

10th October 2011.

No Salumet this time. The evening had begun with rescues—two via Eileen, one a very distressed and remorseful lady who had taken her own life and was now just so concerned for her young children. She now has a much better understanding of her position and how she can be positive and watch over them. A third rescue came via Sarah. This one was all stressed up about the pig that was out of the pen and thought that was still the situation. (Rescues are available for listening to on our website:

www.salumetandfriends.org) Bill then introduced Rudolf as we now know to be their customary arrangement; Bill's task being to ground the communication as there are so many different levels in spirit—some high, some linked much more closely to Earth than others. Bill said that the zone close to Earth used to be a more temporary zone but it has become more complicated—the new energies should be a help:

Rudolf Steiner here!—coming through again.

Lilian: Good evening!

George: Oh! That's nice!

It is always welcoming in such circles. It interests me that you do 'rescues' here. 'Rescue' is not so common nowadays, but they need it—they need mediums to come through. The astral is often a bit confusing at a certain level. It needs more light to shine on it on that level and then they will not be troubled souls. They will be released from their—in a sense they're still asleep still. The lower levels of the astral are in a deeper sleep—the ability to reflect clearly is limited. But on the higher astral levels, the ability to see clearly is like a sight—a vision—it's a bit blurred, the frequencies are more blurred. But I'm beyond that, on the ascended level. Once you ascend, then you see things totally differently—and clarity comes, all the lives fit in, history begins to make sense, and confusion goes. One sees the challenges as well. The Earth is in some ways a troubled planet. It needs to rescue itself. The whole planet needs rescue and that is what the highest spiritual forces wish.

George: It's interesting that you say that history begins to make sense. Yes, one feels there are periods on the Earth when what is done doesn't seem to make a lot of sense.

Yeah, there's progress—setbacks—progress—setbacks. Humanity goes forward a bit, then it has periods like the 'Dark Ages', where it seems to revert backwards, and the lower annihilistic ways of the Earth come back. Then you have a 'Renaissance' with a push forward towards the realm of spirit. It's like a magnetism, and this is an age of being drawn back into spirit realm again—dropping the lower physicality—the material domination—not to be trapped by the illusion of materialism. I tried to convey this on my short time on the Earth. It is much—Sara: Could I ask a question?

Yes, fine!

*Sara: I feel a bit guilty asking a personal question (no you're not), but I know you understand about education, and you can probably see the problems currently in our world (big problems, yes). I'm trying to decide whether to move my son to another school, because he's really unhappy where he is—The problem is somewhat in his self as well.

Sara: Do you feel that?

So the problem may continue.

Sara: You think it wouldn't go away.

It will not clear—it happens to everybody. If there is an issue, it has to be resolved internally—internally resolved.

Sara: What do you see as the big issue?

The big issue is: he doesn't—he feels troubled by communicating with some of the others.

Sara: Yes, yes. Do you feel it is because of—

He is trying to express himself fully with them—young men have that issue—yes.

Sara: Is it a typical issue?

Trying to find his place in the world, isn't it?

*Sara: So, it's a sort of growing up issue?
—Part of maturing into adulthood.*

Sara: Right, so you don't see it improving in a smaller environment?

It depends on where you can find locally.

Sara: Yes, I see. So, if you had to look at the scenario we have, would you advise sticking with it and working with it?

Yes. I would say: see it as a challenge.

Sara: See it as a challenge to overcome? (Yes) Okay!
Then, you always think there's another option.
Sometimes, the option is to overcome the situation you're in.

Sara: Well. That's helpful to me, because, at least I know we can—perhaps we can overcome it. It might be possible.

Oh, it is not easy at any level, especially in your modern schools. There is too much external interference going on in their minds. They are influenced by television, computers. And they play these games that express—encourage an aggressive streak, which I see as unhealthy for their minds.

George: Yes—aggressive streak—that's a good term in relation to computer games.

War games—war games really, aren't they? (Yes)—which are allowed to be played—yeah.

Sara: It's difficult in our environment, because all of the boys are doing this, and the way we see it is that if we ban it from our home, he'll probably go to another home to do it

A lot of the problems he has are due to these games.

Sara: Do you think so? (Yes) Ah! Good! I can tell him that!

I see it in his—he's absorbed in it (right, okay!) It can possess them, you know. It can take them over (right). A lot of these children are overshadowed by the characters of the games. So really they become psyched into the games so much they develop certain traits of the characters of the game—being a Ninja or a soldier, and they lose their own personality within it. That upsets me, certainly—a great deal. They start worrying. They do not understand the higher influence of the mental aspect.

Sara: If we were to remove it completely, do you think that that could help him, or do you think it would cause more problems.

Well, he would react initially, for sure, and you will find his behaviour a bit difficult, but it is your challenge to consider that option.

Sara: That would probably bear the most fruit? (Yes.) Yes, okay! I like the sound of that.

I do not like these games at all.

Sara: I don't either.

They are poison to their minds.

Sara: That's exactly how I feel.

And it's like, yeah, it's like 'an opium' to them isn't it?

Sara: The problem I see is that I don't think he knows anyone who doesn't do them.

There's an addiction issue with them. They're becoming addicted—

Sara: I know—horrible games—
—what I would call 'satanic games'. I have to use such a term because that is applicable.

Sara: Of course!

George: These are good words. These are wise words to set down and circulate.

Sara: Yes, I'm quite happy with this. This resonates!
I am not some—I'm quite happy to express my views on that in the strongest terms.

Sara: Good, thank you, for that!

They are dangerous and unhealthy in society, basically.

Sara: I would agree with that.

And those in power should know this, but they're so weak.

George: Right, these words will be circulated to our correspondents.

Okay, that is fine!

George: I would like to say, that I heard today—only today, from one of our correspondents who began his education in one of your schools.

Ah, that's good!—yes.

George: William wrote in, and from the age of five to seven, he was actually at one of your schools—the one at Ilkeston, in Derbyshire.

Ah! Much has been established since my passing over—yes. I look over them from spirit, of course. Yes they have been very instrumental in assisting the continuation of my work on the Earth plane, and I thank them for that. One man cannot do it all—only with the assistance of others can you establish a movement—a spiritual order.

George: Yes, he has good memories of that, so I think he had a good start in life.

But, the downside is that some of your original teachings can get lost on the way. You cannot continue the flow in spirit so easily. There can be movement in certain directions. It's a bit like trying to tame a river, isn't it? You can only do so much—then it finds its own course. What I wish to do before I go is to put down the Christos—the Christ golden light for you—to assist you in your lives.

Lilian: Thank you!

If you wish for that, I will provide it.

Sara: Thank you.

That of the sun—the divine love of the solar Logos. So, you will be blessed with that.

Paul: We will be very honoured.

So that is what I will do now. So just open your heart centres to the Christos light.

George: Wonderful!

It is a beautiful light of divine celestial love which heals and removes troubles within you. It is a cure for many ills—yeah.

Rod: Thank you!

I wish you to share this—for it is my strongest pillar of my teaching—the Christ impulse. I will share that with you at this time. Okay, so I will put that down and I will bid you a good week ahead.

General thanks

So just receive it now. I will transmit it—transmitting!

Pause

It has been put down—yeah

Sara: Thank you.

It will protect you and guide you also, and I will assist on the rescue issue, also—see what I can do to help. There's Bill again, come in there to close it down—

Oh! I saw that—a good bit of light there, yes. Thank you for receiving us, yes.

George: Well, thank you for coming through and it's been very nice again. I feel for you, in some ways. You had difficulties at times when you were on the Earth—when the Hitler regime—

Oh, he's gone now—it's Bill!

George: Oh! Bill now!

Laughter

I've had my troubles as well, you know, not just him.

More laughter

George: Oh well, farewell Rudolf and Bill.

George's Notes:

Rescues: The nature and need for 'rescues' is made clearer. The majority that we receive are insufficiently aware, or insufficiently knowledgeable, to realise that they have passed over. They think they are still in physical life on the Earth—yet something is not quite right. Some simply do not believe in any 'afterlife' and have closed their minds to that possibility; these can be the most difficult. Occasionally, we have drawn their attention to rings on fingers or to character of hairdo to convince that they have 'borrowed' the body of a medium so that they can speak with us!

Electronic Games: Our philosopher friend provides a powerful message from higher spirit on the decadence of the warring / Ninja games and their bad effect on the minds of youth.

Mind: Again the all-important nature of mind comes to the fore. There is much value in youth guidance. And clearly, when we pass over to spirit, the 'rescues' are only necessary when mind has remained closed or has become a little lost in some way. But such hiccups can be overcome and it seems that the new light frequencies will assist.

Planetary Rescue: This aspect of rescue also gets a mention; and perhaps we should think back to 1994 to recall that this was the first part of Salumet's mission to Earth.

Humorous note: The voices of RS and Bill are alike, so one has to listen hard at times to know who is speaking. Anyway, that similarity gave us a really good laugh at the end of session!
