

~27th September 1999~ Leslie's
return 'home'~

Good evening. (General welcomes)

This time I wish to say just a few words, because I am aware of your many thoughts, which have been directed to that friend who has now returned home to us. I wish to say to you my dear friends this, and then we will allow time for reflection, by each one of you on much good that that gentleman has given to you all. I feel it is useful this time to say to you that the passing of this one is very good example of what I have been trying to teach you about Power of Thought. I say this to you my dear friends, it was not his time. Yes, you are surprised, I know. He had a few more of your earthly years left for work to be done, but let me say that the power and the guidance of his many thoughts over past time, had to create the opportunity for those thoughts to be realized. Do you understand what I say to you?

Lilain: Could you explain a little more please?

Yes, the gentleman in times past has often expressed the desire to be with those whom he loved in our world. When constant thoughts are given in this way—I have told you my dear friends, that thought is the most powerful component that you will ever possess. Each one of those thoughts created a situation, which eventually led to the power of the thought having to materialize. Can you see? (general agreement) I hope that you can see from this example. how careful you must always be with your thinking.

Lilian: Yes, we can see that.

I also wish to say to you that although it was not his time, he will suffer no consequence from it; he will continue on his pathway. But I will say possibly happier until the realization comes that there was more to achieve.

Lilian: Yes, I remember you saying he has more work to do.

Yes and he had, but that is why my dear friends, I constantly remind you about the Power of Thought. Can you understand it now? (general agreement) Your dear friend had much wisdom, but he was also human as each one of you are, but that should not stop you in trying to become more aware of your thoughts and your thinking.

When thoughts become all powerful, there has to be a re-enactment of those thoughts. So you cannot say, 'why did this happen?' I know you fully don't understand why such situations are created, but again we have moved to deep matters. 'Why,' I can hear you say 'did he just not pass peacefully?' There are many complex issues associated with this and this is not the time for me to go into those deep matters, but eventually we will, my dear friends. When your understanding grows slowly, slowly, then we will again talk about these many things that cause you difficulty.

Lilian: Yes, we do ponder sometimes why we need the pain and so on.

You do not need the pain, but again it is the thought and the control of it which makes the difference.

Lilian: Yes—we've got a lot to learn.

I did feel that each one of you needed to hear these words this time, not to remind you of your friend, but in order to remind you of what each one of you is doing with your thinking. (Yes.) I will leave you this time. I feel that too many thoughts are travelling with you and therefore I will not give new information this time, but say to you my dear friends, thank you for allowing me to come to you once more; and to allow you now some time, either to reflect or to speak quietly amongst yourselves, in order that your understanding may grow stronger. I leave you now secure in the knowledge that always I am with you. (general thanks)

One then came through Sue, who had been before:

*Moon Feather, Moon Feather will see old friend.
Moon Feather will be happy to see face to face and talk many, many long moons. We have much to say. Moon Feather very happy, can speak here. He comes with great love to all.
Leave now, not easy this time.*

Lilian: Will you come again and talk to us.

Have come many times, so will return again to speak and will one day come with friend and all will be happy.

Lilian: We look forward to that very much.

Leave you now—much to do. (A few words were spoken in Moon Feather's language before leaving.)

Another then came through Eileen:

I did not expect to make this journey, but I have accepted that I should return to you one last time, in order to give to you this news. Moon Feather has spoken with you I understand, but I feel that having known this friend for so long, that I would bring to you perhaps some joy. I am very old acquaintance of the friend who has come to us. I wish to tell you that he has been overawed by what he has encountered.

Lilian: Has he?

Yes, I tell you my name, only so that you may recognize me as being a true and trusted acquaintance. I am Sister Anna who over the long years of his earthly working, have visited with him on many, many occasions. What I wish to tell you, is that he will, in time, endeavour to make contact with you.

Lilian: That would be wonderful.

But as you will probably be aware, there is much for him to do and to know.

Lilian: A lot to learn is there?

Always we learn— (amused tone) —that is something that is never ending, but we wish you to know this, that your time upon this place is fleeting, therefore do not express any sadness or sorrow for one who is now much more alive.

Look to your own lives and know that your lives too are fleeting by the everlasting clock. (Yes!) Therefore I say to you, thank you for allowing me to speak with you.

Lilian: We're most grateful—we cannot express our gratitude to you.

We wish no gratitude, but we ask you to think good of those you have known, those you have lost, but we have found—(the tape cut off at that point, but Sister Anna had nearly finished what she was saying.)

~4th October 1999~

Good evening. (general welcomes)

I have to say to you this time that I was attracted by your speaking before entering this room. All I wish to say at this time is that the lady (Sarah) who had difficulty in understanding must try to remove all restrictions of physical thinking. Until you are able to achieve in some part, you will always find difficulties in understanding so much. I will return to this for her to give you some deeper meaning and understanding.

Sarah: Thank you very much.

Because of small number this time, I will not speak with you too long, but will say that next time we meet I wish to bring to you some new knowledge, new knowledge for your understanding.

Lilian: Yes, we look forward to that.

For this time others will speak and I say to you my dear friends, if this time you feel, you sense, you see anything which you have not experienced before, will you please tell the lady quietly, because I wish to work with this instrument for the rest of the time, but we will be trying to achieve much.

Lilian: Yes, we'll do that.

You understand, therefore I will leave you this time. Each one of you has an important task this evening, even if you are unconscious of it. Therefore I will withdraw and allow others to come to you; but please, please, let the lady know; or if you my dear lady sees, feels or senses anything unusual, please to tell the others. My love as always surrounds you. (general thanks and farewells)
