark: Yes, I guess life would be so foreign that I couldn't even imagine how it would be.

This is the difficulty. Perhaps the nearest you will come to it is in the deepest state of meditation that you could attain, whilst in the teaching physical garb. But even that is far removed from the true blending of the spiritual being.

Sarah: Salumet, last week did you say when you reach this state you 'never' come back, or 'seldom' come back?

There is no need to return, once that state of existence has been reached. The Spirit if you like, if I may use earthly phrases, is at last free. It has no need to return to learn more. Therefore when that stage of being is reached, no you will not return to a physical existence.

Sarah: But you would be able to come back and visit (Yes) the physical in these sort of situations, in these meetings you could come back as Spirit?

You may return of course, because it is much easier to return. But you cannot go forward, until you are ready. But those Higher Beings of course, can come close to the physical living, of course. But I must say that unless there is a specific purpose that is unlikely to happen. Is that clear for you?

Sarah: Yes, thank you. We are talking now about us physical human beings, but people from other planets, although they are more intelligent than us, they would still have to go through this same process?

Of course, because they—although they may be ‘clothed’ in different garbs, may I say, they are still operating on a modicum of freewill, even though it may be entirely different from your way of thinking. There are of course much more spiritual beings on other planets, but the process remains the same. All are going forward in the same direction; you must remember this. It matters not where your placement is within the Cosmos, all are seeking that purity, that Love, that Higher Being, which we all belong to. So, yes, you are correct in your assumption. (Thank you very much.)

Margaret: I don't really dream a lot or I don't remember dreams, but I walk a lot on my own and this is when I get my ideas. I don't know if this is different from anyone else.

No, it matters not, you are all individuals. What is important is that you recognise when what you are given comes from our world. People find their own little niche for development, for gaining help from our world. Some people dream more vividly, others need to have quiet moments, others are just aware at all times. You are all human, you are all individual, therefore it is only right that you find your own way.

Margaret: Thank you very much. I have been asked by a friend who is very concerned about all these animals that are being slaughtered. (Following outbreak of 'Foot and Mouth' disease) I tried to convince her that the Spirit would go on, and would I ask you that you are sure that it does go on?

We have discussed this and it is difficult for those people in your world, who have no knowledge of the continuance of life. All Spirit exists and all those animals who you are so concerned about. Of course the Spirit goes on, but it is not individualised. Only those animals who have experienced a bond of love, a closeness with a human being, remain individualised within our world. The animals will go to a pool of Spirit, where the Spirit remains for some considerable time. But as in humans, they do not suffer.

Margaret: I tried to convince her, but it will be in black and white now, (Transcribed) when I show her our record of it.

Yes. She will not be convinced, because she lacks your knowledge. (Thank you.)

George: The Spirit planes that are close to Earth, some of us call the astral planes. I think it would be true to say that in those planes, we have some kind of body or individuality and freewill would come into the decision-making about reincarnation. But beyond those planes, some of us refer to that region as the Causal Planes, there would be losing or loss of individuality, there would be energy bodies, with some degree of connection and that is the region where freewill would be becoming lost. Is that fair commentary?

Yes, that is correct, but of course it takes many planes of existence. Of course when the Spirit remains close to the physical, of course it cannot forget all that has existed and that includes freewill. But my dear friends, freewill belongs to Spirit for some considerable time. You are correct, freewill is gradually erased, not as something to be disposed of, but a gentle, gentle inspiring thing. You are inspired by those greater beings in Spirit, who help you to blend to the greater cause of life. It takes many aeons of time for that freewill to be completely disposed of, even on the plane of existence of which you speak. Even with the blending and the easing of the freewill, that individuality still remains for some considerable time, until such time as the Spirit being realises that it is of excess to its evolution. It is a very, very gradual process my dear friends. We must speak at another point again about energy, because this is the forerunner of that topic. It is a blending of all energies. That is the fact of it, but it is much more complicated than I am able to explain to you at this present time. Is that helpful to you my dear friend?

George: Yes that is. We always tend to over simplify things in our attempts to grasp.

Yes, but it is necessary for your understanding to do so. I hope by just introducing a little more knowledge to you, then you can go that little bit further in understanding. (Thank you.)

Sarah: We are only one aspect of our Spirit that has come back here, that goes back over and then goes up into these different levels. At what stage do we totally blend together with the rest of our Spirit?

Yes, you are beginning to understand. (Good! —chuckles) Yes, when the freewill is ready to be disposed of, then you will join with many other aspects of your being. That is the point of joining, not with all, but with part. Again I am approaching something that we have not discussed as yet, but which we will do.

Lilian: Can our friend ask a question about her son, or is that too personal?

I will try to answer.

Jan: I have a very troubled young man at home, who listens to his dream state. So it is strange that you should have brought that up this evening, or one of my friends did. He receives his motivation and inspiration and his guidance in his sleep, but in his physical being, he finds it very difficult to break through—he wants to, but something mentally stops him from doing that and I wonder how I can help him?

Yes, I will return to what we have begun with my dear friend and that is freewill. You cannot help him in his spiritual quest. You can offer knowledge, advice, whatever you may wish, but he is the one who must recognise and deal with his own knowledge of life. I know this is not what you wish to hear, but it is best for him. He will reach a point of recognition, of understanding. At the moment there is too much going on in his physical living, but that point will come when he will be able to go forward. Do not think that inspiration and guidance that he is given is wasted, it never is. It is retained by that Spirit being, for when the time is ready for it to blossom.

Jan: It is very frustrating to watch, when I know that he receives it and doesn't seem to be able to use it. But my dear friend, can you not see that this is also a life lesson for you?

Jan: Yes I have only just appreciated that.

Yes, I cannot put it more clearly than that for you, but you too are learning from his experience.

Jan: We do seem to be connected rather more than just the fact that I actually gave birth to him physically. Am I correct?

You are. I do not intend to tell you in which way or in which way to go, because as you know, that would be interfering in your life. But I will tell you that there is a deep bond, which has existed for many, many lifetimes between you.

Jan: I had a feeling that was the case.

But you must allow him to go forward on his own. I know it is difficult for all of you, when you are involved with what you call 'children', but remember my dear friends, children are only on loan to you. They are Spirit beings in their own right. (Thank you very much.)

Lilian: Can I ask a question of something that happened to my daughter? (Yes) She has got some painful legs and she went to lay down in bed to rest the legs and ask for help from Spirit, and then she saw what she could only describe as a mist on the room. That would be Spirit would it? An indication to her?

Why is she surprised?

Lilian: No I don't think she perhaps was too surprised.

No, she has, that one, the ability to see. On the occasion you speak about, she was not seeing clearly, partly because of her pain, but of course it was spiritual help, which was surrounding her at that time. All of you must and should be aware of those helpers who come to you in times of need. When your cries for help are sent out, you are never, ever my dear friends, left alone, even if at times of distress, it does seem so. But I have to say, it is your lack of seeing, and sensitivity, which denies it to you. Do you understand? (Yes)

Sara: We cause our own confusion and troubles.

Yes. It is not that the help is not at hand. It is just that the mind is closed to it. Do you understand?

(Affirmed)

Sara: Yes, can I ask a question about health? (Yes) I know that you have talked about health before many times, but I felt strongly this week that emotional turbulence is very closely linked to ill health. (Yes) I think it always seems to precede, well in many cases, not all obviously. Is that right?

I have said in past times that—and I will state it simply for you: The power of your mind, creates dis-ease. Therefore the power of your mind can destroy disease. It is as simple as that my dear friends, but it is up to you all to try to achieve the best that you can. And only by cultivating the process and use of your thinking, can you take full charge of your health. It is something, which you are all capable of.

Sara: It is possible to go through the whole of life with perfect health, if the mind is...

If the mind is healthy.

Sara: It is humanly possible to have a whole, healthy body?

There are those souls who have that kind of existence, but I have to say that mankind as a whole, is less than well suited to good thinking. That is why you need so much upliftment and help from our world. Otherwise we would not need to come to you.

Sara: And we are only here, because we need to refine aspects of ourselves.

Yes. Look to yourselves for all ways of thinking, even to your way of judging others. Your way of thinking about other people, will tell you what is lacking in yourself. Do you understand? (Yes) Mankind has much to learn, but that is our purpose that we help mankind to help himself. That life, although clothed within these physical overcoats, can be good and can help you so much in your spiritual journey. It is my dear friends, up to each one of you.

George: Could I return to the subject of those from Spirit helping us? It occurred to me recently that both Jesus and his mother, Mary, continue to help us. Mary still appears in vision around the world. It seems unusual that a master should continue in this way, with the aid of his earthly mother as a kind of teaching and helping duo.

But why should it be surprising to you? Firstly, my dear friend, let me say this to you: Two thousand odd of your years is but a blink of the eye. Do you understand my meaning? (Yes) In all of time it is nothing, and why should it be so strange to you that two people—one whom you would call 'master', because he became so well-known upon your Earth, but the mother that he comes with, is part of his own Spirit. They are but two beacons of light, which belong together.

George: Ah! Yes, they certainly work together so well.

And they have chosen to do such work. Remember they are still operating with freewill and again you have returned the question back to where we have begun. And, with that my dear friends, I feel this time, that I will withdraw and allow you to think carefully about my words this time. (Thanks + farewells)

~9th April 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to say this time as you have joined together and have asked for much help for those in need, let me take this opportunity to say to you, my dear friend, our dear lady who has been absent from us, (Sara) she is being taken care of. All of those peoples that each of you have given of your love for healing, will be given help. But they will be given the help that they need and perhaps not what you would desire for them. This is an issue we have spoken of many, many times, but what I would say to you my dear friends is this: The loving thoughts that you send for healing for another human being, is the greatest gift that mankind can give. I hope that you fully understand how strong each one of you become, each time you give love to another human being in this way, because my dear friends, not only are you physically asking for help, but you are allowing those in our world to also seek and help those in much need. So, it is a two-fold issue here. Can you understand this? (Affirmed) Therefore if I may say to you, 'thank you' my dear friends, for what you do for those unknown to many of you, but still in need of much help from our world.

I wish this time to speak a little about why you come to this learning planet. Have not you wondered my dear friends, if you are but a spark of the Divine Being, Creator, Universal Light—call it what you may—have you not wondered why, if you are such a spark of Divinity, why do you need to come to a learning planet?

Lilian: Yes I have wondered.

You all have wondered? May I ask you please, individually if you like, what has been your own conclusion?

George: I feel it is a route to obtaining—well this is a human thought really—a route towards perfection. But then the divine is perfect anyway, but in some way that perfection has to become more extensive, if we manage to progress our little perfection here on Earth. I think that's the best thought I could come up with.

Yes, I thank you for it. Does anyone else have thoughts on this?

Margaret: I have often thought, why do I come?—but I come because I felt so—I don't know how to put this—helpful to other people in some way. If there's a question, I try very hard to answer it. I don't probably answer it properly sometimes, but I feel I am doing some good to somebody as well as myself.

Yes, thank you for those words. Anyone else have any thoughts?

Jan: Yes, just one popped into my head and that is to experience the giving and receiving of love. (Yes, yes.)

Mark: I wondered if it was something to do with becoming more conscious of yourself, if that had an evolutionary effect, (Yes) by becoming more conscious of yourself. (Yes) I am wondering, because in Spirit, it seems you're Thought, whereas here we're Thought and we are physical action as well, so it seems like a very direct kind of learning.

Jan: I think I know what you are trying to say. Physically, we have to experience...

Yes, it is an experience. Experience is the word, but it goes much deeper. Does anyone else—what about you?

Sarah: I was just thinking that our main object is to become one of the whole, (Yes) and in working on the planet, we are all trying to work together to become a whole, so that is the learning curve of trying to work as one.

Yes, thank you for those words. What about our dear friend?

Lilian: I have wondered why—you have told us other planets are more aware spiritually and I wondered why this planet is not more aware. It's becoming more aware, although I suppose there has to be a starting point.

Exactly, but I think you fail each one, to understand my question if I may say so. We know you are here. You have the task of growing spiritually, of evolving with this planet. This we already know, but if you are already part of that Divine Spark, why is it necessary?

Mark: I had one other thought: You can take cuttings from a plant and you can multiply, so could it be along those lines?

Yes, you are beginning to understand my friend. We are coming to that—yes, you are part of Divinity, you are Divine Spark, of course you are. But the purpose of returning to a learning planet is a little difficult to explain in earthly terms, but I will try for your understanding: Let us once more return to that precious stone, which so many of us use for explanation in your world. Let us take that beautiful diamond, which has many facets to it. Let us take that fundamental stone, which you call rock, which you call diamond. As each part is taken from that whole rock, what do you on this planet do to these 'sparks', shall we call them, of rock? You take them, you polish them until that same part of rock becomes an ever-gleaming, beautiful, individual stone, but it is still part of the crude rock, shall we say. Do you understand? (Affirmed) So that part of the rock, which you have taken, you have cultivated, you have evolved it shall we say, you have made it become a much more beautiful object. But if you put it back to the crude rock, it is still made of the same ingredients, is it not? (Agreed)

Mark: But you have made a greater whole.

Yes, you have created an even greater perfection, may I say. Perfection also comes in varying degrees. This is a difficult topic my dear friends, and I take it slowly, in order that you may understand. Think of yourselves as those small stones that need to be beautified, shall we say. You need that learning process, to again become perfection. That is what takes many, many, many, many aeons of time. You are essentially that Divine Spark, but what you are doing is becoming even more perfect, if I may put it that way. Do you begin to understand, or is this confusing to you?

Lilian: I think we are beginning to understand. If this planet was created by our thoughts, (Yes) there must have been a decision by a group of Spirit to create this planet for the learning. We must have known that we needed to come here to learn in the beginning.

We have discussed, I believe, that there is a point of Creation, where all things are known, where these things are spoken of. I use those words, because that is the only way I can describe it to you. Yes there is an intelligence behind all things; Divinity is not without intelligence. But remember what I have said, nothing is ever static. Do you remember those words? (Affirmed) Do you remember what I told you that it is ever moving, ever changing? (Affirmed) Therefore we cannot stay still, so there has to be intelligence behind all things, behind any kind of creation or thought or action. These are difficult waters for you to tread my dear friends, but as we go forward, you will understand, slowly, each little step of existence, each step towards that Divinity to which you belong. But what I wish you to know, is that you are all things, you are capable of all things, you are that Divine Spark, but you are that Divine Spark, which needs to be honed and improved, in order that you may return to that greater. Can you understand? Many words have been used here this evening, love being the most important one, because without love you cannot go forward. And this you know, I need not repeat myself about that. But I ask you my dear friends, that as you leave this room this night, to consider the few words that we have discussed. To see yourself as the Divine Spark, which has come to this learning planet and to find within each one of you, that which you have come to achieve, that task in your physical life, which you need to achieve, to become that shining stone. Do you understand what I say to you? (Affirmed)

George: Would it be true to say that Divinity continues to evolve? (Yes) And we are very tiny sparks of that evolution?

That is correct, yes. Divinity is always evolving and moving and creating. As I have said, nothing is static. Remember this because it is important for your understanding. You are indeed small, small sparks of Divinity, but indeed you are Divinity. All you need to do is to find that true spark within these physical overcoats. Because you see, my dear friends, it is these physical overcoats which hold you back. But again, as someone has used the words, it is a learning process, in order that you can evolve; it is a necessary thing for most of you. Do you have any questions for me this time?

Lilian: I was just thinking it's incredible what we have learned from you. I know you don't need our thanks, but...thank you.

Just small thoughts, just a few words to make you think for yourselves. That is my purpose my dear friends, in order that I give forth to you new thinking, in order that you too may pass to others the knowledge already obtained. That as your knowledge grows, so too can you become emissaries of Spirit and impart to others that knowledge that you yourselves have gained. The purpose is not to keep this knowledge within this room, (but) that the knowledge that is given, be spread far and wide to those who are ready for it. And we all know do we not, that not everyone is spiritually ready for this kind of information. That is where, my dear friends, I give my deepest thanks to you, for the knowledge and the understanding, the love and help that you give to so many others. And I know and I will say that each one of you has taken many, many of the opportunities put before you, and used many words wisely in the name of Spirit. I could not ask more of you my dear friends and I thank you once more.

George: I wonder if I could ask this question at this stage, because I think it relates. Mr John Garvey, a newspaper reporter, is writing something on the book for publication, and he has asked if he may sit in with us one evening, to listen to your words. I said I would seek permission. (Pause)

Yes, I will speak. All people who have genuine interest in my words are of course welcome. What I would say to you is this: that the gentleman is seeking; he has many thoughts, many words to say. What I would say to you my dear friends and to my dear friend who is in charge of you all, that he must be instructed in our ways of quietness and in respect of the dear lady's wishes. I am happy for the gentleman to come, providing he is happy to abide by these guidelines within this room.

George: Yes, thank you. I felt his heart is in the right place and I believe he is seeking.

He is indeed seeking. For all those who seek, we cannot turn them away. The only ones I would deny, would be those who have false impressions, if you like, of what we are trying to achieve. But yes, provided the dear lady here is happy to accept him within this room, I too will be happy to speak with this gentleman. I will leave it with you. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Last week we just had a quiet sitting. Your instrument you are using remembered absolutely nothing when she came back. Could you give us any idea as to where spiritually she had gone and why couldn't she remember?

Yes. Spiritually, she was here with you, physically she was removed. That is why there is no physical memory of what had happened to her. Remember when first I came that I told you this was not full control of this instrument? (Yes) But the time that you speak of, we removed her a little further from the physical atmosphere, if I may put it that way. But spiritually, of course she remained with you. If she did not, she would be in our world. Do you understand? (Affirmed) So although physically she had no memory, she was perfectly safe and at no time was she allowed to remember, because we were using her for other things. This is much too complicated for me to explain what happens when we remove someone's memory in this way. To work in full-trance, the mind, the brain of the physical being, has to be placed to one side. That is why there is no memory. But last time we took this instrument that I am using, a little further into our world. It has happened before and she has always been unaware of it.

Lilian: It's just that sometimes when she's come back, she's been a little bit weepy and not really wanted to come back.

Yes, but last time was just a step or two further into our world. Remember that she is not taken without someone replacing as I am doing now. But last time, although spiritually she remained here, the physical aspect of her was further removed. It is difficult for me to try to explain the mechanics of mediumship to you. It has never been successfully done, but one day I will try to explain a little further. And it belongs to the subject of light and energy, which is always a difficult topic to discuss with human beings, unless their knowledge is so great that they can fully understand and appreciate what I am trying to say.

Sarah: So if Eileen were to go into a full trance, would you still be able to come through her?

Of course, yes that is the purpose. Gradually we take her a little further and although her memory of my speaking is not known to her, she is still aware physically that she is still here, if I may put it that way to you. But in full control, she would have no knowledge whatsoever.

Sarah: And would that make it easier for you to come through her if she were in full trance, or does it not make any difference to you?

It doesn't matter now we have made full progress with her, even though we cannot truly say she is in full trance. There are many misconceptions in your world about the word 'trance'. There are many forms of trance and I would say that as I work through this instrument, she is almost to the point of what we would call full-trance, which means no memory whatsoever. But I have said for many of your years that we are happy in the way that we use this instrument. (Thank you.)

Lilian: I must say it amazes me that she doesn't remember.

Well, can I say do you remember when you are in your sleep state? It is almost the same, it is just that the physical and spiritual are slightly separated. Perhaps that is a better way to put it, because you know that each night in your sleep state the Spirit is removed from the physical body. It is a separation, it is not a severance, but the memory is not always there. It could be if you so worked at it, but again, that is a very individual thing to do and it is down to each one of you to achieve what you can, whilst in these physical garbs. Do you understand my dear friends? (Yes) I hope I have given you a little more to think about this time. (Agreed) There are so many things that we need to discuss, but I try to make sure that all that we discuss joins together to make for your understanding greater. It would be so easy to go from one subject to another, but there needs to be a joining together, if you like, of the information that I give, in order for you to understand. And of course, as I have always done, it is most important that we go over and over and over all that we discuss, because only by doing so, will you have full understanding. Are there more questions before I leave you?

Mark: My wife asked me to ask a question on her behalf. She says she has been disturbed by seeing faces just before she went to sleep and she asked me if you had any explanation, or any way of getting rid of them when she found them disturbing?

Yes. She is not ready for them, but those in our world are anxious to make contact with her, and as I have said to you, in the state of sleep, the Spirit comes to the fore. That is when you are most likely to have what you would call 'spiritual happenings'. The faces which come to this lady, should not disturb her, but they do, because she is not quite ready. If she is afraid, to silently say, please to leave her alone for now. And when the time is ready, she will accept them. But I would leave it to you my dear friend, to give her solace and comfort, to speak with her in a gentle way and not in an informative way, but a gentle quiet way and let her know that all is well. I would say about this lady that there are many in our world who would like to make contact with her.

Mark: In fact she has a good gift really?

Yes, but she is afraid. Yes, it will come—just give her more time.

Sarah: Perhaps she should think of them as friends and not as enemies.

The gentleman has the ability to reassure her. Perhaps my dear friend, you should look upon this as one of your opportunities. Can I leave this with you? (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: Any questions Izumi?

Izumi: Questions...I can't. English very hard for me.

Yes. This lady is coming to a time when she will make a decision in her life, which is important to her. I will tell you that the choice that she makes will be the right one and that is happening, because she has joined us here and spiritually, although she does not understand all of our words here, spiritually she is growing. After all, Spirit needs no language, Spirit is all understanding. Although you may not always be aware of this, her Spirit is growing in knowledge and that is what is important for her at this time. (Thank you.)

I will take my leave of you my dear friends. Once more, know that always I am close to you. I am aware of each one of you always, as are those in our world whose task it is to help and uplift you each step of your way. I leave you always with my love. (Thanks + farewells)

~April 23rd 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Lilian: Nice to be together again.

It is indeed good that so many have gathered this time. Always I feel your love and your welcome; for this I am most grateful.

Lilian: Yes, we are grateful for the love you bring us and the upliftment.

Yes, upliftment is something needed in some of your lives at this present time. Before I continue with new knowledge, I would like, my dear friends, to ask each one of you, what you have learned for yourselves in this these past few months. We have spoken of many new things, much new knowledge and for this time I ask that each one of you speak of what you have achieved, in order that the others may know, because my dear friends, each one of you has grown in your own way, in your own time, at your own individual evolutionary rate. Therefore, if you are happy this time to speak, then I will be happy my dear friends to comment to you individually. (Each sitter then made comments)

Mark: It is difficult to say really. What you have given me is something that I wouldn't have even thought about, I wouldn't have even considered them. They give me a kind of hope, I suppose, because it makes me feel that there is a much bigger picture and I think it has given me more confidence in my position in my life—more purpose?

Yes, you would say that your knowledge has expanded spiritually? (Yeah.) Yes, you my dear friend, until now, have taken each step slowly, but you will find that in this year of your earthly time, your knowledge will be such that you will be surprised by your own thinking. Thank you for your comments.

Lilian: I know it is difficult for Izumi. (Japanese guest)

Yes, it is too much. I know how she has grown, so we will say only that she has gained experience from these meetings.

Lilian: That's amazing really.

No, it is not amazing. We are speaking to her on a spiritual level and it is on that level that we speak.

Graham: Before I say anything, may I give thanks, say thank you. I would like to give thanks to those people on our side and the people on your side, for helping me with my health problems. It feels as though of late, that I have got a lot better and the tremendous upliftment and joy that has given me. (Graham had been struggling with 'Dystonia'—a neuro-degenerative disease—but he has since made a miraculous recovery!)

May I stop you there my dear friend. Where is your own self thanks? Who has achieved this? Of course you have been helped by many, but ultimately you, yourself, are responsible for your health. (Yes) So I would say to you my dear friend, give thanks to you. Do you understand what I say to you?

Graham: Yes I do—I will do that. It is difficult to know where to begin with what I feel I have achieved. It has enabled me to understand the position of the human race, where we fit into the grand scheme of things, it has enabled me to look at things from a very different point of view than I would ever have dreamed of, before I started coming to these meetings. I have been able to have spiritual thoughts, tried to think of things in a spiritual way, to have conversations with my wife, who also comes to this group, (Sara) about things that would never have been possible before and I find possibly ever more so in my life, as I move forward I am thinking all the time about things, almost constantly through the day. I try to think of things in a slightly different way than I have before, bearing in mind the things that we have been taught and I feel as though it has given me a lot of power and strength, which otherwise would have been lacking and more insight and understanding and compassion to those around me.

Yes, you have picked up much since you have joined us. May I say to you my dear friend that the one you call 'wife' has indeed been a special gift for you in this lifetime. That lady has much spiritual knowledge, even though she constantly seeks, she is what we would call a Spirit of much compassion and love. To this she has brought to you, but also to many others that have been acquainted with her. I would say to you that in this learning process, the biggest lesson for you my dear friend, has been the compassion and the understanding of others' problems. Yes, would you agree?

Graham: Yes, I would.

Yes, thank you for your comments.

George: At a personal level I think I have learned more humility, patience, sensitivity, appreciation of young children. I am feeling closer to Spirit at a different level. I feel I am reaching out to more people, through the book which is now being marketed in a small way, with the help of local newspaper accounts. And there are more plans for reaching out to more people, through what is written in the book and I see that as part of my work for the coming year or two. Yes, that is about it.

Yes, I would like to say this to you my dear friend: You always have been sensitive, but you needed to grow just a little more, in order that that sensitivity be utilised in the proper manner. This you have done, you are following in the correct footsteps of your life plan. You are most intelligent in the intellectual sense, but we give thanks do we not, to those friends of yours in our world, who are constantly with you, enabling you to go forward as you say, in those written words, which need to find a wider audience. We thank you my dear friend for this. We give many thanks to those of you who allow us to come close enough, in order that spiritual work may be given to many, many others; to those who are sceptical, to those who have knowledge, to all manner of peoples who are seeking. This is what your written word will do, it will enable many to have within their grasp the words of spiritual knowledge. I would like to thank you my dear friend for all that you have achieved. Thank you for your comments.

Sarah: I am finding it very easy now, to pass on the word when I get the opportunity. I used to find it a little awkward and sometimes it is not easy to express exactly what I mean, but I find it increasingly easy to slip in something about Spirit when I am talking to people. And the other thing I have found, since this operation I have had, it has helped me enormously to sit back and think. Whereas I have always been so busy rushing around I have had time to sit back and think and realise too in my moments of thinking, that maybe I would have been better not to have had the operation, to think that it has helped others around me to grow, whereas they would not have had the opportunity had I not had the operation. So yes, I am seeing things in very different light, to how I did a while ago.

Yes, may I say to you my dear friend, that always in your seeking and in your searching, you have been, if I may say, one who has tended to rush a little too quickly. This time of quietness that you speak of, is an intended quietness for you. It has enabled you as you have said, to give time to the quieter thinking time of Spirit, which is quite different from the quiet time of the physical being. Would you agree?

Sarah: I would indeed, yes.

There is much for all of you to learn, but I would say to you my dear friend, you have made great strides in your spiritual unfoldment. This does not happen in a short time, but takes all of your years of living, and these words my friend, applies to all in this room. For all of your years of living, you will continue to grow, to accept knowledge, to be much better human beings, to go forward, as I have said before, to become emissaries of Spirit in order that others may know what truth is. This, my dear friend, is what you have been achieving in this past year of your living. Thank you for your comments.

Margaret: I have two 'thank you's' to say. Sometime ago, I think it was a few years ago, my grandson is dyslexic and you said to have patience. Well, patience is all right, but you have got to be cross with him sometimes. Anyhow, we found a very, very good school and he is now 11 and he is such a wonderful boy and he is so kind and I think it was when you said to me to pray for him and wish him well, and I did and he has come out wonderful. The other thing is that my daughter suffered last year with cancer and I asked for help and she is coming through wonderfully and I would like to thank you very, very much for that.

Yes, I would say to you my dear friend, that the power of thought—and I do not apologise for repeating these words—that the power of thought is the most powerful thing you will ever have. To use that power of thought in a positive manner for good of another human being, enriches your own life. Not only do those people that those positive thoughts are aimed towards, not only are they helped, but you my dear friend, also benefit from that positive thought. I would say however that this positive thinking must be used on a wider scale, to be used for all peoples, not only for those who are close and whom you love.

Margaret: I do pray for other people.

Yes, but the most important people you can give thoughts for, are those who are most in need, not only in your world, but also in ours. For this dear lady, we thank you and I would say that you have learned well, how to use your thoughts for help. We hear them and we hold them and I take this opportunity to thank you. Thank you for your comments. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Well I do like to read the transcripts of your teachings over and over and I am still amazed at some of the things you have told us. I hope it has made me a better person, more understanding, patient—I do try hard and I'm sure it has made me a kinder person.

Yes, I will speak with you my dear friend and I will use your own words: You are amazing! You my dear friend are what we would call a most generous and simple soul. Life is not always easy, for all of you, you have your moments of distress, of illness and life in general seems difficult, but my dear lady, we wish to thank you, for giving the opportunity for all our other friends within this room to come together, because without people like you who are willing to serve Spirit, to help to spread the truth, we could not use you in the way that we have. You, my dear friend, should be thankful for all that comes to you, but we too, are thankful for your dedication to the work of Spirit. These thanks are not given lightly, because as I have said to you, without you, we could not continue this kind of work. I must say my dear friends, and to all of you I speak, since I have come to you, I have seen how the lights around you have grown brighter, I have watched each one of you with your doubts and then to see those doubts disappear. I have seen each one of you when you have spread the word of truth to others, I have seen how you light up, when the acceptance of truth comes to those who you know have been in the darkness of not knowing. I say to you my dear friends, there is much to achieve and I will say there is much good to come to all of you and there is much for us to achieve within this room. But once more I must say to you, 'slowly, slowly' and again I will use the word 'patience', which I know to you earthly beings, is a word that is not always used properly, but it is a word which my dear friend—(Pause)—Forgive me my dear friends, but I feel for this time that I must withdraw from you. I ask that you continue in the good work that you do and that next time we meet, I will speak with you on some new truth, which I hope you will find most interesting. (Thanks + farewells)

~30th April 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I said last time that we would speak about new truth, but I give welcome to the gentleman who comes to us this time. (John from Basingstoke Gazette newspaper who wrote article on George's book) And I feel it would be best if we had an evening of discussion and questions in order that he may see what truth is about.

Lilian: That's a good idea—he's a little apprehensive.

We welcome all who seek truth. I would say to you my dear friends that your thoughts this time have reached me. I hope that those of you who have been seeking answers will find them soon. Let us begin this time by putting a question to you all. What would you suppose that—what is Cosmic Law? We hear so often from your world that question. So my dear friends, I put it back to you.

Mark: To me it seems like it is the backbone to everything—the thing that holds everything together, but I can't be very precise about it.

Sara: Is it the laws by which man can live happily, effectively and progressively in this world—well, not just in this world, they originate from your world—the laws by which we try to live?

Yes. You are told so often by those from my world that you should abide by Cosmic Law, that Cosmic Law is perfect, and of course, it is. But I wish to say to you this time my dear friends, and as always, my words are simple to you: Cosmic Law is just one thing, it is a balance of all things—of light of darkness, of good of evil. All aspects of living must maintain this balance, if you are to live your lives in this physical condition. Therefore I would say to you: Cosmic Law is balance. Would you agree? (Yes) I would wish you my dear friends to think of this truth, because that is what it is, to think simply and you will abide by those laws so much more easily in your lives. Do we have questions my dear friends?

George: Would it be true to say that Cosmic Law arises from, or is intimately bound up with the process of evolution? It would embrace the physical laws of the Universe, but I think these physical laws would only be a small part of Cosmic Law. Cosmic Law would embrace the wider spiritual evolution (Yes) with its karmic process and whatever other processes are involved in evolution of spirit. Is there sense in that or am I talking rubbish?

My dear friend I have not found you to speak so far what you would term 'rubbish'. (Giggles) But of course in your learning, you need to take full facts, before you can come to the correct answer and this I would say you do very well. You cannot have a Cosmic Law, which does not allow the evolutionary process of all things physical; of course it is bound together. Cosmic Law governs all, not only this planet, but the words themselves tell you that Cosmic Law includes all, all that has been created. Therefore you have to allow that all things physical, physical evolution not only of mankind, but of the planet, has to be included within the Cosmic Law. So of course, your assumption is quite correct. Cosmic Law not only allows the evolution of mankind, of nature within this planet, but of all the planets within this Universe and the many others which exist. The whole of the Cosmos has to be within that greater Cosmic Law. There cannot be any separation. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Cosmic Law has to be perfection, otherwise what point would there be to it? It would not make sense, would it? (No) Perhaps I would say to you my dear friends this: That if you can see yourselves as you are, as you exist at this moment in time—the physical being—you are a whole Cosmic Law within that physical being, because you have the balance of good and bad, light and dark, all within the physical being. You are, as your scientists have already discovered, you are that microcosm of the macrocosm. Do you understand? (Affirmed) You are the tiny part of the whole, but that tiny part can be perfection. It is not easy to become perfection, and certainly not within one lifetime, but you have the energy and the power to become so. Do you understand my dear friends? Am I making this simple enough for you to understand? (Affirmed) Do we have any questions?

Jan: Well, my question has just been answered, because I was going to talk about the good and the bad and the light and the darkness in our physical anyway, and that certainly answers my question.

Would the gentleman (John) like to ask some questions, because he is seeking and I do not wish to be too complicated in what we discuss this time.

John: I would rather listen just for the time being, if that's alright.

Let us continue then my dear friends with any questions that you would like me to answer for you.

George: I think our perception comes into this, as well. I was reading recently of a more Catholic view that God punishes. This came out in 1917, when Mary appeared in a vision at Fatima. She indicated that we would be bringing World War II upon ourselves if we did not change. The Catholic view of this was that God would punish us for our wayward ways, but I think the more mature view is that we are directing our own evolution and we were evolving into a condition of WWII and directing that ourselves. So our perception is such, in the simple sense that God is punishing, but in the more mature sense we are leading our own evolution. Is that a matter of perception would you say?

Yes, well we must return to more simple things my dear friend. I have already spoken extensively and for your own understanding, we will use the word 'God', but you know that I prefer to use the more visionary words if you like, like Universal Love; that is more apt than the word that you use and know as God. You are restricted by this Earth's religions. Each has its own way to what you call God. We have discussed this many times. You also know my dear friends that mankind has been given what we call freewill and mankind has to be responsible for all that happens on this planet. You are the keepers of this planet. Therefore it is necessary for me to say that that responsibility has been much neglected in many of your past years. Mankind is responsible for creating much negativity within this planet and mankind must take responsibility for it. I have told you when first I came to you that the time had come for the truth to be known, that the Spirit of mankind had to be touched in order for this planet to return to what it was meant to be. Man has abused knowledge, man has abused energies given to him, scientists have ignored advice and help that we have tried to give. Therefore it was imperative that many of us from our world, came to this planet to touch the Spirit, because only when the Spirit is touched will mankind realise what it is that he has to do. You have the freewill to accept or reject truth.

Jan: But Salumet, there will always be those who accept and those who reject, because that is the lightness and the darkness, so that will always exist.

Of course, that is the purpose. Lightness will always overcome the darkness. But as I have told you, they are but reflections of each other. I do not wish you to see lightness and darkness as opposites. They are in your physical thinking, but spiritually you must see the wider scheme of things.

Sara: So, the crises that we have are manmade, but they are also part of our evolution. (Yes) We learn from the darkness that we create, and it's on-going.

Of course. You cannot have one without the other. They are but energy and they are but reflections of each other, but because of mankind's freewill, he has the power to accept or reject. Do you understand what I am saying to you? (Affirmed)

Lilian: So out of the disasters, as we call them, a lot of goodness comes. We can see that.

Yes. Only as you grow, only as you evolve do you see this. But I must return to the question put by the gentleman, because he speaks of perception. May I say to you dear friend, perception belongs to the physical brain, not to the spiritual mind, so you must be careful when you speak about perception. When the Spirit is touched, the mind comes forth and understanding is greater. You must not confuse intellect with intuition, there is a difference.

George: Yes. Going back to that event in Fatima in 1917; that was a time when I think the Spirit was very much touched.

Yes, that was the reason for the visitation, that it was needed at that time to make people understand what was happening.

George: It seems to have been a wonderful demonstration and it's a pity that mankind didn't heed the message that was delivered then more strongly, but on reading about it, the Spirit certainly seems to have been touched, (Yes) the Spirit of many.

The Spirit of many was touched indeed my dear friend, but not enough. It was indeed a time of great darkness on your planet, but I believe you would agree that since then, much has happened, that mankind has opened up spiritually and emotionally and mankind in this time is now beginning to realise what his plan upon this planet is.

George: Yes, and even then at that time, Mary indicated that it was important that Russia move away from atheist communism, (Yes) which has since happened. It seems to have been a very important message for the last century.

There is upliftment, there is knowledge given to many in this world, but it is a slow process. You must remember that time as you know it, means little to us in our world. As we see it, much progress is being made. Mankind will not destroy himself, because at last truth is becoming known. (Thank you—)

Jan: Salumet, something I learned the other day—I separate the two rightly or wrongly—evolution of the Spirit and evolution of the planet, are two separate issues to my mind. What I learned the other day was, I'd always been a great believer in mankind having a part to play in the destruction of this planet, but I learned that the evolution of this planet is an revolving thing, as evolution implies, that every so many million years, it goes through the same process to rejuvenate itself and our part in that at this moment must be so minute—I don't really know what I'm saying—

No, I understand your words my dear friend. Why should it surprise you? Mind consciousness—you imagine every human being upon this planet, you imagine the power of the energy of each individual as a force of energy—has much impact upon the evolution of this planet. Of course there is separation of planetary evolution and human evolution, but the two are intertwined, you cannot separate them. Although they go along a separate evolutionary path, you cannot separate the two, they belong together. Do you understand?

Jan: I feel that I want to say yes.

But you cannot.

Jan: No, I wouldn't be very truthful if I said yes.

I would not want you to be untruthful. Let us try to clarify it for you. What do you not understand?

Jan: Well, the perception that I have had, my mind or brain over the past 10 years regarding the destruction of this planet with global warming, etc. has now been completely quashed from what I heard a number of scientists say. What is happening for example on glaciers, happened one million years ago almost to the day and it's following its normal cycle and that we haven't had anything to do with that at all. And it got me thinking, that although we should take responsibility for that, in one way it is not our responsibility.

Yes, but it is your responsibility.

Jan: I know we can't shut our minds off to it spiritually and just ignore it, (Yes) but at the same time, if it were to destroy mankind—I don't know, in millions of years to come, there is a possibility that life will balance itself out again and life will start again on this planet.

Yes, we have discussed this. I do not believe you were here when we discussed the evolution of the planet and what mankind was up to, but let me say briefly to you my dear friend, again you are using the brain to make, what the gentleman calls perceptions. What you must do is look from a spiritual aspect.

You do have the power—mankind has the power upon this planet to change many aspects, but it cannot change the overall Law of the Cosmos.

Jan: I think that's what I'm getting at Salumet. I've come back to an initial—you see where I am coming from?

Yes, I do my dear friend and I am trying to clarify it for you. Mankind can change many things on this planet, but he is not totally responsible, because the planet has its own evolution. But you have to understand that they are entwined, you cannot separate them. I know this is difficult to understand, but you must try to look at it from a spiritual standpoint, otherwise it becomes confused. This is something we will return to at another time and I will go into it in more depth. It is a difficult subject, because you do not have the ability to understand. You cannot until you evolve yourself, you cannot see the wider picture. This is always the problem when we bring knowledge to you from our world.

Jan: We are always looking for a scientific answer!

Unfortunately—and I mean no disrespect to great minds upon this Earth, but scientists are changing their views slowly. You have two schools of thought: the traditional scientists and the scientists of what we would call this 'new age'—new age of knowledge and truth—who are beginning to understand that the physical, the planet, the Universe, is not what it was initially thought to be; that without the knowledge of Spirit, mankind cannot go forward. As I have told you on many previous occasions, mankind has lost so much, mankind for many, many thousands of years upon this planet, has taken backward steps.

Jan: Spiritually?

Spiritually. Always I speak spiritually. I should remind you, but I expect you to understand by now, but I forget sometimes that the human thinking is apt to forget so quickly. Always, always, as I have told you, when you have any kind of problem, when you are confused about any issue, sit quietly and let the Spirit come forward and always you will find that deeper answer. We cannot give you all of the answers, because you are not ready for it. We can only go slowly, use simple words, in order that you understand what we are trying to give to you, in order that you can go forward and give this to other people. You know this is our objective, that you are emissaries of Spirit, that without your help, it would be much more difficult—and always I thank you for this.

Sara: Can I just add something to that? So although the planet is evolving physically, we as human beings have to learn to love and attune ourselves to the planet as it evolves and perhaps that's where the two meet. It's not enough to scientifically analyse what is happening, we have to love it at the same time, to love the planet and that is what is missing.

Yes, love—love is all things—not only the planet, but all that exists within it. We have spoken about Nature Spirits, we have spoken about all aspects of life upon this planet. You have to become and recognise each aspect, not only of the vegetation, but all aspects: the land itself, the ground, the Earth, the sea—all things upon the planet—you have to become attuned to them to truly understand what it is about. You are quite correct.

Sara: So the big gap that we have at the moment is between the analysis and the love. We need to have the love, the genuine love of the planet.

Yes, you need to give spiritual love. Do not confuse spiritual love with physical love. Always think spiritually and you will have the finer answer to your questions. I know I speak so often of this my dear friends, but it is important that you look with spiritual eyes rather than physical. Do we have more questions?

John: I was interested in the evolution that we were talking about earlier. Is evolution just down to natural selection, or is there more to it than that, because it seems to me that natural selections can't account for the vast array of diversity that we have around us. Is it guided in some way, or is it really just down to natural selection?

No, you need to understand my dear friend and I know you are new to these many truths, but there are many aspects of guidance outside of this planet. When you realise the vastness of the Universe and let us take this one Universe that you are aware of and the vastness of all the other universes that exist, how can it be just natural selection on one small planet? There is guidance from without, that is for sure, that is truth, but it is within the plan of the whole Cosmos. It is not a selected planet. It is a planet of learning for human beings, but there are many such planets within the Universe. This is something you would not be aware of. But there has to be guidance, there has to be perfect law. Therefore I would say to you, you are correct, it is not down to natural selection. Do you understand?

John: Yes, thank you.

Mark: John was talking in the car that he looked up on the internet and found a reference to Salumet talking in America. It was spiritual—

When first I came to you my dear friends, I did say that what was given to you would be reiterated all over your world by many teachers. (Yes) I cannot comment upon the name, I am not aware at this moment in time, but I would say to you, names mean very little. When first I came to you, I did say that I was a conglomerate of beings, therefore single adaptations of names matter not. If the truth is being given in another land, then that is what we are trying to achieve. Remember also my dear friends—and I will not enter into this at this time—that we can be in many places at the same time. Do you understand? (Yes) But my dear friends, I will thank you once more for your questions. I hope I have helped you in your understanding and I look forward to our next gathering and know always that I am close to you and those who are there to guide and uplift you stand close by you. (Thanks + farewells)

~14th May 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Firstly let me extend a welcome back to our dear friend.

Paul: Thank you.

I hope, my dear friends, that this time you have felt peace surrounding you, because we feel that there is some need of it. Your healing thoughts too have been received and will be dealt with. This, my dear friends, leads me to the discussion which we will have this time. It is about thought once more—that very important thing in your lives. We have spoken briefly about Angels of Thought, have we not? (Yes) I would like to tell you my dear friends, a little about their work. There are many workers in our world, whose task it is to deal with the many thoughts which emanate from all people. I have told you in past time, about those people who intercept thought which is negative to another. Do you remember?

(Affirmed) Yes, I have also spoken recently about Angels of Thought. They are beings who are in control of all workers of Thoughts. But I wish to tell you this time my dear friends, about those Angels of Thought who work within our world, who help many people. Their work in our world, includes work within what we call hospitals—that is your earthly word for those places of healing within our world. I believe we have spoken briefly about the many colours, about the openness of these healing places. But what we have not discussed, is the work of those beings within these healing places, who are there to help all who are in need. The Angels of Thought, my dear friends, have worked and take control if I may use that word, in these healing places. They are responsible for the thoughts, which emanate from the people who are within these places of healing, because remember, when you depart from this earthly plane, when you are unaware of your passing, when you are in one of our healing hospitals, still the Spirit is thinking. Do you understand? (Yes) The Spirit is unaware, but is still able to think, much in the same way as when clothed in the physical body, the Spirit is still active. This, when in Spirit, is just another dimension of the spiritual body. Do you understand? (Yes) I will go slowly, because it is a new aspect of our teaching. If you do not understand what I say, please stop (me) now, and we will discuss it.

Lilian: Does everyone understand? (Pause)

You seem a little confused.

Sarah: There is just one thing Salumet. You said the Spirit carries on thinking although it is not aware that it has died. Surely it does know that the human has died. Is that what you meant?

No. When the physical garb is left behind, if there has been a traumatic passing, if there has been great illness, then they are not aware of their passing. The etheric body is, how shall I say, is affected by the physical passing also. The etheric body is in a state of existence closest to the physical. So the etheric body is the one which will need spiritual healing in our places of healing. Do you understand? (Yes) But within the etheric body, there lies many others—many stages of existence. Do you understand? In the same way as the Spirit is separate from the physical, so also is the Spirit separated from the etheric body. You have many bodies within the Spirit body. Do you all understand this?

Lilian: No, that's a bit puzzling to me. Anyone else understand?

Sarah: I understand that there are two: there is the physical and then there is the etheric—

You have the emotional bodies, you have the many other types of spiritual essence. Do you understand?

(Yes) Until you understand that my dear friends, I cannot go on with the explanation.

Lilian: So similar to the physical body, the emotions, all that goes with us here.

Remember, there is just one part of Spirit. You are made of many, many finer bodies. That is why you pass from one plane of existence to another. You leave behind that part of the Spirit which is no longer necessary and you become lighter and lighter and lighter, until you become that that pure energy, which I have touched upon on another occasion. Do you understand my dear friends? (Affirmed)

Sarah: So, once you get into Spirit, the etheric body is changing, the Spirit body is changing more...

Yes, it cannot stay still. Do you understand?

Sarah: Yes, but the human body to the etheric body, there aren't any stages there?

No, that is the closest to the physical state of existence, you understand? Therefore the Angels of Healing, are making contact with the finer essence, shall we say, of the Spirit, in order to help it understand the conditions which it finds itself in. These Angels of Thought, possess the ability to heal with thought and colour and many, many more ways of spiritual thinking, which are much too complex at this stage of your development to understand. But their task, as you can well imagine, is a more important one.

Lilian: And quite difficult at times?

It can take much time for the etheric body to awaken and realise that it has returned home—yes of course. Much depends on what has been learned on this earthly plane, you understand? (Yes)

Lilian: So when 'rescues' as we call them, happen, does that help the Angels of Thought in their work?

The Angels of Thought will not be really used for that kind of work. There are many, many other beings who are involved in what you call 'rescue work'; the difference being is that these people who come for rescue, do believe that they are still physical beings. It is being worked upon at a different level in those cases. So the workers for rescue from our world, are much more aware of earthly conditions and so forth. The Angels of Thought are hierarchy of thoughts, who are dealing with the Spirit and not the etheric body as such. You see, they operate on a higher level of existence. Do you understand my friends? (Affirmed) This is a little complicated for you. I do feel perhaps at this point, that you do need time to soak this small piece of information and gather it together in your thoughts and perhaps we can discuss it further on another occasion, because it is important that you take this slowly.

Lilian: Would everyone that leaves this planet, would they have to go through this process, or would some of us maybe not need it?

No, no, only those who have had traumatic passings to our world, would need healing in that way. Most people pass to our world of Spirit, accepting and knowing what has happened to them. It is only those, as I have said, passed under difficult conditions, who require healing.

Sarah: I was just slightly confused about the people who still believe they were in our physical world and those people who were going for healing. So the people who still think they are in the physical world, they haven't necessarily had a traumatic passing?

Yes, it could just be their time to go.

Sarah: right, because I was slightly confused about the difference between the people...

If I may interrupt you my dear friend—if you could imagine someone who has been very ill for many of your earthly years—this has to affect the etheric body also, because illness is passed through to the physical from the etheric and emotional bodies and even more spiritual bodies. This is a little understood thing within your world and a little understood thing amongst those in your world who call themselves healers. They do not fully understand all that is necessary to create a physical healing, because you see, this dis-ease of the physical body, begins in Spirit—as all things do—and manifests itself through to the physical body. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Paul: When you say it begins in Spirit, does it begin with thoughts?

Yes, of course. Thought is the most powerful thing. It is thought and mainly wrong thought, which starts off many of your earthly diseases.

Sarah: Sometimes we have brought diseases with us from a previous life, haven't we?

But still they have manifested from the original thought. Yes of course, you are correct, you can bring them with you and that is why it is advisable—and advisable only for that case—to find out what is holding you back in this lifetime.

Lilian: It's a pity there's not more awareness of it in everyone.

Yes, but you see, whatever you think, eventually passes through the spiritual body and manifests into the physical. I feel it is something not fully understood, that as human beings you have this feeling that the physical is the only body which creates disease, but of course, the mind belongs to the Spirit, does it not? (Agreed) Therefore think along those lines my dear friend and perhaps it may become a little clearer to you.

Paul: Would you say the diseased person has to change their beliefs and then their thoughts will change? They do not change beliefs, but they have to change their way of thinking. It is the thought pattern which is at fault. Let us take an example and perhaps you will begin to understand a little. Let us for example say we have a person who is highly critical not only of others, but of themselves. And have I not told you that you have love for yourself, before you can extend it to others? (Yes) So let us take this emotion of being over critical. People of that thought pattern, usually have the type of disease in your world, of the body becoming gnarled—I am trying to get the condition—yes you call it arthritis in your world. That is because the thinking becomes reality and that criticism begins to twist and become embittered and shows itself into the physical body. Therefore the way to dissolve that type of dis-ease, is to learn to love, not only your fellow man, but yourself. Can you see the pattern? (Yes) If you try to follow this line of thinking, I feel it will be a little easier for you. It is the power of thinking.

Sarah: So children who come over with arthritis, they have brought it from a previous life? Yes, yes. That is probably—I do not say all—but that is probably why they have returned to this lifetime, to undo that pattern of thought. It is a powerful thing I say to you. It is something each one of you should consider most seriously, because you can change what you think. And have I not told you in the past my dear friends, that if you constantly find fault in another, then look inwards to yourself—therein lies the fault. I feel from you that for this time I have said enough. I would like you to dwell upon my words my dear friends, because thinking is so important to the kind of living that you do and the power that it has over all other people that you meet.

Lilian: So with the right kind of thinking and the thoughts, our physical bodies could stand us in good stead for as long as we are here?

Yes and you would have the ability to help others as do the Angels of Healing in our world. After all, that is what they are doing with the power of their thought.

Lilian: So, although the body gets frail, which I guess is natural, that it can keep you...

Of course, it is part of your physical evolution. You cannot live here forever. You have to return home, but your purpose here is to learn all of those things, which are only for your own soul's growth, that you may return home and say that you have learned something; that is your purpose of living. But your purpose of living is not only for yourself, but for your interaction with all other people who come into contact with you. You have great responsibility my dear friends. When you meet with others, you do not fully understand or grasp the effect that you have upon others in your world. That responsibility is a great one. Do you have any questions before I leave you this time?

George: I think we are beginning to grasp the connections between physical ailments and Spirit and I was reading something recently about buildings in the latter days of Atlantis, which were described as between a hospital and a temple, (Yes) where spiritual connections with healing of physical matters were looked into. This came out of past readings of one Edgar Casey. (Yes) I think he was probably a very genuine individual, but the idea of something between a hospital and temple, for the purpose of healing, rather stuck in my mind and seems to connect with what you are telling us now.

Yes, I can say to you, this gentleman was a man of vision, but I have to say to you my dear friend, that these ancient people, have, or had, a much closer unity with Spirit. Their knowledge was so much greater than it is today. Therefore their knowledge would have been such that they would have understood spiritual matters much more deeply.

George: Yes I can see that.

Yes, they were much more aware of the spiritual aspect of man, and of course, healing and places of healing, would have been influenced from our world. Yes, thank you. (Lilian then asked if anyone had more questions)

May I say just a few words to the young gentleman, that he has felt closer to his own Spirit on his latest journey. (Yes!) Yes I think you would agree.

Paul: Yes. (Yes) It was a very uplifting journey. (Yes)

Sarah: Could I just ask one more? Going back to these Spirits who have just passed over, we do have rescues with people who have been handicapped all their lives and by the time they leave here, after the rescue, they feel they have lost any problems they had. Surely these people would have suffered spiritually as well?

Not in the same traumatic way. They would have lived their lives on this planet, as handicapped, as you say, people, but let me say, most of these badly handicapped, as you would call them, are usually old souls, who would be much aware when they returned home, of their existence shall we say. So their handicaps would no longer be with them. The people I speak of, are people who generally would have no knowledge of Spirit, who have been ill for many of your years and the spiritual light has diminished to such a degree, because of the illness of the physical body, because you cannot separate the two, while it is enclosed with physical garb. Do you understand? (Yes) You cannot make the connection I feel. The etheric body suffers with the physical, therefore when it is released to our world, still it is confused and the Spirit needs to be healed. It is the Spirit which is being healed, not the physical body.

Sarah: I remember you saying to us once that the Spirit was aware of all. When you said if we want to wake up early in the morning and then we suddenly wake up, and you said that it was the Spirit who had woken us up, because it is aware. How much is the Spirit aware and not aware? So, in this case the Spirit isn't aware that it has been traumatised, as it were.

I think you may be confusing Spirit and soul. We have discussed that it is the soul, which has many aspects. You have many Spirit bodies, but the soul is the unit to which you return, the soul is all-knowing. (Ah.) I think you are a little confused, but you understand now. (Yes, thank you.) It is the soul, which is what you are working towards. That is the all-knowing part of us all. Is that helpful to you? (Yes) Are there any more questions before I leave you?

Lilian: I was just thinking that there is so much to learn.

That is why it is important that we go slowly, that you ask questions while we are discussing it, so that your understanding becomes clearer. And as you piece together all of this knowledge, then you will see the wider scheme of life and how life goes on in our world. There are many planes of existence within our world and it is important that you understand a little of how it works. There are too many confusing theories that go around your world, which confuses people. So it is better that whilst you have the opportunity, you ask about anything you are not clear about.

George: Perhaps I am over-simplifying, but one perhaps could say that long illness can drag down the Spirit, can diminish the spiritual light. (Yes) But this can be recovered, with the attention of those in the hospitals.

Yes, it can be diminished, but of course cannot be extinguished; perhaps that is a way to put it to you. It may be drained of energy for some time, but it will come to full glory, if you like, with the help of those loving beings, who surround it at all times.

Sarah: So the loving beings, as you call them, whilst these people are in these hospitals, really what they are trying to do is to get their thought patterns right?

Yes, that is the importance of the Angels of Thought. That is their task, that whilst they remain in these hospitals, not only is the Spirit strengthened, but the thought patterns are helped to be changed. They cannot change them for them, but they can help and encourage. Do you understand? (Yes) I will leave it there for you now my friends. As always I stay close by each one of you. I am aware of all that is going on with your lives. I will always be close by. (Thanks + farewells)

~21st May 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good that you give out healing thoughts to those in your world, who are in need. May we say to you my dear friends, that when these thoughts are given, that you give an address for these people, because as you may well understand, there are many, many people in your earthly plane, with the same name.

Lilian: So the name then followed by the address.

It helps. Of course, we can find out, but it is helpful to us if we have the right person in the original thought pattern.

Lilian: Yes, we'll do that.

My dear friends, I have been aware of much thinking from you since last we met, but this time I intent to stay only a short time with you in speech. I will of course remain to work with this instrument, but what I wish to say to you this time, is this: there will be an evening of personal development for each one of you. I feel my dear friends that these intervals of self-expression and self-knowing, are for your own spiritual growth, as well as the knowledge which I bring to you. Therefore I will leave it with the dear lady (Lilian) to speak with each one of you, and I urge you please to give what you see, or what you feel, or what you sense. And do not be afraid to say, because anything unusual would be from our world this time. I wish to say to you my dear friends, I ask of you before we meet next time, that each one of you, because of your dedication and work, that it is time for your own initiation of spiritual growth. Therefore I ask of each of you, to devote one half hour of your daily time, in sitting quietly and you will become aware, each one of you, or your individual Guardian Angels. This will be my gift to each one of you, but of course it is dependent upon your willingness to do so and to sit quietly. We will begin next time, by speaking of what you see. Your Guardian Angel remember, is the one who came with you on your Earth journey and the one who remains with you throughout your earthly lives. Not all people are able to meet with their Guardian Angel, therefore I give this gift to you, with all of my thanks and my love. But you must do it each day, you must give one half hour of your daily time. You have the ability. All I will say to you is this my dear friends: do not seek too hard, allow your heart to be open and all will come to you.

Now, I will continue to work with this instrument and I ask each one of you to allow those close to come to you, to help you with your individual development. You will feel upliftment this time, before you leave this room. As always my love goes with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~4th June 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time we will discuss what has been happening to each one of you since last we met.

Lilian: You mean, did we see our Guardian Angel?

Yes. I feel this time, after we have spoken together, that we should sit quietly and see what help we can bring to you this time, but firstly let us speak about what you have each experienced please.

Lilian: Shall we start with you Mark please?

Mark: I think I got a glimpse of an old artistic looking man with a long beard, but I don't know if it's got anything to do with the Angels, but it seemed quite vivid—it was only for a moment.

Yes. Remember my words to you, that the Guardian Angels that each of you should see, would be the Guardian Angel who comes with you in birth and who stays with you throughout your physical lifetime, until such time as you return. Do not become confused with those celestial Guardian Angels, who have never trodden on this Earth. So I would say to you my dear friend that the gentleman who came to show himself to you, has always been with you. As we continue through this evening, I hope that each one of you will elaborate upon what you have been given. We will try to help you all we can.

Sara: I didn't see anything visually, but I felt tremendous benefit throughout each day and I can improve my meditation a lot more, but I felt peace, great peace and more detachment throughout the day. And when the challenges came, I didn't feel particularly emotional about them. So I did feel the benefit.

Yes. I have told you my dear friends, that if you wish to develop these spiritual gifts, and remember that you are Spirit, not physical beings—that is but a reflection of your Spirit—you should sit quietly for some part of your daily lives. Of course, this is entirely up to you and your freewill. But as you have experienced this time, much benefit comes from returning home; to leaving behind the physical living, which includes the unrest, the rush of time and many other physical attributes. It is only when you are quiet and go within, do you come forth in Spirit, and this is what you have come to understand. But there is no reason my dear friend, that if you can achieve that state of consciousness, why you should not come to know that Angel who loves and protects you and would be willing to come forward if you only but ask.

Sara: Yes, I shall, I would like to see. And thank you for the gift, of in a way making me make more effort, because it's a wonderful gift.

Yes. Although my mission here is to bring to you all knowledge, it is of importance that each one of you develop that spirituality whilst in these physical overcoats—that is what is important. Please always to remember that first and foremost you are Spirit. After all, you would not neglect to feed your physical being, therefore why should you neglect that true being, which is Spirit? Why would you neglect to give succour to that being? And the way forward my dear friends is to go within your quietness. Do you understand? (Affirmed + thanks)

Paul: Yeah, I've definitely felt the benefit of spending a bit more quiet time than I usually do, trying to do this goal. Just right at the end really, I had one—I thought I heard a voice say, 'I'm here' and just the face of someone with dark black straight hair and oriental features came and a couple of birds, like seagulls or something, were above—I don't know if that...

Yes. Do not doubt my friend, what you are given whilst in the state of meditation. Only if you willingly accept, can you receive more. I can tell you that it was not your imagination and I will leave it there, because I hope that this evening will bring to you much more information. (Thank you.)

Sarah: Yes, I didn't see anybody either, but I did a couple of times feel that my Guardian Angel was coming within me. I felt sort of 'combined' but I didn't actually see anybody.

It is all important when you sense these things. After all, you are joined together—this Guardian Angel who comes with you in each successive lifetime, who stays with you throughout all of your troubles and your good times in this physical living. To sense that joining together, is the first step of recognising that you are not alone. So do not be disappointed my dear friend that you had no vision—that will come—but to sense in that way that you did, I would say is most acceptable. (Thank you very much.)

Margaret: At the end of the day I did mine, (half-hour meditation) and I found that by the end of the time, I was breathing much easier and longer and I felt that there was somebody there. I didn't see anybody, but I felt this power of somebody there.

Yes. The sensing is good, it is part of what you are. As the lady I have spoken to also sensed rather than saw. Each of you are developing at your own individual rate of development. Therefore it would only be natural that you each felt something different. After all, if you all had the same experience, would it not be rather—how would you say, suspicious? (Agreed) Yes, so look upon the experience as a good one and such that it gives you the opportunity to realise what you can have. When the breathing slows down as you have put it that is when healing takes place within physical bodies.

Margaret: I realise that, thank you.

Yes, I know you have, but it is important for each of you to know and understand this. (Thank you very much.)

Lilian: For myself, the energy, especially in my hands and lots of movement with the hands, which I do get sometimes, if I sit quietly. I didn't see any faces or anything, but before the end of one of the half hours, there was like—almost like a white—I'll say 'blob'—my eyes were shut, but I could see this white very briefly, but no features at all, but lots of energy.

Yes. I am sure that your Guardian Angel will not be offended to be called a 'blob'. (Giggles) But if you had continued, I can tell you that—and again I will use your word 'blob', would have formed into a vision. So you see the importance my dear friends, of sitting a giving time, each day. All too often we hear you say, 'we do not have time', but again, think of my words. You are Spirit and you should be taking care of that part of you, which is the real you.

Lilian: Yes, that's worth remembering.

You have given yourself time, each and every one of you, because I have asked it of you, and for this we are most grateful, but cannot you see how important and how much better your lives would be, if you could devote some more time to this meditation? (Agreed)

Sara: Yes, it's obvious to me now that it's important to put in the time.

Yes. We of course cannot make you, but we can encourage and try to help you along and as I have said to the young gentleman, the more that you can accept, the more you can be given. So again my dear friends, we will devote this time, to helping each one of you, and if we may kindly ask our dear lady here, if she may place her hands in yours while you meditate, perhaps you can tell us what you are feeling, what you are seeing. (Yes) We will do our best. There are so many who surround you, who wish to help you; to help you to develop spiritually, to help you in your daily lives, to bring you that knowledge which you seek. But it is all within, if only you will go and search for it. So my dear friends, as I sit quietly with this instrument, I ask each one of you to quietly meditate, and after a little time, our dear lady friend will come to each one of you, to place her hands upon you. The power within will help each one of you. Quietly ask that you be given what it is you need to know.

Sarah: And when it's Lilian's time, would it help if I put my hands in hers?

I will ask the lady to place her hands upon mine. (Thanks + farewells)

~11th June 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

There is from you much love this time, but there are those amongst you who are in need of some upliftment this time. It is good my dear friends for all of you to join together this time, and before I continue I would like to say to our dear lady friend (Izumi), not goodbye, but that we wish her well in her onward spiritual journey, because that is what has begun and it will continue for her. Last time my dear friends we had an evening of individual development. I trust that you have thought about this and I trust that some of you have continued with your meditation times. (Affirmed)

Lilian: Yes, I suspect we all have.

It is important at this stage of your development that you should attain some discipline in your lives. Do you remember my dear friends that I told you not only is it important that I bring truth to you, but that you seek your own development spiritually? (Yes) Therefore, because we have others with us this time, I feel it would be good for you all if we devote some more time to this objective. Would you agree my dear friends? (Agreed) To have discipline within your physical living, solves all of life's problems for you. I hope that you are beginning to understand. Not only do you need the quiet time, but you need the discipline of your thoughts. And now we have reached the point where you must recognize those who are around you, to help you and uplift you and to guide and to teach you, because it is not only I who comes to teach you, but those who stand close by you also. So, I will leave it with this dear lady, (Lilian) to explain to the others what they need to do. I will work quietly with this one, but at the end of this meeting there will be one who will wish to speak to you all.

Lilian: Thank you. Should we go through the same procedure as last week, with the hands? (Yes, yes.)

After a period of quiet, Lilian went round to each member of the group and placed her hands on theirs for a few minutes. After a period of meditation, one came through Sue:

(Welcomes)

From each one here we are extracting a fine skein of energy from you all here. We are taking a fine, bright cord from each one and we will place them like this over this arm—entwine the skeins. Are you with my words as I speak? Are you with me so far?

Lilian: Yes, you join them together.

It is like the plait of the hair, yes, you understand? (Yes) Each skein of energy is to be mingled with the energy of another, until each one of these wonderful friends have a common bond, which will be used for upliftment and enlightenment at times of sadness or illness or worries in the mind. Do you still appreciate my words?

Lilian: Yes, we understand so far.

We are storing this amalgam of your innermost energy and it will be a powerful, powerful source of light and love, because it has come from each one of you and you all share this bond of spiritual love and acceptance. Are you still understanding my words? (Affirmed) It is a bond, which can never be unravelled, shall we say. The bonds will grow tighter and tighter as your Earth time progresses. It is difficult I know for you to quite comprehend exactly my meaning, but I have to tell you that it is something that has been planned for some time. It is an important part of this group's development and association with each other. You are aware I am sure that other parts of your souls have been together as a group in previous times. Am I right? (Yes) Let me tell you then that in different times, a similar thing has been achieved with the same parts of souls. So, try and understand that in the aethers, there is another entwined ball of power, which has come from you all and is continuing to help your previous parts. Do you understand me? (Yes) Difficult I know but perhaps the Master will be able at some time to explain a little more fully. Be proud my children that such a ball of love has been produced from yourselves. (Pause) It is complete.

Lilian: Could you explain your part in this?

My part?—I am the voice who has told you, that is one part of my understanding of what you are saying, 'why am I here for this?' I am what you in your words call 'lighthouse keeper'. I have the knowledge to use these balls of entwined energy to guide darker feelings into the light. You understand me? (Yes) When any of you are low spirits for whatever reason, it is within my power to use the entwined power of love to guide you into its beneficial love. Do you understand me? It is the only way I can give you information in way that perhaps you can understand and follow. (Yes) I have obviously simplified it; it is more complex and more extraordinary than you could imagine, but I could not expect you to understand fully what occurs with this entwined energy. So will you accept my words as lighthouse keeper?

(Affirmed) Lighthouse keeper in your world is in charge of the beam of light, which helps the passing ships, am I right? (Agreed) So I use the light of love to help the passing Spirit and mind and thought waves. Is that simple enough for you? (Yes) But as I say, perhaps our dear friend, your Master, will be able to give you some more information at some time. I will see what can be done in that matter. Now, I leave you. I am sure it will give you what you say: 'food for thought'. Question as you have always been told, question, do not just accept it, question and then things will become clearer to you. But I say this to you just this once more before I leave you, dear friends, feel proud, feel proud that you have the knowledge and the love and the commitment in the love for each other here, that such a thing can be done. A small piece of you will always burn brightly and will always be part of each other. Imagine like you would, twins or triplets or quads, I don't know if there is a word for all of you, but you have the umbilical cord and you are sharing it. Do you follow me? (Affirmed) I leave you now to think and discuss and ponder, and I am sure you will be asking questions at your next meeting. The greatest love surrounds you and is mirrored and is sent back. (Thanks + farewells)

Finally one followed through Eileen, calling herself Betsy, who has been visiting the circle from Spirit realm, along with many others, for many years, also listening to the Salumet teachings, though we have been unaware of her regular visits. She encouraged us further with our individual development. She also mentioned that Leslie oftentimes comes back to visit the circle too, which we were all delighted to hear.

Betsy departed with the following prayer: May you always feel love and compassion in your hearts for your fellow man, and not only for your fellow man, but for yourselves, because without the knowledge and the understanding of love and compassion for yourself, how can you love another? May Love always surround you my good friends.

~25th June 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Lilian: I can switch the fan off if it disturbs you?

It does not, but I will try to raise the voice level for you.

Let us give thanks to the Great Creative Force for this quietness and stillness which we share this time. We ask that we be given some understanding of the unity, which you have with that Creative Force.

That brings me my dear friends, to what I would wish to say to you this time. I know that you have found meditation time in the past weeks to your benefit, would you agree? (Agreed) Why do you suppose that we asked you to concentrate on this meditative time? (Pause) I will tell you. You have reached a point, my dear friends, in your individual developments, when it is important to recognise the unity, which you share, not only with each other, but the Creative Force to which we all come from. That is the purpose of your meditation. I will say only this to you my dear friends that it is now up to you whether you continue, or discontinue these quiet times together, with that Creative Power. But I would say to you, that should you continue, your wisdom and knowledge of energy would be great, your understanding would expand and your own spiritual knowledge would therefore come to the fore. I wish now for each one of you my dear friends that you begin to recognise yourselves, not in the human form, but that bundle of energy patterns, which you truly are. That is the purpose of your meditation. I will not speak to you as individuals, I will leave that with you and the freewill which you have been endowed with. But what I would say to you, is that not only would you blossom individually, but you would gain in being within this group, you would grow as one. So I ask you, my dear friends, to think upon these words, think deeply and you will have your answers.

Lilian: I'm sure we will all sit in our quiet times.

I have been with you all at many stages of your living, with your many questions, with your fears and your worries, and yes, my dear friends, you do still have these fears, these worries of human living, and constantly you are knocked backwards by them. But that is part of the soul's growth. But a question I hear quite often is: 'Why must there be so many reincarnations, and how does it work?' My dear friends, I could use few words or I could use a great many words in explanation. But what you can achieve in your meditation time, is to recognise within yourselves, the energy patterns that belong to you, at this present moment of your development. Remember you are but constant vibration—energy which is never still, and like human living, the soul is often knocked backwards and has to regain itself and go forward. Perhaps I can explain it to you a little, by making some comparison to the waves in your oceans. As the waves come forward, they are moved backwards constantly—forwards, backwards, until it gains such an impetus, that on going forward, it gains new ground. That is what the soul is trying to achieve. That is why you reincarnate into many lifetimes, in order that you can gain the momentum for the Spirit to grow and to go forward. Do you understand my dear friends, what I am saying to you?

(Affirmed) Are you aware of the importance of your meditation quiet times? (Yes) (Tentatively)

You do not seem too sure.

Lilian: Is there any explanation for as I sit quietly, I get this very heavy feeling from the energy?

It is a recognition of the energy, which is both you and those who come close to you. It is as simple as that. But it is the awareness, my dear friend, which is important. You will experience no doubt, many sensations, whilst in the human form, but it is the awareness of what you truly are, and the unity with that great power, which is important. Once you have recognised the unity, then all things become possible. Are there any questions my dear friends?

George: In talking about the many reincarnations, we are very often I believe, talking about tens of thousands of years, perhaps hundreds of thousands of years, (Yes) so that there are many today, who had past lives on Atlantis. Perhaps I could mention this, and misuse of power was one of the problems in the days of Atlantis, so we understand. (Yes) Could one see our recent confrontations with the nuclear bomb, as a chance for those same souls of Atlantis, to re-work that old problem? Does that connect with what you have been saying?

Yes, those who existed at the time of which you speak, would of course have to readjust to the conditions which they have caused. After all, everything is cause and effect, as you know.

George: Yes, and the learning that goes with that.

Of course, any opportunity that would arise within this world, for all—I rephrase—not all, but many of those souls, to redress the balance of their existence. They would take the opportunity for some situation within this world, to do so. And yes, that could be one of the opportunities open to them, because mankind has abused the power, which he has been given, throughout the existence of this planet. Not only did the people of Atlantis, but many civilisations on this planet, have abused power. And I will give you one example and that was the people known to you as Egyptians, who had much knowledge also and who also abused that knowledge. There are many situations within your world, where these peoples could return, in another form, to redress the balance of their abuse. I will not say all, because that would not be correct. There would have been many opportunities for them, but of course, when so many are involved, then very often, they choose to return as a group, to redress that balance. Do you understand?

George: Yes, that's very interesting. I would imagine one of the problems of those ancient times, was slavery and I'd imagine that similarly, there was a particular slavery problem in our 17th century and onwards. Perhaps that could be seen as a chance for the same souls to rework the old problem and find a solution?

Yes, it becomes difficult when you speak of individual cases, such as you have stated, because remember that man has been evolving for many, many aeons of time. You do not always have the full picture. Those who you are speaking of, who have been enslaved, do please remember that for some at least, that would have been their choice of living. So you must not always assume that there was wrong-doing—they would have been redressing their own balance. So you must be careful in your thinking. But I hope that makes it a little clearer to you.

George: Yes, one must view the situation from all directions.

Yes, do not be fooled into thinking there is only one answer, because there is only one answer, because then you will go into deep waters and you become bogged down with wrong ideas. Always look inwards, see these conditions from the spiritual viewpoint and the picture will always seem clearer to you. Is that helpful? (Yes, thank you.) The further we go into our teaching, the more difficult it becomes to understand. But you will find that the more you go into your meditation and your unity with the power-head, the more you will see more clearly, understand more clearly. In fact, that Spirit which you are, will bring forth the understanding which it already has. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Graham: Meditation is new to me and it's quite an interesting experience. About a week ago, I meditated one evening and I really felt I was in a different place and it was very exciting and I haven't yet managed to be as disciplined as I need to be, but it's certainly a very encouraging experience and it is something I haven't forgotten and it will be with me and I'll certainly do my best to meditate in the future.

Yes, may I say my dear friend, you say it is new to you? (Yes) That, it is not, it is innate within you, because you see, you are Spirit and what you are doing, is allowing the true self to be exposed. So although you feel that in this lifetime it is new, it is not, it is the connection to your own soul.

Graham: Yes, thank you.

But the more that you can do this, the more will be that your understanding will grow. In fact, I may go so far as to say to all of you, my dear friends, that at some stage of your quiet moments and if you have united with your own Spirit, it can also become a little painful, because everything becomes so much clearer, that sometimes the truth is rather shocking to you. And I do not mean that to make you afraid, but it is to be helpful to you, in understanding what you truly are. Do you understand? (Affirmed) So if this should happen to you, then you will realise, my dear friends, what is your purpose, because nothing can be hidden from you—that is what I am trying to say.

George: That brings back to me something our dear friend Leslie used to say, that we should accept and always be prepared to accept and somehow the fear goes.

Yes, if you cannot accept, you will constantly live in spiritual darkness. You will always have fear of living, you will have so many negative thoughts. But when you reach the point of knowledge, of knowing yourself, all of these fears are dispelled, all that is negative disappears and only energy of light will touch and surround you. Do you understand? (Affirmed) There is so much to you, my dear friends. I am trying to help you, in getting to know yourselves. And in doing so, it has the effect in your physical living, of making life—not easier, in the human aspect of living, but it makes your understanding of living so much easier. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Do we have more questions please? (No further questions)

I will say this to you: The purpose of your coming together in this time of living, is my dear friends, to go forward with truth, with light, with knowledge of all that you have gained from our meetings. But before you can do this properly, you have to know yourselves. It has taken many lifetimes, my dear friends, when you have met before, when you have come together. But in this lifetime, I can tell you, that you have agreed to be open to all that you meet, in order for the truth to be given. That is the purpose of your meeting in this lifetime. It is not for your own self-worth and development, it is that you go forward, that you take the teachings, the light, the truth, the knowledge which you have gained, and you spread it throughout this world. There are many, many people, who will be doing the same. When I first came to you, I told you that many from my world had gathered. And this I believe, my dear friends, you will see throughout your world, at this time. There are many teachings going on, which will collaborate what I have been telling you. But at this point in time, as I have told you previously, this year in your earthly lives, is a most important one. Each one of you will have trodden a different pathway, but ultimately you will spread the same words. That is why we come together, to give thanks to that Creative Force, to try to comprehend the Truth, to try to understand every human being on this planet, with love for all of your fellow man. You my dear friends, have that ability, you my dear friends have given of your time, have devoted yourselves to my words. But now it is time for those words to be given to others. That task, my dear friends, belongs to each one of you, in your own individual style, in your own individual way, to take it forward and to spread the Truth. That is why, my dear friends, I chose to come to you, because individually you are so different, and yet you are united in Spirit. You have total commitment to your own Soul and this is what you must come to recognise. It is important my dear friends, and this is the last time that I will speak to you about meditation. You do have your freewill, but you also have that innate knowledge of why you are here. Let it come forward and use it please. May that great Creative Love enfold each one of you, in Love and Light, with wisdom and above all, (Long pause) may each one of you feel the blessings which come from many in our world, to each one of you. I know my dear friends that as you leave this meeting place this time, there will open out to you, a new understanding of all that is happening. I must leave you this time, but I hope that my words have given you something to think about.

Lilian: Yes and our love goes with you and all of our friends as well. (Thanks + farewells)

~2nd July 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I would like to begin this time, by saying—(Long pause)—forgive me, my dear friends, adjustments are being made this time, but I will say to you all, that there are many who wish to thank you, for your healing thoughts this time. I only wish that you could see your own colour vibrations, which have reached out to our world, in your healing thoughts. This is something we must discuss, because although we have touched upon colour and healing energy, we have not explored this to its fullest. Therefore, my dear friends, I will discuss fully with you next time about that. (Thank you.) Because it is a little more difficult this time, I will work quietly with this one. It may be, my dear friends, that you may become aware of some light formation around this instrument this time, as I work to take greater control. If you do, then please discuss it quietly, but there will be another to speak with you through another instrument. As always, know that we are all united in our spiritual awareness. (Thanks expressed)

Lilian: Thank you. We'll look forward to the next time.

One then followed through Sue:

It is kind of you to greet me, I was not expecting to use instrument for voice. I have come, how would you say, as protector for the lady who sits beside me. I am here to oversee the work, do you understand me?

Lilian: I see, yes.

But I am happy to speak to you for a short time, if you wish it. (Yes please.) Would you be interested to hear what my purpose is this time?

Lilian: Yes. Is this the first time that you've come?

No. No, I am how would you say, 'normally about,' when the dear lady is taken. But it is rare, in fact I have never spoken here before. May I say to you it is an honour for me. I have spoken in other circles and meetings in your world, when my work was of a different kind. So yes, I am used to using the box. And I'm used to having the strange feeling, you understand? It is a strange feeling, to be back using the physical. Now my purpose here. Although the lady is perfectly, perfectly safe, you do understand that you have no worries there, have you please? Say them if you have. (No) You have no worries—that is good. I can assure you that the lady is as safe as if she was sat here herself, quite normally. Although she is perfectly safe, we do have to take great care of the ‘space’ where she was, do you understand what I say to you? (Yes) Although you are seeing your dear lady friend, as you saw her some few moments ago, it is not the same. Do you understand me? (Yes) There is on our side, a ‘void’, because we have removed the lady to another place. Do you understand me? Please stop me if you do not understand. But it is vital, it is vital that when we return the lady—no not the lady, the Spirit of the lady; when we return it to the physical, that the void has not been violated. Is that a word you understand? (Yes) It is vital that there are no others, who have stepped into her physical shoes, do you understand? (Yes) Because although we are in Spirit, please do not think that there are not others, that would not try to do this. They are always under control, but when something like this occurs, and it has occurred, though very rarely, it can be a problem; not a problem for the Spirit that is returning, because all we do is keep them to the side for a little time. This lady’s Spirit is armour-plated, if you like—there is nothing that can touch it. But we have to remove someone who has stepped into her shoes; not this lady, it has never happened here. But I say to you, it has happened on the very rare occasions. Therefore this ‘void’ has to be protected, and that is my work. I am able to speak to you now, because I am not alone here, there are others who are doing the same work and my presence will not be missed, for a short time. Do you understand? Have you any questions?

Lilian: If someone does slip into the medium’s shoes, it can be put right, can it?

Of course. It is, how would you say, a small irritation, but one that could be a bigger problem, if it was not well guarded.

Lilian: With help from both sides? From us here in the physical?

If—yes, if it happened, then yes we would be asking for your help also. It is a little complicated to explain, because if it happens, we would ask for your help individually, at the time. It would be—let me put it in a way you would understand—a battle of wills, yes? (Yes) But good will always overcome bad, you realise that, because it is just a matter of surrounding the Spirit that has stepped into the wrong place and with the power of thought, removing them to another place. No harm comes to them. Sometimes—in fact nearly always, it is more mischievous than an evil intent, you understand? But I have to say—and I’m sure you are well aware from all the teachings you have been given—there are Spirits that need control, if you understand. So, have I explained myself, my work that I have been doing—have I explained it fully enough for you to comprehend? (Affirmed) But I must reiterate, it is not any problem at all, to your dear lady friend and to our dear lady friend. There is no question of, how can I say for you to understand, two spirits in the same body. That cannot happen, that cannot, cannot happen. We just keep the lady, or whom so ever it may be, to one side, until the problem is dealt with. And when all is safe and secure once more, then we slowly bring the lady back into her physical being. She is unaware of any problem, any delay, because as you know, she is unaware of having left her physical body. So that is something else I hope, that is of interest to you and will give you discussions in your own time. But I must make quite clear, it is NOT a serious problem. Every one of you here, regardless of the work you do, your meditations are always well guarded. Nothing, nothing is left to chance, you understand me? (Yes) It is as I said before, like an armour-plating around you—any bad arrows are just dropped away, like a fortress, you understand? (Yes) It is a fortress of great love and there is nothing that can penetrate love, I’m sure you have been told. (Agreed) Loving thoughts, the power of loving thoughts, is the greatest, greatest protector of all time, not just in our world of course, but in your physical beings. So as I leave you, I just say to you, as I know you have been told many times, please try to avoid the negative thoughts. Yes, always think of positive thoughts, always send out love, which you would expect in return. Yes, yes.

Lilian: Yes, I’m sure we do all try our best.

Oh, no one is perfect, dear lady, not in your world and certainly not in our world. There is always room for improvement. Anyone who says to you that they never ever stray from the path of loving thoughts, well we have to take it with a little pinch of salt. Yes, I have my little joke, but you understand me?

Lilian: Yes, we don't suddenly become saints?

Is there such a thing? I'm not so sure. Some people are close to it, I will not deny that. But I have to say, not in your world. Dear friends, I thank you for your time and hope I gave you some food for thought. (Thanks expressed) I leave you now, with my love and the love of all those you cannot see, but that are in this room with you.

Lilian: Yes our love goes to them and to you as well. Thank you.

One last thing dear lady—take care of yourself; please try to rest a little more than you have been doing of late.

Lilian: Right, I'll try.

Yes, I know you will try, but please try just a little harder.

Lilian: I need reminding sometimes. Thank you.

Look over your shoulder from time to time and maybe someone there will remind you to do just that. There then followed a 'rescue' through Jan, before we finished.

~23rd July 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time my dear friends I will take the opportunity to speak with you about the many thoughts that pass into our world. Each thought sent to us is never lost as you all well know, but what I feel you are unaware of, is the colour vibrations of thought. I feel my dear friends that each healing thought that is sent to us, comes from a colour vibration. Is anyone aware of this or not? (General 'no's) You know that thought is but energy and that there is a range of intensity of thought—I know you are aware of this, but what you fail to recognise is that the colour energy reaches us before even your spoken word. All too often those in our world will hear from you, 'why are my prayers—which after all are thought—why are they not answered?' We have discussed briefly my dear friends, about the power of thought and the intensity of thought. Some of you will recognise that in colour thought, there is much disparity of thinking. But what I would say to you my dear friends is this: that every colour that you are aware of on this plane, each colour holds all other colours within its range. This is not widely understood, but you know that light is pure energy and that as your so-called colours deepen, then that density increases. It is but vibration as you understand it, and so is colour in the same range of thoughts. Am I making sense to you my dear friends, because if I am not, please stop me and we will discuss it, until your understanding is greater.

George: Yes, I think you are telling us that our physical colours with which we are familiar, have different wavelengths. I believe you are making a case for thought being on very similar lines to the physical colours, which we understand better.

Yes, the intensity of thought will bring the lighter colours to us. Do you understand this? This is what I am trying to teach you. That is why some people will say, 'my prayers are answered.' It is because the intensity of the thought travels on the lighter colour vibration. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Sarah: No, I don't quite understand. Why should they think that their prayers have been answered, just because it is on the lighter...

It is the intensity of the thought, the love of the thought, the power of the thought.

Mark: Would it be what they mean is that their connection has been made, they know that they have made their communication, (Yes) rather than necessarily knowing the outcome. (Yes)

Lilian: I think you once said that with our thoughts, when we hear of a disaster and our thoughts are really very sorry that this has happened, this is our most powerful prayer.

I believe I have told you that one of the most powerful prayers, or thought, or vibration—call it what you will— is the pure love of a mother for her child. That is the closest you will get to the most powerful thought, because it is LOVE, Love in its purest sense, which creates that stronger thought vibration. Do you understand this? (Affirmed) So many people send out thoughts to our world, very often for their own needs; where do you suppose my dear friends that would be placed in the colour vibration of thought?

Sarah: Fairly low.

Yes. It is difficult to speak on the scale of higher and lower. We have had this problem before, in explanation, but it is the only way I can bring it to you for your understanding. Let me take an example for you. Let us take the people on your Earth plane who are instruments of healing from our world. Sometimes they become aware of many variations of healing colour, but these colours come from our world and not from the physical. They are therefore much lighter in vibration, they are stronger and they are different from colours in your own world. We have heard you say, 'why is it necessary for colour at all?' Colour is part of existence, colour fills your earthly life as it does in our world. It is but a vibration, which shows itself in beautiful colour—that is all. Colour in your world is limited, but I do feel that human beings benefit so much from the beautiful colours in your world. (Agreed) That is why it is important that colour be used correctly by mankind. What is better for the peace of mind of mankind, but to see the beauty of nature's own colours? But they are all of the same energy, they are all part of the same. So, what I wish to say to you my dear friends, about your healing thoughts, is that to give those healing thoughts with pure Love, to leave behind the emotions and to ask only that help be given to those in need; then it will be. Would you like to ask any questions please?

Sarah: Two things you said Salumet. You said that the colours of nature were all of the same vibration, did you say? (Energy.) Energy—so if you get a pale flower or a very dark flower, that's no reflection on the intensity of the energy, or is it?

It can be, it can be. The most beautiful of your earthly flowers I can tell you energy-wise, are those which you would call white flowers, because they are as close to pure energy as you will find. But that is not to say that the denser colours do not have their use upon your Earth. All things are here for a purpose and of course the Nature Spirits of your world, who come to tend your Nature upon this planet, use these colours wisely.

Sarah: Do the Nature Spirits—if there is a dark flower or a light flower, would they choose which colour they were going to look after, because they need that colour to look after? How does it work?

There is a hierarchy amongst the Nature Spirits and there will be some form to tend to all colours within the flower colour spectrum. It is not as simple to explain as you may imagine, but in the most beautiful of your earthly gardens, you will find that the colours which are put together—and it is influenced by the Nature Spirits—to those who form your earthly gardens, they put together the colours of the flowers, which produce the most beauty for that part of the garden. Do you understand? (Pause) No. We are speaking about something which is difficult, I know, but I feel for now, what you need to know and to understand, is that (within) the variations of colours within your planet, there is a need for all; but they belong to the same energy, but they have different vibrations—that is all, that is the only difference.

Sarah: What was this that you said, that each of our colours contains all other colours?

All, yes—all aspects of all colours within the one colour. This is little known and understood, but I will tell it to you now, in order for your understanding of later discussion.

George: In relation to flowers, I suspect that Dr Bark and his flower remedies, I suspect that Dr Bark was sensitive to some of this healing information?

Of course, otherwise he would not have been so successful, if he had not heeded that inspired thought. All of these people within your world who do good, are inspired from our world and he was quick to recognise the information given to him.

George: Yes, I think that connection will help in some way to cement our understanding to this.

Yes, yes, I know it is not always easy to accept what I say to you, but my purpose is not to convince you, but to make you think, to get you to think spiritually, not with the earthly brain. I want your spiritual being to become aware of all of these things and to understand to a greater degree, what it is I try to tell you. If that is achieved, then I am happy for you.

George: Yes we gladly accept this. (Thank you.)

Lilian: So, would I be right in saying that from white, the other colours come?

Yes, you will see within the purity of white all other colours.

Lilian: It just struck me as strange, that not with flowers but an emblem, we have a white dove for peace, which I think is pretty much all over our planet. But it is a white dove.

Yes, white is purity. Mankind recognises white as purity and it is the finest of energy.

George: I think that part of our confusion is that thinking physically, we tend to think of a red colour, say, as something looking red, because all other colours are absorbed and it is only the reflected colour.

That is correct.

George: But thinking not at that level, thinking spiritually, I think you are informing us that the nature of colour is rather more complex than that.

Yes, to have the density, let us take your example. If we have the density of what you call the red colour, how does it succeed in creating the density, if there is not within it the other colours, to lead up to the density? Perhaps you can focus your thinking that way for your understanding.

Sarah: And yet you said with white that it contains all colours and...

Let us perhaps move from the flowers and let me again use for you, what you call the diamond, which is clear in your world to look at, but if you look within, there you have the range of all colours. Think of these things with individual colours, think of each colour as a diamond that contains all other colours within it. Do you see what I am beginning to tell you? Is there a little understanding?

Sarah: Yes, I understand that. It is just that you said how could the darker colours be dark, if they hadn't absorbed all the other colours. I was just slightly confused, because the white had all the other colours in it, as well and yet it was white.

But that is the quicker vibration. White contains the many aspects of all colours, but it is vibrating at a higher rate. You have to think of colour as vibration—that is all. As you are, you are just one mass of vibration my dear friends, but yet each of you is different, but still the same. It is difficult I know, but think about it please. It is just another step forward in your understanding of Spirit.

Sarah: May I just ask one more thing? My mother sees the days of the week in colour. Does that have any connection with her Spirit seeing colours, or is that just a strange phenomenon?

That is just her own spirituality and the way that she focuses on earthly things, it is nothing more than that. It is probably easier for her to remember in colour. Are there any more questions please on this?

Lilian: Going back to the absent healing when we sit and think of healing for a certain person. We basically need to think of love towards them—that would help?

If there is no Love given, if it is just a name and an ask for help without that deep feeling of Love to help, then the thought does not go so far, that is all. But all thoughts are taken for healing.

Lilian: Basically to feel love for all our fellow brothers and sisters.

There should be unconditional love for all your fellow men, of course. That is why the mother's love for a child is so great, because it is unconditional. If only mankind could feel that kind of love for his fellow man, then this planet would be a much, much better place.

Lilian: Have you any questions on your healing Sara?

This lady is doing well as she works at the moment. In fact I can say to this lady, that soon—and I do not mean 'soon' in your time of thinking, but soon there will come to this lady much inspired thought about colour. I believe she already feels some kind of affinity with certain colours, when she works with them. Is that not so?

Sara: Yes I am beginning to have more sensitivity for colour with healing.

Yes, you will be helped. (Thank you.)

So my dear friends I think I will leave you this time, I will leave you to think about what I have told you.

(Thanks expressed) Yes, try to see what colour your thoughts are. (Thanks + farewells)

~30th July 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time I will begin by asking you if my words to you last time have been considered.

Lilian: I'm sure we have all considered them and especially Sara, who is not with us tonight.

Your healing thoughts have been gathered my dear friends and it brings me to what I would like to say to you this time. I have told you of happenings which will occur on your planet in time to come. But what I wish to tell you my dear friends, is that within the next 10 years of your earthly time, many advances will be made within your medical professions. These can only be good for mankind. But what I also wish you to know is that until mankind recognises Spirit within, there will always be unrest within the human frame. The time will come, but as yet that is not soon, but the time will come when mankind will find within himself the perfect body, if he so desires. There will in time to come be many more healthier people, because the Spirit will come forward and knowledge will become greater. The information from our world to those within your medical professions will be greater. I am sure my dear friends that you are not unaware of the change of attitude towards what you call I believe, 'complimentary therapies'. (Agreed) This of course is not new. This planet has always been provided with the cures to many of mankind's unrest and disease. It is only that in your time, much of it has been forgotten. But as in all things, a new awakening has begun to change many attitudes and ways of thinking. But as I have said, mankind has to realise that physical living should no longer be the power struggle that it is within your planet at this present time. Until each individual finds that Spirit within, until that recognition is greater, then mankind will always struggle with the many aspects of human existence. Do you have questions for me this time?

George: I was just thinking that there are 2 types of struggle. There is the political struggle, which connects with our wars and there is a sort of domestic struggle, because I think we have all made lives a little too complicated for ourselves within the family structure and people get a bit confused and overwhelmed sometimes. Perhaps this is again due to losing our spiritual centre. Is this a way to look at it that there are at least 2 areas of struggle: the large political struggles and the smaller struggles and confusions within the family?

Yes, I of course do agree with you my dear friend. We have spoken of times of the struggle between your governments upon this planet. I have told you that always we are trying to influence those who are in power and that is still so. More difficult is what you call family struggles, because what we find in our world, is that we cannot interfere too much in the lives of individuals. But I would like to add to your list of struggle and that my dear friends, is the all-important one, the individual struggle. Of course your physical living involves communication and existence with human beings. Of course this is how it should be, because without the love of your fellow man, there would be no point of physical existence, because you are here to learn to co-exist and to love each other unconditionally—this you know. But the individual struggle my dear friend, may I say, is the all-important one, because until each individual realises their own potential shall we say—I am not sure if that word is the correct one, but that is a word I we use.

George: Yes, that is the one that would connect with the life path.

Yes, thank you. Then I would say until the individual is content and knows the Spirit within, you cannot be in a position to make others happy. Does that make sense to you? (Affirmed) Therefore I would say to you this: First and foremost, you must look within. Only then can you look around to the family structures, which have been created, only then will you begin to understand each individual within that group and only then can you understand the wider issue of political unrest within your world. I hope that is helpful to you. Are there more questions please?

Graham: I am sure this question has been asked before, because there is a lot of discussion about it in medical circles and it is the subject of genetics and the issue of interference of genetic makeup and altering life itself. Are there any perspectives you could give on that please?

Yes, we have discussed this before, but what I will say to you in simple terms my dear friend, is this: That all information comes from our world, but what you must always remember, is that mankind is endowed with freewill. Whether they use or abuse is entirely up to them, although we try to influence from our world. But we cannot interfere with the process of freewill; this is always the problem. All we can do is to try to touch the soul, the Spirit of each individual person, that they will automatically know what is right and what is not so good. But always because of your freewill, there will always be instances of abuse. We have given in past times the problem of nuclear weapons and the knowledge that was given and which should have been used for the good of all, but was in fact misused. It is always down to mankind's freewill. (Thank you very much.)

Paul: I would like to ask a question. It is about the work of Carlos Castaneda. Reading his books, it is very inspirational the way he shows the potentials that seem to be hidden for people and then his particular group, their aim seems to be to die a different way from normal people, whereby they cross over without—I'm not sure exactly—they call it crossing over I think, into the 'third attention'. I wondered how different that kind of death is, where they appear to instantly skip into a Spirit world?

Yes. There is no secret about this my dear friend, but firstly let me say, always you will be drawn to many different aspects of living, because that is the Spirit's way of finding truth and knowledge. And because each one of you is so individual, you will become interested in various aspects of what you call Spirituality. What I would say to you my dear friend is this: There are those in your world who have the capability of slipping from this life to ours; to those people it is a natural process. To others, there is shall we say, an 'ego trip' to try to develop these powers. I would say about this group of people that you speak of, that they are in fact no different from those in your world who commit what you call suicide.

Paul: I can't understand the connection there.

Because they are attempting to come to a dimension to which they do not belong. It is an analogy, do you understand?

Paul: Yes I can see that.

It is an interference—perhaps that is a better word. Is that clearer for you?

Paul: A case of learning to run before they can walk?

Yes, perhaps they is wiser words for your understanding. I would not say it is wrong in the sense of suicide, but it is something they should be aware of, that if they are not careful, they can go from one dimension to another too quickly, and in fact, they can expel their physical living far too soon. Do you understand?

Paul: Yes I think so.

George: I think this is something that Don Juan and the Yaqui Indians have developed and pursued. I think I am correct in—

Paul: It's not really a Yaqui Indian thing actually. (Don Juan Matus was Yaqui, but the teachings did not come from that culture)

No, it is different. The Indian races are quite proper in what they are doing, or what some of them attempt to do. What the gentleman is speaking of, is moving from different space dimensions, am I correct? (Yes) Yes, there is a difference. This is something we have not spoken of as yet, and until we do, your understanding will not be great, but I will come back to this. You are speaking of different dimensions of time are you not?

Paul: I guess time comes into it.

It certainly does.

George: I think in the book it just mentions different dimensions—

To travel to another dimension my dear friends, time has to be involved. You cannot have one without the other. Is that a little clearer for you? (Yes) But I assure you I will return to this for you, in order that everyone within the room understands what you are speaking of.

Paul: I just wondered then whether you would say perhaps his group and the group that went before him were perhaps rushing things then?

I would suggest perhaps, but we cannot say they are wrong, because to them they were doing what they felt is right, so we must be careful in our judgement; but if you have to have my reply, I would say that they need to be a little careful in what they are going into. Is that helpful for you?

Paul: Yes it is, thank you.

But we will discuss this at another time.

If you are happy, what I would like to do is to allow each one of you to come close to those who stand close by you this time. Open your minds, open your hearts and you should be aware each one of you, of who is standing close by. Try not to focus too hard, but just allow yourselves to be open. Perhaps individually you can say who or what is there, or if you do not sense who is with you, perhaps you can tell our dear lady what you are feeling.

Lilian: Just before you go, 2 requests for visitors—one from Mark's brother David, and my daughter Dawn, if and when she was able to come?

Yes, she is not new to this, we will accept her. Yes, as to the gentleman, he is taking another pathway, but we will welcome him. Always I will say to you my dear friends, that unless any of the people within this room has objections, then I am happy to receive them. As I leave you, know always that I too, am always will you. (Thanks + farewells)

Leslie Bone, our dear group founder and leader, who passed to spirit in 1999, then came through Eileen: Hello my dear, surely you haven't forgotten me yet? I can't get the voice right. (Pause) Hello Lilian.

Lilian: Hello.

You don't know me, do you?

Lilian: Does it help if I put my hand there?

No—it's Leslie, Lilian.

Lilian: Hello Les! (Chuckles) Sorry, you know me! You're very, very welcome.

I'm very emotional.

Lilian: How are you getting on, need we ask?

Met Roy, (Lilian's husband now in Spirit) had a good chat.

Lilian: Good! Give our love to Ruth, Roy, Graham, there are so many.

So many you would not believe.

Lilian: There are lots of reunions for you. You are busy no doubt. (Very.) Are you? It doesn't surprise us.

Breathing difficult this time. Bring the dratted conditions back. (People who return often temporarily bring back the previous health conditions)

Lilian: Yes, that must be a real nuisance. (Yes) I understand you visited the other group as well, the Wednesday group as we call them. We know that you visit and probably come and listen to Salumet's words.

(Moving head to view others) Hello everybody. (Warm greetings) I tried really hard to get the voice, but I can't do it, so please accept me for who I am. I have taken quite a long time to come to you, but I promised I would and I am here.

Lilian: I guessed you would make it one day, we hoped.

Sarah: Your voice wasn't far off Leslie. I recognised you when you came through, I thought it was you.

I was trying to make an impression on Eileen's face, but it's a bit smaller than mine was and it's not easy.

Sarah: Well, I had my eyes closed so I couldn't see you.

I wouldn't have expected anything else, my dear. If they were open, I would have wanted to know why.

(Chuckles) Anyway, I'm here to let you know that everything's fine. I follow everything you do and let me say that you are doing a grand job.

Lilian: All thanks to you that we're on the right track.

We'll have none of that Lilian! (Chuckles) You know very well it's not the people but the work. (Yes) That's what's important and I told you it would carry on, didn't I? (Yes) Well I have to tell you that my time came to an abrupt end as you all know and it was my own stupid fault, but there again you know me well, and I had to keep my eye on what was going on. But never mind, it's what I wanted and it's what I got. But I did have a surprise. It was my father who met me and it was a lovely surprise I have to tell you. Of course it wasn't long before I met everybody else and I can assure you it was an emotional meeting. I can only tell you my dear friends that everything you imagine it is, is better than what you imagine. I cannot begin to explain just how wonderful this place is. I wish I could, but I can't at this present time. I am hoping that as time goes on, I can perfect the voice for the recognition, and that I can superimpose my face upon—(The tape came to an end and was hastily turned over)—Thank you so much for all that you gave, all the dedication and the time that you gave to our meetings. I can't begin to tell you all of the people that you've helped and all I want to end by saying is that I am supremely happy and I have to go, because I can feel myself beginning to fill. (With tears?) I will be back, hopefully with recognition for you. And so much work to be done. God bless you all my friends. (Thanks + farewells)

Paul: I can see a white flower. (Near Eileen) I don't know what type of flower. A little bit like a daffodil, but it's not, it's not a white daffodil. There is a red flamey bit in the middle.

Eileen: Oh I feel quite emotional, I'm sorry. He was all right until the end. I could feel my face being twisted all over the place and I thought, what on Earth is coming! I wasn't sure who it was and then I could feel like I was—you know he breathed very heavily—and I could feel it on my lungs and I thought, somebody's got breathing troubles. Then the face went again and I thought—who is it? When Lilian spoke, I felt annoyed that the sound wasn't what I wanted, if I can put it to you that way. I felt that he wanted it to be different. (We then discussed excitedly our dear Leslie's visit, over a cuppa)

~6th August 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As we come together this time, I have marveled at the Spirit within each one of you. I am happy my dear friends to see how you have grown in such a short space of time. Each one of you knows by now that you are not just an empty vessel that each one of you should be an interactive part of all that exists. Of course you have your own minds, but you should be attuned to the Universal Mind. How many of you can say that this is so? (Pause) Not yet, my dear friends! In the past months of this, your earthly year, I have tried to uplift and encourage you in stillness and quietness, in order that your Spirit may develop. This, of course, is not without purpose, because to be emissaries of Spirit you have to be attuned to us quite closely. You are not only channels for speaking of knowledge, but you are channels for those of us in our world who also need help in their own development. To this purpose my dear friends I ask that this evening be given as a thank you, not only to yourselves, but to those who come close to you, that you will allow this time for communication with those who wish to use you. You are knowledgeable enough my dear friends, to know that in your own individual style, you will be used in whatever capacity is suitable for you. But what we can achieve in these group meetings is to unite with love, to allow those who come to you, that extra energy which is needed for communication. If you are not aware of how you have grown in these last months, then do not despair, because I assure you my dear friends that it is great. We have spoken of colour, we have spoken of the Elementals which surround you in your world, we have spoken of much love and harmony within your world. But that is what I wish you to achieve my dear friends, harmony within yourselves, but also to transmute that harmony and to become the wider love of the universe. It is not beyond you; I do believe that your understanding has reached a point when all things are possible, that your hearts and your minds are open to all that we can bring to you. It would be easy to give you much phenomenon, but what purpose would it serve you individually? Rather we would that you—each one of you as Spirit, develop that whilst upon this Earth plane, to such a degree that you no longer question the communications and those who stand close to you, because, yes my dear friends, there are still fears, there are doubts, whether you wish to admit to them or not. But I say this to you, each one of you within this room is guided, is loved, is protected. So, my dear friends, for this time, I will leave you with our dear lady friend. I ask you to open your hearts to those who are with you, and let me assure you there are many. It is a gift to each one of you, please accept it with love and allow that spirit within to come forward. Next time I come to you, I hope to elaborate on some of the topics which I have brought to you recently, but for this time my dear friends, take pleasure in those communicators who are with you in this room. The dear lady will allow time for you to go into your quietness and will come to each one of you, and please my dear friends do not be afraid to acknowledge what you see, or feel, or sense. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sarah:

Why have you all forgotten this wonderful place? The place I am talking about is quite unlike your room here. The place I am talking about is the SPACE between your world and ours. This space is available to all of you at all times. You need only prepare yourselves for a short while and you can enter this space. This space will make all your thoughts come together. It is a space that is available for humans and Spirit alike. This is space where the two can communicate at all times. Try to imagine when you are in your quite time that you are arriving in this space and you will all find it much easier to communicate with the Spirit world. We are trying to communicate with you all and this area is the most available for us all.

~13th August 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good to join with you once more. We will endeavour to bring one to you from our world to speak with you about conditions and we hope that we may be able to use our dear lady friend here (Sue). I wish to say to you this time, your Earth planet at this time has many traumas to contend with, but I wish to say to you, fear not, because it is part of the planet's evolution that this should be so. I know I have no need to tell you, because your understanding has grown so much, but I feel it helps you individually, to be reminded of these things.

Lilian: That's true.

As your planet evolves at this present time, so too is everyone present going through metamorphoses of some kind. I told you earlier in this one of your years, that each one of you by the end of the coming earthly years, would have grown in some way. It is on the same level as your planet Earth is at this particular time. As the planet evolves, so does humankind in its own way. I will this time, my dear friends, before I depart to allow the speaker to come to you, this time I am happy to answer any of your questions.

Lilian: Thank you. Before we have any questions, I would just like to say our old friend from 2 years back (Les), came through to say hello to us last week and he seemed very happy. (Yes) I am sure you knew, but it was very nice.

George: You spoke to us some time ago about the projection of Spirit into matter at the time of the Creation. (Yes) It occurs to me that since that first time, there would have been a number of projections of Spirit into matter. (Yes) For example, to initiate the five different coloured races on our plane, (Yes) and much later when Jesus came to Earth—I guess he would have been a projection into matter in a similar way?

Yes, what you have to understand my dear friend, is that because vibration has always existed—that is why I have spoken briefly this time about the evolution of this planet, because as the planet evolves, so also must the projection of matter from Spirit as you put it. That also is evolving to take place with the evolution of the planet, it has to be so. Do you agree?

George: Yes. Would it be correct—as the early man that we think of as homo-rectus, would it be correct to think of him as a biological vehicle into which later projections of Spirit could be made?

Yes. Spirit has always been, no matter what the form, but again I say, it was necessary for mankind to evolve in order that the Spirit grow—that is the only reason for mankind. Do you understand? (Yes) Spirit is in everything. Do you understand—whether it be your woodlands, your animals, or the human race—you have to understand that it has to do not only with the projection of Spirit that has always existed, but the evolution of the planets and of the Cosmos and so many other refined things.

George: Yes, so Spirit projection and physical evolution go hand-in-hand?

Yes, yes, that is a simplified way of putting it, but it has to be. I hope you agree. This is a difficult topic for your understanding, but I feel if you can understand that Spirit moves throughout all of Creation and that humankind is evolving all of the time, then perhaps your understanding can be a little greater.

George: Yes, thank you, that's made a better picture for us.

All species that coexist on this planet, have had their moment in time. Do not believe that Spirit belongs only to mankind, otherwise your thinking becomes stilted, it becomes introverted. You must always my dear friend, look with those spiritual eyes for your understanding to grow. Are you happy with what I have said?

George: Yes, indeed, that does clarify. I wonder if I could also ask about—I was reading Edgar Casey on this, and he mentions past lives of Jesus and a number of past lives of people known to history and I imagined Jesus evolved to his state of perfection as a result of a number of past lives on this planet.

Of course, and may I say to you that the essence of the one you call Jesus still exists. Does that surprise you that the essence of this being is present here upon your Earth at this time? (Yes)

Lilian: In a physical form?

Yes. Remember what I have told you, you are not one being. Would it not seem natural that Spirit as developed as the one you call Jesus, has trodden many lifetimes and continues to do so? Remember there is no perfection that you know of. Do you understand this my dear friends? (Yes) He has been revered as the greatest one, but he is but one of many. If you can hold this in your thinking, then you would understand more. The being known as Jesus upon this Earth, does not wish to be revered. He came to do work which he had chosen to do. Mankind has placed him upon a pedestal; but the essence of his being still continues to do good within your world.

George: One particular reincarnation that has been mentioned is that of Akhenaten in Ancient Egypt. If that indeed were an incarnation of Jesus at that time, it would solve a number of historical riddles for us. Yes, you see, there is always problems when what you call 'religion' interferes. The Spirit is always present, the Spirit will return to continue work, and I can tell you that the one known to you as Jesus, has returned many times, not just one part, but many, because in his own development, he has achieved much.

Lilian: So would he still be a teacher of sorts?

He would be a spiritual teacher, yes. He has attained the knowledge to such a degree that he cannot return to what you would call normal life. He would always be in some form a spiritual teacher, whether it be in the form of male or female. Do not forget this, because it is important. I can tell you that he is at this present time a female. Is that helpful to you? (Affirmed + thanks)

George: So would it be his same soul aspect, as opposed to, in the case of the Dalai Lama, different aspects of the same soul?

Always it is an aspect of the soul. It is never the same aspect.

George: Not necessarily the same?

Of course not—the essence of the being that was called Jesus, would have been one part. Although the essence of his being will continue, it need not be the same part. You must remember this also, otherwise there will be much confusion. Do you understand?

George: Yes, our understanding increases with your teaching. Thank you.

Thank you. I try to keep it simple, because it would be too easy to use complicated words, but how much your understanding would take those words, I do not know. Therefore, when I first came to you, I said that we must go slowly and simply and that is what I am trying to achieve and I have to thank you all, because you make this, my work so easy.

Lilian: That's comforting.

Sarah: Last week somebody came through me and said that there was a 'space' where Spirit from your world and human Spirit could meet. Could you just clarify that a little?

Yes, do not be confused by words. All it means is that consciousness in our world is lowered, consciousness in your world is raised. There is a meeting point—that is all that it meant. It does not mean that there is a vacuum, where our world and your world meet, after all, everything is intertwined. It is but a raising of your consciousness and a lowering of the consciousness from our world. Are there more questions or do you wish to hear from our dear friend, to see if they can bring you a little more information? I endeavour to enlighten you; if I can achieve that in one meeting with you, then at least I am endeavouring to do what I came to do.

Lilian: Well you do that and more. (Agreed)

I will leave you as always encircled in my love, and I will sit with you until such time as the communicator comes to you. (Thanks + farewells)

Communication through Sue:

Good evening to you. (Welcomes)

Forgive the delay, but I was also taking instruction from the master. To be able to communicate in this way, you are very aware I know that conditions on both sides of these have to be compatible. You are obviously well taught in this matter, am I right?

Lilian: Yes, we understand that.

For the different phenomena, different conditions apply. Again, I am not trying to teach you something that I am sure you are already aware of, but the word 'conditions,' is a word which applies to so much and I am here this time to tell you if you so wish, what some of these conditions entail. (Thank you.) All of you here who have been used in speech, I am sure, could discuss how you feel when you are taken over, I shall say, by a Spirit person, but I am quite sure that each one you would have a different view, a different feeling, a different set of circumstances, because each of you is different, each of you possesses different aspects of spirituality. That is only to be expected. Am I right?

Lilian: Yes, I see. So is it right that the two have to be compatible from your side and here on this planet?

They have to be on the same wave length?

I understand your question and in part it makes an easier transgression, but let me say how many of you on this Earth are on the same, shall we say, wavelength? Everyone is an individual, so, no, you do not have to be a mirror image of the Spirit to enable you to be used for whichever Spirit needs to come. I say to you, and I am sure the lady I am using will not be offended if I say to her that our compatibilities are very wide, and that is no disrespect to the lady, but I am able and willing to come through and use her. The problems can arise with emotion—that I am sure you are aware of. Emotion causes some problems in communication. The conditions then can be, how we say, a little 'rocky,' you understand? (Yes) Let me try to explain it more simply. Imagine you are in a little rowing boat and you are heading towards an island in the middle of a lake. That is your goal—that is what you are aiming for—you have planned it. Fine, everything is going to plan and you set off in this little rowing boat, knowing exactly what will happen, knowing that you will reach the island and everything will be fine. And so conditions are perfect. Suddenly there is a wind springing up from the west and the surface of the lake, which was still and tranquil suddenly becomes a little choppy, and you see the island ahead of you and you are still making progress. But all of a sudden you start to veer to one side. You cannot make a smooth crossing, something has rocked the boat. Are you understanding me so far? (Affirmed) So, with the best will in the world, you may have a communicator who is coming through the channels nicely. The communicator on your side feels relaxed, happy, in control. The communicator on our side of life is the same, but who knows why on your side there is a little breeze, yes, a little blip—who knows what has caused it, but suddenly the communication is not quite as free as it should be, and just as you are having to control your little rowing boat, so the Spirit communicator has to control the channel, yes? (Yes) Conditions vary so much from what you would call second to second. So, you could have two people who you would consider compatible and on the same wavelength and there would be something, something that could block it, block the communication. You could have someone who is totally alien to the channel, totally alien—someone that you would never expect to have anything to do with that person and it is a nice, smooth, easy crossing and through. It is so much to do with conditions, which, on our side of life, can also be as difficult as yours. On your side of life you have stresses, heat and weather, do you not? (Agreed) You have people feeling less than perfectly well and these are conditions on your side of life. On our side of life we have a tunnel. It is a tunnel, which leads by a thread, to the communicator on your side of life. Now the communicator in Spirit is going through this tunnel. They are drawing themselves towards their goal—their island in the middle of the lake. They know where they are going, they know who their communicator is; they know this. But suddenly the tunnel starts to widen, the path is not totally clear-cut to the island, there is slight fogginess. This can be due to several things on our side. It could be that the communicator has not been sufficiently trained, the communicator possibly has not been given the right information that they are to impart to you. Do you understand? (Yes) And in some cases, it is sometimes entirely the wrong communicator for the job. Are you understanding me? (Yes) I know there are other forms of communication, which do not require the physical voice and those conditions are totally, totally different. It takes many, many, many of your years and can be equally as stressful on our side of life. In that respect the communicators have to be trained for many, many of your years, do you understand? (Yes) They have to use what you know to be the voice box and it does not suit all communicators. It is a very heavy and dense material that is used. Again, conditions have to be the right conditions for the job. It is like saying in your world, it is no good the large gentleman playing heavily, it is no good for him to walk on thin ice, he will go through it. A little child can possibly run across it quickly, it is no problem. Conditions—but you can help us. It is a difficult thing I ask and I know the master has spoken of it many times, but I ask you something, each of you: How clear, how clear are your minds? Are they clear and free or is there always a little thought, 'what you did, the day you've had, the work you're doing, even just listening to someone like myself, querying and answering questions in your mind?' All of you have little things going on in your mind and in your thoughts. (Agreed) I am saying to you, if you could all train your minds to be like this light tunnel that we have on our side of life, well lit and empty—I'm sorry that is not a good word, it is not a good analogy, but do you understand me? (Yes) Free from the little tentacles of thought—my goodness me, we would shoot through those tunnels if those conditions were right on your side. But, let us say this: Life is not like that, is it? So we have to make use of the best conditions we have for the communication. But over the years and the aeons of time that spiritual matters have been discussed in this way, I would like to think that most communicators, whether they are on the same wavelength as their instrument or not, most communicators have managed to bring information, laughter, happiness and help, am I right? (Agreed) So, there is no such thing as perfect conditions for communication, but if we continue to work together through love and light and harmony, then we can all continue to bring the message of Spirit into the world. Do you understand me?

Lilian: Yes, it certainly helps our daily lives and all the way through our life.

And that my dear friends, is everything—that is the moral of this communication this time. Unite together in love, in harmony and light. Always send loving thoughts to receive loving thoughts. Open your hearts, so your conditions can be the best that is possible and we give you eternal thanks for enabling us to come to you in this way.

Lilian: Yes, and may our thanks go to you as well. I think I can safely say for all of us that we always feel uplifted, when we have had our meetings and meeting with you.

Let me say in reply to that, that all communicators when they leave this room, for whatever reason they have come, whether they come to listen, all peoples also have upliftment. Can you understand that, Spirit also receives upliftment from you? It is not a one-sided affair. You give to us exactly as we give to you. So, dearest peoples, always feel proud to know that you bring love to the Spirit world.

Now, conditions are a little shaky now. We all get a little shaky with time, do we not? (Agreed) I thank you for your time and your interest. I hope I have been able to give you a little more information that you can keep in your hearts and refer to if necessary. (Thanks expressed) There will be more communication on matters of spiritual conditions another time. Whether it be myself or another, I cannot say, but we wish to talk to you about the conditions surrounding those who are in need of your help. We wish to bring you more insight into what your powers of prayer do, and how they are received on our side of life. So, that is something hopefully that you will look forward to. But for now, I leave you with love and thanks of all Spirit peoples and all peoples who are light and energy and love. You one day will all achieve more than your hearts could imagine. I hope that all your loving thoughts remain on still waters. (Thanks + farewells)

Finally one came through Eileen with a soft gentle voice, thanking us for our time. She said that we were being given knowledge that some in our world (Spirit realm) still do not have. She added: So I am here to thank you from all of us who come close to you. There is more for you to achieve, not only in knowledge, but as the speaker before has said, phenomena can happen when conditions are right. And there is no reason at all, why you people in this room, cannot achieve such things. It will come—be patient.

Lilian: We are very, very grateful for what we have, with our friend coming with his teachings.

You cannot ask for more I have to tell you. I also listen to this one in our world—not often, but I have been given the opportunity. So I would say to you, listen carefully, listen carefully and accept graciously, because when people such as yourselves are chosen in this way, it shows that no matter what your development is in this lifetime, it shows that spiritually you are growing well.

She then brought this meeting to a close, with blessings and with love.

~20th August 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I hope my dear friends that you are aware this time how smoothly you have blended together in this meeting place. I know that mostly you are unaware, but this time you should feel that the coming together is strong. As this year has progressed, not only has your Earth planet developed, but so too you also my friends. I told you that this one of your earthly years would bring to each one of you, much individual learning. This has been taking place. When we approach the closing of this one of your years, we will discuss what you feel you have attained, because rest assured, each one of you has been through some form of metamorphosis. If you are not aware of it by now, you will be by then. We have spoken recently much to do with your meditation time and what you can achieve from it. I have left that to each individual to develop or leave as they so desire, but I would like to add one more thing to our discussion on that topic. Have you my dear friends, considered that your meditation time is not only good for you as individuals, but meditation is a service to our world?

Lilian: Yes, I can see that now you've said it. It didn't occurred to me before.

George: I think some of us see this as hope, that there is this two-way connection.

That is why it is important for you to consider not only your own development, but also to consider what you are giving to those from our world, because in your states of meditation, we can come close, as you well know, to give the opportunity to those who need to work through you. In that way you are devoting your time to service. I would like you to consider these words. It should my dear friends, give another dimension to the word 'meditation'. I will this time, take questions from you. I know we have done this many times in this year, but there has been purpose behind it. It has given each one of you the opportunity to enrich your own individual knowledge. We have much time, have we not? (Yes) We have indeed time to consider many new visions and structures in this work, but it is, as I have told you my dear friends, important that each one of you also, are given the chance to develop also, and that has been the purpose this year of your living. So I will take questions from you and we will end this meeting once again, with the opportunity for each one of you to allow someone close to become even closer to you.

Graham: It's a very different type of topic and I ask this question because of what we saw on our TV, concerning the information we are given by our governments. Some people are suspicious that we do not always receive the truth from our governments, for many reasons. One particular topic came up that was fascinating to me and that was the Apollo missions to the moon. There have been some doubts that the Apollo missions never actually happened. I wonder if you could confirm whether man has actually landed on the moon or not?

I take your question. There are many space travellers, not only in your part of existence, but in the wider scheme of the Cosmos. But yes, I understand your question. I will confirm it with but one word and that is 'yes'. They have, they have, if only they were allowed to speak with their hearts, they will tell you that much was known and seen by them. Always there is a power struggle on your earthly planet, when you speak of individual governments. It is, I am sorry to say, the cause of many destructive acts within your world, when these governments face each other in disagreement, but I will confirm that yes, man has landed upon another of your planets.

Graham: Thank you for confirming that, it's a great relief in a way. (Chuckles)

George: Adding to that, I think you told us once before, that information about that mission has been withheld by governments.

Yes, governments of course believe they are doing what is best for their people, but it is a power struggle. There is much deceit and there is much that is withheld from the ordinary people. But the time is coming when people will not accept only what is said to them, because their understanding is growing from the heart and from the thinking.

George: Yes, I imagine it is only right for people to attempt to bring this out into the open.

Of course, and may I also say to you, it is one of the reasons why your religions—many as they are upon this planet—why there are so many disruptions and so many disbeliefs, so many doubts, so much negative fear, because the people now are becoming more spiritual in their thinking. To you my dear friends, this may seem a large statement to make, but I will say to you that this planet Earth is becoming ever more spiritual as time evolves. Too many times as I have told you previously, has mankind destroyed himself. When first I came to you, I said many from our world had gathered and we would this time, not allow any destructive force to interfere or to cast doubt upon what is the truth; and that is our purpose this time. I hope that is helpful to you. (Affirmed)

Lilian: You did say that we are visited—I am just confirming that I've got it right—that we are visited by people from other planets at this time.

It has always been, but let me say, what you do not fully understand I believe, is that there is life, not of your form, but the capability of travel within the Universe has always been. Remember your planet is but young one, in the scheme of existence—you cannot forget that. I know that these are difficult things to explain, because your understanding really is not wide enough, but all I can tell you my dear friends, is that you do not exist alone.

Lilian: It would be so interesting to meet someone from another planet.

That is your wish? Then you must make it your reality.

Jan: I do believe in my heart that recently I have been taken over to the other side in my sleep-state, and I do remember being brought back by a loved one and vividly seeing this person. Am I correct in this belief?

Let me say this to you, that in your what you call sleep-state, is when the Spirit is freed from the heaviness of the physical being. Each one of you has been to our world—each one of you—and I speak not only of the people within this room, I speak of all peoples, whether their belief is as yours or not. Each one of you, as you quietly are in your sleep-state, come in our world, either guided by those who stand close to you, or by those who have loved you upon this Earth plane. This is not unusual, but what I would say to you my dear friend, is this, that if the desire, the willingness to meet with those in our world is great enough, then the memory will be retained. I believe this is what has occurred with you, but all of you are capable of this.

Jan: This just seemed more than a dream. (Yes) This person was actually in the room with me and rubbing my face and telling me to come along (Yes) as if they were bringing me back and it was wonderful and I now know that I wasn't imagining it and I welcome it.

No, if it had been nothing but a dream of the physical kind—and of course we are on slightly different waters here, because you can have dream-states which are nothing to do with being in the world of Spirit. But when the memory is so strong, when the desire is strong, then you can be assured that you have probably been with us and can remember what has taken place. I would say but one thing to you my dear friend, give thanks to those who have protected and loved you and returned you safely.

Jan: Yes I did thank them, it was a wonderful experience again and I know I'll be protected.

Yes, it is within all of you. As I say, each one of you returns home, each time you enter that sleep-state. It is an opportunity for those who stand close to you, to show themselves, to show themselves to you as they are. But of course, being clothed in the physical being, means that you have to return to these conditions. What most people upon this Earth lack, is the memory. But all of you are protected, have no fears about this.

Sarah: You very kindly tell us that we're progressing well and you give us little bits of information and encourage us, and you have also told us that this is a two-way thing in learning also. Do you have someone giving you encouragement in the same way as you give us encouragement?

Yes—thank you; not exactly. Yes, remember that as you are aware of me now, you are probably thinking of me as a human being. This is not so, I come as a form of information. I am but a part of many. Of course there is a higher scheme of intelligence to which I must account, but it is not in the same way as you imagine. It is much too complex for me to begin to explain you how this takes place. It is an instantaneous knowledge, if you like, it is a knowing, it is a sensing, but of course always, always, I have told you that we are expanding, and that applies to what I am, to what you are, and to what the greater intelligence is—it is never static. I hope that is helpful for you, although I understand it is very vague.

Sarah: Yes thank you, but you know straight away.

I understand, yes. (Thank you.)

Lilian: Would our old friend from 2 years back, (Les Bone) would he be aware of you in Spirit, now that he is there also?

I am not available in the sense that you speak of. I have taught much, but not in this form. He may be aware of what I am, he would be aware that I still come in this form, but it is not like meeting one of you. We have touched upon a difficult topic here and we must take it slowly. He would have an awareness, but not a knowing. Does that make sense to you? (Yes) He would be aware that I still come to teach, but there would not be a 'seeing', shall I say.

Sarah: Would he be able to hear what you are telling us?

If he so desired yes. There are many who come, who surround you, who are brought here to you, to this room, to listen to my words. It rebounds not only on the earthly plane, but in our world also. Does that make sense to you my dear friends?

Lilian: Yes, sometimes we are aware of others being here besides ourselves.

What you need to remember is that just because people have come to our world, you have to remember that their awareness is to a much lesser degree than your own.

Jan: Silence?! (Giggle)

Yes, silence. Does it mean that you do not understand?

Sarah: Yes.

Jan: No I think we do understand, it just took us back.

Sarah: No I don't quite understand actually.

Jan: People that have passed onto the other side, to the Spirit world, do not necessarily know as much as we do in this room, spiritually.

Sarah: If we were to pass over, we've got this knowledge. Do we not take this knowledge with us?

Jan: Of course we do, yes.

But you would have someone who has no spiritual knowledge in a lifetime, who will return home and take that 'no' knowledge with them. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

Lilian: We don't change immediately.

No, therefore it is imperative that they also begin to hear and understand, before they can join their group souls.

Lilian: Yes, so they would be brought back to a place like this.

Yes, if they so desire. Remember, they still have their freewill. You must not forget, you must not always assume that the transition from this physical condition to the spiritual being, is immediate, that all understanding is there—it is not. It takes considerable time for each soul to alter and to join the group soul to which it belongs. There is much progress to be made.

Jan: Our knowledge will increase and increase and increase over the years—I'm talking about people in this group and people like us on our planet—then when we go over to the other side, our knowledge is obviously going to be so useful, that are we going to be used and carry on this work? Are we going to be put to work and used as teachers?

I understand. Please do not try to make a self-appraisal, because you will fall short of what it is about. You are but one part of your being, you are but one part that has come to physical existence. You will, depending upon the life you have led, the lessons that you have learned—all of that is dependent upon how quickly you return to the group soul, and then the decision is made as to what you will do with the knowledge gained. Some of you may well teach others, some of you may well decide to return to another lifetime on the physical planet, others of you may progress spiritually and go forward in our world. There are so many options open to you, but always freewill remains with you, for much, much, much time. You do not suddenly become a shining spiritual being. Do you understand?

Jan: I did not mean it to sound quite as arrogant as perhaps it came across, but...

I did not take it as arrogance my friend.

Jan: But our personalities still remain in Spirit, even if the freewill of our souls decides to come back, does it?

The essence of being will always remain, not the personality. You must be careful that you do not confuse the two, my dear friend. The personality remains when first you come to our world, until such time as you realise what has been achieved and then you will be helped and guided to use that freewill for the betterment of all. Is that a little clearer for you?

Lilian: Yes, we shall be helped and guided and shown which is the better way to go.

Let me ask the lady, because she has not replied to me.

Jan: Well, yes, I can take that and I can understand it, but what confuses me I suppose, is this question of time, (Yes) because as you so often say, time in your world means nothing at all. During my lifetime for example, I could have very close by me, people who have passed on who I know are with me. Do you understand what I am saying? (Yes) And yet they remain with me for like 80 years of my physical life here. But it is but one part of their existence. This is what you are not understanding I feel, that it is an essence of the being that remains with you, not the being that you knew whilst on this planet; it is an essence of the being which remains with you. It may well be that they also have returned to this earthly plane. Do you understand?

Jan: Yes, now I do.

I know these are complicated issues, I know sometimes that it seems confusing, I know sometimes it seems contradictory, but that is why my dear friends, we must go slowly with these things, in order that your understanding grows. Slowly that may be, but in time you come to the realisation that what yesterday seemed to trouble and confuse you, today it is clear and makes sense to you.

Jan: It is certainly true that spiritual growth is quite a difficult path. It is not easy and for my own personal feeling, you go along a foot and come back 3 feet and you can meet yourself coming the other way! It's a fascinating and wonderful journey!

But you cannot achieve that without some kind of trouble on the way. That is part of your plan.

Lilian: This is what helps us to grow.

Of course, if all was smooth, what would be the purpose? But you can of course smooth your own pathways by the power of your minds, because my dear friends, you are first and foremost Spirit. You have that innate knowledge, and you can use it, you can smooth your pathways, not in the way that you would expect, but in the way that you can travel those difficulties, with a quiet mind, with love in your hearts, with a mind that is beautiful, with a thinking that is graceful and with love that is never-ending. I will withdraw this time, leaving you within my light and love, knowing that I stay close to you and I say to you, please be aware of those who are with you in this room now. (Thanks + farewells)

~27th August 2001~

Salumet only spoke briefly this time, saying that conditions were not good, but that new information would be given next time.

~17th September 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before I speak with you this time, I wish to hold you in love that come with me, I want you to feel that love energy which enfolds you all—thank you. Now my dear friends, let me say this to you: You know and you feel love, which encompasses you all, (Yes) when all around you there is fear and sadness. Therefore my dear friends, I want you to realise that at any given moment in your living, you can seek that peace and love. I will go on to what was attempted here last time. Each one of you present, felt love in some form or another, do you agree? (Agreed) And I told you that I would explain it to you this time. But what I wish to say to you my dear friends is that now since last we met, you must realise why I felt you needed some extra strength. You were unaware at that time, but it was given to you, to strengthen and uphold you. What I wish to say to you now is that I would like to know what your response to these, what you call 'sad events', how you have viewed them this time. (9-11 Twin Tower attack—New York)

Paul: I think they're symptoms of the world as it is at the moment, still out of balance.

Yes, I will not remark until each one has spoken, thank you sir.

Sara: I tried not to get too involved with it, but to send love and light and prayers for the people left behind and for those passing on, but I tried to be more detached and not buy into the drama and really just do constructive things and continue living. (Thank you.)

Margaret: I'm just so sad that people have to do these things, because the world is a wonderful place, if you are pleasant to everyone. It brought back horrible memories of the war, when I was a 17 year old girl and the last few days it destroyed me, but now I'm getting over it and feel that we have to fight back and try and make people realise this is a wonderful world to live in. (Thank you.)

Lilian: For myself, the immediate reaction was to say a prayer, or to help those who had died or those who were injured, the helpers, to say a prayer for those in whatever way they could be helped. Then as the days have gone on, I'm been very touched by the love and prayers from people all around the world. I think that has touched me—sorry as we were for the happening, there has been a lot of good response from the ordinary folk, I feel. (Yes, thank you.)

Sarah: I felt a great sorrow in a way for the people who did it, because I felt that they were misguided, but I also had in the back of my mind your words, 'never to judge anyone'.

That was what I have waited to hear, thank you. I know the dear lady here, (Sue) was not with us, but she would have received strength, therefore I would like to hear also her response please.

(Sue was too deep in trance to reply)

We will leave her. I will speak to the others. You understand my dear friends, why I brought to you some love, upliftment and strength. (Affirmed) All of you know that the happenings within your world will always continue, until such time that spirituality touches each one. But until such time, these things will happen on this planet. It gladdens my heart to hear that not only were your prayers and thoughts with those who after all, have come home to our world and are perfectly safe, but it gladdens me to hear that your thoughts have been with those that you call the perpetrators, because you see my dear friends, they too need help. It shows to me and to those who surround you all, how much you have grown, when you can sit here and say to me that your understanding is greater than it would have been many of your years ago. It is an indication of how much you have grown. There is much sadness, much fear, much anger within your world, but as one of you has said, it has strengthened many of your countries, many of your politicians of like mind. Think for a moment my dear friends spiritually rather than physically. Remember that I told you, all of life is vibration, that like is attracted to like and those people who you call perpetrators, are of like mind. They are the dark seeking the light on the spiritual level. Remember this, they are trying to grow in their own way, for whatever reason is within their thinking. But I can say to you, the words I have heard from each one of you makes me glad to be amongst you, my dear friends, because I can see you as you truly are. There is much anger in your world from many people. I would say to you my dear friends, think about them. Try to dispel hatred, anger and all these negative ways of thinking. Try to bring to your world Love in the pure sense, and that is a love that is given unconditionally to all of mankind, not only to those that you consider to be good. After all, no matter what a person has done, no matter how wrong it may seem to you, once more I say to you my dear friends, you cannot judge, because you do not have the full picture of life. I know these things are difficult for you to grasp at times, but it is up to each and every one of you to call upon those of us who stand close by, who are able to influence and to help, not only those who are in tune with us, but all of mankind—but we need your help; we have always needed the interaction with mankind, to do the best for not only this planet, but many others. Remember this planet does not stand alone, it is but a small part of a greater whole. Mankind does not stand alone, it too is but a small part of a greater whole. All these things my dear friends I remind you of, because it is important. As we are approaching one of your yearly ends, perhaps you will remember my words that this would be an important year for each and every one of you, not only in an individual way, but in spiritual growth. I think you are beginning to understand what I have been telling you, that each piece is being placed together for greater understanding that each one of you in your own individual growth, is coming to the point of realisation of what you truly are. When you can separate yourselves from all the many happenings on your Earth, then you understand that the Spirit is to the fore. That is not to say my dear friends that you can ignore what is happening, you cannot, because you are part of it. But where your strength lies is in your knowledge, in your love for humanity, and in having the words of our world come to you. I will leave you this time, because I feel that those who are by you this time, continue to give you strength, love and upliftment. I ask you my dear friends, to think further about my words this time, to look at yourselves and to try to continue to understand what place you have in this lifetime on this Earth, on this planet Earth, which has many troubles, but you will, will my dear friends, overcome it. (Thanks + farewells)

~1st October 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Before I speak to you, I bring to you light of love which each one of you should feel. I ask you my dear friends to accept this great love from us all. Please to give some minutes to feeling this. (Pause) I hope my dear friends that you have felt the love which has cloaked you all this time. (Affirmed) What I wish to say to you this time is that on your Earth plane there is much fear. We spoke last time about this. You know full well that mankind will not destroy this planet, but it does not stop the fear growing amongst mankind, who are without the knowledge that each one of you has. What I would say to you is this: that the time has come for you my friends, to show by example the way to live your lives, to show to those people without love in their hearts, with fear, with so much darkness within, that there are lights in your world who can create much good and much love. But we hear you say, 'what can we do?' I say this to you, there is much you can do. No matter how much I have told you, no matter how much you have felt within these walls, there is still a little doubt and a little fear. You may not acknowledge that this is so, but remember those of us in our world can see your true colours. I say this to you, my dear friends, be not afraid. What you can do for others is to show your strength of love, of hope, of joy of living and growing spirituality. This at this present time, my dear friends, is your gift to humanity. I will stop for a moment. (A cat entered the room and started meowing) I will say, all are welcome, but as yet I have not brought together the animal kingdom! (Chuckles) But they are an example of love that can be given, I know you understand. But let me continue with what I was saying to you. In your thoughts of good for healing, the light that you give out is strong, it is good, it is received. I know all of you truly feel this, because it is so. What you can achieve at this present time in your planet's evolution is to surround it with love. It is imperative that each one of you gives of your thinking, not your time, your thinking, to promote your love within this planet in order to dispel negativity, which is being created at this very moment. Do you understand my dear friends what I am saying to you?

George: I think you are indicating love in its various aspects of talking to people in terms of prayer, in terms of meditation...

Not only that, but by terms of example of your own attitudes to living, because people on your Earth learn from example. It is a primitive form of learning, but it is so, and each one in your own individual ways can achieve this. I know that each one has problems, but they are minor in comparison to the whole. Please try to keep this to the forefront of your minds. But your love, my friends—it is needed at this time, not only for your immediate communities, for those people who you come into contact with, but for all mankind, because, as I have told you in the past, like attracts like and so it applies to negative vibrations. That is why you must help us from our world dispel this, to bring about the vibration of love. It seems a simple task, does it not, but I can tell you this is no simple task. It needs your dedication, it needs your own self-approval, it needs joint effort, it needs the band of love which cannot be broken. That is all I wish to say to you this time. I know my friends you will endeavour to create that love vibration wherever you may go. You are now strong enough, uplifted enough, clear-seeing enough to achieve what you will. Do you have any questions for me?

George: Going on from the destruction of the World Trade Building, and bearing in mind your teaching to us tonight, it appears to me that much good can come of this sad time. It is a time for perhaps the western world to rethink its standards and its way forward. In our various ways we have probably contributed to this situation. I take your point about not being fearful and this again is a good test and it is important that we go forward without fear, with love instead. As it has been such a traumatic happening, it is perhaps a good time for us to pause and think, and out of this I believe much good could come. Do you agree with that?

Yes. I would say this to you: Let us not speak of division within your world, let us not speak of western civilization, eastern civilization, let us speak of the world as a whole. What I would say to you my dear friends is this. You view this planet as part of your own evolution, you view this planet as being your whole existence for this lifetime, what you can achieve, and do not doubt it. Do not separate good and bad; remember that all belongs to the same—that is important. What you can do and what you must understand is that karmic debts can be dissolved. Remember not only do karmic debts belong to humankind, but also to the lands without your world. I say to you, you need to see the wider scheme of life for your understanding to be greater. I can tell you that this is a karmic debt, but you will not understand this unless you look at the wider scheme of life. The positive, the negative—remember all belong to the same vibration. Try my friends to see with spiritual eyes and of course if you ask me the question, is there good coming from what you call evil, then of course there must be, because there always has to be balance, but that is why it is imperative for you to use that love which you have, to keep that balance. And, yes, many of your countries in the world at this present time have joined together for what they call ‘good’, but of course they have not always been fair, in the eyes of this, our world. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

George: I think we have all had inner feelings that part of the direction of the way that we have been going has been questionable. We have all had these inner doubts, I think, and it is not difficult for us to see the karmic direction.

Yes, I would say, if you have these inner doubts, then please to listen, listen to what is being said to you, because that is the spiritual aspect of yourself which is speaking to you. I know it is always difficult when we speak of good and bad, positive and negative and all of these things, but until you reach that understanding of clear seeing, of further vision, of being part of the whole cosmos as opposed to part of this planet, you will always struggle with what is truth. Do you understand? (Affirmed)

George: I think you have talked to us in the past about light and dark energy and I think we can see very clearly today how these are connected.

I know it is not easy, but if I keep reminding you then it will become clearer for you. I hope that has helped you.

Sarah: My son was saying, if you have good and bad—I was explaining to him that everything was balanced—you cannot have one without the other—if we are working towards a perfect world where everybody has love, the opposite of love is hate, then where does the hate go? Is it all combined in love? I think that is perhaps the answer, but could you just give me an answer for him?

It would be dissipated into positive energy. Let me say this to you, again you have to look at it from the wider view. You have to think of all existence and not this one tiny speck of a planet. You must remember that you are but one drop in the ocean. There always will be positive and negative energy.

Because you have the balance, you should not always assume that throughout all of existence that negativity as a vibration is bad—it is not, it is part of existence. We are coming to deep matters here, matters which you are not ready to understand, but I would say with this young man to continue to think the way he does. He has an intelligence of life which may surprise you. Always to question even if he does not find what he considers, and I say he considers, to be the correct answer.

Sarah: Yes, he does surprise me with some of the things he comes out with.

He will because he is a soul who is seeking. We will see him here, but not just yet. I hope it helps, but whatever you say to him, he will not fully understand at this present time. It is not something that is easily explained to you, because the understanding for you at this moment is not great enough. He must look beyond physical living, he must look beyond planets, he must look towards existing. All is energy my friends, all vibration is energy. When you become integrated into that love energy, you do not make separations, you just are.

Lilian: This may seem a strange and simple question, but would the cat that has just walked in, would it be attracted to a light as well as the human beings?

All animals have a vision that mostly human beings have lost, and yes, they are more sensitive to vibration than mankind. The animal kingdom still relies most strongly upon their senses. It is something you human beings could learn much from. I would say to you that the creature is a little insecure. The little creature seeks much. (Voice started to fade) Speak to the creature mentally. I will leave you this time, because the instrument I am using (Eileen) is becoming a little depleted. Know always we are with you. (Thanks + farewells)

~15TH October 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I am happy to be with you once more. My absence last time was necessary, because in our world there was much wise counsel to be had. I would like to tell you in advance when I will not be with you, but sometimes this is not possible, but I know my dear friends that you found last time to be of interest. I would like to say to you this time a little about your thinking. We have spoken many times on this subject, but I feel that at this time there is so much confusion, so much doubt that it is important that I speak again to you about the way of your thinking. Remember that your thoughts are living things. Remember that the power of your thinking is the most powerful thing that you possess. These words I have uttered to you many, many times and I do not apologise for reiterating them to you. My dear friends, before you can help others, you have to take control of your own thinking. When you are in full command of that, then you are able to assist others. Do you understand what I say to you?

Lilian: Yes I think we all understand, but for myself I find it quite difficult to control my thoughts sometimes.

Yes, this is the problem with humankind that our words are accepted at the time of speaking, but then that which you call memory fails you and the words simply slip away and sometimes are forgotten. Would you agree? (Agreed) That is why it is imperative that I continue to remind you of that word 'thought—thinking', because the thought goes forward with you and I know that you fully understand this. Would you like to ask me questions about this please? (Pause) Do not be concerned. If there are thoughts afterwards, I will try to impress you with my own thinking. I know it is not always easy for you to have questions at this particular time.

Sara: Can I ask a question about parent and child bonds? Is it natural for the bonds to remain very strong throughout the whole of the human life, for the parent and child bonds, or do they sometimes change?

You do not belong—I believe that is a word you would use—to each other. It is a bond which is there for this one lifetime in the parent/child way. It may not always be that way, but may be changed in another lifetime to that of other relationships, shall I say. The bond need not be strong, that is not the purpose of it, that is not the purpose of living. The child is loaned to you for this one lifetime, so do not assume that there will always be strong bonds between parent and child.

Sara: But it's down to freewill really, isn't it, between both parties?

All is dependent upon the freewill that all of you have been endowed with, of course, but remember what I have told you that there is a contract between you, if I may use that earthly word, before either of you come to this form of life. But what you have to remember is that once you are joined with a physical body, then the thinking becomes rather distorted, may I say, and freewill will kick into place and many things can be altered; because you know that not all tread the pathway that they have chosen to go. But because there is a child-parent link, I would say to you my dear friend, think of each other as Spirit and not as the physical beings, then the understanding will be fuller and the understanding for this lifetime will become greater, which will enable you to work together in that true mission which you have chosen. When you speak of parent and child you are speaking of a power struggle, which should not be. Whether you are 40 earthly years or 4 earthly years should matter not. A parent's job in your world is to guide, is to give to that Spirit the love which it comes for, the guidance which it seeks and the knowledge which it is trying to obtain—but you do not own. This is difficult for many of you, but again I say to you my dear friends, think spiritually.

Sara: And it is true also in families, we often have a very limited view of family, but souls are sometimes older, parents can be younger souls than children. (Yes) There is so much variety I imagine in families. Remember that the child can teach you much, if you will but allow it and allow—and I return again to thinking—if you will use but clear thinking, that a child can bring you much knowledge, much happiness, but if you are only thinking along physical lines, then you will only come across difficulties. I know it is not easy to always think on a spiritual level, but my dear friends I have told you often enough that only will all of this life become clearer to you, when you begin to look and act as the Spirits that you are. You do not change, it is only that you have become restricted within the physical garb. This is the problem always and that for most of you, the spiritual memory has been erased, but you know the reason for that, that you would not learn otherwise. And of course there are exceptions as you full well know, there are those children who bring to this lifetime memories from our side of life, memories of previous times, who grow to adulthood and they are the ones who become your developed mediums, as you call them, in this lifetime. Does that help you? (Yes) Do not always assume that struggle between parent and child is negative, it is not. It is the outworking of karmic debts sometimes. I know it will give you something to think about. I know you have concerns my dear friend about raising of your children. I know sometimes you do not fully understand the ways of young children, but I say to you, they are teaching you.

Sara: Yes, I'm sure of that! (Giggles)

So I will leave you with that. (Thank you—)

George: I have been reading about the Indian Saints and Yogis and going beyond their physical restrictions—I picked that phrase up from you. Some in the past seem to have done very wonderful things and they seem to use a technique described as Kriya Yoga. I don't know what that is, but it seems to involve deep meditation in the lotus position with cessation of breathing and cessation of heartbeat. One can only admire what they have achieved in going beyond the physical. Would you wish to say anything to us about that and is there anything special about the Yoga position in meditation?

Yes, I will say this to you that names, positions mean nothing to us. What I will say to you about these people is this: they have not achieved greater things. What they have done as a group or a nation of people is that they have retained—which should be natural to all of you—those spiritual gifts that all of you could have, if you but spent the time and the dedication to the Spirit rather than to the physical living. They have not gained, but retained. Do you understand? (Yes) In the same way as I have told you, many, many people that have existed on this planet at many times, they have gradually lost all those spiritual gifts which are natural to you. These people have retained the knowledge and have bettered themselves with the use of it. I would say to you, because they use what you call 'yoga' and different positions of sitting, etc., it matters not because this can be attained in any quiet moment. It is not the position of sitting which creates that which they achieve, but it is the deep meditative state which achieves it; it is the inward knowing of who and what they are. It has been passed from one to another. The knowledge of this has been retained. That is the easiest way I have of explaining it to you. It is not that they have anything special or created anything special, it is just that they continue to use that knowledge which has been lost to most of you on this planet.

George: Yes and I imagine their past lives will be counted in this in their development.

Yes, it is not so much development—I would not use that word, but it is an inward knowing, it is a certainty of knowing, it is knowledge that has been retained down many generations. But it is their physical way, their outward way of showing by doing what you call a yoga, but that is not what creates what they do: it is the inward knowing and that can be achieved by anyone if they were so dedicated to it. Do you understand?

George: Yes, thank you for explaining that. I couldn't help but wonder.

Yes, you do doubt sometimes your own thinking, and I would say to you that your thinking is by far correct most times. You are a deep thinker my dear friend, but I am always happy to clarify any point for you.

George: Thank you, that's always reassuring to hear.

Sarah: My son thanks you very much for the information you gave him last time. (Yes) Going back to the mirror image, he wondered if this planet also has a mirror planet, and along that thinking, last week someone came through me and said that people from other planets were also helping us on this Earth at this time. I wondered if there is a mirror image, is it the people from that planet who are helping us at this time?

I understand this question and I will thank him. He is forward-looking this young one. Let me say this to you and I have to say to you my dear friend and I hope it does not feel like a chastisement, I do not mean it to be, but I have told you in past times that all things have an etheric body and that includes the planets within the cosmos. Do you not remember? (No) No. It would pay you well sometimes I feel to read some of my words, because I have explained to you that there is a mirror image of every planet within the cosmos, there has to be.

Lilian: Why does that have to be?

Because if you see yourselves as a solid being, you know full well that the etheric body is that which cannot be readily seen. So too, is that within your universe, that all planets have an etheric body, a mirror image—that is the way of life. When this planet has naturally extinguished its 'lifetime', shall we say, it does not disappear, it will—now we get to difficult subjects, but I will try to explain it simply for you—that energy does not disappear, only the physical part. Do you understand? (Yes) These are deep matters, which I do not feel again that you are ready to receive, but it is the energy which will remain and the etheric part of this planet is what will remain. Do you understand?

Lilian: It remains for all time?

It will emerge and be drawn into the cosmic energy. Does that make sense to you? (Yes)

Sarah: I understand that, and just the other part of my question. These people that are helping us from the other planets, are they anybody in particular or just as a group?

There are many peoples who are on other planets—we have discussed this before. When any planet is struggling—has karmic debts, all of the cosmos is used. You cannot isolate yourselves—you are not belonging as one Earth.

George: Yes, I think this principle has been discovered scientifically, that if a particle, if an electron does something unusual, it influences many, many, many others, so on a small scale scientifically, the principle is known. I don't think we have applied it to planets and other worlds.

Yes, yes, thank you. I was struggling for earthly words for explanation. All is known, all is known in your planet, of what is true, of what is natural, of what is in existence. Your earthly planet is but one minute dot within the cosmos. It is not singular, it belongs to all energy. Try to imagine my dear friends that you are but one drop in the ocean. All of those droplets are responsible, are part of the whole. You cannot my dear friends, you cannot separate. You are limited in your thinking, you cannot see that this tiny learning planet is so young in existence. It is cosseted by many, many older planets of existence.

The time is coming that this young man (Ben) will look for more explanation. He is far-seeing, his understanding is growing and soon you can tell him, I will speak with him. I will tell you when.

Sarah: I'm very pleased to hear that, thank you.

But I wish to leave with you this time my dear friends is again to think of the power of your thought and to reach out from this planet and search from within yourselves to see how far-reaching you can go. I thank our gentleman friend (George) for his help in seeking for words. Always this is a difficulty for us from our world, that sometimes we are limited in having to use earthly words for explanation. So again I thank the gentleman. I will leave you this time. I feel that you have much more to think about and I do not apologize for repeating those words. As always I stay close by and all you need to do is to call my name. (Thanks + farewells)

~22nd October 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I wish to say to you this time my dear friends, a little about the progression that is open to mankind upon this planet. At this time when there are many fears, which we have already discussed, what I wish to say to you is this: Although the world to you seems quite a small place, because communications between you all on this planet, have become so advanced that you can speak to another human being on the other side of your world. What I would say to you is this my dear friends, in the next 100 of your earthly years, many what you term 'discoveries' will be made, but of course, you know all things first come from our world. There will be many discoveries outside of your planet and I have to remind you that this is already happening, that many stars are being observed, which have not been seen before. Advances in medicine will be great for mankind, advances in communication will also be great. There will be new knowledge, which surfaces from your oceans. Many new energies my dear friends will be discovered, that will help to uphold the living of mankind. As by now you know, all energy has always existed, but it has taken many thousands, thousands of your Earth years, for them to be individually discovered by mankind. I say to you my dear friends, that there is much that is still unknown. I am not here to give you names, these will become known to you, but what I am to say to you, is that remember my words as each new discovery is made. Of course, you will not all be on the earthly planet in 100 years hence, but I can assure you that there will be discoveries made whilst most of you remain. This brings me to another topic of whether you think this is progression for mankind or not. Provided new discoveries are wisely used, then of course it can only be for the betterment of mankind, but as you all full well know, mankind has a history of abusing what comes to him. But again I have told you previously, that in 1000 of your years to come, will find a new development with man's consciousness, that life as you know it now, will be transformed, I have to say for the better. (Thanks expressed) Already there are many, many in your world, who know and understand what they are, as you my dear friends, know and understand the true meaning of who you are. I do not say that you are fully aware—of course you are not—each one of you is developing still. But what you have, you must guard well, because you have the knowledge that enables you to shine forth, firstly from your own Spirit, but ultimately to reach many others, to give the knowledge which you have. I will pause there for any questions that you have about what I have said to you.

George: Could I ask a question about new discoveries? I have the feeling that if new—I think any new discoveries would apply—if new discoveries bring science and spiritual matters together—and I think this has already been happening to some degree (Yes)—I feel this can only be for the good and will bring a greater understanding of all things.

Yes, science my dear friend, does as you have said, has a foothold on spiritual matters. They at last cannot deny what is before them. They cannot deny what is used, what is placed in front of them. For so long have scientists disassociated themselves from all things spiritual, not because of any negative forces within them—because the purpose of their work has ultimately been for good—but they have been blind in their assessments of what is placed before them. That is changing quite rapidly I would say, and your scientists will in time to come, become philosophers in the sense, that they will present the facts of spirituality and what there is to be attained from energy. Do you understand my words my dear friend?

George: Yes, I think this all sounds very good.

It will—they will accept—their awareness, their growth of consciousness, must grow with their knowledge, and this will be so.

Lilian: The stars that our astrologers are already interested in, is there life on these stars?

No, no, you must not always assume that all that exists has life form. It has life only in as much as that all things are living and moving. But no, you must not make that assumption.

Sarah: My son has been looking on the internet and there is a group of people who say that they can go backwards and forwards in time and they talk about the 4th dimension. I can't remember the name of the group.

Yes, names matter not. Much is spoken in your world, many names are used. We have discussed many groups, many have been mentioned within this room. I will say only this to you: There are people on this planet who have the capabilities of knowing all, but when you speak of returning to another time, what they are doing is returning to another time in their subconscious thought. Do you understand?

Sarah: Yes I think so, yes.

They can of course go forward in time, but if they say they are in another dimension of time, it is only within their thought pattern. I think this is a little difficult for you to understand. They can go forward in time, but they cannot return in the physical sense in time—only within their thought patterns, which is of course only a form of energy.

Sarah: And this 4th dimension that my son was talking about?

It is just another step. Dimension is only a word.

George: Could I ask a question about dimensions? (Yes) Theoretical physicists have theories about other worlds, with different numbers of dimensions. (Yes) We are familiar with our own physical world with 3 dimensions and apparently linear time. In Spirit you have told us how time is different. (Yes) I was wondering if the dimensions of Spirit are different. I imagine that in near Spirit realms, where body and form persist, perhaps these will still be 3 dimensional realms, but in far Spirit realms, such as your own Salumet, I imagine form will not exist as we know it. (Yes) Would there be a dimensional difference in that realm?

I think that first we must define the word 'dimension', if you are to understand what I am saying to you. What is dimension? It is nothing but a transmutation of energy. Do you understand? (Yes—) All is energy, all these dimensions you speak of, are but a transmutation of the same energy. When you speak of the level that I come from, then all of this energy would become part of—there is no what you call, 'dimension'. We are in a difficult subject here my friends, for your understanding.

George: There is no dimension—yes.

It is beginning to make sense to you my friend—I can feel it. You understand just a little more than the others I feel.

George: Yes, it helps to see it more as a transmutation of energy. Thank you for that.

Yes, again the difficulty comes with the words of your planet. I have to use the words that you are familiar with, but they problem is that you do not understand our world fully enough for the explanation. But I will return to the lady (Sarah) and say that whatever group of people you are speaking of, I will say this to you: I have told you that mankind has the capabilities if he so desires, to leave what you call this earthly dimension, but mankind does not have the capability of going backwards, and that is what they are saying they are doing. They can only do it in thought. Do you understand? (Yes) The only way it is possible to return to a former time, is through what you call a mediumship, and what is spoken through mediumship, by those who exist in our world. Does that make sense to you?

Sarah: Yes it does, thank you.

All of you can take yourselves forward, all of you can be aware of other times, but you cannot physically return to what has gone before.

Lilian: Does it boil down to the power of our thoughts again?

I will stress once more, the most powerful thing you possess is the power of your thinking. We will return another time, when I feel that you are more able to accept my words about—and I will use your words, 'dimensions'. But again, I will say to you that dimension is only energy, but the transmutation of energy.

Paul: Could I add something to that? (Yes) I think some people have described that dimension or transmutation of energy, as the illusion. (Yes) The world has been assembled for our benefit, but we don't see the energy in its true form, we see it transmuted into trees and the physical—

You see what you feel to be reality; this my dear friends, is not reality. Reality will be when you return home to our world, then all will become clear. Then and only then, will you be able to see what you call dimension, in its fullest form. Remember my words my dear friends, energy is ever-changing, it is not static, but you are able to see with spiritual eyes, all that has been and all that will be. I know it is a difficult concept for you, but I ask you once more to think about it.

Mark: When you can do that, see into infinity, as it were, then there isn't really a dimension.

That is what I have just spoken about. When you come to what you call my dimension of time, there is none. Do you not see, it is like a ladder of thought? If you take the top of the ladder to be the all-knowing and the bottom rung as the blinkered vision of life—if you are blinkered how far do you see? You see only what is ahead, you cannot see what is to the side or behind or above you. Do you see what I am trying to say? (Affirmed) Again, the unfortunate thing, is that we are limited by your earthly words, because as you full well know, that the word 'dimension', to each of you, you all have your own vision of what dimension is. And again, I have to disillusion you and say, look with spiritual eyes, for the understanding. I hope I do not leave you too confused my dear friends, but it is by slowly going over old ground that your knowledge and your wisdom will expand.

I will leave you this time, and I know that I have given you more food you thought (Agreed + chuckles + thanks) and until we come together once more, know as always I stand close. And again you see, those earthly words, 'I stand close', they do not make sense, do they? It is something for you to think of and to consider. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sue, bringing gifts of flowers for the group.

~29TH October 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I will take any questions you have this time.

George: You talked to us about thought recently. It occurs to me that there is a great deal of influence on our televisions and in our newspapers and this is a great influence on the way people think. We have a term brain-washing. Sometimes perhaps we are too much influenced by our media and I would guess this means that we need to be careful and go within and acknowledge some areas of media news, but be circumspect—it perhaps just shows the importance of going within and not being too carried away with it. Does that make sense?

Yes, I understand what you say my dear friend. Let me say this to you: I have told you thought is the most powerful thing that humankind possesses and of course you must be careful that you do not see yourselves as victims to another's thoughts. You have the capability of directing negative thoughts which come towards you. This we have spoken of briefly, but, yes of course, those of you who fully understand the workings of the spoken word and the thoughts which are emitted outwards to all peoples, must use your own thought to protect yourselves. Do not feel my dear friends that although you are constantly bombarded by your media on this planet, that you have to take on board all that is given out. You cannot destroy the thought patterns of others, but you can have them 'intercepted' if you like—if that is an understandable way of putting it—but of course you put it quite succinctly, when you spoke of going inwards. That, of course as you fully understand, is the way to protect yourselves from any negative thoughts, and that is why also it is important that the powerful thoughts of goodness and love must be given to those who are vulnerable, who have no knowledge, who are in darkness spiritually—that is why you must help to protect your fellow men. So, do you understand, there lies another great responsibility?

George: Yes, thank you for your thoughts on that. Yes, that helps.

You must not take on board the negativity of thought, but you must exude all that is goodness and light and love. This I cannot repeat to you often enough.

Lilian: Especially at this time.

This is but one moment in your evolution. There have been many times upon this planet, when mankind has almost become self-destroying. That is why my dear friends, it is important at this time, for people of your understanding spiritually to work closely together with those from our world, who at this time will succeed, although it will not be in the shorter time of your earthly time, but we will succeed in bringing to this planet, a form of love and peace hitherto unknown to your world. (Thanks expressed) But as you know as human beings, always there seems to be a price to pay for anything of good. This of course is not necessary, but because of the way your planet has evolved, that all too often seems to be the case. So my friends, I will say to you once more, go inwards as my dear friend here has said, go inwards, know yourselves, therein lies all of your answers to the problems of this world, this planet, therein lies the answers to all of your life problems, therein lies the Source of Love—and let me tell you, when that Source of Love is reached, nothing can destroy you.

Sarah: My son said after I told him the words you had given him the other week, he said he thought he could understand now, why our planet should not be destroyed, because it would upset the balance in the cosmos. It is not ready to go yet and it would upset the balance. I think he's on the right track.

Yes, I have told you for one who is so young in your world, there lies words of wisdom. I will talk with him in the time to come, but on such a young person there is an old head, I believe that is one of your earthly expressions, and it so aptly says what we feel. He has an innate knowledge, which may surprise you. Although you yourself have developed greatly and yet you have not developed to the stage that this young person has already attained. So I say to you, do not be surprised by anything that he says. It may not always be correct, but there is a wisdom within, which cannot be still. (Thank you very much.) I feel that for the rest of this time we will give to some self-development my dear friends, whilst I shall continue to work quietly with this one and I will ask only that there be no sudden noise. That is all that I ask of you, but open your hearts and minds to those who stand close to you. It is time my friends that you became aware of the one who is ever close, and as of yet, you are not aware. Open your hearts this night and let us see what can be achieved. I thank you dear lady (Lilian) for all that you give and I will leave the rest of this time in your most capable hands.

Lilian asked one final question, concerning a new guest visiting the group, before we said our thanks and farewells.

~12TH November 2001~

Salumet had problems coming through the previous week, due to the noise of fireworks. We were however set a task to think about over the week: the difference between Twin Souls and Soul Mates.

Good evening. (Welcomes)

This time before I speak with you I ask you dear lady (Lilian) that you place your hand on each person's head for a short time and they should feel love energies flow through them. Then I will speak with you. What you have been given this time, will help to sustain you all, in the coming days in your everyday lives. (Thanks expressed)

Now my dear friends, let us continue and I hope that last time did not disappoint you. It is not that there are problems for me to come to you, but the problems lie in the instruments which we use.

Lilian: Yes, we realize it was rather a noisy evening.

Yes, and we must protect the instruments from any sudden physical shock. You understand, I know.

(Yes) So, my dear friends, shall we take up where you left last time?

Lilian: Yes please. It gave us something to think about.

And I have watched your struggle with it. Has anyone formed an opinion which they feel is the correct answer to the question?

Mark: The idea we were thinking about was that the Twin Souls were twinned from the beginning, maybe, and were together in Spirit for a long time, following a pathway with a similar energy, maybe with a similar mission, I don't know. Whereas the Soul Mates—using our language, it sounded a bit like they were a less—perhaps met together at times, but perhaps weren't so identical and on such a similar path?

Yes, I thank you my dear friend for your comments. Let me say this to you that earthly words become much confused when spiritual matters are spoken of, but we know that your earthly words have to be used in descriptive language in order for you to understand. The problem lies that one avenue of ideas becomes what you term 'the normal'. I am here my dear friends to tell you this time what the difference is. I have told you previously that the soul mate does not often meet in the physical world—that statement still stands. I will not change those words, because you see, the soul mate—without becoming too involved in highly technical details, because my friends that indeed would be foolish, because you would not understand. Again we are speaking of energy. The Soul Mates were created together for all time, from the beginning of what you know as time—and that subject is much too complicated for us to discuss here. I could speak of molecular energy, I could speak of all kinds of energy, but I feel that for you would confuse the issue. Soul Mates were created together, they vibrate on the same electromagnetic wavelength; they are counterparts of one another. That is the simplicity of the Soul Mates that they are energy which are vibrating on the same energy line. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes, it's a bit complicated, but, yes.

It is an issue of words again. That is why true Soul Mates do not meet in incarnations except very rarely—there is no need when they vibrate at the same frequencies. Does this make sense to you my dear friends? (Yes) Now we come to Twin Souls. This indeed should be the term that you use, instead of your 'Soul Mates', which is used most often in your world, because Twin Souls meet many, many times in different incarnations and their purpose is in recognition, in coming together to try to form and create and blend into one energy. That is the purpose of their coming together.

Lilian: So each of us would have met a Twin Soul in this lifetime?

All of you in this room are Twin Souls. You have met in other times, in other lifetimes. And what is your purpose in coming together?

Lilian: To iron out any differences we had in past lifetimes.

Yes, and that is what the Twin Souls try to achieve. If I can put it to you in a more basic way of your understanding: why do you call a twin in your world?

Lilian: Because there are two.

Because there are two of them, yes, that come together to try to form the whole. But they are separate, are they not? (Yes) Therefore can you see that they are but two energies that need to come together to blend, but they need not necessarily do so at the same time? Are you understanding my words? (Yes) If not, please let us discuss it now.

Lilian: It doesn't necessarily mean two? It can mean a group as well? When we say twins we think of two, but it can be all of us in this room?

You are Twin Souls, yes. You have met—each one that you meet that is necessary for your spiritual growth, you have met before.

Mark: Meaning you've been 'twinned'.

Yes, thank you for those words, that is helpful. You see always is this difficulty of your earthly language for spiritual matters—but it is the Soul Mate which can never be parted, which are together, because of the vibration of their frequencies—it is exactly the same. They are exact counterparts of one another, that is what you must remember of the Soul Mates, but the Twin Souls are working at different vibrations. Try to see it my friends as energy working at different frequencies and perhaps your understanding will come.

Sarah: So this is why we are all taking different lengths of time?

Yes, that is why you come together, that is why we have the term ‘Twin Souls’. It is hearts coming, trying to work together, recognizing each other.

George: Just to clarify, would I be correct in saying we are all aspects of Soul that are meeting. As aspects, we are representatives of the Soul.

Yes, you are correct. You are one aspect of the whole, yes, which incarnate in any lifetime to develop and grow spiritually.

Lilian: So these Twin Souls could include quite a lot of people/souls, whichever you like to say.

It is the reason for the attraction between people in any one incarnation, any one lifetime. It is thought to be the attraction of only two in your world—this is not strictly correct. This is where the misconception comes in, but if you think upon my words, I feel that this time it will become clearer to you, but you must think of it as spiritual energy. Think of the different rates, after all, all is vibration, is it not? (Yes) You have accepted this my dear friends, but there are different frequencies of vibration, you agree, and that is the only difference—that the Soul Mate vibrates on the same frequency, there is no difference whatsoever.

Sarah: So with the Soul Mate, there are more than two Soul Mates as well? If with the Twin Souls there are more than two, then there are many Soul Mates, are there?

No—but they would be in two, they would vibrate as two only, at the same frequency. That is why you will not encounter a Soul Mate very often in a lifetime, because there would be no purpose in their incarnating into the physical body, with two vibrating at the same frequency.

Sarah: So why should they sometimes come together?

For a purpose. There is always a purpose and a reason for them if that should happen. There is an agreement between them if it should happen, but always there would be a strong purpose behind it. It may well be that one needs the ‘backing’, shall I say your earthly word, of the other in one lifetime. They may need the strength of the other to operate in your world.

George: Would there be a purpose in creating Soul Mates in the first place?

Yes, I will say no more, but yes that is the—

George: Not just a matter of chance.

No, there is no such thing as chance. All has a purpose, but with the Soul Mate, they have been created from the beginning, in the knowledge that whatever they are come together for, will be used at the right time. You can never separate the Soul Mates.

Lilian: So when we pass into Spirit from the physical, how soon would we meet up with our Soul Mate?

You may never meet your Soul Mate for a long time. You are thinking along physical lines again. This is where the difficulty arises. You must think of energy. It is difficult, is it not? (Agreed) Let us assume that each one here is a radio frequency, but you are all at a different vibration of frequency, but still you are blended together.

Lilian: Yes, it’s something are going to have to think about harder.

Mark: Yes, ‘twinned’ Souls is a little bit of a confusing term. I was thinking ‘united’ Souls was maybe slightly better, because you are united for a particular reason. You are uniting to blend your energies, (Yes) whereas Twin Souls, gives the impression—you think of incredible likeness between the two, when we talk of twins, (Yes) which isn’t exactly what we mean.

I have to inform you my dear friends that these are earthly terms, they do not come from us. These are words that have been given to information from our world, for the understanding of people such as yourselves, who have chosen descriptive words to make their meaning known. All I can say to you my dear friends is this, always when there are questions in your mind, think spiritually. That is my purpose here. I want you to think along spiritual lines for every happening within your daily lives. If you are to find the answers of life, you have to know yourself for what you are. I have said this to you many times and by going within, you become that vibration which exists without all of the outer earthly garb. Then and only then will your understanding increase. Has this helped you my friends? (Affirmed)

George: I was just trying to think of an example. I believe Jesus and Mary are aspects of the same soul, of the same energy. (Yes) Would they also be Soul Mates?

Yes, that is the simple answer. They vibrate at the same frequency.

Lilian: So they were two, who actually met in the one lifetime.

And for a purpose—is that helping you to be clearer? They will not be separated. I have told the gentleman that there is in existence many beings—

Pause for a minute or so, before Salumet continued quietly and slowly:

What you are not grasping is the way in which energy transmutes itself. Therein lies the answers to all of your questions. I need to withdraw for now. Please allow instrument to return slowly. (Thanks + farewells)

~19TH November 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As we come together this time, I feel amongst you a heaviness of Spirit which I will try to dispel for you before you leave this room. (Thanks expressed) I know my dear friends that you cannot always achieve spiritual lightness, that many problems surround you in your daily lives. But I say to you once more, you have the capabilities to overcome all obstacles which stand in your way. I would say to you this time, that if you remember my words some many months of your time ago, I told you that this year of your earthly time would be of great significance to you all. What I would say to you my dear friends is this, that over the coming few weeks, I ask that you look inwardly, because I will speak with you on what you have achieved, not physically but spiritually. You may associate what you have achieved with some physical happening, but that is not the important part of your achievement. What I would like you to discuss is what you have achieved spiritually in this last year of your lives, because, my dear friends, even if you are not aware of it, each one of you has grown, grown so much that indeed to see your light would stagger you I believe. That is not to say that there is not much more to be achieved, because always you are growing, as all things are expanding. So my dear friends, I will leave this with you, and know that within the next few of our meetings, I will come to ask you to discuss with you, what you have achieved. Already I can feel the doubts of what you have achieved, but I say to you, place those doubts to one side, go inwards and see my dear friends what you have become. I know perhaps that many on this Earth at this time of disruption and unsettlement, wonder how their light can grow brighter, but already I have said to you that firstly you must make each individual light stronger for the purpose and the good of the whole. Remember these words and it will help you to understand better what you are about. I feel my dear friends that this evening you would all benefit from a little self-exploration, a little upliftment and a chance to see what spiritual gifts you can develop. Therefore, I will say to you this time, if you have any questions, I will take them now before departing from you and allowing each one of you to be used individually in your own individual styles, and for this I will leave this in the capable hands of our dear lady here (Lilian). Do you have questions this time?

Sarah: Last week, Salumet, you stopped rather suddenly and Eileen, your instrument, said she remembered seeing a pinnacle of light which she hadn't experienced before. Could you perhaps tell us what happened last week?

Yes, I was aware that the instrument had some awareness of what was happening. Up until now she has only been aware of the returning back to the physical being. You know I believe, that when I step into this instrument, I am using her voice box, her body shall we say—although that is not strictly correct, but for the sake of understanding that is how we shall put it to you—therefore she is not aware of where physically or spiritually she is. She is placed to one side, in order that I may speak with you. What happened last time before she returned, was that her spiritual awareness has grown to such an extent, that on the point of return she was aware of being in—what shall we say—the spiritual light. It is as simple as that, although to the instrument it was something quite special. It was not, it was only her awareness was awakened. If you wish you may repeat my words to her, but it is only that her spiritual awareness has awakened more.

Sarah: And also Sue, who was sitting to Eileen last week, a control came through her, which we couldn't really hear, but she said to us that she thought you would be able to tell us what was said. Were you aware of that control?

Lilian: Or what was the connection?

At this moment I cannot tell you what was said. I will look to it for you and tell you next time, but I will say this to you my dear friends, that that lady (Sue) is used mainly for energy for the purpose of my coming to you. She is not the only one of course, energy is taken from each one of you. You are not aware of it I know, but it has to be so in order for me to utilize the energy to use the instrument.

Lilian: Yes, the voice was so low that we couldn't quite hear what was said.

I will find out for you. (Thank you.)

Mark: This is probably a bit too hypothetical, but a friend of mine came and asked—he said he had been given the question for his homework—what would be the experience on the Earth if hypothetically the moon physically suddenly didn't exist, what would be the reaction in the Universe and on the Earth?

Yes, I understand your question, but yes it is something that is, of course, never going to happen.

Therefore it would seem to me my dear friend, pointless to waste energy upon these presumptions. I do not wish to be evasive, but there is too much that needs to be given.

Mark: Yes, I did wonder if it was a bit too hypothetical.

Of course there is no harm in these presumptions, if that is what they so desire, but for the purpose of my teaching, I find that it is important that my time be used in an instructive way. You understand I hope. (I do.)

I will withdraw my friends this time and allow those who wish to work with you to come. You are all in need of upliftment and that will be my aim for you this evening. (Thanks + farewells)

~17TH December 2001~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

I feel that now we can speak—instrument has slight irritation to throat; I will see to it. It is good to come together with you this time.

Lilian: Yes, we've missed our meetings.

Although all of you are not present this time, I will continue with what we spoke of last time. Do you remember my dear friends that I asked of each one of you that you consider what it is that you have achieved during this past year of your earthly time and why? (Yes) I will listen to each one, but I will wait until such time—as well as refraining from telling you—until such time as all are present, of what indeed you have achieved. Remember, I ask what you think you have achieved, not on the physical level, but the spiritual level. But of course as you well know my dear friends, that whatever happens on the spiritual level, reflects itself upon the physical being. Therefore, you can relate your feeling exactly to me and I will but listen this time. Also, my dear friends, we have reached that time of your earthly year when I withdraw from you for some short time. It is necessary that I withdraw at these times in order not only to review my own work, but also to take counsel and to see what we can achieve in time to come. As always, I feel what you would call on your Earth a little saddened by the parting, but again you know that always I am nearby. (Yes) So my dear friends, I will leave this conversation in the hands of this dear lady, (Lilian) whilst I quietly absorb what you have to tell me. (Lilian then went around group asking each to comment)

Mark: I was thinking along the lines—I feel lighter I suppose and more in touch with people possibly. I feel slightly less bogged down with thinking about the future and I feel a sort of contentment or resignation to my path, which feels better. I don't feel as distracted, although I don't feel I get enough quiet time either, I really need to get more quiet time to develop further; it is something that I really feel I need to work at. I'm doing it more than in recent years, but still not enough, I know that. I feel more aware of myself generally and my actions.

Paul: The travelling part this year springs to mind first. That seemed to get my twinkle back a little bit more. There was a lot of humour on that trip and maybe I wasn't so restricted by some of the fears I have had, those perhaps diminished a bit and so the opportunities that perhaps have always presented themselves, weren't cut off—I made some of them happen a little bit more and since then I have continued and begun to just put a bit more time into the meditations. I think I sense that there are a few sort of—if there is a problem I can get to it a little bit more now in meditation—a bit more practical really. Usually the benefits are beginning to show a bit more quickly sometimes, if you go into meditation. I'm aware there's a lot more in there to untangle. I think I've been untangling a lot of my past in meditations, getting rid of a few of the old cobwebs.

Sarah: Like Mark, I know I don't do anywhere near enough meditation, that's first and foremost what I don't do, what I should do. I have also realized—you said that your thought process has a boomerang effect—so do your actions have a boomerang effect. I don't know if they are linked, but I can appreciate that. I find it a lot easier now if people have problems, to see a spiritual side to it and perhaps put in a word that very often goes down well. People react well very often to what I have said, even if it is only a few simple words. I feel life easier to cope with, with the knowledge that I've got and that's certainly helped a lot this year. Things are much easier and the knowledge I have been given I find very easy to accept and it seems on many occasions easy to pass on. You see things differently and I try not to see the negative side of things, I try to see the positive side. Whereas there is doom and gloom in various people's lives and I try to say to them to see a positive side.

Lilian: I have remembered that we have been told that it is a learning planet and the last few weeks I have certainly learned a few lessons, at least I feel I have. I have got things wrong and tried to work it out, and so on.

Margaret: I feel that I have come to understand myself a lot better, regardless of what people say to me. I do enjoy my walking, an hour a day, or sometimes longer. I thoroughly enjoy my thoughts as I walk along. And I feel I have more patience than I had before with people. I listen more carefully. I don't always give them the right answer—I don't know why, but I try to tell people to have more faith and to be a bit more spiritual, which they don't understand and I'm not really capable of telling them how to go about it. You have to think for yourself, I think, on those sort of thoughts and I am just happy with my life and that is something to be thankful for. I have learned to be patient.

Yes, of course to hear your words poses many questions. When we discuss together, when all are present, and we will be hearing what they too wish to say, you may be surprised my dear friends of what you have actually achieved spiritually. Oft times what you have achieved spiritually does not come to the forefront of your thinking. So I would say to you that mostly you are unaware of what has been achieved. This past year of your earthly time has been an important one, not because of any event which has occurred upon this planet, but in the scheme of existence. There is no one individual who lives within a body, who has not in this past year of your time grown in some way. You are surprised by those words. Let me say this to you my dear friends: You know that this planet you call Earth is but a small part of the whole. (Agreed) This past year of existence has seen a new beginning in the karmic life of this planet and this cannot be so if the planet's inhabitants do not also evolve. That is why I told you earlier in this year of your time, that by the end of it, each one of you would be slightly changed—and it has been so. I would ask you now my dear friends to reflect upon the words you have spoken this time. Consider them well, look deep within and you will see new beginnings. Of course you well know that each one of you, because you travel different pathways, will individually develop differently. But all I will say for this time, is that friends your achievements are something that you can be pleased about.

Lilian: Thank you. I feel we don't always see them ourselves.

You do not, there is so much doubt and fear and self-denial with you human beings, that sometimes when the light shines brightly, you yourselves are the very ones to dull the light. Do you understand my meaning?

Sarah: Is it the doubt that dulls it?

Yes. Too many doubts, too much fear, too many of life's problems that crush you. (Agreed) But now you must go forward and as some of you have said, the recognition of being stronger spiritually, is a great achievement for you. So do not doubt that which comes from within, because that inner knowledge is what you truly are. Let no one place doubt within your minds as to what you can achieve. Would you be surprised my dear friends, if I was to say that all of you, all of you, including those who are not here with us, have in part achieved that spiritual gift of humility? Do not think of 'humility' in human terms, but try to relate humility in the spiritual realms. That is something also that you can ponder upon—humility—what is spiritual humility?

Lilian: Is it similar to teaching physically?

Not at all. Think carefully and long about that question I have raised with you, because my dear friends, when next I return to you, I will be looking for your answers. I repeat to you, what is spiritual humility?

Lilian: Yes, we'll think about that when we sit quietly and try to come up with the right answer.

Do not allow doubt and fear to come into that equation. Now my friends, before I leave you this time:

I ask that you join with me in giving thanks to the all purposeful Creative Force from which we all come. We give thanks for these times of learning together, we ask that each one of us may know Truth and Light within our daily living. We ask that Love and Healing surrounds this planet of learning that it may someday become a planet of pure Light and Love.

I ask you my dear friends that as I leave you, that you become as one within this power force, which is within this room. (Thanks + farewells)

~14TH January 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Although we have been apart, we have been close to you in Spirit. I begin slowly this time so adjustments can be made. Last time I spoke to you I asked what you had gained in the past year of your time. This time my dear friends we will ask once more, now you have had time to consider fully what achievements you have gained spiritually. Then I will speak with you individually to tell you what indeed you have gained and how much you have grown.

Lilian: So shall we go round individually?

I will leave that to you my dear friend.

Lilian: I would just like to say that the person you are using, I did ask her before we came in and she said that she felt closer to Spirit this year than before—so that was Eileen.

I am aware.

Lilian: Yes, I guessed you would be. (Yes)

Sarah: The same as before really. I feel it much easier not to judge people, to perhaps try and understand a different way of looking at things so that I don't get angry. Sometimes I do judge a little bit, but I try to bite my tongue and think, no, I shouldn't be thinking this way. I generally find it easier to understand people, to try and look at things in a more spiritual way. From that point of view I think perhaps I'm understanding Spirit a little more than before.

Yes, I would agree with you, but what you have achieved is strength of heart. You have given way and learned how to deal with what you call emotion. What you are indeed learning is to be compassionate without all the emotional garbage which belongs to human kind. We see your light get stronger and stronger but you still have nagging doubts which you are now beginning to judge for yourself and realize that you must accept some things even without the answer there in front of you and this, my friend, is what you are achieving.

George: I feel that I have learned much from your teaching and that to bring peace and love to all people, because, for one reason, we are all one. I think I have extended the feeling of spiritual humility and I think this links to the realization that each one of us is so small—one iota of soul, and the soul being but one in a sea of souls; and yet we are all one—the full realization that we are linked and such a very small part. I think that this sort of realization has become much greater.

Yes. You my dear friend have pondered, wondered, been in awe for so many years, but, yes, you are correct when you say the realization of what being truly spiritual means, has indeed touched you in this past year of your time. You need to look with eyes from within, to find truth, to find the meaning of all life, and this my friend you have begun to take steps upon the ladder. You will never be a great communicator in the sense that each one of you understand, but that inner knowledge is what you have and what you hold dear, and your pathway my friend is to do just as you have been doing—to spread the word through your speech and through your writing.

George: Yes, I feel this quite strongly. Thank you.

Paul: I think I am feeling more comfortable with myself now and I think there is a direction beginning to open up. I still don't know what that direction is really, but I feel there is a momentum building.

Yes. You look too hard—you look too hard rather than to allow that Spirit to be gathered and to be utilized in the way that it can. You of gentle soul have more understanding than you realize. You tread a pathway this time where your spirituality begins to come forth into the physical being. You have spent many lifetimes isolated in lonely thought, but in this lifetime you must go forward, you must make communication with those who stand close by you, in order that you see the purpose of your pathway. But you have grown much my dear friend, even if you are not fully aware of it.

Paul: Thank you, that's very clear.

Jan: I believe that I spent the year getting to know me and my Spirit first. I have looked inwardly a lot more than I think I have ever done before, and I've found looking inwardly and getting to know myself helped me understand and have an empathy towards other people, stronger than I have ever felt before. So that is what I think I have learned this year.

Yes, you have quietened the busy mind that belongs to physical living. At last you know that to be in stillness and quietness can reap many rewards and for you, my dear friend, this is an achievement that the Spirit has grown, has gone forward and will continue to do so provided that freewill continues to desire it to do so. As always, you know freewill is dominant within human life and all I would say to you my dear friend is that, as long as the desire remains, there is no reason that you should not continue to grow. But one small word to you before I leave, and it is this: that still there is with you too many—what is the term you use—handcuffs from past times. I would if I may suggest that you focus and try to work upon this if you are to fully develop those spiritual senses. (Thank you.)

Sara: I feel a much deeper fulfilment in many areas of my life now and I know that there is still a long way to go, but I feel that this year has been an important year, and I can't say in which particular way I have grown, but the sense of joy and fulfilment which is often there tells me that I have grown.

Yes, and that is your achievement that you have that knowledge, you have that feeling of knowing. That belongs to the Spirit and not to the physical existence. You have said the words that I would have said to you, that it is a spiritual knowledge that you cannot place your finger upon, but you know that something has happened. (Yes) You also too are learning that you need more than yourself for life to help you to grow. You need the conditions which surround you at this present time to make you stronger.

Sara: Yes, I understand. You mean to draw the help from others, (Yes) instead of offering to accept from them.

Yes. It is available to all, but do not forget that the human living is also part of the spiritual growth. You cannot separate the two and this applies to each one of you, not only to our dear lady friend.

Sara: Yes, so what you are saying is the conditions we find ourselves in are necessary, even though we may not like them always, they're necessary for us to grow.

Yes, always I have said to you, it is the times of trouble and stress and war which is when you grow more spiritually. So do not look upon these times of darkness in your lives as anything to be avoided, but rather to give thanks that you have been given the opportunity.

Sara: And it is true too if we don't resist them, they don't usually persist.

Yes, exactly. Yes, your understanding of this is good.

Margaret: I don't really know how to put this, but I feel so contented with my life now. This last year has been a year where I have appreciated my friends more and understanding my Spiritual life and I am so happy within myself. I sometimes think I shouldn't be, but I am happy. I don't know whether that is the right thing to say.

Yes. What is happening is that the Spirit is reflected in the physical living and that happiness that you feel is the Spirit shining forth. Remember, how the Spirit is will be reflected into physical living in one way or another. So continue to grow in your own way. After all, each one of you has your own pathway to follow and if I bring a seed of comfort to you to help you on your way, then indeed my task also is being achieved. (Thank you.)

(Lilian then asked Sue if she wished to speak, but she was deep in trance)

Do not disturb her if she is being utilized. I know how she has grown. And although her physical living is at times much too busy, shall we say, still is she growing stronger with more knowledge and I am sure that she will tell you when she can that she has experience more spiritually at this time than ever before. You can confirm it with her.

Lilian: For myself, I have realized, especially the last few months, of the lessons that we're here to learn. Emotion does get in my way I feel perhaps too much. If I could stand back from things a little more, it may help. Yes, the learning for me I think is still going on.

Yes, again I would say to you that you have grown much since you have been doing this task, shall we say—your light grows brighter, which is—you are correct when you speak of emotions controlling you at certain times. But again, you are human as all of you are, but the secret is that you must control the emotional body in order for the Spirit to go forward. This is not a criticism, nor is it a judgement, but is said, my dear friend, to help you and when times are indeed stressed, as they are in all of your lives at some point, then I say to you: go to the quiet space within and you will be uplifted, guided and helped in order that you can deal with any situation and go forward. (Yes)

I would like to say this to you my friends: You may wonder why I have asked you all what you have gained in this past year of your lives. You would say, but surely they would know how we have grown? But of course we know, but we have found when working with you humankind that to voice what you feel, to experience amongst one another is food for thought to all the others. It is an exercise in speaking forth on your own growth.

Sara: Can I ask a question? (Yes) Regarding tears in crying, would you say it is healthy to ease the pressure sometimes? It is something I have always wondered, because not everybody cries, not all women cry for example. Do you think it is healthy if it is quiet and it is alone and you are relieving stress?

It is neither healthy nor unhealthy, you must go by each individual. Some individuals have more emotional capacity. I am not saying whether that is good or bad, or better or worse—it is the nature of the individual. If tears release tension, then I say what harm can it do? It is of course, emotional and belongs to the physical, but you know the Spirit also feels and that belongs to the spiritual. There is a difference and perhaps I may suggest that that is something you may wish to ponder upon and ask for guidance and help in receiving the answer. In that way you are growing and you are also developing and helping further knowledge of what you feel. Do you understand?

Sara: Thank you, yes, I think what you are saying is probably that with greater detachment, (Yes) it becomes less necessary, (Yes) because then there wouldn't be over-sensitivity—

Yes, if the Spirit was to the fore, then there would be no reason for the tears.

Sara: I understand yes that makes sense.

But what I would say to you all this time—and I will not speak for too much longer—is this: that the past year of your earthly lives and the years ahead are most important ones, not only for you who have knowledge and understanding, but for all of the planet Earth. There are many of us, as I have told you previously, who have come to help this planet, but what I say to you my dear friends is this: there is the potential upon this planet at this time in its evolution, for spiritual growth for all people. This cannot be denied. At this time of development there has to be progress and it is happening now. So I say to you my dear friends, take this opportunity, take it whilst it is there, in order that you can gain and grow to the best of your abilities. There are many who surround you to help you upon your way. There are many who surround the planet to support and to uplift. There are those beings, such as I who talk to you now, who come to many to give knowledge and advice. So I say to you my dear friends, think carefully on these words this time and do not let the opportunity pass you by. It is up to each and every one of you, because I tell you again that the help is at hand if you wish to use it. I will end this time by asking that we meet again, that we come close to each other at these times and we give thanks for that opportunity. We ask that we come closer to that Source of knowledge and love, which is part of us all.

(Thanks + farewells)

~21st January 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Lilian: Just a few tonight.

As always I am happy to speak with those who wish to listen.

Lilian: Yes, thank you very much—

Last time we discussed what you felt you had learned from last year. I hope that my words given to you have enabled you to think more clearly about what you have achieved. I told you also that this is a time of your planet's evolution when many things are changing, that many from our world come to you to give to you truth and wisdom, upliftment and guidance. All of this you know. What I wish to try to achieve in the coming months, is for you all—those who are not present also—to try to assimilate all the truth which I have brought to you. These coming months are the time of great importance to you individually. This is the year when each one of you has the opportunity to grow, to grow more fully in knowledge and wisdom and truth. What is the purpose of all of these truths? It is to bring to your world much that is needed at this time, but it is brought to you in order that each individual person can expand their awareness, and in so doing, spread that truth wide across all of this planet. And you know my dear friends, there are many ways of achieving this. We have spoken on many things and still there is much for me to bring to you, but I would say to you that I have brought to your thinking many things previously unknown to you. But you now must utilize all of this knowledge. It is important my friends that your spiritual awareness grows, because in raising your own consciousness, the light is shining brighter, it is travelling further and many seeds will be sown. I wish you to realize that this is the purpose behind all of my teaching, that these words do not remain only with you, but that you go forward and allow others to see by example what you now know. Each one of you on your own pathway is travelling forward, is travelling true to what you have come forward for. We would wish that each one of you finds your light, finds your own wisdom and finds the truth that I have brought to you. You find that all of these things brought together will have an effect upon you in the coming months that you may not be fully aware of at this time, but will bring to you much that you need, not only in your personal living, but in your spiritual achievement. There is so much good which surrounds you all and I have to say that still you are unaware of the greatness of this light. So, in these coming months it is our wish and our desire that we take hold more fully of the truth which has been brought to you, that it be used for your own developments. I hope these words are what you wish to hear, (Yes—) but ultimately still there remains with you your freewill, but I can tell you that all the help that you desire in trying to achieve greater awareness, is there for you. I could not on many occasions tell so many that this is so, but to you my friends you have shown your dedication and your worth and it should be rewarded with the help that you desire. (Thanks expressed) But I say to you again it all falls back to you. We cannot interfere, we can only uplift and guide you. But if you ask of us, you will receive. It is no good to have only this time together in this room of light, you have to become individual lights in your own right, in order that you can go forward. I will try to bring to you what I can at these meetings in order that the help be made available to you. So therefore in the coming months we will 're-run', if you like, the truths already given, we will elaborate, we will search out any misconceptions or any doubts that you may have. We will become stronger, we will become a force so strong together that the light will be obvious to you all. I will not say more this time but we will leave the rest of this time to each one to sit quietly, to go inwardly and to find those who are so close. You have to allow yourselves to raise that consciousness, to purify the spirit-side of yourselves in order for those who are close to come even closer. I leave this with you.

Lilian: Thank you very much.

George: Could I just say that your teaching has also confirmed so many sketchy ideas that have been in our minds and this has been pure joy to have our dim ideas confirmed and made much stronger.

Yes. That has been my task to illuminate that which has been in darkness. If I have achieved this for you on many aspects of what has been known, then my heart is full. I thank you for those words my dear friend, because it brings joy to all who come and stand close by you, to hear that you have felt the truth.

George: Yes, we certainly have.

Lilian: It's turned our lives around.

There is so much more that I can give to you, but as I have said, the next coming of your months is almost a gift to you my friends, in order that you are given the opportunity to grow. Of course there will be new teaching, I will endeavour to bring it to you, but as I have said there is the basis already given to you that you might grow strong, that you might grow wise, that you may grow easily.

And as I leave you this time, let us ask that the light of the cosmos, the light of all that is good and perfect shine within each one of you.

(Thanks + farewells)

~4th February 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

It is good to be here with you my dear friends.

Lilian: It is nice to be together again. We do have very bad weather at the moment so a few of them have not been able to make it.

They are with us in Spirit. Let us begin this time by giving thanks for all that we are given. Let us be aware of the great love of this union. Let us know how much we have achieved in the name of love.

Because we are few in number this time, I say to you my dear friends, do you have questions for me?

George: Yes, perhaps I could go right back to the beginning. Your mission was to raise awareness and to help prevent mankind from destroying himself. I have recently read about White Eagle in Spirit and the White Brotherhood and of Arthur Conan Doyle who passed to Spirit in 1930, and around that time they also had a mission to raise awareness and to help prevent mankind from destroying himself. In view of this delightfully parallel and similar mission, I wondered if you would care to make any comment about White Eagle and the White Brotherhood?

Yes, I am aware of all of these soul energies and have I not told you my friend that many of us from our world have congregated in order to help human beings reach awareness of what he is about to do, what has to be prevented and so forth?

George: You have told us, indeed.

White Eagle is a name known to many, many people throughout your world. He has given many talks to those close to him. Those people have indeed given his words to many. White Eagle belongs to a group of beings who have given themselves the mission of assisting and helping through communication with others. He is guided by the angelic group, as many more are. You may be aware of some other names, but as you know my dear friend, names are not important. But I would say to you that White Eagle and Silver Birch—another name well known in your world—are composed of the same energy. There are many, many of them. These energies came to this planet to achieve something which we have all striven for, for many, many of your earthly years. This mission first was conceived, not just a few of your earthly years ago, but in many thousands of your years ago, because, you understand that time means nothing in our world. But the progress of this planet Earth had to be viewed in advance, before mankind could destroy himself. I am happy that you have taken some of White Eagle's words, because he—I will not say ‘was’, because he still exists as energy and is still teaching upon this planet—not as White Eagle, but in many other guises. Do you understand what I say to you?

George: Yes and I would say it’s most refreshing to find such wonderful agreement between details of his teaching and your teaching to us.

But that is how it should be. There should be no difference in truth. As I have told you in past times, when there is disagreement, you must look to lesser degrees of form of energy who are not, shall we say, not ‘changing’ the truth, but can only give you as much as they know. Always keep this in mind when you read your books or you listen to different channels in your world. Where there is disparity of words and actions, it is only that they do not hold the wider scheme of existence in the same way as those energies that call themselves White Eagle and Silver Birch; they were energies of teaching that come from the Source, therefore their words and mine should agree.

George: Yes, they certainly agree wonderfully.

There are many teachers, and did I not also tell you my dear friends that all that I would give to you would in some way around this planet be clarified or repeated or given to others in order that the truth overflows among you humankind?

George: Yes, and one of your more difficult teachings to us, I felt, was about the Angels of Darkness and Angels and Light, but the White Eagle teaching includes a section on those Angels, and it’s particularly nice that I found such wonderful agreement.

I will repeat once more: Truth cannot be changed. It is as simple as that and who is there but those who come close and come from the Source who have the full knowledge of teaching. Many, and I would like to refrain from using the word ‘lesser’, but I cannot find a more apt description for you, but these beings would not be to ‘lesser’ communicators known; they would not understand the energies involved. Do you understand? (Yes) Have you more questions, please?

Sarah: I don’t actually know much about this White Eagle, but did he come through at any time on this planet as an Indian, (Native American Indian) because it seems that quite a lot of the communicators we have coming through were in this life Indians? Is there any reason for that or is it just that they happen to come back to us?

That is two questions. Let me try to answer them for you. The one you speak of as White Eagle is known to those who were close and used by him as of Indian origin. It is as we all do for the sake of communication, we need to give to you human beings some form of identity. I have told you that names are not important. When beings of light come to this planet, they are energy form, they are shapeless, they do not have form as you would know it, but for the sake of communication they use the energy of the human mind to make a form. I hope this is not too complicated for you?

Sarah: No, I understand that.

Because the human mind looks for explanation, we have to present ourselves in some kind of form either by name or some vision that you can clasp hold of. So, White Eagle shows himself as he does to those he uses. There has been in those Indian nations, one who would be called White Eagle, not once but many times, but what I wish to say to you my dear friend, is that the energy known as White Eagle was not one who trod this Earth.

Lilian: Would that go for Silver Birch as well?

Yes, but this is where it may be confusing to you. To have acceptance, to have form, you must remember this: many times those energies have been given form by drawings, paintings and so forth. Remember that the thought form is so powerful that it would be created in the communicator’s mind and also that of what you would call on this planet Psychic Artists. We are returning to the power of thought form. Do you see what I am trying to tell you? (Yes)

Lilian: Yes, I believe there are drawings of Silver Birch, but I am not sure.

Indeed there must be, but what I tell you is that these teachers, these energies that inhabit these forms for the sake of communication, are beings of light who have not walked this planet, but who have devoted and given of their time to teach.

Lilian: Such as yourself?

Yes, when first I came I told you that I was a conglomeration of beings. This is something we have not yet fully discussed, but in time we will; so too are all teachers of any type of powerful stature that appear in your world. No matter what you are told of these people—let us say White Eagle, because that was the name given to me: That being would have projected himself for the benefit of the communicator. Does it make sense to you? (Affirmed) I am explaining to you on a higher level of energy that would not be fully understood by those with lesser knowledge.

Sarah: Something else actually has come into my mind about these Indians that come through to us. Eileen, your medium, one day she saw an Indian and, when the Indian turned round, she saw her own face. As I have said, we have had several Indians through so I understand what you have said, but does that have any relevance?

Yes, before I answer that, let me say and answer the second part of your question. The Indian nation whilst on this planet—not only the Indian nation but all nations that have gone which have been extinguished from this planet—had a great spirituality about them. They respected the laws of life, they were close to their own spiritual guides and the very nature of their living entitled them to be great souls when they returned home. That is why you find that many of them will return to help those less fortunate than themselves, because whilst upon this planet, they had already grown to such a degree that it is an obvious step forward for them to return and help others. It is as simple as that; they wish their knowledge to be returned to the place that they have left.

Now let me speak about the lady I am using. She did indeed see and I believe was much surprised by that vision of her own face. I have to tell you that the face was superimposed for her benefit, because at that time we did not feel that she would readily have accepted that it was her from a past time. You can give her those words, because I know at that time she was taken aback to see that someone so alien in form had the look of her own facial features, but it was to help her to realize, and I now know that she has fully accepted many things, but at that time she was not ready for it. Does that help you?

Sarah: Do I understand that she was a Red Indian once herself? (Yes) Yes, thank you very much, she will be interested to hear that.

My dear friends, let me say this to you: I say it not often, but I do thank you for these periods of question times. It gives me the opportunity to go over many of the points that we have spoken of, but it also gives you, my dear friends, the opportunity to reiterate those points which you are not fully clear on. So you see, we help each other as always, or I hope I help you. (Affirmed with thanks) I believe I have told you that this, your coming earthly year should be a time of great advancement for each one of you and during this coming time, there will be the opportunity for each one of you to go on a journey inwards, and I will tell you now that next time I will send to you someone who will take you on that journey to find for yourselves, that thought, that knowledge, that inner being, that inner guidance which is there for you. You probably will all experience something different, but that is part of your own growth and we would not wish it otherwise. So, I will leave you now and give you time for your own thoughts and I will speak with you again, not next time, because next time it is your turn to work with yourselves, and we will discuss what you have discovered. (Thanks + farewells)

~17th February 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

As I begin this time I ask that you feel the energy that passes between you. Do you realize the unity which this bond brings to you?

Lilian: I think we all do.

I trust that our communicator last time gave food for thought. (Affirmed—last week we were taken on a meditative journey—unfortunately this was not recorded) I hope that each one of you found within yourselves that which left behind the physical being and helped you to realize that inner you. I know some of you have pondered this and yet others who have been too occupied with living to think much about it. But I hope that each one of you can reflect and say that you gained some insight.

Lilian: Yes, especially Sara.

I have told you my dear friends that this year of your earthly living will, in great part, be devoted to each individual growth, and an evening that you had last time is just an example of what we will bring to you, the purpose being that you can leave behind the physical overcoats and be more aware of those who come to guide you. Each one of you should have met your own guidance last time. What I say to you now is that it is your own responsibility to make that bond stronger, to make that awareness greater, to make that union a good and sound one. I can help you, but I cannot make you do these things. This is where responsibility comes into play, that each one of you, individuals as you are, must take full responsibility for your own growth. I do not mean to sound like I am chiding you, but instead I wish to encourage you.

Lilian: Yes, we appreciate that.

I would like this time just to reiterate words that have been said previously. There is so much confusion in your world at this time, so much fear. You, my friends, must conquer your own fears, but what I wish to say to you about the planet as a whole is that it is progressing, it is evolving, it is working out to the plan of all existence. Therefore I say to you and all of you who come across people with fear in their hearts, your words to them must be of encouragement, of upliftment and of far-seeing; but firstly you must tune yourselves as pure instruments. Do you understand? (Yes) This world is going forward, there are many times ahead when there will be fear, where there will be anger, where there will be many passings; but those of you who know and understand the truth, must help those who live in darkness and fear, because eventually you will move forward. And remember time is irrelevant to us in our world, but to you time seems to hang heavily. So remember what I say, that you have nothing to fear. I think for this time that I will answer questions for you and next time I come to you I will bring you some further knowledge. (Thank you.)

George: Yes, you told us some time ago about new energies that would be discovered and there is a machine that has been discovered that is called a 'Random Event Generator', which seems to pick up energy from the collective unconscious and has recorded peaks for events such as the funeral of Diana, the funeral of Mother Teresa and the tragedy of September 11th, and it shows a peak for a mass peace meditation. So, I think our science is picking up and measuring the energy of the collective unconscious and I think this is leading to one of the energy discoveries that you talked of some time ago. Would I be right in thinking that?

I thank you for your question. Yes, I have told you, your scientists are being impressed and so they are. I also wish to say this to you: many, many words are used in descriptive language about energy. This is not new energy as you know it, because it has always been. What is new is the understanding of mankind. I did tell you that machinery in all forms would take part in any kind of communication with us, and this applies to what I have always taught you that Thought is the most powerful energy in existence. This is what these machines are now picking up. It is not new, it is only new to the scientists who hold great store by facts and figures, do they not?

George: Yes, what is new is that science has discovered the energies.

Yes, but they are being impressed.

George: There is one query I would like to put to you: in recording the energy fluctuation associated with that event of September 11th, the energy peak began to rise three hours before the event. Would that be due to those in Spirit wanting to influence people concerned and people nearby to that event? Would it be their energy that was being picked up three hours before it happened physically?

Yes, what you must understand is that these energies exist whether you, mankind are aware of them or not—but I understand your question and I thank you for it. We, in our world, are constantly influencing many, many people. When there is either negative or positive—we shall use your earthly words for these terms—when there is a great surge of energy, then it has to be shown and that influence comes more strongly from our world at these particular times.

George: Yes, thank you. I thought it must be that.

Yes, it applies to both energies. As I said, we will use positive and negative energy for your understanding. It is a little more complex than that, but for you to understand it, that is how I will put it to you. Remember what I have told you, there is nothing which happens upon this Earth plane that we are not aware of. What I think perhaps you would find interesting, when these 'energy surges', shall we call them for your understanding, they gather in what you call the 'astral planes' and have the ability to grow and become reality.

George: Yes, so it would be those in the astral planes that are endeavouring to influence.

Yes, but of course remember that those in the astral planes are also being influenced from higher vibrations. It is a complex subject, but I hoped those simple words have helped you to come to an understanding.

George: Yes thank you that does clarify.

Lilian then asked sitters if they had questions.

Paul: No questions at the moment thanks.

Mark: I am okay thank you.

I would like to say, go back to the first gentleman. (Paul) I do not normally speak personally to you, but you are most tired my dear friend, spiritually most tired. You need to refresh that Spirit. You need to go inwards and ask for help. I will try to offer it to you, but you have to be prepared to accept. Do you understand? (There was some confusion as to whether it was Mark or Paul) The one known to you as Paul. He is not aware of it, but I wish to give him some upliftment.

Paul: Ah, thank you, thanks.

Jan: I can't speak as eloquently as George does, but my question is on a similar level. I sometimes sense anguish or fear that I think I am being shown in certain circumstances. Like, for example, when I am walking my dogs, I will suddenly have a feeling that around the corner there will be a dog that we are not going to get with very well, and nine times I am right, even before I have physically seen the dog. Is this the energy also that you speak of that I am picking up prior to that event?

This is your own guidance. It is slightly different, but you could compare it to what we are talking about of course. All happening is energy, but what you my dear friend are experiencing is this: it is your own inner guidance which is telling you in advance what is about to happen. It is no different than those who can see into time, looking forward. You must always listen to that guidance, because as you have recognized, it is always right for you.

Jan: Yes it is. I just needed confirmation that I was right in picking those things up, thank you.

Yes, but all of life is energy, remember this. You see yourselves as solid human beings but of course you are not, you are but heavy vibration which creates form.

Jan: I have also experienced the positive side of that energy, whereby if I think in a positive manner—I'll say an example again: there will be a parking space on the second floor in a busy car park, and there is. (Yes) I can visualize that space and there will be that space there.

Have I not told you many, many times that your thoughts create reality? (Yes) If the thought is true, if it is for good purpose, if there is no fear surrounding the thought, then it is positive energy and of course your use of it shows you how much you are growing. (Thank you.)

Sara: Lately we have had the smell of tobacco smoke in our house and the sound of music from keyboards unexpectedly in our house. Can you explain—it is possibly friendly visitors from Spirit? Could you confirm?

Yes, I do not normally give personal details, but I have asked for questions and I will answer this time. You have within your household children and their energy is a source for those who are attracted to them. You have no need of fear within your home circumstances, but I would say you have a youngster there who indeed has the ability to see and sense.

Sara: So one of them would be aware of the presence?

A boy child—but do not fear, there is no harm meant to you.

Sara: We feel it is positive and often it brings us upliftment and amusement.

Yes, that is the energy brought to you, because of the energy of your children. It is their pure energy, which is attracting more, more good energy.

Sara: That's good, thank you. It does depend how we are ourselves as to what we can attract.

Of course, as I have said to the lady before you, your thoughts become reality. You must always, all of you, remember this. If you find it disturbing, you have the ability to ask them to move onwards. (Thank you.)

Lilian: We have a tendency to forget about our thoughts.

That is why I am here to constantly remind you.

Lilian: Yes, we need it. Margaret?

Margaret: Nothing really except that I have asked for help for Agnes and that is the most important thing in my mind at the moment. Thank you if you could help her in some way.

She will be given the help that is best for her. (Thank you so much.)

Jan: Salumet, my son Richard would like to come and sit on Monday evening if that is at all possible with yourself?

I would be happy to speak with this one yes, provided, as I have said before, the others are happy to do so.

George: I wonder if you could help us again with some definitions. We have talked about the terms—one of your expressions was ‘far soul integrations’ and we have talked about ‘Source’, and a term that a lot of people use is ‘Christ Light’. I think all these things are much the same thing, but would you care to say if there are any differences between those expressions? My own feeling about the term ‘Christ Light’ is that it expresses the domain from which teaching masters come to us but would you like to say something about those things?

Yes, I understand your question and thank you. Yes, I, as I speak to you, would prefer to use the word, if I had to make a choice, of ‘Source’, because it indicates the beginning of all things. Do you understand? (Yes) I think your word, and again I have to say to you: they are only words. In describing a source, you have to understand that in the minds of you human beings, because you find it difficult without words, that there has to be some use for that which is greater than yourselves, and because ‘source’ is a word recognizable to you all, I feel it is an apt one and it indicates the beginning of all things. Would you agree? (Yes) Christ Light or Christ Consciousness, as we have heard it described, comes from the master who you have called Jesus the Christ—that is how the expression came to be known. It means a supreme consciousness, Christ the Light, because when Jesus The Christ walked on this Earth, as he still does in many forms I hasten to add and I have discussed this with you—his purity of light shone to many, many, many people; and I feel that to call Christ Light or Christ Consciousness is to call upon that which has been experienced upon this planet. But it is words only. Do you understand? (Affirmed) I would say to you my dear friends that you must find the words which feel right within your hearts, the words which you find to be most suitable to your own awareness and experience. Again I say to you, they are but words. You know that in the past I have used the words ‘going home’. To me that is the epitome of all that is, because the word ‘home’ to you human beings means a purity, love and all things good. (Yes) So, I would say to you that would be a word that I would use. There are many expressions in your world. There is the ‘Universal Consciousness’ to which I have referred, there is the ‘Godhead’ used by many. There are so many used in your world, but I say to you my dear friends, it matters not what the words are, but what you feel within, because no matter what the words relay to you, each one of you is bound on the same journey, on the same journey ‘home’. Has that been helpful to you?

George: Yes, wonderful, yes it has helped a lot. Thank you very much.

I will take my leave of you now my dear friends. Again, it has been wonderful to blend with you, to feel the love that you exude and I hope that as you leave this room of light this time, each one of you feels that love and upliftment which I leave for you all. (Thanks + farewells)

~25th February 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

Lilian: Welcome to you again.

Thank you. I hope that our question time when last we met proved of interest to you. (Affirmed) This is a time of growth for each one of you. This I have told you and throughout this coming earthly year I will continue to remind you. This time, my dear friends, I would like you to consider what part you play in your own spiritual growth at this time of your own evolution. Would anyone like to say what they feel?

Lilian: I think more listening to the inner self. (Yes)

George: I think I shall endeavour to reach more people with the message through distributing the book and I shall endeavour to do more writing, and I feel there is also some natural inner growth happening in relation to family and young children and bonding with people more. There is also a growth in awareness and understanding things and thinking through some of the problems of understanding spirituality. Those are my feelings.

Yes I understand your words. What do you suppose your position now relates to the spiritual aspects of living, not only on this Earth plane, but in far-reaching planes of Spirit and the cosmos? Can you find your own purpose or are you still afraid of seeking out that inner truth?

George: Yes, I have hesitated in speaking out sometimes in the past, but I think I am getting beyond that; I think conditions are becoming easier. The deafness is still a little problem in communicating.

Yes, but do not worry about physical conditions, we are helping you with this. What I would like you, my dear friends, now that we have reached this point of understanding, is to look outwards to find the connection, not between the physical and the spiritual, but between the spiritual and the rest of creation. This is the step which we hope you can take in these coming months, but to succeed in this way you have to have some kind of understanding of your inner being. I know each one of you tries so hard in expanding your awareness, I know each one seeks that inner voice, but now has come the time for that understanding and awareness to seek further. Do you understand what I am saying to you?

George: Yes I think I've got that. I shall have to think about that some more.

Is that not the purpose of my coming to you, that you are able to seek further and understand fully your spiritual nature? (Yes) Is anyone not fully aware of what I speak?

Sarah: I understand what you are saying, but in order to make the step—

Yes, I understand that sometimes my words may seem confusing to you, because I know my dear friends that since our acquaintance, you have, each one of you, grown so much. You have come to an understanding, or at least the beginning of an understanding, to recognize within yourselves that Spirit which all of you are, but until few of your earthly years ago lay dormant. (Agreed) My dear friends I will say to you that you have gained much in such a short time, but we need to go forward, we need to let you think for yourselves, we need you to expand your awareness, and of course I can help you, but I do not wish to do the work for you. Do you understand? (Affirmed) After all, it is part of your life's pattern that you should accomplish these things for yourselves. But I will say to you my dear friends that up to this point in time, you should be pleased with the outcome of your work. I do not say these words to you lightly, but as I have said to you on many occasions, you do not see how brightly your light shines.

Lilian: It's nice to have the encouragement from you. Like children in school, we need encouraging.

But my dear friends remember what I have told you, all knowledge lies within; you need only to look inwards to find it. So often we hear people say, 'but how can we achieve it?' And of course each one of you knows the answer: that is to go inwards in your meditative state and to find that inner voice and also those who come close to you. May I ask the question of anyone else, where do you feel you are in the scope of all existence?

Sara: I feel that I have reached a point where I feel I can communicate who I really am to more and more people, and I want to do that, and to speak as I believe and I am trying to put this into my music as well. I would like to communicate on a more expansive level that way. I feel more comfortable than I have ever felt and I don't have enough quiet time, but I want to improve that and tune in more to nature and that part of life as well as people.

Yes, until you can leave behind the physicality of living, until you can recognize that oneness with all things, until you can recognize that that inner you that knowing of yourself can be made clear to all; until such time you cannot grow. But you have been told that music for you is most important, and I will say it to you once more: not only is the music important for your own Spirit, but the sound and the words of music expands to all consciousness. Did you understand that this is so?

Sara: So when I sing or play music it's heard by others too? (Of course.) It goes further than I think? Much more so. You must remove yourself from thinking only in physical terms. Remember what I have told you, that all thought, all movement, all sound is energy and energy is not static; so by playing beautiful sounds you are in touch with that higher order of creation.

Sara: Thank you, that's very important to know.

Lilian: Would listening to the birds and the wind in the trees have the same effect?

All sounds of what you term nature can only be harmonious to your being. Have you not my dear friends when listening to the song of the birds of the air, have you not become part of that song? (Agreed) Yes, this is the point I am trying to make to you that you have to go beyond what you understand physically. You need to be in closer touch with all of creation.

Jan: I have very recently experienced I think what you are saying. I think you are aware that my quiet times are walking in the forest with my dogs and I have felt overwhelmingly part of those woods. The other day a deer ran in front of me and I stood in wonderment at this deer and all of a sudden I became that deer and that I had a vision that I had been or that I was part of this creature running in front of me. I can't get enough of this particular wood: every stick I see, every stone I pick up, it's been a wonderful feeling, even watching the food chain—I found myself thanking the little mouse that had just fed the weasel.

Yes, because you have become as one with all things. When you reach that point of unity, then the understanding of your status within the energy of all Creation becomes clearer.

Jan: It's a wonderful feeling—

And you can have that sense of oneness with all things, not only in your quiet moments, but in every waking moment of your earthly life. It is something to be achieved by all of you, but again I say the responsibility lies with you all. I can help you, I can try to impress you, but I cannot make you understand that inner feeling which each one of you possesses, unless you are willing to give of it. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Does anyone wish to speak, with me?

Lilian: We have a visitor, (Pat) shall I ask her if she has any experiences?

If she wishes, I am happy to speak with her.

Pat: Just that I feel that I must give more time to my spiritual work. I lead a busy life anyway, but I need more time to be quiet and still (Yes) and in that way to find the inner peace that I need.

Yes, you know full well my dear friend, because there are many who come to you, but you have an uneasiness at times about you and this is because you do not listen enough to that inner quiet voice. You do listen at times, but then physical life overtakes that quiet voice and the worries of earthly living take over. But you know and you understand that these quiet times are all important for your growth. All answers come to you in quiet times. But I would say to you my dear friend, there is much good you can do, and I would say to you that there is a pathway which will open up for you, not at this time but one that you have not considered, but will open up to you in the future and you will find much peace and much comfort from it. (Thank you.)

Now my dear friends before I leave you this time, I would like you to consider, and again I can only leave it to your own good judgement and whether you give time to it, but I would like each one of you before we meet next time to think of the energy amongst you, to see when apart how strong that energy bond can be. Try to visualize the energy which starts from each one of you, which conjoins each one of you and which in these meetings uplifts you. Next time I will ask each one what they have achieved in this visualization. I will ask you to explain how the energy defined itself to you. Is that clear my dear friends? (Affirmed) Already I feel your doubts, but do not be afraid, you are capable of much. Feel the energy which supports you all and see what you can find. You may be surprised. I will leave you this time.

Lilian: We look forward to meeting next week.

Yes. I will leave you this time, there is much for you to consider. (Thanks + farewells)

~4th March 2002~

Good evening. (Welcomes)

My dear friends, there a stillness and a quietness amongst you all this time, which is good to behold. So often I have joined with you to find so many disturbances, so many low in Spirit, but this time it is good to feel the peace which surrounds you all. I, of course, am speaking about a spiritual peace. Last time we spoke, I asked you my dear friends if you would, in your quiet time, think about the energy which exists amongst yourselves. Do you remember? (Affirmed) As I asked this of you, my purpose was that each one of you develop a new knowledge of what that energy is. I have told you that this year much of the time will be devoted to your own growth. Therefore this is not light-hearted by any means, it is a form of learning which I hope you will find pleasurable. Therefore, may I ask each one of you what you have attained from sitting quietly to find out what the energy bond between you feels like?

Sarah: Yes. It was light and it moved in sort of circular waves. Each time I had a slightly different feeling, but the predominant feeling was the light, the light movement.

I will not respond until each has spoken.

George: I found that in my quietness—it is very difficult to describe, I had more of an ‘away’ feeling. It’s almost like slipping away from reality into a light mist. Sometimes I lose consciousness altogether, but I have been aware of this slipping away from reality a little more lately. I also fancy I’m thinking a little more deeply about some things and there may be a connection here, I am not sure—that about sums it up.

Mark: I can’t describe anything visually, but for me it is a sort of sound. I get a sound and it’s very peaceful and ‘other worldly’ sort of feeling. Quite difficult to describe, but I feel more around my head and ears. To me it feels a bit like a sound, not to do with everyday life sort of sound. One night I had a really good, nice sleep and I woke up feeling really very relaxed and I wondered if it had anything to do with trying a bit harder to focus on that.

Margaret: I found that for some unknown reason that when I sat down in my easy chair, I just went off to sleep, but I seemed to be on another planet, such a peaceful planet that when I woke up I couldn’t believe that I had been there. It was just so peaceful, it was unbelievable.

Lilian: For myself, I sat and thought of my friends in the room. It was basically a blending together although they weren’t here, it was just me, but the energy seemed to blend us together although we were apart, if that makes sense.

Yes, I thank you for your words and your experiences. Of course it would not be right that you all would feel and have the same experience, because each one is at a different level of learning; but your descriptions are fine. I am happy that you gave of your time to try these things. Can you see with even the words used here, how close you are in describing your own energy, because my dear friends, each description belongs to you individually. You are joined, but still you are apart. That seems to be a contradiction but it is not. Let me say a little about the energy which brings you all together. You know full well that an aspect of yourselves can be in another place even though the physical body may still be here. You understand this my friends? (Affirmed) So too can energy between two people stretch forever. If you take the finest thread but the strongest thread, with an elasticity so strong that it can reach onto all areas of your world, then you may begin to understand how energy works. It is fruitful that each one of you finds for yourselves individual concepts of what energy feels like, and first and foremost you have to feel it on the physical level. In saying that my dear friends, if you agree perhaps we can try that now. (Agreed) I would ask that each one of you place the physical hands together, rubs them together and places one hand close to the next person’s hand, then we will see what you are feeling. (Pause) Can we say what is being felt, please?

Lilian: I can feel the energy. (Tingling? Recording unclear)

Mark: To me it’s like a waving wand.

Yes, what do the other gentlemen feel? Do not struggle with it, just say what you feel.

Paul: To me it’s not warm or cold, a little bit like a magnet.

Sarah: I have the sensation of a magnet. (Yes)

George: Yes, that is what I imagine a magnetic field to feel like.

Yes. So all of you can feel this physical experience, yes? (Affirmed) Good. Keep that feeling in mind please. Now let us try something a little different. Are you happy my friends to do this? (Affirmed) It is for your own growth. I am trying to help you to broaden your thinking and your acceptance of what you can feel. I would ask that in turn you focus on one other person in the room and I would like you to try to feel the energy between each one of you from the area of your solar plexus. Do you understand?

(Affirmed) I ask only that you do not focus on the instrument that I am using. Would you like to begin this please? And please say what is being felt. Would you like to begin with the gentleman? (Pause—Lilian asks the group what they are feeling)

Margaret: I feel a lot of energy.

Sarah: A slight heaviness (Yes)—a sort of tightness.

Does anyone else feel anything?

Lilian: A beam of light.

Thank you, thank you.

Paul: Yes, I've got a brightness.

Do you feel a connection between yourself and the person you are focussed on?

George: Yes, there is something. I find it very difficult to describe.

Yes, I know. That is why we will take this slowly.

Margaret: A burning. (Yes)

Lilian: Again a blending together.

George: A sort of fixation in the sense of being fixed. (Yes, good, good.)

Sarah: I am getting the same sort of feeling when someone is coming through me, a sort of filling up feeling.

Good. Gentlemen, anymore?

Paul: Just sort of surrounded in light now.

Now, my dear friends—

George: Yes—(Yes?)

George: I have a light experience, yes.

Good. You are beginning to experience yourself as energy. For this next thing, what I would like you to attempt is this: Each one of you must lose the physical being, you must feel yourself as a beam of energy. Are you prepared for this? (Affirmed) It may be difficult but focus on this beam of energy. You are, each one of you energy. Can you feel yourselves engulfed by this energy?

Lilian: Yes.

All of you? (Affirmed)

George: I feel the physical energies around me to be less strong.

Yes, good, that is as it should be. For this we need two people, but in order to complete this task they will need to stand, one each end of the room. What I would like you then to do is to walk slowly towards each other, still focussed on energy. There will be a point where you have to stop. Would you like to try this please (Affirmed) and tell me what you feel.

Sarah: So we will have to have our eyes open to do that?

Yes. Take it in turns with each other. What do you feel as you begin? (Paul and Mark)

Mark: Lighter at the top than at the feet.

Do you feel an exchange of energy? Do you feel a barrier to this energy? What are you feeling?

Paul: I feel a sort of fullness, a filling up feeling.

Are you blending or are you separate? What do you feel?

Paul: Half and half really, not completely blended.

But some parts blended, that is good.

Mark: It feels very nice I must say.

I ask you to remember that feeling, but remember it passing from each one of you within the room. The others like to try now, please.

Lilian: Would it be of similar energy that I feel if I am healing which the lady that you are using and myself would give each other healing, and I feel a sort of blending then.

Yes, but the blending then is slightly different. You are blending with those who are using you. This is slightly different, but of course it is still energy and a raising of the consciousness. What are we feeling, please?

Sarah: A sort of build-up.

Focus on the solar plexus please.

George: A magnetic-like feeling.

A pulling towards the other person, yes?

Sarah: A sort of drifting slightly over that way.

George: A tingling in the hands (Yes) —a tingling in the extremities—the top of the head and the hands.

(Good.)

Sarah: It feels like there are two whole top parts. Not light, not dark, just—I can only describe it as still movement. (Yes)

George: It sounds a bit like the magnetic field description. It sounds like there is something there but it is so difficult to describe because it isn't physical.

Yes. Keep hold of the feeling, please. Good—can we try the others please?

Margaret: My hands are very tingly. (Recording unclear)

Lilian: I feel as if I don't want to talk—tingling in the fingers.

You can feel the exchange of energy between you, can you? Hold on to the feeling. Please sit down now.

Lilian: I had a feeling I could have stayed there quite some time.

Now my dear friends I will return to my original question of this evening. What now do you feel between you?

Margaret: Closeness.

Lilian: Blending—love for one another (Yes) —a feeling of being quite happy to stay with that feeling.

A unity of Spirit. Would you agree?

Lilian: Yes.

At any given moment in your lives you should be able to reach out and touch this feeling of unity—this font of energy. No matter how far apart, you have the ability my dear friends in your quiet moments to come together in a bond of love and, after all, energy should be love. Your awareness now should be more open to what we call spiritual energy, but what you have experienced this time is that spiritual energy transmuted down to the physical level. Do you understand my dear friends? (Yes) Are you sure?

Lilian: I understand what you are saying. It is a little difficult to take it in completely.

Sarah: It is only a taster of what we could achieve. (Yes)

George: Does 'transmuted down to the physical level' mean that we can feel it; (Yes) if it were not we would not feel it?

Yes. Therefore, if you can feel the energy at this physical level, imagine my dear friends what you could achieve if you allow the Spirit to come forward and take you on that love energy into other realms. Can you now see my dear friends the importance of your quiet moments (Agreed) and how you need them to expand and to grow and for the awareness to come to the front of your thinking?

Sarah: With this little taster we have had I think I can begin to see why Eileen, your channel, doesn't want to come back sometimes onto the physical level.

Yes, when you attain that blending—and you are correct it is a blending—then you are unaware of any physical happening around you; you are encompassed with pure love, you feel safe and secure and you know that life continues without the heaviness of the physical body. I hope my dear friends that the time spent this evening has been helpful to you. (Affirmed with thanks) Of course, as always, your freewill will operate in your daily lives, but I will say to you as I have said so many times before, it is entirely up to each individual whether they wish to grow. The opportunities are there; there are so many in our world who stand close to you, not only those you call helpers and guides, but those angelic beings whose pathway is to be of service to mankind. But it is the law of all existence that you must ask and this my dear friends I leave with you. I will take my leave of you and know always that my love surrounds you. (Thanks + farewells)

~18TH March 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

It is good to be with you once more.

Lilian: It's nice to have you with us again. We are short in numbers, with colds and bad weather.

Yes. Because we are few in numbers, I will speak with you about a topic that has been spoken of previously, but I would like, my dear friends, for you to think about it a little more deeply. You know, my dear friends that each one of you came to this lifetime by your choice, by choosing your parents of this earth plane. You understand? (Affirmed) Are you aware that not only did you choose the parents that you came to, but also the date and the time that you would be born? Not only that, not only did you choose parents that would give you the opportunity for your life's paths, but also that you influenced those people in calling you your birth names. Does this surprise you, because it is not widely understood or known?

George: I was just thinking about our previous days in the monastery in the previous life, and it would seem then that our dear friend Leslie who presided here for so many years, would have chosen to come here a little earlier than the rest of us and pave the way, so to speak?

Not necessarily so. He would have a life path to follow as each of you do. There would have been knowledge beforehand that these meetings would take place, but not necessarily that he should come before you.

Margaret: I can only say that I chose very wisely, because both my parents were wonderful.

Yes, but let me just say to you my dear friends why you would try to influence a name? After all I suppose you would feel that to be quite insignificant, but it is not.

Sara: The name has a vibration (Yes) and a meaning.

The names that you choose have indeed a vibration, very much so, which is in keeping with your task in this life, but so often you will say: but I do not like my name.

Lilian: Yes, very often.

Yes. Let me tell you my dear friends, the reason that people dislike the name that they have chosen, is because they do not like the life tasks that they have chosen. People also, I hear you say, change their names at will, and of course this is so, but you will find my dear friends that this will occur when their life pattern is changing also. So what I would like to say to you is this: think about each of your parents; look to see what you have gained from them. Let me say that their shortcomings would be a focus for your own knowledge. Do you understand? (Affirmed by some) Are you sure?

Lilian: So when we become aware of their shortcomings...

It is a life lesson that you would work upon. It may be that you need to learn tolerance, if one parent is quite un-giving in their attitude. There are many, many things you would learn from your parents—that is why you chose them, not because they were people perhaps that you liked, but because they would give you the opportunity to grow spiritually.

Lilian: Would the parents themselves have known of the connection with the child that they were going to have?

Yes, before, yes. Obviously unless their knowledge remained with them, they would be unaware. After all a child is a physical being as far as parents go. Very few parents bring a child to this world in a spiritual manner. Would you agree?

Lilian: Yes I would.

So I would like you my dear friends, because this is a year of individual growth, I would like you to look deeply within, I would like you to understand why you are in this place at this time and what reason brought you here.

Sara: I think it also explains why souls in families can be so different. I have often wondered about that because in my family the characters are very different. We have the spiritual quest for knowledge in common—this bond, but our characters are quite different—likes and dislikes.

Because you have different life lessons to learn—that is why. (Yes) Although you have agreed to join together, it also explains why in physical terms families do not always enjoy each other. (Chuckles) It is a learning process for each one of them. So I say to you, whatever problems you encounter my dear friends, thank that almighty Source of all knowledge in giving you the opportunity to grow. Do not look upon your life pathway with struggle, with regret, but with happiness and light. In that way your feet will go forward and not be static in one place. Do you understand where I am going with this my dear friends? (Affirmed)

Sara: Yes, it explains a lot what you have just said. So many things I can appreciate more easily. In your understanding, then your awareness is clarified. Yes. I would like you also on the days of your birth to sit quietly and see what you feel, what experience you gain from it, because there is always something to be gained. What I am trying to tell you my dear friends is that each moment of your existence is for a reason and although it is not necessary to know exactly what your life plan is, it helps in your awareness if you can go inward and see each step clearly. If within your Spirit you feel that life is moving in the right direction spiritually, then let me say assuredly you are on the right pathway.

Lilian: Can I ask a question about my mother? (Yes) You once said to me that she was frightened of dying—and yes, I could see that—but have I in any way helped her to overcome this fear?

My dear friend, the help that you have provided will not be known to you whilst you are clothed in this body. Indeed you have helped, but she will not recognize this help until she returns home. She speaks to you and yet still she is afraid, but I can tell you that there are many who are there to help. So I would say to you, you have done what you can, your words do sink into her thinking, even if she denies that. (Yes) But be assured that that knowledge is going within and the help will be with her when she comes to our world. You may be surprised that when the time comes there will be words of gratitude for you. Do not be surprised. Is there anyone else who would like to speak?

Margaret: Yes, I would. I have a sister who walked out of home about 30 years ago and changed her name. I often wonder whether she is still alive. I don't know how I am going to get in touch with her.

There are ways of finding out and may I say to you, it has long been coming this seeking. Yes. I would say only this to you my dear friend that there are ways; if you wish to seek, you will find. I would say to you it is something that you have time to do and I suggest to you that it would be a healing of your own Spirit. But we will help you when we can. (Thank you very much.)

Lilian: Sarah, you are very quiet.

Sarah: I was only just thinking of Emily with her troubles, but I am very aware that the troubles she has got are not only perhaps helping her, but are there maybe to teach me a lesson too.

You are being taught my dear friend that in this lifetime you cannot live another's life for them. You have to allow this one to become strong in her own way. I know that as human beings with all the problems of emotional ties which you find so difficult to overcome—do you not remember my dear friends when I have said to you that the emotions must be quietened? (Yes) —this is a life lesson for you at this particular time. You cannot help another in the physical sense. They must go through their own life's pattern. And remember also that sometimes the more problems there are, the stronger the Spirit at the end of them. Remember also that it could be a pattern that she herself has chosen.

Sarah: Yes, would it be helpful for her to hear your words or not?

I do not feel that she would accept these words at this time. She of course can listen to them if you desire, but do not be surprised if she rejects them.

Sarah: No—she doesn't listen to anybody's words actually.

Do not be too harsh on her. When you are young in earthly years, many things seem to overcome you. What you call problems become rather huge in the eyes of young people. What they need is support, and may I say to you all, because it applies not only to young people but to people of all ages, that healing begins with the ears. Does that make sense to you? (Mm.) To be able to listen is in itself a healing aid. I will say this to you my dear friend that as time continues she will turn to you for support, more so than she does at this present time. She has turned inwards has she not?

Sarah: She has, yes.

But it is something that only she and those who guide her can overcome. Continue to give your thoughts to those who surround her and it is not beyond you to seek help from her own higher self.

Do you understand? (Um.) No.

Sarah: Not quite—the last bit you said: seek help from her own higher self?

Do not speak to the child as a physical being, but speak to her higher being. You are capable of it and it would be an exercise for you. (Thank you very much.)

Sara: Does the same apply to me with my little boy? Could I speak to his higher being?

All of you have the capabilities to speak too. After all the higher self is only the Spirit part of the being, and you of course understand what that means. What, and I will say this with caution, what you must refrain from with any other individual, is that you do not try to interfere. Send out love, offer help, ask for help from their own higher self, but tread carefully. Again, it is an emotional trait which draws you to those close to you, but remember that you come together, whether it be husband, wife, parents, children, grandparents, whoever—all of you incarnated in this lifetime, not to be a group so much as to grow individually and to meet and pass each other on life's way. Try to keep this in mind and your understanding of each other will be greater.

Sara: We can give each other more space to grow.

More understanding, more love. Always thoughts of love will overpower any negativity that exists between. I am not saying that this is easy, my dear friends, it is not, but it is a life lesson. I believe I can say that each individual who takes a physical garb, suffers from these emotions at some time or another. I hope my words have helped a little this time, (Affirmed with thanks) but I do ask and impeach you that you do look more closely at the reason why you chose to be here.

George: Could I just go back to your suggestion of sitting quietly on the birthday. Is that because that particular day is special in relation to cosmic connection?

Of course it has to be, does it not? You are not a single item. You are not just a being: you are Spirit, you are soul, you are all things; and yes to sit on the day that you incarnated into the body should give you a special feeling of being part of the whole. I do not wish to say more, because I would like you to experience for yourselves what that feeling is. There is a deep significance to it.

Sara: Can I ask a question about birthdays? If you have the same birth date as someone else, does it imply a similarity or parallel in terms of life pattern?

Yes, much has been spoken about this in what you term Astrology. It is but a small part of the whole of existence, but I would say this to you, that people who share the same birth date usually come to this Earth for particular purposes and therefore there would be a connection, even if their life pattern is different. For example, let me say that perhaps some come to this lifetime to be spiritual teachers or healers, then you would find that a great many of them would share a birth date or a birth time within a few weeks. Yes that does happen, it does happen.

Sara: I was reading about birth dates in a book by Diana Cooper (Yes) and she mentioned that the vowels in the name are important and have significance. I wonder, could you confirm if that's true?

It is only that letters and words that you use. After all I am sure that each one of you knows people who use what you call chants and noises to raise their own awareness. That is because each letter has a sound that is unique to that letter. And you will find in names that these vibrations, because after all that is what it is, it is a different level of vibration which relates to the Spirit being—and that is why you impress parents to choose the name that you wish to ride upon. Is that helpful to you? (Yes—) If you take your own name and try to say those letters with love, you should find that you vibrate with love in saying those letters. Do you understand? (Yes) It is all to do with vibration and energy. After all, you know full well that each one of you is an energy pattern, but it is time my dear friends that you understand yourselves a little more fully. I will leave you now this time and I will leave it with you my dear friend (Lilian) to continue in whichever way you so wish, either by speaking quietly in discussion or meditation. I will leave it with you. As always, I encompass you all in my love. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sarah, stating that the communication between this group and those in Spirit Realm is changing. Thanks to our own personal growth, the level of communication has risen. The communicator stressed that we were helping not just this physical world, but the world of Spirit also: We know that you have been taught that the power of your thought is the greatest gift that you have been given, but you may not be aware, that your help in this group to those in the Spirit world is ever-growing. You are all helping those in our world, to a far greater extent than ever before. You may not be aware that you are all doing this. Those of us in the Spirit world, who join with you each meeting, are able to take a little from each of you, and pass that to those in need in the Spirit world. Not only do those who come to you for help gain much and are able to go back and go forward, but those who are unable to come through, also gain much from you. This is one of the reasons that this group is being assisted to go onto a slightly different level. This way we can take from you that which is needed to help so many in our world. For this we are most grateful to you and my reason this time for coming through, is to give thanks to you, for all the help that you are giving.

Lilian: That's nice. We are so grateful for all the knowledge that is given to us, so if we are able to be of some help back, it's wonderful.

This as you have also been told before is a two-way affair. And now I will retire and let others come through.

A further one came through Sarah to lighten the atmosphere. Sara then took us on a meditative journey before we closed.

~25th March 2002~

The evening began with one through Eileen saying that Salumet would be coming next time. They also mentioned Leslie, stating: 'Old friend would like to come through, but not yet.' Another followed through Sarah, mentioning that they were now able to use Sarah as a medium for 'deeper communications' than in the past, thanks to her progress. Another followed through Eileen, asking us to feel the energy which flows between us, prior to Sara taking us on a meditative journey.

~15th April 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I thank you for your welcome this time. There is among us one whose energy is new to this group.

(Richard) Let me begin by saying that this one is searching, is looking for something which he does not totally understand. I will say this to him that what you seek, my dear young friend, is what you know, but in the passage of time have lost. You feel at times a loneliness, an isolation which you cannot fully explain. Is this not so? (Yes) Yes. What you are seeking my dear friend is the knowledge which you possessed before you came to this lifetime, because—and the others know that I do not often speak on any personal note, but I will say this to you, that your past lifetime was so full of happiness and laughter and spiritual knowledge that this lifetime for you seems almost like a punishment, but of course it is not as you my dear friends know and understand, because each lifetime brings to you new knowledge, new understanding, more spiritual growth. And as the one who sits with you and whom you call mother, she also has played a part in a previous existence. I tell you now my dear young friend, that connection has brought you both to this room in this lifetime.

Jan: We are not surprised, are we?

Richard: No.

Lilian: There are no coincidences.

Jan: We have felt this between us.

Yes but I will tell you only that in previous time your connection was on a more level basis, shall I say, that you were as brother and sister. The young gentleman does not understand why at times he feels this inner loneliness, but he must, as you do, each one of you, find the time to go inward and to find himself, because only in going inward will he truly come to know his true self. It matters not what the outward clothing presents, that is not the true and real you. Do you understand my dear friend?

Richard: Yes, thank you.

Because he is new to the workings of this group, and I know you have looked at literature, but I would say to you, have you any questions for me? I will be happy to answer them for you.

Richard: I can't think of anything.

Do not be concerned; we will leave it there for this time. There will be other opportunities and I will help him in his sleep state in order that things will become clearer for him.

Now my dear friends this time I will speak to you a little about a subject which we have ventured upon but which there is still much to discuss. I think you know what I am speaking of.

Lilian: Would it be the names?

No, we will come to those another time because all of you have not had sufficient time to go over what I have said to you. You need a little longer to find out for yourselves what you have discovered. I wish to speak this time about what I call 'the most powerful thing that you possess'.

Lilian: Our thoughts.

Your thoughts—ah, do I see at last that you also recognize this to be true? (Agreed) It will also help the young gentleman because it is something that he too can understand. We have discussed how important thought is in all of your lives, we have discovered how powerful thought is in your lives, we have discussed the form of energy which thought creates, we have discussed thoughts in terms of receiving and giving. Now I hear you say, 'but what is left?' I will tell you: thought is all things, thought is the energy which each one of you holds as your own. I am here this time to tell you that all of existence is thought. We have not discussed fully this energy pattern called thought. Thought maintains all life, all existence. Can you close your eyes my dear friends and find the energy patterns within yourself that is created from your thought? Can you do that now? Tell me what you feel, not what you see.

(Pause) Remember that you are individual in human form, you are also individual in your thought patterns. When you are ready we will speak together to find out what you feel. If it is too difficult for you, just to tell me your feelings, then you can explain what you see, but I would rather that you tell me what you are feeling. (Pause) Shall we begin? (Pause)

Lilian: Could I say that we are happy to be together again, and we will go round the room.

Sarah: I feel a warmth, a spaciousness but I also feel that there is a circular movement not only within me but around me.

Are you that movement?

Sarah: I think I am.

Yes, good, that is what I wanted to hear.

Paul: I don't really know about the feeling of it, but I have just got a picture of a plaited, entwined rope, or something. (Yes)

Sara: In this situation I feel very relaxed and open, because there is no interference mentally from anyone in this room, we are all one. (Yes) So I can be as I naturally would be when alone, the same, so my thoughts feel gentle and loving and warm. I feel just flowing energy. (Yes, good.)

Jan: As my heart beats, there is a vibration in my head and with that vibration was coming a feeling of protectiveness. I had also visions, especially of Middle Eastern cities at the moment.

Yes, you are using your love energy. Thank you.

Richard: The only thing I got was I felt overwhelmed, a fast feeling.

Yes, this is what I would expect because he does not have the experience of knowing quietness and peace. Thank you.

Margaret: I feel that I am being helped and I feel that the power that is being given to me is giving me strength to go on. (Yes, thank you.)

George: It is a feeling that I have had before. In a sense—perhaps I can begin by saying it is like being in a vast engineering works except it is not mechanical, it is just gentle noise and throbbing. It's just feelings I have. It's like I'm in a vast and interesting hall and I am just relaxed and looking around.

Yes. Do you see my dear friends that although your explanations are different, each one feels part of the feeling? (Yes) Can you see the correlation between you all? (Yes) This is what you must understand.

When you have unity of thought, imagine the power which it can create. You are within a room of peace, of unity, of upliftment. Each one of you has feelings of being part of, except for the young gentleman who is in the fast lane of life at this moment, but he will learn to slow down and control his thinking. I have told you often my dear friends the power in your thinking. What you now need to know is how to control your thoughts and thinking. That is the secret of living, of good health, of joy, of love, of great happiness and understanding. You must maintain control of thought. Let us discard the word ‘thought’ for a moment and what you are doing is controlling energy. Do you agree?

(Agreed) For this time my dear friends I would like you to think about your thoughts, the use of them, the energy which is created by them and what your thought feels like each time it is used. You have a great responsibility, all of you, in using thought. I hope that this time has given you a little more to think about, and we will come to it in more detail as time continues. For this time my dear friends I will leave you, unless anyone wishes to ask any questions.

Sara: I have been reading author called Doreen Virtue and I just wondered if you could comment on her work. Do you feel it is beneficial and true?

I would say this to you my dear friends. There are many people in your world who write many words and I would say that only but a few write these words for gain and profit. What I will say to you is this: that people who put pen to paper on the whole believe that their experiences are true. It is not for me to tell you what you must believe because that is part of your learning and your pathway. It is not for me to say, ‘do not believe this, but believe that’. After all do you remember when first I came, I told you if there is anything that I tell you that you cannot accept, then you must reject it. This I would say also about the literature in your world. Read, accept it if you can; after all what is written down is the experience of that one person. It is difficult to accept, is it not, sometimes? You must be discerning in your reading as you must be in all aspects of living. I do not come my dear friend to say, ‘do not do this, do not do that’. You understand?

Sara: Yes I do.

It would be too easy for me to say, ‘go in this direction, do this, say that’. That is not my purpose. But I will say to you, continue to read as much as you desire and sort what you feel to be true within your own heart and you will not go wrong. (Thank you.)

Jan: Can I just share with everybody what I heard on our television a couple of months ago? A well known American television personality, Oprah—she has a very good little friend who is little boy who is a poet in a wheelchair, and the doctors said to him that the sore on the back of his head would not heal medically; so he asked Oprah if she would ask all her viewers, the millions around the world, to pray for him. Within a very short space of time, the sore healed. So that’s evidence for medium of television, using everybody’s power of thought, for asking everybody to think about that little boy—and his sore healed and medical profession were absolutely amazed.

But we are not!

Jan: I wasn’t. I sat there thinking, okay this is marvellous—the fact that it could reach millions of people, (Yes) the evidence of the power of thought.

And not only power of thought but the power of seeing for oneself.

Jan: That’s what I wanted to share; not that I was surprised, (Yes) but how powerful that thought obviously was for that little boy.

Lilian: It is talked about quite a bit—thought at this moment.

Paul: They are trying to do it with David Beckham’s foot, aren’t they? (Agreed)

Yes, you see, it is as I have told you my dear friends that all of these things will become known; but again it has to be recognized individually first and each little ripple becomes a gentle wave and the gentle wave gets bigger, gets bigger, gets bigger. That is how you must think of your thoughts. And remember it is not only the energy of thought on this planet, but it has a ripple effect on all of the cosmos. Remember this also.

Lilian: Can I just say one thing? You said to us, several months back, that new discoveries would be made in our seas. (Yes) I don't know if this is any connection, but a city that has obviously has gone under the sea—taken by the sea, has come to light. I wondered if that was one of the discoveries?

I have told you in the past that your seas hold much information not at this present time known. So, yes, new discoveries in all fields of living will come. Thank you.

Jan: If all thought was of a negative nature—and thank heavens it isn't, what effect would that have on the cosmos?

That is a question not needed to be asked, because all thought could never be negative.

Jan: Because of the need for balance—

Yes, so it is a question that you need not even think of. It only creates puzzlement within your mind.

After all you must think positively.

Sarah: Salumet, I was thinking about you saying thought is everything; when our spirits blend, (Yes) there has to be a blending of thought as well. (Yes) Thought and the Spirit have to be—I am trying to work out the relationship, which must be very close.

Yes, thought belongs to Spirit. Thinking with the human brain belongs to the human body, but remember that thought is energy which is Spirit and of course the blending of Spirit is the blending of thought. Try not to separate the two.

Sarah: That's what I was thinking, they have to be very close.

Yes, you cannot separate the two. The confusion comes when people think that thought is the thinking of the brain. There is a difference and this you must always keep in mind. Again my dear friends, always think on the spiritual level and the answers will become more clear to you. (Thank you.)

George: I have always been impressed with the phrase 'in the beginning was the word', the 'word' I take as 'thought'.

Yes, in the beginning, when was the beginning? It always has been. I think those words were meant for the beginning of this planet, of human kind. I think those words were written with humankind in mind, because only humankind would understand 'word'. Do you see what I mean? Do you understand? (Yes—) No, I feel you do not but perhaps that is something also that you can think about.

George: Yes, I had thought of it as a more cosmic meaning, but yes, you have made the point that it is more in keeping with this planet.

Yes, but it shows, does it not my dear friend, how much your own thinking has expanded? Yes, you do not respond to that but I tell you that your thinking has grown.

George: Yes, could I ask something about Spirit in general? I have had that on my mind lately. One can think of Spirit as a vast collection of past lives which instantly enmesh to produce a future as we see it. Therefore—

Let me stop you there my dear friend. A collection of past lives, yes; but it is but one aspect of Spirit which creates the future.

George: Yes, I left out soul structure.

Yes, yes—forgive me for interrupting you but that needed to be clarified.

George: Yes, thank you. So this leads to our earthly thinking of past, present and future being instantly present in Spirit so that a linear time system would be entirely inappropriate (Yes) to describe what is happening or what has happened.

Linear time can only relate to the planet Earth. You cannot relate linear time to the cosmos, to Spirit, because it does not exist as such. You should understand this only too well my dear friend, so it would be futile for me to discuss this with you.

George: And our physical future lags behind the future that is already present in Spirit.

Yes, of course because thought creates what happens and thought belongs to Spirit.

George: What I wanted to ask from there was: is there then a feedback from the physical planet into Spirit, which extends or modifies that future that is there in any way?

Yes of course, the freewill of humankind. Firstly let me say this to you: There is no feedback as such because all is known, that is the first point—all is known so it is not necessary for feedback in that sense.

But I would say that what is shown as the future in the present time of course can be altered by physical thoughts, by freewill, by many aspects of living; and then of course it does become changed—‘changed’ is rather a strange word to use because you know energy is ever-moving, it is never static. Therefore this change is quite acceptable.

George: Yes, I imagine it is a small change (Yes) in relation to the whole.

As part of the whole is it but as nothing. It is just part of the progress of energy—of life.

George: So when we say the future is already there in Spirit, it might be better to say it is essentially there?

The essence I would like to say is there, but it is changeable, created by the thinking of the human being to whose energy it is attached. Does that make sense to you? (Yes; thank you.)

Sarah: I think of the future as being an earthly thing, because we live in time, but in Spirit there is no time—

Yes, as I explained to the gentleman, there is no linear time.

Sarah: Yes, sorry, I forgot you said there was no linear time, yes, thank you.

Unfortunately, this is always the problem with humankind that you cannot see beyond the human form, the human way of thinking. It is only when you return to Spirit that you allow those quiet moments that you did earlier this evening when you became energy patterns that you understand that your time is but an instant. It is difficult for you to understand Time. We appreciate it in our world and always we try to explain it simply for you, but it is almost impossible for you to accept, I feel, in a way that is easy for you.

George: I think with your teaching we are becoming a little more aware than we were at first. (Agreed)

I thank you for those words my dear friend. It is simple when we have such as yourselves who are dedicated to learning and to the betterment of mankind. It makes my task so fulfilling to know that you accept my words—I do not say readily, I hope that you think about them carefully, but that ultimately you accept them as truth and for this I am eternally grateful to you.

Lilian: Our gratitude goes to you as well. (Affirmed)

Sarah: I don’t know about the others but sometimes when things are difficult to realize at the moment, when you say them, I accept them and then later on they just fall into place.

Yes. Can I say that perhaps that is the influence of my thinking. I try to help each one of you in the way that you think, in a spiritual manner, not in a human way.

I will take this opportunity now to thank you my dear friends for listening to me with such dedication and with such quietude.

George: I think one of our expressions is: ‘that is our pleasure’. (Affirmed)

I thank you, you are most kind and I wish you all to know that when you leave this room this time, there are many who will go with you who will again uplift you, come close to you and influence you in your daily living. Until next time my dear friends, I leave you now. (Thanks + farewells)

~22nd April 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

Before I speak with you this time I ask that you feel the bond which joins you all. I would like you if you can, to feel the energy become much stronger within this room. (Pause) Can you feel the difference now?

Lilian: Although my eyes are shut, there is a swirling in front, a light swirling.

Can the others feel the change of energy please? Try to feel it if you can.

Margaret: In my hands and my arms.

George: I have a heady feeling which I think is energy.

Sarah: I have almost a lifting feeling.

What about the other gentlemen. Are you feeling it also?

Paul: I think so, but it is difficult to find the words.

Yes. Let me continue then my dear friends. I hope that last time gave you some more to think about. We spoke, did we not, about energy, the term which we call thought? You have been utilizing that energy this time when you give thoughts for those in need; this you understand. Before I continue, does anyone need to question about what we spoke last time? (No questions)

Lilian: As I see it, thought is everything.

Yes. Have you felt it as everything?

Lilian: I can't say I have felt anything.

That is what we will continue with this time. You understand thought and how powerful it can be. You use thought many, many times throughout your living, but mostly you are aware (unaware?) of the unconscious thoughts which are sent out at all times from each one of you. I have told you my dear friends that it is most important that you take full control of your thinking, and I believe that the majority of you have tried to do so, although I hasten to add that you are bound to fall at times, only because you are humankind, and humankind at this present time of evolution cannot be perfect. That is why we come to help you so many times, not only in these small gatherings, but as you know we try to influence all leaders in your world—not only your world, but in other worlds. I do not apologize for once more saying to you that it is the most powerful thing that you possess. As Spirit continues, so does thought—it goes hand-in-hand as you would say on this Earth. You cannot have one without the other, in fact it coexists as one energy.

Paul: How would you say the difference is? I was beginning to think that Spirit and Thought were the same thing.

Yes, you are correct, but remember that the Spirit is evolving at all times. Thought has always existed as energy. We are coming to complicated matters now, but I will try to explain it simply for you. The problem lies because you have a human brain and the human brain perceives thought to be separate from the Spirit; but all energy which exists is but one energy but on different and various levels. Are you following me thus? (Silence) You seem confused. I know it is a difficult topic but let us take it slowly, slowly until your understanding is such that it becomes much clearer. With the human brain you think of thought as something which is emitted from the human brain—the thinking of the human being. You understand this? (Affirmed) But what thought is, true thought belongs to Spirit, not to the human brain. Of course there is a form of thinking, that is why humankind has been given a brain, so that the thoughts of the Spirit may be 'changed', if you like, and transmitted through that thinking brain—but that is not the thought of which I speak. Call it 'intellect' if you like, call it 'thinking' if you like, but they are separate from what we are calling Thought. Is this clear or are we confused?

Paul: That's clear.

George: Yes, I think the brain thinking is more of a mechanical construction, (Yes—) whilst the spiritual thought is more of an evolutionary item?

Part of the evolution of the human kind of Spirit, yes.

Lilian: Would it more intuition?

No, intuition comes to you from the thought pattern. You have to separate the—let me put it to you this way: Imagine the human brain as a series of mechanical—what shall we say 'instances' that work automatically within the human frame—I use these words only to simplify it for you. But thought is the all-existing energy that belongs to the Spirit. Thought cannot be destroyed because it is Spirit. But where the confusion comes I think is that you think of yourself as Spirit and, of course that is so, but what is Spirit if it is not energy? Is it becoming clearer now? (Yes) Are you sure, because I would rather stop until it is clear in your own thinking.

George: Yes, I think we have three words: Thought, Energy and Vibration. Would I be right in thinking that they all go together, they are all relevant?

They all coexist, but of course, as you know, vibration can be used at different frequencies. The energy to which it belongs is but one energy—it is a creative energy. Thought, I would say to you, is all energy, but when you start to think of thought and intuition coming to the human brain, then it has to be used on a different frequency range. Is this too complicated for you my dear friends, because I feel as if you do not quite understand yet? It is a confusing subject, but you have to remove yourselves from the way that you normally think, but you are restricted because of the human brain and all thought and thinking has to function through this human brain; that is the problem. Again I would say to you, try to perceive it on a spiritual level and then and only then will it seem to become just a little clearer.

George: Yes, this may not be quite right thinking, but I'm beginning to think of the spiritual thought more as a living, growing, fluid thing, while the brain output is much more of a mechanical, (Yes) non-fluid nature.

Yes. When the lady speaks of intuition, of course that is the human brain picking up the spiritual thought—the spiritual energy; but it has to be transmuted in some way and because of humankind having freewill, it is often placed to one side. But that is why you are here. But my purpose in speaking about thought, is to help you to understand the wider issue of energy and until you can leave behind the human thinking and allow yourself to be that spiritual energy which you are, then we will always have some difficulties. But my dear gentleman friend has explained it quite succinctly I feel for your understanding. Perhaps we should leave it here for now and I will endeavour to clarify these words in order that they become more acceptable to you. It is a difficult subject, but I felt perhaps it was time to introduce you to wider thinking.

Mark: I can see that it is helpful to know the difference between the rather crude and limited workings of the human mind/brain and the purer thoughts that come through. I can see it is helpful to think about that.

Yes, in your thinking will come understanding and it is entirely open to each one of you that you think clearly and long about my words, because only then will the Spirit be free to experience what we call true spiritual thought or spiritual energy, whichever you would prefer—but thought is energy. Perhaps it would be kinder to you if we would discard the word 'thought' and speak only of the different vibrational energies that exist. Always we find the human words to be most cumbersome in understanding. It is always a problem for us to try to help you to understand more easily the workings of your own selves. After all the humankind/the human body is but a mechanical vehicle which is used but for a very short time. But it is for your own good shall I say, that you recognize that you are far more than this mechanical vehicle.

Sarah: I remember when you first came, Salumet, you said to us when we are in Spirit that all communication is done by thought, and I am finding it helpful imagining myself to be back in Spirit, completely away from this Earth and then to imagine how I am going to communicate, and then that is spiritual thought, not physical thought.

Yes. It is a barrier for you, these human forms, but with—I will use the word again, 'thought' you can recognize your own being, your own form of energy, your own vibrational energy and use it successfully.

George: There is one other question which might connect here: we talked recently about the random event generator machine which seems to detect collective consciousness thought—it seems to detect the energy. Would that detect just the spiritual output or would that also include brain output? Would that help clarify things?

I would say to you my dear friend that anything which tries to capture energy cannot always be pure. Therefore I would say to you that not only would spiritual energy but also negative energy would be picked up. Do you understand?

George: Ah yes, and the negative energy would connect with the human brain output. (Yes) Thank you that does help clarify.

Mark: The negative energy is also very powerful, isn't it?

All energy has its own intensity. Yes, you are correct.

Mark: When you feel that someone is angry with you, it is a very powerful—

It is tangible, would you not say? (Yes) That is the intensity of the energy. Would you give this instrument some water? (Pause while Lilian gets a cup of water) Is there anything else you would like to discuss?

Lilian: Are you still not ready for the names?

No, I will return to those. I feel that this 'energy talk' was more important, while it remains fresh in your mind. Although it was informative for you to know about the names, it is not a teaching as such. It mainly was for pleasure and understanding for yourselves.

Graham: Does the process of meditation help you heal the spiritual thought as opposed to the brain thinking? Does it help you to separate the two, to understand which you are embarking upon?

Yes. True meditation my dear friend excludes the human brain. If you are in what you call meditation in the proper sense, then all human thinking should be quiet.

Graham: This must be a good thing to do for us.

Of course because then comes forth the Spirit, that true part of you, you understand? (Yes) That is why we always encourage you to have quiet times, not only for your benefit, but so that those in our world can come closer, because what happens to you is that your energy is *quicken*ed and ours *lower*ed, in order that the two can communicate. But that is where you will find your true self, in the state of deep, deep meditation; not the meditation of the light kind, because the human thinking is still rather close. The meditation I speak of is the one where you do not exist in the sense of feeling. Do you understand? (Yes) Where the human form no longer belongs to you, but only that energy is left which we call Spirit. That is true meditation my dear friend.

Graham: When we try to achieve this, you shouldn't strain for it or reach for it, but just to calm yourself from within.

All you can do is to call on us for help if need be. You do need quiet space, you do need to develop a quietness within yourselves which comes only from practise. Most people find that everyday thoughts intrude; it is only with practise that these can be dispelled. (Thank you.) Ask for help to still your mind when it is difficult. Are there more questions?

George: Perhaps this is more general, but your raising of our awareness through our teaching, would I be right in thinking that this keeps prophecy on course rather than changes any prophecy?

Yes, I understand what you say. All I will say to you my dear friend is this: that energy does not stand still, that prophecies made can also be changed, because energy is not static. But what I would say to you is this my dear friend: That what you are thinking of at this present time is quite right, that the prophecies made are on a direct line of evolution. But I want you to understand that what is said today, because of freewill without all of the planets, can change; you must always remember this. Many prophecies have been made that have not come to fruition, and again, there have been many that have. What I want you my dear friends to understand is something a little wider than what is given. We have broached this subject before when I told you that what belongs to what you call 'the future' can be changed. Do you remember? (Affirmed) I hope your knowledge of these things is greater now than then and that you understand that many, many prophecies which have been forecast have been correct at the time of saying, but do not be disappointed when these are not fulfilled, because again with the energy of thinking, all energy is transmutable. Does that answer your question my dear friend?

George: Yes thank you very much.

I would just like to say my dear friends before I do leave you this time, I wish that each one of you could see the colours of your own thinking within this room. I am sure you would be truly amazed, because each one of you is so different—your energy patterns—and yet you belong together in that union of thought and energy which first brought you here and which belonged to you in previous times. But when you understand energy thought more clearly, you will understand what I am saying to you now. There is unison and yet each one of you is apart. My love for you my dear friends grows more each time we meet. (Thanks expressed)

George: I think that is wonderful. When we read through the transcript we shall feel more in tune with what has been said. I think this quite often happens, we hear it from you and then we read through the transcript (Yes) and that reinforces.

Yes, I feel so often that my words to you are repetitive but I do this for good reason.

Mark: That's our fault, isn't it?

I would not say fault my dear friend, but you are of course quite young in understanding. All of you have much to learn and again I am grateful for the time which you have given to me in love; and with these parting words I will leave you. (Thanks + farewells)

~29TH April 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I have spoken to you my dear friends a little about energy. I hope it has given you much to consider. I would like to say to you just a little more that at this time of the Earth planet's evolution much what we shall call 'light energy' is coming to this planet. You know that energy has always been and always will be, but at times it becomes necessary, that light energy be directed to many different planets. I can tell you my dear friends that at this time in your planet's evolution it has become part of the scheme of all life that the inhabitants of this planet become much more aware consciously of all that has until this time remained within the unconscious mind. It is necessary that mankind upon this planet awakens to all that is deep within, not only concerning this lifetime, but to go deep and to become aware of all that he has been. I told you when first I came, that there were many who came to help and to uplift and to influence, but what I am saying to you now is that within the scheme of life, light energy is being used much more for the purpose of awareness within your planet. Whether your understanding is great enough—that is an individual question for you—but all I would say my dear friends is this unconscious awakening is beginning to take place. That is why there are many such as myself who come to help, to uplift and to teach, to help you in your understanding. You know and you understand that light and dark energy belongs to the same energy, but light energy must always succeed if mankind is to become conscious of the Spirit within. You understand this? (Yes) What I can tell you my dear friends that soon all of you and those in your world will become aware, either by word of mouth, or through your media, of new forms of communication. I told you some time ago I believe that this would happen and the process is now in place.

George: Could I ask is this a spiritual form of communication? Is this like telepathy?

Yes, there are many forms, but many new forms have been introduced—I almost said 'created', but that would be a false way of putting it—it is new only to you on this planet, but until there can be communication mind-to-mind, then there will always be much difficulty. Mankind now is beginning to awaken to all of this communication. You already know that many have communicated through your machinery. You are aware, I am sure, it is taking place throughout your world and as the awareness grows, then we can do more. Do you understand my friends? (Affirmed) This earthly planet has reached a point in its evolution where it is of course a teaching planet, but it will become one of awareness, one of great and deeper thinking. I have told you my dear friends that the fear on this planet is almost tangible. There are so many what you call 'disasters', but which you now know to be part of the scheme of life; but it is now necessary that mankind begins to feel for himself. You notice that I do not say 'think' but 'feel'. And that sense comes from our world; it is understood more in our world, because what you feel is what you are. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Are you sure?

Lilian: Would it be we can feel within ourselves when things are right and when things are wrong? Is it that sort of feeling?

When your what you term intuition comes to the fore, that is the Spirit speaking to you.

George: I think in a way you are telling us that our perception knows no bounds.

Yes. It is better to feel than to try to curb those feelings with the thinking of your human brains, because that my dear friends is what happens—that the brain and the way mankind has evolved interferes with that inner sense of feeling. You know this only too well within this room, but there are many, many thousands in your world who do have your perception of what Spirit is about. They are the ones we must try to reach. If this planet is to evolve from one of learning, then we must take these steps forward, not only from all of you my dear friends who do so much, who listen to my words and in your own different ways pass on this knowledge. You have, my dear friends, done much good work between you in giving forth the truth. I do not say that all who have been spoken to have accepted those words, but I can tell you that therein lies that seed which is needed for the development of the Spirit. There are too many within your world who are lost; they have lost themselves and that is why we come to you at this point. I have felt it necessary my dear friends to repeat this time many of the things I have told you previously, because your planet at this time needs upliftment, needs much love—not only the Earth planet, but many more within this, your universe; and this is something we will talk much about at a future time—where this planet sits among your universe and what relation it has to those other planets. You know of course that one cannot exist without the other. It is a pattern of existence which follows that great energy which has created all things and although I tell you that much help is needed, I say also it is the plan of life.

Lilian: The light energy that you've spoken of, in time if people came from other planets to visit and we were more aware of this light energy and spirituality, this would help us to accept them, wouldn't it? Yes, because mainly they are light beings, but you would need to have the awareness to recognize it. You are quite correct in that assumption.

Lilian: We would need to have the awareness to recognise——Their light energy. They are beings of light themselves, many who come to your world.

Lilian: So we could actually see them if—

There are many amongst you in your world—call them teachers, call them people whose light shines out to many—they are the beings of light in your world, they are the beings of light to come, whose whole purpose is to help the people on this planet.

Lilian: Yes, I think we could think of one or two, but—

One or two—there are many, many at this present time. It need not only be those who are well known to you. There are many in your world at this present time who lead what you would term an ordinary life, but whose light shines so brightly that people are influenced by it. So do not always assume that they are people of great knowledge, or who are known to many, many people. Of course there are those who exist in that state, but there are also many, many more who wish to come to this planet to be an ordinary person amongst you, but whose light is too strong not to be recognized. Do you understand what I tell you?

Lilian: Yes I do.

George: Yes, would it be true to say that in past times there had been these light people in regions in the east, in the Himalayas, more so than in the west, but now we have a situation where they are much more widely spread.

Yes, of course. It involves all of your planet, not sections of it. It is important now that the whole of your planet is able to digest knowledge and truth and this is what we are about. It will not happen in one day, one week, one month, one year—it is part of the growth of the planet—but I can say to you my dear friends that it will come sooner than you could ever realize.

George: That's good news.

Slowly, slowly I have said to you often, and this applies also to the gaining of knowledge and awareness. Do you have any questions for me? (Lilian then asked Paul if he had a question)

Paul: Not at the moment unless we were going to talk about the name vibrations, but maybe you want to save that for another time.

I will return to that, I have not forgotten. I just feel that at this present time that to know a little of the energy and what is happening is what you need for now. Remember, time means little and I will return to many things. You have no questions which I have spoken about this time?

George: Can I go back to the beginning when you were talking about white light. I took this to be a spiritual light and I think it is now clear that it relates to beings who are visiting and these will raise our energies and vibrations so that we rise above our physical selves. Is that a way of putting it?

Yes, that would seem accurate for your understanding. You understand when I use the words 'white' and 'light' and 'dark', again I am governed by your human words. The difficulty always in explanation, in trying to explain simply to you just what these energies mean. 'White' in your human understanding stands for goodness, does it not? (Yes) Therefore it seems sensible to my way of speaking, to use the words that you can understand easily. Therefore 'white energy' or 'white light' —words are really quite irrelevant to me, but I use them only for your understanding. So therefore, 'white light' or 'white energy' signifies purity, an energy which is so pure that it only transmits beauty and love and light.

George: Yes, thank you, that is wonderfully clear. I just wanted to clarify that point, because there are a number of scientific people who in the first place will think of sunlight and I knew you were not thinking of that.

No, you again must think on a spiritual level. Always my dear friends think on a spiritual level and all will become clear. If you try to think in human terms, then all will become cloudy and confused. Thank you.

Lilian: I don't think we have any more questions. Again I think we need to think over what you have said.

Yes, it may be a good opportunity this time as I leave you that you allow the feeling of light energy to enter within, to allow that Spirit to come forth, to sit quietly and to see what you feel. You may experience some form of energy around the top of your heads or you may feel something entirely different, but I would suggest my dear friends, as I leave you this time to see what you feel. I will leave it to you my dear friend (Lilian) to take charge of each individual as they feel this energy come to them. If anyone should feel a little discomfort, then please do ask for it to be removed. Remember that light energy is really pure; it comes in love, but it is an energy that you cannot dismiss. So, my friends, I leave you this time once more with my love, once more with the knowledge that we will meet again and also that as each meeting ends, your own light energy grows. (Thanks + farewells)

~13th May 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

This time my dear friends can you feel the unity between you? Each one of you is now aware of your own growth when it is in relation to other people. By joining together like this, the bond strengthens; I think you would agree? (Agreed) I want you to think not only of the unity between all of you within this room, but to think of where you are placed within the planet and all of the cosmos. What are you feeling when I say those words?

George: Very small and very big at the same time.

That is a very good response my dear friend. We will talk a little about this blending, not only with yourselves, but with all of existence, but firstly I want to say to you my dear friends this: Each one of you has come to this Earth plane with many qualities. You know of course that all good qualities within mankind belong to Spirit. What I would like you to consider this time my dear friends is which quality that you have brought to this lifetime do you think has grown most? This will not be a simple question for you, indeed you may have to think about it quite deeply before you can answer. I want each of you to participate in this discussion in order that you all understand not only individual qualities, but the qualities of Spirit which you possess as a whole. Hopefully my dear friends you should see a pattern emerge.

Lilian: The pattern between ourselves?

Yes. I will give you a moment to think, then perhaps individually you can say what you feel. This is an exercise for you all in understanding, in knowing each other's qualities and in so doing beginning to understand yourselves. So, when you are ready, let us begin and we will all listen, not only with the physical brain, but with the mind, which of course belongs to Spirit, and with that thinking should come more understanding.

George: Yes, the first question about growth, the simple answer is that I feel I have grown in love more than anything, because that does embrace all, but growth in understanding things runs a close second. As regards the bond between us all, it is something that I can feel and something which is very comfortable, but I find it very difficult to define further than that.

Lilian: Comfortable with one another, very much.

Margaret: That's how I feel. I can't explain it, but when I come here I am a different person. With all your guidance that you've given me in the past and I just feel that if I didn't come I shouldn't be able to go on.

And which quality do you feel my dear friend has grown most with you?

Margaret: The understanding of other people.

Understanding; yes, well already we can see that with only two people using words, that understanding is already a connection. Would the others agree that this is so? (Agreed)

Lilian: Thanks to your teaching, I must say. Before we judge someone, we think about it as well.

So, are we saying that each one of you finds that understanding has become greater in all areas of your lives? (Affirmed) So already we have unity for understanding. May I say to you, why do you feel that this one quality should be uppermost for all of you?

Sara: Because in understanding ourselves better, we can immediately understand other people if we want to. (Yes) I think that the reason we are comfortable with each other here is because you have encouraged us as a group to increase our understanding and remove our judgement of others, so within this circle, through the course of time, we have become open with each other about our struggles in life and, with your encouragement, we have been able to try not to judge each other; and when you have that situation, you can then apply that to the rest of the world if you wish and if you can train yourself to think twice with other people also.

Those are important words—‘if you wish’—yes, enters again that freewill. Yes, it is easy to feel the unity amongst a group of like-minded people; where the greatest achievement is attained is when understanding reaches out to those in life that you find to be most difficult. Only then will you have true understanding with love. It is in the difficult moments and with people that you do not instantly—are drawn to—that is when the quality of understanding is greatest. I am sure that each one of you has encountered people upon this planet who seem to exude kindness to all people, a kindness and a generosity of Spirit which comes naturally to them. That truly is spiritual understanding, because in having no judgement of another what you are saying is that you have grown to such a degree that there is no need to judge. So, I feel that at least all of you in having this bond of understanding, you can see how, as a group of people, you have the ability to grow together. It is important my dear friends that you know this, because in the knowing comes greater understanding, greater love, greater fulfilment. And after all, as the lady has said, it is imperative that you understand yourselves fully, before you can truly understand another being. Are there more qualities that anyone would speak of?

Lilian: Mark?

Let us hear from the young gentleman.

Paul: I think this understanding in terms of judging others, having everyone as—I feel I have got the knowledge now that everyone is equal, no-one is any better than anyone else on the Earth.

So, equality for you is an important issue.

Paul: Yes, I think it is one I hadn’t understood.

No, but you must realize that equality belongs not only to humankind, but to all kingdoms: animal kingdom, vegetable kingdom, all of creation.

Paul: I have a feeling that animals are no less important than humans.

Why do you have a feeling? It is but truth, that although their purpose upon their planet may be different from your own, it is nonetheless as important; so that the animal kingdom is evolving in its own right. Mankind, I am afraid, sometimes feels that the human being is far superior. Let us dispel that now. That brings us back to the word you have used ‘equality’.

Paul: That is what I have felt for a long time. Cutting down a tree feels like committing a murder sometimes maybe, because it extends to animals, trees and all life I suppose. (Yes) Nothing is better.

This is a good road to travel and I would say to you it is a lesson in this lifetime which you have found, because I would say to you my dear friend, it is not always a quality that you have possessed in past time. So, I would say to you, ‘well done’ in recognizing what it is you need to learn.

Paul: Thank you.

What about the gentleman, please?

Lilian: Mark?

Mark: I suppose I have learnt that everything’s important, really.

Important or less important?

Mark: Everything's more important.

In what way my dear friend?

Mark: It's difficult to say.

It is words I know, but I would like you to fully understand the meaning of what you are saying. All of life is more important?

Mark: Yes, it feels more important, all of life, people, the way of viewing things.

So in a sense are you not saying what the other gentleman says, that all of life is equality?

Mark: Not the same thing, no. It is, but I was looking at it in a slightly different way, I think, that all of life has become much more meaningful.

Ah, meaningful. That is a better description.

Mark: And in gaining its meaning, yes I suppose the result is then that you have respect for more of life.

So what quality do you feel has grown within yourself?

Mark: Respect for it, maybe.

Respect for life. But may I be so bold as to say to you that people who are devoid of spiritual knowledge also have a great interest in life. Do you see what I mean? It is not necessarily a good quality that so many people should worship living in that manner. It only becomes good when love and understanding join with that love of life. Do I make sense to you my dear friend?

Lilian: Yes, forgetting the spiritual side of things.

I feel he is confused.

Mark: Can you respect life, if you've forgotten the spiritual side of things?

Yes, because people cling to living when they believe in nothing else.

Mark: When I talk about life—this is words again—I'm talking about life as every aspect of life.

Existence, yes.

Mark: Not just—

I know. I hope I am not confusing you, but I am trying to point out to you the difference between the qualities of life. You understand? (Yes) Of course I know that your love of life is different from many others, because of your awareness and your understanding, but I wanted to point forth the point that love of life is not always necessarily a good quality. Can you see the difference?

Mark: Yes, if we are using a narrow view of life.

Yes. For example let me try to explain: If you have two men and you have a situation where help is needed, one of the men will give generously all of his time, effort and love to help. Another may offer money, because he has much, but he does it for his own gratification. But on the surface both would seem to be most generous, but can you see there is a difference? (Yes) And that is the point I was trying to place before you, but of course your love of life and all things is admirable. Do the others find the connection here with the gentleman's words?

Lilian: Yes I can see where Mark is coming from.

Do the others view this also, that their love for life is intensified? (Agreed) So again we have that bond and that unity.

George: Yes, as you made the point, it goes together with our understanding.

Yes, yes but although each of you are using different words, always we come back to that strength, that bond between you. Again I say to you, each one of you is different and yet you are all connected. Can you see as we go along how strong those words are? (Agreed) Now, what about the ladies?

Jan: Well, growth-wise I personally feel that it's taken me 42 years to actually believe that I have started to understand why I am here and that is liberating, and I hope I can open that up to other people, but for the time being it's why I am related to the lady on my right (Lilian), why I married my husband, why I have my children and why I chose my parents. So again that all comes down to understanding and I know I have a long way to go, but with that understanding obviously comes a greater love for them. I think I then receive greater love and I feel I receive—the love was always there, but I feel it in a different way, if that makes sense. (Yes)

Lilian: More of a caring, would you say?

Jan: Yes, the love that you receive, you can't see it, but perhaps you give off a different light (Yes) or an energy that other people bounce back on from.

What you give, you receive in some form, but may I say to you my dear friend, as you have brought up a period of time, '42 years you say', that is but a blink, I believe you would say. (Chuckles)

Jan: I appreciate that but it was just my comical way of explaining that, as you are probably aware, for many, many years I struggled with who I was, (Yes) how I should behave and I believe now that I am at the beginning of how I want to carry on.

And also, you have gained in as much as in the physical sense you have much more, how do you say, 'sense of humour' about life. You did not always have this.

Jan: No, I was very much the other way to be honest.

Yes, so in that sense also, laughter and happiness spreads its wings to many people. (Yes) Yes, and again as you have said, it is basically a greater understanding of all things.

Jan: Yes. If I look at, take for example my parents and I was speaking to the lady on your right today, and I have a greater understanding of why they are like they are, or I am trying to, and I know I can't change their path, and I used to think I could and I now know I can't and I can just accept that that's how they are. Do you understand what I am trying to say?

I believe all of us can accept what you are saying. I think your words will—

Lilian: We have all been there.

Yes. For many that understanding is there. But you will never achieve perfection my dear friends. In growing in the way that you have, and quickly I might say, you cannot do more. You can only join together, listen to each other, listen to my words and those of others and try to make sense of what this lifetime is about. You will never be perfect whilst in these physical garbs, but I can say to you, if only you could see the light that shines from each one of you, I know you would be amazed, because also with understanding my dear friends comes humility and this is a quality again that each one of you has attained. Think about that also. Can we hear the other lady please?

Lilian: Yes, I sat here thinking how more I am aware of the beauty of things. Just before my friends came, my adopted cat sat on my lap and I was just thinking how beautiful, the fur and the whole cat, and the leaves on the tree, and the beauty in things I have noticed much more.

Yes, because you are using your Spirit eyes—that is the beauty you behold. And again it relates to all the others in having a greater understanding. (Yes)

Jan: I think it is very difficult to sum up in one short statement how you felt or how you've grown. I think each one of us, like you said Salumet, no matter which one speaks, we can all relate to the unity amongst us. There may be many voices but in fact there is one voice.

Yes, and that is what I wanted you my dear friends to realize this time that this bond, this unity, this awareness can never be destroyed; that as you grow whether you be together or apart, it is a bond, an energy, which has grown and become stronger and, as you know, energy can never be destroyed. So, build on it my dear friends and, as I say, life for you I cannot promise will always be easy, but life for you holds new concepts, new visions, new ideals which all of you can take aboard. I hope that before I leave you, that you will feel the love energy which I extend to each one of you. I hope that you will feel that within this next week of your time upon this planet, that you feel the strength and beauty of our love for you. Perhaps next time we will discuss if what you feel has any connection with any of the others.

Sara: Salumet, could I just mention two more words? (Of course.) I think I have felt much more energy, so more dynamic, that's another thing which I have changed (Yes) and balance as well, because the balance of giving to others and giving to myself I feel is better. (Yes) So it is good to study others, but obviously there needs to be a balance in studying oneself too.

Yes, until you know and understand the self, you will never—well perhaps that is not the correct word—you would find it more difficult to help others. You, of course, need to be balanced in body, mind and Spirit if you are to maintain a healthy outlook on living. You need that aspect of yourself to be strong as well as developing the spiritual self, but of course the two always go hand-in-hand. Would you agree?

Sara: Yes I would. And I think the other quality I've developed, apart from compassion which comes through understanding, (Yes) is strength, because I think when I was younger I was sensitive, but more sensitive in my youth to perhaps dislikes from others. Now, with understanding, I feel strong, because dislikes may be there, but they do not have the impact.

Yes. What you were feeling was the emotional side of your nature, rather than the spiritual aspect, so of course, you can remain sensitive in the spiritual sense, but you can forgive others for unkind things more easily, because the Spirit is stronger and as you have said, the understanding is greater.

Sara: Yes, that is right.

Therefore, I say again to all of you, think about the words each one of you has spoken and think of the unity and bonds between you.

George: Could I just say that one other factor in our unity is that we have come together for seeking and we have had the benefit of this wonderful and patient teaching from Source which you give us. Thank you for that. (Agreed)

I need no thanks my dear friend as I have said to you on occasion, it is much love from you that brings me to you. Without that bond and love between you, I could not be here; remember this also. And you also give to me much love, much help and understanding and I cannot tell you in words what you have given back to me and those from my world.

Lilian: Could I just ask a question on something that happened to my mother? It may be nothing spiritual but maybe. She had fallen asleep and when she came to she was looking towards the window and she thought that I was peering in the window; and I wasn't, in fact I think I was with my grandchildren at that moment. She was so sure that I was looking in the window that she then waited for me to come into her house. Could that have been a part of me or was that just a coincidence of her dreams?

It is no coincidence. It is the fact that she has taken a step closer to our world, that her spiritual eyes are more aware of those who are usually unseen. Of course, it was an aspect of yourself, otherwise she would not have been able to see, but it is because she has stepped a little closer. As you step closer to our world, all things spiritual become more heightened.

Lilian: I know she saw her sister, who has been gone for a while, very close. Again she came from sleep. Yes, this is the state when all things that you call spiritual will take place. But do not be concerned, she did indeed see the aspect of you.

Lilian: Yes, I did wonder.

But it is only that the spiritual eyes are more aware. (Thank you.) I must leave you this time. As I have said, my love remains with you and I am sure that you will feel in these coming days much upliftment in your lives. (Thanks + farewells)

~27th May 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

As we begin this time, let us give thanks for the love and security which we feel within this room. We give thanks my dear friends this time, because there is at this time much fear which emanates from your world. In the past year of your time there have been not only changes within your world, but subtle changes in the heavens, the planets of which you could not be aware. I want you to know my dear friends that the fear which holds so many in this world in its grasp, will shortly dissipate into a climate of less fear and more hope. I have told you that there is nothing for you to fear, but it does not stop the many, many people within your world from being afraid of life, because they do not have the knowledge which you possess. There has been in the past months, many old fears which have surfaced to create distress among many of your fellow men, but again I say to you, 'fear not'. There has been influence, much work done from our world to influence those men of power to see their own spiritual growth in order that that Spirit stands forward and creates new harmony, new hope amongst their people. I know each one of you understands that in each nation of your world there are inherited difficulties, which need to be overcome. You are aware my dear friends I know that again there are distressing areas where people need help, where people cannot live in harmony and love, but are against each other. There are natural disasters and there have been many in the past. But remember my previous words, that all of these happenings have a purpose, a purpose which you may not understand, but which I can assure you the outcome will be much better; it will be much better for all concerned. I have told you that it will take much time before mankind realizes that the importance of living is LOVE, but it is love towards all other human beings, it is understanding of each other, it is being able to live together in peace and harmony without necessity for greed. Forgive me my dear friends if I have repeated these words once more, but at this time in your living, I feel it is necessary for these words to be said once more. Remember to send your loving thoughts to all of mankind. Would anyone like to ask questions?

Sarah: Yes, Salumet, in the beginning you said there were subtle changes in your world, in other planets—I can't remember the exact words you used. Were those changes effected to compensate for the problems that we have got here, or were they just happening anyway and that assists in the problems?

The subtle changes I spoke of amongst the planets are a natural progression of the planets. You cannot have compensation of other planets for one planet; all must grow together, all must change together. Those of you in your world who would understand the movement and changes of the planets within your solar system will understand better what I say. Does that answer your question?

Sarah: Yes it does, but how has that affected us? It is just a natural growth? It has no consequence with the troubles we have got here?

It is the evolution of your own planet which is creating the problems here. It is that simple, but in many minds it is not simple but tragic. But remember that even all of the planets have a karmic effect at times. Do you understand? (Yes, thank you.) Do we have more questions?

George: The part that we would not understand, I believe that would relate to karmic return and I think that the karma that would be concerned, concerns those on the planet as well as those in Spirit. Would that be correct?

Yes. Karma relates to all living things, on this planet, on other planets and within our own world. You cannot change your karmic debts. You must accept them and they must be worked through, but you cannot ignore them. It applies not only to all living things, but as I have told you, to all of the planets, to all of the universe, to all of existence.

George: Yes, hence it is beyond our understanding!

I am afraid so at this present time, but that does not mean that you cannot dwell upon it and perhaps gain for yourself a little more understanding.

George: And the problems and the fear that we experience at the moment, it seems to go with the nations and groups of people. In our own society there is much concern with crime and with greed, and across the world at the India/Pakistan border there is military confrontation and many in the world will have concern about that. Is this the sort of fear and concern which you had in mind?

Yes, of course, and I would expand it a little further, in as much as to say that all nations within your world today have problems of one kind or another, but these 'problems', as you like to call them, will be worked through. Mankind and the world is becoming much smaller in as much as that communication is greater and understanding is there for the asking. You understand what I say? (Affirmed) Remember, and I say my dear friend you have used the word 'thought' and that, my friends, is the most powerful weapon that you have. It comes not only from our word but from within each one of you. Each individual has the power to change much, but again I say to you, it is within your hands to do so. Do we have more questions please?

Jan: This is not a question, but it is a feeling that I have had recently. I obviously can't see and feel the rest of the planet but—

Let me stop you there. You cannot feel and see the rest of the planet? Why not?

Jan: Can I finish what I was saying (Yes) and then maybe it will make more sense? (Yes) I have been picking up a, for want of a better word, 'feeling' that at the moment the world around me is in like a healing process. The nature around me seems to have balanced this at the moment and things seem to be growing better than in the last couple of years and I just get a sense that this ever-turning planet of ours has a—I don't know how to describe it. I'm just sensing a healing at the moment in nature.

Can I say this to you my dear friend: Your perception and awareness has grown much and this, I know, you will agree with. (Yes) Because your own perception and awareness has grown, that Spirit shines forth from within. Therefore your perception of all that exists around and about you, takes on a different hue. Do you see what I say to you? (Yes) Let me say for example, if you are completely engrossed in your own world, in your own problems, does not the rest and the people around also seem to be so? You see only what is distressing and what is not so good, shall we say. (Affirmed) Therefore, what you are experiencing my dear friend is that love and healing energy which exudes from within you. Do you understand or do you need more explanation?

Jan: I can feel the love that you speak of and I am aware of the changes deep within me, (Yes) but I have a problem some of the time knowing how to react to that spiritually, because sometimes it can take me back and I am not quite sure where I should be going with that feeling or thought.

Then you must be still; you must be still and allow those answers to come to you as they surely will.

What is happening in your life if you look into one of your mirrors, what do you see? It is an image of you, it is a reflection of you and that is what is happening. Remember what I have told you that as you grow, as you take these steps on this pathway, life does not always become easier, but sometimes seems to be more confusing and more difficult. You can understand this now?

Jan: Yes I can, I couldn't before and now I can with increased regularity.

Yes, but take heart, because it should tell you that indeed you are taking a step forward.

Jan: That's comforting, yes—I know this, I know this within myself.

Yes, but again we have interference from the physical thinking. (Yes) Always this is the problem with you my friends. It is always difficult to put to one side the thoughts that come to the physical brain, but as you grow you begin to recognize it, do you not? (Yes) Or if you do not, then you should, because each of you now has the knowledge to understand how you must go forward. So, be still when you are confused and ask that the answer be given for you.

Jan: When you first started talking to me, you were about to stop me and ask me why I thought I couldn't see the rest of the planet. Can you explain?

Yes, I will continue what I was about to say, that all of you, each one of you, when you speak of feeling and sensing, those are attributes of Spirit and each of you has the power to see and feel and sense and become part of all things, but again it is your responsibility to attain these things. It is not that you cannot, it is that you have not tried or do not wish to. Do you see what I say?

Jan: Yes, I do and obviously my words were chosen not quite correctly. In my opening statement—I can see what you mean, I should be looking further (Yes) and not just at my surroundings, but if I can sense that, I will sense further and further.

Not only sense but become part of. Yes, you have, to a smaller degree had that sensation of all-belonging.

Jan: Yes I have.

Yes, so you understand a little of what I speak of. (Yes) Again, you see my dear friends it is fear, it is a form of fear that you doubt yourselves; but it is a human condition that each one of you are well aware of, but I say to you, be still and you will find the answers always. (Thank you very much.)

George: I have a different type of question. I heard this week that scientists have discovered what is termed a 'zero point field', which is seen as an energy source or a type of energy which stretches through the entire cosmos. This could have quite deep implications for planet Earth and I just wondered if this was one of the energy discoveries that you referred to sometime back.

Yes, I have held back my words to you, because did I not tell you that there would be many discoveries on this planet that were unknown at the time of my speaking to you? (You did.) There will be many, many more discoveries, not only on this planet, but beyond, and those who study the planets will also discover many more things which will be helpful to mankind.

George: Could I enquire if this discovery has been made before by past great civilizations?

Yes, a simple yes will suffice for now. We may, at another time, discuss with you, because I know you have a mind which is active and curious and is ever-turning. Therefore we will discuss just how much knowledge man had and that knowledge has disappeared from mankind—what shall we say—understanding. But yes, this is not new as far as mankind is concerned, it is just little known of.

George: Yes, I appreciate your words, thank you very much for that.

I think for this time as I leave you, that it may be appropriate as I have discussed with our dear lady friend, that to feel and sense is something that should be worthwhile to you all. Therefore I say my dear friend, let us devote some time to quietly sensing what is around us. I will leave it with you my dear friend (Lilian) that you either quietly discuss it as you go along and allow each to speak, or you do it as you wish.

Lilian: Yes, we will sit quietly for a little while.

I will take my leave knowing always that you are surrounded by my love, that I come to each one of you in times of need to try to uplift you, to help you and to support you. (Thanks + farewells)

~3rd June 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

The delay in speaking to you this time my dear friends has had a purpose of which I will inform you now. Those who stand close to you all have asked permission that they may see you all in this situation as a group of people, but what they look at is the Spirit and not the human form. Why should they wish to do this, I hear you ask. Because my dear friends as you come together as a group of spiritual beings, then you are exposed for all to see. There are those in our world who also need to gain knowledge from such activities. They will take back with them some degree of knowledge from each one of you. I hope that some of you at least have been aware of their presence here. Have any of you felt their presence?

Sarah: I felt not exactly a single presence, but I did feel different around me tonight.

Sara: Now that it has been mentioned, I think I did feel the same on reflection.

Of course there would be no great degree of change, but as you know, subtle differences are more likely to occur, because as you understand, your awareness is not total, is not complete as spiritual beings. Still you are hindered by the human thinking, but it is good that at least some of you have felt this difference. I feel my dear friends that this evening should be devoted to any questions that you may have for me. So if you have questions, let me see if I can help you.

George: We have talked about the various, or some of the Source teachings before and there was one from the Source known as the 'Divine Pymander', a teaching to Thoth of Egypt. His teaching divided everything into three headings: God and eternity as one, the cosmos with its duality of material part and spiritual part as another, and man with his duality as a third. And he then goes on to say that time was born of the cosmos and its processes. I think this is in line with other teachings, but perhaps a slightly different way of looking at it. Would you have any comment on time being born of the cosmos?

Of course you understand my dear friend how difficult this topic of time is. We have spoken briefly before about time and your understanding of time, but what you must understand that time belonging to eternity, the cosmos or all of existence is a totally different factor in comparison to time as mankind understands.

George: Yes, he was talking about eternity as being timeless.

Yes, this you know and understand; I have told you this previously. But of course when we speak of eternity we speak of energy which has been transmuted and is ever growing, is ever moving; therefore time becomes encapsulated within all of these things. Are you following me? Do you understand? (Yes) It exists only in so much as that energy is ever-growing and ever-moving. Therefore, again, I would say 'time' is a word created by mankind to explain the existence of eternity. You understand? (Yes) It is a manmade word to try to explain what is unexplainable to humankind.

George: Yes, the difference of eternity and the processes of the cosmos. (Yes) Yes, I follow you.

Yes, I would say to you also that the explanation which you have given to me has been explained by mankind in many different ways, in many religions and may I make an example of your own Christian religion where there is the Trinity. Again there is the three-fold figure and in many religions throughout your world, these Trinities have been used in various way. But I would say to you my dear friend that all of these emanate from what was originally the truth from the beginning of time when mankind began to reason and to think for himself, then there had to be explanation for all of the natural wonders and thoughts which entered thinking. Is that helpful to you?

George: Yes, thank you. Yes, the Trinity is something that seems very important to theology and not terribly well understood. (No) Is there anything further you would like to talk to us about regarding Trinity? I would say only this to you; that as far as we are concerned in our world, there is no need for explanation of Trinities or any other such numbers. I state simply to you my dear friends that all things and all truth have no numbers, have no existence of their own, that truth and love and all of Creation is but of one unit, which comes from the Source of all life. Again I would say to you that no matter what mankind says, no matter what prophets predict that the truth is, mankind will always find a way of explaining in order that he might, in his own small way, try to understand that which he cannot understand. Mankind will always be limited in his understand.

George: And this is perhaps where faith becomes important in some of our religions; the inability to understand.

Yes, because mankind is not capable of full understanding, then he needs to create for himself some form of belief, in order that he might clarify within his own thinking all that appears before him. There are not many within this world who have a great deal of knowledge to do with all of existence. That is why voices such as myself and others come to enlighten all of you in order that you see that it matters not what words have been written, that mankind must look within, must feel and sense what is real and what is the truth. Many, many words, many pictures, many articles of faith dwell in your world.

George: So conscience and intuition therefore become very important.

They are your tools of knowledge; it is as simple as that. If you wish to find truth, look within, then you cannot be wrong, because the knowledge which comes to you comes from a line of existence, which belongs to the Spirit. Do you understand?

George: Yes thank you that does help to clarify.

You have within you all knowledge. It is important that each of you use it if you are to succeed, if you are to succeed in your spiritual growth. All knowledge is open to you, but again I say to you my dear friends you are limited by your human brain. No matter how intellectual you may be, that is not the way of finding truth. You understand? (Affirmed) I hope that is helpful to you. (Yes, thank you.)

Lilian: Would you take a question? We will understand if you say no. It's about Graham's health?

I would like to hear the gentleman's voice.

Graham: Yes, I have had some difficulties with my walking again. It did get better for about a year and just lately I have gone off again and it is something that I find very curious and I don't understand it, and I was wondering if there is anything you could say to help me understand?

Yes, you want me to tell you what you must do?

Graham: Yes, if that is possible.

It is possible, but it is not wise. After all, each of you are here to learn from whatever lives you have chosen. I did give you some advice and I would say that it still applies. You may not have found what you are looking for yet, but I would say this to you, that you do need to give yourself more time as I have said previously, of going within. Because you see what you call your own subconscious mind holds all of the answers for you. I could of course tell you what to do, but that would not be helpful. This is something you must work through and I know and I understand fully that all of life's problems are frustrating and cause anguish to you all, but I would say to you my dear friend that you are growing because of it. And I know these words do not come easily to you, because so often we hear in our world, 'why me?' and I would say, 'why not you?' I hope you do not feel my words to be harsh, because I do not mean them to be so.

Graham: No, I don't feel your words are harsh and thank you very much for what you have said.

But I will say is, continue to search because the answer is there for you.

Graham: Thank you for that, yes. I will keep searching and I will try to find more time.

Yes, you need—I know in daily living that each one of you finds that time presses heavy upon you, but only, if only, you could realize that that time spent in developing the Spirit is time for your own good, your own growth, your own development. It also allows those from our world to come even closer to you, as they have done this evening.

George: Could I just ask, the searching that you talk of, is that searching within?

Within. All knowledge is within, but you have to free your thinking before you can go within. There are many ways to do this and I suggest that each one finds their own way, their own key, in order that they find that place within the Spirit where all knowledge is available to you. It can be done and it is part of life's journey that you should endeavour to do so. It would be much too simple for me to make life, my dear friends, free from all strife and worry, free from the problems of everyday living, but what would you achieve?

Lilian: We wouldn't achieve anything.

I could lift you, help you, cherish you and love you all. It is difficult for us who watch over you to see each one of you struggle, but it is part of our endeavour that we stand aside and allow that spiritual growth to take place.

Lilian: Yes we need reminding of that sometimes so that we can go forward with courage.

Graham: It is encouraging to think that these difficulties actually do help our growth (Yes) and I certainly do take a lot of comfort from that. I do feel as if I am beginning to look at life differently now and I can certainly see other people's point of view better—things that I wouldn't have noticed before.

Yes, it is an awakening of the Spirit. That is what happens and most individuals start off by small things in their lives. They begin to notice that they, as you have said, are more aware of others than themselves. That love grows within the heart and they are able to be more tolerant of their fellow man. I am sure each one of you within this room has had that metamorphosis, where you have grown, where you have felt that life has expanded for you, but what you cannot know my dear friends is how you have grown in Spirit. That knowledge belongs to our world, and you may be aware of upliftment, of consciousness, but you cannot see that purity of light which shines from each one of you; and I have to say my dear friends it is that aspect of your being which is important to us all. And I do assure you, no matter what difficulty life throws to you, you will shine through in Spirit. I hope these words bring comfort to you all in your struggles and I know each one of you have your own testing times. They may be different from each other, but to you individually they are a lesson in life which is difficult to cope with. But you cannot grow without struggle, and remember what I have told you, that the more you grow, the more struggle there is. It may be different for each one, but it is there. I hope my words have been useful to you. (Affirmed + thanks) If you would like whilst my energy remains, if the gentleman would receive healing using this instrument, I will direct some healing for him. I would ask only that he be placed in the centre of the group and each one of you direct your loving thoughts from the heart towards him. You may find that I will leave you as this takes place, so remember my friends that my love is always with you. Look within and the answers are there. (Thanks + farewells)

~24th June 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

This time I would like to speak with you my dear friends a little about what you truly understand yourselves to be. You know and understand that these physical bodies are but clothing for the Spirit, but how do you each perceive that spiritual being to be? This evening when I have finished speaking with you, I would like you to go on a journey inwards, and to you my dear friends I will put this question: 'Who and what are you?' But the journey within, which I wish you to take, will be slightly different from anything you have undertaken previously. Each one of you is aware of the feeling of meditation, of peace and upliftment, and some of you clairvoyance, but what I wish you to try this time is to observe the observer of these things. Do you understand my dear friends what I say?

Lilian: The observer being someone from Spirit?

Within yourself. Let me give you an example. When you are aware of a picture or a person or whatever, you are looking with spiritual eyes, are you not? (Yes) What I wish you to do is to look even more deeply. You are the observer of these things, but I want you to observe the observer and see what you come up with. You may find this interesting; it is another exercise in your development my dear friends. And after all, we are devoting much time in this your earthly year, to helping each one of you to grow; that has been the purpose of this time. What I will say to you my dear friends, we have spoken briefly about what you call the beginning of time, we have discussed that you are Spirit, we have discussed many things about what we term 'energy', and we have come to the conclusion that we are but a small part of the Creative Force. You would agree? (Agreed) But I ask you now, how do you interpret that spark of Creative Force? I am putting to you difficult questions this time, but my intention is that each one of you gives time to finding out what is the true nature of your being. Do you understand my dear friends? If you have questions, let me have them now before you embark upon your inner journeys.

George: I would say I have always considered myself something of an observer, even from childhood and in those days I looked at the grown up people around me and they seemed to be real people and I felt rather like an actor. So, going back to the spark, I think during the course of living, that spark must have changed quite a lot. Does that make sense?

I understand your words. Of course, throughout your earthly lives there will always be change and knowledge. There will be an innate knowledge that lies within you, which you perhaps you are not aware of. But yes I understand what you say, but the observer I speak of is within the spiritual being and not the physical. You understand this? (Affirmed) You will find that the two are completely separate.

Sara: So he would be observing himself observing—to see with spiritual eyes, he would be observing himself observing?

Each one of you will observe the observer within yourselves. It sounds complicated and I do not expect you to have some kind of revelation, but I would suspect that each one of you becomes clearer in the way that you perceive spiritual eyes. Do you understand? (Yes) I sense a little apprehension.

Lilian: We were talking the other evening and you mentioned 'feeling', for myself I feel when something is right and something is wrong. That's a spiritual thing?

Yes, of course, it has to be from Spirit.

Margaret: Just feeling contented with one's life, that's what I have learnt.

Yes, remember what I have taught you that whatever the spiritual aspect of you feels, then that feeling will, as well as the power of your thought, become reality. So the contentment within your physical life is achieved, because there is a knowingness within the Spirit. Does that make sense to you? (Yes) Now I will leave you. I will work quietly with this instrument whilst I leave you all to go on your inward journeys, and I will leave you my dear friend (Lilian) to begin any discussion that is to hand.

Lilian: Yes, thank you and there will be no more speaking from you?

No, I will remain with this instrument and work quietly with her, but I would say my dear friends, do not be afraid to speak of what you feel and what you observe, but the purpose of this exercise is to see if you can observe the observer within. (We sat quietly as instructed for about 10-15 minutes)

Lilian: Is anybody ready to say what they felt?

Sarah: I can. I felt that I was slightly put to a side and that the observer was then coming through me with me slightly to the side, so when I wasn't actually seeing anything, the roles would be reversed. So I was sort of changing places almost.

George: I don't know. I have been going in and out of consciousness. I found it difficult to settle into any particular scrutiny. I need to think about it a little more.

Paul: I got the impression that the inner me was basically seeking truth all the time and that it liked balance.

Sara: I felt that it wasn't something I could do constantly. I could concentrate on and off on the idea of the observer observing. In some way I felt it was my higher self, it was my higher self, and I felt a sort of energy about the observer that was observing me, but when it was observing me I became more aware of my physical self as rather like a distracted child that wants to go here and wants to go there, very much the idea of a child really. But the higher self, the observer, was very impartial and constantly very loving and always there and that's what we tap into to find our words, to find a peace and a balance. It was a good exercise because it made me much more conscious of what we do in meditation, because I could feel the difference very strongly between my physical observer and the spiritual observer.

Lilian: I felt that the observer was part of me with the feelings. Then I thought, you remember he said about belonging to universal shall we say, I felt love came into it, which I think I have experienced just slightly a couple of times, that's all. Yes, it's the unity with everything. For me it would be more the feelings, he is part of my feeling, I say 'he', you know.

George: Feelings is a key word. Not so much an observer as feelings about feelings which makes it so difficult to summarize.

Sarah: I felt a sort surrounding, it enveloped me, the observer part.

Margaret: I feel comfortable in myself. I don't know whether I should be, but I just feel that everything just lately has been going pretty well my way.

Lilian: It has got to be the feelings. I suppose when we 'come to the end of the road', you know what I mean, it would be when we feel peace with everything, part of everything. It will make us think, won't it? (The tape recorder ran out at this point)

~8th July 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

This time my dear friends I would like to say to you how much did you discover last time we met? Before I continue onto more words with you, I feel that still you need time of reflection to go within. Did any of you feel some connection last time when I asked you to observe the observer? (Affirmed by some) I know that you discussed it between yourselves, but I would like to hear with your own words what you have achieved or what you feel you have or have not achieved.

Sara: It gave more a sensation of detachment from the body and not so caught up, it helped to separate from the usual mind pattern and I felt as if I was above my head rather than the usual place.

So your awareness from physical being was separate?

Sara: It felt separate from my body to me. (Yes) It felt as if I was above my head and although I was still aware of my normal body, it helped me to separate from the internal dialogue. I felt more peace.

Lilian: Did you say the same, Sarah?

Sarah: No, I felt that I was slightly put to one side and the observer had almost come in its place. I felt that almost I was the observer, but I was also put to one side. It was a much stronger energy than me.

Yes, so your awareness also was separated? (Yes) You would agree on that? (Yes) Yes, that is a step forward for all of you. When the awareness becomes separate from the usual way of meditating, it shows each of you that you still exist, but still have the awareness of the physical being, even if that physical being seems to be, as the last lady has said, put to one side. I would this time, my dear friends, like you to travel on another inward journey. This will be the last one for some time, because we have new things to discuss, but I have told you that it is most important for each individual to grow, to come to recognize what it is that you are about. It is fine that we meet, that you listen to my words—for that I am ever grateful to you—but also it is important for each of you my dear friends, that not only do you learn from my words, but that at such times as these, you learn to develop and allow that Spirit within to grow stronger. We have discussed your everyday situations and how difficult each one of you finds it to have quiet times; that is why it is important that when we come together that that combined energy be utilized for your own good. Would you not agree? (Affirmed) I think, if I may say so, that you find it easier. (Agreed) Yes. Therefore, if you are agreed my friends, we will use this time, and it will be the last time for a while that you will have this individual time, to feel and to recognize, not only that inner being, but also those who stand close to you and come and support you at all times. But, as you know each individual is developing at their own pace. Therefore I would suggest for this time that as you go inward, that you focus your energy, your mind's eye on that great golden light that belongs to you all, and within that beautiful light let us see what you can see, what you can feel and what you can achieve this time. I again will work with this instrument throughout the evening. I ask only that if you speak amongst yourselves, discuss what you feel, that your voices remain quite subdued, in order that this instrument not be too disturbed. (Yes) I will leave the evening with you my dear lady (Lilian) and let us hope that each one of you leaves this room this time completely uplifted and perhaps excited, if I may say, by what you see and feel. We will help you all that we can.

Lilian: Thank you and we will see what comes.

(We sat quietly as instructed for about 10-15 minutes before discussion)

Sara: I am just getting pictures to do with George.

Paul: I am getting pictures as well. I am not sure what the pictures are yet and what they mean.

Margaret: I have got such a feeling of contentment and happiness.

George: I was seeking the golden light, I seemed to get a fragmented golden pattern, a sort of smooth light, a bitty pattern, a goldie pattern. It seems to be mixed in with a few childhood memories, but I managed to get back to the gold again.

Lilian: I just felt peaceful, meditative, relaxed.

Sarah: It started off with a sunflower and I was one of the petals. I felt that the rest of the group were part of these petals as well and all of a sudden we were absorbed into the centre of the sunflower, and then the middle of the sunflower opened up and it seemed like it was there trying to get everyone to go into the middle of the sunflower. (Discussion continued, before closing as usual)

~15th July 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

Lilian: A very warm welcome to you once again. We have a visitor tonight (James – a friend of Paul's) which I am sure you would have known about.

Of the many visitors that have come to us here, this one is the most relaxed. We give our love to him.

My dear friends, this time I feel that there is some upliftment needed for some of you; this I give to you before you leave this room. I would like to ask the gentleman what he seeks from this meeting?

James: One question I have—how can I differentiate between imagination and pure meditation?

Yes, always my dear friend this is the difficulty encountered by all who inhabit the human form. What I would say to you is this: the still, quiet voice that comes from within you will repeat itself in such a way as not to be ignored. Imagination, as you term it, is just another form of the thought energy, but what I think you mean is 'how do you know that when in deep meditation, as you call it, can you be assured that you are linked to your own soul.' Is this what you mean? (Yes) Yes. This knowledge comes with practice and with time. There will come the point when you know that it is not your own imagination, as you call it, but in fact you have reached that point of awareness when you seek the comfort and the knowledge of your own being. I would say to you this: practise, give love, ask for help and it will be given to you that your understanding becomes greater and in this way you will achieve that satisfaction of knowing that when you go within, you are indeed in touch with your own soul. It is as simple as that my dear friend. Does that satisfy you? (Yes, thank you.) You doubt what you feel? Yes I know, but you must push doubts to one side, because when you allow the energy of doubt and fear to raise its head, then you are blocking that union which you seek. Do you understand? (Yes) I cannot offer you more than to say it is only time which will help you, time and practice, and meditation will come easily to you. You have eyes to see, you have spiritual eyes to see. Have you not seen, my dear friend, and doubted what you have seen?

James: I don't quite understand.

You have seen with physical eyes things that you have doubted. (Yes) Yes. Yes. You must free yourself from all doubt and then more can be achieved if you so desire. As my dear friends within this room know too well, all can be achieved. Each one of you is a source of energy and power. You are indeed energy to the highest degree, but it is the human form and the human thinking that brings fears and doubts into your minds. As much as we talk about fear and doubt, humankind seems destined to always find fear in many aspects of his living, but my dear friends I say to you, what is there to fear when you have the knowledge which you have been given? You are power points of energy who can achieve whatever you so desire. You are from the Source of all things, therefore all things are available to you, but each one of you has the responsibility to work for those things. If you allow fear and doubt to creep into your thinking energy, then that is what you will attract, because as you know, like always attracts like. Therefore if you have deep fears and doubts, then that is what you will attract to you. Again I will say for the benefit of our young gentleman that thought is the most powerful thing that you possess. Thought is creative energy, which in your hand my dear friend, is governed by your own freewill. But as my dear friends within this room know, I have told them on many occasions that if thought is creative energy, then the use of that thought has to be for good, and in that way, only good will come to you. Do you understand what I say my dear friend? I know this is new to you; I am trying to keep my words simple for you in order that you can understand.

Lilian: Do you understand James? (Yes) He has read some of your words through the transcripts.

Yes, but although the eye can read, it is not as powerful as the spoken word and that is why he has come to us.

Lilian: This always amazes me.

Yes. Have you any other questions my dear friend?

James: I have a question about knowledge: (Yes) The acquisition of knowledge, the use of knowledge. It is quite complicated—I am not too sure of my own question—but how much time should we dedicate our lives to various types of knowledge. Which are the most important ones to concentrate on whilst we are here? Is it relationship knowledge, social knowledge, intellectual knowledge?

All that you are trying to achieve in this lifetime is what you have brought with you this time. It is part of the sum total of your all being, shall we say. When you come to this lifetime you choose your parents, you choose the conditions of your life and also you are given freewill; this you know. In having freewill you have the choice in life to work the tapestry of that life. Therefore my answer to your question is that whatever you choose as the most important areas of your life, so be it. That is the important part of living at that particular time. That is why you were given freewill, in order that you choose the way of living, in order that you choose and prioritise what is important to you for your own soul's growth, because each individual has that inner knowledge: that which is best for him, that which is helping him in this lifetime. None of you can know exactly what this lifetime would mean to the soul, but I can say to you, the soul does know what is best for you in any lifetime. So it is not up to anyone to tell you which is the most important area of any lifetime. You should instinctively know and if you are puzzled, if you are unsure, then that is a question for you to ask in your own meditation, because the answers lie within. It would be too simple for me, and of course I know how your life pattern is going, but it would be unwise for me to guide you in such a manner that you would not learn the lessons of this lifetime. Do you understand? (Yes) You are here for a purpose, you are here to live your life to the best of the abilities you have, you are here to be in touch with your own soul; and that is the purpose of meditation that that inner quiet voice can guide you in whatever way you are travelling. Is that helpful to you?

James: Yes, thank you.

I think my dear friends that this time I will not add any new subjects; I think our friend has quite sufficient to think about this time. So, I will say to you, I will leave you quietly and allow others to speak. Before you leave the room, each one of you should feel a little more uplifted. (Thanks + farewells)

A lovely bubbly one came through Eileen with message for Paul from his grandmother (Connie) who was keeping a close tender eye and felt he was the 'bees knees'. (A favourite expression of hers!) The message was about new directions: 'It's the right path, the one he's been thinking of recently. Don't be taken in by anyone else, listen to your own self, follow your heart, and you won't go wrong.' (Paul had been thinking about travelling again earlier that day—he was touched/joyful to have this connection with dear 'granny' again)

One followed through Sue, who came to share a little of their story of how they bettered themselves once in Spirit realm, taking the opportunities, after spending a lifetime working in the drains/sewers of London.

Finally, Les our dear old circle leader attempted to come through Eileen, but wasn't able to speak on this occasion.

~22nd July 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

There is with you a great heaviness this time.

Lilian: Yes, do you mean physical heaviness?

A heaviness with Spirit, but I will work through it my dear friends. (Thanks) It would be difficult for you to understand the conditions of which I speak, but it would be in comparison to finding your way through earthly fog. This time my dear friends, I would like to speak with you about spiritual and personal law. We have made past references to each of these things, but what I wish to discuss with you this time is the connection between both. Would anyone like to differentiate between the two?

Paul: Is spiritual law to do with like the one I think of sometimes is: we are allowed to influence, but not interfere with another person; to do with the freewill?

Yes, and by what comparison would you make with the personal law?

Lilian: I don't think we have an answer.

Paul: I can't think.

You know, my dear friends, that all that you do in this physical life is influenced by your own spiritual values, that which you bring with you to this lifetime and of course as the young gentleman has said, your freewill plays a most important part in how you react to that influence. But I wish to, this time, simplify what we call spiritual laws. I will use only three words my dear friends. Spiritual law always has been, will never change and the words that you would recognize as spiritual laws are these: first and foremost we have Love, that all powerful, shall we call it a condition—we have love. Next we have Humility, and last but certainly not least we have Truth. No matter how you interpret these words, it always returns to the same thing. Some might call it goodness, but that encompasses all three words, does it not? (Affirmed) But Love, Humility, Truth also play an important part in your own personal laws. Personal laws are more difficult to explain to you only in so much as each of you are individuals, therefore your personal laws have to be individualized to each one of you. Here we come to the freewill that plays a great part in the lives of you human beings, but because of the great difference in individuals, what one person may call 'good', another might disagree; that is where the freewill has rein over the human being. But when Love, Humility and Truth are introduced into your physical lives, then you see that the spiritual laws are integrated into your living. (Agreed) No matter how individualized and different human beings are, when Love, Humility and Truth are part of your living, there is nothing that is different. Can you see what I am trying to tell you?

Sara: Yes, what you are saying is that if we live with love, humility and truth, there is no reason why we can't connect with another who is perhaps thinking in a different way. We can connect with these spiritual qualities to anybody.

Yes, there should be no division of thinking. If Love, Humility and Truth are strong within the human being, then those spiritual laws are taking place. There is no separation. This is why I wish to speak this time about spiritual law and personal law, because when the awareness has grown within mankind, there can be no separation of laws.

George: So, within a perfect world, there is just one set of rules?

No, not even in a perfect world—even within this imperfect world, spiritual laws are happening within each individual person. But what I am saying to you is that you cannot live your lifetime without the influence in some way, in some small part without the spiritual laws seeping into your lives. It is only the recognition of such that is missing.

George: Yes, are you also saying that so long as there is the freewill factor, there must be some modification of the spiritual laws?

There need be no modification as long as the spiritual laws exist, mankind has the ability to call upon these attributes, shall we call them, to make their lives much stronger, much better for all concerned.

Let me give you some example in your present day living. On your planet at this time there are many disturbances where the spiritual laws are not in operation. We have areas in your world where many people are without grain or crumb to eat, water to drink. Why is this? You might say there is Karmic law at work, but my dear friends I would say this to you: That if the spiritual law were to take place within these areas, then all these troubles would disappear. Let me remind you of those laws: Love, Humility, Truth. If Love, Humility and Truth were given to those in need then all problems could be solved. Can you see the connection? (Affirmed) You cannot separate spiritual and personal laws. It is important that you understand this my dear friends, because there are too many in your world who would try to separate them. I want you to know and understand that without the operation of spiritual law, all of this planet would be in chaos and we know that is not so. Would you agree with me? (Affirmed)

George: And I think some of us have been very concerned about what one might call political freewill in concentrating on arms and munitions instead of concentrating on how under-privileged people should be looked after.

Yes. It is abuse of the spiritual law, I agree with you, but we are working, as I have told you many times before, that we are influencing where we can those leaders in your world in order that love, humility and truth can become beacons rather than something you have to try to gain. These spiritual laws are natural to you, after all you are Spirit and that is what we are trying to influence. There is no one human being upon this planet who at some moment in their living has not experienced Love, has not experience Humility in some way and has not faced up to spiritual Truth. No one can deny these laws, but having freewill is a component of the human being which has really much to answer for. But my message to you this time my dear friends is that you try to see the connection between your own personal laws and each individual dictates their own law, their own form of Love, their own type of Humility and form their own truth. But I wish you to know, and I say this to you my dear friends sincerely, that each individual within this room shows to me and those in my world how much you work with spiritual law. For this we are ever grateful to you and I would say that your own personal laws have taken—to use the words you would understand—have taken a back seat. Do you understand? (Affirmed + thanks) I feel this time that you have much that you can think about; spiritual law will never change. When you come home to our world, these laws may alter to some degree, because the vibration of your living changes, but the essence of these laws is always there. I would like you to think carefully about my words this time. If you have any questions for me next time on what I have said, I will be only too pleased to answer them for you, but I would like to leave you this time in giving thanks to that great Love. I would like you to feel that word 'Love'. We give thanks for all that we have been given. I, too, my dear friends come to you with great Humility and I say to you that I try only to bring you spiritual Truth. I will take my leave this time and once more I say to you, when you are most in need, do not be afraid to call upon me and those who stand so close to you. Always I leave you with great love.

Sarah: You're a great strength to us Salumet. (Thanks + farewells)

~12th August 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

Lilian: We have two visitors this evening from another part of our planet, Australia. It's quite an unexpected visit. (Steve and Meredith—two friends of Sara's)

It is good to see that new energies are so harmonious with your own.

Lilian: Yes, I felt that too.

Therefore we give them a warm welcome to this room and it is good my dear friends that we have all gathered here this time. I would say this to you my dear friends, that for a little while we should discuss what our discussion was last time we met, because in that way our visitors will be able to participate. Do you agree? (Agreed) Let us just refresh your memories about what we discussed. We were discussing spiritual laws, you remember I believe, and I asked that you think carefully about my words. Do any of you wish to ask any questions before we continue?

George: We talked of spiritual law and how our freewill modifies, and I would think that the modification is to a greater or lesser extent and it occurred to me that what one might call political freewill, or what one might see as a collective freewill, is seen as particularly dangerous on the planet at the moment. The difficulty is that the political attitude does not always reflect the attitude or the will of all the people. There are many who object when nations become obstreperous. Would you wish to say anything further about the collective freewill attitude displayed at a national level?

Yes, I understand what you are saying, but remember this, that the freewill given to each one of you in the physical condition, is part of the spiritual law and that part of the spiritual law which is known to you as freewill has to be allowed to take place, whether for the betterment or the less well-intended good of all people; it is still part of the spiritual law which cannot be changed. That is the first point I wish to make to you. Mankind was endowed with freewill for a very good reason: that it enabled him to seek out his own spiritual unfoldment; that mankind be allowed to make decisions whether for good or what you call 'bad', but nevertheless it remains part of the spiritual law. When you endeavour to speak of freewill being used by many, then of course you have, as you well know, the power of the thought, which we have spoken of on many occasions. No matter what you feel my dear friends about good and evil, there has to be both, whether you agree or understand or whatever you feel about it, because without one there cannot be the other in the physical domain. Therefore I would suggest to you that you try to clarify your own thinking in seeing collective thinking as part of the spiritual law of this planet. Of course there will always be occasions when you humankind consider many deeds to be wrong, but again I wish to remind you that you are not aware of the larger picture.

George: Yes, and the individual freewill would relate in various ways to the collective freewill?

Of course, you cannot separate them. How do you become a collective freewill if you do not have the individual freewill? You see one cannot exist without the other.

George: Yes, and if there are two groups, can I put it like that, of collective freewill, then if they interact, that is part of the grand process of working out.

Yes, you must always look to the fuller scheme of things. This is always the problem with humankind that you are limited by your understanding, but as always my dear friend, try to view these things with your own spiritual eye and understanding will be greater. (Thanks)

What I would like to say to you this time, my dear friends, let us take 'Love' which is, as you fully understand, a spiritual law. It cannot change, it is spiritual law, but the way in which mankind uses love is very different in all areas of your planet. What I would like to say to each one of you, how do you interpret the spiritual law of love into your own physical lives? Can you see the connection between spiritual love and love as you understand it on this planet?

Lilian: Would it help us if we forgot the emotional love which we think of, like falling in love with someone, and thought is it the caring for people our fellow people?

Yes, would anyone like to try to define what spiritual love would be? Perhaps each one would like to speak and we can include our friends from afar.

Margaret: Kindness and understanding.

Kindness and understanding, yes—I will hear all of your answers before I reply.

George: I would say spiritual love is an affinity, a bonding and at the same time it is selfless. (Yes) It seems to involve a denial of self, a denial of ego perhaps.

Sara: I think trying to walk in somebody else's shoes. For me it's trying to see how they view life the way they do, try to understand why they view life the way they do, if it is different from us, because it's easy to love somebody, to show them love when they have an affinity with us, but when they don't we have to try a little bit harder to understand and look a little deeper.

Lilian: Think of them as a Spirit maybe.

Sara: Yes, and appreciate that they have walked a different pathway from ourselves to think a different way. (Yes)

Steve: A great many things have already been said. Love has to be accepting of a person, where you might not understand, it is part of this other person that you love and therefore you go, that's acceptable and that can be taken too, because we are each different. And love also has to include mankind to the selflessness that was mentioned earlier. You care for the welfare and well-being of the people which you love and you hope they can continue to go forward to whatever it is that they regard as being needed, because again there are some parts of the people that I love that I do not fully understand, but they are part of them so I accept it. (Yes)

Jan: Well, a lot of it's already been said, but I think acceptance, tolerance and feeling, like George said, an affinity with everything and everybody. I certainly felt since I've been listening to Salumet that I am just a wee little drop—and an affinity with everything. I think that feeling of love empowers you to be truthful. (Yes)

Lilian: And to try harder.

Jan: And non-judgemental. Love is non-judgemental, it is unconditional.

Sarah: For me is it an all-encompassing warmth, it's such a good thing, it's always warm. It's a high energy, infinite, all-encompassing warmth.

Paul: I think with spiritual love, it has already been said about it extending to everything, to people, plants, everything—a stepping back and seeing it all—all the beauty in it all. Going beyond the—you might see it all as struggle and chaos at first, but when you step back you'll see it all as some process, or sort of a beautiful struggle.

Yes, let me say this to you that listening to your words this time, I can say that you have grown much, you have over time begun to understand a little of Love. I would say that so much said here this time is correct, but now let me say what spiritual love is. You have spoken of understanding, of unconditional love, of so many other things. Spiritual love knows no ego, spiritual love, as the lady says, is a warmth, is an infinite feeling which encompasses you all. Some of you have spoken of love in a very personal manner. Spiritual love is an energy which has always been and always will be and when each one of you comes to physical life you bring with you an iota of that love energy. Love, after all, is a physical word, but it is used for your own understanding. Spiritual love is being, is expansion, is growing, is energy. I would like you to try once more my dear friends to look with spiritual eyes and to consider what this word 'Love' really means. Most of the time you consider love to be the interaction between people, between animals and humans, between wildlife and humans. Spiritual love encompasses all things; spiritual love encompasses not only this planet but all of existence. So, again my dear friends I would like you to try to understand my words a little more, to look inwards, to forget the ego, to forget the connection with anything other than your own being. Only then will you begin to understand a little of spiritual love. Does this make sense to you? Have you questions?

Steve: I have one question. Is it possible to love without having something to love?

That is my point. You have to understand that love must be without connection between people or things or even planets. Love is bigger than all of that. Love is an energy that absorbs the being. You will not fully understand what love is until such time as you have reached the point of existence where the ego has disappeared and only pure energy exists, but that does not prevent us my dear friend from trying to explain it to you in order that in your understanding you can make your physical lives a little more comfortable. So the answer is: yes you do not need that. Is that helpful to you?

Steve: Thank you, yes.

You can think about love, but let us go forward to another law—spiritual law, which is humility. Does anyone have any viewpoints on this? (Pause) No?

Jan: I think if a lot of us did, we would be bringing far too much of the personal feelings and the physical being.

That is what I was hoping to hear. Yes, it applies in the same way as the spiritual law of love does. All spiritual laws have to leave behind the personal, physical thinking. You have to go within, you have to allow your own energy to become free; only then will your awareness grow to such an extent that all of these questions that I ask of you can begin to make sense. How often have I said that you must go within to find all of the answers that all human beings tend to ask, not only of themselves, but of us here in the world of Spirit. I have told you that all things are possible, all knowledge is at hand if you so desire, and again this is where your freewill comes into play, that it is entirely up to each individual to seek out their own spiritual awareness and in so doing in becoming aware of your own inner being, then that light shines forth to many others. And again that returns us to the collective thoughts of many, for the power of thought can change much within your world. But all of these things that we speak of, needs to be considered in your deep, quiet moments of connection and communication. I hope my dear friends that I have given you a little more to think about, that your understanding is great enough to know that not all things, not all questions or doubts are so easily answered. I know you understand this and it is up to you as individual to grow at your own individual rate. And I am happy to tell you that if only you could see your own lights, which I have to say, shines brightly, because sometimes in returning to this world it is like coming through a mist, and you are each one of you known by your light and that light my dear friends is Love. I will allow you time to consider what has been said. Perhaps it would be apt this time to give of some time to going within and see if you come to any other conclusion other than those that you have given this time. You may be surprised at what is given to you. I will leave you now my dear friends; I leave you knowing that I encompass each one of you within my love.

Jan: Salumet, I can't help this, but I have been shown to give each and every one of us a feather, including yourself, which is white. I don't know why I am thinking that but I have to shout it out.

That's fine, fine. You must give what is given to you. (Thank you.)

May love always stay with you, each one of you, may each one be uplifted, may each one of you be given the knowledge that is needed for you at each time and stage in your lives, which will help you in your awareness and your spiritual growth.

And with those words my dear friends I will leave you.

Lilian: Just before you go, we have two visitors which would like to come. One is my grand-daughter, Cheryl and Sara?

Sara: And somebody called Susan O'Hanlum.

I would say this to you; that I am happy for them to join with us, but not at the same time. But yes, we will be pleased to welcome them. (Thanks + farewells)

There followed one through Sue who had been before—a former Native American Indian, known to us as Moon Feather. Encouraging us in our spiritual work and suggesting we call on him if needed: Moon Feather will always hear you. Strength is what Moon Feather can give; strength in times of trouble. (Thanks + farewells)

~19TH August 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

The silence this time has been intentional. We have been observing you individually this time and allowing the stillness and quietness to have an impact upon you all. We, my dear friends, have spoken much, many words to help you, to encourage you to become aware for your own selves. Many words have been spoken to try to bring to you truth and enlightenment and to help each of you on your pathways of truth. What I wish to say to you this time is about what you, as Spirit within the human form, should be thinking, or trying to endeavour to be what you are. Too often my dear friends we hear you say that to follow the spiritual pathway, you must be pure and good. What I wish to say to you, it is much better for you to be genuine and honest to yourselves. It is too simple to have that smile upon your face, when within your thought there is much negativity. Therefore I say to you: honesty with yourself is much better, because only when you fully understand yourself and your thoughts, can you then help others. We have spoken much about the power of thought and prayer, but tonight I wish to say to you that to help your fellow man, understand yourselves first. And although the power of your prayer is good, whilst you tread this earthly path, I would suggest that action to help another is a better pathway for you. I repeat, do not judge another human being. I have to tell you my dear friends that if you have shortcomings, then this is an area where most of you fall down, but again it is because you are living within the human form. You find it difficult to leave behind the emotions of humankind, but to go forward my dear friends you must do this. You must leave behind emotions, you must leave behind criticism of your fellow man, you must become that honest being who knows himself well, and only then can we go forward. Have you any questions at this point about what we are saying to you?

George: I think it is all very clear.

Lilian: And we do fall very short.

I do not say these things to criticize you, that is not my purpose, but my dear friends you have reached a point in your awareness and in your seeking, when the next step forward for you lies not with my words to you, although they will continue, but it is our endeavour that each one of you also grows and goes forward in order that more can be given to you. Do you understand what I say? (Affirmed) I will not say more this time other to ask of you once more to think about the two words I have given to you: honesty and to be genuine to yourself. Consider these words and next time we will go forward with them.

Sarah: I think sometimes when we are not honest with ourselves we do know it, we feel guilty.

You may feel guilty in the physical sense of the word, but what you are doing is denying the Spirit. You are almost hiding your heads in the sand, to use one of your earthly expressions. What you do, you are denying yourself. Therefore, think carefully about what you feel and understand about the meaning of these two words. You may be surprised my dear friends with the answers each one of you comes up with. It may surprise you, it may shock you, but what you should find is that you are looking at yourselves truthfully, perhaps for the first time. This is a great step forward for you my dear friends.

George: Yes, I think this is an interesting balance, the balance between selflessness and self. One ideal is to become selfless in the interest of helping others to excess, but we need to keep self-identity in order to make our way forward in the world, so this can be seen as a rather interesting and delicate balance between self and selflessness.

Yes. It is a power-struggle within oneself, if you like. Yes, we will discuss this a little more next time, but yes, my dear friend, you have grasped a little of what I am trying to say. Think deeply and you may be surprised with what you find, because I can tell you that each one of you has a self image which is perhaps not always the true self, and this applies to all of you. Therefore, I would say only, look deep within and find that genuine, honest self, and we will see how much you have grown next time.

I will leave you now, leave you in the knowledge that our help is always available to you, not always in the way that you might perceive it to be, but always we work for your best interests my dear friends in order that you can go forward, in order that these truths be told, in order that these words can be given to others, and that each comes together in the knowledge that truth must prevail; and it does. May that light which is within you all grow ever brighter, and until we come together once more, I will leave you as ever encompassed with my love. (Thanks + farewells)

~2nd September 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

Before we begin this time let me give welcome to the young lady. (Cheryl) Before we continue may I say would the young lady uncross her legs please in order for the energy to flow, because as I speak to you, she is given some help.

Lilian: She probably finds it a little bit strange—(Yes) I know we have talked to her about it—probably a little nervous.

She will be fine, otherwise we would not have let her come to us. Last time when you gathered together I did not come but that was for a very good reason. As I told you on my previous visit, each one of you has been observed closely because the time has come my dear friends for each one of you to move a little further along your individual pathways. I left you last time my dear friends with a question: that each one of you return to your homes and to consider my words. You remember? I think it would be appropriate this time if we discussed this matter. The young lady will not find it too difficult to listen to. I am sure her earth mother will help her if she has any questions after this meeting. Do you remember what I asked you my dear friends?

Lilian: Yes, I think we all remember.

Shall we begin and I will answer any questions that you may have for me. Who would like to begin?

Lilian: Shall we begin with you, George?

George: I have a feeling there was more than one question asked of us. We were asked to seek within and see if we could find out about our inner self. I've tried this; I feel that deep down there is a kind of yielding, soul, who likes to go along with the flow of things, but I think I need to go deeper and work some more with this to get a better feel of the soul within.

Yes, shall we have comments from all before I say anything to you?

Jan: I read/went over the transcripts on my own again, which was very pleasant, and while I was reading it I became aware of the feeling of being centred, of being more part of myself—of a self and I believe that was the inner truth that you were talking about. I felt part of—how can I put this, it's so difficult—a nucleus, I'm at the centre of a nucleus, that's how I felt. It's so difficult to describe, but I believe I've started to turn inwards and I've started to listen to that inner truth a little bit more, but I know where my weaknesses and failings are and that's what I've been battling with.

Margaret: I felt the same. I've had a lot of thought that I should be doing more, sort of thinking about myself, but how do you go about it? That's what I'd like...

Lilian: I think we have all had slight difficulties ...

Margaret: In sorting our minds out.

Sarah: I confess to not giving as much time to it as I should have done, but I have felt is that Spirit itself is pure and genuine and if I follow what my Spirit is telling me, the genuineness and the honesty does come out; it's when my head tells me to do something else that I go wrong. And I am beginning to feel very much more relaxed about everything and I do feel that I am being led in a right direction. Things are beginning to change for me and I definitely feel that is coming from within. And I think if I can relax—that is the word, and not get up tight about everything, things seem to just flow and I think they flow in the direction that I should be going. That's what I am beginning to feel; let things happen, don't try and make things happen and that's where I feel the Spirit is leading me on.

Yes, thank you.

Lilian: I found it quite a difficult one although reading your words again I thought it should be simple, but it wasn't as simple as I thought. I thought there has to be a dark side to us and a light side. So perhaps you could help us along a bit?

Yes. Thank you for your comments. Of course each one of you has the realization that to answer my questions you need to go inwards. After all we are dealing with human words. What is genuine? Another word for genuine is real, and what is real? Not that human part of you, but the Spirit within which is reflected into human existence. And yes, your understanding of finding what is genuine comes from deep within. If you are to have reality, then you must allow the Spirit to speak, you must allow it to feel, you must allow Spirit to express itself through human form. Would you agree my dear friends?

(Affirmed) Then and only then will your form of existence upon this Earth begin to take shape in the way that it is meant to be. Truth again is a word must maligned in your world, after all you too often say, one person's truth is not another's. So what in fact does truth mean? Truth is an individual word, which belongs to each individual soul and only that soul which manifests into Spirit and through into human form can know what truth is. Truth can only materialize when the Spirit is genuine to itself and expresses those attributes whilst in human form. Let me pause there for a moment. Do you understand what I tell you? (Affirmed) Are you sure because you seem to falter in your replies?

Margaret: It is difficult to take it all in.

Yes. Again, I have to pose a question to you. If you realize that you need to dwell further upon these words and that you need to go inward, then you have to see and feel and experience what is genuine and what is truth, because if you do not my dear friends, the lives that you lead are shallow, are not truthful are not true reality in the sense that you have accepted the ego self instead of the true self. I do not wish to make this too complicated for you, but what I would wish for you is that each one of you in your quiet times goes further still inward, until, as one has said, you reach that nucleus of Spirit, when all else becomes as nothing and only that core of existence reaches out to you. That is what you must try to achieve if you are to find the answer to my questions.

George: I think one thing you are saying is the truth is fundamental to the soul and to the soul's progress. I know we sometimes get confused with, to use the word 'ought', what one ought to feel, ought to do. This is a common form of our simple confusion, I think, but I think you're saying the real truth is deep down, much more fundamental and links to our very soul essence.

Yes, it is all-knowing. It does not come with human thought, but it should exude from the heart of the human being. There should be not any pre-conceived thought of what is right or what is truth. As you say, it is within and it should happen quite openly with love, without thinking too much about it. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Truth is individual. As I say, one man's truth is not for another, therefore how can you use one word to describe what is right for humankind? You cannot.

George: So truth is spontaneous to each individual?

Yes, yes. That is not to say that one man's truth is always right if it manifests in human form, because then you see the power of thought has changed and altered what is a natural truth. It is humankind's freewill as always, which alters genuine and truth. Do you understand my dear friends? It is not as simple as it may seem, but it is a step forward in your pathway, which you must endeavour to understand, and if I may put it to you simply: it means going deeper within. All answers lie within, as I have told you on many previous occasions; that is where all of your questions will be answered. Mankind creates his own problems, but what I wish for you my dear friends is that that Spirit within comes forward and manifests itself through human form, in order for that pure light to shine. I am sure there have been many times in your existence when you have met someone without even exchange of any words, where you feel that they truly are a beacon of goodness. They do not need words, they do not need to do any deed, but ultimately you can see with your own human eyes the goodness that emanates from them. Is that not true my dear friends? (Agreed) There in those individuals, you are seeing truth and genuine people. I hope you have a little more to think about, that it has helped to simplify it a little for you. As always when we are dealing with human words we have difficulty, because words do not always express what is in fact, reality—I am sure you would agree. Are there any questions for me this time?

Jan: I have got a question, but I don't necessarily have the right words for it. I feel while I'm sat here, like I have said to you before, about feeling that there is a nucleus and I'm connected to the nucleus, but it's as if I am wearing lots of different overcoats and layers. And it is being able to surface through those layers. There are so many choices upon us in the physical world, but although you can listen to yourself and you may think that that's correct for me, that is how or why or I've said that because, without too much question. There are so many physical attributes bombarded upon us every day that it's almost difficult sometimes to listen to that voice. It is there, that voice is there all the time, I know it's there all the time and it is speaking to you constantly. It's often, 'is that choice I've made the correct one?' Because of these overcoats, and that's the only way I can describe it, they are overcoats and they sometimes become very heavy, don't they in a physical sense.

May I say something to you—I understand what you are saying. (Thank you.) Yes, your description of overcoats is helpful to the others, but what in fact you are encountering are layers of past lives.

Jan: I did wonder if that's what I was feeling.

Yes. Therefore when you feel burdened—we will use the word overcoat because that is how you have described it—what you are feeling is the influence of past times, but because of your everyday living and the pace of your living, and all of you I am sure would say 'we do not have enough hours in our day.' That my dear friends is something that humankind has made as some kind of an excuse for not allowing that quiet time. Yes, you are aware of that inner voice all of the time if you listen, but it is only when you are still and all of the day's upheavals can be stilled, will you truly hear the voice of instruction. It is quite simple and it is each one of you who have the responsibility to give time to the reality which is Spirit. You understand my dear friends?

Lilian: Yes, so past lives influence us all the time?

Of course, you are but one part in this existence. Of course you must be influenced by what has gone before, although I have to say, most people are unaware of this. But when the lady speaks of her overcoats, do not feel them to be a burden, rather look upon them as overcoats there to help you. Do you understand? (Yes) Is that helpful to the lady?

Jan: Yes, but can Salumet explain to me why I suddenly feel like I do sat here now—it's not a personal thing, it's a spiritual thing—where am I now? Where have you taken me to now, because I've had this feeling lots of times before?

Why are you surprised?

Jan: (whispered) I suppose I didn't expect it this evening.

But why are you surprised? My dear child, each one of you moves on a pathway individual to you. You have taken a pathway which has not always been easy, but I will say this to you, there is a time now in your life when I would say to you, you have reached a crossroads. It is up to you my dear friend to decide whether you go forward, whether you remain where you are, or whether you deviate from the pathway. I my dear friend cannot help you in this decision, because each one of you has been endowed with freewill as you well know. But my dear friend I tell you this, if you are prepared to move onward, those who stand close to you, and they are close to you this time, are only too willing to help you and uplift you and to take you further on your pathway. Accept what you feel, allow it to happen and be thankful for all that you are given. Do you understand my words?

Jan: Yes I do.

Lilian: I remember you once saying that eventually we won't need freewill, and I am sat here thinking 'thank goodness' and the pathway is straight ...

Freewill always exists while you are in human form. It is part of the existence of humankind.

Lilian: Yes, I meant when we are in Spirit and have grown.

Yes but for some time you are allowed to think and feel as you desire, so freewill may be slightly altered, but it exists for some time, but in different form.

Sarah: Salumet, you said we were all of us ready to move on one more step, and Jan has reached a crossroads and I feel I have reached a crossroads too. Have we all reached a crossroads as we are all ready to go on to this next step?

There are always steps, but when I use the word 'crossroads' I am speaking in your language. At this present time my dear friend, the lady who we call Jan, is at a crossroads of moving forward. You my dear friend are at another step, not at a crossroads; you have moved forward through your crossroads. (Thank you.) Each one of you are individual in your pathways, but all of you must seek to follow a straight pathway ahead.

Lilian: That's a difficult one.

Not so my dear friends, it is not as difficult as you may think.

Lilian: Not if we listen to the inner voice.

Not if you listen to that guidance. Be true to yourself, be genuine. There is no need for purity and goodness, or at least that false face of purity and goodness. You must be true to yourselves, then you will go forward. If only you could see how complicated each one of you makes your lives, you would be amazed. We come close, we try to help and uplift you, we influence your thoughts as much as we can without any form of interference, but ultimately each step of your pathway is taken by you. Sometimes that road seems hard, sometimes you fall, but always you are uplifted and helped, because my dear friends, once the contact is made, we will never let you go, provided you are willing and wish and desire to go forward. There is always someone by your side as well as that inner being to help you. Remember this, and life will not always be easy for you, but at least you will have the capability of knowing that whatever life brings to you, you can still go forward. I do not promise you a smooth pathway, I do not promise you all good things of life, because, as you know full well, all of living is composed of opposites, and to appreciate one, you have to appreciate the other; but this you know. I hope I have given you something to think about this time.

Lilian: As always!

Have you more questions?

George: I am just trying to put individual truth into some kind of perspective, but would it follow from our soul connections that there would be a fair degree of similarity between individual truths and one would not expect individual truths to vary greatly from one person to another?

No, of course not. When I say truth is individual, perhaps it would be best for me to say, individual in as much as your development, spiritual development has taken place. Yes of course there is an element or similarity which belongs to all of you—of course there has to be, because although individually you are Spirit, you are still sparks of the same existence. Do you understand?

George: Yes, and as individual pathways progress, I guess that there would eventually become more of a uniformity between individual truths.

Yes and as groups as this who meet on a regular basis, of course your truths are very similar. Although you are individual in your pathways, what you seek is the same thing, therefore you would each one of you have similar truths. Do you understand? (Affirmed) Yes, I may have confused you when I said each individual has their own truth; that is so, but I think it may have mislead you a little. Let me say, for example, that your truth may not be the same truth as someone who has committed some atrocity in their earthly life ... (Tape ran out—some words missed whilst cassette turned over) ... different level of existence and of knowledge.

George: So individual truth does relate to progression?

Of course.

Lilian: Sorry for the interruption.

Yes. I would just like to say my dear friends that I hope this time I have given you some new food for thought.

George: You have indeed.

That is my intention for a while at least, because it is important that each of you progress, not only to receive my words, but to help you to come to the understanding of those words. I could speak many, many thousands of words and still your understanding would be poor, therefore I feel it is important that we have these times of individual progression in the use of my words. Do you agree? (Affirmed) Would our young guest wish to ask anything of me?

Cheryl: It's not relevant to what you are talking about, but I am going through quite a hard time at the moment (Yes) and I just want to know if spiritually there is some help out there, if I am receiving some help, because I'm feeling very alone at the moment.

Yes. As I have said, life is not always easy, or so humankind would assume, but let me say this to you my dear friend, that those times of trouble and strife and difficulties in your life, are times of learning for Spirit, and it is only when you come to accept that you are more than a physical body, will life begin to make more sense to you. But you are young, you see the world in a much different light, from those of us who have travelled far, but I would say to you, you do receive help, but again the practice of quiet times of meditation is what you need to help you. That, as I have said, is your responsibility, because the overcoats that you wear is a fleeting thing. To look after the Spirit within is what should be ultimate in your thinking at this time. The one that is your earthly mother, should be able to help and explain to you a little more of what I say. I will say to you that your pathway will change, but not just yet. There is much that you can achieve and will achieve if you so desire. Is that helpful to you?

Cheryl: Yes, thank you.

Lilian: Yes, thank you very much.

As always my dear friends I have been overjoyed to be with you. I hope my words have helped you in some way to gain more knowledge to know yourselves. I leave you in the knowledge of being ever close to you. (Thanks + farewells)

There then followed one through Sarah with a message for Eileen and also Jan, with a message for Cheryl.

~9TH September 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

This time my dear friends there is amongst you a quietness and stillness which is good to see. This time we would like to take you a little further along the subject of which we have spoken last time. I know each one of you had some difficulty in seeing the true self and this time my dear friends I would like to help you to go a little deeper. I would like you to think about yourselves as all of existence. I would like you to think of yourselves with a nucleus, which is within the heart centre. Do you think that you can achieve this? (Affirmed) I ask you then my dear friends not to think about the mind which belongs to the thinking, but to go within and find the mind which is within the heart. When I speak of the heart, I am not speaking of the physical organ, or even the etheric counterpart, but to go even more deeply to that spiritual aspect of the heart. Do you understand my dear friends what I am asking you to do?

Margaret: Not really.

You have a heart my dear friend, you know this. There also is an etheric counterpart of the physical heart—you must understand this, because that is what exists when you come to our world—but even more so there is the spiritual aspect of the heart-mind and that is what you must try to seek, if you are to become aware of truth, of knowledge ...

George: And a kind of dialogue can develop in this I believe.

Yes, that is what you must attempt to do.

George: Yes, I think I have just the beginnings of this.

I can confirm that for you. (Thank you.) This my dear friends is not an easy thing to achieve, but if you wish to continue on the spiritual pathway, this is what you must try to achieve. Each time in your quiet moments, put aside the brain-mind thoughts and go the heart-mind. Do you understand? (Affirmed) You will need time to go within; whilst you are doing this, I will be working with this instrument. I will this time be trying to superimpose upon the physical features that of another. It might be that it is seen by some of you when you come from your deep meditation, but that will be what I am trying to achieve. When you feel ready to speak, I will leave it to our dear lady friend to speak quietly with you all, until such time as I begin to speak to you and we can discuss what you have achieved. Are you happy my dear friends to do this? (Affirmed) I will leave it with you my dear lady and I will return towards the end of our meeting and speak with you. (Pause, while we began our task)

Margaret: I can see a pink cloud going across the sky, very pretty, and I feel happy.

George: Yes, earlier today I had a sort of beginnings of dialogue which began with a sort of apology for not talking in this way earlier, and it seemed to be pointed out that I had a communication with the centre earlier but in a slightly different way and I said that it would be good to do this again, and I was left with a wonderful, joyful feeling and it seemed to come from within. This time I was tempted to ask questions about stone circles and I seemed to get a response which I—it wasn't my thinking—it was about a 'then and now' aspect of stone circles. They were rather different then at the time of construction, than they are now in their relation to the Earth's energy. They related to the Earth's energy in a particular way then, but not quite the same now. It went a bit further than that, but that's how it worked out.

Jan: I had the same feeling as I did last week. This pulsating feeling I had last week and a feeling of being attached to an umbilical cord.

Sara: A feeling of lightness and peace and I felt the heart energies twisted around and I think that it blends with the mind energy; it seems as though...?

Sarah: I had this—I don't know what it was, was outside then inside, outside, inside and then it and I was all becoming one. I felt there was somebody with me as well, an angel type of person.

Lilian: (Addressing Salumet) Would you like to hear what people have experienced?

I wish to say only this to you: Each one of you should have been aware of an inner truth not previously given to you. The heart-mind gives to you only those truths that have always existed. The heart-mind focuses on that energy within, which can give to you all that you desire. I hope each one of you has achieved a sense of what the heart-energy is about and that it gives to you the ability to become as one with all things. If you have any questions, I will answer them for you before I leave you this time.

Jan: The pulsating feeling that I experienced last week and again today, I believe is the heart-energy. I also experienced today being attached by an umbilical cord to what I can only describe as the core of something. I don't know how to describe that core.

It is the core of your soul.

Jan: And I saw it as an enormous rock formation.

You are my dear child (The tape ran out and had to be turned over)

Jan: I think I am beginning to see.

It is a humbling experience for you my dear child.

Jan: Very, and for that I am very grateful.

No, you should be extremely happy.

Jan: There was that feeling with it.

But also there comes with it ...

Jan: Difficulties.

Difficulties, yes.

Jan: I experienced that as well.

But that is part of your journey.

Jan: I did begin to go on a journey.

Yes, and you can continue your journey at any time.

Jan: When you speak to me Salumet, I become very, very hot, as last week, and my head grows and this pulsating feeling becomes me. That's all I am now, is a pulsation, that's it. (Yes) And a voice, and that's it.

Yes, but you must try to direct the heat, the energy from the head.

Jan: Where should I direct it?

To the heart-mind

Jan: So back inside? (Yes) Yes, I can see that, yes it's now turning inwards. Thank you, I can do that.

You can achieve it.

Jan: I also met myself.

You have always known your true self, but what you have done is confronted that truth that has always existed.

Jan: Thank you very much and my loves goes with you.

George: Would I be right in thinking that this soul connection can simply be a joy and it could also be a means of accessing knowledge?

You can achieve all that you desire by communicating with that deep within heart-mind energy.

Sara: Does it have a colour when the energies blend?

All energy has colours my dear friend. You will find that any colour given to you is appropriate for your own individual stage of development. Does that help you? (Yes) Yes, of course energy contains all colours, believe we have touched on this before, and that all colours have all aspects of other colours within it. Are there any more questions this time? Were any of you aware of the change within this instrument?

Lilian: I could see the light around the face.

Jan: The features kept disappearing for me, completely.

Yes, that is good, that is when we are working to superimpose upon the features. With those words then my dear friends, I will leave you as ever bathed in the love energy from our world, but in saying that, you are capable of enclosing yourselves in these physical garments with your own energy and love. Perhaps it is something you might wish to try. All of you deserve what you have earned and you can achieve it by going inwards. I hope this time has shown you all that by giving of yourselves, you then become as nothing in this world. I leave you now. (Thanks + farewells)

~16TH September 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I hope my dear friends that you can feel the love surrounding you at this time. There are those who have gathered for you this time who wish to bring to you some peace of mind, because that seems to be what is lacking in you this time.

Lilian: Yes, thank you. I have felt for myself happier sitting here.

Yes, I feel this time we should devote it, because of the return of our young lady friend, to answering some questions that you all may have for me. I will endeavour to keep those answers simple so that the young lady friend may understand a little more. I also give a warm greeting to our gentleman friend who, I have to say, is still struggling at the moment. (Graham) I will speak a little with him. Do we have some questions then this time?

Graham: Something you said some weeks ago Salumet about negative thinking and it's important to control our thinking, and I have been thinking about that and it's amazing how often you do think negatively about things. I keep catching myself doing it and try to correct myself. I was wondering what's the best way to approach this negative thinking?

Yes, before I comment for you, you are perfectly correct, when you say the human thinking has so many doubts, so many fears, so much negativity. What I wish to say to you my dear friend is this: I have told you I cannot live life for you, I cannot take from you problems that you may have, because that is for you to find and to erase from your living, because as you well know, it is for your own spiritual growth. You know and you understand this. (Yes) When we speak of negative thinking, what I wish to say may help you in your endeavours. You have approached many avenues in an attempt to be well. What I will say is this: that illness within the physical being always is cause and effect, that eventually 'thinking wrongly', shall we say, to use simple words, must have an effect upon the physical being. You my friend have brought from another lifetime karmic debts—this I believe you are aware of also—but what you don't understand is that it is the thinking which is, to use one of your words, 'jailed'. (Yes!) You cannot set free the thinking from past time. You have been trying to be positive, but subconsciously your mind is locked in what has happened previously. I will say this to you my dear friend that in this lifetime with the problems you have with your legs, it is a fear of going forward. Because your lifetime last time curtailed your living, that way of thinking has become stuck within your physical thinking this time. You need to unlock your mind to allow the physical being to go forward. Do you not see my dear friend that you are expecting a shortened lifetime this time and that is why you cannot go forward? Does this make sense to you?

Graham: Yes, you've given me something to think about.

I cannot give you more, because I cannot take it from you, therefore what I would like you to do is what I have been trying to teach the rest of this group that you must go within the heart-mind. Read my words and perhaps you will understand it more fully. All I can say about your negative thoughts is that you must constantly take control and transmute those negative thoughts into positive ones; but give love to yourself from the heart-mind. You can achieve it, but I will not say the road is easy, but the opportunities are there.

Graham: Thank you, that's given me a lot to think about, thank you very much.

Have we more questions?

George: Perhaps I could ask a question about our competitive nature. I think competition is something that is part of the evolution and the competitive instinct seems to be still with us. Recently the nations of the world came together to play football and one might say it is much better to compete on the field of sport than the battlefield and indeed perhaps the conversion of our competitive nature in this way to the field of sport, perhaps this presents a way forward away from wars. Do you have words for us about our competitive nature?

Yes. Thank you for your question. Of course you realise that what you speak of is the nature of physical man and not the nature of the Spirit being. Man came upon this Earth, he had this what you call competitiveness, because he needed to survive and of course as mankind has evolved, as you say, his Spirit of competitiveness has grown to such a degree, that mankind now is rather confused by these feelings. What I would say to you is this: Rather than using that energy for sport or war, why does not mankind use this energy for the betterment of other people? That is not to say mankind should not have leisure times. There is nothing wrong with being competitive, I am not saying that, but in using this energy—let us call it energy—mankind could use it much more wisely. After all, what is the thought, but energy and you have the thought before you have the action. You would agree?

George: Yes, so it would be good for us to transmute a part of that energy to better purpose.

Yes, but of course if you asked me, of course it is much better that mankind uses this energy for sport, rather than to do harm amongst their fellow man.

George: Yes, it did occur to me that our sporting activity is becoming more and more and seems to be quite a considerable preoccupation on the planet at the moment.

Yes. What we must be careful and aware of is that this energy, this mass energy, cannot erupt into something that is not good for mankind. You must be aware of this, therefore I say to you that mankind in general would be much better suited to using all energies in helping one another, rather than for the gratification of their own beings. Do you understand?

George: Yes, that is a very nice message, thank you.

I don't wish to seem as if I am against all of mankind having some kind of fun, because that is part of the human nature also. It was given to you that you may have laughter and joy in your lives, but I would say to you that laughter and joy is much greater when it comes from helping others. (Yes) Have we more questions please?

Lilian: Probably Cheryl will find this interesting. When we first met this evening, Cheryl was telling us that some people that she works with that are mentally handicapped—and one in particular when taken shopping would say to people, “I love you, I love you”. You once told us that to come back in those broken bodies, they are often very old souls. Would they be more full of a spiritual love and more easily aware of it than we are?

I understand, yes. Of course many who come to these bodies know full well and they are of course very old souls, because to choose these conditional of life is not easy, and you will find that many old souls choose these conditions for their own growth. They are not always aware of the spiritual love which shines forth from them, but of course you are correct, it does shine from many of them without their knowledge. So often these people have a love that shines for all, although their physical conditions make living in this lifetime quite difficult. There is much for carers and people who know of these people—it gives them the opportunity to learn and understand a little more of another human being. (Thank you.)

Jan: I have a question regarding past lives and in particular fears and phobias from past lives, which with the knowledge that I now have/know and I believe I am right that some of those phobias and fears follow us. My question is, whether when I pass over and my Spirit chooses to come again, whether those fears will carry on?

I understand your question my dear friend. We have discussed this before, but I will say briefly to you, that is why it is most important for you in the lifetime that exists, that you face up to any fears/phobias that have come from past times now, because if you return to our world, you take them with you. What happens then, as I have said previously, you will return again and again with those same conditions. You may have a different life, but those conditions will stay with you. Therefore, if you feel that there is a situation—and let me say that all conditions are brought from past lives—this is sometimes a misconception of human beings. Sometimes problems occur in this lifetime, but as you have asked about past lives, I would say it is imperative for your own growth that these fears be addressed.

Jan: Yes. In particular there have been fears in my lifetime that I didn't understand for so many of my years and it is only in the last year that I've realised that I lived those fears previously and it is my obligation at the stage I am now to work through those for the past lives. In particular I have a feeling that I've been in battle before and in particular I feel connected to a certain ship and I am not sure how I'm going to work through those for future lives.

I will say to you, as I have said to the gentleman, all things are possible if you are willing, if you have those spiritual eyes to see that you work through the heart-mind. That is the way forward for all problems and that is what I have been trying to teach you in these past few weeks. I hope and I know some have and some haven't been attempting to work with this.

Jan: I think that's why I raised these questions, because I know that I have been consciously working through these.

Yes. I would say my dear friend that you continue on this pathway and much will be shown to you. It is that those spiritual eyes have opened to the truth, that you recognize now that these fears that hold you back in this lifetime, you have the opportunity to erase them from your life.

Jan: Thank you. I feel positive that that's what I will do and what I want to do. Yes, thank you.

Have we more questions?

Lilian: Any questions Sarah?

Sarah: Not for me thank you.

I will just say to the lady (Sarah) that she has grown, but at this present time there is a slowing down of what she is achieving.

Sarah: Yes, I haven't been working enough, I know that.

No, I do not wish to speak unkindly, but you must get back to what is important in life, but I will say to you, there is much happiness ahead for you, but you must not neglect your own spiritual growth, you must not sacrifice that for any physical happiness which awaits you.

Sarah: I know that I haven't been doing enough and I feel very guilty about it.

No, no, do not feel guilt, that is an emotion which is useless.

Sarah: But I am aware that I am not doing enough.

Yes. Have the awareness, but leave the emotion behind.

Sarah: Yes, thank you. I'm glad you've said those words.

Would the young lady wish to ask any questions?

Cheryl: Yeah. Like talking about people—not just disabled people—I have an attraction to those kind of people and I want to know why someone like me would have an attraction to someone like that.

May I put a question to you my dear young friend? Why not?

Cheryl: What I am trying to ask you is why I am attracted to them?

Because that is part of the pathway of life which you chose before you came to this lifetime. You know a little of this work, you do not yet fully understand the implications of living, but I would say to you that it is the spiritual self which is attracted to helping those most in need. That is part of your life's journey. I would say it is not the full picture of your life, but there is a part of your living which must be devoted to helping others. It is also partly a karmic debt which you owe. Your understanding will grow and I am sure our dear lady friend will explain a little more to you. (Thank you.)

Jan: Regarding Cheryl, it's strange that she should have joined the group—no it's not strange, that's ridiculous, there's no such thing as strange, it is meant to be—but at the time that you were talking about truth and seeking truth, Cheryl answered that so profoundly for me, because she was doing a work, employed in something that made her very unhappy, but everybody else around her thought it would be a marvellous opportunity, but she realized that was not the pathway she was meant to be on and the pathway she felt she should have been on was the one she left. Now she's on track on again with looking after people and I felt that was an overwhelming sense that that was given to me as an example of truth. Cheryl found the truth in one respect. I may be romanticising, but it just seemed very appropriate at the time.

I think it would be most apt for me to say to you all at this stage, that every human being comes to this lifetime—we will speak of this lifetime, because all of you are here, endowed with that freewill, that self will, to go through this situation in life here as best that you can. All of you take faltering steps at times, you become confused, you do not always listen to that inner voice, so sometimes you deviate from the pathway ahead, but it matters not, it is an experience of living, which after all, if you stop and think carefully, if you then go back onto the true pathway, what have you achieved? You have achieved the power of your own thinking. Do you see? (Affirmed) If you think of it as a positive experience, then there is nothing wrong with going a little wayward from your path. There are very few people in life, who follow a true pathway.

Jan: But if they learn from that, then ...

Yes, that is what is important. So it becomes a positive experience rather than a negative. Only when 'the thinking' thinks of these things as negative are you beginning to have a little problem. But that is why I have taught you that the power of your thinking is so important, that you have the power to do whatever you need to do, and each one of you knows, whether you have the awareness of it or not, what is right and true for you. Is that helpful?

Jan: Yes, it is indeed, thank you.

I will take just one more question and then I will leave you to allow that inner peace to come to you and to allow the rest of the evening to form as it will.

Lilian: Thank you. If I could just ask one about the instrument you are using. She has a fear of thunderstorms. Would that be something to do with a past life? I hope she doesn't mind me asking, I'm sure she doesn't, but she really is quite frightened of thunderstorms.

Yes. Because I have spoken personally to others, I will say this time that this fear originates from this lifetime. My dear friend I wish to thank you for your devoted time once more. These times together have grown much. I have watched you grow, I have watched the dedication you give and I say to you that your lights grow ever brighter.

Lilian: Thank you. Yes, we do feel a bit dim at times, but it's a pleasure to do this work I must say.

I leave you always with my love. (Thanks + farewells)

~23RD September 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I am happy to join with you this time. There would seem to be an air of anticipation about this meeting. I would like to say to you this time my dear friends, words which I have spoken to you before, but we feel it is necessary to reiterate those words and they are these: There are so many negative thoughts coming from your world at this time. I have spoken of this on many occasions, but at the present moment in your time there is a welling of emotions, which need to be controlled. I will say to you again my dear friends, there is absolutely no reason for you to be fearful about this planet. Too many thoughts of destruction, too many thoughts of negativity coming from too many people. I have said before, and I say it to you again most strongly, do not fear for your existence or for this planet. The energy used on these ways of thinking is wasted. Your thoughts, my dear friends, when they are positive and good, help to create a stronger unison in mankind. I cannot repeat too often that those of you who have knowledge, those of you who are trying to use positive thoughts, have a great responsibility to the rest of your fellow men. I do not say this to impose on you any greater responsibility than what you feel at this time, but what I would like you to see from my words, is that you must compound those positive thoughts. Therefore I say to you, dispel any fears that may be at the back of your thinking and bring forward that positive energy, that goodness from within the heart-mind; and by now my dear friends you should hope understand when I say the 'heart mind' what I am speaking of. Have you any questions before I continue? (Pause) No? I will never cease to be amazed my dear friends that outside of this room there are so many questions, (Chuckles) but when we gather together, all would seem to be silent! I will continue then with some other words that I wish to speak to you about this time. It follows from the fear which surrounds your planet again at this present time. All too often the thoughts come to us about the suffering of mankind. Why do certain individuals suffer? Why do nations suffer? The words I wish to express on this are quite simple, and I would like you to listen carefully to what I tell you: Any individual who suffers pain, illness in any form, is contributing to your world. I hesitate here to allow those words to sink into your thinking. How can that be? I will tell you. The resolute and peaceful way in which individuals come to accept pain and emotional stress or any kind of illness, is walking in the footsteps of those greater ones who understood that in dealing with these conditions it is helping to raise the vibrations for all of the world, because in accepting these conditions the Spirit begins to shine forth, and in doing so in even just one individual, the vibrations of your planet is raised. Do you understand what I am trying to tell you?

Lilian: Yes. Does that go for all illnesses and disabilities?

It matters not what the obstruction of life is, it is the way in which each individual deals with it, even to the minutest degree. But in every 'illness', let us use the word roughly for now, man learns that there is more to existence than at first he thought. He becomes resolute in his way of dealing with any illness, he becomes more peaceful in the way that he looks at the world—and I am speaking spiritually again of course, because I hear you say, 'but not everyone accepts their illness or disability or their disharmony in life'—but I say to you that it is a learning process for the Spirit, and when the Spirit is learning thus, then the vibration is raised. It is not always something you are aware of, but I can assure you it happens in most cases. Are there any questions on this? (Pause) Silence again!

Lilian: I was just thinking that there certainly are some individuals—I was watching a young lady on the television; I don't know what had happened to her, but she was learning to walk with artificial limbs and her courage was quite something.

So her light would shine forth as an example to others and she would not be able to do this if she was not resolute in her endeavours. There is a 'strongness' within the individual that comes forth in time of illness and distress, which is not apparent beforehand.

Lilian: If I could be so bold, I think I can see it in you Graham; you remain very cheerful.

Graham: Yes, I do feel cheerful. I have read about the accounts of other people that have endured various illnesses and disabilities, and one thing that I've read a lot of times is they do feel they do become more spiritual in coping with their new circumstances and start to grow to like themselves more through coping. Yes and may I say why? Because you realize that each one of you is responsible in some part for your own illnesses. I know my dear friends that this has always been difficult for you to accept, but whether it is a condition brought from another time, or whether it be a condition that has manifested in one lifetime, it matters not. What matters is that you accept responsibility for those conditions, and in the recognition comes forth that peace of mind that allows you to deal with the situation. That is what it is all about. But I know my dear friends I am repeating words which I have spoken to you previously, but I do not apologize for the repetition of these words, because I feel, and especially so as I have said at the present time, that is necessary to be reminded of these things. I would ask of you this time my dear friends that your thought goes out to the whole of your planet, that your thoughts extend beyond your planet to the cosmos, that your thoughts extend even further to all of Creation, in order that these vibrations reach out for the good of all. This is no small task for you; indeed it is an enormous responsibility, a responsibility that only each individual can seek. Each individual must take responsibility for the thoughts that are given out, but what I would say to you my dear friends, that responsibility is great, and remember that control of your thinking is a great step forward. And although I know each one of you in your own individual ways has tried, has given help to many, what I must say to you is that there is so much more you can give, first and foremost to yourselves, because do not assume that by giving out to others you must neglect yourselves. What purpose is there in that if you do not feed the Spirit that you are? I will say this to you also before I leave you, that each individual, each individual's own responsibility must always be for the good of his fellow man. I hope my dear friends that my words this evening will give you some more to think of, something more to discuss amongst yourselves, and do not forget that there is always available to you information and the help that you need. All that that you need to do is to ask, call to me and I will be there, but also know that there are those who stand always close to you, whose only desire is to uplift and to help you every step of your existence, and to them I say give thanks. I will leave you now my dear friends in the knowledge that all around you is of such a bright light. I would wish for you that you leave this room feeling even more uplifted and more love. My love grows ever stronger for you. (Thanks + farewells)

One followed through Sarah, saying there were many who stood close in Spirit, bringing much love. We were instructed to: 'Take time, take strength and above all, take much thought for fellow man.'

Finally one through Eileen relayed a message to Sara from Roberto, one of her students from Italy, who was now in Spirit.

(There is no recording/transcript available for 30th September. Unfortunately the recorder must have failed on this occasion.)

~7th October 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

The last time we met I said that we would discuss some matters that our dear lady friend put before me.

Lilian: Thank you very much.

Your question last time was about the form which I show to you—that I have told you that I came in the many aspects. Was that your question? (Affirmed) Let me say this to you my dear friends—again, we have to remember that my words to you, are limited by my own vocabulary—I told you that there are many aspects to the soul, but when I speak of coming to you in many aspects, I mean that you cannot conceive me in any shape or form; that is incontrovertible. It cannot be that I show myself to you in a manner that would prove to you who I am. You understand this I know. (Affirmed) But before I continue, what I wish to say is this: I am a creation of the Creator. This you know and accept. (Yes) But I am no more my dear friends than any of you. I may be a little more evolved, but there is nothing which I do or can do that you also cannot do; after all, you too are created by the Great Creator. But when I come to you I come in many ways. Last time I told you I was the whisper in your ear. I am the voice which speaks to you now through this instrument. I am your highest thought. I am that upliftment that you feel in times of doubt. I am the truth which you give forth to other people. Are you beginning to understand what I am saying to you? (Affirmed) You cannot look to me as a shape or form which you can understand, because that would be not impossible but not likely.

George: When you say that we are able to do as you. That I imagine would be in the extreme fullness of time. (Yes) (A few chuckles broke out at this thought)

What I wish you to know is that we are all aspects of Creation. You must realize my dear friends that I am no different from you; only that I speak to you from our world. I speak to you with a voice which you recognize. I bring to you love to the highest degree, but you also my dear friends possess this. And you may not always recognize these qualities within yourselves, but I assure you my dear friends, that you also are part of all Creation. Therefore how can you be imperfect? That is not part of truth or law. Do you understand?

George: Yes, and we can be imperfect through our freewill and being lodged in these material overcoats. For only whilst in these clothes can you be imperfect; but Spirit is perfect. You understand? Therefore when I come to you in these forms it is useful for you to know that I, being a little more evolved shall we say, and again I am using Earthly words for your understanding, but when I come close to you, it is in the form of spiritual attributes, not those of this Earth. Has this been a little helpful to you?

Lilian: Yes. Thank you very much.

Have you any questions at this point?

Lilian: I was just wondering as you were talking, I suddenly felt quite a sort of joyful feeling and I wondered why that would be? I know, 'why not', but is there an answer why I have this feeling?

Because you have recognized within yourself some of those spiritual truths—it is as simple as that, that with the vibration of this voice that I am using, you can feel the love which comes to you at this time.

Lilian: Yes. That's true.

One thing I would say to you my dear friends is this: that when you trouble over all of these questions, and I have to say you human beings have so many, I would say this to you: look inward, look to the inward truth and always there you will find your answers. I cannot repeat this often enough for you, but it is such a simple thing to do, but with your freewill, we cannot make you do these things; we can only encourage and try to uplift that part of you which allows you to recognize the true souls that you are.

George: Curiously enough, today I was thinking about a question about methods of delivery of the Source teaching, bearing in mind that Jesus incarnated, as have others, and you come to us as you do, and I think you have covered part of the answer that I had in mind as a question, (Yes) in telling us about your ways. Yes also—you see my dear friend, I am always aware of what is about and around you in your daily living. This is not an easy thing to discuss with you at this time, but it is possible that I am with you all at all times and on many occasions. Therefore do not be surprised sometimes that what I speak about is relevant to one or other people within this group.

Sara: Yes we have noticed often that you've helped us with our problems. (Chuckles)

Yes, sometimes you see my dear friends that you do not always listen to me, with the quiet whisper. Therefore sometimes it is necessary that you hear it with the spoken word. (Agreed) I of course would be happier if I could make you hear with the quiet whisper, because then I know you are achieving what you should be. But provided I have a voice to use, I will always endeavor to hear each one of you.

George: We are grateful for that. (Affirmed)

Are there any more questions?

Sara: Yes, I wondered if you could talk about the subject of young children and discipline, because in our world at the moment there is so much controversy surrounding smacking of children, that many people are fearful, as I have myself, I have been fearful of this. When I talk to people it seems to me that many people are still doing it in reality. Can you comment on this and enlighten us?

I will of course make comment for you. I will repeat words I have said before and that is, that as much as we have much vision, more than you do here on this planet, we are not allowed to interfere. And there is much to be said for the way that your beautiful children are handled in this world. What I would say to you is each child comes to you as a gift and after all, they are part too of Creation. They come to you with all the elements of spiritual truth and knowledge, but also they come to you clothed in these physical conditions. I would say to you this—and you must accept or decline it, in whichever manner you see fit—but I believe children of your world rally to words of love and not to the striking with whatever instrument or hand in the form of discipline. Children come to you on a wave of love and if there is any form of friction, I would say to you, then it is something to be worked through. Are you understanding my words?

Sara: Yes definitely. Thank you.

If there is conflict with a child, look to the purpose of the conflict; see why that conflict occurred? Do not assume that the child has come to—how can I put it to you in earthly terms—that the child is there as a source of aggravation. (Chuckles) I know that you human beings find it to be so, but if you look to the spiritual aspect of all life, there will be a purpose. But I will say that children always will respond to love.

Sara: Yes, thank you

And do remember this, that small children are closer to our world than yours.

Sara: Yes. Thank you for that. That's really helps me a lot, because with my little boy, the advice I have had even from the people at the school is to be very, very firm and it is difficult. When I told the lady that I didn't like smacking, she looked with disapproval at me and this confused me more.

This child is most sensitive. (Yes) I would say to you—and I cannot interfere of course—but this child is more sensitive than usual for children of this age. Give him love and he will respond to it.

Sara: Yes. Thank you so much.

Too much discipline for this child will have an adverse reaction. Therefore look inward to how you feel and you will find your answers.

Sara: Thank you so much. I did need something, because I'm surrounded by people who think differently.

May I just say something? (Yes) And it is not something that I normally do, but this child has great respect for the father figure, although it is not always apparent. But take note that every word that this father figure says is taken in and digested. Therefore may I say that a great influence can be placed upon the child through the father figure. I know it is a great responsibility and children in your world are not always given the love that they deserve, but see them not as children, but as spiritual beings who have come to this planet for a purpose.

Sara: Yes, so really we should be quite gentle and loving with this one.

He is most sensitive yes. He will respond more to love, and patience. And this is a big lesson for you both. If you think of it in this way, you also are learning from this experience.

Sara: Yes. Thank you. And my other question was following that, when children do have difficult early years, I was presuming that it must be because it's a growth opportunity for the family, or for the parents as well as the child.

I have said before that sometimes, especially in very young children, that sometimes their—what is termed in your world as 'bad behaviour', is sometimes the realisation of not wanting to be in the physical world—that sometimes their memories remain with us here and they are dissatisfied with being trapped within the physical bodies. And sometimes these very, very young children are unhappy little souls who have to make adjustment to your world.

Sara: And it takes longer for some.

Yes. Yes, it is not always what you would call in your world 'black or white'. I believe that is a phrase you would understand. (Affirmed)

Sara: Sometimes I have felt I know things, but I can't speak about them with people in charge of my little boy. I just have to work quietly in my own way (Yes) and hope that the evidence will...

Give out your heart to these people and they may change. It is possible to work quietly and change the way that people think. Do not feel harshly towards them, they have no knowledge usually and they are doing what they feel to be right. But give love to this one.

Sara: Yes, and maybe we can quietly influence others who care for him, with this thinking too, which may help other children.

With your help and love there will be a rebound effect to those around him. Always that happens, but I would say your responsibility to him is much greater than any reaction he has to those who teach—especially from the father. Even your silence, my dear friend, has a great influence on him, because he watches you closely and if you watch him when he is not aware, you will see how closely he is in tune with you. (Sara and Graham express thanks) And he too can influence you; remember this is not a one way situation.

Sara: He says wise words often.

Yes, very sensitive this little soul. I hope that has helped you. (Affirmed) I would have to say—and this comes from our world, that there is never a reason to strike any child. You may have many views, you may have people who feel themselves to be wise, but in our world we cannot condone any form of discipline that allows a child to be struck by another human being.

Lilian: That would probably go for the animal kingdom as well?

We know much and people are much more aware of the need to treat the animal kingdom with much more respect. Yes, mankind is much more aware of the animals, who after all, are part of Creation and have every right to inhabit this planet with you. (Agreed) But I am sure all of these things that I say to you this time is well within your own knowledge, but sometimes we have to remind you.

Sara: Yes, and also I have been influenced by others lately and by listening to other people and I'd become a little confused. So I'm very happy to know that that is the spiritual way, because it's what I did believe.

You must always go inward to find your own truth. After all, you are the one who must take responsibility for your thinking and your actions.

Sara: Yes, that's true.

And you have such spiritual knowledge and to deny them, is only doing yourself an injustice.

Sara: Yes. I think also we were a little fearful, because of the teachers pressurizing and perhaps we lost our way a little...

Yes. They mean well, but they are a little misguided, but I am sure that most of them do it for the welfare, they consider, of the children. But I would say they are just a little misguided, but send your love to them also that they may change their way of thinking. It can be done, and it is something that all of you should endeavor to do for those people in your world who have no knowledge, or at least deny their knowledge in spiritual values.

George: Could you clarify a point about fairies? They don't have wings, but they do have an energy beam from the upper body. There is so much written about this, my question is: would those energy beams interact in any way with the general aether so that it would help them in their balance or movement?
Yes. These beings of course, belong to the aether, how else could they exist? They are not physical beings, therefore they belong to the aetherial realms. The wings that you speak of and are seen by many people, is in fact energy, but they also have the ability to create whatever they wish. They are able to change form because they do not belong to this Earthly realm. The energy from these beings comes from our world. But yes, wings as you imagine them are attached to the body, but fairies that you speak of are just a mass of energy, which is created in a form not normally seen by human beings. They are creatures of light, much lighter vibration than the human form.

George: Yes, so those beams would be merely part of them and would not interact in any way?
It belongs to the aether, the energy of which can be drawn and used by them when they come to the Earthly realms. You have to remember that energy has many forms. You know that there is density of energy, which is known to you in physical life. The fairies that you call, belong to our world, therefore their energy is much lighter, but they can draw from the spiritual realms, lighter energy to re-create the denser energy. Do you understand?

George: Yes, I think I follow.

Are you sure? You must remember that these energy beings are not of the same density as you.

George: No, I think I appreciate that they would not be affected by gravity in any way.

It is like saying: am I affected by the density of the human instrument? The answer is: no. Is that a little clearer for you?

George: Yes. Thank you.

If it is not, please say; I would rather clarify it for you now.

George: It is just that there has been so much written about fairies with wings that I wanted to clarify why people who had some way of seeing them, how they could have mistaken the energy beams for wings.
It is just the form, it is the way that the fairies wish to be seen. (Yes) Do not forget that they have the ability to change form if they so desire, but that is the way they wish to appear to others.

George: Ah, so they might wish others to see them like this.

Yes; but it is all energy.

George: Yes, thank you.

And of course, you have the ability to see them if you so desire. Do not forget this. If there is a failure of seeing them, it lies with you, because they are around and about all of the time.

George: Yes, what a lovely thought.

Not a thought; it is there for all to see! It is not a thought.

George: Yes. I stand corrected, thank you.

Yes. I think this time, I will leave you and leave you I hope with a little more understanding of the nature of the way that I stand close to you.

Lilian: Yes. We are very grateful to you for that.

Perhaps our lady friend would like to finish the evening, seeing as your numbers are small, in a guided meditation. And perhaps my dear friends, you might have the ability to see some of these fairies that you speak of, but you must allow yourselves to be able to go inward and feel their energy. I will leave you my dear friend, as to how you finish this evening. (Thanks + farewells)

Sara's guided meditation then took us through woodland glades and favoured domains of the little folk.

Another then followed through Eileen, reiterating the need for stillness/quiet time.

~14th October 2002 ~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I hope that our discussion last time gave you some insight into the part I play when I come to you.

Lilian: Yes, it was interesting.

This time my dear friends, I wish to ask you all one question. It may not be as simple as you think, but what I wish to ask of you my dear friends, is this: I want you to look from outside of yourselves and ask the question: 'Who am I?' I want you to focus on this question and also to find out what spiritual gifts you have brought to this lifetime and how those spiritual gifts have brought you together this time and in which way they bond you together. It may seem a simple question my dear friends, but I assure you, you will find it quite difficult.

Lilian: Yes, I think I am already.

I will give you time to look to this question and for you all to discuss amongst yourselves what answers you come to. I will remain with this instrument whilst you work quietly, but before we leave, we hope to bring to you someone who will speak a little with you and we hope that the dear lady who is sitting next to me, will be able to bring them forward. (Sue) I will be most interested to see what you think of yourselves. (Some sitters chuckled) I will comment next time, so please, please be lucid in your thinking and the expression of your words. I will try to help you to have clear vision, clear thinking for this meeting.

Lilian: And we shall hear from you next week?

You may rest assured I will be here with you. I have given you what I am to you, now you must recognise what you are to yourselves. My love as always stays with you.

Lilian: And our love goes with you. We will sit quietly for a moment or two and see what we come up with.

We sat quietly for several minutes before Lilian spoke again. These were the main statements made:

George: We are each of us sparks of Divinity, so we each have to see ourselves as an individual spark and each spark represents a different soul, because it is rare for two aspects of the same soul to be on Earth together. We have similar energies, so perhaps the soul-bodies are closely connected in some way. This is conjecture, but it is clear we have similar energies and that energy is part of our bonding. And we have a particular affinity for each other, because although we have similar energies we have different abilities. In a sense we rely on each other for those different abilities.

Lilian: Yes, that's true.

George: I think much hinges on the fact that we are similar energies, the other factor that would probably add on to that is our most recent past life that some of us at least spent together and I would imagine that also contributes to the similarity of energy between us.

Lilian: And probably all of us have a love of nature.

Sara: I think if you're really spiritual, you will love nature.

Lilian: Also a love of animals. I often wonder why I like animals so much.

George: I think especially at particular times in my life I have been aware of a deep-down power, which has been a guiding influence. I have a feeling of strength from this, with the idea that the soul-strength is much more than the physical body.

Lilian: Well we must each of us be on the same par spiritually, because if we've been together in past lifetimes and we've been told we shall be together again, so we must be pretty much on the same level, mustn't we, spiritually.

Graham: I think you have to be in order to share experience, to talk to people, to accept what they say and for them to understand what you're saying. And we all accept what Salumet says.

George: And of course, we have to see Salumet as a great coordinator. That is of course very important too.

Sara: And we all have an enthusiasm for this learning—a passion for the learning, which makes us come every week.

George: Yes, we are all seeking, that's a shared fact.

Graham: My condition is several-fold more than is perhaps common, but I think that when you get a condition such as I've got at the moment, and a lot of people at some stage in their life do have illness, it does make you think a lot more and it's made me think a lot more about past lives and where you are and where you are moving towards. It really opens your eyes in many ways and you start to see things that you haven't seen before. In a way I see the condition as something of an awakening.

Lilian: Yes. How about you Jan?

Jan: Well, I asked the question—as he asked it—go outside and ask yourself the question in your mind—and I’ve been receiving clairvoyantly I suppose, lots and lots of faces one after the other almost like in a mist. I presume they are me—parts of me—and also I have been given strings of light, a little bit like neon lights, as one fades the next one lights up and so the next one lights up. And those beads of light—I think I’m interpreting—there are millions of them I’m being shown, so they are other souls; it’s as if I’ve passed through them, do you know what I mean? They are people that I have connected with.

Lilian: They belong to our energies.

Jan: Yes, they are little beads of energy obviously and I’m being shown that some are negative and some are positive and you obviously need that negative and positive to make a positive energy flow. And the negative energies are those that I haven’t bonded with—they are not on the same spiritual level, as those of us in this room—and this may have been said a moment ago, because I am not quite with you if you know what I mean. I can speak to you but I am not able to feel my body at the moment. They enable me to see this more and more aren’t they, as the weeks go on. I’m being taken further and further now. I’m not sure how I can still speak to you; I can’t feel anything else around. Each one of us in this room is joined in a circle. I’m being shown at this precise moment in time each one is joined in a circle, within a circle, within a circle. I’m interpreting that first circle is where we are now and we meet again in the second circle and again in the third and in the fourth as we progress. I am being shown it going outwards. So, where we are now, as husbands, wives, mothers, sisters and brothers—that’s not who we are. We know that, don’t we? (Affirmed) And again I am being shown an overcoat, which I described a little while ago—I’m also being shown snails—a snail has a shell. He goes inside the shell and comes—you’ll have to interpret this...

Lilian: Well we must grow new overcoats...

Jan: I can now see other faces that are each one of you. I’m not seeing me, but each and every one of you. So I’m meeting you. And now we’re back to the neon little lights. (Jan began to ‘return’ at this point as she again became aware of her body)

George: Can you say roughly how many others are in the room with us?

Jan: The room is very, very full. I feel almost claustrophobic with them. The walls seem to come in tremendously small. I would say there are a good 200-300 people in the room at this time. There’s standing room only at the moment!

George: What I can see clairvoyantly is vague, but yes I agree, I would equate the vague patterns that I am seeing with hundreds.

Lilian: Which could be other aspects of ourselves?

Jan: They are—that’s what they’re showing us is that they are not other spirits, they’re facets of our selves. They are part of our soul, in this room with us now.

Lilian: It makes you feel quite emotional.

Graham: I reminds me of what Salumet said about facets of a diamond.

Jan: When Salumet came through tonight, I haven’t witnessed it before, but he came through with an enormous blue light that went bang! ...all round Eileen. Then after he came through, I went off on my travels if you know what I mean, but that’s when the strands of blue light, then it turned to blue and red, that were shown to me. So the question I think: ‘Who am I?’ ...I think George described what I was seeing: We are just a linkage in a chain of energy. That’s how I can see it. Does that make sense George? (Affirmed)

Sara: In terms of evolution, where we’ve come, I was thinking humanly as well, we’re vast really, we’re part of everything, part of everyone really. The further we move on, the more we grow in spiritual strength and wisdom, the more we would feel a part of everyone really.

George: Salumet is always saying that the situation is much more complicated and beyond our ability to describe.

Jan: The other part of this question was that we have to answer is: What spiritual qualities have we brought to this lifetime? That I think is very individual. This is going to sound really silly, but I think I have always been aware of a light that surrounds me, but wasn’t sure before, what it was and how it was to be used I suppose. What I mean by 'light around me' is: certain people were attracted, certain personalities, certain types were attracted to me.

George: Do you find person walking on the other side of the street suddenly look across?

Jan: Yes they do. It's taken this—shall we call in 'work'—we came into this world with a light that shines brighter than we can see.

Graham: We all bring with us love and it is the most natural thing in the world to love people and objects and animals and everything.

Sara: I think I was put here definitely to communicate. As a young child I was quite shy, but as time went on, I was able to communicate, but now I think I communicate on lots of different levels. An important part is supporting people in their spiritual growth, whilst growing myself and talking to people around here in whatever way I can, either through the voice or through music or whatever. I think that is what I'm here for.

Jan next brought Cheryl into the discussion, who declared herself to be a bit self-centred. Others pointed out that they were also at her young age and that she is also extremely compassionate. This dialogue was cut short by a visitor through Sue:

I do not wish to interrupt your most interesting discussion. I have heard many conversations from many, many, many peoples of your side of life and let me say, I am always surprised at what I hear. Sometimes the depth of knowledge I hear from certain groups such as yourselves, stuns me. I am most gratified to know that the teachings that the Masters bring, have such an influence on you all. We are most gratified and if even a fraction of what you are told in the early days, takes root, seeds itself in your minds and blossoms as the years progress. I hope that does not sound too flippant, but it is my way of explaining to you how we are watching you grow. Do you comprehend my meaning? (Affirmed) Do you understand that the knowledge, the knowledge that you have absorbed, is like the flowering of the cherry trees every year. Can you understand that? (Affirmed) They lie dormant in your winter times. Then the little buds burst forth in your spring times. Then you are awash with the fragrant blossom. That is like the knowledge, which suddenly seems to burst forth in your consciousness and you absorb this knowledge, and you hold onto what is relevant. Then like the blossom on the tree, that knowledge serves a purpose and you shed previous thoughts, previous connotations—things that perhaps once were important to you and you suddenly realise that they have not the significance that you thought they had, and you let them drop like the blossoms. Is that a fair description of your thought patterns? (Agreed) Some of the things that seemed vital to you in your youth or vital to you only—shall we say yesterday—suddenly are stripped away and you think: 'I don't need that. Let it go.' Yes? (Agreed) Yes, good. I am not meaning to put words or thoughts into your mouth; I listen to you and I watch you and I absorb your thoughts and it seems to me that as the time progresses, you are stripping more and more of your earthly thoughts and getting closer and closer to spiritual meaning. Yes? (Agreed) Good! It is good that you are agreeing, because you must always move forward. And we know that some of the teachings leave you perplexed, am I right?

George: Yes, we have to think about them sometimes.

Yes, that is what I mean. I do not mean you are perplexed in you don't know what is being said to you, but it makes you open your mind does it not? It makes you question? (Agreed) Which is a very good thing; I am sure the Master that comes to you has said to you in the past: Always question, never just accept. Yes? (Agreed) You must question. No one is going to think any the less of you if you say: Please can you elaborate on that theme, whatever it may be. We do not want you just to accept what we say. That is not what teaching is—in your schools when you are children, as you grow and you go to universities and to your higher forms of education, I am sure all of you have at some time wanted to debate an item with your tutor s. Am I right? (Affirmed) You have wanted to say: Excuse me, but I cannot quite agree with that, may we discuss it further—have you not?

George: Yes, and this leads a better more fundamental understanding.

Of course—but we are watching each of your years come and go and we are seeing the branches of knowledge grow firmer and heavier and more laden with the blossom of knowledge and teachings and from that blossom, come the most amazing scents of love. Did you know that love has a perfume? That is something else for you to put into your store cupboard of knowledge. Love has its own rich perfume.

Every sense has a perfume.

Sara: Is it true then that people can exude a sweetness or a sourness, which that almost be...

Tangible yes. (Yes) You know that love comes in a form of light—you have been told the light shines from this meeting have you not? (Affirmed) It lights a beacon. It is not just a light, it is a scent, a wonderful perfume which mingles with the light and can be sensed in our world, just as hatred has its own scent. I will not call it perfume, because it is not perfume, do you understand me? (Affirmed) Fear also has its own scent. Again I will not call it perfume. Every one of your senses exudes an aroma. I would like you to think about that in your coming days. Give out LOVE, not hate. Hate will cause a scent, which can make people recoil from you—not physically—you do not see people step back and think: Oh dear, what a smell! (Giggles) No, they recoil mentally and that itself is part of the Spirit—the mind. Think upon it dear people. Try to love, try to exude a perfume that you are, shall we say, very taken with. Imagine the love is one of your most favourite smells. Can you do that? It will help you. (Affirmed + thanks)

Graham: Yes, perfume is something beautiful.

Lilian: Delicate, like a flower.

Indeed. I will also say to you that even your most beautiful perfumes on this world cannot compare with the spiritual perfume of love. It is like something you have never encountered. But dear people, dear friends, when your time comes to pass into our realms, I wish from the bottom of my soul that one of the first things you encounter when you join us is the perfume of love. You deserve it, each and every one of you and the more you strive in your earthly life to bring love and harmony to yourself and to others around you, the closer you will become to the spiritual smell of all-powerful and all-bright and all-shiny LOVE.

George: Something to look forward to.

Yes, that is something that you can accept from me. (Agreed) No, I don't wish you to accept it without thought, but believe me when I say to you: It is fact.

Sara: It makes sense to me, because when people are fearful or sick or ill, there is almost a smell and it's something that you see as well. (Yes) So it makes sense. The skin is clear and bright, it affects the body when someone is loving and happy; the skin looks brighter and the eyes look brighter and everything glows.

Glows!—that is a word, very, very good word; observant young lady.

Sara: Children often have the sweet aura, when they're happy.

Young children, in all innocence, can detect the perfume of love, but very quickly, very quickly they lose that sense. You have all encountered it in your very early life. Sometimes you may think you are recapturing it, but you don't understand what it is. I am sure at some stage in your lives you have—
The tape ended there, but it was actually very near to the close of session. Our visitor was thanked for the wonderful analogy of the cherry blossom and knowledge given. They indicated that there would be further visits and when asked, gave the name Ramon.

~21st October 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

There is with you this time a heaviness with some of you. I would like to enclose you all in the love that I bring to you this time. I also wish to say to this instrument, apologies for disturbance within the throat area. (Thanks) I have been trying to work more closely with this one in order for the voice to be stronger, but as always it takes time for adjustments to take place. But it is now time that I should be capable of coming to you a little more quickly, more easily, with more comfort. And although the instrument is usually unaware of any discomfort within the physical being, it is within our power to see that the instrument remains comfortable throughout.

Lilian: Good.

I will dispel this heaviness which I feel, before I begin to speak with you.

Lilian: I'm sure we'll be very grateful for that.

(Brief pause) Perhaps it is a little trepidation as you wait to find what I will ask of you this time.

(Chuckles) Many, many were interested in your remarks last time. Remember when I asked you who you truly were. Your replies were indeed uplifting to us, because it showed us how much and how far you have come. But now I have to tell you that we need to go one step further for your understanding of who you are. The gentleman who sits close by, our dear friend who thinks much and uses the pen much, gave us very good description of who he thought all of you were, and yes, each one of you knows and understands that you are divine sparks of existence. You all of you know and understand this, but my question of who you truly are needed some little thinking, would you not agree?

Lilian: I must confess, I still don't know.

Let me say just a little to you: Although you are as one before you come to many different lifetimes, you belong to that Great Creative Force from which we all come, but when you return to any lifetime, you take it upon yourselves to become individualised—to become 'I AM'. When you are clothed in the physical bodies, the 'I AM' becomes a physical being and the most important part of the physical being is the 'I', is the ego, because when that becomes the most important part of your living, you are losing those spiritual attributes which belong to you. This you know and understand.

George: This is the ego 'I'? (Yes)

Lilian: That's interesting, because the instrument you are using when she was meditating she was picking up the words 'I AM'.

Yes. Was she confused? I will try to help her.

Lilian: Just a little. She wondered what it meant.

Let me continue please. (Pause) I am what I have always been. (Pause) You wonder why I hesitate. It is to allow you my dear friends, to think about those words. When I say I AM what I have always been, how does this apply to each one of you? That is the question you need to ask. I AM here and now. I AM a voice. I AM many things. I AM LOVE—and understanding. But I AM in the physical being, many things—not only with spiritual attributes, but with the duality of those attributes. Do you understand my dear friends what I am saying to you? (Affirmed) If you are unsure, let us discuss it as we go.

George: The Bible phrase comes to mind: I am that I am; which conveys to me the very essence of being.

Yes. Yes, for once I would agree (Chuckles) with the words written within that religious book. Yes, so when you say, my dear friends: I AM, it does not apply only to this lifetime.

Jan: Therefore I am constant, is that right?

I AM constant, I AM ever-moving, I AM. There are many phrases that can be used with I AM, but what I asked you last time was to find the true and real I AM; the I AM that has always been. You my dear friend, started to go on a journey, which takes you some small way into that being. But may I suggest to you all, that to find the true I AM, you need to go even further. I will leave it there for now, because once again I will give you the opportunity to again look at the I AM. I will say now about the other part of my question to you, which was: What spiritual gifts do you feel you have brought to this lifetime? And again, the conversation was varied. Each one of you discussed attributes that you felt you had brought with you. May I say my dear friends—and I want you to listen closely—that each one of you has brought with you all spiritual gifts. It is not unusual to any one person, but it is with all who return to physical life. It is theirs, because it always has been. You are saying: what is spiritual gifts?

Lilian: When you say it like that it's suddenly very simple. For myself I was wracking my brains to think well what did I bring? They were there all the time.

They are there always, in all time, not just in this one lifetime, but in all lifetimes. What you bring my dear friends is that deep inner knowledge, that deep inner power, which you all possess. You bring love, understanding, all of the attributes which you here on this Earth would call 'good'. But as I have said, you also bring to physical living, because of the physical way of life, the duality of these gifts. With love you have hate, if you have riches you have need, and I need not continue because this is no word lesson, but you understand what I mean. (Affirmed) Therefore those gifts you bring, which are yours, must be used wisely, to face whatever pathway you have chosen. The attribute of healing, for example, is one that our dear gentleman friend (Graham) is at this moment learning to correct his physical condition. That is one example. In others it may be patience that needs to be used. In others it may be the love and wisdom which you give to children. There are so many ways that your spiritual gifts can be used. Have you any questions for me at this point?

George: The spiritual Source that we reach towards for our guidance, would it be correct to say that that is unchanging, or perhaps it is steadily refining all the time?

That is the purpose of life my dear friends, that you strive towards these natural gifts—to the Spirit—you strive always to regain what you know to be true, in the same way that any plant will strive to have its flowers or its fruit. That is the purpose of its existence. And so too mankind continues to strive, because until he uses these gifts in the proper manner, he will always feel unsettled and ill at ease. And that is why so many of your illnesses take place. It is ill-ease. Do you understand what I am trying to tell you my dear friends? (Affirmed)

George: Yes, I'm just trying to work out if what we bring with us is it always much the same, or is it refining as the result of many incarnations?

Yes. Of course it must be refined in a way for you to continue with physical life, but you know and understand that there are many aspects to the soul and that refinement takes place each time another aspect of the soul returns to physical living.

George: Yes, and does that refinement permeate through the whole soul system?

Of course, you cannot leave one part or aspect of the soul; all is connected, and of course anything that materialises with an aspect of the soul in physical life, must have some effect, because after all everything has cause and effect; it must also affect that soul. You understand?

George: Yes, thank you.

Graham: Can ill-ease be brought with us when we enter our lifetime?

Ill-ease can stay with you for many, many lifetimes. Only when the spiritual gift of recognition, recognises this, will this ill-ease disappear. It is the recognition that is important. But all of you my dear friends must know that deep inner power that you possess; that is the spiritual gift that you bring to any lifetime. I want you to think about this deeply, because it is no light matter.

Sara: We cannot really be balanced and healthy in our expression, unless we are assessing our spiritual gifts. (Yes) Not just assessing them, but really using them in our daily living.

Yes, this is what I am trying to explain to you. Each one of you has the inner knowledge and power to be used. But what happens when mankind returns to the physical body? The 'I am' the ego takes over and the spiritual gifts are lost. Much too much time is spent in the duality of these things. Mankind is fighting with himself, at all times struggling, when what he needs to do is to use that deep inner power. After all, perhaps it would be wrong to call it a 'gift' it is always there, in every lifetime. It belongs to each one of you; it belongs to the soul structure from whence you came. You need to think long and hard about this. I feel the time is right for you my dear friends to go deeper within. And each one of you I know has done much, has grown much, but there is still so much you can achieve, not only within this meeting room when we all come together, but with every thought, every word, every deed; be certain that it comes with the love of Spirit, and in that way you build for yourselves that perfect harmonious life which you all struggle to attain. It is within your grasp. I can only help you with my words. I cannot change your lives, but in trying to help you to understand our wishes for you that not only do you give outward love to others, but you learn to love yourselves. After all, how many times have you been told: If you do not love yourself, how can you anyone else?

Jan: Salumet does the same apply to the animal kingdom?

The animal kingdom is on a different vibration from humankind. Their purpose here is one with humankind, but their vibration is different I have to say. It comes from a different source of energy, but that is not to say they do not require respect from humankind, because they too have been created as we too have. But of course, animals have their own gifts. You can see that can you not, in your domestic animals who show you much love and faithfulness. (Agreed)

Jan: The reason I was asking that is I was thinking about the constant Spirit that was mentioned. The 2 domestic pets I have currently, I just sense that I've known them before as other pets.

Yes, you will not separate the animal from the humankind where there is a love bond. That is what you must remember. It is the love bond which cannot be broken. We have discussed before that the animal kingdom returns to a group soul, unlike humankind, it is a different energy. But those animals who come to your world and acknowledge love and give of themselves, have created an energy of love which can never be broken. So do you understand that as you too can return to other lifetimes, so too do the souls of these animals who have so much love for you.

Jan: That's exactly what I thought. That's what I sensed.

Why should it not be, when the love bond is so strong? But only the animals who have the strong link can this happen; the others they return to the pool energy.

Jan: They are clothed differently and physically look different, but to me they are exactly the same.

Are you not clothed differently from times before?

Jan: Yes, but it's something I hadn't been awakened to before. I have been aware for some time that the 2 that I currently have, I've had before.

Yes, do not be surprised by any link that is bound by love.

Jan: It's extremely humbling and a privileged feeling, it really is. It's just an awakening, isn't it? When we were talking about the attributes we felt we'd brought with us to this lifetime I understood completely what you were saying, but there is this awareness this time. I don't know, I might have had it in previous lifetimes, but it's an overwhelming feeling of awareness.

Yes. It is something hopefully that you gain from the soul when you return to our world; that the knowledge is increased just a little, that you can utilise the spiritual gifts more fully when you return to each respective lifetime. After all, it is a learning process, not only for you, but for those you have known before and the animals also that you have known before. You have to recognise my dear friends that the real you has existed forever and what you see here and now, as the gentleman so rightly told you last time, is but a divine spark of Creation. Whether you shine brighter in one lifetime or you grow duller is your responsibility; and it is a responsibility, let me assure you my dear friends of that; and even more so when you realise the information which you are given sets you onto the pathway of more knowledge and the responsibility grows greater.

Jan: I am being shown faces and different costumes again.

Accept them my dear friend.

Jan: Like last week—so that's different aspects of myself isn't it?

Yes. When you go inwards, acknowledge that you recognise that spark of being, because that is what you are; that is what we all are.

George: Yes. When we do go inwards and make contact with our gift, I couldn't help thinking while you were talking, that when you come to us as you do, it's a little bit like getting an extra portion. (Laughter)

Well, I am amused that I am seen as an extra portion! I have never been called that before. (More laughter) But I thank you my dear friend for that. It makes me feel fuller. (More laughs) Yes, I am glad to see that humour exists in your lives, because laughter, my dear friends, is something that you should all encourage daily. Perhaps I shall be known as an 'extra portion'. (More laughter) Have you any more questions before I leave you?

Lilian: I was just thinking, if patience is a spiritual gift, if I remember that, it will certainly help me at the present time.

Yes, I know my dear friends that you will never achieve perfection whilst in these bodies, but what I have said to you is that you must strive towards it. You can do no more, but in having the knowledge, it may help you to strive a little more. (Agreed) I will leave you this time. Again, I hope that you will go inwards and find that true being; the gentle loving beings that you all are. Make no mistake my dear friends, you are beautiful beings, but you have many difficulties, each one of you, whether past or what you call future, to overcome; but nevertheless that should not hold you back in striving to find peace in your own lives and in helping others in theirs. I will leave you feeling lighter and surrounded with the love which I bring to you. (Thanks + farewells)

~28TH October 2002~

No Salumet this week, but another speaker came through Eileen, talking about their work in Spirit realms, dealing with narrow-minded people. The recorder was switched on just after preliminaries and we were explaining this:

I do understand that memory here can be a little bad.

Lilian: Dim?

I am so pleased you used the word and not I.

George: I think it is more for spreading the word to others and also to the group members who would normally be here.

I see, so your memory is perfect?

George: No! (Much laughter)

Lilian: It's for us here as well.

Yes. Of course I am jesting. Not always am I appreciated for my humour, but I mean well.

George: We do appreciate humour. This is something that we have learnt over the years: It's nice to know that humour exists on the Earth as well as in Spirit.

Oh well, if anything we are more humorous, because we don't have Earthly difficulties. Therefore why should we not be more humorous? In fact it brings upliftment and love to you, and when we are sure then we too can smile and be happy.

Lilian: It always brings upliftment when we sit together and during the visit from those in Spirit, it always brings upliftment.

It would be devastating would it not if it had the other effect?

Lilian: Well we wouldn't do it would we? (Laughter)

I am afraid that those other people who say that you work for the other side would be assured in their condemnation and thoughts about this work if you were to find it depressed. (Laughter)

Lilian: So is this your first visit to our group?

It is the first time that I have spoken with you, but not the first visit. Of course you know that many stand around you and there are always those of us who you would call 'keepers' or 'friends' or 'helpers'—you use whatever term you wish; but no, we have been before.

Lilian: And you also come and listen when Salumet comes, do you?

Not always. I also have other people and other places to work with, but often, yes, I am here and I listen and I too take those teachings to those in our world who are still looking for truth. And believe me, there are still those who are still seeking truth.

George: And you have very good memory and you don't need a tape recorder.

Well I bless you sir for recognising my good point. (Chuckles) I of course am what you might call a teacher here on this Earth. I teach those in our world who are new to our world and they need help with that, because after all they do not easily accept. They may accept that they are no longer in the physical world, but they still have difficulty in many of our aspects of living. You can understand that can't you?

Lilian: Yes I can. So I imagine if some very religious person in a particular religion would find it difficult to accept something different.

Yes, and the energy pattern can be quite disturbing, but they work through eventually. There always comes a time for new thought. No one stands still, no one remains with those ideologies forever. They grow to recognise for themselves that if they are to understand and to have correct-minded people with them, they have to move forward. And that is what I endeavour to do.

Lilian: Yes, it's moving all the time.

George: Yes unfortunately, certain religions have sometimes got so rigid and not quite in focus and I imagine this can lead to difficulties of understanding and flexibility and openness.

I understand perfectly, because I was the same. That is why I now teach people, because I have that understanding of how they feel and how they think and it is now my task, if I may call it a task, to help them.

George: And yet there is also much good in the formal religions.

Yes, there are many in this world that decry religion, but I am not one of them. I am of the mind that if it helps them on, if it helps them to become better human beings, then so be it. As long as they are open-minded enough to accept as it is, to accept that what they feel and what they understand is more to behold now. You understand?

George: Yes. I like to think of the formal religions as a kind of springboard.

Yes! And that's how I feel. I can see we will be good friends! (Laughs) My memory is perfect and yours will be. But let me say, if you wish to go forward do not be afraid to let go of all those old ideas my dears. This is what I try to teach them.

Lilian: I think our religions are becoming more tolerant of one another.

I think that it is not that they are becoming more tolerant, but they have no choice, because people are thinking, or beginning to think for themselves. People are aware now of spiritual attributes which have not been met before. Your world at this time is a changing world; I wish I could show you for yourselves. Your world is changing all the time, much better. I know you are going to say: But why is there so much trouble? Of course there always will be. But what is happening is a new spiritual awakening, and it is happening with your very young people.

Lilian: Yes, that's true.

George: Yes and more and more books are being published about New Age and Spirituality.

Yes, just look into titles I have to say. But I am for anything that makes people think for themselves. I am with anything that makes people aware of their own spirituality. I am with anything, any written word or spoken word that helps another to look within. And the only way to do that is to be very open-minded—and I sit here with very open-minded people.

George: Yes, and did you have Earth life before you...

Yes of course I did. I am afraid I am not one of these higher beings—I wish I was—I still have a long way to go too.

George: I was going to continue my question and ask you if you were also a teacher on Earth?

Well no. I had no mastery of teaching then, but I am a teacher now, because I have the understanding of the deep-rooted feelings that people have, of the narrow-minded way of going about one pathway. That is why I became a teacher, because of the recognition of where I had gone wrong, I saw the opportunity of helping others. And what better way of teaching others than to have that understanding yourself.

George: And so you set out on this path whilst in Spirit?

Well of course. I had to, but it takes time, it takes understanding, it takes teaching from others; then realisation comes to you. I would say of this that it is good for me and others. And I am still working this other pathway. Do you understand?

Lilian: Yes, we do.

George: Yes and you have a very nice clear voice, so I would think elocution comes into this.

You are a man of many words I can see, I like a little praise. Why not? I understand and thank you very much for those words.

Lilian: Graham, did you want to ask a question?

Graham: Yes, the teaching in Spirit realm and children who die when they are still very young. Are they taught in schools in the same way as they are here, or is the teaching done on more of a personal level, one-to-one?

I am not a teacher of young children, let me make that clear. But yes children do have teachers. They are taught of life upon the Earth as it would have been for them, but the difference is that they grow spiritually hand-in-hand with the teachings that they would have had. So their knowledge is wide, but they are taught by those people who have always desired to teach and help children. In the same way I now teach those people with narrow-minded views of religion and the pathway that they should have taken.

Graham: Yes and are there schools that they have?

Of course there are schools, but not in the sense that you would understand them. We call them schools for the benefit of you here, because that is your understanding. But of course they have schooling if they are still young, but schooling in the way of spiritual matters, schooling in all the teachings that there have ever been. And do not forget that they are Spirit first and foremost, so those teachings are of the utmost importance. But yes, children do grow up in our world.

Graham: Yes...interesting. Do they go through the same personality changes as they grow older?

No that is a difference. The personality is not there as it was here on the Earth. The personality remains only in so much as what they have gained from physical living. If a child comes to us with the Earthly age of two years say, then that personality has been stamped upon the child in those two years. That is what they bring back. But the personality would not grow in the same Earthly manner. Do you understand?

Graham: But there is personality in Spirit land? Those who come through are all very different?

Well of course, we all come at different ages. But you come with the age you had upon the Earth. A child of two will have very little knowledge of the Earth life. An old gentleman of ninety would have a much better degree of understanding of physical life and therefore that personality has been stamped for so much longer.

Graham: Yes. Who is mostly responsible for the stamping of the personality of the child? Is it the parents or the circumstances under which that child is born?

Of course the parents with their responsibility to the child will have some influence. But small children can remain very close to our world. Therefore their spiritual personality is very strong.

Graham: Thank you for that. It is very interesting. We have three children and they are so very different, and personality is something we think about and we wonder.

Think of them as beautiful gifts to you.

Graham: Yes, we certainly do. We really do.

Yes. Can I put something to you?

Graham: Yes, of course.

(You were a child once? Tape unclear) Remember that and it will give you a little more understanding for all children.

Graham: Yes. Sometimes I have flash-back memories when I play with them and I remember all the things that I used to really enjoy doing.

And what are the things you used to do/feel?

Graham: Yes, the excitement and the passion...

The passion! That is a wonderful word. Passion! Passion for living, passion for life. That I would agree, that is what you must remember and it will help you with your own children.

Graham: I can remember being thrilled about things—a trip to the beach or something that was coming up.

Although they are Earthly experiences, all feelings when you are children come from Spirit. It is the feeling of love and excitement. If you watch a child and they are happy, they exude this beauty of living. Unfortunately, and I say this truly, it is the parents that (Suppress?) this. So remember the child in yourselves as parents and you will not go far wrong. And now I've really burnt my bridges! (Laughs) I must be careful, I have this little trait.

Lilian/Graham: That's interesting.

George: I have another thing on my mind.

Just one sir? I'm sure you have more than one?

George: Well yes, but we have unfortunately, associated with religions, but away from religions themselves, there have been militant groups that indulge in terrorism and they cause many deaths; not really in the name of religion, but they think it is, or they use a religious title for their movement. In your teaching, do these people who come over, present a problem to you?

They can do. They can do, because you see they have become so engrossed in their way of thinking that they cannot see what is right and what is wrong. Those terms 'right' and 'wrong' are very black and white, and you know I am sure that the teachings you have been given are that black and white is not always just what it should be. Those people come to us with these fixed ideas and sometimes it takes—shall we say, many, many of your Earthly years for them to realise that what they have done has not always been the right pathway. But I do have to say—and I do hope that you can accept this in the way I am telling you—that those people believe that what they do, in their hearts is right. (Agreed) So there has to be an element of understanding for them.

George: Yes, I appreciate that.

There has to be a degree of help for them. They are not always the wicked people that you perhaps in your world see them, because they genuinely believe that what they are doing is best.

George: Yes, I do appreciate that.

And it is our task to show them the other way they could have chosen. We have to show them a wider picture, and it is then up to them to accept our teaching. It is then up to them to accept that the spiritual way of life is to allow all people the freedom of thinking, the freedom of choice. That is what they need to learn.

George: Yes. It strikes me that is the more difficult part of your teaching.

I could say much—I make light of the teaching. It is difficult work at times. It is not just a small growth if you can take one person and make him see the light. It takes much work. It takes much love and understanding, and yes—patience. But that is something that in this world there is (not?) a great abundance of. But perhaps I can leave you with this thought about people who you might say: commit atrocity. I believe that is an expression widely used in this world. (Yes) Do not think of people who commit these acts as terrible people. See these people as lost souls...

George: Who need praying for...

...to help themselves, help with their understanding, hope that they too will feel life so strongly that they could not harm another human being. That is what we are teaching them, that every single individual should not utter a single word or a deed against another human being, with either malice or hatred, but with gentleness and with love.

George: Yes. That's very good to hear.

Something to think of when you feel strongly—I do not say anger, because I know you very good people have a very great understanding, because of the teaching you've had, that you must not make judgement on others, but still you do, don't you? (Agreed) I know you do. But I am not here to criticise.

George: Sometimes we call it analysis.

Well, that is a good word is it not, 'analysis'.

George: Well perhaps it is not quite as strong as judgemental...

Well only you know which one you really mean. (Chuckles) But I would suggest to you that you think deeply before you utter any words against another person. (Yes) That is my teaching to you: think carefully at all times.

Lilian: We do need reminding of that from time to time.

Yes you do if I may say so—and I say that with love. (Thanks + farewells)

~4TH November 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

I bring to you this time much that is needed for you. There are those around and about you who have been blending with your individual energy patterns. I will explain to you my dear friends why this should be so. Can you feel a blending of energy between you?

Lilian: Between us? I hadn't thought of our Spirit friends blending with us, I must confess, although blending together, yes.

Yes. I will say little this time, but I will discuss with you the blending of your own energies with those who stand close, and how that blending of Spirit takes shape. There is much for you to learn about energy and always I have told you we must go slowly with this subject. After all, it is not something which is easily accepted, because it can only be felt and not seen. Therefore we have so many in your world who doubt us when we speak of blending energy; in fact I would say they have difficulty sometimes in accepting that pure energy exists. I want to tell you my dear friends, although we are small in number, I want you to know that here with you in this meeting place, there are many from my world who stand close, not those who wish to communicate, but those beings of light whose purpose it is to raise the energy vibration of your world. I have to tell you dear friends that these beings of light, the purpose of their existence is to raise the Earth vibration at this particular time in your evolution, because, you remember what I have said to you, that your world is making progress, it is evolving as it should at this particular time, but without the help of these light beings, I would be afraid for your existence. Therefore my dear friends, to have these beings of energy come to these meeting places, I would suggest to you is quite something. But I don't only want you to accept my words, I wish you to feel the difference in the energy that is within and around you.

George: When we first began to sit, I sensed there was an energy building from that moment.

Yes. Did anyone else feel this?

Sara: Yes, I did.

Good. What about our gentleman friend?

Graham: I always feel an upliftment when I come into this group. I come in sometimes feeling the effect of the week, but by the end of the meeting I always feel very uplifted, I feel like almost a totally different person. It's a wonderful feeling.

But this time my friends, there is an extra energy with you. Try to allow it to blend with your being.

Sara: It makes me feel very relaxed.

Yes, you should almost, I would say, feel light, lighter than you would normally, but if you do not, just please do accept my words that they are here with you. There is much work for us all to do, there is work to be achieved in your world in the coming of your years, not only in your years, but in those of your children and your extended families. Life upon this planet will eventually become more spiritual in nature. I would my friends—and this is not a teaching, but it is a fact which will occur, and because of your dedication to our work I will tell you that there is much that will be uncovered or 'discovered', as you earthly being say, in the coming of your next two years. Many things will be uncovered that mankind will use to advantage. Remember these words my friends, when they come to your attention as they surely will, not only upon your Earth, but in the expanse of all existence there will be found new planets, new stars. Of course they are not new, they have always been there, but the widening of mankind's vision is becoming much greater. Your scientific worlds are opening pathways—it is almost as though their eyes have been opened in many respects. So also in your medical world will there be much uncovered and that is because my dear friends, we have been working closely for some great length of your earthly time, with those who wish to help mankind. I am telling you this my dear friends as a thank you for all that you do.

Lilian: We thank you for all that you bring us.

I know we are small in numbers this time, but I know that my words will go to the others who are not with you at this time

George: Yes, they will receive transcripts.

Yes. Now my dear friends I think for this time if you have any questions for me, I will be only too pleased to answer them for you, but may I say that for the purpose of these beings of light who join with us this time, I ask perhaps that you devote a little time to absorbing their energy, (Agreed) and as usual I know you will discuss what you feel. Are there any questions my dear friends?

George: Yes, I would like to refer back to a question that was asked of you several years ago about homosexuality and as part of your wording on that, I think you said that it is possible for a Spirit to be transgendered, if I could use that word, such that the Spirit or psyche, is of one gender and the physical body would be of the other gender. I think you said it was on account of the Spirit being too eager to incarnate.

Yes. It is always the problem and you must remember that there are those in our world—and let me remind you firstly that when those who come to our world are anxious to return and will not be guided or will be patient enough—they will use their freewill which they still have—they will take any opportunity. That is why on your Earth you have people who produce children who really do not want them; it is a combination of the Spirit being rather too eager to reincarnate.

George: Thank you for confirming that. I know of three people who are in this category and they seem to have an internal conflict.

Yes. I would say always, because if you look spiritually to these people, that is why their lives sometimes seem to have this conflict. Not all, I would not say, but many.

George: I notice that some are driven to the extreme of taking hormones and involving surgery to convert their body to the other gender.

Let us not forget that gender belongs to the physical world.

George: Yes, but it is in some way matched by the Spirit coming into the physical?

Yes. The Spirit is eager to return and creates many problems.

George: I was wondering if you have any thought on using medical facilities to alter the physical body? And I would assume that as the Spirit is more fundamental, it is not possible to alter that?

Well, mankind can do much to alter the physical makeup of man or woman, or these souls who are confused. There is nothing to stop mankind using medical advancements, but the fact remains that the Spirit within does not change. It is a complex issue which cannot be spoken of lightly, because there are too many issues at hand here; it is not a simple statement that I can give to you.

George: These people seem to strive to express as their Spirit self.

Yes, the Spirit within is the one who is striving to come forward, but because it has not been, shall we say considered fully, because they have not chosen the lifetime wisely—can I put it that way for you—then all of these complications arise. But I hear you say: But if you choose your lifetime, why should there be these complications? Have they chosen this way? Not always. Remember that Spirit beings have freewill, as you have those children in your world who are guided, but will always still go their own way, because of your freewill. But that is something not to be decried, because it is a learning process for the Spirit, and although they may come back to our world with regret, it has been a lesson for them, which I would say they probably would not make again, because of the life lessons which they have encountered.

George: Yes, I can understand that. And I have read some words by the Dalai Lama which I think agree with what you have said. I think the Dalai Lama was saying that the Spirit at the time of conception, enters the egg by one route in respect of female, and a different route in respect of male.

It is a complicated subject and not one that everyone can accept eagerly, but we say this to you my dear friends: that the Spirit within knows in our world what is 'right' and what you call 'wrong', although those two words for me are rather contradictory to the Spirit itself. But what I would say is this: that no matter which way Spirit reincarnates into any body, that Spirit is responsible for what has happened and those two people who have joined together to give the Spirit the opportunity to reincarnate, also have some responsibility. I will my dear friends go more deeply into this matter on another occasion, but it is not as simple as you would at first see.

George: Well thank you very much for clarifying that for us.

I hope it helps in your understanding.

George: Yes it does, thank you, because as you will appreciate there are all kinds of different views that people have.

Yes, and this is always the problem that the human being always wants an explanation which is either black or white, when in fact when you speak of the Spirit world, there I would say, lies the fault of humankind in trying to decide what is right and what is wrong. It is confusing and this is something that all of us who come to you have to try to dispel, because there has been many, many, many of your years when information given to you has been misinterpreted, or mankind has decided that he is best at knowing the right answer. And that is our purpose in coming to teach you and to help you to understand and to open your minds more fully to what is happening. As always my dear friends, look at all of these issues, any of your problems from the spiritual standpoint and you will have a much better view, you will receive a much better answer to your question.

Sara: Certainly when you appreciate the complexity of things, we appreciate that we cannot judge, because it is very involved.

Yes, always it returns, does it not, to my simple teachings 'never to make judgement upon another', because how can you know the circumstances of that Spirit. All too often Earth people are quick to judge, are harsh in their judgment, whereas the Spirit eyes should see the wider picture, and even if the understanding is not there, at least give the heart a chance to feel and accept another's life. It is not always easy I know, but that is the way forward. Are there more questions or shall we sit quietly?

George: It might be just a good time to bring up one question which relates to white beings. There may be a simple answer. I've often thought about the writings of Homer in ancient Greece. He wrote about a time when the gods participated in human affairs. I just wondered if he got his inspiration from knowledge of angels and light beings, or was there a time those few thousand years ago when there was a situation similar to today, where we have light beings amongst us?

There has been never one time when light beings have been more intense in their purpose than any other. What I would say is this: that the light beings have always been around this planet, as they have on others. When I speak of the light beings, I am speaking of those beings who have never lived a human life. You understand? And as you speak my dear friend, of course you have to realize that from the beginning of this birth of this planet, there have been those who have stood by to help and give upliftment and knowledge. Those writings you speak of have indeed been inspired, but there have been many times throughout the existence of this Earth plane, when many have been inspired, not only your great and well-known people, writers—those with knowledge, but the simple person on this Earth. All of you are inspired in some way, but each one of you uses that inspiration in the best way that they can.

George: And I imagine that some light beings would be looking after the planetary system (Yes—from the beginning.) and others would be inspiring mankind?

Always, always—you begin to know and understand when these great writings that you discover and begin to understand, you think to yourself: 'Where have they come from?' But when you have the knowledge that you have now, you begin to realize that mankind is never alone; never alone.

George: That is very nice to know, thank you.

You could compare yourself in a smaller way to those who write words of inspiration, because that is what you have tried to achieve in the work that you do. Would you not agree?

George: Yes, thank you very much for that.

I think now my dear friends is the time to allow that energy to be felt, because I can tell you that the whole of this meeting place is enclosed with a light, which you will not always have the opportunity of having. So allow yourselves to go inward and let us see what you can achieve. I will leave you quietly, always of course in the knowledge that I come to you only with truth, with love and always with the upliftment that you all seek. (Thanks + farewells)

~11TH November 2002~

Good evening. (Greetings)

There is amongst you my dear friends a heaviness of Spirit. The burdens of life weigh heavily upon some of you. I have brought to you this time those who forever seek to help and uplift you; they stand close. Feel their presence and know that their task is to help lighten that heavy load.

Lilian: We thank them for that.

