Lilian: Welcome to you Salumet.

Good evening.

All: Good evening.

It is good to join with you this time.

Sarah: It's good to have you back here too Salumet.

I wish to say to all of you that our dear friend, and we are aware of his loss to you, he has arrived home safely. And having the inquisitive mind that he had, he is now beginning to seek for some answers.

Gentle chuckles

This I know would not be news for you, but I wish you to know that there are so many on our side of life who will keep him 'engaged', shall we say, for some time. He has expressed a desire to meet with the other gentleman who started this group.

(Delighted whispers of 'Leslie')

Of course, if that is his desire, then that will be so. And of course to meet with family and friends again is just wonderful to him. He may not come to you directly himself, but he may use his voice through another for a short time; so be aware of this. And our dear friend who is sitting next to me, (Ben) we have been aware of all that has happened in his life also and we wish (him) to know that any friend from this circle is always gladly received when they return home to us; (Ben's mother Sally also passed recently) the connection becomes much stronger.

Yes, I have one more thing to tell you that someone in our dear friend George's family said to him in a quiet moment, would he please return quickly to us. I wish only to tell you that he was aware of all things said to him and he will be pleased to return when ready—also with his dear lady. (Ann)

Paul: Wonderful!

So my dear friends, I say to you, be a little patient, become aware of any presence around you, or anything that he may try to do to attract attention—and the same with our dear friend here. (Ben)

Family always finds it difficult when there is a passing, but as you know, we gather around to uplift and to support you and all of you at some time have encountered bereavement in your world, whether it be a loved one or a friend or even a stranger.

We shall continue as always. We will always welcome those who wish to come to these meetings, if they are looking for the Truth. And as some go, then some will come; I have told you this previously that you ARE like a circle of life—as one leaves one enters into the group. So my dear friends, I do not intend to stay this time for long, but next time I hope to bring you some more information that will make you stop and think. So I take my leave, and know always that you are surrounded by much love.

General thanks

George's bio-degradable coffin we had joked looked a bit like a parcel and guests at the funeral wrote messages of love on the cardboard surface and it was even addressed to Heaven, so we joked after that the package had arrived OK. We discussed how great it was that George was already asking questions and seemed up and running so quickly.

Eileen then began to get clairvoyance regarding a friend of Ben's late mum called Jerry, who had a middle name that he was not at all fond of. It seemed Sally was trying to nudge this man, though he seemed unaware of her at this time. Eileen then turned to Jan with the names Valerie and Alice, concerning a daughter of a great grand parent, (perhaps one of 12) who'd passed very young.

Eileen then felt a connection to Sarah, who had been sorting through her late father's old coats. Sarah was in the process of moving house and her father had a little advice for her that she didn't need to keep so many shoes and also that she needed to keep her chin up.

Jan also felt her dad come close and saw his train set, and the message that there wasn't as much as she thought to sort out.

Next Cho spoke via Eileen—audio link:

Hello.

All: Hi Cho

I told you, you need reflective evening.

Lilian: Yeah, very quiet, at times

I said I'd be quiet if I come.

Lilian: You join us in quietness.

Paul: Yeah, a lot's being happening, so it's good to reflect a bit

Oh, I not like reflect-ive, I like noise.

Chuckles

Paul: Ah yeah, I think we've probably done enough reflecting anyway, we can get a bit noisy now I think.

Yes, you need pick up happy—happy people.

Paul: Yeah, we've got so much to be happy about really.

Yes you have!

Sarah: I think sometimes when you're being reflecting it doesn't necessarily mean to say you're being unhappy.

No, I not say that lady.

Chuckles

You trouble as well as my friend.

Sarah: Yeah, big trouble.

Jan: I'm quiet tonight.

Very quiet tonight.

Jan: I know. Did you, well, you'll know anyway, the good news about my leg—it's started to heal! I've been healing it myself!

Good.

Jan: Isn't that brilliant?

What about me?

Jan: What about you?

I told you I'd be with you.

Jan: You did—I see what you mean! You know half of it's healed.

You must not stop, you must keep on.

Jan: I am, I'm going to.

And also let the lady help you. (Lilian)

Jan: Yes, we did healing tonight.

Good. She got very good healing hands I'm told.

Jan: Yes, we'll carry on with that.

Sarah: Thank you Cho for helping her.

Jan: But I had to do the work myself didn't I as well?

Yes you did.

Jan: That is what I realise, that's what my friend Serena said tonight that it was just the realisation that I couldn't leave it the chance

You see, you becoming very wise. You soon will be too clever for me.

Jan: I don't think so

I don't think so either!

Chuckles

Jan: You know far more than we do

No—Cho only joke with you; I like coming here cause you laugh at my jokes.

Chuckles

You know people think we not joke, just because we live in another place...how silly.

Jan: Don't they laugh at your jokes on the other side of life then?

Not always.

Jan: No?

Sara: It's like here then, isn't it?

Some people not like my jokes—other people laugh.

Sarah: Some people just don't like jokes, not necessarily yours, they just don't like jokes.

But it's not a problem because they don't have to come to see me, if they don't like my jokes.

Sara: That's right.

Now it's all gone quiet.

Jan: I feel the energy in the room, sort of—even though you're here, it's quite heavy.

Sara: It's peaceful but it is sort of—it's almost as if we're being held in it.

Jan: Yeah. Are there lots of people here tonight with us Cho?

Not as many as usual no. because you needed reflective time on your own.

Jan: Yeah. I definitely feel the atmosphere tonight is different.

Yes, yes. That is good when you feel the difference in the energies; you should all try to develop that awareness. Anyway, now made me serious, and I'm going.

Sara: Ho dear! We can't have that.

Jan: No, we can't have you going serious—just laugh.

I'll see who I can let come to see you; there's a little queue—not much.

General thanks and farewells

Sarah: Are you still there Cho?

I still here.

Sarah: I was watching a program on the telly about a very ancient civilisation in Peru, a little before the Incas, and a little while ago, somebody came through me and spoke in a different tongue, and it was a group of people who had been taken over by the Incas, and I keep hearing this language in my head. I forget how long ago it was that one who came through me—I'm just wondering if that actually was the place where these people came from? I suppose you wouldn't know that would you?

I not know that now, but I can find for you, and let you know another time.

Sarah: That would be very kind.

But it sounds like it probably is correct.

Sarah: Yes, oh thank you.

It not surprising people want to have their words heard—I find out for you, and let you know.

Sarah: Yes, thank you. This group of people they built their houses were round, they didn't use so much material and also protected them against earthquake, but I didn't think, when I saw them on the telly that didn't strike me, but I can hear this language going around in my head.

You are probably correct.

Sarah: Thank you. Anyway, it would be very kind of you if you could find something.

I will go and find out for you from someone who understands and knows. You know when people say when you come to spirit you know everything? That's not true, we have to learn the same as anyone else. So don't let anyone say you suddenly become all wise. Anyway I must go now ciao.

All: Ciao Cho.

Our discussion continued on the Ancient builders of the houses Sarah referred to, which seemed to draw the one through Sarah—audio link:

I am happy to be with you today.

Lilian: We're happy to have you.

I am being brought to you because we are able to give you information about these dwellings. They were built with help from the spirit world. It would have been most difficult to have been able to build the way they did without help from spirit.

Lilian: It was certainly very high ground that was for sure.

Those people who lived in those dwellings were advanced beings who had returned to this Earth planet on many occasions. They have since returned to a spirit and will most probably never return again to this Earth planet. They were able to finish their earthly lives on this last visit. They were known to each other from many previous lives, and this was their final visit.

Paul: It must have been a very special gathering of advanced beings then on the Earth.

They were aware of much more than you people at this time on planet Earth. They are helping with those who are trying to advance themselves in spirit and that is now their mission. There will be some more information that mankind will find about these people—but not too much.

Paul: Did they have a specific name these people? They were known as "koltich-ka".

Paul: Thank you.

And, this one who asked about the language, she is correct; but, this language was also spoken in other parts, not just in that one particular dwelling place, but it was also taken over and the language has disappeared.

Mark: Is there is another language that it was closer to that's still around?

That language has completely disappeared and it was quite different from any other that was spoken in that region; and there is now just a message from the chief of that dwelling and he wishes to let you know that we on this planet here—I say 'we' because at this moment I am here, but, he wishes to let you know that what you do find out about that people and the buildings, will be of great use to you in this modern time.

Paul: Ah thank you, we will do our best to collate all the information we can.

It will be your scientists who will be giving out this information.

Paul: Ah right.

And now my message has been delivered, I will returned.

General thanks

There then followed one called Betty through Eileen who took us on a short meditative journey—audio link:

Note:

On 1st August 2011 Sarah did a rather amazing channelling of a pre-Incan language no longer spoken on Earth, which Sarah refers to in the transcript—audio link:
