

~15th February 1999~

No Salumet this time, but other communications occurred, the first of which came through Eileen, briefly explaining that conditions were not right this time for one who wished to speak to us about light and colour. One then followed through Sue:
Good evening.

All: Good evening.

I cannot stay long. I was not expecting to come to speak to you.

Les: We thank you for coming at short notice.

I am what you would call the understudy this time, am I not?

Les: Well I wouldn't say that. You are an alternative speaker.

This work is not particular common to me. I may be hesitant when I speak to you.

Les: Don't worry about that. What type of work do you usually do?

As little as possible! (Chuckles) No, I joke but I am not what you would call, one of the worker bees. I suppose in our own ways, we all work, do we not? But I have no specific function in the work that you are aware of. I do speak to those in my world, and I think about experiences in the physical — the small groups, who I am told need some physical awareness, do you understand my meaning?

Les: Yes, they still hang onto the physical requirements.

Indeed, that fortunately was not a problem of mine, I was only too pleased to shrug off the overcoat, in fact I think I ran to the new life, at quite a gallop. But I am sure you are aware through previous work that you have done, that there are other souls, who find it more difficult to accept the new life.

Les: Yes you are quite right, there are many.

So we have some little groups and I sit with them and we discuss past life. And I ask them what was so special about their lives, that they must keep going back and back and thinking about it, you understand?

Les: Yes I do understand — they are reluctant to let go of it, aren't they?

Most certainly some are. I do have a few failures, but not many and I'm sure you have had a few failures in the past.

Les: Yes I'm sure we have.

But it is most rewarding is it not, when one looks at you and says, 'Goodness me you are right!'

(Yes—) Of course I am right — always, always right.

Les: Yes, this is the one occasion where you're not right, isn't it, saying that you are always right?

Oh that is just a little deep, is it not, but I do understand your meaning (Chuckles) and yes, truth to tell, it is a failing of mine. But don't you sometimes find you could shake them?

Les: Yes I do, well I have done in the past, since then I've learned that it doesn't matter; we can only teach, whether they accept the teaching is entirely up to them. It shouldn't reflect on our ability to teach others.

I do not use the word 'teacher,' in my work, because I feel I do not teach I 'listen.' Perhaps it is a form of teaching, I don't know.

Les: But you must answer also sometimes?

Well we do have discussions and I give them the benefit of my knowledge, which in some respects is great and in others, is non-existent, but we are all like that, are we not?

Les: Of course we are, we can only pass on the extent of our knowledge, at that particular point. In addition to passing on that knowledge, or teaching as we call it here, we also have to learn, in order to undertake further teaching.

Indeed, and don't you find it is like a wheel going round. I have a success in one of my groups and then they are so overwhelmed at the light that comes in through their minds, that they go and speak to someone else. And that is how it goes on.

Les: Of course it does, passing on the knowledge from one to the other.

That is why I say I do as little as possible, because I feel it can be continued without me.

Les: Yes, but still you must be there to begin it.
I have that privilege yes, and although I make a jest and say that I am perfect, of course no one is. But it brings a little lightness sometimes to a dark discussion.

Les: Yes of course it does.

We have a group at present, that I am on the fringe of, because I feel it is a little beyond my capabilities. We have people who are clinging to an old regime, an old regime of fear. They caused fear and feel that they are still in control. And of course we now have to rid them of that.

Les: Of course you do and it can be quite difficult, can't it.

We cannot have the rule of fear, it is not acceptable, it is not permissible, and it is not good.

Les: And it is not going to be permitted.

Absolutely forbidden, excuse me for using such a word, it is forbidden, but my knowledge is not sufficient for me to be able to take control of this group. I am on the edge, I am there to take someone, should they see the light and guide them onto a different path. But I cannot as yet, take control of that group.

Les: No, but you're learning all the time.

Indeed and believe you me, it is quite an eye-opener at times.

Les: I'm sure it must be.

I don't think anyone is fully aware, of how fear can rule a person's life.

Les: Well the master who teaches us here, has emphasised that point, that we are our own worst enemies, by accepting fear into our lives and our thoughts.

But when people rule by fear that has got to be stamped out.

Les: Oh yes of course. Unfortunately there is too much of it in this world today.

It is a problem, a large problem, which I will say to you, has caused much concern in our realms. But we believe and when I say 'we,' I mean a much higher deity than myself, believe that there is a light at the end of a very long tunnel.

Les: Yes and one has to keep trying to ensure that they do approach that light.

Indeed, but in my lifetime, I have seen much that has pained me, and at the time I believe there was nothing that could be done, to rectify the situation. But as we all know, Love can conquer all things.

Les: Yes, that's absolutely true.

Love, the most important emotion, in all, ALL aspects of life.

Les: Absolutely right.

I had much guilt when I came into the golden realms. I could not wait as I said, to arrive. But I had much guilt, that I did not do enough to combat fear and I believe that is why I am involved now, in this particular group. It has helped me to see, that it is not always possible for one person, ONE person, to make a difference. But ONE person's love, can start a chain, can it not? (Yes.) It can start a chain of help, yes it can. So I say to all of you, never think I am not good enough, I cannot do this alone.

You perhaps cannot do it alone, but you are the start, or the middle, or the end of a chain, that can and does make a difference.

Les: Yes we believe that fully. Good, well we wish you every success in your activities with your group.

I would ask please that if we require your help at your next meeting, could we please bring someone that requires a little more than we are able to give, on our side of life. (Yes of course—) I do not mean your next meeting with these wonderful people here, but you have another group I believe?

Les: That's right, and they are quite welcome to come to that group.

Thank you that's what we were hoping for.

Les: Yes, we shall be pleased to have them and deal with them.

So, if you are willing, then I may return with them, at your next meeting —

Les: Yes please do.

Have I been succinct in my speaking — I am not used to coming into these realms?

Les: Oh yes, I think everybody has understood you completely, haven't they? (General agreement)

I feel a little strange and my voice is nothing like I remember it to be.

Les: No, you are using an instrument, of course. And of course, vocal is not used to any degree in our realms. But if I have been clear and succinct, as I used to be whilst on this Earth, then I am pleased that I have been able to come.

Les: Yes you have.

I did not wish to waste valuable time in mumblings, it would not be fair to you all, who give up your time, to come to these meetings.

Les: No, it's been quite clearly understood, thank you.

I will leave now and return to my people and will tell them that you are willing for them to bring one or possibly two persons, for help if required.

Les: Yes please do that, we shall be very happy to meet them.

I look forward to returning to you, so we can continue perhaps after you have helped and I can tell you a little more, if you are interested?

Les: I'm sure our other people, would be very interested.

But please do tell me, if you are unable to understand my diction.

Les: No, we understand you very clearly.

I am pleased, I wish you good evening and thank you so much, for all you have done in all I know you do — and please forgive me for being, how can I say, a little self-centred and egotistical. It is only my way of breaking the ice.

Les: Thank you very much indeed, we do understand, goodbye to you and God bless you. There then followed another also through Sue of a much lighter note, talking about working with children in the spirit realm, teaching them and taking them to see the wonderful nature and animals, in what she called the 'new world.' She was joined briefly by one of the children through Eileen, who gently said to her teacher that it was sometimes the children who taught the teachers. They were lovely gentle characters who helped to end the meeting on a light-hearted note.
